18.7.3.233 He cannot now give an account of any firing from the Rubble Barricade and cannot explain how the nail bombs which he recollected at 2.10am had been forgotten by 2.30am. This account is moreover inconsistent with the photographic evidence showing the arrival of Anti-Tank Platoon at the Kells Walk Wall.

18.7.3.234 P1119 and P1120 contradict the suggestion that Anti-Tank Platoon were coming under fire as they advanced down Rossville Street in that soldiers were able to move forward of the low wall without cover. Moreover Soldiers P and 017 never took cover behind the Kells Walk Wall, undermining the suggestion of continual shooting, nail bombs and acid bombs even further

Arrival at Kells Walk Wall

18.7.3.235 Soldier H's inability to separate truth from fiction is evident even in his statement to this Inquiry. He describes the scene as Anti-Tank Platoon arrived at the Kells Walk Wall in the following terms:

> "There were thousands of people all around and there were only 10 of us. I was conscious that we had been shot as we entered and people were throwing stones at us." B264 paragraph 13

18.7.3.236 It is evident from the photographs which show Anti-Tank Platoon as they arrived at the Kells Walk Wall P1117 to P1121, or the video evidence of the vehicles as they stopped, showing small groups fleeing from soldiers, that no description could be further from the truth. Once questioned about this Soldier H accepted that "It was not actually thousands of people surrounding us." Day 377/27/22 to Day 377/27/23

18.7.3.237 However the fact that he was willing to continue to make a case, which was both discernibly untrue and designed to paint a picture of soldiers as victims, illustrates the lengths to which this witness is willing to go to hide the truth about Bloody Sunday.

Soldier H's Third RMP Statement

187.3.238 Soldier H's third statement is undated, B224 however, in common with a large number of statements taken from soldiers on the 4th February 1972, it appears to be aimed solely at providing corroboration for the actions of other shooters, and in particular Soldiers F and G. Much of the detail of that statement deals with events which occurred in Glenfada Park North. However, in common with Soldier J (B269 to B270) Soldier 018 (B1487) Soldier 036 (B1629, B1630) and Soldier 147 (B1886, B1887) Soldier H's third statement deals with the incident on Rossville Street when soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon maintain that they come under fire while in their pig and where Soldiers F and G fired at the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.239 As with Soldier J, Soldier H's third statement of the 4th February has as its sole objective providing corroboration and justification for the actions of Soldiers F and G. It cannot be relied upon, except as further evidence of Soldier H's inability to tell the truth.

Soldier H's fears

18.7.3.240 Soldier H can no longer recollect the gunfire or nail bombs he gave evidence about in 1972, prior to entering Glenfada Park, with the exception that he maintains his recollection of the drain-pipe shot and of coming under fire whilst in the pig. Despite this he describes his feelings on entering Glenfada Park in the following terms:

> "As I entered the courtyard I was terrified. I remember my knees trembling. The knocking of my knees is one of the clearest memories I have of the day. Coming under fire was absolutely terrifying." B264 paragraph 16

18.7.3.241 He was unable to explain to this Tribunal the basis of that fear, given his limited recollection, stating "I can only now remember the nervousness of it there." Day 377/52/2 to Day 377/52/21

18.7.3.242 What is clear is that while the details have changed, the picture painted by Soldier H in 2003 is the same as the picture painted in 1972. It is an image of soldiers facing a terrifying ordeal, coming under attack from armed civilians and forced to have recourse to lethal force and it is a gross distortion of the truth.

18.7.3.243 The reason Soldier H finds it necessary to distort the truth of what happened on Bloody Sunday is because, as found by Lord Widgery, 19 of the 22 shots fired by Soldier H remain unaccounted for to this day.

18.7.3.244 Soldier H's account of how he came to fire those 19 shots is so implausible it has been universally rejected. His Platoon Commander Lieutenant 119 stated that his initial reaction to hearing the description of Soldier H's shots was "surprise and disbelief that he could have fired so many rounds of ammunition without me knowing about it." B1752.018 paragraph 37 He subsequently went back to Glenfada Park and found that there was no damage to the area around the window and he gave evidence that he formed the belief that Soldier H may have lost a magazine full of ammunition because a "spare empty magazine was relatively easily obtainable." B1752.018 paragraph 38

18.7.3.245 Sergeant 1694, Soldier H's Platoon Sergeant apparently expressed concerns to CSM Lewis about some of the soldiers who had returned fire on Bloody Sunday, and in particular Soldier H, because of the explanation advanced by Soldier H for how he came to fire so many rounds. Day 373/226/1 to Day 373/226/9 and Day 373/227/8 to Day 373/227/25

18.7.3.246 CSM Lewis regarded Soldier H's story as "incredible" Day 373/94/4 and stated that it was his belief that some soldiers, including Soldier H, may have responded, as he euphemistically put it, rather "enthusiastically, over enthusiastically, to a situation which could have been controlled easier by firing fewer rounds." Day 373/99/12 to Day 373/99/22

18.7.3.247 A number of Soldier H's fellow soldiers have also expressed their scepticism about his account. For example INQ 2003 stated:

> "Soldier H's story was that he shot magazines at a window but the story from the lads was that he lost it. Afterwards he could not be trusted and stayed in camp on Pig guard. "Rentokil" and "Two Mags" were two of his nicknames afterwards." C2003.33 paragraph 19

18.7.3.248 Moreover, not a single soldier who was with Soldier H in Glenfada Park North has corroborated his account and as Soldier H acknowledged, so far as he is aware, "no-one has ever mentioned to you at any time that they saw you firing 19 shots." Day 378/45/7 to Day 378/45/10

18.7.3.249 There are a number of difficulties with Soldier H's account which demonstrate that it simply cannot be true:

i) In 1972 the area around the window at Glenfada Park North was examined and not only had the window not been broken but there was no damage to the area around the window.

"Sometime after Bloody Sunday but before the Widgery Tribunal I went back to Londonderry with a number of others in civilian clothes and accompanied by a number of RMP soldiers. My concern was to investigate the situation regarding H. The window at which he said he had fired 19 rounds was inspected and there were no signs of any damage around it which, if H was correct, there should have been and which could have been repaired in the time. The only explanation was that every round had gone through the window and only the glass needed replacing." B1752.018 paragraph 37 Lt. 119

ii) Mrs. McCartney who lived in the house gave evidence that one shot was fired into their home, but not through a frosted window. The frosted window had not been damaged and there was no damage to their home consistent with Soldier H's account. AM90 paragraphs 1 to 6[41]

iii) No soldier witnessed this incident.

iv) Moreover the account was so implausible that no soldier was willing to corroborate the incident despite the evidence which suggests that soldiers did provide corroboration for shooters in order to justify the circumstances in which they had fired live rounds. Section 5

v) No civilian witnessed this incident.

18.7.3.250 Yet Soldier H, when giving evidence to this Inquiry, sought to resist the inescapable conclusion that his account of having fired through the window 19 times was untrue, and in doing so invited the Tribunal to believe the unbelievable:

i) When asked whether he was "seriously inviting the Tribunal to accept, as a realistic possibility, that 19 bullets fired at that window would not cause it to shatter?" He responded "I am stating what I know, sir." Day 377/73/5 to Day 377/73/17

ii) The account given by Soldier H of the gunman disappearing and re-appearing, while leaving his rifle behind, defies credulity as the following exchange demonstrates:

" if there was a gunman and if, as would seem likely in those circumstances, it was he who was supporting the rifle which he intended to use to fire at soldiers, then if you shot at him on 19 separate occasions and he moved away, you would expect the rifle inevitably to move as well; would you not?

A. If he was supporting it, yes.

Q. -- it is a necessary consequence of your evidence, if true, that something else was supporting the rifle so that it remained in a fixed position throughout; that must be the suggestion, must it not?

A. You are suggesting that. I, I cannot make a suggestion on something I do not know.

Q. Do you have any explanation –

A. No, sir." Day 377/74/20 to Day 377/75/11

iii) The lack of any witnesses renders the story entirely implausible:

"Q. To fire 19 shots in your direction over a period of time, singly, waiting for the shadow to reappear and fire again, would take a little time; would it not, it is not just an odd shot that would get missed?

you would agree that it is remarkable that no-one saw you doing it; would you not?

A. I agree with you again, sir." Day 378/45/7 to Day 378/45/20

iv) Finally, the actions of the putative gunman defy belief:

[41] See also statement of James McCartney AM88.1 to AM88.2 and Liam McCartney AM86.3 paragraphs 16 to 19 and attached photographs at AM86.6 to AM86.12

Q. If that account is right, the upshot must be that the gunman, having been shot at once, must have intentionally moved into the same position of mortal danger, in line with a soldier with an SLR, who had just tried to kill him on 18 further occasions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is rather incredible; is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on 18 occasions, at least, you fired at and missed him?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Doubly incredible really; is it not?

A. Do you want an answer to that, sir?

Q. Sorry?

A. Do you want an answer to that?

Q. Yes, please?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the explanation for these two incredible facts --

A. Two, sir?

Q. Yes, the fact that he moved forward on 18 occasions -- 18 further occasions that you missed him on each occasion, is the explanation for those facts that in fact they are not true?

A. No, that is not right, sir. The statements I made at the time were true to the best of my knowledge and I would stick to those statements." Day 377/76/10 to Day 377/77/10

18.7.3.251 In reality the last sentence encapsulates the evidence of Soldier H to this Inquiry. He was going to stick with the account he had given in 1972 despite all the evidence to the contrary, as he acknowledged himself

"it does not matter what is said you will maintain it?

A. Yes, sir." Day 378/43/15 to Day 378/43/21

18.7.3.252 Soldier H fired 19 shots on Bloody Sunday for which he has never provided a truthful account. We know that Soldier H, along with other soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon, was at the Kells Walk Wall. We also know that soldiers fired from that position over the Rubble Barricade causing the deaths of Michael Kelly, John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash and also possibly Hugh Gilmore. Michael Kelly was killed by Soldier F, the other deaths remain unaccounted for. It is also of course the case that civilians were murdered in Glenfada Park North, Abbey Park and behind the Rossville Flats by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon and Soldier H is a candidate for having killed those civilians.

18.7.3.253 Soldier H advanced a ludicrous account to explain his firing of 19 shots in January 1972 and he has been 'sticking' to that account ever since. The truth is not, as some of his colleagues have sought to advance on his behalf, that he lost a magazine. The truth is that on Bloody Sunday Soldier H fired 22 rounds in circumstances which were entirely without justification. Some of those rounds resulted in the deaths of unarmed civilians and he invented this account in order to try to account for the number of rounds expended, in a way which would not render him accountable for murder.

18.7.3.254 Soldier H is undoubtedly guilty of murder, the tragedy for the family of his victim/s is that he is not prepared, even now to explain his actions on Bloody Sunday. Soldier H is also, along with his colleagues in Anti-Tank Platoon guilty of having participated for 30 years in a criminal conspiracy to prevent the truth of their role in Bloody Sunday from emerging and has perjured himself in his evidence to Lord Widgery and in his evidence to this Tribunal.

Conclusion

18.7.3.255 Soldier H's unaccounted for 19 shots do not merely raise the spectre of Soldier H's guilt. They also demonstrate, without more, the complicity of his colleagues, his senior officers and the Ministry of Defence in murder and their tolerance of murderers within the ranks of the British army.

18.7.3.256 As has been seen: Soldier H's colleagues did not believe his account; his Platoon Sergeant; his Platoon Commander; and the Company Sergeant Major did not believe his account. Lord Widgery expressly rejected his account in the conclusions he reached. Nonetheless when asked whether he was aware that Lord Widgery had rejected his evidence he stated:

> "No, I was not actually sir, no.
> Q. You were not aware of that?
>
> A. No, sir, after the Tribunal, um we never heard no more."
> Day 378/3/17 to Day 378/3/22

18.7.3.257 He was never disciplined for the firing of those rounds, nor indeed criticised. Day 378/4/16 to Day 378/4/20 Despite the fact that as INQ 1900 stated:

> "it was clear to me that much of what occurred was outside the requirements of the Yellow Card. In one statement, a soldier said he fired 19 shots at a shadow in a window. In another case, a soldier said that he fired over the heads of the crowd. These two statements stick in my mind because they were totally outside the requirements of the Yellow Card and so blatantly wrong." C1900.4 paragraph 23

18.7.3.258 Moreover, no action was taken by the RUC, upon receipt of the report and the conclusions of the Lord Chief Justice. The only conclusion possible from the universal rejection of Soldier H's account, from his colleagues in 1 Para, through to the Lord Chief Justice was that he had used lethal force in circumstances which were unjustified. Yet Soldier H remained in the army for some considerable period after Bloody Sunday and left the army as a senior NCO. Day 378/2/8 to Day

378/2/14 There can be no clearer example of the willingness of the British military to condone "unadulterated murder". GEN 02.07

Soldier E

18.7.3.259 Soldier E was one of the soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon who used lethal force on Bloody Sunday. In 1972 he admitted to having fired 2 shots on Bloody Sunday. The first in Sector 3 and the second in Sector 4.

18.7.3.260 The trajectory of Soldier E's first shot is such that if his account is accurate in this respect he may be a candidate for the shooting of Hugh Gilmore. However, given that:

i) Soldier E is one of the few soldiers who admits having fired a shot from behind the Kells Walk Wall;

ii) John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash were shot and killed by a soldier/s shooting down Rossville Street;

iii) None of the admitted firing by soldiers down Rossville Street accounts for their deaths, iv) No witness, civilian or military, corroborates any aspect of Soldier E's use of lethal force in Rossville Street;

Soldier E must also be a suspect for the murder of one of those three young men.

18.7.3.261 As with other soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon whose evidence is relevant to 2/more Sectors this section deals exclusively with his role in Sector 3 on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.262 It is alleged that Soldier E lied to the Widgery Inquiry, not merely about the circumstances in which he himself fired live rounds, but also in the evidence he gave about the general situation facing soldiers on Bloody Sunday and about the circumstances in which other soldiers fired live rounds. Specifically it is our case that:

i) Soldier E lied about the circumstances in which he himself fired a live round. Soldier E did not come under fire from a gunman with a Luger/machine-pistol located in the Rossville Flats, and he lied in order to justify his use of lethal force in circumstances which were unjustified and unlawful.

ii) Soldier E also lied about the general situation which faced soldiers when they de-bussed in Rossville Street. In particular he lied about: coming under fire as soldiers advanced down Rossville Street; hearing a nail bomb explode as he moved down Rossville Street; witnessing a petrol bomb explode in Rossville Street; and observing gunmen behind the Rubble Barricade, including one who was shot. He lied about these incidents in order to provide justification, in general terms for the actions and in particular the use of lethal force, by soldiers from his regiment on the streets of Derry on Bloody Sunday.

iii) Soldier E also lied about the circumstances in which he admits to having witnessed another soldier fire a live round. He gave evidence to the Treasury Solicitors and to Lord Widgery designed to provide some justification for the shooting by G at a window in the Rossville Flats in circumstances which were without justification.

18.7.3.263 Soldier E's conduct in Glenfada Park North will be dealt with separately in Sector 4 however his conduct in Glenfada Park is relevant to his conduct while on Rossville Street in a number of respects. Soldier E is one of the soldiers who admits having entered Glenfada Park North and fired live rounds. According to Lord Widgery Soldier E was one of the soldiers involved in shooting civilians as they were fled from himself and his colleagues. The evidence given by soldiers to the Widgery Inquiry in relation to their involvement in events in Glenfada Park North was demonstrably dishonest and designed to cover up their involvement in murder. Soldier E thus demonstrated a willingness to use lethal force against unarmed civilians and to perjure himself in order to cover up his role and the role of his colleagues in wilful murder. In those circumstances little or no weight can be attached to Soldier E's account of his use of lethal force in Rossville Street in the absence of corroboration.

18.7.3.264 Soldier E was also one of the soldiers involved in conducting arrests in Glenfada Park North. We would refer the Tribunal in particular to our allegation that paratroopers systematically lied about the identification of marchers as rioters as well as the location of, and reasons, for the "arrests". Members of the Parachute Regiment, including Soldier E, made formal statements of (fabricated) evidence for the purpose of supporting criminal charges against the marchers, charges which, if proven, would have led to mandatory 6-month prison sentences. Soldier E's willingness to participate in what was in effect a conspiracy to pervert the course of justice is further evidence of his willingness to participate in unlawful and dishonest conduct in 1972. His readiness to invent evidence for this purpose undermines his credibility generally and his evidence concerning his involvement in the use of lethal force.

18.7.3.265 Soldier E's involvement in the unlawful use of lethal force in Glenfada Park North, the lies he told about the conduct of himself and other soldiers in Glenfada Park North and his preparedness to fabricate the circumstances of the arrests of innocent civilians all go to undermine his account of events on Rossville Street. Specifically that conduct provides support for the allegation that the circumstances in which he used lethal force on Rossville Street were unlawful, without justification and in all probability involved the murder of one of Hugh Gilmore, Michael McDaid, John Young or William Nash.

18.7.3.266 Soldier E made 3 separate statements to the RMP, all on the 31st January 1972, he also made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor prior to giving evidence at the Widgery Inquiry.

18.7.3.267 Inasmuch as it referred to Sector 3, Soldier E stated as follows, in his first RMP statement:

i) As Anti-Tank Platoon advanced up Rossville Street he heard automatic gunfire and other shots coming from the vicinity of the Rossville Flats, he also saw a petrol bomb explode. B86

ii) Soldier E took up a position behind the Kells Walk Wall and saw a man in a window on the second storey from the top of the Rossville Flats who appeared to have a pistol of some sort in his hands. The gunman fired a shot and E fired 1 aimed shot at the gunman which he saw go through the window and strike the ceiling. B86, B87

iii) He then saw a man behind the Rubble Barricade with what appeared to be a machine gun. He saw him take up a firing position and then fall as if he had been shot. B87

iv) He saw a man next to the man with the machine gun with the butt of a gun. B87

v) The rioters behind the Rubble Barricade then moved towards Glenfada Park North and he moved forward in order to head them off. B87

vi) On returning from Glenfada Park North and while on Rossville Street troops came under fire from the Rossville Flats. Soldier E did not see any target and did not fire any further rounds. B87

18.7.3.268 In his second RMP statement he claimed that Michael Kelly was the person he had shot in Glenfada Park North and that he had shot him for throwing nail bombs. B91 It has of course now been established that Michael Kelly was killed by Soldier F and was shot and killed while positioned behind the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.3.269 In his third RMP statement, apparently made only 10 minutes later, he claimed that Gerard Donaghey was the person he had shot in Glenfada Park North and he had shot him for being in possession of nail bombs. B93.001, B93.002 It has now of course been established that Gerard Donaghy was killed by Soldier G and was shot and killed while in Abbey Park.

18.7.3.270 Soldier E subsequently gave an account of events to the Treasury Solicitor, as follows:

i) Shooting had broken out shortly after debussing and he cocked his rifle "which is the normal procedure." B94

ii) As he reached the end of the Rossville Flats sniper fire broke out from the area of the Rossville Flats and he heard machine gunfire. B94

iii) As a result of this fire he took cover behind the Kells Walk Wall. B94

iv) He saw a sniper from the second storey from the top of the Rossville Flats who fired 1 shot with a machine pistol. Soldier E fired 1 shot which went through the window, he stated that he had no idea whether he hit the sniper. B94

v) He then saw a petrol bomb explode about 30 yards in front of the Rubble Barricade. B94

vi) At the same time he saw 2 gunmen behind the centre of the Rubble Barricade, one was kneeling and in firing position, he saw the gunman fall but could not say where the shot had come from. B94

vii) He saw the crowd escape towards Glenfada Park North so he got 4/5 men and moved forward. B94 viii) Upon returning from Glenfada Park North to Rossville Street they got into their vehicles. He maintained that they stayed in that position for 45 minutes during which time sniper fire of mixed velocity was directed at their position. B94

ix) He saw Soldier G who was a sentry take up position and fire. B94

18.7.3.271 The account which Soldier E gave to the Treasury Solicitors is more detailed than that given to the RMP. There are also a number of discrepancies between the two accounts:

i) In his RMP statement he claimed that the petrol bomb exploded as Anti-Tank Platoon advanced up Rossville Street and prior to their having taken up position at the Kells Walk wall. B86 In his Treasury Solicitor statement he claimed that the petrol bomb exploded after he had taken up position at the Kells Walk Wall and after he had fired at his first target. B94

ii) In his RMP statement he claimed that he could see in through the window of the flat into which he had fired his shot and that he hit the ceiling. B86, B87 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitors he claimed that he could not say one way or the other whether he had hit the gunman. B94

iii) In both statements he described seeing two gunmen behind the Rubble Barricade, one of whom he saw fall as if shot. In his RMP statement he identified the gunman whom he saw fall by reference to his having what appeared to be a machinegun. He also described him as wearing glasses, with a cloth tied around the lower part of his face and wearing dark clothing. The second man is identified as having the "butt of a gun" Soldier E was unable to see any more of the supposed weapon. B87 In his Treasury Solicitor's statement he simply states that he saw 2 gunmen behind the Rubble Barricade, one of whom was kneeling and in a firing position and whom he saw fall. B94

iv) In his RMP statement he makes no reference to having seen Soldier G fire at any target in Rossville Street upon their return to their vehicles. In his Treasury Solicitor statement he states that he saw Soldier G "who was a sentry for one of the other armoured vehicles take up position and fire." B95

18.7.3.272 Soldier E gave evidence to Lord Widgery, there are a number of discrepancies between the account he gave to Lord Widgery and the accounts he gave earlier as follows:

i) He claimed to have heard an explosion in the area of the Rossville Flats which sounded like a nail bomb. WT14.29A He never previously made such a claim, either in his account to the RMP, or to the Treasury Solicitors.

ii) He claimed that he took cover behind the Kells Walk Wall because he came under fire 3 times from the Rossville Flats by machine pistol fire. WT14.29B-C In his previous statements he had claimed that the man with the Luger had fired only one shot. B86 and B94. This was the subject of questioning by Mr. Read Counsel to the Tribunal at B113D-E and will be dealt with in more detail at 20.9.3.210 – 20.9.3.218 below.

iii) His account in relation to what he saw of the shot he had fired is consistent with his Treasury Solicitor's statement rather than his RMP statement in that he claimed that he could not say whether he had hit the gunman B94 but did not claim that he could see the shot he had fired hit the ceiling. B86, B87

iv) His account of having seen the petrol bomb is consistent with his Treasury Solicitor's statement rather than his RMP statement in that he claims that it exploded after he had fired at his first target. B101D-E

v) In relation to the two alleged gunmen behind the Rubble Barricade. He now states that one had a Thompson sub-machine gun whilst the other had "what appeared to be a rifle". B101G In his RMP statement he had stated that the first gunman, who was subsequently shot, "appeared" to have a machine-gun. B87

vi) He described this gunman as wearing goggles, as opposed to glasses. B102C

vii) He described the second purported gunman as crawling, a description he had not given before. B102A Under questioning from Mr. Hill he identified the weapon as a rifle.

viii) He continued to assert that he had acted of his own initiative in making the decision to move to Glenfada Park North, for the purpose of cutting off the crowd behind the Rubble Barricade. B102F

ix) In relation to Soldier G's firing, he now claimed that when they came under fire whilst in their vehicles he could hear the crack "which indicated it came from the Rossville Flats" B105E and that Soldier G had fired one round towards the Rossville Flats. B106A Previously he had not been able to identify where the incoming rounds had come from or in what direct Soldier G had fired in.

Soldier E's First Shot

18.7.3.273 It is our contention that Soldier E gave false accounts, both in the written accounts he gave of the events of Bloody Sunday and also in the oral testimony which he gave to Lord Widgery about the circumstances in which he fired a live round in Rossville Street, while positioned behind the low wall.

18.7.3.274 We make this submission for the following reasons:

i) Because his first account of the shooting is on the face of it ludicrous and patently dishonest;

ii) Because of the discrepancies between the accounts originally given and the account given by Soldier E in oral evidence, during the course of which he demonstrated his willingness to lie about the incident;

iii) Large numbers of soldiers ought to have been in a position to provide some corroboration of both Soldier E's firing a live round as alleged and of the circumstances which justified Soldier E firing a live round. Yet not a single member of Anti-Tank Platoon, nor Mortar Platoon provides a shred of evidence which corroborates either Soldier E's suggestion that he fired a round at the Rossville Flats or which could justify E's his use of lethal force.

iv) Because of Soldier E's general lack of credibility as a witness.

Soldier E's first account

18.7.3.275 In the first account given by Soldier E of the shooting he maintained that he saw the shot he fired go through the window and hit the ceiling. B86, B87 The idea that Soldier E positioned behind the Kells Walk Wall could have a sufficiently clear view of a ceiling on the inside of a flat on the second storey from the top of the Rossville Flats is a patently untrue. Inevitably that version of events disappears from subsequent accounts given by Soldier E and he was not questioned about this matter at the Widgery Inquiry.

18.7.3.276 The assertion is not without significance given that in the same statement Soldier E stated that the person at whom he fired "appeared" to have a gun. It is submitted that even on his own account there must be a question-mark as to whether the circumstances in which he fired justified the use of lethal force, given his limited observation of an alleged gunman.

Discrepancies in account given to Lord Widgery

18.7.3.277 In his written statements made in 1972 Soldier E stated that he had fired at the man with the weapon identified as a Luger-type pistol and located in the Rossville Flats after that man had fired one shot. B87, B94 When he gave oral evidence to Lord Widgery he claimed that the man had fired three shots. B100B-C

18.7.3.278 Soldier E was specifically questioned about this issue, during the course of the Widgery Tribunal, by Mr. Read, counsel for the Tribunal:

"Q. May I now turn to the small machine pistol which you say you saw fired from the window of Rossville Flats. Do you remember giving evidence today to my Lord that there were roughly three shots?

A. I said he fired one shot at me.

Q. But there were three shots fired from that area?

A. Yes.

Q. One shot was fired at you but there were other shots which were not? Is that what you are saying?

A. Yes." B113D-E

18.7.3.279 In the first instance it should be pointed out that what Soldier E, in fact, said to Lord Widgery was:

> "Q. What caused you particularly to take cover?
>
> A. I was shot at first.
>
> Q. As far as you could tell, where were you shot from?
>
> A. From Rossville Flats, sir.
> Q. What sort of firing?
> A. It was small machine pistol fire.
>
> Q. Small machine pistol fire?
>
> A. Yes, single shots.
>
> Q. About how many shots were you aware of?
> A. I heard roughly three shots, sir." B100B-C

18.7.3.280 This portion of the transcript demonstrates that Soldier E was clearly describing himself as having come under fire from the Rossville Flats, the fire having come from a small machine pistol and roughly three shots having been fired at him. B100B-C

18.7.3.281 This becomes more clear when one reads the earlier portion of transcript which deals with the general firing which Soldier E maintained that Anti-Tank Platoon came under as they advanced down Rossville Street, which was firing of mixed velocity. B99F-G It is evident when you read the transcript as a whole, that he firstly deals with the general firing and then goes on specifically to deal with the fire from the Luger/machine-pistol which caused him to use lethal force.

18.7.3.282 Moreover when one goes to the relevant portion of the statements made by Soldier E in 1972 it is quite clear from each of these accounts that he had always maintained that only one shot was fired from the Luger/machine-pistol. In his RMP statement he stated:

> "I saw a man in a window in the next to the top floor of the flats. He had what appeared to be a pistol. I saw this man fire one shot at our position from this weapon." B87

18.7.3.283 That account does not attempt to distinguish shots fired at Soldier E from shots fired at his colleagues.

18.7.3.284 In his Treasury Solicitor statement he states:

> "I saw a sniper in the second storey from the top of the Rossville Flats at a window and he fired one shot at what looked like a machine pistol." B94

18.7.3.285 It is clear from a reading of both statements that in his written accounts Soldier E claimed only that one shot was fired by this gunman and that the explanation advanced to the Widgery Tribunal for the discrepancy between the accounts does not stand up to scrutiny.

Lack of Corroboration of Soldier E's account

18.7.3.286 Of perhaps more significance in relation to Soldier E's account of his use of lethal force is the fact none of the other members of Anti-Tank Platoon or of Mortar Platoon positioned on Rossville Street when Soldier E claims to have fired his shot corroborate his account in any respect. No soldier saw a gunman firing 1 or 3 shots from a window in the Rossville Flats at the relevant time. No soldier apparently heard a Luger/machine-pistol firing at their location from the Rossville Flats at the relevant time. No soldier saw Soldier E fire his shot.

18.7.3.287 The failure of any soldier to corroborate his account of the gunman is significant in two respects. The photographic evidence demonstrates that there were 17 members of Anti-Tank Platoon at the Kells Walk Wall, as well as soldiers from Mortar Platoon positioned on Rossville Street.[42] That not a single soldier among such a large body of soldiers should have failed to witness Soldier E's gunman, or Soldier E firing given that apparently only 3 soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon actually fired shots while positioned behind the Kells Walk Wall completely undermines Soldier E's evidence.

18.7.3.288 Moreover a number of soldiers have given evidence either that they witnessed other gunmen at the southern end of the Rossville Flats or that they were observing that area, and so should have been in a particularly good position to see or hear Soldier E's gunman yet none provide the necessary corroboration.

18.7.3.289 Lieutenant 119 claimed to have heard an M1 carbine firing from the top floor of the Rossville Flats. Given that both Lieutenant 119 and Soldier E were located behind the Kells Walk Wall and both soldiers, on their account of events, were looking in the same direction, the failure of Lieutenant 119 to corroborate Soldier E materially undermines Soldier E's evidence in relation to his target.[43]

18.7.3.290 Soldier U claimed to have fired 1 shot from the north of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats at a man who he claimed had fired 2 pistol shots from the east pavement of Rossville Street, south of Block 1. Again this suggests that Soldier U was looking in the direction of the southern end of the Rossville Flats at the same time as Soldier E, yet he fails to provide any corroboration for Soldier E's account of a man firing a Luger/machine-pistol from the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.291 Soldier G in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor's stated that "When we got to the wall I covered left, but identified no targets and did not fire, but I heard quite a bit of firing coming from the flats and the barricade area and one of them was definitely an automatic." B185

[43] It should be noted that an M1 carbine and a Luger/machine-pistol are completely different weapons and given both soldiers confidence in their description of the relevant weapons the accounts do not amount to corroboration.

18.7.3.292 Again a soldier observing in the very area where Soldier E saw his gunman fails to witness Soldier E's gunman or corroborate his account in any way.

18.7.3.293 The first account given by Soldier E about the shooting was patently untrue. While this was qualified in subsequent statements, Soldier E demonstrated, when giving evidence to Lord Widgery, his willingness to fabricate evidence to justify his actions. Large numbers of soldiers were positioned alongside Soldier E at the Kells Walk Wall yet all fail to corroborate his account. Soldier E perjured himself at the Widgery Inquiry and he did so in order to provide justification for the circumstances in which he used lethal force which were both unjustified and unlawful.

18.7.3.294 It is our contention that Soldier E lied, not merely about the circumstances which he claims justified his use of lethal force, but also in all probability about the location at which he fired live rounds. There is no objective evidence, in the form of photographic evidence showing bullet holes at the windows or the wall in and about the location where Soldier E claims to have fired his round, in contrast with the position in relation to the shots fired at McCrudden's flat. EP30.1 and EP30.2. There is also a body of evidence from soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon[44] which refers to soldiers firing over the Rubble Barricade, albeit, that they never identify those soldiers, it is evident that more soldiers fired over the Rubble Barricade than have admitted doing so and Soldier E must be a candidate for having done so. It is our submission that Soldier E, in all probability did not fire at the Rossville Flats but fired, along with his colleagues, over the Rubble Barricade, and his shot may account for the murder of one of John Young, Michael McDaid or William Nash.

Nail Bombs, Petrol Bombs and Gunmen

18.7.3.295 It is further alleged that Soldier E's evidence about other matters and in particular his evidence about alleged civilian gunmen and bombers evidences his willingness to lie about the events of the day in general. The only motivation for doing so can be a desire to bolster the army case generally to the effect that soldiers came under a hail of gunfire and bombing as they dismounted their vehicles which provided a context to justify their subsequent actions. In our submission Soldier E's willingness to lie about such matters supports our specific allegation that he lied about the circumstances in which he used lethal force.

18.7.3.296 Specifically we will rely upon Soldier E's lack of credibility in relation to the following matters:

i) His assertion that he witnessed a nail bomb explode in the car-park of the Rossville Flats.

ii) His assertion that he witnessed a petrol bomb explode on Rossville Street as he was positioned behind the Kells Walk Wall.

iii) His assertion that he saw a man with a Thompson sub-machine gun shot behind the Rubble Barricade and that he also saw a man with a rifle at the same location.

18.7.3.297 Soldier E's assertion that he witnessed Soldier G firing a shot at a window in the Rossville Flats, having come under fire, will be dealt with separately.

18.7.3.298 The first occasion upon which Soldier E gave an account of having heard a nail bomb explode as he advanced down Rossville Street was when he gave oral testimony to Lord Widgery. Soldier E's initial explanation for leaving this matter out was the fact that he had made his statement to the RMP in the early hours of the morning. However when it was pointed out to him that he had failed to give an account of this event in his Treasury Solicitor statement either he was unable to advance any meaningful explanation for that discrepancy. B113D

18.7.3.299 The preponderance of evidence supports the conclusion that no nail bombs were thrown or exploded on Bloody Sunday on Rossville Street. There is no civilian evidence to support the suggestion that nail bombs exploded. The evidence of journalists and photographers undermines any evidence to that effect even further. Significantly most soldiers who made such an allegation in 1972 have withdrawn any such allegation because it is so demonstrably false. It is our contention that Soldier E perjured himself in front of Lord Widgery in order to strengthen the army case that the firing by soldiers was justified.

18.7.3.300 Soldier E gave two different accounts of witnessing a petrol bomb explode on Rossville Street. In his first RMP statement he maintained that the petrol bomb exploded while Anti-Tank Platoon advanced down Rossville Street. B87 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor and in his evidence to Lord Widgery he maintained that the petrol bomb exploded after he had shot his first target. B94, B101E-F

18.7.3.301 Soldier E was never challenged in relation to the discrepancies between the two accounts by either counsel for the army or counsel for the Widgery Inquiry. Counsel representing the Families was unaware of the discrepancy so this Tribunal has had no opportunity to consider what explanation if any, might have been advanced by Soldier E.

18.7.3.302 Soldier E's account of seeing a petrol bomb explode on Rossville Street is arguably corroborated by one soldier INQ 1237. C1237.6 paragraph 45 However INQ 1237's description of the circumstances in which a petrol bomb exploded differs in significant respects from the account given by Soldier E and in our submission does not amount to corroboration in fact.

18.7.3.303 INQ 1237 describes more than one petrol bomb being thrown at soldiers shortly after they deployed. Whereas Soldier E describes one explosion at the point in time at which soldiers had reached the Kells Walk Wall and after he had engaged a target.

18.7.3.304 Moreover INQ 1237's testimony in relation to this matter is undermined by the photographic evidence. INQ 1237 was shown photographs of arrests made after soldiers had debussed, specifically photographs P256, P203, EP33.7. Despite the discrepancy between the photographic evidence and his testimony INQ 1237 was unwilling to countenance any doubts about the accuracy of his testimony:

> "none of these photographs show the burst of flames from petrol bombs that you have described in your statement. They also – and the photograph we have on the screen is an example – suggest that fellow soldiers from Support Coy appeared to be willing to move closer to the rubble barricade.
> Given that, does that raise any doubt in your mind that petrol bombs were thrown that day?

18.7.3.305 Moreover INQ 1237's recollection in relation to the events that occurred is not entirely reliable. He did not give evidence in 1972 and maintained to this Inquiry that soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon who fired live rounds did so while positioned in a line facing the crowd and not from behind the cover of Kells Walk Wall. Despite the photographic evidence and testimony to the contrary he remained adamant that this was the position, casting doubt in relation to his reliability on other matters. Day 366/20/8 to Day 366/20/10

18.7.3.306 Finally, of course INQ 1237 is the soldier who described an incident in Belfast when there was "a massive explosion and a whole house blew up into the air, remaining completely intact and landing in the street about 60 yards ahead of us." C1237.2 paragraph 14 An incident which purportedly involved CSM Lewis. In these circumstances it is submitted that his evidence must be somewhat suspect.

18.7.3.307 No other soldier from Anti-Tank Platoon or Mortar Platoon gives an account of petrol bombs exploding on Rossville Street.[45] Moreover that this could have occurred is contradicted by the body of civilian evidence and the evidence of journalists and photographers positioned behind the Rubble Barricade on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.308 . It is our submission that Soldier E's account of seeing a petrol bomb explode on Bloody Sunday was demonstrably false and was designed to provide justification for the army case and in particular for the use of lethal force in circumstances which he knew to be unjustified.

18.7.3.309 Soldier E's account of having seen 2 gunmen behind the Rubble Barricade, one of whom was shot and killed was in our submission expressly advanced to justify the circumstances in which men from his Platoon fired live rounds over the Rubble Barricade and is completely false. Given that Soldier E himself fired live rounds in Rossville Street and may thus be a candidate for the shooting of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash the fact that he gave this account is not without significance.

18.7.3.310 By the time he came to give evidence to Lord Widgery Soldier E was clear that the weapon he saw the man holding was a Thompson sub-machinegun, B113G although in earlier accounts he described the weapon as "appearing" to be a machinegun. B87

18.7.3.311 Soldier 028, a Captain in the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment also claims to have seen a man positioned behind the Rubble Barricade firing at the paratroopers. B1571E to B1572D According to Soldier 028, this man fell as if he had been shot, after fire was returned by paratroopers. B1572D Soldier 028 gave evidence to this Inquiry and he no longer has any recollection of seeing a man with a Thompson sub-machinegun behind the Rubble Barricade, although he claims the various accounts he gave in 1972 are reliable. Our submission in relation to the evidence of Soldier 028 will be that the accounts he gave in 1972 were a total fabrication and that for a variety of reasons, which will be set out in detail below, Soldier 028 could not have witnessed all he claims to have witnessed on Bloody Sunday. It will be our assertion that no reliance can be placed upon his testimony. In any event his description of the actions of the man with the Thompson sub-machinegun is inconsistent with the description of this incident given by Soldier E.

18.7.3.312 In is moreover the case that no soldier claims to have shot a man kneeling in a firing position with a Thompson sub-machinegun behind the Rubble Barricade. Of the soldiers who admit firing over the Rubble Barricade. Soldier F claims to have shot a nail-bomber, Soldier J claims to have shot a nail-bomber and Soldier P claims to have shot a man with a pistol.

18.7.3.313 Moreover as regards Soldier E's second gunman, who he saw with the "butt of a gun" B87 the only other soldier to give an account of a gunman with a rifle behind the Rubble Barricade is INQ 635. Soldier E's gunman was in the centre of the Barricade, he was crawling and was positioned beside a man with a Thompson sub-machine gun who had just been shot and apparently killed. In contradistinction INQ 635 saw 3 or 4 men move out from the gable end wall of Glenfada Park North and 2/3 of those men were carrying weapons. The man moved forward at a fast walking pace across the Rubble Barricade from right to left and according to INQ 635 these men were completely blatant and visible to anyone positioned behind the Kells Walk Wall. C635.3 paragraphs 22 to 25

18.7.3.314 It is submitted that Soldier E's account of the two gunmen is patently untrue and is designed to provide further justification for the use of lethal force by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon and Mortar Platoon over the Rubble Barricade which led to the killing of 6 young men.

Soldier G's shot

18.7.3.315 Along with a large number of soldiers from his Platoon Soldier E has given an account of the circumstances in which Soldier G fired a live round in Rossville Street.

18.7.3.316 It seems highly likely that Soldier G did fire at least one round at the window in the Rossville Flats from which Fulvio Grimaldi was taking photographs. Soldier E's account provides justification for Soldier G's shot in that he describes a scene in which the Paras came under fire for 45 minutes after they had mounted their vehicles and after the main shooting was over.

18.7.3.317 There is no evidence to support this contention and all the available film and photographic evidence as well as the evidence of senior officers contradicts the assertion that soldiers from 1 Para were under fire for 45 minutes after they mounted their vehicles. Moreover the evidence of the other soldiers who describe the incident, including that of Soldier G, describe coming after fire very shortly after mounting the vehicles and Soldiers F and G responding to that fire within a very short space of time.

18.7.3.318 Soldier E's account contradicts the account given by Soldier G and other soldiers at the time in that he describes G as having been a sentry whereas other soldiers have described G as having had to dismount from his vehicle before firing shots.

18.7.3.319 It is alleged that Soldiers F and G between them fired 7 shots at the at Fulvio Grimaldi who was trying to take photographs of the troops from the window of McCrudden's flat at 12 Garvan Place at the time. A9 41.50 to A945.22[46] It is alleged that neither F nor G saw any gunmen at that location, nor heard any shots fired from that location, nor did they see or hear anything which led them to believe there was a gunman at that location. Their shooting was without justification and demonstrates the mindset of the soldiers of Anti-Tank Platoon and in particular Soldiers F and G to the use of lethal force. It is questionable whether Soldier E actually witnessed the shooting given his failure to mention it when originally questioned. However it is submitted that, as with his accounts about nail bombs, petrol bombs and civilian gunmen, Soldier E's account of 1 Para coming under fire while in their vehicles is patently untrue and a further demonstration of his willingness to lie about the events of Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.320 It is our submission that Soldier E was involved in the unlawful use of lethal force on Bloody Sunday and that he lied about the circumstances in which he used lethal force and about the general situation faced by 1 Para in an attempt to justify his actions and those of his colleagues. Given his location when he fired his shot Soldier E is a suspect for having murdered Hugh Gilmore, or in the alternative one of Michael McDaid, John Young and William Nash.

18.7.3.321 On Bloody Sunday Soldier G claimed to have fired 6 live rounds, 3 on Rossville Street and 3 in Glenfada Park North. Soldier G's actions in Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park will be dealt with in detail below. However Soldier G's conduct in Sector 4, and in particular his shooting of Gerard Donaghey, is relevant to the issue of his credibility in relation to the accounts he gave about the circumstances in which he fired live rounds on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.322 It is beyond doubt that Soldier G killed Gerard Donaghey because his bullet was recovered from Gerard Donaghey's body. It has also been established, beyond doubt, in the course of this Tribunal, that Gerard Donaghey was shot and killed while in Abbey Park. This is contrary to the evidence given to the Widgery Inquiry by Soldier G and his colleagues in Anti-Tank Platoon.

18.7.3.323 Thus Soldier G lied to the Widgery Inquiry about the circumstances in which he used lethal force on Bloody Sunday. Given that Soldier G demonstrated a willingness to lie in 1972 about the circumstances in which he shot and killed Gerard Donaghey, his credibility in relation to the circumstances in which he fired his other live rounds is seriously undermined.

18.7.3.324 It has also been established, beyond doubt, that soldier/s from Anti-Tank Platoon and Mortar Platoon have lied about the circumstances in which John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore who were killed when Anti-Tank Platoon were on Rossville Street. To the extent that if their accounts were to be accepted, these young men could not have been killed behind the Rubble Barricade because no soldier's shooting accounts for their deaths.

18.7.3.325 The accounts advanced by Soldier G for firing live rounds while on Rossville Street were untrue. It will be alleged, in particular, that the first two shots fired by him were not fired, either in the circumstances claimed by him, or even at the location claimed by him and his account of those two shots is a complete fabrication. In those circumstances, at least 2 of the shots fired by Soldier G are unaccounted for.

18.7.3.326 Soldier G sought to justify his use of lethal force on Bloody Sunday by lying about the circumstances in which he fired live rounds. Moreover he is guilty of firing live rounds in circumstances which were unjustified, in the case of Gerard Donaghey. It follows in our submission that Soldier G, as one of the soldiers who fired live rounds on Rossville Street is potentially a candidate for the murder of one or more of Michael McDaid, John Young, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore.

18.7.3.327 Having said that, it will be alleged that the evidence about Soldier G's conduct in Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park demonstrates not merely that he is guilty of the murder of Gerard Donaghey but also Gerard McKinney. It will be alleged that he fired a live round at Eibhlin Lafferty, a member of the Knights of Malta, while she was in Abbey Park and that he fired the round which killed Jim Wray. If it is accepted that Soldier G only fired 6 rounds, then it appears that most, if not all of those rounds were fired while Soldier G was in Glenfada Park North or Abbey Park, rather than on Rossville Street and most if not all of the rounds fired by Soldier G were fired in Sector 4.

18.7.3.328 Soldier G made a total of 4 statements in 1972 in relation to the events of Bloody Sunday as well as giving evidence to the Widgery Inquiry. This section focuses on three aspects of his evidence: his account of soldiers having come under live fire while on Rossville Street, consequent upon which, soldiers returned fire; his account of firing live rounds down an alleyway leading from Rossville Street to Glenfada Park North; and, his account of firing a live round at a window in the Rossville Flats. In our submission Soldier G's evidence in relation to each of these issues is demonstrably untrue.

18.7.3.329 Soldier G gives three separate accounts of soldiers coming under fire while they were on Rossville Street: the first, in his first RMP statement made on the 31 January 1972; the second, in the account he gave to the Treasury Solicitor; and finally in the account he gave to the Widgery Inquiry.

18.7.3.330 In broad terms Soldier G describes two separate incidents of soldiers coming under fire. He maintains that soldiers came under fire, initially just after debussing as they took cover at the walls of derelict buildings at the top of Rossville Street, and then after they had taken cover at the Kells Walk Wall, at which stage some soldiers returned fire.

18.7.3.331 In relation to the initial incident the first account Soldier G gave of this incident his evidence was very specific. Three shots were fired at troops, from a gunman positioned in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. Soldiers then came under further fire and 6 soldiers, including Soldier G, took shelter behind a low wall. B168

18.7.3.332 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor Soldier G was "not sure of the direction of firing, though I think it might have been from the high flats in Rossville Street. The sound came from that direction and I could hear the bullets pass over the top of us." B185 paragraph 3

18.7.3.333 In his account to the Widgery Inquiry Soldier G stated that the shots were coming over the top of them down Rossville Street. B191A-B Specifically he stated that the shots were coming pretty fast together and he was unable to identify a weapon. B191B-C

18.7.3.334 There are a number of discrepancies between the three accounts given by Soldier G:

i) In the account he gave to the RMP, Soldier G was very clear as to the number of shots fired at soldiers and the location of what was a single gunman. B168 He goes on to state that they came under further fire while at this location as a result of which they took cover behind the Kells Walk Wall, so in his account to the RMP there were two series of shots, the first comprising three shots and the second an unidentified number of shots. On both occasions the shots came from Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

ii) By the time he came to make his statement to the Treasury Solicitors Soldier G was distinctly vague both about the number of shots and the location from where the shots were fired. Soldier G stated that he was "not sure of the direction of firing, though I think it might have been from the high flats in Rossville Street. The sound came from that direction and I could hear the bullets pass over the top of us." B185 paragraph 3

iii) In the account he gave to Widgery Soldier G stated that the shots were coming over the top of them down Rossville Street. B191A-B Specifically he stated that the shots were coming pretty fast together and he was unable to identify a weapon. B191B-C

18.7.3.335 A difficulty which affects the evidence given at the Widgery Inquiry generally, is the failure of Counsel for the Ministry of Defence and, more significantly, Counsel to the Inquiry to address the discrepancies between the various accounts given by soldiers in statements made prior to giving evidence. In circumstances where Counsel for the Next of Kin of the Deceased and Wounded were denied access to the RMP statements and Treasury Solicitor's statements the failure on the part of the Counsel to the Inquiry, amounts to a clear dereliction of his professional obligations. Moreover in circumstances where soldiers now claim a loss of memory as to the detail of the events of Bloody Sunday, regardless of whether that memory loss is genuine or contrived, it is impossible to resolve those discrepancies and in a general sense undermines the weight which can be attached to the accounts given to the Widgery Inquiry.

18.7.3.336 This difficulty is of course particularly acute in the case of Soldier G and E, both of whom fired live rounds on Bloody Sunday, both of whom are now deceased. Soldier G was never questioned about the discrepancies between the various accounts he gave prior to giving evidence at the Widgery Inquiry, and the evidence he gave to the Widgery Inquiry. In our submission those discrepancies go to undermine the weight which can be attached to the evidence he gave to Lord Widgery.

18.7.3.337 Soldier G maintains that soldiers then advanced to the Kells Walk Wall in order to take cover. In his RMP statement Soldier G stated that only 6 soldiers, including himself, took shelter behind a low wall. It is implicit in what he said in this statement that there was only one gunman firing at troops. "Fire was returned by some of the men when the gunman was located." B168

18.7.3.338 When he came to make his Treasury Solicitor statement Soldier G maintained that he was on the left and observing the left side, which is the Rossville Flats side, he identified no targets and did not fire. B185 paragraph 3 Soldier G did however claim that he heard quite a bit of firing at that time, coming from both the Rossville Flats and the Rubble Barricade. He identified some of the firing as coming from an automatic weapon, which he believed to be a Thompson sub-machinegun. B185 paragraph 3

18.7.3.339 In this account Soldier G also stated that there was a lot of noise from the Rubble Barricade and bricks and bottles were being thrown from that location although they did not reach soldiers located behind the Kells Walk Wall. B185 paragraph 3 "Members of my Platoon were firing back from our position but I could not myself see identified targets to engage. I was observing left and they could have been looking somewhere else." B185 paragraph 3

18.7.3.340 When Soldier G gave evidence to the Widgery Inquiry he stated that the "whole party" went down to the Kells Walk Wall. B191E When soldiers were at the Kells Walk Wall Soldier G observed to the left because he was on the outside. B191F Soldiers then came under fire and there was a burst of fire and some single shots. He believed that the burst of fire came from the Thompson sub-machinegun B191F-G and believed that the firing came from both the Rubble Barricade and the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.341 Soldier G was unable to be specific as to where the Thompson sub-machine gun fire was coming from, it seems clear from his description that the fire was coming from the Rossville Flats, in that he was able to state that it came from "Higher than ground level but definitely not the top of the flats." B192C

18.7.3.342 Soldier G stated that as soon as he heard the sound of the firing he took cover. He explains his inability to see any of what we know happened behind the Rubble Barricade by stating that he was not looking towards the Rubble Barricade but towards the left. Soldier G was unable to say whether Soldier F fired from the Rubble Barricade, just that there had been firing from that location. B192

18.7.3.343 Again there are discrepancies between the three accounts given by Soldier G:

i) In his account to the RMP Soldier G talks about only 6 soldiers taking cover at the Kells Walk Wall, while in his account to the Widgery Inquiry he stated that the "whole party" went down to the Kells Walk Wall. B191E

ii) In his RMP statement it is apparent that the fire directed at soldiers came from only one gunman and that gunman was located in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. B168 In both his Treasury Solicitor statement and his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry he refers to firing having come from both the Rossville Flats and the Rubble Barricade and it is clear that on his account there was more than one gunman. B185 paragraph 3

iii) In his RMP statement he does not identify the type of fire directed at soldiers. In both his Treasury Solicitor statement and his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry, he stated that the firing included firing from an automatic weapon and that he believed it was a Thompson sub-machinegun. B191

18.7.3.344 As well as discrepancies between the accounts given, there are also internal inconsistencies which are never explained:

i) Soldier G states that he himself did not fire live rounds at this juncture because he did not identify any targets. He explains his failure to identify either the persons whose firing he heard, or the targets at whom his colleagues fired by reference to the fact that he was observing left and they could have been looking elsewhere. B185 paragraph 3 However if he was looking left then he was observing Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. According to each of his statements there was fire coming from that location when he was positioned at the Kells Walk Wall. Moreover his view was not obstructed by the wearing of a gas-mask B191A.

ii) Soldier G was unable to identify the soldiers behind the Kells Walk Wall who fired live rounds, although he acknowledges that soldiers did fire from that location. B185, B286 paragraph 3

iii) Specifically, he cannot say whether Soldier F fired. However, we know that: Soldier F fired at least 1 round while at that location because he killed Michael Kelly; Soldier G's view was not obstructed by the wearing of a gas-mask B191A; and, Soldier G was partnering F and on his own account, when F moved forward G moved with him. B186 paragraph 3

18.7.3.345 Soldier G's failure to identify either the targets fired upon by his colleagues, or which of his colleagues fired, is incredible and cannot be accepted. It is noteworthy that Soldier G seeks to distance himself completely from the events behind the Rubble Barricade, by emphasising that at all times he was looking to the left, towards the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.346 In our submission Soldier G failed to account for the shooting by soldiers from his Platoon because, Soldier G was at the very least aware if not involved in firing live rounds from behind the Kells Walk Wall, in circumstances where the use of lethal force was unjustified. Despite, on his own account, partnering Soldier F, who we know fired at least one live round over the Rubble Barricade, Soldier G sought to distance himself from the firing by soldiers from his Platoon over the Rubble Barricade. In doing so it is our submission that he sought to distance himself from the murder of Michael Kelly, John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore, all of whom would have been shot and killed as Soldier G was positioned at the Kells Walk Wall. Whether Soldier G lied because he himself was involved in the use of lethal force or, simply to avoid giving an account which would undermine the accounts advanced by those of his colleagues, who fired live rounds at that location, is unclear. At the very minimum it is our submission that Soldier G was aware that soldiers from his Platoon were involved in the use of unlawful lethal force while positioned at the Kells Walk Wall and that he perjured himself in order to protect them. It moreover may be the case that as well as being guilty of murder while in Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park, Soldier G was also guilty of murder while on Rossville Street.

18.7.3.347 It is further submitted that Soldier G's account of events as Anti-Tank Platoon debussed and advanced to the Kells Walk Wall, is undermined by:

i) the contradictions between the accounts given about these matters by soldiers in his own platoon; and,

ii) the video and photographic evidence taken on the day.

18.7.3.348 There are significant discrepancies between the account given by Soldier G and other soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon in relation to hearing fire and we refer the Tribunal to Table 3 above, in this respect. As can be seen from the Table, the majority of soldiers with Soldier G did not consider themselves under fire as they debussed, or while positioned at the wall of the derelict building near Columbcille Court. Moreover, even when they get to the Kells Walk Wall there is no consistency in the accounts given. Soldiers at the same location standing shoulder to shoulder behind the Kells Walk Wall heard different weapons firing from different locations, while a number of them claimed to have seen exploding petrol bombs and nail bombs invisible to their colleagues.

18.7.3.349 While the discrepancies in Soldier G's account and as between his account and those of his colleagues undermine his credibility, it is submitted that the photographic and video evidence available to this Tribunal objectively demonstrates the dishonesty of Soldier G's account. In particular the Tribunal is referred to:

i) V48/12.14 to 13.01 which shows soldiers as they debussed on Rossville Street and which in our submission demonstrates that that soldiers did not come under fire as they debussed.

ii) Photographs P1115, P1116, P1117 which show soldiers as they dismounted from their vehicles and show Anti-Tank Platoon moving towards the low wall at Kells Walk, again it is our submission that those photographs show that soldiers were not under fire.

iii) Photograph EP27.6 shows "an obvious and substantial gap with nothing going on, between the convoy of vehicles at the north of Rossville Street and a group of 40 or 50 people standing up behind the rubble barricade". Day 363/126/1 to Day 363/126/6 and is inconsistent with the evidence of Soldier G to the effect that they were under fire at this time.

iv) Photograph P1120 shows soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon advancing to the Kells Walk Wall with some moving forward of the Kells Walk Wall to speak with Soldiers P and 017, while P1121 shows one soldier still in front of the Kells Walk Wall while others stroll behind the Rubble Barricade. These 2 photographs in particular undermine any suggestion of soldiers being under fire as they arrived at the Kells Walk Wall.

18.7.3.350 In our submission, Soldier G lied in his account to the Widgery about the soldiers having come under live fire on Rossville Street, he did so in order to justify the use of lethal force by soldiers from his Platoon and from Mortar Platoon on Rossville Street.

Soldier G's first live rounds

18.7.3.351 Soldier G advanced with Soldier F forward of the Kells Walk Wall, he reached an alleyway leading to Glenfada Park North, and on his account fired 2 shots at a gunman who was in the alleyway. Both shots missed and hit a wall. Then accompanied by other soldiers he went down the alleyway into Glenfada Park North.

18.7.3.352 Soldier G's first account is contained in his RMP statement, in which he states that having advanced forward of the Kells Walk Wall:

i) Soldier G saw a gunman positioned at a wall at the end of an alleyway and he fired 2 shots at that man. B168

ii) He claims that he fired in order to give cover to another soldier who was running across open ground and that the gunman went to ground. B168

iii) Soldier G then ran up the alleyway with Soldier F and went into Glenfada Park North. B169

18.7.3.353 In the statement he gave to Treasury Solicitor's Soldier G expands upon his earlier account:

i) Soldier G believes he got to the end of the alleyway leading to Glenfada Park North when he first got a warning about a gunman. He got down on one knee and "saw a man dodging in and out of an alleyway at the far end of the wall (at the other end of the line marked 2 on my photograph). I caught a glimpse of what might have been a weapon. After being warned to look out for a gunman I am satisfied that that is what I saw. From the way he moved and the manner in which he carried the object in his hands I was sure he was a gunmen. One of the others had to get across the alleyway and to keep this man's head down I fired two shots at him on the line shown, marked 2." Soldier G did not claim to have hit the gunman. B186 paragraph 4

ii) Soldier G claims that the soldiers waited for the gunman to re-appear, however "we could not wait long because of the risk of fire from the high flats" and soldiers then moved into the alleyway before making their way into Glenfada Park North. B185 paragraph 5

18.7.3.354 In the evidence he gave to the Widgery Inquiry about this issue Soldier G stated as follows:

i) When Soldier F went around to the front of the Kells Walk Wall, Soldier G followed.

ii) Soldier G got "just far enough along here so that I could see up this alleyway with cover" B192E-F when someone shouted to him about a gunman. He believed that person was at the other side of the street. B193

iii) Soldier G "looked up the alleyway and somebody was dodging about up there." B193B Firstly the putative gunman ran from Columbcille Court to the north-west of Glenfada Park North and as he went into Glenfada Park North Soldier G saw that the man had something in his hand. The man then started dodging back round the wall and looking back at us. "From what I had seen of him I was satisfied that he was a gunman, so we had to move from there and I took aim and fired two aimed shots up this alleyway." B193D

iv) He saw both shots strike the wall and then he went up the alleyway with Soldiers E and F.

18.7.3.355 Again there are discrepancies between the various accounts given by Soldier G:

i) Soldier G makes no mention of receiving a warning about a gunman, in his RMP account, although it appears in his two subsequent accounts.

ii) In his statement to the RMP he states that he fired in order to provide cover for another soldier, however that explanation disappears from his subsequent accounts.

iii) In his RMP account the putative gunman is "positioned at a wall at the end of an alleyway" B168. In his account to the Treasury Solicitors, the gunman is "dodging in and out of an alleyway at the far end of the wall". B186 paragraph 4 In his account to Lord Widgery the man, ran from Columbcille Court to the north-west of Glenfada Park North then back to Glenfada Park North and then he started dodging back around the wall and looking back at the soldiers. B193D

iv) In his RMP statement, Soldier G refers unequivocally to a gunman. B168 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitors the man is identified as a gunman because of the warning received by Soldier G and because he had what "might have been" a weapon. B186 paragraph 4 In his evidence to Lord Widgery Soldier G saw that the man had something in his hand, he then began dodging back round the wall and looking back at the soldiers and from what Soldier G had seen of him he "was satisfied that he was a gunman". B193D Under questioning by Mr. Read he initially stated that "I caught a quick glimpse of what appeared to be a weapon" B205G but went on to state that "What I think, what I am positive in my mind was a rifle." B206A

18.7.3.356 In the first instance it is clear that Soldier G's identification of a gunman is far from certain. He refers to seeing what "might have been" a weapon B186 paragraph 4 and catching a quick glimpse of "what appeared to be" a weapon. B205G

18.7.3.357 Moreover, Soldier G's account is substantially undermined by the complete lack of corroboration of his account by the other soldiers who accompanied him down the alleyway to Glenfada Park North.

18.7.3.358 Counsel's Report No. 1 suggests that there is some corroboration of Soldier G's account to be found from Soldier 003, who witnessed a soldier from Support Company firing "several rounds in the direction of Columbcille Court where gunfire was coming from." However as the Report points out Soldier G makes no claim to having heard automatic fire or any fire coming from Columbcille Court.

18.7.3.359 Moreover, when he came to give evidence at this Inquiry, Soldier 003 stated that the soldier whom he saw fire was positioned "near to a Pig on Rossville Street. The soldier was facing south down Rossville Street, and I saw him fire one or two rounds in a southerly direction from a kneeling position." B1366.004 paragraph 24 The position marked by Soldier 033 on the map attached to his statement is a position on Rossville Street, beside the waste ground at Pilot Row and nowhere near where Soldier G claims to have fired the shot. B1366.0010

18.7.3.360 It is clear therefore that Soldier 003 in reality provides no corroboration for Soldier G. In any event it is submitted that Soldier 003's account of the events of the day is unreliable. In this respect the Tribunal is referred to our submissions in Section 11. If Soldier 033's account was to be accepted it would mean that he witnessed this shooting while positioned at the back of 36 Chamberlain Street, yet at the same time he failed to witness any of the shooting by members of Mortar Platoon positioned beside his location in the Rossville Flats car-park. Day 309/122/12 to Day 309/122/22

18.7.3.361 Moreover on his account C Company arrived in the Bogside before Support Company and no soldiers from Support Company were in the Rossville Flats' car park near C Company. B1366.004 paragraph 22

18.7.3.362 Of more significance to Soldier G's credibility is the failure of Soldiers F, E and H, who we know to have accompanied Soldier G into Glenfada Park North, to see either Soldier G's target, or even Soldier G firing live rounds at this location. This despite the fact that it was apparently to give his colleagues cover that he fired these rounds. B168

18.7.3.363 As has been seen from Video 48, other soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon advanced forward towards the alleyway with Soldier G. Again none of these soldiers witnessed either the civilian gunman or Soldier G firing live rounds.

18.7.3.364 Moreover, no soldier positioned at any other location on Rossville Street claims to have shouted a warning which alerted Soldier G to the possibility of a gunman, and on his own account, contributed to his identification of the man at the end of the alleyway as a gunman.

18.7.3.365 There is no truth in the account given by Soldier G about the circumstances in which he claims to have fired his first two shots on Bloody Sunday. It is our submission that this account was fabricated because Soldier G fired live rounds in circumstances which were unjustified, in Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park, but also possibly while positioned in Kells Walk Wall on Rossville Street.

Soldier G's Fire at the Rossville Flats

18.7.3.366 Soldier G was then involved in the use of lethal force in Glenfada Park North which included the killing of Gerard Donaghey. When soldiers returned to Rossville Street from Glenfada Park North, the vehicles of Anti-Tank Platoon had moved up Rossville Street and were positioned near the gable end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.367 According to Soldier G, shortly after mounting their vehicles soldiers again came under fire, this time from a gunman in the Rossville Flats, as a result of which he dismounted the vehicle and fired a further live round.

18.7.3.368 As set out above it is our case that Soldiers F and G did between them fire 7 shots at the window of McCrudden's flat at 12 Garvan Place in the Rossville Flats, the bullet holes of which are shown at EP30.2.[47] The window at which they fired was located on the second floor and was the third window along when moving from north to south. These shots were fired at Fulvio Grimaldi who was trying to take photographs of the troops from the window of the flat at the time. A9 41.50-45.22[48] It is alleged that neither F nor G saw any gunmen at that location, neither of them heard any shots fired from that location. Moreover they neither saw anyone whom they believed to be a gunman, nor saw anything which would have made them believe that shots had been fired from that location. Their shooting was without justification and demonstrates the mindset of the soldiers of Anti-Tank Platoon and in particular Soldiers F and G to the use of lethal force.

18.7.3.369 The civilian and photographic evidence suggests that there was a total of seven shots fired at this location. If that evidence is correct there remains the question of what happened to the remaining shot claimed to have been fired there by Soldier F and Soldier G, given that both soldiers claim to have hit the window at which they were aiming. In all probability this shot accounts for some of the shooting by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon over the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.3.370 According to Soldier G's statement to the RMP:

i) After 2 minutes in the vehicles soldiers were fired upon by a gunman from a window on the second storey of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats about 3 windows from the western corner. B170

ii) Soldier G took up a position at the front wheel of the vehicle and faced the flats, from where he located the gunman and saw a muzzle flash from his position. B170

iii) He fired 1 aimed shot at the gunman but could not say he definitely hit him. B170

iv) He claims the gunman fired 5 shots in total, all of these shots going high over the vehicle. B170

18.7.3.371 Soldier G also gave a statement about this incident to the Treasury Solicitor which supplements his first account:

i) On returning from Glenfada Park North, soldiers mounted their vehicles and while in the vehicles they came under fire again. B187 paragraph 10

ii) Soldier G got out of the vehicle and ran round to the right of the driver and said to the driver "where from?" the driver indicated an open window on the second floor about 3 windows from southern end "I heard more shots and saw the window move. I made out someone standing slightly back from the window which had been pointed out to me and fired one round at him. I cannot recall any further firing and I fired no more rounds." B187 paragraph 10

18.7.3.372 Finally, Soldier G gave an account to the Widgery Inquiry:

i) After Anti-Tank Platoon had returned to the vehicles and were in them for a minute or two, they were fired upon again from the Rossville Flats. B196E

ii) The driver saw where the shots had come from, Soldier G jumped out and ran to the front right hand side, he asked the driver where the gunman was and the driver pointed out an open window on the second floor, three windows from the right hand end. B196F

iii) Soldier G believes that Soldier F was at the front of the other vehicle at the time. He did not notice where F was or what he was firing at. B196F

iv) Soldier G was questioned about the shooting at the window in some detail and described it in the following terms:

"I saw the window move again and we were fired on again from there. Somebody stood back from the window, seeing it was tilted inside, and we were fired on again from that position.

. . . so I fired just one aimed shot at this position." B197B

"Q. I want to know how positive you are that you were fired on from the window. What did you see which gave you reason to think that was the truth?

A. When I saw the window move I could tell where the shot was coming from because I was watching it. I was actually watching where it came from."

Soldier G stated that he did not see weapon protruding just saw "somebody stood back from the window" B197B-C and he believes shot hit below the window.

18.7.3.373 In our submission, even taken at its height, the explanation given by Soldier G for his belief that there was a gunman in the Flats, does not justify his decision to use lethal force, under either domestic or international human rights law. He did not see a weapon, nor even a figure, merely somebody standing back from a window which had moved earlier at or about the time he heard a shot from the Flats. This account would not justify the use of lethal force, either in self-defence or defence of others and certainly the use of force was not absolutely necessary within the meaning of Article 2 of the Convention.

18.7.3.374 In relation to the shooting at McCrudden's window the Tribunal is referred to Section 5 of these submissions wherein we make the case that a significant number of soldiers made statements on the 4 February 1972 which were expressly designed to corroborate and justify the use of lethal force by other soldiers. On the 4th February 1972 RMP statements were taken from the following members of the Anti Tank Platoon: Soldier J at 15.10 hours, (B269, B270) Soldier 018 at 19.15 hours, (B1487) Soldier 036 at 19.30 hours, (B1629, B1630) Soldier 147 at 20.00 hours (B1886, B1887) and L/Corporal F, time unknown. Each of these statements deals with the incident where they say that while in their vehicles they came under fire from the Rossville Flats and Soldiers F and G returned fire.

18.7.3.375 Despite the exercise by the RMP designed to bolster the credibility of Soldiers F and G, there are in fact significant discrepancies between the accounts given by Soldier G and the accounts given by Soldiers F, 036 and 147 about the circumstances in which Soldiers F and G fired live rounds.

18.7.3.376 Soldier 036 was the driver of the rear of the Anti-Tank Platoon vehicles from which Soldier G dismounted and fired a shot. B1629[49] Soldier G's statement to the Treasury Solicitor describes an incident, in which he states that we spoke to the driver of his vehicle and the driver pointed out the window from where firing was coming from.[50] B187 paragraph 10 Soldier 036, the driver of the vehicle, in the accounts he has given, makes no reference to having spoken to either Soldier G, F or any other soldier.

18.7.3.377 It is also of course the case that on F's account it was Soldier 147, the radio operator, seated behind the passenger seat, who pointed out the first of his targets to him. B123 Again Soldier 036 makes no reference to this despite having been seated in the front of the same vehicle.

18.7.3.378 Both Soldier G and Soldier F give an account of the shooting whereby G fired his round from the second vehicle, that is the vehicle driven by Soldier 036, B146F-G, while F was positioned at the front vehicle. B196F. It also appears from the transcript of Soldier F's evidence to the Widgery Inquiry that Soldier G fired his round when Soldier F was

[49] B1668 Soldier 147 in his RMP statement also states that he was in the same vehicle as Soldier 036. While according to Soldier F he dismounts from the rear vehicle, speaks to the radio operator, Soldier 147 and then moves to the front vehicle. B123

firing at his second target in the Rossville Flats. B145D[51] and B146A-G

18.7.3.379 Yet Soldier G, apparently positioned at a location behind his partner, Soldier F, did not notice Soldier F firing 3 live rounds. B196F-G On the other hand Soldier F from a location to the front of Soldier G, and while engaged with a gunman, did manage to observe Soldier G fire his round. B146F

18.7.3.380 These discrepancies are dealt with in some further detail in our submissions in relation to Soldier 036. Suffice to say that despite the best efforts of the RMP, the accounts given by Soldiers G, F, 036 and 147 when considered in some little detail tend to undermine, rather than corroborate, the accounts given by Soldiers G and F about their justification advanced for shooting at McCrudden's window.

18.7.3.381 Soldier G claims to have fired three live rounds while on Rossville Street and he certainly fired at least 6 rounds on Bloody Sunday, one of which killed Gerard Donaghey. Soldier G's account of the circumstances in which he fired live rounds is demonstrably untruthful. Moreover it has been established that he lied about the circumstances in which he fired the live round which led to the death of Gerard Donaghey. Neither Soldier G's account of the location at which he fired live rounds nor the circumstances in which he fired live rounds can be accepted by this Tribunal. Given the allegations which will be made against Soldier G in relation to his conduct in Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park, it seems probable that it was his use of lethal force at that location which may account for his unaccounted for rounds. However, given Soldier G must also be considered as a suspect for the shooting of one or more of Michael McDaid, John

[51] Soldier F's evidence to the Widgery Inquiry makes it clear that he fires his first 3 shots from the front of the rear vehicle and then moved forward to the front vehicle, from where he fired 2 further series of shots at two different gunmen.

Young, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore, particularly if soldiers in Anti-Tank Platoon were in possession of extra rounds.

18.7.3.382 Soldier 147 is an important witness, particularly with regard to the evidence which he gives in relation to the shots Soldier F claimed to have fired at the first of his three gunmen positioned in the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.383 It is our case that Soldiers F and G did between them fire 7 shots at the window of McCrudden's flat at 12 Garvan Place in the Rossville Flats, the bullet holes of which are shown at EP30.2.[52] The window at which they fired was located on the second floor and was the third window along when moving from north to south. These shots were fired at Fulvio Grimaldi who was trying to take photographs of the troops from the window of the flat at the time. A9 41.50-45.22[53] It is alleged that neither F nor G saw any gunmen at that location, neither of them heard any shots fired from that location. Moreover they neither saw anyone whom they believed to be a gunman, nor saw anything which would have made them believe that shots had been fired from that location.

18.7.3.384 Soldier F claims to have fired a total of 8 shots at windows in the Rossville Flats, while G claims to have fired 1 further round. The civilian and photographic evidence suggests that there was a total of seven shots. If that evidence is correct there remains the question of what happened to the remaining shot claimed to have been fired there by Soldier F and Soldier G, given that both soldiers claim to have hit the window at which they were aiming. In all probability this shot

18.7.3.385 Soldier 147 was one of the members of Anti-Tank Platoon who made a statement on the 4 February 1972 designed to corroborate the actions of Soldier F and to justify the firing of live rounds. The Tribunal has been referred to Section 5 of these submissions wherein we make the case that a significant number of soldiers made statements on that date which were expressly designed to corroborate and justify the use of lethal force by other soldiers.

18.7.3.386 A significant number of soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon, including Soldier 147 fall into that category. It is our submission that Soldier 147's account of events is a complete fabrication. He was required to fabricate the account because of the explanation which had been given by Soldier F in his first RMP statement about the circumstances in which he fired at the first of his three alleged gunmen at the Rossville Flats. Soldier F stated in his RMP statement dated the 31 January 1972 that he had been told by the radio operator that there was a "sniper up in the flats" and once he jumped out of the vehicle the radio operator told F where he had seen the gunman. B123 In the circumstances it was vital that this account was corroborated and the only person who could provide the necessary corroboration was Soldier 147. Soldier 147 lied in 1972 when he made statements about the circumstances in which F is alleged to have fired live rounds and he did so because, in light of the explanation which had been advanced by Soldier F. Had he not provided the necessary corroboration Soldier F's account would have been entirely implausible.

18.7.3.387 Significantly, and in contradistinction to Soldier 018, Soldier 147 has persisted in standing over the statements he made in 1972 and in his dealings with this Tribunal he has sought to bolster the military case by lying about what he saw of the events of Bloody Sunday. The statement made by Soldier 147 in 1999 for the purpose of this Tribunal demonstrated not, a desire to the tell the truth, but a willingness to sustain and shore up the lies told in 1972. Unfortunately for Soldier 147, as his oral evidence demonstrated, his lies had a habit of tripping him up.

18.7.3.388 Soldier 147's primary significance as a witness relates to his involvement in the efforts made to lend some credibility to Soldier F. His evidence about hearing gunfire and explosions also provides more general support for other soldiers from his Platoon who fired live rounds. There is however another aspect of his evidence which is of some importance.

18.7.3.389 In particular the question of whether he remained within the APC when other soldiers from his Platoon debussed. If he is being honest in this aspect of his evidence this undermines even further the credibility of Lieutenant 119, but it also raises questions about the identity of the soldiers behind the Kells Walk Wall who are seen in photograph EP23.9 or on V48/11.35 to 11.41

Whether Soldier 147 remained in the Vehicle

18.7.3.390 Soldier 147 appears to have consistently made the case that he did not debus with other soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon, but remained in the vehicle throughout. He explains that by reference to the fact that he was a radio operator. B1889 paragraph 1, B1891.003, Day 359/19/8 to Day 359/19/10 Having said that his statement to the RMP is somewhat confusing. He only describes the vehicle as having stopped at its second location, beside the Rossville Flats, despite the fact that the vehicle was initially parked at the junction of William Street and Rossville Street and soldiers debussed from that location, prior to the vehicle moving to the Rossville Flats. B1886 Moreover according to his subsequent statement the decision to move up Rossville Street was as a result of a radio transmission received by him. B1889 paragraph

2 It is difficult to understand his confusion with regard to the moving of the vehicle if it is true that he remained with the vehicle throughout.

18.7.3.391 This issue is of significance in a number of respects. On the one hand both photographic and video evidence suggest that every member of Anti-Tank Platoon debussed and went to the Kells Walk Wall. According to the nominal roll there were 17 members of Anti-Tank Platoon and it appears that at least 17 soldiers can be seen behind the Kells Walk Wall, after Anti-Tank Platoon debus, and prior to the arrival of Composite Platoon. EP23.9 Moreover the excerpt from V48/11.35 to 11.55 which shows Anti-Tank Platoon advance forward of the Kells Walk Wall again shows what appears to be a full Platoon suggesting, at the very least that each and every member of Anti-Tank Platoon debussed and went as far as the Kells Walk Wall.[54]

18.7.3.392 Having said that the video and photographic evidence does not appear to show more than one radio operator, and we know that Soldier 027 was a radio operator and accompanied Lieutenant 119 at the Kells Walk Wall and into Glenfada Park North. That would tend to support Soldier 147's contention that he remained with the vehicle however it raises a question as to whether there were members of the Parachute Regiment who were not members of Anti-Tank Platoon at the Kells Walk Wall with Anti-Tank Platoon.

18.7.3.393 It may of course be that, consistent with the evidence of Soldier 027, some soldiers from Composite Platoon did arrive at the Kells Walk Wall, ahead of their colleagues. The suggestion that at least some members of Composite Platoon had advanced to the Kells Walk Wall, at or about the time Anti-Tank Platoon were at that location is also supported by P1121. This photograph shows one soldier forward of the Kells Walk Wall speaking with Soldiers P and 017 while other members of Anti-Tank Platoon return behind the Kells Walk Wall.

There are also a number of soldiers slightly further back from the wall, positioned in a doorway and it would appear that there are at least 20 soldiers in the vicinity of the Kells Walk Wall, not including Soldiers P and 017.

18.7.3.394 If Soldier 147 is telling the truth about this aspect of his evidence then his evidence goes to further undermine Lieutenant 119's credibility with regard to the explanation he has advanced in order to suggest that he did not arrive in Glenfada Park North until after the shooting was over. According to Lieutenant 119 he initially sent 'some' of his men, including Soldiers E and F into Glenfada Park North, while at the same time sending a runner back to the Anti-Tank Platoon vehicles to bring them forward to provide cover to allow the remainder of his platoon to advance.

> "To cover us from fire from Block 1 I sent a runner to order up our vehicles to give us cover on the road. I then ordered some men forward into the courtyard of Glenfadda Park, hoping to cut off the gunmen by the barricade. As soon as my vehicles were in a position to give us satisfactory cover from the fire from Block 1 I moved forward myself into Glenfada Park courtyard." B1752.044 paragraph 7 See also B1752.037

18.7.3.395 However, according to Soldier 147 the reason he remained with the vehicle was in order to take messages or to move the armoured vehicle to another position if ordered to do so. B1889 If Soldier 147 is correct, Lieutenant 119 had no need to send a runner back to the vehicles, he could simply have radioed Soldier 147 who was waiting in the vehicle for that very order.

Hearing Gunfire and Explosions

18.7.3.396 In his RMP statement Soldier 147 stated that he heard the sound of shooting in the general area. B1886 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he stated that after Anti-Tank Platoon debussed he could hear shooting from all directions, he did not identify the type of fire he heard. B1889

18.7.3.397 By the time he comes to give evidence to this Inquiry in the statement he made in 1999 he stated that there was gunfire from low calibre weapons, or Thompson sub-machineguns. He was clear that the sounds he heard did not come from baton rounds were not the sounds of firing from SLRs. He also claimed to have heard explosions which could have been nail or petrol bombs. B1891.003 paragraphs 17 to 19

18.7.3.398 When questioned by counsel for the Tribunal he was asked given that:

> "in the two statements you made in 1972, you did not explain what kind of shooting you heard . . . You did not even identify the sounds of SLRS . . . How can you be sure now of the details that you have set out in your statement to this Inquiry of hearing weapons that were not British army issue weapons? . . . My question is: how can you be sure of the detail, given the amount of time that has passed?
> A. I cannot, sir." Day 359/13/9 to Day 359/14/17

18.7.3.399 When questioned by our counsel Soldier 147 was unable to explain why he had inserted paragraph 17 into his statement, given that he was unable to stand over that evidence. Day 359/34/6 to Day 359/34/7

18.7.3.400 It is also of course the case that Soldier 147 never suggested in 1972 that he had heard explosions. His evidence on that issue is as unreliable as the evidence which he gave seeking to suggest that the gunfire he heard was not army fire.

18.7.3.401 It is quite clear, as becomes more apparent with other aspects of his evidence, that now, as in 1972, Soldier 147 was willing to lie about what he saw and heard on Bloody Sunday, in order to reinforce the army case that soldiers were under fire. However when it came to giving oral evidence Soldier 147's lies tripped him up all too frequently and resulted in his repeatedly having to withdraw the lies he had told to Eversheds.

F's shooting at the Rossville Flats

18.7.3.402 Soldier 147's first account of a gunman firing on troops from the Rossville Flats was made on the 4 February 1972, in relation to that incident he stated as follows:

i) He was in a Pig driven by Soldier 036, and remained in the vehicle which drove down Rossville Street while his Platoon advanced on foot in front of the Pig. B1886

ii) The Pig was stopped on the pavement at the north end of the Rossville Flats. B1886

iii) Looking up at the flats he saw a window on the second floor about 5/6 windows along from the southern end and saw the outline of a man and the muzzle flash of a weapon while he heard the sound of a report. The round passed very close over the roof of the vehicle. He saw the window move downwards after the shot. He did not see the weapon but believed that it was a .22 calibre weapon. B1886

iv) Within seconds the same window opened again and a second shot was fired. He again heard the sound pass near the troops and hit the ground near the front of the vehicle. He did not see the gunman or weapon. B1886

v) He shouted a warning to other members of his unit and pointed the window from where the gunman fired to F. B1887

vi) He claimed that he did not see return fire. B1887

vii) He states that a few minutes later he saw an apparently lifeless body being carried from the block of flats and placed in an ambulance. B1887

18.7.3.403 In the statement he made to the Treasury Solicitor he stated as follows:

i) He identified himself as a radio operator and stated that when the Platoon advanced he stayed with the vehicle in order to take messages or to move the armoured vehicle to another position if ordered to do so. B1889 paragraph 1

ii) He received an order that the vehicle should be moved further up Rossville Street and communicated that order to the driver. From his new location he had a clear view of the Rossville Flats. B1889 paragraph 2

iii) Anti-Tank Platoon returned to the vehicles and one of the soldiers who got into his vehicle was Soldier F, Soldier 147 himself was located directly behind the front seat and no one was in the front seat. B1889 paragraph 2

iv) A second storey window in the flats opened and Soldier 147 saw the shape of a man, a shot then passed close to the vehicle and the window seemed to shut. B1889 paragraph 2

v) Within seconds the window moved again, he saw the shape of a man and a second shot was fired from the window which hit the ground to the front and slightly to the left of the vehicle. B1889 paragraph 2

vi) He shouted a warning to members of his Platoon and pointed out to F where the shots had come from. B1889 paragraph 2

vii) F dismounted from the vehicle "In fact, I think a couple of soldiers jumped out of the vehicle but I cannot be sure." B1889 paragraph 2

viii) He heard a couple of shots but cannot recollect who fired them. B1889 paragraph 2

ix) In relation to his RMP statement, Soldier 147 stated that while "I had said that I did not see the gunman. In fact I did see the shape of a man I have described but I could not give any further description of him". B1890 paragraph 3

18.7.3.404 There are a number of discrepancies between the two accounts made by Soldier 147:

i) In his first statement he stated that the Pig advanced behind the vehicle, this was corrected in the Treasury Solicitor statement to what we know to have been the situation. The Pigs were originally parked at the junction of Rossville Street and William Street and some time after Anti-Tank Platoon advanced forward from the Kells Walk Wall they were moved and parked beside the footpath at the northern end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

ii) In his first statement he states that he did not see the gunmen, this is overtly corrected in his second statement.

iii) In his RMP statement he makes no mention of F or any other soldier getting out of the vehicle.

iv) In his RMP statement he stated that he did not see return fire. B1889 paragraph 2 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he describes hearing a couple of shots fired by soldiers albeit he cannot identify the soldiers in question. B1889 paragraph 2

18.7.3.405 Soldier 147 made a statement for this Inquiry in 1999, in which he dealt with the statements he had made in 1972. In relation to his RMP statement he stated that:

i) Having re-read the statement he recollected coming under fire while the Pig was positioned close to the Rossville Flats. B1891.004 paragraph 25.1.1

ii) He claimed that he saw "a hand come out of the window in question. . . . I remember seeing the window actually open and the hand sticking out of it. The hand was holding some sort of weapon. I cannot say exactly what type of weapon it was, but it was definitely not a camera. I am absolutely certain of that." B1891.004 paragraph 25.1.1

iii) He maintained that he saw the shape of a person but had no recollection of a muzzle flash and believed that he would have been unlikely to have seen one in daylight. B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.2

iv) He had no recollection of having shouted a warning and is surprised that he would have spoken to F because they disliked each other. B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.4

v) He had no recollection of a body being removed from the Flats. B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.5

18.7.3.406 In relation to the statement made to the Treasury Solicitors he stated as follows:

i) He had no recollection of being ordered to move the Pig, he had no recollection of his Platoon returning to the Pig and specifically had no recollection of F returning to the Pig. B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.3

ii) He was adamant that he was not in the Pig when he saw the man at the window and the reason he gave for that was because "it would be extremely difficult to see anything out of the window of a Pig. The windows are very narrow and give a restrictive view, particularly if you are sitting behind the passenger seat. I am certain that I was actually standing at the back of the Pig on its left hand side when I saw the hand appear at the window. Similarly, I am sure that I was outside the vehicle when the shot passed overhead." B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.4

iii) He stated that, of the two accounts, he preferred his RMP statement, in part because it did not state that he was in the vehicle when he saw the gunman. B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.5

iv) He stated that he did not see any shots hitting the window and neither did he see Soldiers F or G firing any shots. B1891.006 paragraph 27

18.7.3.407 Soldier 147's oral testimony to this Tribunal demonstrated that the only real consistency between the various accounts which Soldier 147 has given about Bloody Sunday has been his consistent willingness to lie about the events of that day.

18.7.3.408 Soldier 147 account about witnessing a civilian gunman on Bloody Sunday is in our submission demonstrably untrue because, as Soldier

018 acknowledged in his statement to this Inquiry, B1491.5 paragraph 42 from Soldier 147's location in the Pig he could not have witnessed that which he claimed to have witnessed on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.409 In his evidence to this Inquiry Soldier 147 accepted that he must have been sitting in the Pig when he witnessed the incident. Day 359/4/17 to Day 359/4/22 In our submission, the reason Soldier 147 had told Eversheds that he was outside the Pig was because he himself realised, in the course of making that statement, that he could not have seen a gunman at a window in the Rossville Flats from the location he had given in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor.

18.7.3.410 He expressly acknowledged that fact in his statement to Eversheds when he said "it would be extremely difficult to see anything out of the window of a Pig. The windows are very narrow and give a restrictive view, particularly if you are sitting behind the passenger seat." B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.4

18.7.3.411 When giving evidence to this Tribunal he stated that he had made a mistake when speaking with Eversheds, and persisted in stating that his view from the rear of the Pig would have been sufficient to enable him to see a gunman, positioned inside a window, in a Flat two floors up. Day 359/65/9 to Day 359/65/24 However not only is his assertion inconsistent with what he said to Eversheds it is also inconsistent with the explanation which Soldier 147 gave to this Inquiry when he was asked how he could have missed F and G firing live rounds. As he said himself the reason he would not have seen two soldiers positioned close to the Pig in which he was seated was:

> "Well, a large steel door, sir, with a small window."
> Day 359/26/17 to Day 359/27/8

18.7.3.412 Thus Soldier 147 wants the Tribunal to believe that while his view from the Pig was so restricted that he could not have seen Soldiers F and G firing, it would not have prevented him from being able to confidently identify a gunman within a flat, two floors above ground from the inside rear of a Pig.

18.7.3.413 It is moreover absolutely clear from such objective evidence as exists that from his location in the rear of the Pig, Soldier 147 could not have been an eyewitness to the events he claimed to have seen. Photograph P520.002 shows one of the vehicles from Anti-Tank Platoon parked on Rossville Street. It is clear from the accounts given by Soldier F that both himself and Soldier 147 were in the second vehicle. B138 paragraph 10, B145D In other words the vehicle on the far side of the vehicle shown in photograph P520.002. It is submitted that this photograph, without more, demonstrates the dishonesty of Soldier 147.

18.7.3.414 Moreover photograph OS1.841 which has only recently become available and was not available when this witness gave evidence, shows the inside of a Pig. Again this photograph, particularly when one considers the position of Soldier 147's Pig relative to the Rossville Flats, demonstrates that Soldier 147 lied in every account he has given about Bloody Sunday in which he claims to have seen a civilian gunmen.

18.7.3.415 A factor which further undermines Soldier 147's credibility is the fact that as a radio operator he failed to report over the radio the fact that a gunmen had been seen at the window of the Rossville Flats. Again Soldier 147 could advance no explanation for that failure, the reality of the situation being that the true explanation is that he had nothing to report. Day 359/74/16 to Day 359/74/19

18.7.3.416 It is our submission that Soldier 147's oral testimony demonstrates the truth of Soldier 018's written testimony:

> ". . . I was not in a position to see whether there was a gunman in the flats when the shots were fired, nor could I see that they went through the window." B1491.5 paragraph 42

18.7.3.417 Like Soldier 018 in 1972, Soldier 147 was prepared to lie in order to "substantiate details that had been provided by his colleagues" B1491.5 paragraph 42 and to justify the circumstances in which they had fired live rounds.

18.7.3.418 In the statements made to this Tribunal, Soldier 147 did not persist with his assertion that he seen a body being removed from the Rossville Flats, minutes after he had seen a gunman. B1887 It is our submission that this reference was included in his RMP statement for the express purpose of making a link between the shooting by members of his Platoon of a gunman and the removal of Kevin McElhinney's body from the Rossville Flats. While he rejected that suggestion Day 359/69/1 to Day 359/69/4 it is noteworthy that Soldier 036 also described this in his 1972 RMP statement and the wording used in his RMP was identical to that used by Soldier 147. B1630 According to Soldier 147, the Tribunal should accept that this is mere coincidence. Day 359/69/1 to Day 359/69/17

18.7.3.419 All of the evidence demonstrates that Soldier 147 lied about his sighting of a civilian gunman in 1972, Soldier 147 invites this Tribunal to reject the only sensible interpretation of the evidence because he did not like Soldier F. B1891.005 paragraph 25.1.4 However, given the statement made by Soldier F on the 31 January 1972, in which he identified the radio operator as the person who has pointed out the gunman to him B123 Soldier 147 was one of only 2 soldiers who could have provided the corroboration necessary to justify Soldier F's firing of live rounds. Had Soldier 147 refused to provide the requisite level of corroboration, Soldier F's credibility would have been substantially undermined. In our submission the fact that Soldier 147 was willing to lie, even for a colleague whom he disliked, merely demonstrates the extent to which members of the Parachute regiment were prepared to lie in order to justify the use of lethal force by their colleagues. It also tends to suggest that the impetus for the fabricated accounts given by soldiers on the 4 February 1972 was orchestrated and co-ordinated by the RMP as part of a clear strategy to obstruct the search for the truth about Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.420 It is not without significance that in relation to the shooting by F and G, on Rossville Street, more soldiers participated in providing corroboration for that shooting than for any other single incident.[55] While there is disputed evidence about whether or not a ceasefire order was given at the Kells Walk Wall prior to Anti-Tank Platoon entering Glenfada Park North, there is no doubt that an order to ceasefire had been given when Soldiers F and G fired these rounds. Any shooting after the ceasefire needed to be demonstrably justified, hence the queue of soldiers, lining up to state that a gunman/gunmen were shooting from the Rossville Flats at the troops when the vehicles had moved up Rossville Street. Moreover this incident involved two soldiers who were undoubtedly guilty of murder on Bloody Sunday. The RMP thus went to considerable lengths to protect the actions of Soldier F and Soldier G from further scrutiny. In this respect we would refer to a Table prepared of the order in which soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon made their RMP statements, attached as Table 6 to this Section.

18.7.3.421 Soldier 147 manufactured an account of the events of Bloody Sunday in 1972, in particular he claimed to have seen a civilian gunman in circumstances which would have lent support to the actions of two of his colleagues who fired rounds at a photographer.

18.7.3.422 Moreover in the statement he made to Eversheds he went to considerable lengths to sustain and reinforce his account. Soldier 147 was guilty of lying for his colleagues in 1972, in 2003 he was guilty of perjury.

[55] In all, Soldier 018, Soldier 147, Soldier 036, Soldier J provided statements on the 4 February designed to corroborate the accounts of shooting given by Soldier F and G.

Soldier 036

18.7.3.423 Soldier 036 is another soldier from Anti-Tank Platoon who made an RMP statement on the 4 February 1972 which provides some level of corroboration for the accounts given by Soldier F and Soldier G firing shots at the Rossville Flats (B1629, B1630). His statement was made at 19.30, half an hour before Soldier 147 had made his statement (B1886, B1887) and 15 minutes after Soldier 018 made his statement (B1487).

18.7.3.424 As with Soldier 147 it is our submission that Soldier 036 fabricated the account he gave in 1972 of hearing shots coming from the Rossville Flats and connecting those shots with the movement of a window at which Soldiers F and G fired. B1629, B1630

18.7.3.425 Soldier 036's testimony to this Tribunal Soldier amounted to an interview, conducted outside the jurisdiction, with John Tate, solicitor to the Inquiry.

Soldier 036's RMP Statement

18.7.3.426 Soldier 036 only made one statement in 1972 which was the statement made on the 4 February 1972 to the RMP and can be summarised as follows:

i) He was the driver of one of the Pigs and was accompanied by Soldier 147 when the Pig came under fire from the Rossville Flats.

ii) He saw a window being moved and as he looked at the window he heard the sound of a high velocity weapon and the window shut. "I did not see a flash or any part of a weapon as it happened so quickly. I heard the round pass over the vehicle, very close to the roof." B1629

iii) He heard a second shot and the window moved again. "I did not actually see the weapon on either occasion." B1629

iv) F fired 2 shots and G fired 1 shot "I saw all three rounds strike this particular window but I did not see anyone being hit by those rounds." B1630

18.7.3.427 In relation to the statement by Soldier 036 we rely upon the submissions made previously in relation to the statement-taking exercise on that date. We moreover rely specifically on the testimony of Soldier 018 about the circumstances in which he came to make his RMP statement, just 15 minutes prior to the statement, on the same topic made by this witness. B1491.5 paragraph 42

18.7.3.428 In common with Soldier 147 Soldier 036 does not, in the account given in his RMP statement describe the process whereby the vehicles stopped, Anti-Tank Platoon debussed, and the vehicles were at some time after that moved forward to park beside the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.429 There are significant discrepancies between the account given by Soldier 036 and the accounts given by Soldiers F, G and 147 about the circumstances in which he maintains that he witnessed Soldiers F and G firing live rounds.

18.7.3.430 In their RMP statements both Soldier 147 and Soldier 036 place themselves in the same vehicle, consequently they were in the rear of the two Anti-Tank Platoon vehicles parked near the Rossville Flats. B145D[56]

18.7.3.431 Soldier G's statement to the Treasury Solicitor describes an incident, similar to that described by Soldier 036, in which he states that we spoke to the driver of his vehicle and the driver pointed out the window from where firing was coming from.[57] B187 paragraph 10 According to Soldier G's evidence to the Widgery Inquiry when he fired his shot

he was at a different vehicle to that from which Soldier F fired, Soldier F having gone to the front of the other vehicle. B196F It appears to follow that if Soldier 036, as he claims to have done, witnessed this incident, he is claiming to have witnessed Soldier F firing from the vehicle in front of his own, rather than his own vehicle.

18.7.3.432 F also maintained that G fired his round from the second vehicle, that is the vehicle driven by Soldier 036, B146F-G albeit it is not clear how F could have seen Soldier G firing from a position behind him when he was supposedly facing forwards, focusing on the actions of a gunman who was threatening his life. It also appears from the transcript of Soldier F's evidence to the Widgery Inquiry that Soldier G fired his round when Soldier F was firing at his second target in the Rossville Flats. B146A-G That would tend to suggest that Soldier 036 saw Soldier F firing 2 of the 3 rounds he fired while positioned at a vehicle in front of him,[58] having missed Soldier F fire at his first target from the front of the vehicle of which Soldier 036 was the driver, and at a time when Soldier 036 was sitting in the driver's seat.

18.7.3.433 It is also of course the case that on F's account it was Soldier 147, seated behind the passenger seat, who pointed out the first of his targets to him. B123 Soldier 036 makes no reference to this despite having been seated in the front of the same vehicle.

18.7.3.434 The discrepancies between the accounts given by the soldiers are significant:

i) If Soldier G is correct then Soldier 036 neglected to mention that he spoke with Soldier G and F and pointed out the window, from which the gunman was firing, to them. B187 paragraph 10

[57] It must be assumed that the reference to 'we' in his transcript is a reference to himself and Soldier F.
[58] According to F, he fired 3 rounds at his first target, 3 at his second and 2 at his third.

ii) If Soldier 036 is correct, then he could not in any event have pointed out a gunman, but only a suspicious window, not having seen either a weapon or a person at the window. B1630

iii) If Soldier F is correct, then Soldier G fired his round when Soldier F was firing at his second target. B146A-G It follows that Soldier 036 witnessed Soldier F firing from the vehicle in front of his, having missed him firing 3 shots at the front of Soldier 036's own vehicle. Also of course Soldier F had eyes in the back of his head as he was able to "see" Soldier G when Soldier G was located at a position to his rear and while he himself was firing at a target. B146F

iv) If Soldier F is correct Soldier 147 pointed out F's first target to him and Soldier 036 was completely unaware of this conversation. B123

18.7.3.435 In our submission, it has already been amply demonstrated that the statement-taking exercise involving Soldier 036, Soldier 147 and Soldier 018 was a completely bogus exercise in which the soldiers in question either fabricated, or had accounts fabricated for them, in order to justify the circumstances in which Soldiers F and G fired live rounds at the Rossville Flats. The complete inconsistency in the accounts given by this Soldier, Soldier F and Soldier G, merely serves to highlight the fact that this account is a complete fabrication.

Transcript of Interview taken by John Tate

18.7.3.436 The process whereby Soldier 036 gave evidence to the Inquiry was unusual. Soldier 036 apparently resides outside the jurisdiction and refused to come to London to give evidence to the Inquiry where he would have been subject to questioning about this incident by lawyers representing the families. Rather he gave an interview to John Tate, the solicitor to the Inquiry, at which our clients were not represented.

18.7.3.437 It will be our submission that the circumstances in which Soldier 036 gave evidence are such that no or no significant weight can be attached to any evidence he gives hostile to the next of kin of the Deceased. This is dealt with in further detail below.

18.7.3.438 It is our further contention that issues arise as to the manner in which the interview was conducted by John Tate, that on a number of issues the transcript is ambiguous and certain issues were not clarified with the witness. By way of example, Soldier 027 has made a very serious allegation against Soldier 036, albeit not related to events on Bloody Sunday, again for reasons which have never been made clear, that allegation was never put to Soldier 036. As will be evident from the submission below, other matters, pertinent to Soldier 036's evidence were never put to this witness and the failure to question the witness about these matters, undermines the whole process.

18.7.3.439 It was suggested to Soldier 036 that the Pig he drove stopped by Kells Walk, which of course is not the case, and his evidence at that stage was that soldiers were under fire "the rounds were coming at us at the time". B1631.17 Soldier 036 gives no further detail about coming under fire and his evidence in this respect is contradicted by his later testimony when asked about whether there had been Irish gunmen on Bloody Sunday "Meself, I didn't believe there was Irish gunmen, no." B1631.22

18.7.3.440 Soldier 036 was the driver of one of the two Anti-Tank Platoon vehicles and the evidence of Soldier 147 would tend to suggest that Soldier 036 must have remained with the vehicle the whole time. However this witness gives evidence about being at the Kells Walk Wall and observing the Rubble Barricade. B1631.17, B1631.22

18.7.3.441 Soldier 036 was asked about the conduct of the people behind the Rubble Barricade:

> "And you saw the same barricade, the rubble barricade. What were people doing? - - - There were just people in front there. That's all I could see." B1631.15

18.7.3.442 He was also questioned about whether he saw people behind the Rubble Barricade with weapons:

> "But at any stage did you see anybody at the barricade with anything which appeared to be a nail bomb or a appeared to be a pistol? - - - No, I don't think so. Did you see anybody being – in terms of the soldiers shooting, did you see any of the civilians being hit?"

Again the witness did not believe he had seen anyone hit behind the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.3.443 On the one hand the testimony of Soldier 036 undermines completely the testimony of those soldiers who claimed that they came under hostile fire from the Rubble Barricade. However if Soldier 036 was at the Kells Walk Wall he could not have missed civilians behind the Rubble Barricade being shot and killed as a result of the actions of his colleagues. This matter was never pursued with the witness.

18.7.3.444 Moreover the evidence of Soldier 147 to the effect that the reason he remained with the vehicle was in order to take messages or to move the armoured vehicle to another position if ordered to do so B1889 suggests that Soldier 036, as driver, remained in the vehicle. However Soldier 036's current testimony clearly contradicts that. Again the witness was not questioned about this matter but as things stand his testimony undermines the evidence from Soldier 147 to the effect that Soldier 147 remained with the vehicle and did not debus with his colleagues.

18.7.3.445 It is also not entirely clear from the transcript whether the incident during which he saw, "blinds or curtains being moved", B1691.18 at a window in the Rossville Flats, occurred when he was at the Kells Walk Wall, as opposed to in his vehicle. In the transcript Soldier 036 maintained that he was at the Kells Walk Wall the whole time. B1631.19

18.7.3.446 When being questioned about the incident in respect of which he had made a statement in 1972 the transcript contained the following exchange:

> "At any stage did you see any movement in that block? - - - Not that I can remember. There was movement in the windows but that was all.
> You saw a window move, did you? - - - I saw blinds or curtains being moved at the time but - - -
>
> Was this pointed out to you or did - - - No, no I just saw it.
> Asked whether he pointed it out to anyone – "No, I think we heard a lot of people shouting "Keep your eyes on the top windows" and that's about all." B1631.18

18.7.3.447 Soldier 036 was then shown his RMP statement and was directed to the paragraph which stated "As we parked here we came under fire from Rossville Flats. I distinctly saw a window being moved upwards". B1629 In response to this Soldier 036 stated: "I can remember that now" to which John Tate's rather surprising reply was "Good". B1631.18

18.7.3.448 Soldier 036 was then shown the paragraph in his RMP statement wherein it was stated "As I looked at the window there was the sound of one shot from a high velocity weapon whereupon the window immediately shut. I did not see a flash or see any part of a weapon as it happened so quickly." B1629 Soldier 036 then stated:

> "I can remember it now, or I understand what you're talking about on the statement but I can't really remember it at the moment." B1631.18

18.7.3.449 It is our submission that taken at its height Soldier 036's testimony amounts to testimony that he believes he saw blinds or curtains being moved in a window in the Rossville Flats and that he heard people shouting "Keep your eyes on the top windows." He did not hear shots coming from the Rossville Flats and his evidence does not justify the use of lethal force. Moreover the incident he described may have occurred when he was positioned behind the Kells Walk Wall.

18.7.3.450 Our submission that Soldier 036's testimony does not suggest that soldiers were coming under fire from the Rossville Flats at the time is supported by his testimony at a later stage when asked whether he believed that there had been Irish gunmen on Bloody Sunday to which he replied "Meself, I didn't believe there was Irish gunmen, no." B1631.22 Soldier 036's also testified that he did not hear nail bombs exploding on Bloody Sunday and that he was familiar with the sound of nail bombs exploding. B1631.22

18.7.3.451 It was never suggested to Soldier 036 that he had fabricated the account of events given to the RMP on the 4 February 1972 and Soldier 018's statement was not put to this witness. However Soldier 036 did give evidence which tends to support the testimony of Soldier 018 to the effect that he could not have seen that which he claimed to have witnessed in his RMP statement. Soldier 036 was asked about the view from the driver's cab, which would of course be the best vantage point from within an APC.

> "What could you see from the driver's cab? - - - Not a great deal – small slit, perhaps 6 inches, 12 inches long once you've down – battened down." B1631.5

18.7.3.452 This evidence undermines the testimony of Soldier 147 about what he claims to have witnessed from inside the APC.

18.7.3.453 Soldier 036's evidence:

i) Completely undermines the justification for the use of lethal force by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon firing at the Rubble Barricade, in that, on his own account he did not see anyone with a weapon.

ii) Completely undermines the justification for the use of lethal force by soldiers on Rossville Street in that, he states that "Meself, I didn't believe there was Irish gunmen, no." B1631.22

iii) Confirms that no nail bombs exploded on Rossville Street. B1631.22

iv) Confirms that he could not have seen a gunman from the driver's cab in an APC B1631.5

v) At best now has no recollection of hearing a shot from a weapon connected with the movement of a window. B1631.18

18.7.3.454 Nonetheless he still failed to account for the circumstances in which Michael Kelly, John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore were shot and killed while members of his Platoon were firing over the Kells Walk Wall.

18.7.3.455 It is our contention that Soldier 036's evidence provides no justification for the circumstances in which Anti-Tank Platoon used lethal force on Bloody Sunday. Inasmuch as his evidence may be relied upon to justify the use of lethal force on Bloody Sunday, this Tribunal should not attach any or any significant weight to that testimony. There was no medical or other good reason why this witness could not have testified in front of the Inquiry.

18.7.3.456 The manner in which Soldier 036 gave evidence, was significantly more informal than the way any other witness gave evidence to this Inquiry. The formality of the courtroom setting is devised to impress upon a witness the solemnity of the occasion and the vital importance of the obligation to tell the truth. Removing lawyers and the Tribunal from that environment operates to undermine the obligation to promote truthfulness in a witness

18.7.3.457 By giving evidence to John Tate, outside the jurisdiction and in the absence of even a video-link, Soldier 036 avoided:

i) Giving oral evidence in sight and hearing of the families of the Deceased;

ii) Questioning by the legal representatives of the families;

18.7.3.458 Important questions were not asked of this witness and important matters not pursued with the witness and in the circumstances our clients rights were not adequately safeguarded by the procedure put in place by the Tribunal. Inasmuch as the Tribunal is minded to give weight to the suggestion that this witness heard civilian gunfire on Bloody Sunday his evidence should be rejected.

Conclusion

18.7.3.459 In the first instance it is alleged that in 1972 this witness fabricated an account of hearing gunfire on Bloody Sunday in order to justify the circumstances in which Soldiers F and G used lethal force. In making this allegation we rely upon:

i) The statement of Soldier 018;

ii) Section 5 of these submissions wherein we make the case that a significant number of soldiers made statements on the 4 February 1972 which were expressly designed to corroborate and justify the use of lethal force by other soldiers. That pattern is particularly evident in relation to this incident with Soldiers J, 018, 147 and Soldier 036 all making statements about this incident on the 4 February 1972.

iii) The glaring contradictions in the accounts given by Soldiers F, G, 147 and 036 about this incident.

iv) The fact that as has been demonstrated in relation to Soldier 147 and as appears from the evidence of this witness and the evidence of Soldier 018 that it would have been impossible for them to have witnessed the incident which they describe from the inside of the APC.

18.7.3.460 Soldier 036's testimony in 2002 demonstrates that the use of lethal force by members of his Platoon on Bloody Sunday was unjustified and his testimony does not justify the decisions of Soldiers F and G to fire live rounds while on Rossville Street.

18.7.3.461 Soldier 018 made an RMP statement in 1972, although he did not give evidence to the Widgery Inquiry. He has also made a statement for this Inquiry, although again he did not give evidence.

18.7.3.462 Both accounts given by Soldier 018 are demonstrably inaccurate in significant respects, and because he has never given oral evidence, there has never been an opportunity to evaluate whether the discrepancies in his statements are born of confusion or deceit.

18.7.3.463 It is not proposed to deal with each aspect of Soldier 018's evidence but to rather to focus on the salient issues. In particular in relation to: his claims of hearing civilian gunfire; seeing a civilian gunman; his account of the firing of live rounds by Soldiers F and G; his explanation of how he came to make his RMP statement; and dealing with some aspects of his evidence which demonstrate the unreliability of his overall account.

Soldier 018's Reliability

18.7.3.464 On a general level, it is submitted that Soldier 018's account of the events of Bloody Sunday is so confused that it is questionable what weight can be attached to his description of the day. While his RMP statement is not as demonstrably confused, in part that is because of the lack of detail contained therein. The detail, provided in his second statement, serves, on its own to undermine both accounts. Moreover, as we know from his own account, that on the most crucial aspect of his evidence, his corroboration of Soldiers F and G, his account to the RMP was adapted in order to support the military case. B1491.005 paragraph 42 In those circumstances, it is questionable what reliance can be placed upon aspects of this statement supportive of the military case.

18.7.3.465 According to Soldier 018, he became separated from his colleagues at an early stage, B1491.001 paragraphs 16 to 17 yet if he was actually positioned at the location he places himself, at the north gable end of Kells Walk, then he simply could not have been alone on Rossville Street. From his location he should have been able to see: soldiers from Mortar Platoon, in the car-park and on Rossville Street: soldiers from his own Platoon at the Kells Walk Wall before they advanced up Rossville Street; soldiers from Composite Platoon, at a later stage at the Kells Walk Wall. Soldiers at all of these locations fired live rounds, yet if either of Soldier 018's accounts were to be accepted, from his vantage point not only did he not see the soldiers, he missed their firing live rounds and did not see any of the civilian casualties on Rossville Street. B1491.004 paragraph 32

18.7.3.466 His account of events behind the Rubble Barricade is also inconsistent with the evidence available to the Tribunal. On his account when soldiers first debussed the crowd was at Free Derry Corner and they then advanced to the Rubble Barricade. B1491.001 paragraphs 16 to 17 All the available photographic evidence shows that when soldiers debussed on Rossville Street, there was a large crowd of civilians at the Rubble Barricade and it is not the case that upon soldiers debussing civilians came back down Rossville Street from Free Derry Coroner, in either the numbers or the manner described by Soldier 018. The Tribunal is referred in particular to Colman Doyle's photographs EP27.6 to EP27.9.

18.7.3.467 In both statements Soldier 018 deals with an incident involving a TV camera crew coming under fire from civilian gunmen. This matter is dealt with in more detail below, but is in our submission, further evidence of the unreliability of both soldier 018's RMP and Eversheds statements.

18.7.3.468 In both statements Soldier 018 describes a woman throwing liquid at soldiers from a window of the Rossville Flats, at who he fired a baton round. No soldier describes himself as being on the receiving end of liquid/objects being thrown from the Flats at the location at which Soldier 018 identifies the window. In view of Soldier 018's general lack of reliability, it is submitted that no real weight can be attached to his account of this incident. B1491.010

Civilian Gunfire

18.7.3.469 In the account Soldier 018 gave in 1972 he speaks about coming under fire on one occasion, shortly after debussing and he also gives an account of Soldiers F and G engaging a civilian gunman. The latter incident will be dealt with separately.

18.7.3.470 According to the account given by Soldier 018 in 1972, he deployed from his Pig, south of the Kells Walk Flats and whilst at that location he was fired on by a gunman "located on the ground beside the doorway of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats". B1491.007, B1491.008 According to Soldier 018 he did not see anyone engage the gunman as he was operating from behind a crowd of people at a barricade B1491.008 and the gunman's shots fell short of his position and nearly hit a camera crew which immediately ran to cover. B1491.008

18.7.3.471 In his statement to this Tribunal Soldier 018 describes a number of different incidents of civilian gunfire. According to his Eversheds statement:

i) As they debussed he heard 3 or 4 high velocity shots. Although he could not hear were they came from he assumed they came from gunman and not from the military. The rounds he heard were not automatic. B1491 paragraph 15

ii) He took cover behind the gable end wall at the north end of Kells Walk, he saw a TV crew close by him, he heard more incoming fire, which caused the TV crew to disappear. B1491.001 paragraph 16

iii) After firing a baton round at the Rubble Barricade he noticed a group of men at the Rossville Flats side of the Barricade and then saw a gunman appear from the doorway at the corner of Block 1 of the Flats. The gunman fired 2 quick shots from an M1 carbine and moved back into the Flats. According to Soldier 018 there were no soldiers on Rossville Street at this time. B1491.002 paragraphs 25 to 26

18.7.3.472 There are clear discrepancies between the two accounts. In his 1972 statement Soldier 018 describes a single incident after debussing in which he saw the gunman at Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. In his later account, he describes three separate incidents. Firstly, he hears fire upon debussing which he "assumes" to be civilian gunfire. He then hears further incoming fire and at a later stage he sees the gunman, who, according to his first account, was there as he debussed.

18.7.3.473 In relation to his second statement, Soldier 018's first account of civilian gunfire, could, on his own account, as easily be a reference to army gunfire. The shots were high velocity rounds and Soldier 018 was unable to state where they came from. B1491 paragraph 15 Mortar Platoon had debussed prior to Anti-Tank Platoon and Lieutenant N, in particular, was involved in firing live rounds at a very early stage. This Tribunal has heard evidence about the difficulty in distinguishing between different types of fire and identifying the source of fire in the Rossville Flats area. We know that Lieutenant N and shortly thereafter soldiers from Mortar Platoon used live fire, within a short period of debussing. The shots Soldier 018 heard are as likely, if not more likely to be shots fired by the army on Bloody Sunday than civilian gunfire.

18.7.3.474 In both statements, references to civilian gunfire are linked to the description of a TV camera crew having to run for cover. B1491.008 paragraph 16 However, no TV camera crew came under fire in the circumstances described in either of Soldier 018's statements. It is submitted on that basis alone, the account in his first RMP statement of the civilian gunman, and in the second statement of incoming fire are inherently unreliable.

18.7.3.475 In both statements Soldier 018 gives an account of a civilian gunman at the doorway of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. B1491.007, B1491.008, B1491.002 paragraphs 25 to 26 The timings in both statements are significantly at variance, and while in the first statement this account is linked to the TV camera crew, in the second statement, according to Soldier 018, there is not a single soldier on Rossville Street. It is submitted that, not merely the discrepancies between the two statements, but the demonstrably inaccurate contexts in which this incident is said to have occurred means that no weight can be attached, by the Tribunal, to either account.

Soldiers F and G

18.7.3.476 Soldier 018 was one of the soldiers who in 1972 gave a statement to the RMP on the 4 February 1972, the sole purpose of which was to lend support to the accounts already given by soldiers of their use of lethal force. Again the Tribunal is referred to Section 5 of our submissions on this issue.

18.7.3.477 In particular, Soldier 018 is one of the soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon identified as having made a statement designed to support the accounts given by Soldiers F and G in relation to their firing at a window in the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.478 In 1972 Soldier 018 stated as follows:

i) An order was given to withdraw and he mounted the front vehicle positioned on Rossville Street facing south and level with Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. B1491.009

ii) From that position he saw Soldier F and Soldier G engage a gunman at a window 5th from the south corner of Block 1 on the second floor. The gunman fired 3 shots all of which went high over the vehicles. He saw Soldiers F and G fire 3 shots, all of which went through the window, he was unable to say of the gunman was ht. B1491.009

18.7.3.479 In his statement to this Tribunal, Soldier 018 again gives as account of this incident:

i) After escorting prisoners to another of Support Company's Platoons, he returned to his Pig and while in the Pig he heard 2/3 high velocity shots. "I was in an enclosed position, and therefore I cannot say where the shots came from." B1491.003 paragraph 30

ii) At the time the shots were fired, Soldiers F and G were standing to the rear of his Pig. After he heard the shots he saw both soldiers fire their rifles in the general direction of the Rossville Flats, he does not recollect how many rounds they fired but he does recollect that both fired at least once. B491.003 paragraph 30

18.7.3.480 In relation to witnessing this incident and the discrepancies between his RMP statement and his Eversheds statement Soldier 018 states:

> ". . . I was not in a position to see whether there was a gunman in the flats when the shots were fired, nor could I see that they went through the window. The RMP told me that he needed to include this to substantiate details that had been provided by my colleagues to show that when they fired, they did not hit anybody. As the time I made my statement, I was led to believe the details about the location of the gunman in the flats and the area to which fire was returned were true. I had also heard the shots being fired from my position inside the pig. I therefore agreed to include the details in my statement". B1491.5 paragraph 42

18.7.3.481 On his own admission, therefore, Soldier 018 fabricated an account of seeing a gunman and seeing the location at which Soldiers F and G fired because this information was presented to him by the RMP as accurate.

18.7.3.482 On the account he currently gives, it cannot be said that the 2/3 high velocity rounds heard by Soldier 018, before he looked out of the Pig and saw Soldiers F and G firing, were not the initial shots fired by Soldiers F and G. We know that these soldiers, between them, fired a total of 7 shots into McCrudden's window in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

18.7.3.483 In our submission, the account given to Eversheds, does not provide any corroboration for the suggestion that soldiers came under fire from the Rossville Flats as the Pigs were parked at the gable end of Block 1. Moreover, it is clear that the RMP did try at the very minimum manipulate the information provided to them by soldiers in order to lend support to the military case and to provide corroboration for individual shooters.

18.7.3.484 It is our submission that the evidence of Soldier 018 in relation to the events of the day is inherently unreliable and little or no weight can be attached to his account. In relation to his evidence about the manner in which his RMP statement was doctored, it is our submission that this evidence is consistent with, the objective evidence of what occurred on 4 February 1972. As per Section 5 the process of statement-taking on that date demonstrate a clear pattern of soldiers making statements to corroborate the shooters. Moreover in the context of the shooting by Soldiers F and G, the clear discrepancies which have emerged as the evidence of soldiers has been tested in oral examination, demonstrates that the accounts given were fabricated.

18.7.3.485 INQ 1581 was one of the drivers of the two Anti-Tank Platoon vehicles. He did not give a statement about Bloody Sunday in 1972.

18.7.3.486 In INQ 1581's statement to this Tribunal he described 1 Para's objective in entering the Bogside:

> "One thing I do remember is there being a general feeling that everyone wanted to go into the no go areas of the Bogside to break them. I have a recollection of us having to wait where we were parked up for some time for permission to go in to be sought up the chain of command, I remember someone saying "We've had to seek permission from PM", which I assumed meant the UK Prime Minister. As we did not end up going into the no go area, I presume no permission was ever received." C1581.4 paragraph 11

18.7.3.487 In his oral evidence INQ 1581 explained what he meant by no-go areas as follows:

> "Q. Who operated in the no-go areas?
> A. Irish citizens who erected them.
>
> Q. When you speak of the general feeling of breaking the no-go areas, were you thinking at all about the IRA?
> A. Yes, I would have been, in my thoughts." Day 338/5/5 to Day 338/5/9

18.7.3.488 He explained that what he meant by 1 Para breaking the no-go areas was:

> "A. To enter a no-go area.
> Q. And do, what?
> A. Stop it being a no-go area." Day 338/5/11 to Day 338/5/15

18.7.3.489 INQ 1581's account gives an insight into the mindset of 1 Para prior to their going into the Bogside on Bloody Sunday and is in our submission one of the factors which led to the loss of life on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.490 INQ 1581's does not have a clear recollection of driving the Pig into the Bogside. He did however give important evidence in relation to the visibility from a Pig:

> "Q. We know there were hatches on the driver's door and the passenger's door. Can you recall if those hatches were down when you drove into the Bogside?
> A. I cannot recall whether they were down or whether they were open, but I would have thought that as we were going into a hostile area, they would be closed.
> Q. But all of that would mean that there was quite a restricted view from the Pig; is that right?
>
> A. Yes, with the side hatch closed, my view would be forwards only.
>
> Q. Which would make spotting troublemakers from the Pig as it was moving, quite a difficult job?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. As you drove into the Bogside, do you have any recollection of seeing anyone there who was engaged in activity that would define them as a trouble-maker?
> A. No." Day 338/13/1 to Day 338/13/13

18.7.3.491 INQ 1581's evidence in relation to the limited visibility from a Pig is consistent with that of Soldier 036 B1631.5 and also Soldier 147 in his Eversheds statement B1891.006 paragraph 25.2.4 but completely undermines the oral testimony of Soldier 147 on this issue. Day 359/65/9 to Day 359/65/24

18.7.3.492 According to INQ 1581 he did not debus from his Pig on Bloody Sunday as it was his job as driver to remain with the Pig. C1581.4 paragraph 9

18.7.3.493 INQ 1581 describes incoming fire from a sniper in the Rossville Flats. According to INQ 1581's recollection a soldier stated that there was a gunman in the flats and he recollects hearing 2 cracks like rifle shots. He claims that upon hearing the shots he "closed the shutter on the front of the Pig, grabbed my weapons, opened the door and got out. I would have been on the right hand side of the Pig, with the Pig between me and what I have been told is Block 1 of the flats." C1581.4 paragraph 21 He then took cover behind the door of the Pig C1581.4 paragraph 22 He states that he concentrated in the windows of the flats and an open window attracted his attention, he failed to identify any target.

18.7.3.494 In terms of the details about the 2 shots which INQ 1581 claims to have heard:

i) He was unable to assist as to whether the shots were high or low velocity; Day 338/23/13

ii) At the time he saw the window open, he has no recollection of any other Support Company vehicle being near his vehicle; Day 338/23/23 to Day 338/24/4

iii) He did not see strike marks and he did not hear return fire. Day 338/24/5 to Day 338/24/11

18.7.3.495 INQ 1581 maintains that these two shots, were incoming fire and were the only shots he heard fired that day. His explanation for being confident that it was incoming fire was "Because I was not conscious of any soldier being close to me or any of my platoon firing." Day 338/21/22 to Day 338/21/25

18.7.3.496 The account of Soldiers F and G shooting at the Rossville Flats was put to INQ 1581 and he stated that the incident did not ring a bell with him.

Day 338/39/14 to Day 338/39/15 According to INQ 1581 he never saw any soldier engage a gunman.

18.7.3.497 INQ 1581 was the driver of one of the two Anti-Tank Platoon vehicles, as such he would have been in the drivers seat of the vehicle shown on P520, although he rejected that proposition during the course of his evidence.

18.7.3.498 Over a 100 high velocity rounds were fired by soldiers in the Bogside on Bloody Sunday, 23 of them fired from soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon, Mortar Platoon and Composite Platoon in Rossville Street, while 29 shots were fired by Mortar Platoon in the forecourt of the Rossville Flats car park.

18.7.3.499 Moreover INQ 1581's vehicle was the nearest of the two Anti-Tank Platoon vehicles to the Rossville Flats at the time F and G fired their rounds. P520 According to Soldier F he fired at his second and third targets, 5 rounds in total, from a position right behind INQ 1581's vehicle. B147F While a further 4 shots were claimed by Soldiers F and G from positions close to the second Anti-Tank Platoon vehicle.

18.7.3.500 Yet if INQ 1581's evidence is correct he never heard any of those shots and the only shots he heard were the two shots he described. Thus despite the evidence of a large number of live rounds fired by soldiers, some fired proximate to his vehicle, INQ 1581 invites the Tribunal to accept that the two shots he claims to have heard were incoming shots, because "I was not conscious of any soldier being close to me or any of my platoon firing." Day 338/21/22 to Day 338/21/25

18.7.3.501 It is submitted that INQ 1581's evidence on this issue is inherently unreliable. His account of the incoming fire is inconsistent with the accounts given by Soldiers F, G and 147 of shots coming from the Rossville Flats and is not consistent with evidence from any other soldier. Thus in our submission no weight can be attached to his account of hearing incoming fire directed at soldiers on Bloody Sunday.

David Longstaff – INQ 023

18.7.3.502 David Longstaff was a member of Anti-Tank Platoon on Bloody Sunday and claimed in a documentary made after Bloody Sunday that he fired one live round on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.503 In the event that he fired a live round it has never been accounted for. He claims that he told his Platoon Sergeant that he had fired a live round but that his Platoon Sergeant failed to pass that information on up the chain of command. He was never interviewed by the RMP and did not make a statement for the Widgery Tribunal. The first account he gave of the firing was when he was interviewed in 1994 over 20 years after the events of Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.504 Dave Longstaff claims to have fired the shot at the west side of Block 1. In the account he gave in 'A Tour of Duty' he claimed that he fired the shot at a window, X1.22.2 but in the account he gave to this Tribunal he claims to have fired the shot at a parapet. C23.7 paragraph 42

18.7.3.505 No soldier claims to have witnessed Mr. Longstaff fire that shot, although given the failure of soldier witnesses to admit to having witnessed shots which were undoubtedly fired when they were accompanying the shooters this does not particularly assist the Tribunal in assessing the truthfulness of Dave Longstaff's statement.

18.7.3.506 There is however no independent evidence to verify the shot fired. Both the circumstances in which the shot was claimed and Mr. Longstaff's evidence to the Tribunal, raise more than a suggestion that the witness was fabricating his account of having fired a shot when he gave his interview in the 'Tour of Duty' and has found himself stuck with that account ever since.

F, G and J

18.7.3.507 The more significant aspect of David Longstaff's evidence relates to his role as an observer accompanying Soldiers F, G and J. According to Dave Longstaff he was very close to F, G and J throughout the operation Day 374/87/7 to Day 374/87/13.

> "Q. . . . your job as you made your way up Rossville Street, was to observe and to keep an eye out for any threats?
> A. Yes, sir.
>
> Q. At all stages you had to be close enough so that you could communicate, in particular, with F and G.
> A. To communicate, yes" Day 374/152/14 to Day 374/152/18

18.7.3.508 Between them these soldiers account for the firing of 21 rounds on Bloody Sunday. Soldier F even on his own account is responsible for the deaths of at least Michael Kelly, William McKinney, Barney McGuigan and Patrick Doherty, while Soldier G is responsible for the death of Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney. In addition these soldiers are suspects for the shooting of John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore at the Rubble Barricade and Jim Wray in Glenfada Park North. That is without reference to any of the persons whose injuries they may have caused.

18.7.3.509 It is evident, from photographs P1119, P1121 and V48/11.35 to 11.55 that soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon were in close proximity to each other while positioned at the Kells Walk Wall and must have occupied that position for some period prior to advancing further down Rossville Street. This was at a time when members of Anti-Tank Platoon and Mortar Platoon undoubtedly fired down Rossville Street over the Rubble Barricade and when 5 young men were killed behind that Barricade. Thus when Anti-Tank Platoon were on Rossville Street, Dave Longstaff, particularly if working closely with F, G and J, could not have missed the shooting from Kells Walk Wall behind the Rubble Barricade and the persons shot and killed at that location.[59]

18.7.5.510 Moreover the evidence of James Kelly establishes that Dave Longstaff was in Glenfada Park North and was positioned at the gable end of the Glenfada Park North wall Day 145/60/4 to Day 145/60/25 and was thus undoubtedly present when Soldier F shot Barney McGuigan. Day 374/185/12 to Day 374/185/17 While this is a matter which will be dealt with more comprehensively in Sector 4, it supports our submission that Dave Longstaff was in a prime position throughout the day to witness the actions of his colleagues.

18.7.3.511 Dave Longstaff's role as observer with Soldiers F, G and J meant that he was in a key position to have witnessed the circumstances in which these soldiers fired live rounds and to have witnessed the consequences of their having fired live rounds. He was in a position, if their accounts of the events of that day were true, to have provided corroboration of their accounts and justification of the circumstances in which they fired live rounds. If their accounts were false he was in a position to assist this Tribunal to establish the truth about the actions of Soldiers F. G and J in particular and the actions of Anti-Tank Platoon on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.512 It is evident that Dave Longstaff's evidence to this Inquiry provides no corroboration of the circumstances in which his colleagues fired, nor justification for their shooting.

> "Q. And your evidence to this Inquiry is that as you made your way up Rossville Street, you did not see any threat at all to either you or your mates?
> A. I was unaware of any threats towards me and my mates from my area, sir.

[59] Although of course Dave Longstaff claims to have no memory of the Rubble Barricade, not to mind the people who were shot and killed by the soldiers whom he accompanied on Bloody Sunday. Day 374/61/5

Q. And you personally, despite the fact that as you made your way up Rossville Street, you must have been in a pretty good position to monitor what was going on around you and that was part of your job, of course?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To observe?

A. Yes, sir" Day 374/153/9 to Day 374/153/20

"you yourself did not personally hear or see anything which would have justified the shooting of any civilians?

A. In my position, no, sir." Day 374/154/4 to Day 374/154/7

18.7.3.513 Dave Longstaff's failure to provide corroboration or justification for the firing by his colleagues, who on his account were close friends, lends support to the conclusion that they fired in circumstances which were totally unjustified.

18.7.3.514 However, while unwilling to put himself in the frame by perjuring himself to this Tribunal in order to justify the circumstances in which his colleagues murdered innocent civilians, and despite his proximity to these soldiers Dave Longstaff's evidence is that:

"Q. . . . as far as the soldiers are concerned, you did not see them doing anything; you did not see them firing any shots at all?

A. I did not see them fire shots, sir.

Q. Whether it is on Rossville Street or whether it is in Glenfada Park North.

A. Correct, sir.

Q. You are quite sure about that?

A. Yes, sir." Day 374/155/7 to Day 374/155/15

18.7.3.515 Thus while positioned sufficiently close to soldiers who fired 21 rounds between them, and this without referring to the fact that there was more firing by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon, Dave Longstaff has sought to distance himself totally from the circumstances in which they fired live rounds. He is unwilling to provide corroboration for the circumstances in which Soldiers F, G and J fired but is also unwilling to assist the Tribunal to establish the truth about the circumstances in which they fired.

18.7.3.516 At the conclusion of his interview in 'A Tour of Duty' he stated: "I am not prepared to say yea, nay, whatever, there were some good men there and they were not all cowboys, gun-happy, they were professional soldiers." He also referred to the fact that "We may have had one or two rotten eggs" or "mis-errors of judgment". Day 374/123/6 to Day 374/123/17

18.7.3.517 However in his evidence to this Inquiry he has been unwilling to explain those references beyond stating that Soldiers H and 027 were the soldiers to whom he was referring as "cowboys".

18.7.3.518 The truth of the matter is that Dave Longstaff's evidence to this Tribunal has been riddled with lies and deceit. As he acknowledged himself, he was prepared in 1972 to lie about the circumstances in which he claimed to have arrested George Roberts and James Kelly. He was prepared to go to Fort George and stand next to these to men, lying about the circumstances of their arrest and lying about the details completed in the arrest form. Day 374/111/19 to Day 374/112/10 and Day 374/121/15 to Day 374/122/3 [60]

18.7.3.519 It seems likely that he was prepared in 1994 to lie in a television interview about whether he fired a live round on Bloody Sunday and has persisted with that lie to this Tribunal.

[60] Dave Longstaff's role in relation to the arrests will be dealt with in more detail in sector 4. The Tribunal is also referred to Chapter x on Arrests

18.7.3.520 While he has been unwilling to go so far as to perjure himself in order to provide justification for the circumstances in which his colleagues fired live rounds, there is credible evidence that as a member of Anti-Tank Platoon he was present when his colleagues fired live rounds both in Rossville Street and Glenfada Park North.

18.7.3.521 Dave Longstaff demonstrated his willingness to lie about the events of Bloody Sunday in 1972 and 1994 and it is submitted that he has lied to this Tribunal when he states that he never saw a single soldier from Anti-Tank Platoon fire live rounds and never saw a single casualty consequent upon those live rounds.

18.7.3.522 As with the rest of his colleagues Dave Longstaff has sought to hide from this Tribunal the truth about his conduct and the conduct of his colleagues on Bloody Sunday and in particular his role as an eye-witness to murder.

18.7.3.523 INQ 1237 did not make a statement about the events of Bloody Sunday in 1972 and did not give evidence at the Widgery Inquiry. The first statement ever made by him in relation to the events of Bloody Sunday is dated May 2000.

18.7.3.524 The witness gives a very detailed account both about the build-up to Bloody Sunday and the events of that day. That said there are clear inaccuracies in his statement and during the course of his evidence he was unwilling to shift his position even when shown photographs or evidence which showed that he was demonstrably wrong.

Actions of the crowd when Anti-Tank Platoon debussed

18.7.3.525 In relation to the initial events upon Anti-Tank Platoon debussing INQ 1237's evidence was to the effect that upon debussing Anti-Tank Platoon turned to "face an angry and hostile crowd" of between 600 and 1,500.C1237.5 paragraph 39 and C1237.5 paragraph 44 The crowd was throwing a hail of missiles including stones, bricks, bottles, concrete and anything they could get their hands upon. C1237.5 paragraph 45 He has no recollection of a Rubble Barricade. C1237.5 paragraph 39 INQ 1237 also claims that more than one petrol bomb was thrown and that he had a specific recollection of seeing a petrol bomb go up in flames. C1237.5 paragraph 45

18.7.3.526 INQ 1237 was questioned in detail by counsel for the Tribunal in relation to what happened as Anti-Tank Platoon debussed. Video 48 and EP28.5, P1116, P203, EP 24.1, P1016, EP27.6, EP27.7, EP27.8, which depict events as soldiers from 1 Para enter the Bogside and debussed from their vehicles were shown to the witness, following which it was pointed out to the witness that:

> "The photographs tend to suggest that there were considerably less than 600 to 1,500 people in that area. Do you think that the passage of time might have caused you to overestimate the number of people that you saw when you de-bussed on that day? A. Um, no, sir." Day 366/14/16 to Day 366/14/21

18.7.3.527 INQ 1237 was also specifically directed to EP27.8:

> "Q. . . . in the photograph in the left-hand side of the screen, you can see the wasteground is clear of individuals. Does that raise any doubt in your mind about what you were confronted with when you de-bussed? A. No, sir." Day 366/14/25 to Day 366/15/6

18.7.3.528 INQ 1237 was also shown P256, P203, EP33.7 which are photographs of arrests:

> "none of these photographs show the burst of flames from petrol bombs that you have described in your statement. They also – and the photograph we have on the screen is an example – suggest that fellow soldiers from Support

Coy appeared to be willing to move closer to the rubble barricade.

Given that, does that raise any doubt in your mind that petrol bombs were thrown that day? A. No, sir." Day 366/16/6 to Day 366/16/15

18.7.3.529 Throughout his evidence in relation to the initial stages of the day, after 1 Para had entered the Bogside and despite the large body of objective evidence which completely undermined his account of events INQ 1237 was unwilling to concede the possibility that he may have been mistaken about the events of the day. Whether his belief in his own account is genuine or otherwise, it is clear that his evidence in relation to these matters is completely unreliable.

Soldiers Firing down Rossville Street

18.7.3.530 INQ 1237 has no recollection of the Rubble Barricade, he also has no recollection of the Kells Walk Wall, rather his recollection is that immediately upon debussing a crowd of 6-8 soldiers some lying, others kneeling positioned themselves in a rough line facing the crowd and fired between 30-40 shots. These included Soldiers F, G and J. C1237.6 paragraph 48 Up until this point he had not heard any civilian gunfire. C1237.6 paragraph 47

18.7.3.531 INQ 1237 specifically asserts that these soldiers fired between 30-40 shots down Rossville Street during which time, he never saw any civilian gunmen, he never heard any incoming fire and he never saw anyone wounded or killed as a result of that shooting. C1237.6 paragraph 51

18.7.3.532 While INQ 1237 is of the view that his colleagues were justified in firing he acknowledges that he was unable to see any person engaged in action which would have justified the use of lethal force.

18.7.3.533 INQ 1237 is undoubtedly correct in that more shots were fired over the Rubble Barricade than has been admitted. Moreover he has correctly identified 2 of the persons who fired over the Rubble Barricade and it is probable that Soldier G also fired shots while at that location. His account provides some corroboration for the account given by Soldier 027. While we accept that neither account can be completely relied upon it is our submission that both accounts are closer to the truth than the evidence given by other soldiers from this Platoon to this extent. More shots were fired over the Rubble Barricade than have been admitted by Anti-Tank Platoon, those shots were fired at unarmed civilians and resulted in the deaths of Michael Kelly, Michael McDaid, John Young, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore all of whom were unarmed.

18.7.3.534 The inaccuracies in terms of the location at which INQ 1237 places these soldiers, his description of the crowd and his failure to see any civilians fall lessens the weight which can be placed upon this witnesses account.

Glenfada Park North

18.7.3.535 INQ 1237 maintains that Anti-Tank Platoon were then ordered to seal off an area to the right, although throughout his evidence he rejected the contention that this area was Glenfada Park North. While this topic will be addressed in more detail in Sector 4, it is submitted that to this extent his evidence is consistent with the video evidence at V48/11.35 to 11.55 in that Anti-Tank Platoon clearly did move, as a Platoon to the right and off Rossville Street.

18.7.3.536 INQ 1237's confrontation with a priest would suggest that contrary to his evidence he was involved in the arrests in Glenfada Park North.

18.7.3.537 INQ 1237 knew Soldier 027 and appears to have a clear recollection of him. He stated that his view of Soldier 027's document was that:

"he is probably being naïve and has exaggerated what he remembers. That would be consistent with his personality. Soldier 027 was always a romanticist and could get carried away. He was a nice lad but did not belong in the army."
C1237.12 paragraph 78

18.7.3.538 It is noteworthy that INQ 1237 uses the term exaggerated rather than lied. It is our contention that INQ 1237's assessment of Soldier 027 is entirely accurate. There is no doubt that Soldier 027 exaggerated incidents, but there is also little doubt that there was more than a grain of truth in the accounts he gave. While his account of the assaults on two Catholics in Belfast was undoubtedly exaggerated, it was nonetheless true that soldiers from 1 Para brutalised two Catholic men and then left them to be murdered by Loyalists in the Shankill Road. To similar effect Soldier 027 may have exaggerated his account of the events of Bloody Sunday but it is undoubtedly true that his colleagues were engaged in the deliberate murder of unarmed civilians.

18.7.3.539 INQ 1237's evidence is also important in that he confirms that Soldier 027 kept a daily diary while he was in the regiment. Thus Soldier 027's evidence that he had a contemporaneous account of events is true. Significantly INQ 1237 was never challenged about this.

18.7.3.540 It is clear that this witness has some recollection of the events of the day and the individuals involved, albeit confused, however there is a clear difficulty in discerning those elements of his evidence which can be relied upon and those which cannot. It is our contention that, while confused this witnesses evidence is accurate in some respects. We accept that not much weight can be placed upon his evidence because of his demonstrable unreliability on some issues and his unwillingness to accept the errors in his account. However where his evidence tends to support other objective evidence and is not expressly contradicted by the objectively discernible facts some weight must be given to his account. His evidence supports the civilian evidence that there was a great deal more firing over the Rubble Barricade than has been admitted. It also demonstrates that there was no justification for this firing.

18.7.3.541 INQ 635 did not give an RMP statement in 1972 nor did he give evidence to Lord Widgery. He has however been identified by 2 soldiers from 1 Para as having fired live rounds on Bloody Sunday. Soldier 027 in his 1975 statement maintained that INQ 635 fired live rounds from the Kells Walk Wall over the Rubble Barricade, B1565.006 he also suggested that INQ 635 had extra ammunition and fired 10 dum dum bullets into the crowd. B1565.008 INQ 2003 maintained that INQ 635 had admitted shooting someone in Glenfada Park North. X.1.41.27 (A - B)

18.7.3.542 Soldier 027 now states that with the passage of time he has no recollection of INQ 635 firing from the Kells Walk Wall, however he stands over the accuracy of his earlier statement. INQ 2003 states that INQ 635 never made such an admission.

18.7.3.543 INQ 635 denies firing from the Kells Walk Wall Day 352/18/23. He denies having had access to a private supply of ammunition. Day 352/22/9 to Day 352/22/23. He also denies ever having stated that he shot someone in Glenfada Park North. Day 352/26/6 to Day 352/26/12

i) In his statement to this Inquiry he stated that he came under fire as he debussed C635.3 paragraph 20 however in his oral evidence he stated that he had no recollection of having heard shots but that because he saw the Rubble Barricade and everyone else took cover he made the assumption that they were under fire. Day 352/5/5 to Day 352/5/23

ii) He states that while positioned behind Kells Walk Wall he saw two and possibly three men with weapons. These men moved out from the south gable end wall of Glenfada Park North he recollects "seeing clearly the wooden stocks of two weapons. I am absolutely certain it was weapons with wooden stocks that they were carrying." C635.3 paragraph 21 In his oral testimony he remained adamant that the wooden stocks were weapons not sticks and that the behaviour of the men was obvious to all watching or "blatant" as he described it. Day 352/7/15 to Day 352/7/19, Day 352/9/3 to Day 352/9/8 He did not accept that there were as many men behind the Kells Walk Wall as are shown on V48/11.35 to 11.55. Day 352/85/25 to Day 352/86/2

iii) He did not see the men fire shots, he did not see anyone shoot at the men and he did not see the men again after he took cover.

iv) INQ 635 does not recollect seeing anyone with a pistol, petrol bomb or nail bomb behind the Rubble Barricade, nor has he any recollection of fire coming from either the Rossville Flats or the Rubble Barricade, or petrol bombs or nail bombs being thrown from those locations. Day 352/12/13 to Day 352/12/15, Day 352/13/2 to Day 352/13/8

v) "The next thing I remember is that high velocity shots were fired towards the barricade. I do not know how many rounds were fired. The shots were coming from one or more of the soldiers to my right at the small wall. I do not know if more than one soldier fired shots towards the barricade." C635.4 paragraph 28

vi) He did not see anyone fall as a result of the shooting over the Rubble Barricade.

vii) In his statement to this Inquiry he states that the next thing he recollects is a Ceasefire order, C635.4 paragraph 31 however his oral evidence to the Inquiry was to the effect that he is no longer clear about that matter and he is now uncertain as to whether he heard that on the day or saw it on television. Day 352/2/2 viii) INQ 635 then has a recollection of being in a car park or courtyard, he cannot explain how he got there as he believes that he never moved further forward than Kells Walk Wall, but he states that no shots were fired in the car park area and that he escorted over 20 prisoners back to the holding area. C635.5 INQ 635 was shown the portion of V48/11.35 to 11.55 which shows Anti-Tank Platoon advancing forward from Kells Walk Wall and was unable to assist the Tribunal.

ix) INQ 635 had his photograph taken with three arrested persons,[61] two of whom were arrested in Glenfada Park North. INQ 635 denied having arrested any of the prisoners – none of whom he had seen do anything illegal. Day 352/34/25 to Day 352/35/6 INQ 635 denied having advanced forward of the Kells Walk Wall and stated that he had no recollection of the circumstances in which he signed arrest forms, although he accepted that the signature at the bottom of each of the arrest forms was his. Day 352/84/1 to Day 352/84/18

Gunmen behind the Barricade

18.7.3.545 According to INQ 635 the only conduct witnessed by him which might have justified the use of lethal force by soldiers from 1 Para was the actions of the two alleged gunmen behind the Rubble Barricade. He saw no further gunmen, he saw no bombers, he heard no incoming fire and he heard no explosions.

18.7.3.546 As INQ 635 accepted during the course of his testimony, the conduct of the two men, whom he describes as being armed and walking from Glenfada Park North to the Rossville Flats, was strange behaviour from armed men. Day 352/9/3 to Day 352/9/8

18.7.3.547 If INQ 635 is to be believed two or three armed men decided to move from the shelter and protection of Glenfada Park North and walk, behind the Rubble Barricade towards the Rossville Flats, in full view of over 20 armed soldiers.[62] They made no apparent attempt to take cover and neither did they appear to be in a particular hurry:

> "They were walking towards the flats. Not walking, but they were – at a reasonable pace they were moving." Day 352/62/25 to Day 352/63/2

18.7.3.548 These men did not apparently engage in any offensive action, they did not take up firing positions. Day 352/62/17 to Day 352/62/24.

18.7.3.549 INQ 635's conduct with regard to these gunmen was also bizarre, he never shouted a warning to his colleagues, taking the view that there was no need for him to shout a warning because these men were visible to all and he did not engage the gunmen. Day 352/63/15 to Day 352/63/24

18.7.3.550 Despite the fact that the conduct of these men was so blatant no other soldier from either Anti-Tank Platoon or Mortar Platoon, with the possible exception of Soldier H, observed them. Although Soldier H's gunmen were also carrying rifles or machine guns, in contrast to INQ 635's gunmen Soldier H's gunmen fired at soldiers and were engaged by soldiers behind the Kells Walk Wall. B238E-G As we know no soldier from Anti-Tank Platoon positioned behind the Kells Walk Wall claims to have engaged gunmen and Soldier H can no longer recollect these gunmen, although of course he still maintains that what he said in 1972 was correct. Day 377/29/1 to Day 377/29/8

18.7.3.551 If INQ 635's description of the actions of the gunmen and his justification for not warning his colleagues about the gunmen is to be accepted then other soldiers should be in a position to corroborate his account of events. Their failure to do so entirely undermines INQ 635's credibility on this issue.

[62] This incident is alleged to have occurred as Anti-Tank Platoon comprising 17 men reached the Kells

18.7.3.552 INQ 635 accepted that the only part of the weapons he saw were the wooden stocks but rejected the possibility that he might have been mistaken. Day 352/7/7 to Day 352/7/19

18.7.3.553 It is submitted that INQ 635 is at best mistaken as regards his observation of gunmen behind the Rubble Barricade and at worst has chosen to lie about observing gunmen in the vain hope that it may in some way assist the army case.

Arrests

18.7.3.554 INQ 635 describes going into a car park but rejects the possibility that it was Glenfada Park North. He does accept however that he escorted prisoners[63] and that at some latter date he was photographed with three prisoners and signed statements alleging that he had witnessed them being engaged in unlawful behaviour in Rossville Street. Day 352/34/25 to Day 352/35/6

18.7.3.555 INQ 635 sought throughout his evidence to minimise his involvement in the arrest of these men. He denied being in Glenfada Park North, while he accepts that he was in a car-park, in effect denying that he could have conducted arrests. He accepted that he had been photographed with the three arrested men, although this could not seriously have been denied, but nonetheless sought to distance himself from the arrest process by stating that the writing on the statements was not his. Day 352/36/16 to Day 352/36/17 Once the original statements were produced he accepted that it was his signature at the bottom although he failed to advance any explanation for the circumstances in which he had signed the arrest forms. Day 352/84/16 to Day 352/84/18

18.7.3.556 Consistently with virtually all soldiers involved in arrests, INQ 635 cannot explain why he was willing to be photographed and sign statements making allegations of unlawful behaviour against civilians in respect of whom he had no evidence that they had engaged in illegal activity. His willingness to make these statements and involve himself in, what was in effect, a conspiracy to pervert the course of justice by making false allegations against innocent civilians, demonstrates his willingness to participate in unlawful and dishonest conduct in 1972. His reluctance to acknowledge or accept any responsibility for this behaviour in 2003 further undermines his credibility before this Tribunal.

18.7.3.557 It is submitted that inasmuch as INQ 635's statement provides a measure of justification for the firing by soldiers from Kells Walk Wall over the Rubble Barricade his evidence must be rejected as either mistaken or dishonest. In respect of the allegations made by INQ 2003 and Soldier 027 against INQ 635 we do not seek to advance the case that there is sufficient evidence before the Tribunal to justify a finding that INQ 635 was himself involved in the use of lethal force on Bloody Sunday. However, as with other soldiers from his Platoon, we would contend that INQ 635 in fact witnessed the unlawful use of lethal force and failed to come forward either in 1972 or in 2003 to tell the truth about the events of Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.558 Soldier 027 was Lieutenant 119's radio-operator on Bloody Sunday. His evidence is a matter of considerable controversy because he gives a damning account of the conduct of his colleagues in Anti-Tank Platoon on Bloody Sunday. On Soldier 027's account of events, soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon went into the Bogside, dangerously over-excited and having been briefed by Lieutenant 119 that "we want some kills tomorrow". B1565.014.1 He accuses unidentified members of his Platoon,[64] and Soldier F, of having fired live rounds over the Rubble Barricade in circumstances where the crowd behind the Rubble Barricade were unarmed, and thus accuses them of murder.

18.7.3.559 Soldier 027's allegation against Lieutenant 119 has been expressly denied by Lieutenant 119, and has also been denied by other members of Anti-Tank Platoon who attended the briefing. Given Soldier F's claimed memory loss Soldier F has been unable to recollect events as opposed to denying the matters put. Day 375/86/19 to Day 375/90/15

18.7.3.560 Those acting on behalf of Lieutenant 119, Soldier F and other members of Anti-Tank Platoon, have forcibly challenged Soldier 027's credibility. Serious questions have been raised about Soldier 027's credibility. While he has made other very serious accusations, against members of Anti-Tank Platoon, some have been shown to be exaggerated. Issues have also been raised about the financial benefits he has sought in connection with appearing before this Tribunal. We acknowledge that the Tribunal's assessment of his evidence must give due weight to those issues which tend to undermine his credibility and we have no doubt those issues will be fulsomely addressed in the submissions made on behalf of those representing Soldier F and Lieutenant 119.

18.7.3.561 As has been set out above, the accounts of Lieutenant 119, Soldier F and other soldiers of Anti-Tank Platoon are riddled with inconsistencies and lies. Ultimately, these accounts fail entirely to explain how John Young, Michael McDaid or William Nash met their deaths, and the justification advanced for the killing of Michael Kelly is, in our submission demonstrably untrue. The reality is, that while the account given by Soldier 027 has undoubtedly been exaggerated it is probably as close to the truth as this Tribunal has heard from any soldier in Anti-Tank Platoon.

[64] INQ 635 and Soldier G were two of the soldiers identified by Soldier 027 as having fired live rounds over the Rubble Barricade on Bloody Sunday. In relation to INQ 635 he states that "I am not confident enough in my memory to state in any clear way that the particular soldier was firing." Day 246/69/11 to Day 246/69/13 In relation to Soldier G while he can no longer specifically recall Soldier G firing, he believes it is probable that he did so. B1565.056 paragraph 177.7

18.7.3.562 In these submission while not seeking to dismiss in any way the credibility issues which fall to be determined ultimately by the Tribunal, we would point the Tribunal to those factors which tend to suggest that, while Soldier 027 was a witness prone to exaggeration, there is some measure of truth in his accounts.

18.7.3.563 The starting-point for Soldier 027's evidence is the statement made by him in 1975 which sets out the serious allegations made by him against his colleagues in Anti-Tank Platoon, some of which he no longer stands over.

18.7.3.564 Soldier 027 claims his 1975 account was based upon a diary he kept while in the army. INQ 1237 has confirmed to this Tribunal that Soldier 027 did keep such a diary. C1237.12 paragraph 77 Sometime in 1975 Soldier 027 drafted a document in statement form which sets out his recollections of various events, including Bloody Sunday. In that account he deals with the shooting over the Rubble Barricade and states that when they reached the Kells Walk Wall:

> "lance corporal F went into the kneeling position and fired at the centre of the crowd . . .Soldier G immediately jumped down beside him and also opened fire. Just beyond the wall on the pavement INQ 635 also commenced firing. Looking at the centre of the barricade I saw two bodies fall. I raised my rifle and aimed but on tracking across the people in front of me could see women and children although the majority were men, all wildly shouting, but could see no one with a weapon, so I lowered my rifle. I can best describe my feelings as amazed . . . I remember thinking looking at my friends who had know grown to half a dozen in a line side-by-side, do they know something I don't know? What are they firing at? Opposite us I could see members of machine-guns[65] helmeted and lack faced in a standing position also pumping off rounds at quite a rapid rate. In the initial 30 seconds I would say that a 100 rounds were fired at the crowd. A thing which struck me was the time which elapsed from the commencement of firing to the time when the people in the crowd began to realise what was happening. Several people had dropped, bodies were being dragged away,. men were lying on their faces crawling along the pavement in front of Rossville Flats in an effort to get away. After an eternity of timeless moments and sights Lodens voice came on the radio and ordered a ceasefire. I knew the blokes were getting in while the going was good as people with gleeful expressions were running up from the rear and elbowing their way through to get into the firing line. I shouted the order 'cease-fire' and ran along the line tapping them on their shoulders. The firing slacked and the crowd dispersed." B1565.014.4 – B1565.014.5

18.7.3.565 In his statement to this Tribunal, Soldier 027 has stood over his account in relation to Soldier F. B1565.056 paragraph 177.6 In relation to Soldier G he has stated that he cannot specifically recall him firing, but as Soldiers F and G also worked closely together he believes that it is likely. B1565.056 paragraph 177.7 In relation to INQ 635 he states that "I am not confident enough in my memory to state in any clear way that the particular soldier was firing." Day 246/69/11 to Day 246/69/13

[65] Soldier 027 has since acknowledged that references to Machine-Gun Platoon should actually be a reference to Mortar Platoon.

18.7.3.566 He believes that his claim of 100 rounds in 30 seconds is on the high side and instead gives a description of "continuous and sustained firing over a period of several minutes." B1565.056 paragraph 177.8

18.7.3.567 He asserts that "it has always been my clear view . . . Lance Corporal F and Soldier G initiated what happened on that day, as far as my platoons involvement was concerned." B1565.057 Or as he stated in oral evidence to this Inquiry "if there was an opportunity to fire their weapons, they were in a mood to exploit that opportunity." Day 246/70/10 to Day 246/70/11

18.7.3.568 He states that he saw nothing behind the Rubble Barricade which could have justified the firing over the Rubble Barricade. Day 246/70/22 to Day 246/71/9

18.7.3.569 Soldier 027's credibility was undoubtedly challenged on behalf of Lieutenant 119 and Soldier F. However it was never put to Soldier 027 that he was lying when he gave an account of Soldier F and other soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon engaging in sustained and continuous firing over the Rubble Barricade, at a time when there were no identifiable targets at the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.3.570 Soldier 027's 1975 statement also describes a brutal assault on two Catholic men which he claimed occurred in February 1972, after Bloody Sunday. That incident is addressed in some more detail in Sector 4. B1565.014.11, B1565.014.12, B1565.014.13 This incident was also described by INQ 1243 in a Praxis interview, although he now denies it. C1243.63, C1243.64

18.7.3.571 This Inquiry has received statements from Francis Creagh AC146.1 to AC146.17 and Raymond Muldoon AM496.1 to AM496.4 whose evidence about an attack on them by soldiers is reported in the Irish News report dated 4th February 1972 at L152 and appears very similar to the incidents described by Soldier 027 and INQ 1243.

18.7.3.572 When Mr Creagh was shown the account of the incident given by Soldier 027 he said

> "it is entirely possible that this diary describes the actual incident that Raymond and I were involved in, albeit that no-one was castrated. My impression at the time was that the soldiers were trying to beat us up without marking us. They were going to leave that to the people in Shankill Road. If there was no similar incident that week in Belfast, then I am pretty sure that this diary refers to what happened to us." AC146.4 paragraph 24.

18.7.3.573 Thus an assault described by Soldier 027, albeit in exaggerated terms, was corroborated independently by INQ 1243, although he now seeks to deny this. More significantly, it is corroborated in relation to significant details by the two victims and it was an assault in respect of which the Ministry of Defence made a payment of compensation. Soldier 027's account of this incident and its independent verification lend support to the credibility of this witness, albeit, the Tribunal can not ignore his tendency towards hyperbole and exaggeration.

18.7.3.574 In his 1975 statement Soldier 027 also claimed that when parked behind the Rossville Flats a civilian got in "a P.R. man, and came out with the profound statement "you will need some public relations work around here after this". We all laughed, feeling very pleased with ourselves." B1565.014.8 Soldier 028, who was in the area of the Support Company Pigs after the operation was over, who was in civilian clothes and who was the Unit Press Officer for the 22nd LADR was asked about this. While he stated that he had no recollection of this, he did not deny that it had occurred. Day 356/78/16 to Day 356/79/2 It would be our contention that, contrary to the evidence of Soldier 028, this is precisely the type of thing he would have said on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.3.575 When assessing Soldier 027's account, the Tribunal should also have regard to the statements made by Soldier 027 in 1972, albeit he no longer seeks to stand over these accounts.

18.7.3.576 Soldier 027 made statements in 1972 to the RMP and to the Treasury Solicitor. Given the allegations he now makes, the contents of those statements, inasmuch as they relate to Soldier 027's account of firing by soldiers over the Rubble Barricade are not with out significance:

i) Soldier 027 states that upon arriving at the Kells Walk Wall someone shouted 'sniper' and "almost immediately members of my platoon fired at the barricade I saw several strikes at the Barricade". B1565.082, B1565.083

ii) His RMP statement was made on the 5th February 1972. In this statement he claimed that Soldier F fired live rounds over the Rubble Barricade. B1565.083

iii) It also seems apparent from this statement that Soldier F and 4/5 other soldiers were firing from behind the Kells Walk Wall, as he states "Taking shelter behind the wall at the time were Soldier F and four or five others but I cannot say precisely who they were. The target they appeared to engage". B1565.083

iv) The target engaged was a "male civilian who I believe was carrying a firearm possibly a rifle. I saw him fall almost immediately." B1565.083

v) He also saw two men of the machine platoon, in fact Mortar Platoon, in position at the North East corner of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats who also "appeared to be firing at targets located behind the centre section of the barricade." B1565.083

vi) There came a shout of "cease fire", following which Soldiers E, F, G and H went to Glenfada Park North. B1565.083

18.7.3.577 Soldier 027 also gave a statement to the Treasury Solicitor, and stated as follows:

i) At the initial stages he saw a solid block of civilians at the barricade and did not see anyone with a weapon. He heard the shout sniper and then saw "'F' and others open fire in the direction of the barricade." B1656.086 paragraph 3

ii) He identified one man who "had something in his hands which appeared to me to be a weapon." He was shot and killed by another soldier. B1656.086 paragraph 3

iii) He also saw a "group of our men" who were standing around a Pig positioned at the corner of Block 1, he remembers seeing "SLRs firing. By this time the crowd on the other side of the barricade were running away." B1656.086 paragraph 3

iv) He saw shots from his troops striking the "centre of the barricade" and "did not see any other civilians with weapons." B1656.086 paragraph 3

18.7.3.578 There are a number of very significant issues arising from the accounts given by Soldier 027 in 1972.

i) On his RMP account "immediately" upon arriving at the Kells Walk Wall, a number of members of his Platoon commenced firing at the Rubble Barricade. That number appears to comprise Soldier F and 4 or 5 more soldiers, suggesting that 5 or 6 soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon, were firing at the Rubble Barricade. Thus Soldier 027 on the 5th February 1972 accounted for more soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon firing live rounds over the Rubble Barricade than have ever admitted firing. B1565.083

ii) The date of his RMP statement is significant in that on 5th February 1972, when Soldier F had yet to admit firing live rounds, Soldier 027's RMP statement had identified him as firing more than one live round over the Rubble Barricade. B1565.083 It also appears to be the first account given by anyone of Soldier F firing live rounds over the Rubble

Barricade. The statement to the Treasury Solicitor also suggests that Soldier F fired more than his admitted single round. B1656.086 paragraph 3

iii) Soldier 027's identification of the target is in both statements equivocal, moreover, no soldier from Anti-Tank Platoon claims to have shot a man with a rifle behind the Rubble Barricade. B1565.083, B1656.086 paragraph 3

iv) Soldier 027's RMP statement appears to identify Soldier U and another Soldier from Mortar Platoon positioned at the North West corner of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats, firing at the centre of the barricade. It suggests that Soldier U fired more rounds than he admitted firing. Both statements also suggest that unidentified soldier/s from Mortar Platoon fired live rounds over the Rubble Barricade. B1565.083, B1656.086 paragraph 3

v) Soldier 027's 1972 account suggests that Soldiers E, F, G and H went into Glenfada Park North after and in breach of a cease-fire order. B1565.083

18.7.3.579 Thus even in 1972 Soldier 027's account of events undermined the case been made then and now by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon. It suggested that: Soldier F had fired live rounds that he had not admitted; other soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon and Mortar Platoon had fired live rounds in circumstances which were not admitted; andfar more live rounds were fired over the Rubble Barricade than was being admitted by his colleagues.

18.7.3.580 Soldier 027 has always claimed that when he gave his account to the lawyer from the Treasury Solicitor the lawyer said "We can't have that can we Private? That makes it sound as if shots were being fired into the crowd". B1565.053 In fact Soldier 027's RMP statement does suggest that large numbers of rounds were being fired in the direction of a crowd at the Rubble Barricade and his account at one stage appears to describe firing at a "fleeing" crowd. B1656.086 paragraph 3

18.7.3.581 Soldier 027 has undoubtedly demonstrated a tendency to exaggerate. Nonetheless there is a degree of consistency between the accounts given by Soldier 027 in 1972 and today:

i) He has consistently asserted that Soldier F fired live rounds over the Rubble Barricade, his first statement to that effect coming at a stage when Soldier F had failed to make such an admission and had not been identified as firing by his other colleagues.

ii) He has consistently asserted that more rounds were fired over the Rubble Barricade than have been acknowledged by Anti-Tank Platoon.

iii) He has consistently asserted that soldiers had access to extra ammunition and were thus able to hide the fact that they had fired so many rounds, or claim not to have fired any rounds.

iv) He has consistently asserted that more soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon fired live rounds than has been admitted.

18.7.3.582 What is striking is that, independently of Soldier 027, the evidence before this Tribunal suggests that there is a core of truth to his allegations.

i) Soldier F did fire, at least one live round over the Rubble Barricade.

ii) Given the numbers killed behind the Rubble Barricade it is beyond dispute that more rounds were fired over the Rubble barricade by soldiers than have been admitted.

iii) The civilian evidence, particularly about the extent of the shooting after Michael Kelly was killed also suggests that more rounds were fired over the Rubble Barricade than has ever been acknowledged.

iv) If more rounds were fired over the Rubble Barricade, than is admitted, and given the number of rounds undoubtedly fired by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon in other locations, the availability of extra ammunition must be a real probability, particularly given the absence of any meaningful ammunitions check.

v) The availability of extra ammunition inevitably raises the question of soldiers firing who have not admitted firing.

18.7.3.583 While Soldier 027's testimony has been undermined by his own tendency to exaggerate, by the changes he has made in the accounts given, and by the questions raised about the financial benefits he may seek to gain. Nonetheless the essential elements of Soldier 027's account are true:

i) Soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon were dangerously hyped-up when they entered the Bogside.

ii) Soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon, including Soldier F, fired over the Rubble Barricade, without justification, at an unarmed crowd of civilians, murdering Michael Kelly and probably one or more of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash.

iii) The firing by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon over the Rubble Barricade was "continuous and sustained firing over a period of several minutes" B1565.056 paragraph 177.8 and was without justification.

18.7.3.584 These essentials have been known by the soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon over the last 32 + years and all have engaged in a conspiracy of silence, designed to prevent this Tribunal from ever establishing the circumstances of the shooting of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash. Whilst Soldier 027 in his account may be the victim of exaggeration and hyperbole, his colleagues in Anti-Tank Platoon are guilty of murder.

18.7.4 Composite Platoon

Introduction and Summary of Submissions

18.7.4.1 Composite Platoon also known as Guinness Force was drawn mainly from H.Q. Company. The 1972 January Edition of Pegasus, described the company in the following terms:

> "Guinness Force is the nickname given to Admin Company, when it turns out as a rifle company. This stalwart body consisting of quarter master staff, orderly room clerks, pay clerks, bandsmen, off duty dog handlers, spare drummers and not infrequently volunteer drivers and signallers from command company was first formed during severe rioting in Bligh's Lane, Londonderry, in July this year (sic)". (See R24).

18.7.4.2 They were largely comprised of the most seasoned and experienced NCO's in the regiment. On Day 304 Edwin Glasgow QC, informed the Tribunal that of the forty six members of HQ Company who had served in the Composite Platoon only twelve occupied the rank of Private and there was a high disproportion of NCOs to Private soldiers Day 304/9/8 to Day 304/9/22.

18.7.4.3 The Composite Platoon consisted of 36 men and travelled in two Bedford 4 tonne soft skinned lorries. Each lorry comprised one half platoon. The first lorry comprised the half platoon known as Call Sign 71, commanded by Captain 200 who was in overall command of the unit and also two Colour Sergeants, INQ 147 and INQ 1318. Call Sign 71 debussed in the lee of the buildings at the north end of Rossville Street on the eastern side of the road. The second lorry contained the other half platoon known as Call Sign 71 Alpha, commanded by Colour Sergeant 002. Call Sign 71 Alpha debussed immediately behind the first lorry at the corner of Rossville Street and William Street. The ABC footage at V/48/12.43-12.53 shows Composite Platoon's position when they debussed.

18.7.4.4 Upon debussing Captain 200 sought advice from Major Loden in respect of how his platoon should be deployed. He was instructed to "Go and assist the Mortar Platoon" B2002 at E. Whilst Captain 200 was receiving his orders, Composite Platoon remained positioned at the lorries and buildings at that location and were "leapfrogged" by Anti-Tank platoon who advanced south to Kells Walk. 200 then deployed his troops away from the buildings. Call Sign 71 remained under his direct command. They deployed east to assist the Mortar Platoon in Sector 2 and then advanced across Eden Place, along the rear of the houses of Chamberlain Street and finally ended up near Block1.

18.7.4.5 A section of Call Sign 71 Alpha, including Soldiers K, L and M advanced south under the command of Colour Sergeant 002 and took up a position at the low wall at Kells Walk which had previously been occupied by the members of Anti-Tank platoon. A photograph of these soldiers can be found at EP2/8 at a stage where they were joined by Colonel Wilford.

18.7.4.6 Between them Soldiers K, L and M murdered Kevin McElhinney. It is very likely that Sergeant K fired the fatal shot. This murder was carried out in front of a significant number of their colleagues and may have been witnessed by Colonel Wilford.

18.7.4.7 A further section of Composite Platoon remained at the north end of Rossville Street and dealt with civilians who had been arrested

18.7.4.8 After speaking to Major Loden for a second time whilst at the north end of Block1, Captain 200 deployed Call Sign 71 back across to the west side of Rossville Street at Kells Walk and into the Columbcille Court area B1981,B1987, B2007 at B2022.008 paragraph 47. Some members of Composite Platoon, including Soldiers C, D and 024 took up position on the veranda at Kells Walk at a very late stage in the events. C and D fired a number of shots in the Rossville Street area that are likely to have been the last shots fired by 1Para on Bloody Sunday. It is not contended that these soldiers shot or wounded anybody. Rather in our submission they fired shots at a time when already terrorised civilians were attempting to put the dying and the dead into Ambulances in Rossville Street.

18.7.4.9 In our submission the evidence of the Composite Platoon soldiers, like the other platoons attached to Support Company of 1Para are replete with lies. They have shown contempt for this Tribunal in respect of its task of finding out the truth of what happened on Bloody Sunday and they have shown contempt for the Families of those killed who have sought to learn why their relatives were murdered.

18.7.4.10 Table 1 at Appendix 2 shows the soldiers who fired and their claims as to where they fired from, what and where they fired at, the number of shots they fired, by whom they were seen to fire, whether they struck their targets and the most likely victims.

18.7.4.11 Table 2 Appendix 2 shows the accounts of the soldiers as to when they first heard shots.

18.7.4.12 Table 3 Appendix 2 suggests a possible order in which shots were fired by soldiers. Relying, as it does, on admittedly unreliable soldiers' evidence, the contents of this table are highly speculative.

18.7.4.13 Table 4 Appendix 2 represents an attempt to provide a quick-reference tool which allows ready comparison of the accounts given by all the soldiers in Composite Platoon about certain material matters, such as whether they saw any civilians with weapons or heard any nail bombs.

18.7.4.14 Table 5 Appendix 2 outlines the number and dates of statements given by the members of Composite Platoon to the Royal Military Police

18.7.4.15 Captain 200, a relatively young and comparatively inexperienced young officer, was given command of arguably the most experienced force in the first battalion of the Parachute Regiment Day 367/42/1, Day 367/114/7 to Day 367/114/10. Shortly after the events, this witness made a statement to the Royal Military Police, the Treasury Solicitor and eventually gave evidence before the Widgery Inquiry. More recently he provided a statement to Eversheds and gave evidence to this Inquiry on Day 367 and Day 368.

18.7.4.16 Problems relating to the credibility and the reliability of this witness arose from the outset. On one view, his evidence lacked authentic precision, it was vague, very often confusing, contradictory and inconsistent. On another view he was an inherently deceitful individual prepared to lie when he believed the need arose. While feigning co-operation with the Inquiry his evidence when taken at its height only served to provide a confused, if not opaque image of the events that occurred that day.

Briefing

18.7.4.17 On Saturday 29 January 1972 he attended Colonel Wilford's Order Group Conference at 10.30 am at which he says that Colonel Wilford provided "a clear and detailed intelligence picture of the situation". According to his Treasury Solicitor statement, he then recalled clearly that the Colonel stated:
"Your mission is to arrest as many rioters as possible" B1984

18.7.4.18 Interestingly however he later recorded the objective in his handwritten notes in the following way:

"The Mission to prevent illegal march" B2022.056

18.7.4.19 If the task as given to Composite Platoon was simple, namely that they arrest as many rioters as possible, it is unclear why the witness recorded the mission as being the prevention of an illegal march. The confusion which is created by these competing objectives is repeatedly illustrated throughout the evidence of individual members of Composite Platoon. The true nature of the risk however lies in the fact that this confusion permeates at all levels through a group of men whose training and reputation for aggression is a matter of public record. By failing to emphasise the distinction between marchers and rioters the planners and those in command ran the risk of ignoring the fact that such a distinction actually exists.

18.7.4.20 Later that day at 5.50 p.m. he attended the Support Company orders given by Major Loden B1984. The witness later made a series of notes in respect of these meetings. It is submitted however that the elements of confusion were accordingly being sown from the outset.

18.7.4.21 When questioned about the materials available such as maps, plans, photographs etc the witness provided inconsistent and confused recollection. In his Treasury statement the witness made no mention of maps:

> "We had not seen the ground though of course we did have the aerial photographs." B1984

18.7.4.22 When asked by Counsel to the Inquiry about this matter the witness dealt with the issue in the following way:

"Q. Do you know whether, at your briefing of Guinness Force on the Saturday, either maps or aerial photographs of the location were available?
A. Maps were available. I am not sure about photographs." Day 367/48/1 to Day 367/48/4

18.7.4.23 When Counsel to the Inquiry pointed out the potential inconsistency of this recollection the witness accepted that his earlier statement was in all likelihood the most accurate. While it is accepted that in terms of the issues under investigation the Inquiry were not misled or otherwise prejudiced, the incident illustrates a predisposition by this witness to make confident yet erroneous assertions.

18.7.4.24 In addition to the meetings with Colonel Wilford and Major Loden, the witness recorded that the task given to all Companies was quite simple "to arrest as many rioters as possible". It was precisely this order that was supplied to Composite Platoon at 22.00hrs. Significantly, the witness also recorded that he supplied "clear orders to the effect, that individuals were not to open fire unless it was controlled by him or a Senior NCO or if it was in self defence" B1978

18.7.4.25 It should be noted that none of the other members of Composite Platoon remember this taking place. What one soldier under 200's command did recall was that Captain 200 put up a bottle of whiskey for whoever arrested Bernadette Devlin MP. Apparently she was regarded by the Platoon as a "trouble maker" C739.1 paragraph 7. It should be noted that Counsel for Captain 200 did not challenge this assertion when INQ739 came to give his oral evidence Day 306/9/2 to Day 306/9/19.

Events at the Presbyterian Church

18.7.4.26 In relation to the events on the ground the first element of confusion to arise is that this witness, in keeping with every other member of Composite Platoon, failed to mention when making statements to the RMP any of the shots discharged by soldiers A and B from the derelict Abbey Taxis building.

18.7.4.27 In respect of this witness however, further confusion arises in relation to whether he actually "heard or experienced" an incoming shot.

18.7.4.28 In his RMP statement the witness recorded the incident in the following way:

> "Not long after this warning, one HV round passed over our heads and struck the church wall, passing through a vertical drain pipe at GR43281708. I am absolutely sure that this shot was fired from the direction of Rossville Flats." B1979

18.7.4.29 When recounted the incident to the Treasury Solicitor this is what the witness said:

> "I'm quite certain from the noise of the round passing overhead that it was a high velocity round and that it came from the south. My impression at the time was that it came from the Rossville high flats. I did not hear the discharge of the rifle." B1985

18.7.4.30 During his testimony before Lord Widgery, he accepted that he had heard SLR fire but he maintained that he had only heard one shot. He did accept however that he was now aware that a total of 5 shots were fired:

"Q. Would it be right that that was the first firing that you heard this afternoon? A. No, sir.
Q. What firing had you heard before that? A. I was in the wire cutting party.
Q. And there was one high velocity shot fired? A. Yes.
Q. You are quite right about that. Apart from the high velocity shot you heard then, the first firing you heard was the shooting from the derelict building? A. This does not include the high velocity shots." WT15.50 B - C

18.7.4.31 This exchange illustrates two matters:

i) It provides an introductory insight into the deceitful disposition of this witness.

ii) It raises the question as to why he and all the other members of Composite Platoon never mentioned the SLR high velocity shots in their RMP statements.

18.7.4.32 It could of course be suggested that on one view the witness does not actually lie to Mr McSparran QC, however it must be acknowledged that at the very least, his answers serve to perpetuate a lie insofar as he permits Counsel to proceed upon an utterly misleading assumption.

18.7.4.33 The witness invites this Tribunal to accept that while he heard one high velocity SLR shot he failed to hear four others fired from the same location. Yet, he could nevertheless hear a bullet passing through air notwithstanding that the same noise level almost certainly existed.

18.7.4.34 When asked about this very point the witness offered the following explanation:

"A. (Pause). I certainly remember one SLR round being fired, but the only confusion I have there is that there could have been -- the reference I did to the firing of baton guns, could have been SLR, I am not clear on my memory on that point." Day 367/69/4 to Day 367/69/8[66]

18.7.4.35 When asked by Christopher Clarke QC whether that was the first shot he heard that day, the witness said that he could not recall. Day 367/69/13

18.7.4.36 In relation to his failure to hear all 5 shots the witness said " I heard some shots". Day 368/16/4

18.7.4.37 At B2022.004 paragraph 26, the witness said that he learnt that two SLR shots were fired from this location although in oral evidence he was unable to say who told him Day 368/17/9 to Day 368/17/15.

18.7.4.38 The situation becomes even further confused by the fact that Captain 200 identified in his Treasury Solicitor statement that he heard the single SLR shot when he was positioned at Barrier 12. B1985

18.7.4.39 By suggesting that his failure to hear all the SLR shots whilst positioned in the Presbyterian Church might be explained by confusing those shots with the discharge of rubber bullet rounds serves only to challenge the reasonable expectation that someone in his position might be expected to know the acoustic difference between a rubber bullet and a 7.62mm SLR round. The suggestion is further undermined by the following assertion in his Eversheds statement:

"There is no doubt in my mind that we were under fire. Where it was coming from I hadn't a clue, but it was not the firing of our soldiers. I can tell the difference in sound of our weapons (single shot high velocity self loading rifles) and the incomparable sounds of automatic or semi-automatic fire from lower velocity weapons." B2022.006 paragraph 39

18.7.4.40 It is respectfully submitted that the underlying explanation for providing these confused and inconsistent accounts is that the witness was motivated by the need to sequentially reverse the order in which the Army and incoming fire had occurred. Further, the failure by any member of Composite Platoon to identify the full extent of Army fire is consistent with the view that the official number of shots actually discharged had not been communicated to members of other platoons.

Orders in Queen Street

18.7.4.41 The witness claimed in his oral evidence to Lord Widgery that:
"I had given instructions at Queen Street how we should debuss and what to do when we debussed" WT15.52. E

18.7.4.42 In relation to the alleged instructions given to all members of Composite Platoon by Captain 200 at Queen Street it seems remarkable that this event is uncorroborated by any member of Composite Platoon.

18.7.4.43 When pressed by Counsel to the Inquiry as to the general nature of the instructions beyond arresting rioters, the witness was unable to provide any assistance. Indeed he was unable to recall whether he received instructions in respect of the limitations of distance, which had been imposed on the Company's entry into Rossville Street. Day 367/77/25

Deployment in Rossville Street

18.7.4.44 Captain 200 travelled in the first of the soft skinned 4 tonne Bedford lorries. In providing his original account of events in Rossville Street, the witness gives the very clear impression of a young, confident and talented officer who knew exactly what he was doing and who although under fire acted in a manner that was at all times consistent with giving priority to the safety of his troops.

18.7.4.45 He said the following in his RMP statement made on 5th February 1972:

i) "I decided to split my force with 71 moving to the left to give support to the Mor Pl and 71A to move right flanking along the eastern side of Columbcille Court." B1980

ii) "At this stage, I heard the burst of automatic fire and one or two single shots fired in our direction, but I did not pay much attention to where they had come from except for the fact that we were under fire and my first concern was for my troops to get deployed from our debussing point as quickly as possible." B1980

iii) "My orders to "L1" (Colour Sergeant 002) in command of 71A were to move up the right flank of Rossville Street and act on his own initiative if we got separated." B1980

iv) "I went left with 71. On moving off I remember noticing the Anti-tank Pl overtaking 71A in their APCs and moving quickly through Columbcille Court and the long block east of the Court." B1980

18.7.4.46 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor the witness described his deployment into Rossville Street in the following way:

i) Immediately after debussing, Captain 200 approached the Company Commander, Major Loden and asked what he wanted him to do. B1985

ii) He was told to assist Mortar Platoon. B1985

iii) The witness went on to record that as his men debussed he heard automatic fire. He immediately decided to deploy his force away from the buildings beside where the two soft skinned lorries were parked. B1986

iv) Half were sent to support the Anti-tank platoon and the other half were sent to support Mortar Platoon. B1986

v) It was at this stage that he saw "at least three members from anti-tank platoon kneeling behind the wall on the right hand side of Rossville Street firing their SLRs" in a southerly direction (emphasis added). B1986

vi) 200 noticed at least two people immediately behind the barrier and approximately 30 others in or about the entrance to Glenfada Park. Others were observed in the distance. B1986

vii) Curiously 200 felt that the crowd was about to disperse and that gunmen were about to appear B1986. If this is so then his observation raises the question as what were these soldiers firing at in the first place?

18.7.4.47 Clearly there is a significant discrepancy between his RMP statement and his Treasury Solicitor statement in respect of how the decision to deploy the Composite Platoon came about. In his RMP statement the decision appears to be his own whilst in his Treasury Solicitor statement he appears to have spoken to Major Loden before the decision was made. This may have been due to the dramatic changes in the original operational plan such as the replacement of a pincer movement with a disorganised charge up Rossville Street in vehicles, as opposed to going in on foot.

18.7.4.48 It comes as little surprise that he ran forward for the purposes of obtaining fresh instructions as to what he should do in circumstances where the Mortar Platoon had gone deep into the Bogside having already reached the Rossville Flats car park and waste ground at Pilot Row. It is clear that this development was never envisaged or contemplated within the terms of the original operational order, viz:

> "(c) The Scoop-Up operation is likely to be launched on two axis, one directed towards hooligan activity in the area of William St/Little Diamond, and one towards the area of William St/Little Janes St." G95.570

18.7.4.49 Lack of recollection might explain some aspects of his evidence, however his willingness to adapt evidence to certain questions suggests a greater motive for providing what amounts on occasion to misleading, contradictory and utterly evasive answers.

18.7.4.50 For example in relation to the advance of the anti-tank platoon Captain 200 stated the following in his RMP statement:

> "My orders to L1 in command of 71A were to move up the right flank of Rossville Street and act on his own initiative if he got separated. I went left with 71. On moving off, I remember noticing the anti-tank platoon overtaking 71A in their APC's and moving quickly through Columbcille Court and along block east of the court. I stopped and shouted quick orders to L1 to move up and support the anti-tank platoon." B1980

18.7.4.51 During the course of his evidence before this Inquiry Captain 200 remembered the anti-tank platoon, debussing in a position behind the two four tonne lorries, Day 367/80/17 and moving up on foot Day 367/88/22.

Events in Sector 2

18.7.4.52 In summary, 200 in his RMP statement 200 said that:

i) He took Call Sign 71 and went left into the Sector 2 area B1980.

ii) During the move around to the left he shepherded four people who were not rioters to safety from the open ground B1980.

iii) Whilst at the northern end of Block1 he saw Sergeant O's pig arrive with at least two bodies. B1980

iv) Also at this time he saw one of his soldiers fire a rubber bullet gun into the back of a pig at point blank range. B1981

18.7.4.53 Captain 200 does not admit seeing any members of the Mortar platoon firing in Sector 2. By way of comment, it is clear that Captain 200 does not say that he came under fire from the Rossville Flats area anywhere in his 1972 evidence.

18.7.4.54 In his Treasury Solicitor statement, 200 said the following:

i) The witness was concerned about the bunched appearance and location of his men and he approached Call Sign 71 who were supposed to support Mortar Platoon. B1986

ii) En route he met two women who were sheltering behind a car and told them to move into Chamberlain Street via Eden Place. B1986

iii) By this time no less than four pigs inclusive of the Command Vehicle were parked on the northern corner of Block1 on the Pilot Row side. B1986

18.7.4.55 A number of additional points, though minor in nature, include his failure to make any reference to the single shots in his Treasury statement that he recalled to the RMP. It will also be observed that in his RMP statement he shepherded four people near the burnt out vehicle into safety from the open ground B1980. While in his Treasury statement that he told two women who were sheltering behind a car to move to the safety of Chamberlain Street. B1986

18.7.4.56 With characteristic subtlety the witness reconciled these differences in his Eversheds statement by describing a small group of people taking cover behind an old burnt out vehicle. There were between two and four present and one of them was an elderly lady. The witness then stated that he sent them towards Chamberlain Street having accompanied them for five yards. B2022.006 paragraph 38

18.7.4.57 Curiously in his Eversheds statement he made no reference to the more serious incident concerning the discharge of the baton gun into the rear of the APC.

18.7.4.58 When asked by Counsel to the Inquiry why he had not intervened in relation to the incident when a rubber bullet was discharged into the rear of an APC, the witness replied that he remembered the incident clearly because he may have made a comment to him as the culprit moved off Day 367/110/6 to Day 367/110/16. When pressed by Counsel for the Families about the same incident the witness made the following reply:

> "A. I personally did not take any steps because I am reporting on what I saw as a fleeting thing as I was moving up to speak to Major Loden; I am talking about what I saw. I do remember, though, sir, the Company Sergeant Major 202[67], um, was in that location and he did say something to me, I cannot remember the exact words." Day 368/34/23 to Day 368/35/3

18.7.4.59 It is respectfully submitted that Captain 200's failure at the time to take appropriate steps in respect of an incident that involved the discharge of a rubber bullet gun at a defenceless prisoner at close range, serves to highlight a collective attitude of lawlessness and brutality. The alternative explanation may well be that in the prevailing circumstances, other soldiers were adopting greater levels of more extreme violence and that there was a compelling need to bring these activities to the attention of Major Loden.

Events in Sector 3

18.7.4.60 In his RMP statement 200 said:

i) At the north end of Block1 both he and Major Loden noticed a considerable amount of fire coming from the Paras on the west side of Rossville Street. B1981

ii) Both he and Major Loden were concerned at that stage as the firing seemed unnecessary. B1981

iii) 200 then redeployed Call Sign 71 across to the west side of Rossville Street. B1981

iv) 200 went with his radio operator to the north west entrance to Glenfada Park North. He saw a casualty in Abbey Park who must be Gerry McKinney. B1981

v) Upon returning back to Rossville Street he says he noticed a gunman with a pistol firing from a window in the centre of the third storey of Block1 and one person behind the Barricade. His men engaged both targets but as he was on his radio he could not say if hits were made. B1981

vi) He witness heard automatic fire come from GR43141667(which is near Free Derry Corner). B1981

vii) Having consolidated his Force in the area of East kells Walk, between Columbcille Court and Rossville Street all firing had ceased. Four single rounds and five automatic rounds were then fired from the south. No rounds were returned. B1981

18.7.4.61 This is what he said in his Treasury Solicitor statement:

i) The witness clearly recalled that at the north end of Block1 when Major Loden was on the radio he said to him "There is a lot of firing going on isn't there?" At this time the Sergeant O's pig pulled up with bodies in the back. B1986

ii) According to 200, Major Loden was "obviously concerned". At this point a pig arrived with two bodies in it and Major Loden shouted at soldiers on the opposite side of Rossville Street to stop firing. B1986

iii) The witness then decided to "move across Rossville Street to find out what my men were doing." B1987

iv) He went to the corner of Glendada Park North and saw a body lying in the open at the nearest corner of Abbey Park. B1987

v) Upon returning to Rossville Street he claimed to have seen a man take cover behind a wall near Free Derry Corner who thought was armed and might have been carrying a SMG but as he did not have binoculars with him he could not be sure. B1987

vi) When light was falling automatic and single shots were fired from the south end of Rossville Street. B1987

18.7.4.62 This aspect of the witness' original accounts has been extensively referred to demonstrate the differences which emerged in his statements within weeks of the event and also to highlight a number of highly significant events which the witness either failed to see or deliberately excluded from his later statements.

18.7.4.63 For example, when providing a statement to the Treasury Solicitor the witness excludes any reference to the incident in which a rubber bullet was fired into the rear of an APC.

18.7.4.64 The witness has also omitted his reference to seeing the pistol man firing from the 3rd storey of Block1.

18.7.4.65 It will be observed above that it is this witness who expressed concern to Major Loden about the number of shots being discharged yet in his RMP statement he records the following:

"Whilst speaking to the Company Commander, we both noticed a considerable amount of fire coming from our soldiers on the right hand side of Rossville Street. I can remember is both being concerned at this stage as it seemed at the time unnecessary." B1981

18.7.4.66 When asked before this Inquiry to identify "the apparent source and destination of the firing" which gave rise to the concerns of himself and Major Loden, the witness replied that he could not recall. Day 367/113/1 to Day 367/113/9

18.7.4.67 Even though in his Treasury statement the witness clearly recalled that Major Loden ordered troops at the other side of the street to cease firing, the witness obscures the issue of fault which attaches to this description by providing the following answers before the Widgery Inquiry:

"Question: Was he [that is the company commander] busy on the radio when you got there?

"Answer: Yes, he was.

"Question: Did you speak to him?

"Answer: Once he was finished on the radio I did, yes.

"Question: Did you make any observation about the firing that was occurring at that time?

"Answer: I cannot remember the exact words, but I did express concern at the amount of firing going on at that time and he agreed with me.

"Question: What sort of firing were you referring to?

"Answer: I was just referring to the general firing, including ourselves. I was not expecting our soldiers to fire.

"Question: Was there any except military firing that you observed?

"Answer: I am not experienced in hearing the weapons fired by the IRA. At that time I had only been out in Ulster for two months. I heard lots of bangs and I could not tell what they were." (emphasis added) WT15.45.D-E

18.7.4.68 It is difficult to reconcile this evidence as given before Lord Widgery with the evidence on the same point that he gave to this Tribunal on oath as he said that he was right up against the gable end and in considering the firing that was taking place at that time his impression was that "the situation had been contained." Day 367/112/14 to Day 367/113/9

18.7.4.69 In our submission it may also be inferred that the firing which apparently caused concern may well have been that of Soldiers F, G, C and D. We say this because according to Captain 200 it was at this time that the pig pulled up with the bodies and by this stage all the firing at the area of the Barricade and probably Glenfada Park was over.

Captain 200's attempts to find out what his men did

18.7.4.70 When Guinness Force returned to the harbour area in Clarence Avenue, 200 ordered an ammunition check and "preliminary questioned all those who fired their weapons." It emerged that Guinness Force were admitting to firing 14 rounds of 7.62mm and 2 rubber bullets. B1982 In his Treasury Solicitor statement says that he questioned each soldier individually so he was clear as to why they had fired and what targets they had engaged. B1987. 200 in his RMP statement provided details of his soldiers who fired and their alleged targets. B1982 to B1983. He set them out as follows:

> "Soldier K: 1 x 7.62 from GR43271691 to gunman at barricade 43231683 - missed.
> Soldier D: 2 x 7.62 from GR43261691 to gunman at window of Rossville Flats 43261684 – possible hit.
> Soldier C: 3 x 7.62 from 43261691 to gunman at window of Rossville Flats 43261684 and 2 x 7.62 from same position to gunman at corner of Rossville Flats 43231680 – possible hits.
> Soldier M: 2 x 7.62 from GR43271691 to gunman behind barricade 432317683 – possible hit.
> Soldier L: 1 x 7.62 rafters in ruin 43281696 at possible sniper on roof – deliberate miss after two warnings to come down. Man jumped down from roof (15 feet) and was arrested. Roof not searched for weapons. 2 x 7.62 from wall 43251688 at barricade 43231683 and 1 x 7.62 at same gunman as C and D." B2022.0047

18.7.4.71 Regrettably, detailed examination of the information supplied typifies the general character of this witness and the standards of his overall reliability. Close scrutiny reveals that the detail remains technically misleading and factually inaccurate. Rather than repeat verbatim the questions and answers that arose the reader is respectfully referred to Day 368/60/2 to Day 368/76/2.

18.7.4.72 For the purposes of convenience only, the following general observations are worth bearing in mind:

i) Firstly, K's alleged trajectory line as set out above is totally inconsistent with the statements that he made subsequently and the evidence he provided to both Lord Widgery and the present Tribunal.

ii) Similar trajectory problems arise in respect of Soldier M.

iii) In relation to L, this soldier denied ever supplying information in respect of the alleged shot into the rafters within the derelict house. The Inquiry received no assistance as to where exactly this information came from and who supplied it. The Tribunal are forced to rely on presumption or inference when deciding whether an incident which was not without controversy actually occurred. Also, it will be noted from the above that Captain 200 made no inquiry as to whether L was claiming a hit "at the barricade" and a conclusion one is left with is that L was loosing off shots at the barricade:

"Lord Saville: Forgive me interrupting Officer 200, is it a possible explanation, looking at what you have written about Soldier L, that the two 7.62 shots he told you he had simply loosed off at the barricade and at no particular target at all?

A. Yes, I accept that, that he did loose two shots off at the barricade, I mean that, that must be the, the possibility. If he was more exact, he would have said, "gunman at a certain point." Day 368/67/15 to Day 368/67/23

iv) Significantly Captain 200 made no enquiry as to whether L was claiming a hit at the barricade and the conclusion that one is left with is that he was simply loosening "or recklessly discharging two shots at this location. Captain 200 appears happy to accept this conclusion Day 368/67/20.

v) In relation to M a marked discrepancy arises in respect of whether he fired at two gunmen or one.

18.7.4.73 Finally and by way of providing further illustration of the unreliable nature of this witness' evidence it will be noted that he records the total number of baton rounds discharged, by Composite Platoon as amounting to only two. This figure stands in contrast to the evidence before the Inquiry that on one occasion alone, some four to eight rounds were fired towards the barricade Day 368/70/1 to Day 368/70/11.

18.7.4.74 200 on 5th February 1972 told the RMP:

> "I am absolutely satisfied that none of my soldiers fired 7.62mm rounds before being subjected to enemy fire. All rounds fired, except of one by "L" in the ruin, were controlled by senior NCOs and directed at gunman either in the Rossville Flats or behind the Rubble Barricade. I fully support the actions taken by my soldiers and I am satisfied that they reacted as required in the situation." B1983

18.7.4.75 It is contended that if Captain 200 was a man who took his command seriously and the provisions of the Yellow Card at all seriously he would have reported Private L for breach of same when he learned about his shot into the rafters of the derelict house. One can only speculate whether 200 was aware that Private L had provided a false account to the RMP, Treasury Solicitor and Lord Widgery in respect of this shot but it is clear that Private L appears to have heard nothing further from within the military command in this regard.

18.7.4.76 In his Eversheds statement the witness explains why he was apparently able to stand over the activities of his men in 1972. Captain 200 admits to accompanying a large number of soldiers whilst they gave their interviews to the RMP. He claims that he was impressed:

> "by both the clear honest and truthful way in which all those soldiers gave their interviews and also by the instructions from the Commanding Officer that soldiers should cooperate fully and give their evidence truthfully. I can certainly confirm that there was no attempt by the battalion to ensure that those who were involved "got their stories straight" or altered their evidence in any way. There were no briefings on what soldiers were to say." B2022.011 paragraph 72

18.7.4.77 If Captain 200 judged the honesty and truthfulness of the men who he accompanied to the RMP by the same standards of honesty and truthfulness of his own character, it is respectfully submitted that this is a worthless assessment

Captain 200's willingness to lie / Civilian Gunmen

18.7.4.78 Further evidence of this witness' tendency of exaggerate his "perception" of events concerns his untruthful allegation that he saw at least two civilian gunmen. This evidence first appears in his RMP statement:

> "I noticed one gunman with a pistol firing from a window in the centre of the third storey of Rossville Flats and one person behind the Barricade across Rossville Street. My men engaged the target in the window and also at the man behind the Barricade, but I was speaking on the radio at the time and cannot definitely say who fired and if hits were made B1981.

18.7.4.79 The first public occasion upon which this allegation was enthusiastically raised, occurred during the course of a Thames Television interview conducted on 2nd February 1972 B2022.033

18.7.4.80 The witness expressed characteristic uncertainty about some answers which were attributed to him on the transcript B1993, however he did provide a qualified acceptance in respect of others. This is illustrated by the following exchange:

"Mr McCARTNEY: "I saw at least two, one person was firing from the third floor of the Rossville Flats -- pistol -- and one, at least one I saw with a weapon behind the rubble ... which was going across Russell street."

Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. Did you see a person firing from the third floor of Rossville Flats with a pistol?

A. You will probably note in my evidence that that was my perception at the time: I did think very hard later on this and I did withdraw this accuracy and, therefore, I accept on oath that I -- my perception at the time was wrong and that I have doubt in what exactly I saw then.

Q. Did you see a man with a weapon at the rubble barricade?

A. I saw a man at the barricade, but I did not see a weapon.

Q. Was that your perception at the time?

A. At the time I gave the interview?

Q. Yes.

A. (Pause). It is very difficult question to answer at this moment.

Q. I am going to suggest to you that if you saw a man firing from the third floor of the flats, you would remember that; it is nothing to do with perceptions; it has to do with reality. If you saw a man with a rifle at the barricade, equally, that has nothing to do with perception or imagination, that is reality and a truthful person says, "That is what I saw." But I am going to suggest to you that this was a dishonest attempt by you to weave a veil of mirrors and smoke, contradiction and deceit over what you alleged you saw and in particular over the events of that day.

What was being woven here was really a culture of mendacity, lies and deceit. This was a ham-fisted attempt by you and a handful of officers to provide a smokescreen to stall for time, and you are still doing it?

A. I am sorry, that is your view. I cannot accept that.

Q. A3:

"Question: How early in the action would this have been. Is it your perception that you went on to elaborate upon your perception?

"Answer: This was at least four or five minutes after the first shots that were fired at our company.

"Question: Are you satisfied that they were in position before your own troops had opened fire, in other words, that they were there with the intention of shooting (interruption)?

"Answer: Absolutely this ... everything points to a deliberate drawing in of the Army into that area. It could well be in fact a planned ambush."

"Absolutely," undoubtedly, a strong indication and as clear an example as this Tribunal or anyone else, looking at the evidence before it, needs that you were a willing participant in a conspiracy of deceit that was being woven immediately after these events." Day 368/54/2 to Day 368/56/7

18.7.4.81 The positive assertions made not only within his RMP statement but also his television interview are explained as remarks that were made "on the spur of the moment" and on the basis of what he had been told by an unnamed member of Composite Platoon that a person was firing a pistol from Rossville Flats. B1988

18.7.4.82 It is difficult to reconcile the expression "spur of the moment" with the provision of a signed declaration to the RMP to effect that he personally witnessed the presence of both gunmen. On the basis of this explanation, "spur of the moment" lasted at least three further days until he signed his first statement on 5th February.

18.7.4.83 The extent of Captain 200's willingness to tell a lie can be measured by the fact he was prepared to tell a deliberate lie to the RMP notwithstanding that he knew he could be prosecuted for wilfully stating same.

18.7.4.84 The Tribunal are entitled to pause and place this witness' evidence and credibility on the scales. Three days after the events of Bloody Sunday this man looked the world in the eye through the medium of a television camera and lied repeatedly for the purposes of justifying the Army's use of high velocity weapons. Three days later, he repeated the lies again in the form of a signed statement that he himself drafted to the RMP without encouragement or duress he voluntarily repeated the same lies. Notwithstanding his later retractions the witness continues to this day to lie as to why he did so.

18.7.4.85 In our respectful submission in light of his willingness to lie repeatedly it would be folly for this Tribunal to attach any weight whatsoever to this man's evidence.

Members of Composite Platoon Call Sign 71

18.7.4.86 It is now proposed to consider those members of Composite Platoon who were attached directly under the command of Captain 200 and formed Call Sign 71. These soldiers were deployed initially in Sector 2 and then Sector 3. It will also be noted that a number of them appear to have stayed in the vicinity of the soft skinned lorries at the north end of Rossville Street.

Sergeant 106

18.7.4.87 This witness has provided a statement to the RMP and to Eversheds. He gave evidence to the Tribunal on Day 299. He was a section leader in Composite Platoon / Guinness Force. He claimed to be present in the Presbyterian Church when the drainpipe shot occurred. He says in his Eversheds statement that he looked through Sergeant K's sniper scope and saw three men on the roof of the Rossville Flats who were not armed, though according to him, there were plenty of places were weapons could be hidden B1713.003 paragraph 12.

18.7.4.88 However in his 1972 evidence he makes clear that Sergeant K himself actually looked through the scope and told him that there were 3 men on the roof of the Rossville Flats B1711. This contrasts with K's own evidence. He said that he did not even look near the Rossville Flats after the incoming shot, as he was fearful for his safety B311.005 paragraph 8.

18.7.4.89 Sergeant 106 refers to firing as the lorries were coming into the Bogside. He did not see or hear explosions or gunmen at any stage. He took his section of men in a leapfrogging advance along the back of the houses in Chamberlain Street and whilst executing this movement he heard a mixture of high velocity and low velocity fire from different types of weapons. He recalls incoming rounds from the Rossville Flats area. He then took up position near where Captain 200/SA8 and Major Loden would have been at the north end of Block 1 B1713.003 paragraphs 17 to 22. Sergeant 106 was ordered along with his section west across Rossville Street to the area north of Kells Walk. He later was involved in escorting prisoners to the William Street area.

18.7.4.90 Sergeant 106 is another witness whose omissions from his evidence are significant in respect of his credibility. The witness failed to provide any assistance or explanation to the Tribunal in respect of what happened, how it happened or who was responsible.

18.7.4.91 When questioned by Counsel, the witness maintained that he didn't "really" experience a conflict between his loyalty to the Regiment and his duty to provide a full and frank disclosure to the Tribunal Day

299/84/20. Given the ambiguous nature of this reply it is hardly surprising that the witness failed to see:

i) Any Paratrooper firing at all;

ii) Any of the violence that was meted out to civilians on the waste ground;

iii) The rubber bullet that was fired into the rear Lieutenant N's pig that contained the prisoners William Doherty and Duncan Clarke;

iv) The evidence from the Anti-tank Platoon that caused concern both to Captain 200 and Major Loden. B1981

Sergeant INQ1318

18.7.4.92 This witness made a statement to Eversheds and gave oral evidence to the Inquiry on Day 354. He was a section leader in Guinness Force (possibly an acting Colour Sergeant for the day Day 354/160/8 to Day 354/160/11). Whilst he has a clear recollection of what happened at the Presbyterian Church, i.e. the plan to break through the wall and the drainpipe shot etc, his recollection of what occurred after his deployment is much more vague.

18.7.4.93 The nominal role B2022.64 records that he was part of Call Sign 71 which would have been part of Captain 200/SA8's section but he makes no reference to being involved in any operational activity on the east side of Rossville Street. He says in his Eversheds statement that his task was to secure a modern council housing estate to the right (west) C1318 paragraphs 16 to 17. This sounds like the Columbcille Court / Kells Walk area where he probably ultimately ended up.

18.7.4.94 Sergeant INQ1318 saw a man that sounds very like Alex Nash at the Rubble Barricade shouting that he had been shot C1318.4 paragraph 20 Despite being able to hear the shouts of the man on the Rubble Barricade the witness claimed that he did not hear any of the shots fired by his colleagues at the low wall or pram ramp of Kells Walk. Nor, it should be said, did he hear automatic fire or explosions C1318.4 paragraph 20. The extent of this witness' assistance and the value of his evidence to the Tribunal can be summarised in the following exchange with Counsel:

> "Q. You were close enough to see the events that occurred in the vicinity of that barricade?
>
> A. I was close enough, but I did not see it as I was concentrating -- after that, I turned my head when I heard him shout and concentrating on keeping the houses secure.
> Q. You see, members of your platoon, five of them, discharged no less than 14 shots whilst they were present in Rossville Street while you were there. Altogether somewhere between 30, 38 shots were fired in that location. Six people were shot dead in the vicinity of that barricade; one person was wounded. Ambulances came and went. At least 50 people were arrested. Thirteen people in total died; 14 were wounded, but yet you, as a ringside-seat-holder, did not see one of those incidents?
>
> A. No.
>
> Q. Is it a bit like going to a boxing tournament, getting the best seat in the house, right beside the ring, and you cannot talk about the fight as soon as you walk out because you cannot remember a thing; that is really your evidence; is it not?
>

Corporal INQ 739

18.7.4.95 This witness made a statement to Eversheds and gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 306.

Mentality

18.7.4.96 INQ 739 provides a useful insight into the Paratroopers' mindset on the no-go area in Derry, Bernadette Devlin and NICRA.

18.7.4.97 He said in his Eversheds statement:

> "By 1972, there was a no-go area in the Bogside in Londonderry. As far as the Parachute Regiment was concerned, no-go areas were unacceptable. They were all part of Britain. We knew that, sooner or later, it would probably be out job to go in and sort it out." C739.1 paragraph 4

18.7.4.98 In relation to briefings, the witness said that he could not recall anything about the briefing except that he was to be part of a small Guinness Force team whose job was to arrest some of the ringleaders:

> "I do recall three officers had each put up a bottle of whiskey as a reward for whoever arrested Bernadette Devlin. She was well known as a trouble maker, and NICRA was generally understood to be controlled by the IRA." C739.1 paragraph 7

18.7.4.99 When asked about this in oral evidence the witness confirmed that the officers were Colonel Wilford, the HQ Company Commander and Commander of Composite Platoon, Captain 200 Day 306/9/2 to Day

306/9/19. This assertion was not challenged by Counsel for either Colonel Wilford or Captain 200.

Events in Rossville Street / Waste ground / north of Kells Walk

18.7.4.100 He was a member of Call Sign 71 and therefore under the command of 200. This is another military witness who does not recall seeing any soldier firing on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.4.101 He claimed that he had heard the drainpipe shot earlier and believed it to be fired from a Mauser rifle, " a proper sniper's weapon" that he recognised from Aden C739.3 paragraph 15.

18.7.4.102 When he debussed from the soft skinned lorry he claimed in his Eversheds statement to have heard "a few bursts of what sounded to me like fire from an AK47" apparently from the Rossville flats in the witness' direction C739.3 paragraph 22. In his oral evidence however he changed this to say that it was "a small burst" Day 306/21/22 to Day 306/22/9.

18.7.4.103 The witness claimed to have heard a further burst of AK47 fire from the direction of the flats on his way from the waste ground to the Rossville Flats near the burnt out wreck of a car at C739.7. Before he got to the Rossville Flats he heard SLR fire.

18.7.4.104 When he was redeployed west across Rossville Street and somewhere in the area of Columbcille Court he claimed that there was a mixture of AK47 firing and "some" SLR though he was certain more AK47 than SLR C739.4 paragraph 30.

18.7.4.105 In order to re-enforce his confidence about this incident, he relied upon his ten years of service in the Paras, Day 306/45/11, and his belief that "640" colleagues were equally confident Day 306/48/10.

18.7.4.106 When Counsel pointed out that his own commander, 200, had been responsible for organising the firearms demonstration before Lord Widgery and that this had not included an AK47 and secondly that no reference to the weapon appeared in any of the original Composite Platoon RMP statements, or intelligence documents, his confidence evaporated and he accepted he could be mistaken Day 306/49/5 to Day 306/51/21. On one view, this was yet another example of the willingness of a witness to embellish fabricated evidence with a level of detail designed to give that evidence the veneer of authenticity. It is further submitted that his claims that the Paras came under sustained bursts of automatic AK47 gunfire are untrue and uncorroborated.

18.7.4.107 For a witness whose statement contains absolutely no reference to any discreditable Military activity INQ 739 makes a strange but telling comment:

> "I thought the Widgery Tribunal was after a scapegoat but, having said that, I thought that Inquiry was too much of a whitewash" C739.6 paragraph 39

Private 203

18.7.4.108 This witness made a statement to the RMP and to Eversheds. He gave evidence to the Inquiry on Day 306 and was recalled on Day 382. He was HQ Coy's permanent ammunition store man. On Bloody Sunday he issued Guinness Force with their arms and ammunition. He says in his RMP statement that all the 9mm (SMG or pistol) ammunition was correct and accounted for and that 14 rounds of 7.62mm (SLR) ammunition had been expended. He reported this matter to his Company Sergeant Major B2112. His RMP statement was taken on 14th February 1972 but he does not include in it anything that he allegedly saw or did on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.4.109 It is submitted that on any view he has a seriously deficient memory and provides an unreliable account.

18.7.4.110 Whilst at the Presbyterian Church, he said that he "definitely" saw soldiers from the Royal Green Jackets and Royal Anglians there. We know that it was in fact the 22 LAD who were positioned in the area of Little James Street barrier. He also says that he was with Sergeant O of the Mortar Platoon on "apex of the roof" on the Presbyterian Church, notwithstanding the apparent precariousness of the position Day 306/80/14 to Day 306/81/10. Sergeant O told him to come up and have a look but that he should keep his head down. Whilst he was climbing up a saw the "downspout" shot B2114.003 paragraphs 16 to 19. This is completely contradictory to what Sergeant O says.

18.7.4.111 From the roof of the Presbyterian Church, Private 203 says that he heard explosions that he assumed were petrol bombs. He also claims to have heard "small arms fire" occurring during the riot B2114.004 paragraphs 20 to 21. It is unclear how exactly one is supposed to hear petrol bombs explode as this is much more of a visual occurrence.

18.7.4.112 He believes that he went into the Bogside on foot (which seems very unlikely in light of all the other evidence) with the rest of Guinness Force and that General Ford and Colonel Wilford both were at the barrier (which is plainly wrong). He says that there was no delay at barrier 12 (which again is incorrect) B2114.004 paragraphs 24 to 25. The witness stood over all of these claims when he gave oral evidence on Day 306. In our respectful submission, on this basis alone his evidence is inherently unreliable and should be given no weight.

Sector 2

18.7.4.113 He deployed to the east side of Rossville Street to a burnt out van (possibly at EP/2.001) and heard low velocity single shots come from his right followed by high velocity shooting. The witness was asked if had any idea at all of the number of alleged low velocity hosts that he heard but he was unable to say Day 306/98/5 to Day 306/98/19.

18.7.4.114 Counsel to the Tribunal pressed him in relation to how he was so certain that he heard low velocity fire:

> "Q. What makes you so able to be certain on that point?
> A. There is nothing certain about the whole lot of my recollections. But because I went through this three years ago, and recalled my account of it, I could remember then. And I do remember now still, but not -- if you want me to swear to it, I could not swear to it. But, yes, I did hear." Day 306/98/20 to Day 306/99/1

18.7.4.115 He did not hear any explosions or see any civilians with weapons B2114.004 paragraphs 26 to 31. He appears to have been in the vicinity of Lieutenant N's pig which was near the burnt out van. He said that he "personally did not come under any effective fire and, therefore, did not return fire" B2114.005 paragraph 32. The witness was asked specifically whether he heard an AK47 fired. 203 said that he had no recollection of it Day 306/98/4. He also said that he heard no nail bombs exploding and that he saw nothing at the windows of the flats, which gave him "cause for alarm" Day 306/104/10 to Day 306/105/8.

18.7.4.116 Again, it has to be submitted that this was another witness who was in the area where there were a large number of Paratroopers firing in a relatively small area but somehow, if he is to be believed, managed to miss this.

18.7.4.117 After the witness gave his oral evidence, a possible reason for his failure to see any discreditable actions by his colleagues emerged B2114.013. During the period of 1976 to 1977 he was a Battalion Commander in the UDA/UFF and was convicted of possession of a firearm and ammunition with intent to endanger life for which he received 10 years' imprisonment[68]. He claimed in his evidence that he was not involved with the UDA/UFF on Bloody Sunday or whilst a serving Paratrooper. Amazingly, Soldier 203 claimed to have been unaware that this organisation was responsible for the deaths of scores if not hundreds of innocent Catholics in the early 1970s Day 382/35/13 to Day 382/35/22. It is submitted that he joined the UDA/UFF because he sympathised with the murder of Catholics and Nationalists and further that he wanted to personally involve himself in either killing or facilitating the killing of Catholics and Nationalists. It is further contended that 203 would have been violently prejudiced against Catholics at the time of Bloody Sunday and is a witness who is predisposed to give false evidence that:

i) Covers up the murders of the Catholics and Nationalists who were killed on Bloody Sunday; and

ii) Assists the Army case in claiming that he heard non-Army fire.

For these reasons we urge the Tribunal to reject his evidence entirely.

Corporal INQ2047

18.7.4.118 This witness has provided a statement to Eversheds and did not give oral evidence. His recollection is whilst waiting at Barrier 12 he heard two short Thompson SMG bursts to his left and that he went through Barrier 12 on foot with the rest of Guinness Force and chased rioter C2047.2 paragraph 10. This alone renders him an unreliable witness. He makes no mention of any army vehicles going through at all. He was recalled soon after running through Barrier 12.

[68] It may be recalled that the Tribunal, wrongly in our respectful submission, refused to allow Counsel to question him about Observer B who was also a UDA commander in the Monkstown area at exactly the same time as Soldier 203. It was intended to inquire of the witness the extent to Observer B was involved in orchestrating the use of lethal force against Catholics on behalf of that organisation, a 18.7.4.119 Corporal INQ2047 did not see where any of the other soldiers went or what they did. He did not hear the sound of any explosions and only heard SLR fire when he went back through the Barrier C2047.2 paragraphs 12 to 13.

Corporal INQ468

18.7.4.120 This witness made a statement to Eversheds and admits to having "a very, very limited" memory of events. He has a snapshot of a drainpipe shattering but cannot recollect a shot at all on Bloody Sunday that he would associate with either high or low velocity fire C468.2 paragraph 14. He does not mention seeing any gunmen or seeing or hearing any explosions or incoming fire.

Private INQ 24

18.7.4.121 This witness was a radio operator and gave evidence on Day 302. Private INQ24 saw the drainpipe shot and was deployed, it would appear, with Captain 200. He initially went to the burnt out vehicle on the waste ground and then followed the officer up to the northern gable end of Block1. He says that the Paras were "dodging about" as if they were under fire but he could not say for sure as he wore headphones C24.2 paragraph 8. He followed Captain 200 across Rossville Street and seems briefly to have followed him into the Columbcille Court area. Though he does not remember, it is also likely that he escorted Captain 200 into the Abbey Park area before returning back to the Rossville Flats.

18.7.4.122 Private INQ24 claims not to have seen or heard any Paras firing (as he was wearing headphones) on Bloody Sunday despite being in an area where a considerable amount of firing was taking place C24.3 paragraph 16. Similarly he failed to see the Mortar Platoon firing rubber bullets immediately on debussing and the large amount of matter that obviously iinpinges on the credibility and reliability of the evidence that Observer B has violence that they inflicted on the persons arrested in the waste ground, the rubber bullet being fired into one of the Mortar Platoon pigs and also the firing from Kells Walk that concerned his Commanding Officer, Captain 200 Day 302/48/2 to Day 302/50/7.

18.7.4.123 The witness could offer no explanation as to why he could hear human voices but yet not hear a single high velocity shot while he was in the Bogside during the entire operational period Day 302/60/11 to Day 302/61/21. In our respectful submission INQ24's claim that because he was wearing headphones he was unable to hear shooting is as demonstrably implausible as it is untrue.

Private INQ 391

18.7.4.124 This witness made a statement to Eversheds. He did not give oral evidence. He was the driver of Captain 200's soft skinned lorry and he stayed with the vehicle throughout C391.2 paragraph 9[69]. He has a vague recollection of the day. He does not refer to driving through Barrier 12 or into Rossville Street at all. He believes he heard a round fired from an Armalite that seemed to come from the direction of the Rossville Flats C391.2 paragraphs 12 to 13. The other Guinness Force driver, Private INQ 405, would have been with him at this point as they had a brief conversation about the shot that he heard. INQ 405 however could not remember this when asked by Counsel Day 363/20/4 to Day 363/21/9. It should also be pointed out that none of the witnesses from either wing of the IRA including the two Quarter Masters say that they had an Armalite rifle in their respective arsenals on Bloody Sunday. It should also be pointed out that none of the Intelligence documents indicate that the IRA in Derry had by that stage acquired this weaponry either.

submitted to the Inquiry Day 382/52/20 to Day 382/54/19.

[69] We know this as Private INQ 405 says that he was the driver of the second lorry and he can recollect INQ 391 being the driver of the other one. Bundle C405.2.

18.7.4.125 Private INQ 391 then heard what he assumed to be rubber bullets and then "an escalation of shooting" from his right followed by one or two small bombs (possibly nail bombs) exploding C391.3 paragraph 18. The witness can only recollect the gunfire as being SLR shots in contrast to the evidence of Private INQ 405 at C405.2 paragraphs 10 to 14. He saw arrested civilians being frogmarched but witnessed no brutality towards them.

Lance Corporal 229

18.7.4.126 This witness made a statement to the RMP and to Eversheds. He gave evidence to the Tribunal on Day 341. He was a controversial witness in relation to the evidence that he was now prepared to give in respect of Private L and also in relation to the serious allegations of ill treatment that have been made against him by a number of the persons who were arrested and brought to Fort George.

18.7.4.127 Upon debussing he noticed a youth run across Rossville Street into a derelict house. The youth, Joseph Lynn, can be seen on the ABC footage running on the waste ground V/48/12.43 to 12.53. He chased the youth inside and saw him in the rafters. 229 conceded in his oral evidence that he might well have simply chased Lynn because he thought he could catch him and not because he saw him do anything wrong Day 341/33/8 to Day 341/33/13. It should be noted that there is no reference in his RMP statement to the youth throwing stones or indulging in riotous behaviour B2211.014. 229 was unable to explain this omission during his oral evidence Day 341/34/20 to Day 341/34/22.

18.7.4.128 Private L soon joined him and fired one warning shot into the ceiling to get the youth, Joseph Lynn, to come down[70]. 229 was said that he was certain that Private L fired this one shot in his oral evidence Day 341/36/10 to Day 341/36/14; Day 341/39/3 to Day 341/39/9. 229 omitted the fact that Private L fired this shot in his RMP statement. He says in his Eversheds statement that he did not withhold this information to protect Private L but would have assumed that Private L would have disclosed the warning shot in his statement to the RMP. Even though he was a Lance Corporal and L was a Private soldier and L had fired in breach of the Yellow Card 229 he denied that he and L got together and agreed that neither of them should mention L's shot Day 341/44/19 to Day 341/44/20.

18.7.4.129 Lance Corporal 229 says that he must, at some stage, have gone into Glenfada Park North to arrest two other youths Day 2211.005 paragraph 38. These were Patrick McGinley and Dennis McLaughlin. His arrest forms record that both youths were throwing stones in Rossville Street and that they were arrested at 16.15. Both of the civilians deny that they were rioting in Rossville Street. There are two possibilities:

(i) Either 229 was in Glenfada Park North which case he should have seen a lot more than what appears in his evidence; or

(ii) He was not in Glenfada Park and he did not arrest McLaughlin and McGinley but signed an untrue statement and picked the prisoners out at random at Fort George.

18.7.4.130 During his oral evidence, 229 admitted that he might have been willing to perjure himself in order to secure a conviction for riotous behaviour in respect of Dennis McLaughlin:

> "Q. The people you had arrested were facing prosecution; were they not, for riotous behaviour; were they not?
> A. I believe so, yes.
> Q. If you had made a false statement, you could be responsible for someone's wrongful conviction?

A. I think I did it in good faith, on what people had told me.

Q. Were you willing to go to Court and say you had seen Mr McLaughlin throwing stones?

A. In light of what we are saying now, I do not believe I could have done.

Q. Would you have done that in 1972?

A. I may well have done." (Emphasis Added) Day 341/54/20 to Day 341/55/7

Colour Sergeant INQ 147

18.7.4.131 This witness provided a statement to Eversheds but has a very poor memory of the day. He did not give oral evidence. He is referred to in the statement of Captain 200 at B2022.001 paragraph 6. He remembers the shot at the Presbyterian Church. He believes that he entered the Bogside in a pig and can remember hearing firing and getting the impression that it was both civilian and military gunfire C147.2 paragraph 10.

18.7.4.132 He clearly remembers Major Loden, who was about 50 yards in front of him shouting "Aimed shots only!" at troops aiming at the Rossville Flats and thinking that Major Loden had good control of the troops. He has no recollection of any of the soldiers in his platoon firing a shot on the day C147.2 paragraphs 11 to 14.

18.7.4.133 The witness however does not explain why Major Loden had shout at his men to only fire aimed shots.

Colour Sergeant 002

18.7.4.134 This witness provided statements to the RMP, the Treasury Solicitor and to Eversheds. For reasons that have not been explained he did not give oral evidence.

18.7.4.135 He was in command of Call Sign 71 Alpha who were deployed on the west side of Rossville Street and who appear to have travelled in the second soft skinned lorry of Guinness Force. In his RMP statement he lists the following men as being in his platoon: 014, 035, K, 039, 010, L and 032 though undoubtedly there were considerably more B1363.008. It should be noted that the handwritten version of the statement records that other members of the platoon as INQ25, INQ812, INQ816, INQ24, M, INQ748, INQ1515 and INQ451. B1351.001

18.7.4.136 He was a weapons training officer but does not believe that one can differentiate between the sounds of different types of weapons firing in built up areas B1363.002[71].

1972 Statements

18.7.4.137 Colour Sergeant 002 made two statements in 1972, one to the RMP and one to the Treasury Solicitor. Colour Sergeant 002 made his first statement on 2nd February 1972. Inasmuch as it relates to Sector 3 he states as follows:

i) That his force debussed from its soft skinned lorry along side 123 Rossville Street when there was still some CS gas in the area. He then heard shots from the area of Rossville Flats, "well to the front of Support Company". B1353

[71] B1363.002. He also gave a weapons demonstration to members of the Widgery Tribunal in 1972 that included SLRs, SMGs, pistols and rubber bullet guns but "we (the soldiers present) could not differentiate between then and neither could the members of the Inquiry who were there." B1363.007

ii) He saw members of Support Company take cover behind the wall adjacent to Kells Walk. He does not recall how many shots were fired. B1354

iii) He witnessed Support Company making arrests in the area between his position and the car park in front of the Rossville Flats. B1354

iv) His platoon then deployed in the position previously used by Support Company. Soldiers K, L and M moved alongside the flats on the western side of Rossville Street taking position at the four feet high wall at the southern end of Kells Walk. B1354

v) As he was moving up to join K he saw K fire one round at two males who were behind a pile of rubble about half way along Block1 of Rossville Flats. B1354

vi) When he joined K he saw a male dressed in dark jacket and trousers performing a leopard crawl towards the south end of Block 1 with a rifle in the crook of his elbow. Colour Sergeant 002 pointed this man out to Privates M and L and "told them to fire at him". B1354

vii) Both Privates L and M fired two rounds each and the man was hit. B1354 viii) A second man then crawled from behind the rubble. As he could not see any weapon and as civilians were standing inside the door of Block 1, Colour Sergeant 002 ordered M and L to cease fire, which they did. B1354

ix) The second man then started to drag the man who had been shot towards the door. About four men then came out of the flats and dragged both men inside B1355

18.7.4.138 It should be noted that in this statement Colour Sergeant 002 does not say that he saw the man that Sergeant K fired at claiming he was carrying a weapon. Nor does he say that there were petrol, nail or acid bombs exploding in Rossville Street or that there was automatic fire coming from the Barricade. He does not explain what happened to the man's rifle.

18.7.4.139 Colour Sergeant 002's Treasury Solicitor statement is undated B1361. He largely rehearses what he says in his RMP statement. Both this witness' statements are exclusively aimed at providing false corroboration and justification for the actions of Sergeant K and Privates L and M.

18.7.4.140 Notwithstanding this, Colour Sergeant 002's evidence causes problems for Privates K and M who claim both to have fired at the rear man alleging that he had a weapon.

Eversheds Statement

18.7.4.141 In his statement to Eversheds he seems to have confused the sequence of certain events e.g. when his platoon took charge of prisoners and brought them back to Little James Street. Nonetheless the theme of this account remains broadly in line with his evidence in 1972, namely that the men under his command only employed lawful lethal force, that they were under threat and that they acted with restraint in the circumstances.

18.7.4.142 He recalls "stacks" of bricks being thrown at his men in Rossville Street but cannot remember incoming shots though he does recall soldiers taking cover as if they were under fire from the roof of Block 1 where he saw some men moving around. He does not recall any explosions, nail or acid bombs though Rossville Street was "absolutely littered" with debris.

18.7.4.143 He now has no memory of Sergeant K being present but he can recall the man in front performing a leopard crawl wearing a long black crombie style coat with a rifle, possibly a .303, in the crook of his arm. He ordered two soldiers who were positioned to his right to open fire at the man[72]. From his 1972 evidence we know that this order was given to Privates L and M. Colour Sergeant 002 now thinks they fired one shot each and then he ordered them to cease fire as the man at the rear was unarmed. Whilst 002 is now able to say that the rifle was taken from the man who had been shot by a group of up to six men at the doorway, this does not appear to have been a memory that he had in 1972. B1363.004 at paragraph 30

18.7.4.144 This evidence is inconsistent with that of Soldiers K and M who both fired at the rear man claiming that he had a weapon. Presumably Colour Sergeant 002 was sufficiently alive to this discrepancy by the time he prepared his Eversheds statement. This may account for the change that he has introduced to his recent evidence in respect of the second man that he saw. In relation to the second man he now says that he was standing up and walking (not crawling) towards the entrance to Block1 and the reason that this man was not fired upon was because he had no gun. B1363.005 at paragraph 33

Justification for opening fire

18.7.4.145 002 has been clear throughout his evidence both in 1972 and to Eversheds that he instructed two of his soldiers to open fire on a man who was crawling away from them with his back to the troops. He is at pains to point out that Composite platoon did not fire indiscriminately, that he was familiar with the terms of the Yellow Card and that the firing by his men was within its terms. B1363.004 at paragraph 31 He also stresses that the men at the wall at Kells Walk were "frightened" and that "we were the guys being attacked" but there is no evidence to suggest that this is so. B1363.004 at paragraph 32

18.7.4.146 As Colour Sergeant in command of one half of Guinness Force it would have been this witness' job to carry out an ammunition check shortly after the incident that would have involved his men making a declaration in respect of rounds fired along with the reasons why. In his Treasury statement he says that this check happened. Private L would have been one of the soldiers involved in this. We now know that Private L fired at least one shot in contravention of the Yellow Card in the course of making an arrest and then covered this up in his RMP, Treasury solicitor and Widgery evidence. However it seems likely that Colour Sergeant 002 would have known this as a report of this incident was made to Captain 200/SA8 and Colour Sergeant 002 would have been the obvious person to have informed the Captain. This incident was referred to in Captain 200/SA8's RMP statement but nowhere else in his 1972 evidence.

[72] Colour Sergeant 002 justifies this shooting at B1363.004. He says that this shooting was within the terms of the Yellow Card and was under his direction. He says that the soldiers in the area were frightened and "we were the guys being attacked".

18.7.4.147 002 says that he does not believe that any of his platoon would have fired a rubber bullet on the day 1363.005. However see the passage (below) in relation to Corporal 039 and the circumstances in which he discharged a baton round in an area very close to the Colour Sergeant.

18.7.4.148 This witness believes that "one of the worst things that happened with the British Army was using rubber bullets in Northern Ireland. If live rounds had been used when we very first deployed in 1969 there would have been no rioting" B1363.004 paragraph 32. It is submitted that is a telling remark that provides an insight into the mindset of not only this witness but also the attitude of the 1Para senior NCOs. It should be noted that he is referring specifically to the use of live ammunition in the context of riots in contradistinction to gunmen. It chimes with the type of sentiment expressed in Colonel Dalzell-Payne's paper describing "disperse or we fire" crowd control tactics that were employed by the British army in the colonies. That this witness apparently still holds these views 30 years after Bloody Sunday is evidence of an utterly entrenched unapologetic and blasé attitude towards the unlawful use of lethal force against unarmed civilians in Northern Ireland.

18.7.4.149 Colour Sergeant 002 has provided, in concert with the soldiers under his command (whose evidence is considered in detail below), a false exculpatory account about the circumstances in which three members of Guinness Force opened fire on Kevin McElhinney as he was crawling for his life from the Rubble Barricade towards the perceived safety of the doorway of Block1 Rossville Flats. By providing the authority under which Soldiers L and M to open fire he is almost certainly attempting to comply with a shared and misconceived interpretation of the Yellow Card. This of course provides the explanation why both L amd M are happy to claim that they struck both their targets, notwithstanding strong inferences to the contrary.

18.7.4.150 In all likelihood, Sergeant K shot Kevin McElhinney and this aspect of the evidence as provided by 002, L and M is intended to prevent a truthful account of this incident emerging.

18.7.4.151 It is to be regretted that the opportunity to question this witness in respect of the above matters has been denied. The importance of his role within the overall scope of events on Bloody Sunday cannot be overemphasised. Questions in respect of his standards of leadership, his accuracy of recall, his integrity and his willingness to provide the justification within which the rules governing the discharge of weapons would in our respectful submission have provided invaluable assistance to the Tribunal. Is it coincidence that Colour Sergeant 002 also avoided giving oral evidence to Lord Widgery notwithstanding, then as in now he has supplied a detailed and inconsistent account of his role and the role of others that day. The differences between the various accounts as between himself and the other relevant members of Composite Platoon are self-evident and well known to the Inquiry, the important issue is why these matters have arisen and the lingering uncertainty which this witness' absence creates.

18.7.4.152 That absence enables any reasonable Inquiry to draw the following inferences:

i) In 1972, the witness was then and remains to day a willing participant in a conspiracy to conceal the precise circumstances in which soldiers unlawfully discharged their weapons.

ii) The evidence supplied by 002 demonstrates above all others the pertinacious nature of strategy which perversely places the actions of 1Para above the twin virtues of truth and repentance.

iii) The collective nature of this approach is almost certainly motivated by the belief that he and others were at the material time engaged in a war with both the victims and their supporters. To acknowledge a mistake 30 years later would amount to handing a moral victory to the Families. It is better to relive a vainglorious lie than live with the shame of an event that attracts universal condemnation.

Sergeant K

18.7.4.153 Sergeant K gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 364 to Day 365. It may be recalled that in his oral evidence the witness claimed that he was unhappy with certain parts of his Eversheds statement. Some of the matters that he expressed his unhappiness with related to very important aspects of his evidence. The witness was unable to give an explanation as to why he would have signed his Eversheds statement if it portions of it were inaccurate. Day 364/125/3 to Day 364/129/17.

18.7.4.154 When initially examined by Counsel for Madden & Finucane, the witness initially claimed not to remember how many drafts were prepared of his evidence or whether or not he had a solicitor advising him when he was preparing his statement for this Inquiry. Day 364/173/9 to Day 364/174/23 Counsel to the Tribunal informed Madden & Finucane that the witness was in fact represented when he attended with Eversheds.

18.7.4.155 Sergeant K described himself as a "Battallion marksman" and "a member of the Battallion shooting team" (Day 364/134/15). Other descriptions confirmed that he had won awards at Bisley. Colour Sergeant 002 recalls that Sergeant K was a "Bisley championship shot" B1363.006 paragraph 53

18.7.4.156 Also in his evidence K defined his role on the day as a bodyguard to the platoon commander (Colour Sergeant 002). If this is so it is unclear why was he at the low wall at Kells Walk prior to the arrival of Colour Sergeant 002. B1354, B1361

18.7.4.157 K recalled that as he debussed from his lorry people were "milling around and throwing stones. The nearest stone thrower was approximately 200 metres away." Day 364/141/19

18.7.4.158 Unlike Colour Sergeant 002 this witness managed to identify SLR weapons being discharged although he was not in a position to say what the firers were shooting at. The witness further confirmed that the only weapons that he could distinguish were SLR weapons. Day 364/142/18 However the witness was unable to assist or otherwise identify which members of Support Company were otherwise involved in firing.

18.7.4.159 Sergeant K makes no mention of coming under fire in any of his statements as the convoy made their way into Rossville Street or after the platoon debussed. He neither saw nor heard any explosions, nail bombs or petrol bombs.

1972 evidence

Events at the Low Wall

18.7.4.160 It will be recalled that in his RMP statement Sergeant K stated that as he advanced along Rossville Street he saw members of Support Company at the north east corner of Columbcille Court fire one or two shots towards "the flats area" B290. The witness at no time refers to coming under intense fire during the course of this advance and, indeed, during the course of his oral evidence he confirmed that they did not come under fire at this point.

18.7.4.161 K provides a very brief description of two men crawling from behind the Rubble Barricade on Rossville Street. In his RMP statement he states as follows:

> "I saw the rear man who was crawling appear to have a weapon in his hands. I cocked my weapon and fired 1x7.62 round aimed shot at him. I didn't observe a strike. L and M of my unit also fired at this gunman. I didn't observe the rounds they fired strike. The gunman disappeared into the flats. I fired no further rounds during this incident. I think that I may have hit the gunman when I fired at him."(emphasis added) B290 to B291

18.7.4.162 Later in his Treasury Solicitor statement made on 5th March 1972 the witness relates the following:

i) Soldiers L and M fired "almost simultaneously" with K. B298

ii) K goes on to say:

"By this time the first man had reached the doors of the flats and had been pulled in by people and the second man eventually got level with the door and several people came to the doorway and I saw them pull him in." B298

iii) K demonstrates a lack of comparative confidence in respect of whether his bullet struck the second man in his Treasury Solicitor statement:

"We saw two men doing a leopard crawl and I could see the rear man was carrying what I could clearly see was a rifle. I then cocked my rifle and fired one round at this man. I could not see this man too clearly except to say that he was wearing a dark suit. It is difficult to say whether in fact I hit the man." B298

18.7.4.163 Significantly, K's justification for firing has been strengthened but his confidence in respect of the outcome has been diminished. In our submission, the reason for this is that Sergeant K is not anxious to claim a hit that can be identified with any of the deceased or wounded when he knows perfectly well that the shot he fired in all probability was responsible for killing Kevin McElhinney.

18.7.4.164 In his evidence before this Tribunal Sergeant K, when being questioned by Counsel to the Tribunal, expressed confidence that he had hit the man at whom he was aiming:

> "Q. How confident are you that you hit the man at whom you were aiming?
> A. Because he appeared to lurch.
> Q. Should we understand from that that you are pretty confident that you did hit the man at whom you were aiming?
> A. Yes." Day 364/163/3 to Day 364/163/9

18.7.4.165 Sergeant K said that at all times he believed that his actions were within the terms of the Yellow Card but it will be recalled that the Yellow Card carried no legal weight and was purely for the guidance of the troops on the streets.

18.7.4.166 In order to provide enhanced justification for this shot K, during the course of this evidence before Widgery, testified that the second man was carrying a .303 rifle. Mr Hill BL, on behalf of the Families, asked the following:

> "Q. How much of the butt of the rifle do you think you saw?
> A good two thirds, sir.
> Q. Would that be 10"?
> Possibly a little bit more, sir.
> Q. Perhaps a foot?
> One cannot say the exact length.

Q. You fired as a result of seeing something which looked like ten or twelve inches of the butt of a rifle?

Yes.

Q And 150 metres away. Are you still sure that it was a rifle?

Yes, sir." B308 A-B

18.7.4.167 In his Eversheds statement for this Inquiry it will be recalled that the witness stated as follows:

"When he reached the doorway someone from within the crowd of people picked up the rifle and took it off him. It was then that I could see the whole length of the rifle through my telescopic sight. It was a No4 Lee Enfield rifle, known as the old .303. A .303 rifle is nearly 3 foot long and weighs approximately 14lbs. It has a wooden handguard and butt." B311.008 paragraph 21

18.7.4.168 It is unclear exactly how the witness was able to introduce this degree of specificity and tell this Tribunal that the alleged weapon was a No4 Lee Enfield[73] when he apparently was unable to provide this detail to the RMP or Lord Widgery.

18.7.4.169 The witness was further questioned about these matters. He agreed that he misled Widgery and this Tribunal when he claimed that the weapon was less than 3 feet in length when in fact it is 44.5inches long:

"Q. Can we look at paragraph 45, 311.013, please:
"I am asked at page 86 as to the basis of my belief that the weapon I saw the man carrying was a .303 rifle. My recollection now is that I am able to say that it was a .303 because I saw the rifle being carried into the Rossville Flats through my telescopic sight. I am asked at page 87 that although it is only the butt of the rifle that I see before I fire, whether it could have been some other type of object. I was sure then, as I am sure now, that it was a rifle."

Do you understand?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. You are telling this Tribunal that you saw the entire length of that rifle in that paragraph being carried into the flats; is that not right?

A. Yes.

Q. In order to support, if we go to paragraph 21 of your statement, please, in order to support this account you give some technical information about the Lee Enfield mark 4 rifle; is that not right?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. This was a favoured weapon among marksmen and snipers, although I use the words interchangeably; is that not right?

A. Yes.

Q. You say there:

"The .303 is nearly three feet long and weighs approximately 14lbs"; is that not right?

A. Yes.

Q. I am going to suggest to you that the youth you hit this day, the boy you hit this day, approximately five-foot eight in height; he was of medium build and he has about a 38-inch chest, he certainly wore a 38-inch jacket; he had a light frame. I do not want to draw up the morgue photographs to illustrate this, but I do not think I am describing him in a misleading way; do you understand?

A. Yes.

Q. The point is this: that information is as misleading as the other evidence that you have supplied this Tribunal with, in this sense: the mark 4, .303 Lee Enfield rifle is actually 44.5 inches long, almost four feet, the size of a good golf driver; do you understand?

A. Yes.

Q.And it weighs less than ten. You see, the reason you have mislead this Tribunal about a weapon that you would have had intimate familiarity with, is this: you in earlier evidence said you could not see the muzzle; do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. And in order to convince this Tribunal of the fact that a muzzle would not be visible, you had to reduce that weapon in size; did you not?

A. No.

Q. You reduced it to less than three feet, even though you would be aware as an experienced marksman that the .303 mark 4 is actually 44.5 inches long. This is information that could be independently checked by the Tribunal and I have no doubt if I was misleading you in any way, your counsel would be on his feet objecting furiously, so I want to be clear about this: this is a weapon which you have agreed you would have intimate familiarity with, 14 years at the time of this event; is that not right?

A. Yes.

Q. You would have fired it yourself; probably used it against human beings; would have been familiar with its workings, its accuracy, the type of sights you use, the type of ammunition you put in it; you would have known it inside out, you could have stripped it blindfolded. Why, then, did you attempt to represent it as something that was less than three feet?

A. I do not know.

Q. I am going to suggest to you again that this is an example of your cunning, you have a predisposition to be cunning, you see, just as most snipers do, concealing themselves, hiding facts, distortion, this is just another example of the cunning method that you employ to subtly wriggle out of a shot that you took that day and with hindsight are ashamed to admit to; do you understand?

A. Yes.

Q. Because you know a youth of a slight frame cradling a weapon with 10 inches of his butt showing; do you understand?

Q. Yes.

Q. The muzzle would have to show across the 38-inch-chested youth or a youth as lightly made up as Kevin McElhinney was; do you understand?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the next thing you did after you made that shot? And I am going to tell you what that shot was and I want you to be clear about the allegation I am making against you. This is what I would call an exhibition shot; do you know what I mean about that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. This was a shot taken by you that demonstrated your ability as a marksman and your willingness to take human life, the life of a young boy and in the sober light of a civilised human examination of those facts, you have cunningly wriggled your way round it, the history of it and wriggled in the account you have given in relation to it; do you understand?

A. Yes." Day 365/8/13 to Day 365/12/15

18.7.4.170 This lie became the fundamental basis for the taking of an innocent life. The added detail, which was intended to provide ever-increasing justification for the shot ironically, supplied the flaw, which ultimately exposed the inherently fabricated nature of the entire account. In case the point is completely lost, it would be impossible in the circumstances described by K to see 10-12 inches of rifle butt without seeing the muzzle unless the weapon was of a nature very much smaller in size than a .303 rifle.

18.7.4.171 Another example of this witness' propensity to misled when it is convenient for him to do so concerns the inconsistent means by which his target was originally viewed. During his evidence before Widgery, Mr Hill BL asked the following:

> "Q. Do you still say that you believe that it was a .303 rifle?
> A. I do, sir.
> Q. Simply from a recollection of a butt?
> A. Yes, sir.
> Q. At over 150 metres away?
> One forgets that the sniper scope has a slight magnification on it as well.
> Q. Slight, though, is that correct?
> A. Yes.
> Q. The main point of that instrument is to have the "X" – is there a cross mark?
> A. No sir, it is a pointer." B307 F - G

18.7.4.172 Three points arise:

i) Why did K not say that he saw the full rifle as alleged above in his Eversheds statement? B311.008 paragraph 21

ii) Why at in his Eversheds statement B311.007 paragraph 17 does K recall looking through a "cross wire" sight when he explicitly denied this to Mr Hill?

iii) If the witness is to be believed that the sight had a 2 ½ times' magnification then he would have been better placed that any of his colleagues to see that Kevin McElhinney was unarmed and crawling for his life. B311.007 paragraph 17

18.7.4.173 In our submission ultimately the Tribunal needs to ask itself:

i) What really compelled an expert marksman and Paratrooper of 14 years' experience to fire in circumstances that were without legal or moral justification?

ii) The real answer for this question can only be supplied by K but sadly that has not been forthcoming. An explanation is at best supplied by the objective evidence of the events that were occurring when K opened fire. Evidence suggests that of the 4 shots fired by L and M all missed. Indeed K himself in his original RMP statement confirms this fact. Civilian evidence also confirms that bullets were striking the pavement area around Kevin McElhinney, rather than Kevin McElhinney himself.

iii) The compelling indications are that K fired what he knew and understood to be "an exhibition shot" Day 365/12/2. The angle of entry and the position of the entry wound itself render it almost certain that the only person capable of making a shot of that quality, in those circumstances and with that accuracy was an individual with marksmanship capabilities and status. This proposition is evidenced further by the exchange with Counsel for the Families:

"Q. What was the first thing you did when you took that shot in what allegedly by you was a combat scenario?
A. Once I had taken the shot I would have fired at a man who was carrying a rifle, I continued to look through my sight.
Q. Did you? Can we look at letter E, B304 of your Widgery testimony, please. I want to read from letters E to F, if I can:

"Question: You think you all three saw them on your own accord?

"Answer: Yes, sir.

"Question: What happened when you fired at the second man?

"Answer: I may have hit him, I do not know because after that I just fired the one shot and I applied the safety catch."

That is an interesting thing to do after you have made a kill; why apply the safety catch in a combat situation?

A. I do not know.

Q. Because you knew when you made that shot, you killed a youth and you also knew you had killed him in circumstances where there was absolutely no need to have, in your words "one up the spout" and ready to go again; is that not right?

A. No, it is not.

Q. You, within the limit of your training, brought that weapon back; you made your exhibition shot, dead simple for you, you have already a flat line trajectory for a busy champion, piece of cake, even 035 said for ordinary infantry men it was a piece of cake, for you, you could have made that shot in your sleep. You took that weapon back and you applied the safety in circumstances where you are alleging your life and the lives of others were under risk. This is a .303, mark 4, getting trailed through a doorway into a block of flats where you know, as a trained sniper, you know there is a continued risk in existence, but yet you in that situation apply your safety. That is a nonsense, that flies in the face of every combat soldier's behaviour in an alleged combat situation. You know that.

Your discipline returned to you at that point in time, because you saw, just as other civilians have given evidence here, you saw the rounds bounce round that kid as he crawled, he crawled away from the dying and the dead behind that barricade because he did not want to join them; do you understand?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. He crawled, fighting for his life, a young boy; he worked in Liptons, stacking shelves, a 17-year old, stacking shelves in Lipton's supermarket, a citizen entitled to the same rights and protection. Your duty was to protect that kid, not use him as target practice; do you understand?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And you knew in that instant that the patience and the skill that you had learnt had deserted you by making that shot and that is why you applied the safety catch; is it not?

A. No, it is not." Day 365/12/16 to Day 365/15/1

18.7.4.174 It is contended that by the hardened and aggressive standards of the Parachute Regiment, if Kevin McElhinney had escaped to safety from the Barricade it would have made a mockery of the shooting abilities of the Composite Platoon members present at the Kells Walk low wall.

18.7.4.175 It is respectfully submitted that the following observations summarise Sergeant K's activities on Bloody Sunday:

i) At no time during the day whilst he was deployed in the Bogside did K experience incoming or enemy fire. Day 364/182/2 to Day 364/182/25 Day 364/185/6 to Day 364/185/21

ii) K was a highly trained and skilled professional who prior to his arrival in the Bogside had properly zeroed his weapon over the distance of anticipated use. Day 364/178/9 to Day 364/9/24. Before discharging the weapon he nursed his target for a period approaching 30 seconds. Day 364/179/10 to Day 364/179/18. He fired one shot that almost certainly struck and fatally wounded Kevin McElhinney.

iii) The witness confirmed both in 1972 and before the present Tribunal that he did not observe the rounds fired by Soldiers L and M strike their target. Interestingly he also had no recollection of any orders being given to fire. Day 364/159/8 to Day 364/159/14

iv) Sergeant K agreed that the central location of the entrance wound placed it in the category of "an exhibition shot". It is submitted that only he would have been qualified to strike his target with this level of precision. Day 365/12/2 to Day 365/12/15

v) Immediately after striking his target K adjusted his rifle to a position of safety. Day 365/13/2 to Day 365/13/10

vi) This would have been a highly unlikely act for an experienced soldier (14 years), during a combat situation or in circumstances where there was an immediate or future risk to him or his colleagues.

vii) Sergeant K was familiar with the likely attack positions that experienced gunmen or bombers would have taken up within the buildings and alleyways surrounding the Rossville Street area. Day 364/181/9 to Day 364/181/25 viii) Despite his skills and training in observation, Sergeant K confirmed that he saw no gunmen or bombers other than Kevin McElhinney. In fact the only weapons which K heard being fired that day were SLRs. Day 364/142/14 to Day 364/142/24

ix) Sergeant K's demeanour identified an individual who was quiet and resolute. However his standards of honesty still fell short of a public expression of contrition or allowing for the possibility of a mistake. In short, his evidence was consistent with the obdurate attitude shared by all military witnesses. This approach appears to be dictated by the view that any concession by military witnesses would amount to an admission of wrongdoing.

Private L

18.7.4.176 The easy option would be to dismiss the entirety of Private L's evidence as unreliable and unworthy of belief. Such an approach, of course, would only serve to ignore the assistance of which L provides in understanding the mindset of the soldiers who entered Rossville Street, their understanding of their task and the manner in which they set about completing it.

18.7.4.177 At the outset of his evidence before the Inquiry the witness confirmed that his principal role on the day was to "eradicate the IRA's hold on Londonderry". B343 at paragraph 13 In his oral evidence he goes on to explain that this was the sole of objective of the operation, as described by Colonel Wilford and Captain 200. Day 381/4/9 to Day 381/5/22

18.7.4.178 The confusion in the minds of ordinary troops on the ground is further indicated by an alleged belief that anyone who saw Bernadette Devlin should shoot her on sight. B344 paragraph 16

18.7.4.179 When asked about this matter by Counsel to the Tribunal Miss McGahy, Private L said the following:

> "MS McGAHEY: Later in your statement you say:
> "There was an order to shoot Ms Devlin."
> Was there an order to shoot her?
> A. It would not have gone amiss, um -- it would not have been, um, a problem. It would have been part of our daily work to, um, eliminate terrorists.

Q. It would have been part of your daily work to eliminate Ms Devlin, whatever she was doing?

A. To eliminate terrorists, that is it.

Q. My question was: was there an order to shoot Ms Devlin?

A. Yes, through that battalion, yes, there was.

Q. Who gave that order?

A. No-one gave the order in particular, okay. See, the Parachute Regiment is a very, um, well-disciplined, well-trained -- we are trained even up to two men to be able to conduct ourselves in the field of battle and it is up to two men, what is its name -- can make their own decisions when they are in the field of battle. Um, you know, so it was down to any pairing or two men, four men, six men, eight men we work in and it was up to any of them, in those groupings, to carry out what he saw fit; we was trained enough to be reliable enough to take a proper decision at the time.

Q. Would that include a decision to shoot Ms Devlin on sight?

A. Any terrorist.

Q. And you took Ms Devlin to be a terrorist?

A. Yes." Day 381/9/12 to Day 381/10/13

18.7.4.180 Arguably this witness more than any other typifies the military attitude and approach to the events of this day viz that the concept of any individual or collective wrongdoing is not just unlikely but utterly unthinkable.

18.7.4.181 In relation to Private L's description of the events of the day, his evidence does not become any less controversial.

Private L's shot (or shots) into the rafters

18.7.4.182 In his initial account as provided to the RMP at 2.25am on 31st January 1972 Private L describes the event in the following way:

i) "We made our way down Rossville Street and we were under fire from the bottom end of the road. At one stage I was in one of the derelict houses at the side of the road when I heard some movement and I saw a man climbing along the rooftops" (emphasis added). B312

ii) "I arrested the man at gunpoint and took him back to the Bn arrest team where he was processed". B312

18.7.4.183 In his Treasury Solicitor statement made on 5th March 1972 the witness alleges that he and another soldier took cover inside the building and while they were there they heard a noise in the rafters. Both shouted to the individual to come down. The civilian then stood up, told the soldiers that he was unable to come down and by way of persuasion, Private L cocked his weapon and the man immediately responded by jumping to the ground. B320

18.7.4.184 In the course of his evidence before Lord Widgery the witness provided an account which for the most part complies with the above, save that he states that he made two requests of the individual to come down before cocking his weapon. B326 at A

18.7.4.185 In his Eversheds statement at Private L alleged that he pursued "a number of rioters into the building" (emphasis added). The witness goes on to say that one of these rioters was located by him in the rafters. In his own words he ordered him to "get the fuck down". The civilian replied that he could not and Private L told him that he "had better" and at this point the individual jumped down. B345 paragraphs 25 to 27

18.7.4.186 Significantly the witness has not only supplied two conflicting accounts in respect of the one incident but he has further deliberately attempted to minimise the level of aggression demonstrated in the earlier accounts, viz, cocking the weapon. An explanation for adopting this approach is almost certainly to be found in the fact that the other soldier who was present, namely Lance Corporal 229 identifies Private L as having discharged one high velocity shot into in the general direction of the civilian (who was Joseph Lynn) in the rafters. It may be recalled that Mr Lynn was emphatic in his evidence to the Inquiry that two shots were in fact discharged by Private L Day 193/13/14 to Day 193/13/16. When Lance Corporal 229 was asked about this matter in his evidence, Counsel to the Tribunal Miss McGahy addressed the matter by putting Private L's evidence to Lance Corporal 229:

> "I have a vague recollection of another soldier being in the area of the doorway, but this is only the vaguest recollection and I do not remember who this might have been. Any soldier who says I fired in this derelict building is mistaken."
> Could you be mistaken?
> A. I am not mistaken.
> Q. The man who was in the building, a man called Joseph Lynn, has given a statement to the Inquiry and he has also given oral evidence. He confirms your recollection that a soldier fired, although his recollection is that the soldier fired two shots. Might Soldier L have fired two shots?
> A. One shot.
> Q. And you are certain about that?
> A. Certain." Day 341/39/3 to Day 341/39/18

18.7.4.187 Lance Corporal 229 further confirmed that Private L, at the material time was hyped up, had the appearance of someone who was very frightened and by nature was "very excitable". Day 341/40/1 to Day 341/40/10

When these matters were put to Private L in the course of his evidence he denied the allegation and referred in his evidence to the Yellow Card and that it did not permit firing shots into the air and further that when he would open fire that he would shoot to kill. Day 341/29/4 to Day 341/29/12

18.7.4.188 By of concluding this point the witness was also reminded that a record had been made by Captain 200 in his RMP statement dated 5th February 1972 as follows:

> "Soldier L: 1 x 7.62 in rafters of ruin at possible sniper in roof --deliberate miss after two warnings to come down. Man jumped down from roof (15 feet) and was arrested. Roof not searched for weapons." B1983

> Captain 200 further recorded:
> "I am absolutely satisfied that none of my soldiers fired 7.62 rounds before being subjected to enemy fire. All rounds fired, except for one by L in the ruin, were controlled by senior NCOs and directed at gunmen, either in the Rossville Flats or behind the barricade." B1983

18.7.4.189 In our submission the inescapable inference that the Tribunal should draw from this evidence is that:

i) Private L did fire at least one round in the derelict building in clear breach of the Yellow Card;

ii) It was well known within Composite Platoon that he had done so;

iii) It must have been known to Private L's superiors that he was lying to the RMP, Treasury Solicitor and Lord Widgery that L was providing untruthful evidence in order to cover up the circumstances in which he did fire on Bloody Sunday and nothing was done about it.

18.7.4.190 Another peculiar feature of this witness' evidence concerns Private's L reference to INQ1671 and his description of the shot fired by him at the gunman who was simultaneously struggling to remove a revolver from his waistband. The incident is set out in some detail in Private L's statement at B346.1 paragraph 30. We do not propose to examine this in any detail but rather to highlight the point that was made by Counsel to the Inquiry, namely, that the witness never recounted this dramatic and apparently memorable event to the RMP, Treasury Solicitor or the Widgery Tribunal.

18.7.4.191 When initially pressed as to why it was not mentioned to the RMP the witness apologised and said that he did not know. Day 381/42/20 When pressed further the witness replied that he was told to leave certain things out which did not "pertain" to him. When reminded that during the course of his evidence to Lord Widgery that he provided he had provided evidence concerning the activities of other soldiers, (his colleagues who fired at the alleged leopard crawlers) Private L expressed himself in the following terms:

> "Q. In that case, why not report to Lord Widgery the killing that you had witnessed?
> A. Um, because, again, it was not in my statement. I only refer to which is mine. It is like this statement, I am only referring to pieces that is in this statement.
> There is many things in this statement that is left out as well, but I am not supposed to mention it, or you would not like to hear it, anyhow. If you really want to deal with the truth, you know what I mean, um.
> I could explain several things like, you know, but you would not like to hear that.
> Q. Soldier L, are you suggesting that you have relevant evidence to give about the events of Bloody Sunday that you have been asked not to give?

A. Yes, because it is nothing to do with me.
Q. Was it the solicitors for the Inquiry who took your statement who told you not to give those accounts?
A. There are certain things, yes, they told me, nothing to do with me, yes, keep out of it. Do not get myself involved, just stick to the facts of what I know, what I can remember, and that.
Q. Do you have anything in particular in mind which you think relevant that you were told not to tell the Inquiry?
A. I think there is many things relevant. Again, I must stick to the facts. It is nothing to do with me, that is somebody else's.
Q. Did you witness anything taking place on Bloody Sunday that you have been asked by anyone not to reveal?
A. You would need another two years on this Inquiry if I told you that. (Laughing). I know you want to wrap it up at the end of this month, you know, so. Sorry.
Q. What is it that you saw that you have not told the Inquiry?
A. There is all different things. The whole day was a cacophony of all sorts of different things happening." Day 381/44/4 to Day 381/45/15

18.7.4.192 In our submission there are certain conclusions that should be drawn from this evidence. Whilst it might be convenient for the Tribunal to dismiss L's evidence as untrustworthy and unreliable, certain aspects of his evidence add weight to the reasonable suspicion that all soldiers understood they should tailor their evidence in a manner designed to create and preserve a fabricated matrix of events devoid of controversy or culpability.

18.7.4.193 This witness supplies further evidence which when taken at its height presents a highly disturbing image of Soldier H completely out of control, discharging an estimated full magazine into the prone body of a civilian in the middle of Rossville Street, B345.1 paragraphs 33 to 35. The incident may well serve to highlight a confused and highly inaccurate recollection, although it has echoes of evidence which may have some basis in fact, tenuous though it may be. For example, the Tribunal has heard evidence that Soldier H discharged more than a full magazine of ammunition in highly controversial circumstances, which have never been adequately explained. The Tribunal is aware that an allegation concerning the shooting of at least one of deceased on the ground has yet to be determined, while L's evidence may be visually confused, his memory is more than likely to have been adversely influenced by conversation, subsequent experience and his own colourful imagination.

Events at the low wall at Kells Walk

18.7.4.194 The most controversial incident involving this witness occurred shortly after his arrival behind a low wall at Kells Walk. In his initial statement to the RMP the witness described the event in the following way:

i) "I could see two figures lying on the ground behind the barricade. As I watched, the two men started to leopard crawl away from the barricades (sic) and they appeared to be cradling rifles in their arms. At that point 002 told us to fire at the two men and I aimed my rifle at one and fired. I am sure I hit the man that I aimed at, but after lurching, he continued crawling along with the other man. As the man was making for a doorway I again fired at him a single shot and again I think I hit him." B312, B313

ii) However, in the meantime, the second man, who had been fired on by other members of my force, had gained the shelter of the doorway and he pulled the first man into the doorway with him. A few seconds later, a shot was fired from the doorway into which the two men had vanished." B313

iii) The witness then goes on to relate that immediately following the event, he and his colleagues were ordered to withdraw. He expresses the opinion that his second shot man well have struck both men. He describes the first man as wearing a light grey suit and having fair hair. He describes the second man as wearing a dark blue suit. B313

18.7.4.195 On 5th March 1972 Private L made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor and described the same incident in the following way:

i) manner consistent with having been struck. B320 His initial observation at the barricade now involved only one man acting suspiciously, ("the man was lying down behind the barricade"). B320

ii) The witness then brings this person's presence to the attention of the Colour Sergeant 002. At this time the man had begun "creeping" along the side of the flats. B320

iii) Private L believed that the man had a rifle cradled in his arms but he could not say what type of rifle it was. B320

iv) Colour Sergeant 002 ordered him to fire. B320

v) Private L discharged one round and the man lurched over in a vi) At this point a second man left the vicinity of the barricade and very soon began pulling the wounded man along with him. A second member of Private L's platoon then shot the first man again but both men carried on moving. B320

vii) Private L then shot the first man for a third time but he believed that his bullet may have struck both men. B320 viii) It was at this point that Private L could see the second man cradling the rifle which had originally been in the possession of the first. The second man then dragged the body into the doorway of the flats. B320

18.7.4.196 Private L subsequently gave oral evidence to Lord Widgery in the following terms:

i) The witness confirmed that he could see the rifle and that when this happened it was he who pointed it out to the Colour Sergeant 002 who in turn ordered him to fire. B327 D to E

ii) He further stated he saw the man "jump" in a manner consistent with a strike.

iii) He then confirmed that "several, or one other soldiers fired at the man as well"

iv) Private L believed that this shot and a second shot fired by him struck the first man. At this point the witness said that he also saw the second man lurch up against the wall about the same time as the other man fell away. At this point he saw the rifle against the second man's chest. He stated that the rifle was either a carbine or an armalite. B329 A

v) Both men entered the safety of the doorway and within moments a man re-appeared and fired two to three rounds in their general direction. B329 A to C

vi) The witness confirmed that altogether three shots were fired in a matter of seconds. B335 at G

vii) Private L further confirmed that Colonel Wilford was present. B327 at F

18.7.4.197 In his evidence before the present Tribunal the witness initially alleged that both men were armed with either carbines, Kalashnikovs or .303s but later admitted that he was simply guessing because the .303 rifle was a common weapon used by the IRA in 1972. Day 381/79/22 to Day 381/80/23. Significantly when giving evidence before Widgery he stated that the weapon "definitely was not a .303". B329 at A

18.7.4.198 He now maintains that both men were cradling rifles across their arms as they crawled "professionally" to the door of Block1. Private L now says that he fired two shots at the second man first and that the first man, who was furthest away, then picked up the wounded man's rifle. This meant that the first man moved towards the door with two rifles and he fired at him causing him to smash through the glass at the door on Block1. B346.3 paragraphs 41 to 44. As Counsel to the Tribunal pointed out, the door at Block1 had no glass. P662 The witness then conceded that point. Day 381/93/21 to Day 381/93/25

18.7.4.199 It is submitted that this evidence is even more implausible and misleading than the evidence Private L gave in 1972. It is worth remembering that Private L admitted to having nightmares that were more real to him than what happened on the day. Day 381/140/7 to Day 381/140/15

Private L's last target

18.7.4.200 Private L concluded his RMP statement by saying that as they withdrew along Rossville Street he and his colleagues were fired upon from a derelict building. According to Private L he returned two rounds at this gunman. B314 The witness however did not mark the position of this gunman on the trajectory map appended to his RMP statement. B315 It is submitted that this is simply another example of Private's willingness to invent an incident which did not occur in order to explain the unlawful discharge of his weapon. The alleged incident is significantly undermined by the fact that no other witness corroborates this incident as having taken place. Moreover Private L actively avoided supplying details of where the alleged gunman was concealed at the earliest opportunity.

18.7.4.201 Quaere whether this might be Private L attempting to account for the two rounds that Lynn says were fired inside the derelict building[74]. To complicate matters even further, Captain 200 in his RMP statement, records one of Private L's 4 shots as being at the same gunman in Block 1 as Soldiers C and D.[75]

[74] See also the Eversheds statement of L/Cpl 010: "Shortly afterwards, somebody said that they saw a man with a rifle in the window of a derelict factory nearby. Someone called Sgt K who looked through the telescopic sight of his rifle to check the target. He identified the target as being another soldier from a different regiment. Therefore, nobody opened fire." B1395.009 paragraph 71

[75] See B1983

18.7.4.202 If one is to consider Private L's evidence as a whole, the Tribunal is confronted, inter alia, with the following:

i) Subject to the Tribunal's assessment in respect of Lance Corporal 229 and Joseph Lynn, Private L deliberately lied about the discharge of his weapon the derelict building at the north western corner of Rossville Street.[76]

ii) He ultimately misled both the RMP, Treasury Solicitor and Lord Widgery in relation to the total number of shots fired from the low wall at Kells Walk i.e. he said there were 3 shots when in fact we know that these soldiers have admitted between them firing 5. B335 at G

iii) Not only does Private L confuse the precise circumstances in which he discharged his shots from the low wall at Kells Walk but he also confused the number of weapons that justified his opening fire i.e. whether there was one weapon or two.

iv) Further, he confuses the very individuals against whom his unlawful acts were directed, viz, initially shooting the first man in his evidence before Lord Widgery and initially shooting the second man in his evidence before Lord Saville.

v) The underlying weakness of any deception or lie is invariably found in the detail. It is axiomatic, that Private L's evidence before this Inquiry is based upon a faulty and unreliable recollection of an event which was dishonestly represented 32 years ago. It is not surprising therefore that an event which would mark the psyche of any human being, whether military, civilian or otherwise and which is distorted for the purposes of justifying an unlawful act is destined to be reproduced over such a period of time in such an unreliable and confused manner. In our submission this is a witness who has extreme difficulty weaving any pattern of consistency around the very lie that he has cultivated for the purposes of concealing his true role in the commission of an act of murder.

vi) Setting aside the general inconsistencies as set out below between Soldiers K, L and M along with their co-conspirators the principal problem confronting this Tribunal involves separating the half truths from the half lies which have been woven into the overall pattern of the Army's explanation for the events of this day. Private L's account of this event is so manifestly inconsistent that no Tribunal of fact could rely upon any of exculpatory accounts that he has given in respect of the Composite Platoon's 5 shots that were fired at Kevin McElhinney.

Private M

18.7.4.203 This witness admits to firing 2 rounds on Bloody Sunday. He made two statements to the RMP, one to the TsoL, gave evidence at Widgery and has provided a statement to Eversheds. On Bloody Sunday he was armed with both a SLR and a riot gun. He was normally a driver in the Motor Transport section of the Battalion. He says that he now has no sense of time or a clear memory of the day. His role was to provide protection to Corporal 039 who was armed with a riot gun and Sterling SMG.

1972 Evidence

18.7.4.204 This witness made his first 1 RMP statement on 31st January 1972 at 12.35hrs:

i) "On our advance we came under fire from snipers located in the flats and from the main crowd contained behind the barricade." B347

ii) The witness continued by further stating:

"As we neared the main crowds location behind the barricade we came under attack from youths throwing nail bombs and petrol bombs. The weather conditions were good and visibility was clear. As I neared the barricade, about 130 yards, at GR43151675 I could see the barricade and the crowd behind it. We were being heavily stoned, bottled and shot at." B348

iii) At this point Private M asserts that he saw two males crawling along the western side of Block1 in a southerly direction. He claimed that both men were "pushing long black stick shaped objects in front of them and that they were heading for a good sniper location where they could have shot a number of troops advancing towards the barricade". B348

iv) The witness went on to say that he fired one aimed shot at each man and in response "both men jerked and rolled over". B348

v) According to M a crowd gathered around both men and dragged them into the Flats. This crowd had also managed, somehow, to keep the soldiers at bay and although the scene was examined afterwards nothing was found. B348

vi) Private M concludes his first account by expressing confidence that he hit both men and during the entire operation he fired only two rounds as outlined above. He described one man as wearing "a dark suit and the other in a grey suit". B348

18.7.4.205 Four days later, on 4th February 1972 M made another RMP statement. B356

i) In his account M alleges that he was "about 30 metres west of the junction of Rossville Street and Eden Place". B356

ii) He describes how bottles and stones were being thrown at his position. He was accompanied by 039 who carried an anti-riot gun. According to M he heard the sound of gunfire and saw approximately 3 bullets strike the ground at the aforementioned junction. He located the gunman in Rossville Flats who was positioned "on the top floor balcony on the north east wall of Block2 about 15 metres from the south east corner of the Block, 200 metres from my position. The man was leaning over the balcony in the aim position and appeared to be holding a rifle. The man was wearing a dark coloured jacket and light trousers. I saw another member of my regiment engage the gunman from a position on the waste ground" B356, B357

iii) The witness then went on to relate how the gunman ran in a southeasterly direction out of sight. B357

18.7.4.206 Approximately one month later on 5th March 1972 Private M provided a further account of the incident described in both of these statements to the Treasury Solicitor. This can be found at B359.

i) In this statement, M states that there was a general order to go forward and disperse the crowd which was mainly behind the Barricade in Rossville Street. B359

ii) He explains that he was ordered to "make arrests where necessary". In this regard he provided cover to Soldier 039 who was armed with an anti-riot gun.

iii) He describes the incident outlined in his second RMP statement, and with the exception of some minor variations e.g. an increased number of shots possibly now from an automatic weapon, from "the upper storeys" as opposed to a precise location. B360

iv) The witness continues by outlining the circumstances by which he and Corporal 039 advanced along Rossville Street towards low wall at Kells Walk. In particular, he describes the combination of high velocity and pistol shots, which were fired from the Barricade itself. He also describes how he heard the sound of exploding nail bombs in the same area. Further, he describes seeing a petrol bomb explode. It was at this point that Corporal 039 pointed out two men behind the barricade

"crawling along the base of the wall of the block of Rossville Flats nearest to us". B360

v) Private M sets out his justification for firing in the following way:

"To me both men appeared to be each cradling something in their arms and from their shape and length and from their black colour was that they were rifles. There is no real doubt in my mind that these objects were anything but rifles. I then had a shouted conversation with Soldier 039 amidst all the noise that was going on. He had pointed out the men to me previously and now shouted to me "They're carrying something". He added "They look like rifles" and I shouted "They are rifles". I had by that time cocked my weapon and I then took an aimed shot at the first man who by that time was almost at the door of the flats. The man appeared to jerk and fall forward. Both his hands were forward with the rifle cradled in his arms just at the door of the Flats and he was dragged inside. By this time another soldier nearby had already taken another aimed shot at the second man crawling behind who was still crawling. I then took an aimed shot at this man. He gave a jerk and fell to his side and rolled slightly but he carried on crawling cradling the rifle in his arms. Another soldier took another aimed shot at the man but he still kept crawling." B360, B361

18.7.4.207 In his sworn evidence before Lord Widgery the witness was asked the following by Counsel for the Army:

"Q. You went forward there and it was then you heard some firing?

Yes

Q. Where did it appear to come from?

From the centre flat of the Rossville Flats.

Q. The centre block?

Yes, the centre block." B365 B-C

18.7.4.208 The reader will observe that this description contains a number of variations which when read alongside the account provided in his second RMP statement B356, B357 and the Treasury Solicitor statement B360 so as to approach this aspect of the witness' evidence in a circumspect and cautious manner. This is particularly so given that these variations become even more remarkable in the light of the contents of his Eversheds statement B372.003 paragraphs 13 to 15.

18.7.4.209 In his statement to this Tribunal, Private M was not only incapable of identifying the type and nature of fire allegedly experienced but also the location from which this fire was allegedly directed:

> "It was impossible to say from the way in which the bullet struck the road what particular type of weapon had just been fired in our direction, or where the weapon had been fired from but it was instantly obvious that we were under fire of some kind." B372.003 paragraph 13

18.7.4.210 It should also be recalled of course that the witness made no mention of this incident at all in his first RMP statement made within hours of the event.

039's actions at Kells Walk

18.7.4.211 Private M says that himself and Corporal 039 ran along maisonettes at Kells Walk and he can remember a woman screaming abuse at a window of one of the flats at Kells Walk B372.003. What he chooses to omit from this incident is important. We refer the Tribunal to the statement of Kathleen Kelly (Michael Kelly's mother) who was in her sister's house at 2 Kells Walk AK 14.3 paragraph 16. Mrs Kelly's sister Martha was apparently shouting at the soldiers to stop shooting and a journalist who was in the maisonette attempted to take photographs of the scene outside the flat. Corporal 039 discharged a rubber bullet through the window smashing it. Mrs Kelly's niece, Mary Smith, had to be treated in hospital as a result as some of the glass went into her eyes. Unlike Corporal 039, Private M does not mention any missiles etc being thrown from this flat or indeed any of the other maisonettes in Kells Walk that might have justified the firing of the baton round. It seems unlikely that if Private M was indeed fulfilling his duty in protecting Corporal 039 that he could have missed this incident. In our submission we say that the Tribunal must conclude that Private M's omission could only have been motivated by a deliberate attempt to exclude any incidents which would not cast a good light on the activities of the Paratroopers on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.4.212 The principal incident in which this witness was involved concerns the murder Kevin McElhinney. It will be recalled that when the witness provided his initial statement to the RMP he saw two men crawling "along the south west flats at GR43161663. They were pushing long black stick shaped objects in front of them." B348

18.7.4.213 In his Treasury Solicitor statement the witness, in keeping with all military witnesses concerned with this event, describes the movements of the two men away from the Barricade as being a "leopard crawl". Significantly however he asserts in this version that both men were actually cradling the weapons. B360

18.7.4.214 In his sworn evidence before Lord Widgery the witness asserted that "both men appeared to be carrying weapons in the crook of their arms". B367 A To add to this confusion the witness when providing a statement to Eversheds claimed that the men were both carrying or dragging rifles which were on their right hand side and accordingly totally visible to anyone in his position near the low wall at Kells Walk. B372.004 paragraphs 23 to 24

18.7.4.215 When asked about these discrepancies in the course of his evidence to this Tribunal the witness, clearly alert to the issue, supplied a number of explanations:

i) For example, in relation to the description "long black stick shaped objects" he blamed the RMP for recording a confident assertion that they were weapons in this uncertain manner. Day 365/95/3 to Day 365/96/12

ii) It will be recalled that the witness supplied a number of descriptions in respect of the manner in which the men allegedly carried their weapons. For the purpose of his evidence before the Inquiry Private M preferred the description of "cradling" which he maintained was much the same as "pushing". However in his statement to Eversheds, as outlined above, the witness alleged that this description was intended to refer only to the "butts" of rifles! Day 365/125/11 to Day 365/126/10. By way of comment, it is difficult to acknowledge Private M as an unfortunate individual who in addition to having his confident assertions reduced to expressions of visual uncertainty by the RMP, also being encouraged to supply descriptions to Eversheds of the obvious in a manner that is not only ambiguous but materially misleading. In other words, the RMP and Eversheds made errors when interviewing Private M but M, in the end was still content enough to sign both statements.

iii) A minor point arising from this concerns a description from Corporal 039 in respect of the second man "who appeared to be trailing a weapon with him". B1642 Corporal 039 repeats this description in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor. B1650 The fact that both soldiers are prepared to provide one description, namely "dragging" (as in the case of Private M) or "trailing" (as in the case of 039) and then re-interpret it in a manner more consistent with the description provided by other soldiers, namely "cradling" (as in the case of Sergeant K and Private L) demonstrates a willingness to provide a convenient, if not totally dishonest, but similar account among the military witnesses concerned in the shooting of Kevin McElhinney.

18.7.4.216 In his RMP statement Private M makes no reference to Corporal 039 at all, including the alleged conversation that took place prior to the discharge of his SLR. When Private M then made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor in which he related the following:

> "It was then that Soldier 039 pointed out to me two men who were behind the barricade crawling along the base of the wall of the block of Rossville Flats nearest to us. I observed that both men were crawling along in what I assumed to be a leopard crawl position. To me both men appeared to be each cradling something in their arms and from their shape and length and from there (sic) black colour my opinion was that they were rifles. There is no real doubt in my mind that these objects were anything but rifles. I then had a shouted conversation with soldier 039 amidst all the noise which was going on. He had pointed out previously and now shouted to me "They're carrying something". He added "They look like rifles" and I shouted "They are rifles". (emphasis added) B360

18.7.4.217 In his sworn evidence to Lord Widgery his account of what his superior NCO said to him becomes a positive assertion rather than an assumption:

> "Q. Did you believe them to be in fact rifles?
> Yes, I did.
> Q. What did you do?

I then held a shouted conversation with Soldier 039. He shouted that they appeared to be carrying something. Then he added *they were rifles. I said they were and I had cocked my weapon by this time and I put an aimed shots down at the first man."(emphasis added) B367 at B

18.7.4.218 In our submission this provides a further indication of this witness' willingness to deceive whilst under oath. If he did this before a Tribunal of fact in 1972, it must only be concluded that he is willing to do this in front of this Tribunal.

Lance Corporal 010

18.7.4.218 This witness made one statement to the RMP and one to Eversheds. There are a number of significant discrepancies between both accounts. Lance Corporal 010 remembers being armed only with a riot gun. He described them as "lovely at knocking people over" B1395.003 at paragraph 17.

18.7.4.219 In summary, this is what he told the RMP at 15.10 on 4th February 1972[77]:

i) As he debussed he was amongst CS gas. As he put on his gasmask he heard shots fired but he did not see from where these came. B1393

ii) He then ran forward to where an APC and Ferret humber which was parked across the junction of Rossville Street and Eden Place. (This must be a reference to Major Loden's vehicle and the accompanying Ferret.) B1393

iii) Along with another soldier he moved to the low wall at Kells Walk. Whilst at this position he saw Private L fire two aimed shots towards a barricade in Rossville Street. Lance Corporal 010 "did not actually see his target but when I looked towards the barricade I saw a male person apparently dragging the body of a second male towards the flats". B1393

iv) A short while later they were withdrawn to a derelict building on the corner of Rossville Street and William Street. He heard a high velocity shot which seemed to come from Chamberlain Street and a short SMG burst although he was unable to say from which direction it came. B1394

v) He saw no civilians carrying firearms or offensive weapons. B1394

vi) Shots that he heard "did not come from British Army calibre weapons and they did not come from areas in which the Bn was deployed." B1394

18.7.4.220 It is submitted that even on this account Lance Corporal 010 saw nothing near the two men in whose direction Private L fired that could have justified that firing or else he would have said so. Moreover, by the stage that he claims to have heard a shot coming from the area of Chamberlain Street all of the firing would have ceased in that area for some time. It is further respectfully submitted that the burst of SMG fire did not occur. It is not referred to by any of the witness' colleagues who were in the aggro corner area and nor can it be heard on any of the actuality footage that the Inquiry has obtained.

18.7.4.221 It is not proposed to deal with every discrepancy between the accounts given by the witness to the RMP and Eversheds. However by way of example we summarise below some of the most glaring:

i) Upon debussing he heard incoming shots (probably rifle fire) from the general direction of the Rossville Flats and were aimed at Composite Platoon. B1395.005 at paragraph 36. In 1972 he was unable to say from where the shots were fired nor the type.

ii) In respect of deployment he now says that the whole of Guinness Force walked down Rossville Street in four sections

"in an extended line across the road, one section behind the other". . B1395.005 at paragraph 44 In our submission this simply did not happen. It is contradicted by all of the photographic evidence available and is not corroborated by a single other witness.

iii) After 4-8 rubber bullets were fired at the Barricade as many as 20 rounds were fired at Guinness Force. B1395.006 at paragraph 53 This was not mentioned to the RMP in 1972.

iv) A soldier to his right hit a man twice leaning up against the Rubble Barricade. This man "definitely" had a rifle. B1395.007 at paragraph 62. In 1972, Lance Corporal 010 said that he did not actually see any civilians with weapons.

v) A soldier to his left fired 2 rounds at a target in the doorway of Block1. The witness also now has a memory of seeing 2 or 3 pistol flashes come from the doorway that he did not appear to have in 1972. B1395.008 paragraphs 64 to 65

18.7.4.222 He commenced his oral evidence by pointing out that after having had a chance to read his RMP statement, he realised that he may have been confused in respect of matters set out in his Eversheds statement. He also said that he may have been confused by events that took place on other occasions and further by what he may have read or heard about Bloody Sunday. Day 355/72/3 to Day 355/72/22.

18.7.4.223 This was a particularly odd comment to make given the fact that the witness clearly had his RMP statement put to him during his Eversheds interview and he commented upon it in detail. B1395.010 paragraph 84

18.7.4.224 Lance Corporal 010 in his oral evidence said that he was "happy to stand by" the contents of his RMP statement as it was made closer to the time. Day 355/77/19 to Day 355/77/25. It was a feature of this witness' oral evidence that when these discrepancies were put to him that would reply that he must be confused with other incidents.

18.7.4.225 Crucially, when questioned about the two alleged shooting incidents referred to in his Eversheds statement, the witness said that he in fact did not have a memory of seeing any weapon:

> "Q. In the succeeding paragraphs that we see on this screen, you describe your recollection of seeing two soldiers, one on your left and one on your right, who fired shots from their SLRs. Like them, as you say, you would have been scanning the rubble barricade for any civilian with a weapon; that is right, is it not?
> A. I would have been scanning not only the barricade, the tall rise buildings as well.
> Q. As a result of that, did you see a civilian with a weapon?
> A. At that particular time, to be able to verify 100 per cent, no.
> Q. Sir, I suppose I make my question quite clear: before either of your two colleagues fired, you did not see a civilian with a weapon; is that right?
> A. To my knowledge, no." (emphasis added) Day 355/106/17 to Day 355/107/7

18.7.4.226 When Counsel for the Families put the evidence concerning the actions of this witness' colleague Corporal 039, who was also armed with a baton gun and fired it through the window of 2 Kells Walk, Lance Corporal 010 appeared to draw some amusement from this incident and from his experience whilst in the witness box. Day 355/116/25 to Day 355/120/3

18.7.4.227 Like each and every one of his colleagues he denied knowledge of the wounding of Mary Breslin (nee Smith). Moreover, like each and every one of his colleagues he did not see, according to his evidence, the unjustified shootings of the unarmed civilians on the Barricade or his colleagues use Kevin McElhinney as target practice as he crawled from that position for his life.

Sergeant 014

18.7.4.228 Sergeant 014 was an experienced member of the Parachute Regiment. He had served 13 years by the time of Bloody Sunday. He gave evidence to the Tribunal on Day 372. In keeping with all members of Composite Platoon who gave evidence in respect of events at the Presbyterian Church, he recalls only the one shot during that period.

18.7.4.229 Sergeant 014 supplies an additional illustration of the confused attitudes expressed by the majority of soldiers in respect of their principal objectives and duties on the day:

> "Q. If we look at paragraph 18, you say about the arrest operation, that you would go in and "grab who we could".
>
> What do you mean by "grab who we could"?
> A. Well, people that was on the illegal march.
> Q. Did you understand your task to be: go in, de-buss and just grab the first people you could find or were you going to grab people who were in the act of rioting?
> A. In the act of rioting." Day 372/10/6 to Day 372/10/13

18.7.4.230 The Tribunal will of course be aware that the weight to be attached to answers supplied to leading questions is significantly less than should be attached to information which is independently volunteered.

18.7.4.231 The real explanation for an experienced NCO failing to understand the difference between a marcher and a rioter exists because this man was never supplied with such a distinction before going to Derry. Support for this proposition is helpfully illustrated by recalling the broad objectives outlined in the operational order at G95.566:

"8 Infantry Brigade is, on 30th January, to prevent any illegal march taking place from the Creggan, and to contain it, together with any accompanying rioting, within the Bogside and Creggan areas of the city. It is also to disperse illegal marchers from other parts of the city and is to prevent damage by rioters and bombers to business, shopping and Protestant areas of Londonderry."

18.7.4.232 In addition to the gunfire, which this witness heard while debussing in Rossville Street, this was the only member of Composite Platoon who also heard gunfire and nail bombs explode before he debussed. Day 372/21/20 . It probably does not come as too much of a surprise that the witness did not mention these nail bombs exploding when he made his statement to the RMP in 1972. B1412.

18.7.4.233 For the purposes of exaggerating the level of violence perceived by many of the advancing troops, this witness volunteered evidence to the effect that he could identify petrol bombs exploding in V2/1.47, Day 372/18/2; B1412.015

18.7.4.234 Surprisingly, the same witness failed to see any members of Anti-tank platoon occupy the position at the low wall before the arrival of Call Sign 71 Alpha. The witness, of course, failed to hear any shots fired by them while occupying that location:

"Q. Do you have a recollection of hearing any SLR fire before you reached the low wall?
No, I have no recollection." Day 372/25/20 to Day 372/25/22.

Events at the low wall

18.7.4.235 In his statement to the RMP he claims to have observed the following:

i) Two men, one dressed in a dark brown suit, the other dressed in dark clothing crawled southwards along the west wall of Block1. B1412.011

ii) The rear man (only) in the brown suit was trailing (as opposed to cradling or carrying) "what looked like a rifle being him." B1412.011

iii) Private L who was behind the wall and 5 yards east of Sergeant 014 fired two shots "at the men" (our emphasis). B1412.011

iv) The rear man jerked as if hit. The men continued crawling. B1412.011

v) The witness went on to describe how the men separately entered the entrance to Block1 and how at this point "The Commanding Officer" ordered Private L to cease fire. B1412.011

18.7.4.236 In his Eversheds statement Sergeant 014 recalled the following:

i) His attention to both men was drawn by an unnamed member of Call Sign 71 Alpha who said that both men were crawling along with weapons. Although unable to recall the precise position of both men, he believes that the first men was wearing light clothing and had long hair.

ii) The second man "was dragging what looked to me like a rifle behind him, on his right hand side, as he leopard crawled along. I didn't have a clear view of the weapon and I am unable to say exactly what type of weapon it was. All I can say is that I thought it was a rifle and the lads to my right thought so too. I think, but cannot be sure, that the man at the back was wearing dark clothing." B1412.005 paragraph 26

18.7.4.237 The confused nature of these accounts create further difficulties by reason of the witness' acceptance in the course of his evidence that it was he who said there were men crawling with weapons. Day 372/30/4

18.7.4.238 While this of course may amount to nothing more than a careless mistake by Counsel, it serves to illustrate the willingness of the witness to exaggerate the circumstances which would justify opening fire. A further example can be found below:

> "Q. And there had to be a general and hurried justification given for this event. Let us just say they were armed.
>
> A. They were armed.
>
> Q. You are certain of that now?
> A. Just the rear man, yes." Day 372/68/8 to Day 372/68/10

18.7.4.239 The witness when further pressed could offer no assistance in respect of why none of the soldiers who allegedly saw the event or fired on the individuals concerned were prepared to express in positive terms the possession of weapons in 1972.

18.7.4.240 Beyond offering the excuse of a figure of speech, Sergeant 014 could provide no explanation why even he himself fell within the same category. Day 372/69/11 to Day 372/70/15

18.7.4.241 A recurring feature of the statements supplied by members of Composite Platoon, concerns the specific and singular nature of the way in which the events of the day have been recalled. The clear impression, is that soldiers were assigned certain events and although in a position to provide evidence about other matters, they have been discouraged from doing so. In fact some witnesses have confirmed as much[78]. By adopting this approach the following objectives are automatically secured:

i) Firstly, a collective restraint can be exercised over all the evidence, and in particular how it is recorded and reproduced.

ii) Secondly, the risk of inconsistency is dramatically reduced. For example, soldiers from Call Sign 71 are not likely to give contradictory evidence about events concerning colleagues in Call Sign 71 Alpha. The principal drawback of this approach however, became apparent during the course of their evidence.

[78] Evidence of Private L. Day 381/45/9 to Day 381/45/12

Witnesses who were literally yards from scenes of extreme violence and intense gunfire were for the purposes of their "evidential objectives", unable to hear, see or recall it. This contrasts with the spontaneous and detailed nature of the evidence supplied by civilians, media and clergymen.

18.7.4.242 As a further example of the compartmentalised nature of evidence supplied by Sergeant 014, as with all the other military witnesses, concerns the incident where a soldier under his command and in his presence, namely Corporal 039, unlawfully discharged a rubber bullet through the window of 2 Kells Walk, yet the witness claimed absolutely no rubber bullets were fired at this location. Day 372/32/13 to Day 372/32/23

18.7.4.243 In fact the witness claimed during the course of his evidence that this was the first time that he had heard of this particular event. If this answer is true, then the only reasonable inference to be drawn from that fact is that the incident falls within the acceptable code of behaviour shared by all Paratroopers when dealing with innocent members of the public. It was an incident neither worthy of comment nor any decent sense of condemnation. By alleging that he failed to witness this event, the witness avoids being placed in a position where he has to condemn the actions of a colleague.

Automatic Fire from Glenfada Park

18.7.4.244 In his RMP statement Sergeant 014 claimed that fire was opened up on the soldiers from Glenfada Park after the ceasefire order and after he saw what must have been Alex Nash on the barricade:

i) "I heard automatic fire coming from the area of Glenfada Park about a hundred metres South West of my position. The bullets from this fire struck the West wall of Block 1 of the flats near the Northern end." B1410

ii) In his Eversheds statement, the witness said that the burst may have consisted of 4-8 rounds. B1412.005 paragraph 29

18.7.4.245 It is submitted that this is simply an absurd and throwaway fabrication. Interestingly, Soldiers U and 006 of Mortar Platoon who were positioned at the north west end of Block 1 and who were observing the barricade make no mention of any shot striking the flats near their position. It goes without saying that not one of the civilians who were in Glenfada Park North or in the flats at the Northern end of Block1 refer to such an incident taking place.

18.7.4.246 Private 032 made a statement to the RMP and to Eversheds. He identified himself in P261. He was under the command of Colour Sergeant 002 but in Sergeant 014's section. There are a lot of discrepancies in his evidence. He appears to blame much of the discrepancies and omissions on the RMP statement takers:

> "All of us who gave statements at the time were of the view that there was not nearly enough detail in them as we wanted, but we simply told the people taking the statements our stories and they decided what detail went in... We were pressurised into it." B1616.009 paragraph 39

18.7.4.247 The witness maintained this assertion in his oral evidence. Day 362/33/3 to Day 362/33/16. It is worth noting that his RMP statement was taken by Corporal J.L. Smith (deceased) in respect of whom Soldier 018 has made an allegation that Smith encouraged him to include details in his RMP statement about events that he did not witness for himself in order to corroborate the evidence of Soldiers F and G. Day 362/39/7 to Day 362/39/20

18.7.4.248 Private 032 provides an ongoing indication of the confused understanding shared among ordinary Paratroopers in respect of the objectives for the day. The witness states in his Eversheds statement that some of the people on the march wanted to make political statements and cause trouble and it was these people that "we were to deal with". B1616.001 paragraph 3. The witness went on to say that he thought Bernadette Devlin was there and the general feeling was that she was to be arrested as a ringleader. B1616.001 paragraph 8

18.7.4.249 Private 032 provided a statement to the RMP on 4th February 1972. Curiously it was witnessed on 5th February 1972 at 15.00 hours. In summary he says the following:

i) The witness states that he was a member of a section commanded by Sergeant 014 and that he was deployed along the west side of Rossville Street on waste ground in front of Columbcille Court. Upon debussing he alleged that he and other members of Composite Platoon came under automatic fire from a Barricade on a south westerly position in Rossville Street. B1613

ii) Private 032 went on to describe how he took up a defensive position at the low wall at Kells Walk and how he observed Private L occupying a position beside him at the easterly corner of the wall. It was at this point that he saw two men crawling in a southerly direction along Block1 of Rossville Flats. B1613

iii) The rear man was "definitely trailing what looked like a rifle behind him." B1614

iv) The witness went on to state that the man in front was dressed in a suit or overcoat which was mid-grey in colour and that the rear man was wearing a dark brown suit. B1614

v) He held the men in view for approximately 30 seconds and as the front man approached the doorway of Block1, Private L opened fire. B1614

vi) He observed the body of the rear man jerk as if it had been struck by a bullet. Simultaneously the front man disappeared from sight through the doorway. B1614

vii) As Private L fired, the witness also observed a man with a pistol run in front of the crowd which was assembled approximately 10 metres south of the south west corner of Block1. The man vanished into the flats at Glenfada Park. B1614

18.7.4.250 The Tribunal will recall that Kevin McElhinney was in fact dressed in a brown suit and that all the civilian evidence as well as the 1972 evidence of this witness clearly shows him to be unarmed. Private 032 refers to Private L opening fire at the rear leopard crawler who jerked as if hit. This is in contrast to what Private L was saying in 1972. According to Private L, he fired at the man who was crawling in front as he believed him to have a weapon and not the man crawling at the rear.

18.7.4.251 The following points arise from Private 032's statement to Eversheds:

i) Significantly, the witness' recollection of the automatic fire experienced whilst debussing became nothing other than a vague recollection, by the time he came to make his Eversheds statement. B1616.005 paragraph 23

ii) He told the RMP that after they debussed the crowd was rioting throwing stones and bottles at the soldiers. In his Eversheds statement he said that petrol or acid bombs were thrown and that his trousers actually had holes burnt in them. INQ 2026's trousers were also burnt. B1616.005 paragraphs 19 to 21 None of this was mentioned to the RMP and in our submission is a deliberate embellishment.

iii) In our submission it is important to note that when describing the incident which almost certainly relates to the death of Kevin McElhinney, the witness expresses ongoing uncertainty about whether it was in fact a rifle by describing the event in the following way:

iv) "The man crawling behind was trailing a long implement which I certainly thought was a rifle. We thought was a rifle." B1616.006 paragraph 28

v) It is difficult to reconcile this description as a more positive assertion of the fact that the person was carrying a rifle, yet the witness invites the Tribunal in the course of his Eversheds statement to make precisely this judgement. The method by which this invitation is made is by explaining that the earlier uncertainty of his RMP description is nothing but an unfortunate choice of words. In other words, "what looked like a rifle" means "it was a rifle".

vi) It is interesting that the man with the rifle is wearing a "dark overcoat" while the man in front is wearing the "dark suit" B1616.007 paragraph 29

vii) In relation to the alleged pistol man as referred to above it is significant the witness claimed in his Eversheds statement that whilst he could not remember the incident he had enough of a recollection to confirm that it happened. When asked by Counsel to the Tribunal how he was able to tell Eversheds that he could confirm it had happened if he had no memory of it, the witness said "I cannot really answer that question." Day 362/14/12 to Day 362/14/18 Day 362/34/2 to Day 362/35/10 It may be reasonably inferred that the reason for this absence of memory is simply because the event did not happen. Support for this conclusion may be derived from the fact that no other member of Composite Platoon corroborates this account. It goes without saying that any pistol man who appeared at the area of the south west corner of Block1 and then proceeded to run west towards Glenfada flats would have been completely exposed to fire from the many soldiers present in Rossville Street who would have been looking south towards Free Derry Corner. In his oral evidence, Private 032 was unable to explain how he was the only soldier to allegedly witness this gunman. Day 362/46/21 to Day 362/46/25. It is submitted that this account is absurd, inherently implausible and is an embellishment.

Colonel Wilford's /Presence at the Kells Walk low wall

18.7.4.252 The witness now recalls Sergeant K being present although he cannot recall that Sergeant K fired alone or simultaneously with other soldiers. He did however recall Colonel Wilford shouting at them, to "stop shooting and fire only when told to do so". He further stated that the Colonel told them if anyone was going to fire it would be Sergeant K as he was the regimental sniper. Sergeant 032 apparently regarded this event as "moral boosting" at the time. B1616.008 paragraph 34. If this description of the event has some basis in fact it goes some way to explain how a highly trained and disciplined marksman such as Sergeant K might allow the standards of his profession to be compromised.

18.7.4.253 It will be recalled when Colonel Wilford who acknowledged his presence at the low wall at Kells Walk was asked about the shots fired by Soldiers K, L and M he maintained he had no recollection of the incident. He was reminded of his evidence before Lord Widgery to the effect that one soldier fired in his presence at an alleged gunman behind the Barricade although he could not recall who it was or what he had fired at:

> "Q. You have, as I understand it, no recollection now of seeing one of the soldiers at the wall fire a shot or shots, but, in the light of the evidence that you gave to Lord Widgery, you think that you probably did see a soldier fire a single shot; is that right?
> A. Yes.
> Q. What you said to Lord Widgery was that one paratrooper fired to his left front as you arrived. You asked him what he was firing at and he said a gunman lying behind some rubble; that was your evidence?

A. Yes.

Q. And you identified the soldier who fired as being the one who appears in this photograph on the left with his rifle in the aim position; do you remember that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Am I right in thinking that you do not recall ever seeing what was the target of this soldier?

A. No." Day 313/57/22 to Day 313/58/14

18.7.4.254 If the Tribunal accept that Colonel Wilford was present when Soldiers K, L and M fired then we say it must address the following questions:

i) If, as the other witnesses suggest, that Soldiers K, L and M fired almost simultaneously why does Colonel Wilford only remember one shot being fired?

ii) Why did Colonel Wilford fail to see the shot that fatally struck Kevin McElhinney as he crawled to the safety of the entrance at Block1?

iii) Given that it almost certain that Kevin McElhinney was shot by Sergeant K, then why in light of Private 032's evidence, does Colonel Wilford fail to recall the incident?

iv) Could it be, that while Colonel Wilford is prepared to support his men, but not to the point of lying directly under oath. Better to create uncertainty by omission, poor memory or otherwise.

v) It is respectfully submitted that Colonel Wilford has been compelled to acknowledge his presence at the low wall because of photograph EP2.8. It is further submitted that if the most senior officer on the ground, namely Colonel Wilford, is incapable of recalling accurately controversial incidents unfolding before his eyes then his standards of integrity and reliability as a witness of the Inquiry must remain highly questionable. More importantly however, the Tribunal must ask whether and to what extent these standards have influenced the men who followed his command and example.

18.7.4.255 Private 032 creates a final note of confusion in respect of the events surrounding the death of Kevin McElhinney. At B1616.008 paragraph 34 he states that Colonel Wilford arrived at some point after the man with the rifle was shot. Colonel Wilford however said that he witnessed one shot being fired at an unidentified target behind the barricade. If this is correct then both assertions can only be reconciled upon the basis that Colonel Wilford is describing a member of Composite Platoon firing a single shot in circumstances that no-one has admitted to. Alternatively of course, the simple explanation is that Colonel Wilford has continued to supply an untruthful account about this event.

18.7.4.256 This witness made a statement to the RMP and to Eversheds. He was under the command of Colour Sergeant 002 but also commanded a section himself.

Sergeant 035, in keeping with some of the other members of Composite Platoon supplies some insight into the mindset and attitude of the Parachute Regiment in being deployed to Derry on that day. Even almost 30 years later when preparing his Eversheds statement 035's memory of his understanding of Derry in recalled in the following way:

> "We knew very little about Londonderry except that it was a nasty place... It seemed to us that the security forces there did not have as tight control of it as they might" B1628.002 paragraph 7

18.7.4.257 Sergeant 035 provides yet another example of the "collective recollection" of those witnesses who were at the Presbyterian Church but yet only heard only one high velocity shot being fired. Day 361/60/22

Events at the low wall

18.7.4.258 In his statement to the RMP he recounted the following in respect of the two men crawling southwards along the western side of Block1:

i) "I had been in position for about a minute when I saw "M" from my unit, fire two shots at two men crawling south along the west wall of Block1. Both men were hit but continued crawling until they had reached a doorway at the southwest end of the Block. One man had on a brown coloured suit, the other wore dark clothing. The distance was about 100 metres." B1626

ii) "Both men appeared to be dragging along objects with them which looked like rifles and were crawling away from a pile of rubble." B1626

18.7.4.259 By way of comment, in his RMP statement, after Composite Platoon are deployed into the Bogside, Sergeant 035 does not mention a single shot being fired at them nor a nail bomb exploding.

18.7.4.260 When providing an account of the same incident to this Inquiry, the witness describes the relevant features in the following way:

i) "To me, both men were a unit moving together. They were crawling military style on their elbows and knees, keeping as low as possible to the ground. I was approximately 100 yards away from them and I could see what they were carrying. The were both dragging long thin dark objects which I knew immediately to be rifles." B1628.004 paragraph 21

ii) "They were each holding a rifle in their left hand which the hand nearest the wall of the flats." The witness then goes on to describe in detail how both weapons were clearly visible to his position. B1628.004 paragraph 21

18.7.4.261 The witness provides an even more updated insight into the grounds justifying shots being discharged at the men, viz:

i) The crawling men needed to be stopped in case the weapons were used against the other military personnel. B1628.004 paragraph 22

ii) The weapons were needed for forensic tests and upgrading intelligence in respect of what weapons civilians had. B1628.004 paragraph 22

iii) Curiously the order to fire provides the final limb of justification. B1628.004 paragraph 22

Sergeant 035's current recollection

18.7.4.262 In the course of his oral evidence Counsel to the Tribunal explored the accuracy of the detailed account contained in his Eversheds statement concerning the crawling men. Quite a bizarre exchange ensued:

> "Q. Do you have any independent recollection today of what you saw?
>
> A. No.
>
> MR TOOHEY: Soldier 035, were you conscious of any sort of
>
> an informal barricade across the street in the area
>
> where these two men were?
>
> A. I cannot remember today.
>
> MS McGAHEY: At the time that you made your statement, you
>
> gave quite a detailed description of the way in which > the men were carrying the rifles. You say:
>
>
> "They were each holding a rifle in their left-hand > side, which was the hand nearest the wall of the flats.
>
>
> They had the butts of the rifles under their armpits and
>
> were holding the rifles so that each time they brought > forward their left elbows, the muzzle of each rifle was > pushed forward and became visible."
>

Do you have a recollection today of seeing the men carry the rifles in the way you have described?

A. No.

Q. Did you have that recollection at the time you made your statement?

A. My military police statement, you mean?

Q. No, your statement to the Inquiry?

A. If I could explain: I saw two men on that day moving from left to right carrying what I saw to be rifles. When I made my statement, the one we are referring to on the screen, the only way you can do that is by the way I explained how you can do it, I hope that makes it clear, or rather unclear.

Q. In the statement you were not seeking to give a description of what you had seen, but simply a description of the way in which a soldier carries a rifle when he is crawling?

A. That is correct.

Q. The impression that is created by this paragraph: "They had the butts of the rifles under their armpits, they were holding the rifles so that each time they brought forward their left elbows, the muzzle of each rifle was pushed forward."

It gives the impression you are describing something you have seen?

A. I am sorry if I am giving that impression. What I intended -- that is the way it is done, that is the way it is carried out. I am not trying to, or I was not trying to mislead you in any way, I can assure you, it is just that is how it happens.

Q. Do you have any recollection of these two individuals carrying rifles in this way?

A. I can only go back to what I said in my -- I am sorry, it is 31 years ago and I cannot really remember.

Q. You say in the final sentence of that paragraph:
"The wooden part of the guns between the butt and the muzzle were visible."
Do you have a recollection now of seeing that?
A. No, and what I should have said, "they would have been visible." That is what I really meant. I am sorry if I confused you.
MR TOOHEY: Just going back to that statement, which is on 1626, you do say about halfway down the page:
"Both men appeared to be dragging long objects with them, which looked like rifles, and were crawling away from a pile of rubble."
What are you saying, that you have no recollection now of that rubble?
A. What I am saying now is I cannot remember actually seeing it, I cannot see it in my mind or in my head." Day 361/66/1 to Day 361/69/4

18.7.4.263 This is yet another example of a witness who is prepared to attend this Inquiry and provide testimony which amounts to nothing more than silhouettes of half-truths and deceit where the exchanges becomes a battle of wits rather than pursuit of the truth. It is almost as if these witnesses have been rehearsed and programmed to advance an "official" rather than truthful recollection of events.

18.7.4.264 Lord Saville highlighted a further example of this willingness to incorporate a fabricated recollection of events:

"Q. Do you now have any recollection of the order to fire being given?
A. I am still unclear in my mind.
LORD SAVILLE: I am not sure what you mean by that answer: do you have any recollection of an order to fire being given?

A. No.

LORD SAVILLE: If it had been you who gave an order to fire, is that something you would have told the RMP?

A. Oh, yes.

LORD SAVILLE: Because we can see from the RMP statement that nothing is said about an order to open fire being given at all, is there?

A. No.

LORD SAVILLE: Would it be reasonable to draw a conclusion from that that at all events you did not give an order to fire?

A. I will have to agree with you on that.

LORD SAVILLE: Is it possible that no order to fire was given at all?

A. It is possible because I, as I say in my statement,

I cannot be sure that I gave it, so I cannot be sure that someone else gave it." Day 361/77/2 to Day 361/77/24

18.7.4.265 Counsel to the Inquiry further explored the witness' preoccupation of the need for an order to fire before doing so:

"MS McGAHEY: Would it be acceptable for a soldier in your section to fire without the order to fire having been given?

I do not think so.

Why not?

Because soldiers can only open fire normally when they are ordered to, but if he thought, under the Yellow Card, that he was the only person who could see the threat and he was the only person who could deal with it and there was not time to inform anyone else, perhaps under those circumstances it might be possible.

Does the Yellow Card require a soldier to fire only when he is the only person who can deal with the threat?
I would assume so. If I was a soldier and I could see a threat and I have not got time to tell anyone else and I felt that I had to deal with it, then I would have dealt with it.
But in other circumstances, if say there is an NCO present, is it your understanding that a soldier must wait for an order to fire?
He should do." (emphasis added) Day 361/77/25 to Day 361/78/20

18.7.4.266 It is our submission that this exchange appears to suggest a thread of misunderstanding among the relevant soldiers, to the effect that, an order had to be given before opening fire. This of course is intended to ensure that the shooters, at all material times acted within the Yellow Card guidelines.

18.7.4.267 By way of conclusion it is remarkable that Sergeant 014, in keeping with the other witnesses relating to the murder of Kevin McElhinney claimed that he never discussed this incident with anyone. Day 361/108/3 to Day 361/108/6. If this is true (which is unlikely), it serves to underline the sense of collective shame and guilt that normally decent and experienced soldiers would have shared following their involvement in these events.

Corporal 039

18.7.4.268 In 1972 Corporal 039 made a statement to the RMP and the Treasury Solicitor. He also provided a statement to Eversheds and gave oral evidence on Day 362. He was armed with a riot gun and a Sterling SMG. B1649. Private M was acting as his bodyguard.

1972 evidence

18.7.4.269 Corporal 039 made his statement to the RMP at 16.30hrs on 2nd February 1972. B1640, B1641, B1642, B1643 In summary his statement dealt with two events, namely: (i) the circumstances in which he discharged a rubber bullet into No2 Kells Walk; and (ii) the shooting by members of his platoon at civilians crawling from the Rubble Barricade that resulted in the murder of Kevin McElhinney. Corporal 039 states that he regards his RMP statement as being "an accurate record of my experiences on the day". B1651.6 paragraph 36

18.7.4.270 039's account can be summarised as follows:

i) After debussing he crossed Rossville Street saw a first floor window open (in what must be Kells Walk). Two women appeared and started to throw missiles at the soldiers. A photographer was present in the flat and was trying to take photographs of Composite Platoon moving into the area. B1640

ii) O39 fired one rubber bullet through the main window. After the smoke cleared the three persons described above had also disappeared. He was then able to see a female figure being supported by another and it appeared as if she had been struck in the face by the baton round. These people then disappeared from the window and 039 took off his gas mask. B1641

18.7.4.271 His evidence to Eversheds, in summary, was that he must have considered it a threat for him to fire and "Someone may have been throwing something out of this window." B1651.3 paragraphs 15 to 17 However in his oral evidence he could not recall this and he agreed that in 1972 that he was unable to provide the RMP with the detail of the nature of the alleged missiles. Day 362/60/24 to Day 362/61/25

18.7.4.272 It seems clear that this is a reference to the incident involving Mrs Kathleen Kelly, her niece Mary Smith (now Breslin) and a photographer at 2 Kells Walk. Mary Breslin was injured in the eye by flying glass. Her sight returned about a week after Bloody Sunday. AB80.2 paragraphs 11 to 18. Mrs Kelly makes no reference to any missiles being thrown from the flat but rather the occupants shouting from the window at the soldiers to cease firing at the "wee'uns" on the Rubble Barricade at which point the rubber bullet was fired at them AK14.3 paragraph 16. Also present in the flat were Brian Power AP18.4 at paragraph 18 and Maura Power AP19.2 paragraph 19. All of those persons present say that nothing was thrown from the maisonette. Father George McLaughlin later attended those present in the maisonette H13.2.

18.7.4.273 Moreover, none of the other soldiers including Corporal 039's "buddy" for the operation Private M mentions any missiles being thrown from this flat or indeed any of the maisonettes in Kells Walk that might have justified the firing of the baton round. In our submission what Corporal 039 indulged in a cowardly unlawful assault on the civilians in the flat, in particular on Mary Smith who was hospitalised as a result of his actions. Corporal 039 did not agree that he should be ashamed of this actions and that he had nothing to apologise for. Day 362/92/14 to Day 362/94/19

18.7.4.274 Furthermore his allegations of missiles being thrown at the soldiers below are patently false and this witness included these details to the RMP and the Treasury Solicitor in order to justify his own brutal and criminal actions. We also respectfully submit that this soldier's actions could not possibly have gone unnoticed by his colleagues including his "buddy", Private M and his Colour Sergeant 002. Unsurprisingly not one of his colleagues has provided a truthful account of the true circumstances in which Corporal 039 discharged his rubber bullet gun at Kells Walk. This incident has echoes of an earlier incident concerning the permanent blinding of Emily Groves in Belfast by a Paratrooper only three months previously. L2

18.7.4.275 It is further submitted that Corporal 039's actions near the low wall in injuring Mary Smith set the tone for the events that followed in which his colleagues soldiers K, L and M effectively used Kevin McElhinney as target practice as he crawled for his life to the door of Block1 of the Rossville Flats.

18.7.4.276 Whilst at the low wall, 71Alpha came under fire from the direction of the Rossville Flats area. 039 saw two males appear from behind the barricade crawling towards a door at the south end of the flats. B1641

i) "One of the men was carrying what appeared to me to be a Thompson sub machine gun and was wearing a dark suit, or a dark jacket and trousers. He also had dark hair." B1641

ii) "The second man appeared to be trailing a weapon with him but I couldn't say what type it was. He was wearing a light, possibly fawn coloured coat and light trousers, with long fair hair. I pointed out the gunman to "L" who was situated on my left and "M" who was on my right and told them to fire at the gunmen." B1642

iii) "L" and "M" each fired 2 rounds. The man dressed in the dark clothing (who was in front) flinched as if hit" and managed to crawl inside the door of Block1. The second man rolled off the pavement on to the road and appeared to have been badly hurt. Notwithstanding his injuries the second man managed to crawl to the door where he was assisted inside by others. B1642

iv) Corporal 039 then heard a "cease fire" order from Colour Sergeant 002. B1642

v) He was later involved with Private M in escorting prisoners.

18.7.4.277 On 9th March 1972, Corporal 039 subsequently made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor. B1649, B1650. In this account he mentioned some matters not previously outlined in his statement made within days of the events:

i) After debussing and almost as soon as the platoon moved forward they came under fire. "I identified low velocity weapons and I believe a couple of high velocity rounds. It came from the direction of the Rossville Flats." B1649

ii) He fired his rubber bullet and saw its result as he was moving towards the two low walls at the end of the block at Kells Walk. B1650

iii) He saw members of the Anti-tank platoon go through the alleyway into Glenfada Park. At this time they were under fire from the Rossville Flats to the east and were in defensive positions. B1650

iv) He now describes the type of movement that the men who were making their way south down along Block1 as performing "a leopard crawl".

v) The man in front in the dark suit and hair was now "cradling" a Thomspon SMG. B1650

vi) The man crawling at the rear in the fair hair and the light coloured coat and trousers "seemed to trail a weapon. It might have been on a sling but I am not sure. I thought it was a short low calibre rifle, but I could not identify the type." B1650

vii) "L" was on his left and "M" on his right. Corporal 039 pointed out the gunman and ordered them to fire. Each fired 2 rounds. B1650. The remainder of the statement essentially rehearses the facts set out in his RMP statement.

18.7.4.278 Corporal 039 provides no explanation for failing to mention either the shooting from the Rossville Flats when Guinness Force debussed or the firing from the Rossville Flats when the Anti-tank platoon were moving towards the alleyway into Glenfada Park previously to the RMP. It perhaps should be pointed out that nowhere in his evidence does he say that he heard explosions or saw petrol bombs exploding.

18.7.4.279 Corporal 039 is the only member of Guinness Force present at the low wall who describes the man in front as having a Thompson SMG. This is a short and distinctive looking weapon. Photographs of same can be found at F24.16, F24.17. Contrast this account with that of Sergeant K who described the weapon allegedly carried by the man in front as being a Lee Enfield rifle, photographs of which can be found at F24.2. It is submitted that it is hard to imagine two more visually contrasting weapons and that this is yet another example how broadly agreed concoctions begin to unravel in the unrehearsed detail. Corporal 039, like his colleagues simply did not get their stories straight enough before making their statements.

Corporal 039's evidence to this Inquiry

18.7.4.280 In summary, this is what Corporal 039 told this Inquiry:

i) Corporal 039 did not doubt the accuracy of his statements made to the RMP and Treasury Solicitor. B1651.7 paragraph 37, B1651.7 paragraph 42.

ii) The witness disclosed for the first time in his Eversheds statement that Colonel Wilford was present at some point behind the low wall at Kells Walk. The witness said that he was "sure" about this. B1651.4 paragraph 19.

iii) He also now claimed for the first time that he saw 4 or 5 muzzle flashes come from the door at Block1. B1651.4 paragraph 21 No reason was given for the failure to mention this in 1972 other than he must not have been asked about the incident. Day 362/74/3 to Day 362/74/22

iv) Unlike Private M, and despite being familiar with the sound of nail bombs exploding and the sight of petrol bombs, he did not say that these occurred in Sector 3 in any of his statements. When this discrepancy was pointed out to the witness by Counsel to the Tribunal, the absurd explanation given by this witness was "If there was a lot of noise and one was looking one way and one was – his attention was drawn another way, anything is possible." Day 362/84/18 to Day 362/84/20

v) He now sees only one gunman crawling towards the door of Block1 who he describes as wearing a dark coat or jacket who was carrying a "clearly visible" American carbine type of rifle. B1651.4 paragraph 22. See photograph of M-1 carbine F24.6. He agreed with our Counsel however that he only had a "fleeting glimpse" of the man that he saw. Day 362/96/1 to Day 362/96/20

vi) He agreed he may have ordered the gunman to be shot. B1651.04 paragraph 25. He presumed that his "buddy", Private M may have shot the gunman.

vii) Incredibly, Corporal 039 now claims to have seen "one or two men who I was certain where members of the IRA" who were dressed in green combat jackets and berets. B1651.6 paragraph 33. This is yet another dramatic incident never previously mentioned in 1972.

18.7.4.283 In conclusion, we say Corporal 039 bears a heavy degree of responsibility for the firing by the members of Composite Platoon at Kevin McElhinney. He was a full Corporal and should have stopped the firing by Privates L and M which he knows perfectly well to have been unjustified. What he witnessed on Bloody Sunday was a 17 year old's life being snatched away in front of his eyes. He chose to lie about this in 1972 and continued to lie in relation to this event in the course of his perjured evidence before this Tribunal.

18.7.4.284 This witness was a radio operator and made a statement to Eversheds. He saw the drainpipe shot. His understanding was that the company would be going into the Bogside as a "battering ram formation using the convoy of vehicles to disperse the crowd back as far as possible".

18.7.4.285 After debussing he heard various shots being fired but could not say what type or where from. He says that he cannot recollect seeing any soldiers shooting but was positioned at the low wall at Kells Walk according to Colour Sergeant 002 (The witness' recollection is that he was situated near a set of steps). Although there was shooting going on he recollects that he did not think that he was personally under fire where he was positioned.

18.7.4.286 When Private INQ 127 looked towards the rubble barricade he saw a body which was "long and black", lying prone, about 20 feet away from Block1. He does not mention that the person had a weapon or that there was another body in close proximity. A soldier next to him shouted "Thompson Machine Gun" and he thinks that the soldier next to him fired a shot. He claims that he did not actually see any soldiers firing on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.4.287 Private INQ 127 then was deployed into Columbcille Court and saw the prisoners who came from Glenfada Park North though he did not witness any ill treatment towards them.

The Final Shots Fired in Sector 3: Evidence of Soldiers C, D and 024

Private C

18.7.4.288 Although not a member of Call Sign 71 Alpha, his evidence is considered in this section of our closing submissions as it relates closely to that of Lance Corporal D. Private C admits to firing 5 rounds, more that anyone else in Guinness Force. He made a statement to the RMP, to the Treasury Solicitor, gave evidence to Lord Widgery and has provided a statement to Eversheds. He gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 354.

Private C's Deployment into the Bogside

18.7.4.289 Private C's first account about what happened on Bloody Sunday was made at 01.30hrs on 31st January 1972. He said that "The rioters numbered between 1500 and 2000 of all sexes and ages" (emphasis added) B44. The rioting was taking place at the junction of William Street and Rossville Street. B44

18.7.4.290 However when he came to make his statement to the Treasury Solicitor on 5th March in the presence of Major Bailey, he made a significant change to this description. He said that whilst he knew that rioting was taking place at the junction of William Street and Rossville Street he did not see it himself as he was in the back of his vehicle. His estimate of numbers (1500-2000) related to the number of people that he saw going away in the Rossville Street area after he debussed. According to him, it "was not meant to describe the rioters in William Street". B54. In our submission the witness provided the description both in terms of the numbers and the nature of the crowd who were allegedly rioting to the RMP in stark and unambiguous terms.

18.7.4.291 It is submitted that this is yet another example of a soldier who was prepared to tell the RMP that which he did not and could not see in order to deliberately exaggerate the threat posed to the soldiers in terms of the "riot" in the area of Aggro corner. It is clear that by the time Private C made his second statement it was simply untenable to claim that a riot of this seriousness took place and this fact forced him to change his story.

When Private C first heard shots

18.7.4.292 The witness told the RMP that after debussing he made his way across Eden Place, the rear of Chamberlain Street and into the flats area. He crossed the car park area level with Block1 and moved west across Rossville Street to the Columbcille Court area. B44 It is significant that whilst in Sector 2 the witness mentions nothing about nail bombs exploding or fire being opened up on the Paras from the area of the Rossville Flats. Further, according to this account the only shots fired at the troops in Rossville Street are from the south end of Block1 or from Block 1 itself. By this stage, Private C has already positioned himself at the south end of the Kells Walk veranda.

18.7.4.293 However what he told the Treasury Solicitor was significantly different. Either just after the witness debussed or a little later when working down the back wall of the Chamberlain Street houses he first heard the sound of firing and this caused him to cock his weapon.

18.7.4.294 However it was not until C was actually giving evidence to Lord Widgery that he was able to say where this firing was coming from:

> "Q. Can you tell the Tribunal when you first heard firing? Yes sir. I am not quite sure on this, sir. It was either over there – I have written this in my statement – or over here, sir.
>
> Q. Or when you got there? A. Yes sir, I am not quite sure.
>
> Q. Whenever it was, when you did hear it where did it come from?
>
> In this direction, sir, from the flats.
> Q. From the flats direction? A. Yes sir." B62 at F, B63 at A

Whilst being examined by Mr Hill, further detail was supplied by C in that he was now able to say that the gunfire was "low velocity". B64 at D

Cocking his SLR

18.7.4.295 According to his RMP statement, the witness only cocked his rifle after positioning himself at the south end of the Kells Walk veranda where he heard a shot from the south end of Block1 and saw a man with a long stick like object. B45 However (as above) he told the Treasury Solicitor that he cocked his SLR either just after debussing or whilst working down the back wall of Chamberlain Street.B51

Events at the Kells Walk veranda

The Gunman at the south end of Block1

18.7.4.296 This is a summary of what the witness told the RMP:

i) He positioned himself on the veranda of Kells Walk maisonettes and observed the flats area. B44

ii) He saw at the end flat of Rossville Flats on the ground floor, and in the opening, a male person wearing a dark coat observing the troops in Rossville Street. He then heard the sound of a shot from the man's location. The man disappeared. The man had "a long stick like object which he put into the aim position." The witness then cocked his rifle and fired 2 rounds. The second may have hit him. B45

18.7.4.297 In summary, this is what he told the Treasury Solicitor:

i) He was ordered with about half a dozen other soldiers to assist in taking a party of about 20 prisoners back to a collection point[79]. After returning to the Columbcille Court area he took up a covering position on the "1st floor balcony at the end of the building nearest Glenfada Park on the side facing Columbcille Court." B52

ii) He saw a man at the south end of Block1. His attention was caught by the sound of a shot. The man was in the aim position and he "could see what looked like a weapon in his hands. I could distinguish the shape of the magazine and think it was a klesnicov (sic) or a weapon of that kind. My weapon was already cocked and I came into the aim. Before I could get a shot at him he went back. Then he came out a second time. I took aim at him but did not immediately fire. Then he fired two rounds and I fired two rounds at him. The man jerked backwards and his weapon went into the air as he did so. I saw him clearly at that moment." B53

[79] It is clear that these are the prisoners who were taken out of Glenfada Park North. This is further suggests that Private C did not get onto the veranda at Kells Walk until a very later stage in the day and at a time when all the killings and injuries had happened. B58 at C to D

18.7.4.298 This is the first time that Private C offered a description of the type of weapon that this alleged gunman had. Significantly, C is now able to provide a detailed description of the weapon unlike the reference to the "long stick like object" he was talking about to the RMP. A photograph of the type of weapon C is referring to can be seen at F24.5. It is difficult to see how any experienced soldier intending to provide an accurate and truthful account could have described it in terms given to the RMP.

18.7.4.299 It is also not without significance that C claimed to the Treasury Solicitor that a shot drew his attention to this gunman unlike his account to the RMP where he says that he saw the gunman and then heard him shoot. A further discrepancy between the two accounts lies in the fact that C told the RMP that only 1 shot came from the gunman's position B44, B45 when in fact he told the Treasury Solicitor B52 (and later Lord Widgery B59 D to G) that the alleged gunman fired 1 shot and then a further 2 before C fired 2 rounds at him.

18.7.4.300 Another point to note is that neither Lance Corporal D nor Private 24 who were both on the same balcony as Private C heard the alleged high velocity 7.62mm Kalashnikov gunfire from Rossville Street on ground level just before C engaged this alleged gunman. Lance Corporal D agreed that he heard no high velocity shots before the low velocity shots that attracted his attention from Block1. D further agreed that if a Kalashnikov assault rifle was fired on not once but two occasions from a distance of some 60 yards he probably would have heard it. Day 355/55/5 to Day 355/60/1

18.7.4.301 We submit that if the situation was at that time of relative calm in the sense that civilians were trying to assist the deceased and injured, apparently automatic[80] gunfire from a Kalashnikov assault rifle would have been heard over a very wide area. It is illuminating that not one of the military witnesses who were on ground level on Rossville Street claim that they heard this type of high velocity gunfire at this time. It is also clear that this gunman would have been operating from the area where the bodies of Hugh Gilmore and Barney McGuigan would have been lying and from where there were at least three photographers who took a substantial amount of photographs of the people in this vicinity. It goes without saying that there is not one witness who refers to the presence of a gunman in this area at that time. See photographs P442, P444 and P445.

18.7.4.302 Private C's story is also contradicted by the evidence of his Commanding Officer, Captain 200 who said that he was aware of two soldiers (who must be C and D) firing 2-3 rounds on top of the pram ramp. Captain 200/SA8 however did not hear any firing from the Rossville Flats at this time. He only heard the firing from the pram ramp. B2007 at E to G, B2019 at A to B2020 at A

18.7.4.303 Moreover Eddie Dobbins who was a member of the Creggan Provisional IRA said that the PIRA did not in fact possess a Kalashnikov rifle at the time of Bloody Sunday Day 399/128/5 to Day 399/128/13. No member of the PIRA or OIRA say they had this weapon in their arsenal and further, not one of the Intelligence documents emanating from the Army or the RUC indicate that this weapon had either been acquired or was in use in the relevant period by either wing of the IRA in Derry.

18.7.4.304 The picture that Private C depicted in his evidence to this Inquiry was even more exaggerated and should be rejected. According to him, (notwithstanding the lateness of when he arrived on the veranda) he saw a group of rioters in Rossville Street who threw stones and petrol bombs. As well as there being the gunman with the Kalashnikov, the witness could hear "the continuous low sounding cracks of automatic small arms fire... It was definitely not a .303 weapon or an SLR being fired; it was definitely small arms fire at close range." B68.002 paragraphs 10 to 12

Whether or not Private C was kneeling or lying down

18.7.4.305 In the course of his oral evidence at the Widgery Tribunal, Private C was asked by Mr Underhill how he was positioned when he fired at this target:

> "Q. Were you standing or kneeling or what? A. I was laying, sir." B60 at A

This point was pursued by Mr Hill BL on behalf of the Families who demonstrated by the use of photographs (P271) that there was a 3 foot wall relative to where C was lying which meant that it was impossible for him to see and fire at the gunmen that he claimed to have seen if he was telling the truth about where he had positioned himself when he fired. The witness insisted in unambiguous terms that he was able to see and fire at what he claimed and that he was lying down. B62 at E to B64 at C, B66 at A 18.7.4.306 Presumably now alert to the difficulty that his 1972 oral evidence places him in Private C changed his evidence in this respect for this Inquiry. According to him, he cannot now recall whether he was kneeling or laying down at the time:

> "I probably crouched down to take cover when I was in danger and then stood up to fire towards the window". B68.004 paragraph 16.

He elaborated further in his statement and commented in relation to his oral evidence when being examined by Mr Hill BL:

"At the time I probably did not explain myself very well. I probably lay down during the sound of incoming fire and then rose to a standing position when I was ready to shoot back. To get from a lying to a standing position, I had to kneel. He was trying to make out that my evidence was unreliable and that I was a liar. It is only now that I realise wht he was trying to do." B68.009 paragraph 43

18.7.4.307 It is submitted that C was well aware in 1972 and in 2000 when he made his Eversheds statement about how unlikely his story sounds and that he has simply changed evidence from "laying" to "kneeling" to "a standing position" in an inept attempt to explain how he could have fired.

18.7.4.308 For completeness, Lance Corporal D was asked about this issue in his Eversheds statement:

"Logically if the wall was 3 foot we would be kneeling because if we were upright we would be too big a target...In my mind both Soldier C and I were kneeling. If you were lying down we couldn't see the window." B85.004

18.7.4.309 In the course of his oral evidence, Lance Corporal D said that he could not recollect Private C lying flat on the ground at the south end of the balcony. All he could remember was C knelt next to him at the top of the veranda. D said he was "fairly positive" about this. Day 355/24/24 to Day 355/25/11

The gunman in Block1 on 3rd floor

18.7.4.310 In his RMP statement Private C said the following:

i) He continued observations from the veranda and saw a window opened on the third story at the fourth window to the right of where he stood. B45

ii) He heard a shot fired and saw a flash of a weapon fired from inside the room. C believed the man was firing at the troops below. The man held the pistol in his left hand. C fired 1 round at him which missed and struck the wall outside. B45

iii) Private C was then joined by Lance Corporal D and told him of where he had fired. The gunman reappeared and fired 2 further shots at the troops in Rossville Street. C fired 2 further rounds at the gunman who was thrown backwards and was not seen again. B45

iv) D also fired 1 round at the gunman who was dressed in a blue jumper with fairly dark hair. B45

v) C thought he was hit in the arm. B45

18.7.4.311 Again, important differences feature in his Treasury Solicitor statement:

i) He now believes that he did not in fact see the muzzle flash of a weapon but rather the flash of the window. B53, B54

ii) He now believes that the window closed some way but not completely. B53. This was not mentioned previously and may have been included to allow for D's evidence that he saw the window opening before the pistol man stuck out his hand and fire. B70

iii) C fires as soon as the window reopens and at the same time as the gunman fired 2 quick shots. B53

18.7.4.312 In concluding his Treasury statement, presumably alive to the fact that there are serious differences in his two accounts and between his evidence and Lance Corporal D's, the witness points out "that when my statement was taken I had been up for over 20 hours and was exhausted. This could be why these mistakes arose." B54. In our respectful submission these mistakes arose because C is a mendacious witness who has had to resort to concoctions to explain his actions and account for ammunition that he fired.

18.7.4.313 In his statement to Eversheds he claimed that the gunman "must have emptied his magazine and fired about 9 to 12 shots although I cannot recall the number of rounds he fired." B68.003 paragraph 14. This is a significant increase to the 3 shots that C claimed were fired by the pistol man in 1972.

18.7.4.314 The main difficulty that arises for Soldier C and which supports our submission that neither he nor D actually fired at the window where they claimed is that the flat where he claimed he fired at the gunman is known to the Inquiry. It is 8 Garvan Place and was occupied by Mrs Eileen Gallagher (deceased) who made a statement in 1972. AG10.1-10.15

18.7.4.315 Mrs Gallagher said that she had three visitors present. She witnessed events in the Courtyard of the Rossville Flats. She saw three fellows fall over on the Rubble Barricade. She described what happened to Alex Nash and how soldiers threw the three bodies into the back of the pig. Mrs Gallagher further related in detail the incident where Fathers Mulvey and Irvine approached the pig to offer spiritual aid. However she mentioned nothing about there being a gunman in her flat. Similarly, she mentioned nothing about shots being fired through her window, glass breaking or anyone being wounded.

18.7.4.316 Counsel to the Tribunal, Mr Roxbrough BL asked whether C was confident that the position marked on his trajectory photograph P4 was precisely accurate in terms of where he fired. The witness said that the information that he gave in 1972 would have been more accurate. Day 354/63/7 to Day 354/66/3.

18.7.4.317 It is contended that if, in truth, Private C saw any movement at all at a window in Block1 what he is most likely to have seen was Fulvio Grimaldi attempting to photograph events on Rossville Street from the McCrudden family home at 12 Garvan Place which had windows on the 2nd and 3rd floors of the Rossville Flats. Six shots were fired through the window of the McCrudden house (12 Garvan Place which had windows on the 2nd and 3rd floors) after Grimaldi attempted to photograph events in Rossville Street. The event is also recorded on the North tape.

18.7.4.318 It is submitted that Private C provided a dishonest account of his criminal activities on Bloody Sunday to the RMP, the Treasury Solicitor and lied on oath to Lord Widgery. That his character has not changed over the course of the last 30 years is evidenced by the fact that he was convicted in the Crown Court in November 1996 on a charge of obtaining £12,000 by deception for which he was sentenced to 3 years' imprisonment. It is further alleged that C once again lied on oath to this Tribunal when trying to justify the shots he and D fired on Bloody Sunday.

Lance Corporal D

18.7.4.319 Lance Corporal D admits to firing 2 rounds in Sector 3. The gravamen of our submission in relation to this witness is that he, along with Private C, arrived at their position on the veranda of Kells Walk at a very late stage in the events when practically all of the shooting was over. In conjunction with Private C he fired not at a gunman in the Rossville Flats as he claimed but rather down Rossville Street at a time when already terrorised civilians were putting the dead and dying into ambulances in the area south of Block1. Day 355/61/25 to Day 355/62/9

18.7.4.320 His first account was given to the RMP at 02.00hours on 31st January 1972. This is a summary of what he told them:

i) After he debussed he was given a prisoner who appears to have been Joseph Lynn. Lynn was arrested in a derelict building at the north end of Rossville Street by Private L and Lance Corporal 229. The witness handed the prisoner over to the Bn Provost Staff. It is notable that Lance Corporal D does not mention hearing firing until he rejoined his section over 10 minutes later. B69

ii) He then went on to the veranda of the maisonettes at Kells Walk and observed the Kells Walk area. Private C passed him and located himself at the end of the veranda. B69

iii) Whilst observing Columbcille Court area he heard pistol shots. Private C told him shots were fired from a window on the west side of Block1 on the 3rd floor. B70. The position is marked on trajectory map B71.

iv) The witness continued to observe the area and saw the window open and a hand clutching a pistol appear out of it which fired. Lance Corporal D cocked his SLR and fired 1 round which struck the framework of the window above the pistol. The hand with the pistol withdrew. B70

v) Minutes later a male appeared at the window with a pistol in his hand and he fired this towards the troops in Rossville Street. The gunman was dressed in a dark jumper and had fairly long hair. Both Lance Corporal D and Private C opened fire on the alleged gunman. The witness fired 1 round. The gunman appeared to be thrown backwards. B70

18.7.4.321 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor dated 5th March and his oral evidence to Lord Widgery, this witness refers to a number of incidents not previously mentioned to the RMP:

i) Although he did not hear any firing himself, he now says as they were debussing someone shouted "we were coming under fire from the direction of the flats." B75,B79 at C

ii) When rejoined his party after dealing with the prisoner he heard firing from the flats area which he described as consisting of some SLR and some low velocity weapons. B76 Incredibly, in the course of his oral evidence to Lord Widgery, the witness claimed that he had not identified any SLR firing before he went up to the corner of Kells Walk despite the fact

Alternatively this 'missing casualty' is in fact one of the three persons removed from the Rubble Barricade by Mortar Platoon.

18.9.2.6 If the body was removed at the same time as Michael Kelly, then despite the extensive photographic coverage of the Rubble Barricade and Glenfada Park North before and after the shooting this person was brought from the Rubble Barricade unnoticed. The removal was also unnoticed by the people at the gable wall of Glenfada Park North. Alternatively witnesses like Fr. Bradley, Barry Liddy and Fr O'Keefe have participated in a massive conspiracy, which has included the unidentified people who removed the body, a conspiracy which went into motion within minutes of this man's death and which has gone uncovered for 32 years.

18.9.2.7 In support of this implausible proposition the Aitken Team cite the evidence of the following (which with respect is far from "clear"):

George Roberts (AR13 and Day 151):

> "describes a young man in a white Aran sweater with wound under his right eye from which blood was gushing."

18.9.2.8 George Roberts' evidence is that he was at the southern gable of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North with [redacted]. He amended this when he gave oral evidence, to say that this person was PIRA 1 Day 151/69/11 to Day 151/69/19.

18.9.2.9 In 1972 George Roberts evidence seemed to be to the effect that he had witnessed at least 3 people being shot:

> "...I was standing at the barricade and the army started shooting and the fellow standing beside me fell. He was hit and I got down beside him to try and pull him into the gable house. I called to the

18.7.4.323 It was apparent throughout the witness' oral examination by Counsel to the Tribunal that he had little independent memory of what happened and preferred to rely on the statement that he made to the Treasury Solicitor as being correct. Another feature of his oral evidence was that he had further expunged a lot of detail from his mind during the 3 years between signing his Eversheds statement (made in 2000) and giving oral evidence. By way of example, Private D in 1972 said that he did not hear any explosions except rubber bullet guns being fired. B76. In his Eversheds statement he said:

> "I do not remember hearing blast bombs but afterwards I recall seeing a video and there were three big blasts which might have been nail bombs. I do not remember hearing them on the day." B85.007 paragraph 36

18.7.4.324 When Counsel to the Tribunal asked him when he saw this footage Private D was unable to say whether he saw it 30 years ago, 25 years ago or a week prior to giving evidence. Day 355/36/7 to Day 355/37/5

18.7.4.325 In a similar vein Private D said in his Eversheds statement he saw a priest shouting "don't shoot" who was positioned between the entrance of Block1 and the Rubble Barricade, possibly on the road near a body that was lying face down. The following exchange ensued between the witness and Counsel to the Tribunal:

> "Q. Did you form any impression as to whether the person who was lying down on the ground was dead or wounded or just taking cover?
>
> A. I cannot remember now, but on reading me statement, um, I said he was not moving, the body, so he was face down on the floor, but I cannot remember, I cannot remember now.
>
> Q. He may not have been moving. Have you at any stage had an impression of whether he was dead or alive?
>
> A. None at all.

Q. How clear is your memory of this incident now?
A. It is hazy, I just remember the bits of it.
Q. Could it be that your recollection of seeing the priest and the man lying down on his stomach is a bit muddled?
A. No, if he is down in the statement, I saw it, but now I just, um, I cannot remember now.
Q. You seem to be saying that when you made this statement in July 2000, you could remember quite a lot of things that you cannot remember now?

A. Well, it is, I just do not, I do not keep these in me memory, so, I wish to forget about it, so ...
Q. Is the position that you kept it in your memory for 28 years and then in the last three --
A. Just the, I just remember the main things what happened and it is just things what came into me memory that I told in, um 2000.
Q. I will ask again: is the position that you kept quite at bit of information in your memory for 28 years and then, in the last three, it has just disappeared from your memory?

A. Well, it has gone fuzzy, yes." Day 355/34/16 to Day 355/35/24

18.7.4.326 Essentially, in our submission, this witness adopted a stratagem whereby he feigned memory loss in order to avoid telling the Tribunal the truth of what happened.

The 150-200 rioters allegedly observed by Lance Corporal D

18.7.4.327 This was first mentioned in the course of his oral evidence to Lord Widgery. Private D alleged that he saw 150-200 rioters whilst he was at the corner of the Kells Walk veranda. According to him, the rioters were at the bottom of the flats on the William Street side of the Barricade. B38 F to B39 A

18.7.4.328 This simply cannot be correct. We say this because by this point, the vast bulk of the firing from SLRs was over and the area of the Rubble Barricade would have been deserted of civilians. If there was any event that could be described as a "riot" in Rossville Street (which is not accepted) it ended with Lance Corporal F shooting Michael Kelly. This must have happened approximately 10 minutes prior to this witness assuming his position on the Kells Walk veranda / walkway. When these difficulties were pointed out to the witness, he could offer no explanation other than say what ever he said in 1972 was the truth. Day 355/46/15 to Day 355/47/20

18.7.4.329 Counsel for the Families pressed the matter further with the witness:

> "Q. No, but if you saw 150 people when you went up on to the > veranda or 200 milling around on the William Street side > of that barrier, and not one other soldier who is at > ground level saw such a thing at that time, not one > cameraman and not one journalist, not one priest and not > one civilian saw that, how did you see it?
> I saw it because I saw it and my recollection is what > I saw on that night. I do not care what other people > saw, that is what I saw.
> That is in fact what you told Lord Widgery in 1972: that > at the time you fired your shot or shots into the window > of Rossville Flats, there was a riotous crowd below?
> If I said that then it was the truth then." Day 355/47/21 to Day 355/48/8

18.7.4.330 In summary, Lance Corporal D provided a false account of what he did in 1972, in 2000 and in the course of his sworn evidence to this Tribunal. He was an evasive and dishonest witness who hid behind a mantra of memory loss in order to protect himself from a perjury charge. His evidence in relation to seeing a gunman should be rejected along with that of his colleague, Private C.

18.7.4.331 It is further submitted that the shots he fired were completely unjustified. However notwithstanding the obvious unreliability of Lance Corporal D's own evidence, when both "C" and "D" 's evidence are considered together their stories are shown to be demonstrably implausible.

Private 024

18.7.4.332 Private 024 only appears to have provided two undated statements to the RMP in 1972. He did not give evidence to this Inquiry. He was a member of Call Sign 71.

18.7.4.333 In summary, he told the RMP that:

i) After debussing he deployed along the wall of a building on the East side of Rossville Street. B1526

ii) He appears to have neither heard nor saw anything of note until he moved to the east end of Kells Walk whereupon he saw six members of Guinness Force dealing with a group of about twenty prisoners including a woman who must be the group who were arrested in Glenfada Park North. He assisted in handing these prisoners over to other soldiers in Little James Street. He then dealt with a further three prisoners in the same fashion and returned to Kells Walk. B1526 to B1527

iii) Whilst at the north west corner of the block a bullet was fired in his direction from the area of the GPO sorting office. He failed to see a gunman. B1527

iv) Sergeant 014 then told him to go up onto the same veranda as Private C and another member of his unit (who must be Lance Corporal D). 024 found his colleagues observing the Rossville Flats area at the south end of the veranda. B1527

v) "I looked down towards the Barricade on Rossville Street and saw a man with a nail bomb which was not lit. I would be able to recognise this man if I saw him again. I took aim with my SLR but did not fire as his bomb was not lit." B1527

vi) "As I watched him "C" moved round and took aim at a man who was hanging out of a window of a third floor flat in Rossville Flats. He was firing a pistol north along Rossville Street where part of the Force (unreadable)... "C" fired two rounds 7.62mm from his SLR and I saw the window shatter and the man with the pistol was thrown back into the house. I looked back to see if the bomber had lit his bomb but he had disappeared." B1527

18.7.4.334 In his second RMP statement Private 024 provided the following additional detail:

i) He times the events he allegedly saw on the veranda as taking place about 16.15hrs. B1529

ii) He now places the nail bomber on the junction of Rossville Street and an alleyway to Glenfada Park about 50 metres away. B1529

iii) His description of the gunman is less positive. He now only sees a man fire "what appeared to be a pistol" from Block1. B1529

18.7.4.335 A number of issues arise from this evidence:

i) This witness only claimed to see Soldier C open fire on one occasion. Notwithstanding his close proximity to C he only hears him fire two rounds but fails to hear the alleged Kalshnikov fire as claimed by C.

ii) He makes absolutely no mention of Lance Corporal D firing at all in either of his statements.

iii) Neither Soldiers C, D or any of the soldiers who were on ground level at this stage in Rossville Street claimed to see a man with a nail bomb on Rossville Street at this late stage. Notwithstanding this witness' professed ability to recognise the man with a nail bomb again if he saw him, he apparently provided no description of him to the RMP.

iv) It is submitted that the witness may have been aware of the timing difficulty after he made his first RMP statement. This may be the reason for attempting to put an early timing in relation to witnessing these events from the veranda.

v) In his first account to the RMP the witness has the alleged gunman in Block1 "hanging out of the window" firing his weapon. This is in contrast to the accounts given by Soldiers C and D.

vi) On Private 024's account the gunman only fired on one occasion before he shot by Private C.

18.7.4.336 In light of the foregoing it is submitted that Private 024's evidence in relation to seeing a nail bomber on Rossville Street is untrue. It is further submitted that he did not see anyone with a pistol in Block1 and that his accounts to the RMP have been provided as part of an inept attempt to corroborate the evidence of Private C.

Other members of Composite Platoon: Call Sign 71 Alpha

Corporal INQ 812

18.7.4.337 Corporal INQ812 only made a statement to Eversheds. In relation to the quality of his recollection he points out that he performed a number of tours in Northern Ireland. "The trouble with doing more tours is that your recollection can get mixed up." C812.3 paragraph 21

18.7.4.338 As Composite Platoon entered the Bogside he was affected by gas. When the platoon deployed into Rossville Street he remained crouched down at the tailgate of the lorry. C812.2 paragraphs 10 to 11

18.7.4.339 He claims not to have seen any of his colleagues firing nor did he see any of the scenes in front of the Rossville Flats or on the waste ground.

C812.2 paragraph 11. He "mostly heard high velocity shots" and cannot remember any explosions. C812.2 paragraph 12

18.7.4.340 Corporal INQ 812 now thinks that he can hear nail bombs on V1/00.06 to 00.07. He also recalls seeing Father Daly waving a white handkerchief and carrying a body. C812.2 paragraph 14. It is submitted that if this witness genuinely did see Father Daly with a body, because this happened in the car park of the Rossville Flats courtyard at an early stage, it is difficult to accept that he genuinely saw as little as he now claims or that his account of remaining at the tailgate of the Bedford lorry is true.

Private INQ449

18.7.4.341 This witness has provided a statement to Eversheds C449 and gave evidence on Day 357. He claims that he fired a shot at a pistol man in a flat at Columbcille Court. On any view he provides a seriously unreliable account and in our submission the Tribunal can attach no weight to it.

18.7.4.342 For example, he thinks he was deployed near the City Walls and has C Company deployed with riot shields on the waste ground in Sector 2 before Support Company debussed and then later says they were involved in operations in Columbcille Court. He says that VNK541 and INQ2093 from Mortar platoon fired a shot on Bloody Sunday but he also suggests that keeping private supplies of ammunition was prevalent.

18.7.4.343 According to INQ449, the civilians would drop the dead bodies of IRA members down sewers as the IRA disclaimed casualties because it was "bad publicity" for them. The witness did not say on what basis he made this assertion. The reason why he provided no basis for this is because there is none.

18.7.4.344 This witness served to underline the unreliable and highly improbable standard of not only his recollection but the recollections of virtually all the military witnesses.

Private INQ 748

18.7.4.345 Private INQ748 has provided a statement to Eversheds but did not give oral evidence to the Tribunal. He views the setting up of a second Inquiry into Bloody Sunday with "disgust"[81] C748.4 paragraph 24.

18.7.4.346 On Bloody Sunday he was equipped with an SMG. He remembers the drainpipe shot occurring when he was in the churchyard. He also saw the crowd rioting at Barrier 12. He does not remember seeing or hearing any nail bombs or petrol bombs being thrown.

18.7.4.347 He is obviously mistaken in relation to travelling through Barrier 12 on foot as opposed to in the Bedford lorries. At no stage in his evidence does he claim to have been under fire whilst in Sector 3. Nor does he say that he saw any civilian gunmen or heard bombs exploding. C748.2 paragraph 13

18.7.4.348 He appears (It is by no means clear) to have been in the area of Kells Walk (the street) and Columbcille Court when he heard shots from Rossville Street. See marked up photograph at C748.6. He was unable to say what type of gunfire it was and cannot tell the difference between high and low velocity fire. Nor could he say if the shots were civilian or army fire. All he could say was that the gunfire came from behind him and to the east. C748.3 paragraph 17

18.7.4.349 Whilst in this courtyard position he later saw some prisoners with soldiers. This sounds like the prisoners who were taken from Glenfada Park North as INQ748 believes that by this stage the shooting in Rossville Street had stopped. C748.4 paragraph 19

18.7.4.350 This witness gave a statement to Eversheds though he has a recollection of also providing one to the RMP in Belfast about 10 days after Bloody Sunday. We do not have the statement to which he refers. Counsel to the Inquiry pressed the witness about this statement. The witness was sure that this statement was made in respect of Bloody Sunday. Day 363/13/8 to Day 363/15/17

18.7.4.351 He was the driver of the second Guinness Force soft skinned lorry. He gives a confused and obviously unreliable account of the drainpipe shot occurring as Colour Sergeant was unhooking the barrier so that the Company could move into Bogside. C405.2 paragraphs 7 to 9 . The witness did agree with Counsel that it was possible that after 32 years he could be confused about some matters Day 363/20/1 to Day 363/20/3

18.7.4.352 His recollection in his Eversheds statement is that whilst he was driving the Bedford lorry the Paras came under intense fire from high velocity automatic weapons such as Armalites or AK47s for a couple of minutes. There was no SMG fire or explosions or even any other noises, commotion or shouting. C405.2 paragraph 10

18.7.4.353 However when he gave oral evidence he changed his evidence in this respect:

> Q. Is it right that all the shooting you heard when you were still in the vehicle was high velocity shooting?
> A. Yes, yes, to my knowledge anyway.
> Q. Could you tell what kind of high velocity weapons were causing that shooting?
> A. Yes, it sounded like SLR to me, yes.
> Q. Do you remember hearing any other kind of firing apart from SLR firing while you were still in the vehicle?

A. No, as I have said before, it was just a blanket of noise.
Q. A blanket of noise --
A. A blanket of noise echoing, you just cannot pick out, you know, separate sort of weapons when everything is going off, you know.
Q. You were able to pick out SLRs; is that right?
A. Well, that was the main thing that was going off, yes.
Q. And apart from the SLRs, were you able to pick out anything else or was it just a blanket of noise?
Q. Just a blanket of noise. Day 363/9/4 to Day 363/9/22

18.7.4.355 Counsel for the Families explored this bizarre claim with the witness:

"Q. From what you saw or heard, did anyone of the 40 troops who were part of Guinness Force react in a way which would have led them to believe that the fire that was coming, you believe eight feet to your left, was hostile to them?
A. No, not at all." Day 363/17/24 to Day 363/18/4

18.7.4.356 In his oral evidence INQ 405 claimed not to see any of his colleagues open fire or see any civilians shot. Day 363/13/1 to Day 363/13/7

18.7.4.357 It is submitted that the account provided by this witness is inherently implausible and bears no relation to the objective evidence, namely the actuality footage on V/48 12.43 to 12.53 which shows the relaxed debussing of Composite Platoon from their Bedford lorries. Nor is it corroborated by any of the other soldiers who were in this position.

Corporal INQ 25

18.7.4.358 Corporal INQ 25 made a statement to Eversheds and gave evidence on Day 300. He has identified himself as being in photograph EP5.22. He saw the drainpipe shot and later heard occasional shots being fired. His role on Bloody Sunday was with about six colleagues to escort prisoners and hold them in a secure area until they were taken away for questioning. C25.1 paragraph 7

18.7.4.359 He was positioned near the junction of William Street and Rossville Street and also in the vicinity of the City Cabs office. The evidence of two civilians who were arrested in the Rossville Street / waste ground area (William Dillon AD46.5 paragraphs 24 to 25 and James Doherty AD69.4 paragraphs 26 to 27) and who were detained in the area where INQ 25 was put to the witness by Counsel to the Tribunal. INQ25 denied that these prisoners were brutalised and threatened. He also denied that the Guinness Force soldiers were aggressive, angry and hyped up. Day 300/86/5 to Day 300/87/11

18.7.4.360 During the day he heard various shots fired but did not see anyone (military or civilian) actually opening fire. INQ25's recollection was that the shooting was not continuous. He could not say what kind of weapons were being used or where the shots were coming from. He has no recollection of machine gun fire, nor could he say whether there were other types of explosions, such as nail bombs exploding. C25.3 paragraph 20

18.7.4.361 Whilst positioned near the City Cabs office in William Street he saw one of his fellow soldiers (i.e. a member of Guinness Force who the witness claimed that he could not name Day 300/90/1 to Day 300/90/6) strike a civilian on the head with his baton who was trying to get into the taxi rank. He describes the civilian as being dressed in a dark overcoat, being short and in his forties. In our submission this can only be a reference to Patsy O'Donnell. INQ25 says that in his Eversheds statement the soldier struck the civilian "not too hard". C25.3 paragraph 26. In our submission this witness is playing down the seriousness of this assault on Mr O'Donnell. Mr O'Donnell in fact received a 1½ inch wound to the left side of his scalp which required 7 or 8 sutures. AO35.7, E10.010 , D0898

18.7.4.362 In his oral evidence INQ25 admitted that the blow from the baton "split his head open". He agreed that it was apparent that the civilian was visibly already in some pain and distress, that there were roughly six Guinness Force Paratroopers present and that they had the other arrestees all under control. All INQ25 could say in defence of the actions of his colleague, who he did not name, was that it "was not a normal situation". Day 300/90/18 to Day 300/91/25

18.7.4.363 He claims that after this incident a priest intervened and it became apparent that Mr O'Donnell was wounded by gunshot in the shoulder area. Captain INQ7, the battalion intelligence officer, then allowed the wounded man to be taken away in a civilian car. C25.3 paragraphs 26 to 28

Lance Corporal INQ 816

18.7.4.364 This witness provided a statement to Eversheds. He is another former Paratrooper who is openly hostile to the setting up of this Inquiry[81].

[81] "I would like to say that I think this Inquiry is trying to crucify the guys who were on the ground that day. The events of that day happened a long time ago and the men were just trying to do their jobs." C816.5 paragraph 27

Perhaps this may be a reason for his lack of memory. He says that he does not remember going into the Bogside at all and he does not remember being near the Rossville Flats. He suggests that he might have been split up from everyone else when "we got into the vehicles" but he does not suggest where it was that he may have went. C816.3 paragraph 20 18.7.4.365 INQ816 says that he did not hear any rounds that were fired after the Paras went in. In the context of over 100 rounds being fired in the Rossville Street area by 1Para area this is simply incredible. He says that he did not see any gunmen in the crowd. C816.4 paragraph 21. Nor did he hear any explosions or automatic fire. C816.3 paragraph 18. In contrast to this, he does have a recollection of an incoming shot striking the drainpipe at the Presbyterian Church. C816.2 paragraph 16. It is submitted that if this witness actually did hear any incoming fire whilst in the Rossville Street area then he would not have been reluctant to include this in his statement to the Inquiry.

18.7.4.366 This is yet another witness feigning memory loss because he could not give an honest account of the events in the Bogside that he must have either witnessed or heard about in the aftermath without implicating his former colleagues in shooting at civilians without justification.

18.7.5 Observation Posts

Introduction

18.7.5.1 According to the Operation Order:

> "The containment line and the area within it are to be dominated by physical military presence, by OP observation and by sniper posts. The maximum number of soldiers are to be in the shop window. They are to be covered by deployment of OP's and by a massive deployment of snipers in the anti-sniper role, who should be deployed at every possible vantage point within our secure area" (Operation Order G95.568, emphasis added)

18.7.5.2 Bearing in mind that soldiers were to be deployed at "every possible vantage point", the most striking feature of the evidence of the soldiers deployed in the observation posts, both permanent and ad hoc, is that claimed sightings of civilians engaged in hostile action against the army are few and far between. The majority of these soldiers did not claim to have seen anything that could have justified the use of lethal force by the Parachute Regiment on Bloody Sunday. None of the witnesses positioned on the Observation Posts claims to have witnessed the sort of widespread and intensive shooting and bombing that the Parachute Regiment claims to have sustained.

18.7.5.3 While there is some evidence from soldiers on Observation Posts of civilians firing a weapon or throwing a nail bomb, these allegations are undermined by the fact that:

i) The fact that their colleagues positioned beside them and observing the same area see nothing;

ii) Their universal failure to report the claimed sightings over the radio, as is reflected by the radio logs;

iii) Their universal failure to report these sightings to their more senior colleagues.

18.7.5.4 There were 19 Army Observation Posts in Derry on Bloody Sunday. Of those only a limited number had views of Rossville Street and the Rubble Barricade and it is not proposed to deal with Observation Posts which did not have any such view. The Observation Posts of most relevance to Sector 3 are: Charlie OP located on the City Walls; the other observation posts on the Walls; and ECHO Observation Post. The evidence of the individual soldiers at these Observation Posts where relevant is dealt with below.

18.7.5.5 The OP's at Harrison's Garage, Abbey Taxis, the Pet Shop and the Peter England shirt factory can be seen in EP21.7. Taken from ground level at a point near the junction of Little James Street and Sackville Street, P364 shows the OP's at the Pet Shop and the Peter England shirt factory (sometimes referred to as the Hogg and Mitchell factory). It is apparent from these two photographs that soldiers in the Pet Shop OP and the Peter England shirt factory OP would have had a commanding view of most of Rossville Street, including the Rubble Barricade, parts of the waste ground and parts of the Rossville Flats courtyard.

18.7.5.6 In relation to the Observation Post at the Peter England Shirt Factory also had views of the Rubble Barricade. The evidence of these witnesses is comprehensively dealt with, inasmuch as it is relevant to Sector 3, in our section on the evidence of Soldier U of Mortar Platoon above. The evidence in relation to the OP at the Pet Shop will be dealt with briefly below.

City Walls

18.7.5.7 Major 159 was the Battery Commander of 53 Battery of the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment who had responsibility for the manning of 3 permanent Observation Posts located on the City Walls on Bloody Sunday. These were located: south of Butcher's Gate; at Charlie OP and at the Double Bastion. B1951 It is the evidence of soldiers from Charlie OP which is of most relevance to this Sector. In addition it is apparent that on Bloody Sunday there were ad hoc Observation Posts on the Walls and that soldiers were positioned at the Platform and at Roaring Meg, as well as at the Walker Monument.

Charlie OP

18.7.5.8 There was a permanent Observation Post on the City Walls known as Charlie OP which had vantage point over the Bogside.

18.7.5.9 Charlie OP was located on the City Walls approximately half way between the Walker Monument at the Royal Bastion and an Observation Post identified as "the platform" which was at a portion of the wall which juts out, positioned to the north of the Walker Monument. The Walker Monument and "the platform" can be seen on photographs P333.001 and P333.002. EP1.1 and EP1.2 are photographs of Charlie OP as it would have looked on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.5.10 It has been agreed by a number of witnesses that P233.70 represents the view which would have been seen from Charlie OP on Bloody Sunday. P198 and EP1.5 show those parts of the Rossville Flats, Rossville Street, the Rubble Barricade, Glenfada Park and the back of Joseph Place which would have been seen from Charlie OP.

18.7.5.11 Charlie OP was manned by Lieutenant 227, Soldier 012, Sergeant 025, Sergeant 139 from 53 Battery of the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment. There were also a number of police men at the Observation Post at Charlie OP, an RUC officer Chief Superintendent Hood and two Scottish police officers. It is proposed to deal with their evidence in this section. In addition Soldier 159 who was the Battery Commander for 53 Battery visited Charlie OP as well as visiting the other Observation Posts on the Wall. Soldier 159 was accompanied by his escort Soldier 165 and his radio operator INQ 233, their evidence will also be dealt with in this section.

Individual Soldiers

Soldier 227

18.7.5.12 Soldier 227 was the Platoon Commander at Charlie OP. In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he states that his "duty was to report on my regimental net anything of significance." B2188 paragraph 2

18.7.5.13 He confirmed in the course of his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry that he was able to see the Glenfada Park side of the Rubble Barricade on the pavement, he could not see the Rubble Barricade on the actual road. B2197C

18.7.5.14 He gave evidence about seeing 2 bodies behind the Rubble Barricade and states that "I did not see any of those at the barricade armed. If they had been carrying weapons I think I would have seen them." B2188 paragraph 5 He also saw people move from the Rubble Barricade behind the gable wall of Glenfada Park North. "I did not identify any weapons amongst them. I did not hear the sound of firing from this courtyard at this time or later." B2189 paragraph 6

18.7.4.15 Although his consistent evidence has been that he did not see armed civilians he has also claimed that the first firing he heard was from a Thompson sub-machine gun. In his RMP statement he believed these shots came from the area of Glenfada Park, B2184 however he has confirmed in oral evidence that he can "only say that this gunfire came from somewhere to [his] front". Day 371/135/20 to Day 371/135/22

18.7.5.16 He then claims that he heard the sound of a nail bomb followed by "what sounded like three aimed shots from an SLR." The crowd at the Barricade split up, leaving 2 bodies on the Rubble Barricade. B2184 He then heard 2/3 pistol shots from the Rossville Flats area. He also witnessed the shooting of Barney McGuigan by Soldier F. B2185

18.7.5.17 He states at the conclusion of his statement that the first shots fired were definitely not fired from an SLR. B2186

18.7.5.18 In summary therefore although he saw no civilian with weapons he does give evidence which suggests that weapons were fired by civilians and in particular that a Thompson sub-machine gun was fired and that this was the first live fire heard by him on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.5.19 Soldier 227 accepted the evidence of Col. Jackson and Soldier 128 in relation to the 'Derry sound' and the difficulty of identifying sounds correctly in a built-up area. Nonetheless he did not accept that he could have been mistaken in his identification of a Thompson sub-machine gun.[82] Day 371/177/16 to Day 371/178/23

18.7.5.20 It is submitted that Soldier 227 is incorrect when he states that he heard a Thompson sub-machine gun on Bloody Sunday for the following reasons:

i) He was relatively inexperienced in Derry, his Regiment having only taken over as the City Battalion on the 21st December 1971. Day 371/176/9 to Day 371/176/17 Although Soldier 227 had been in the city prior to the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment taking over as the City Battalion but subsequent to November 1971. Day 371/177/1 to Day 371/177/6

ii) He had only once previously heard a Thompson sub-machine gun fired in Derry. Day 371/133/8 to Day 371/133/12

iii) He claimed to have heard a total of three SLR shots fired before he witnessed Soldier F firing the shots from the southern gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North. We know that at least 103 live rounds were fired in the area of the Rossville Flats car-park, on Rossville Street itself and in Glenfada Park North within a very short time after the arrival of Support Company in the Bogside, yet Soldier 227 did not apparently hear any of those rounds. Day 371/180/18 to Day 371/181/21 It is submitted that he has confused the sound of continuous and simultaneous SLR firing from a number of different soldiers spread over the Bogside, with the sound of a Thompson sub-machine gun. Day 371/185/11 to Day 371/185/23 It should be remembered that, on the account of Soldier 012 who was with Soldier 227 "it was not everyday that we saw as much shooting as had happened that day. It was mayhem that was entirely new." B1405.008 paragraph 26

iv) His evidence about hearing fire from a Thompson sub-machine gun is undermined by Soldier 012, his radio operator who accompanied him on the day and who states that he did not hear Thompson sub-machine gun fire. B1405.006 paragraph 20, B1405.010 paragraph 38, B1405.011 paragraph 44, B1405.012 paragraph 46 According to Soldier 227 "my signaller remained close to me at all times". B2204.002 paragraph 7

v) His evidence on this issue is also undermined by his Sergeant Soldier 139 also positioned at Charlie OP who stated in 1972 that "I could not state at any time as to which weapons were being fired at any particular time during the affray except for SLR discharges." B1861 He has given evidence to this Tribunal that "I did not hear any low velocity fire or automatic fire and I would not have expected to have heard low velocity fire or automatic fire from my position as the sound would not have carried that far. B1862.004 paragraph 15

vi) His evidence is further undermined by the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment's radio log which does not contain any record of Thompson sub-machine gun fire. W97 Soldier 227's excuse for failing to radio in this information, is that Soldier 159 was present, with a radio operator. However while Soldier 159 gives an account of hearing fire from a Thompson sub-machine gun he was not able to state his location when he heard it or the time at which he heard it. B1952 If Soldier 227 is correct that Soldier 159 was present when he heard the Thompson and that they are both in effect describing the same incident, it is inexplicable that neither saw fit to report it over the radio. Particularly in view of the fact that it was Soldier 227's role and function, as per his statement to the Treasury Solicitor; B2188 paragraph 2 his signaller was close to him at all times; B2204.002 paragraph 7 and that reporting the sound was "a very straightforward procedure". B2204.004 paragraph 18

vii) Soldier 227 gives evidence that no shots were fired from the City Walls, yet we know that live rounds were fired from other positions on the City Walls. Day 371/181/7 to Day 371/181/14 Again this demonstrates that his accounting of the live firing he heard on Bloody Sunday is inconsistent with the live firing which we know to have occurred.

18.7.5.21 Soldier 227 also gave evidence of having heard a nail bomb exploding. Again it is submitted that Soldier 227 is mistaken about this issue, for the following reasons:

i) Neither, Soldier 012, Soldier 139 nor Soldier 025 heard nail bombs exploding on Bloody Sunday. Although all were positioned at Charlie OP.

ii) To like effect neither Soldier 159, nor Soldier 165 heard the sound of exploding nail bombs and they visited Charlie OP over the course of the day and were on the City Walls throughout the day. Soldier 159 gave very clear evidence that "Petrol bombs and nail bombs also made a distinctive 'bang' noise. I would have known and recognised the sound if I heard it. I do not recall any explosions that day." B1953.003 paragraph 23

iii) The suggestion that a nail bomb exploded anywhere in the Bogside on Bloody Sunday is undermined by the body of civilian evidence, as well as evidence from priests, journalists and photographers about the absence of nail bombs on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.5.22 It is submitted that Soldier 227's testimony about having heard an exploding nail bomb further undermines his testimony about hearing Thompson sub-machinegun fire.

18.7.5.23 Soldier 227 also claims to have heard pistol shots fired on Bloody Sunday from the "area of the Rossville Flats". Day 371/172/1 to Day 371/172/8. There is a body of evidence before this Tribunal that pistol shots were fired in the area of the Rossville Flats by a member of the Official IRA known as 'Fr. Daly's gunman'. It may be that the witness heard this fire, although given the testimony of Soldier 139, Col. Jackson and Soldier 128 it is questionable whether he could in fact have distinguished those sounds.

Soldier 012

18.7.5.24 Soldier 012 was Soldier 227's radio operator Day 371/120/11 to Day 371/120/12 and on the evidence of Soldier 227 "my signaller remained close to me at all times". B2204.002 paragraph 7

18.7.5.25 In 1972 Soldier 012 gave evidence that he had seen a man with a pistol behind the Rubble Barricade. He heard a burst of automatic fire from the direction of Columbcille Court. B1399 He subsequently heard 2 low velocity shots from a pistol and then heard several SLR shots. B1400

18.7.5.26 Soldier 012 then describes seeing two male civilians who appeared to have been shot, one behind the Barricade and one lying at the south end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. B1403

18.7.5.27 He then believes that he saw an APC arrive at the Barricade and saw them pick up what appeared to by a body from the Rubble Barricade before driving off. B1403

18.7.5.28 In his evidence to this Tribunal Soldier 012 has stated that he believes that the first shooting he heard was from a "position forward of the lorry [at Free Derry Corner] but to the left of my position." He is unable to assist as to whether that was before or after the Paras entered the Bogside. He believed the fire was high velocity fire. B1405.005 paragraphs 19 to 20

18.7.5.29 He has no recollection of anyone civilian or military firing any shots and does not believe he saw armed civilians. He believed that if he had seen armed civilians he would have radioed that in. B1405.006 paragraph 21

18.7.5.30 Soldier 012's recollection of seeing bodies is extremely vague, although he does appear to have some recollection of what would appear to have been the body of Barney McGuigan at the south end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. B1405.007 paragraphs 23 to 24

18.7.5.31 He confirms that the situation encountered by the soldiers on the wall was "mayhem" and was "entirely new", as "it was not everyday that we saw as much shooting as had happened that day." B1405.008 paragraph 26

18.7.5.32 Soldier 012 has now confirmed that, contrary to the account made by him in 1972:

i) He has no recollection of seeing a man behind the Rubble Barricade with a pistol. B1405.010 paragraph 37

ii) He has no recollection of having heard two lots of hostile fire, the first a burst of automatic fire and then two further shots. His only recollection is that "he heard fire from my left, which was rifle cracks not automatic fire." B1405.010 paragraph 38

iii) He did not hear Soldier 025 shout that he had seen a nail bomber, nor did he see any nail bomber. B1405.011 paragraph 42, B1405.012 paragraph 46

iv) He did not see anyone with a nail bomb. B1405.011 paragraph 44

v) He did not hear automatic fire. B1405.011 paragraph 44, B1405.012 paragraph 46

18.7.5.33 While Soldier 012 gave evidence in 1972 about witnessing a civilian gunman behind the Rubble Barricade and about having heard fire from non-SLRs. The accounts given were of course uncorroborated at the time. Moreover, despite the fact that Soldier 012 was the radio operator there is no reference to any such incident in the radio logs. It is submitted that his evidence on these issues to this Tribunal is to be preferred.

Soldier 025

18.7.5.34 Soldier 025 gave evidence in 1972 that he witnessed an object which he believed to be a nail bomb being handed to a man at the "barrier at Rossville Street." B1535 Soldier 025 then states that he went to grab his rifle, only to discover that his Platoon Commander Soldier 227 had removed his rifle and was using the telescopic sight to observe the area. B1535, B1536

18.7.5.35 He then claims to have heard automatic fire, followed by some shots from an SLR. He saw two men slumped over the barrier and he then heard several shots from a low velocity weapon, coming from the left hand side of Glenfada Park. This shot was followed by firing from an SLR. B1536

18.7.5.36 In his evidence to this Tribunal in relation to the gunfire heard by him he states that that he recalls "hearing both high velocity and low velocity gun shots, but I cannot remember which sort of gun fire I heard first. The low velocity fire sounded to me like a short burst from a "Tommy" gun. The shooting seemed to be coming from around the area of the Rossville Flats, but I cannot be more precise than that." B1540 paragraph 8

18.7.5.37 In his evidence to this Tribunal he claims in relation to the 'nail-bomb' that he "did not get a clear view of the object that was being passed between the men, nor did I see the object fizzing or smoking. However, because of the way the men were behaving – it was real

"cloak and dagger" stuff – I thought at the time they had a petrol bomb." B1540 paragraph 8

18.7.5.38 Although, his response to this incident was to grab his rifle, only to discover that it had been taken by his Platoon Commander he states that he cannot "recall whether I reported this incident to my troop commander." B1540 paragraph 9 Soldier 227 is the troop commander being referred to and appears to confirm that he did take Soldier 025's rifle to look through the sights. Day 371/127/14 to Day 371/128/17

18.7.5.39 Certainly Soldier 227, despite having access to the telescopic sight of the rifle at this time, never saw the nail bomb, and in fact was quite clear that he saw no weapon behind the Rubble Barricade. Moreover, he was never made aware of Soldier 025 having seen something he believed to be a nail bomb. Day 371/129/1 to Day 371/129/6

18.7.5.40 Soldier 025 is now quite confused about the location of the incident involving the supposed nail bomb in that he now claims that this did not occur at the Rubble Barricade, but rather at a barrier at the (north east) corner of Glenfada Park South. B1540.001 paragraph 14

18.7.5.41 In his oral evidence to this Tribunal he was clear that, contrary to the evidence of Soldier 227, he had never heard the sound of a nail bomb exploding. Day 361/25/24 to Day 361/26/11

18.7.5.42 He went on to accept that it was possible that the object could have been a rock or a brick, rather than a bomb. Day 361/26/19 to Day 371/27/1 He also accepted that what he could have seen was someone taking photographs. Day 361/40/10 to Day 361/40/22

18.7.5.43 Soldier 025's witnessing of a person with a nail bomb behind the Barricade was uncorroborated by other soldiers at the same location as him in 1972. In particular it was not corroborated by Soldier 227 who was observing the area with a telescopic sight at that time and who witnessed no civilians with weapons behind the Rubble Barricade. B1588 paragraph 5 The lack of corroboration by Soldier 227 is particularly significant in that it seems improbable that having witnessed this incident and gone to get his rifle, Soldier 025 would not have told his Platoon Commander who was holding his sniper's rifle about what he had just observed. It is also the case that the incident was not recorded in the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment radio log. In view of his oral evidence to this Tribunal and in the absence of corroboration in 1972, no reliance can be placed upon the account given by him in 1972.

18.7.5.44 On the question of having heard a burst from a Thompson sub-machine gun, in the vicinity of the Rossville Flats, the witness stated that "It could have been anywhere outside the Rossville Flats. Day 361/44/1 to Day 361/45/14 He also confirmed that the automatic fire and the SLR fire were "close together." Day 361/46/3

18.7.5.45 In relation to having heard the Thompson sub-machine gun fire it is submitted that the witness is mistaken for similar reasons to those advanced in relation to Soldier 227. In summary

i) He was relatively inexperienced in Derry, his Regiment having only taken over as the City Battalion on the 21st December 1971.

ii) He had only once previously heard a Thompson sub-machine gun fired in Derry. Day 361/19/1 to Day 361/19/12

iii) He only claimed to have heard a few SLR shots fired in circumstances where we know that at least 103 live rounds were fired in the area of the Rossville Flats car-park, on Rossville Street itself and in Glenfada Park North within a short time of the arrival of Support Company in the Bogside. It is submitted that he has confused the sound of continuous and simultaneous SLR firing from a number of different soldiers spread over the Bogside, with the sound of a

Thompson sub-machine gun. Particularly in light of the fact that the firing from the supposed Thompson and the firing from SLRs came very close together. It should be noted that, on the account of Soldier 012 who was with Soldier 025 "it was not everyday that we saw as much shooting as had happened that day. It was mayhem that was entirely new." B1405.008 paragraph 26

iv) His evidence about hearing fire from a Thompson sub-machine gun is undermined by Soldier 012, his radio operator who accompanied him on the day and who states that he did not hear Thompson sub-machine gun fire. B1405.006 paragraph 20, B1405.010 paragraph 38, B1405.011 paragraph 44, B1405.012 paragraph 46 His evidence is also undermined by Soldier 139 who has stated that "I did not hear any low velocity fire or automatic fire and I would not have expected to have heard low velocity fire or automatic fire from my position as the sound would not have carried that far. B1862.004 paragraph 15

v) His evidence is further undermined by the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment's radio log which does not contain any record of Thompson sub-machine gun fire. W97

Soldier 139

18.7.5.46 Soldier 139 was a Sergeant, also positioned at Charlie OP on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.5.47 While Soldier 139 gave an account in 1972 of hearing live rounds on Bloody Sunday he confirmed that the only weapons he could identify were SLRs. B1861

18.7.5.48 He does give evidence that Soldier 025 gave a warning about having seen a nail bomber, but also confirms that despite having looked in the area he did not see a nail bomber himself. B1860

18.7.5.49 While in his statement to Eversheds his recollection was that Soldier 025 had heard a nail bomb exploding in William Street, he has confirmed that he was probably more accurate in 1972 when he stated that he had spotted a nail bomber rather than described a nail bomb exploding. Day 350/11/8 to Day 350/11/18

18.7.5.50 He has confirmed that he did not hear automatic fire. Day 350/14/2 to Day 350/14/4

18.7.5.51 In 1972 Soldier 139 described an incident in which troops advanced towards the Rubble Barricade and he saw youths throwing stones. He described the stone-throwing as having occurred at Columbcille Court. B1860 He has accepted that he may have been referring to Glenfada Park North but his description of the incident remains incongruous given that it is dependent upon having actually seen troops advance on the Rubble Barricade. Day 350/38/16 to Day 350/40/21

18.7.5.52 It is submitted that nothing in Soldier 139's evidence supports the suggestion that there was any justification for firing live rounds at people behind the Rubble Barricade and moreover his testimony serves to undermine the testimony of the soldiers on Charlie OP who claim to have heard nail bombs and Thompson sub-machine gun fire

18.7.5.53 Major 159 was the Battery Commander of 53 battery of the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment who had responsibility for the manning of 3 Observation Posts located on the City Walls. He was not located at any single Observation Post but over the day he visited the various Observation Posts on the Walls. He was accompanied by Soldier 165.

18.7.5.54 Soldier 159 was positioned on Charlie OP for at least part of the day and gave evidence of 3 separate incidents of firing at the City Walls, as follows:

"About 1614 hours whilst I was at 'Charlie OP' I heard two shots fired from the direction of the 'Bogside'. In my opinion, the shots were fired from a high velocity weapon and that the shot was fired at the position at the Double Bastion OP.

At 1634 hrs, that day a further high velocity shot was fired from the Bogside which struck the City Wall somewhere below where I was standing. . . .

On leaving The Double Bastion location, I returned to Butchers Gate. About 1638 a further two rounds were fired from the Bogside in the direction of the Double Bastion or Bishops Gate which was manned by the Royal Anglians." B1951, B1952

18.7.5.55 Soldier 159 has also given evidence that he heard fire from a Thompson sub machine gun, although he was unable to state at what stage in the day he heard that. B1952, B1953.002 paragraph 19

18.7.5.56 In his evidence to this Tribunal Soldier 159 stated that:

"the position and shape of the Rossville Flats made it very difficult to see exactly where shots were being fired from. Some people say that you can tell the direction of a bullet from the "crack" and "thud" sound, however, I do not agree with this, particularly in the area of the Rossville Flats. The Flats were so high that the sound of any gunfire reverberated around the buildings and it would be extremely difficult to say where the shots were coming from." B1953.001 paragraph 9

18.7.5.57 Soldier 159 gave evidence that he did not hear either a nail bomb or a petrol bomb on that day. As he stated "Petrol bombs and nail bombs also made a distinctive 'bang' noise. I would have known and recognised that sound if I heard it. I do not recall hearing any explosions that day" B1953.003 paragraph 23

18.7.5.58 In relation to the 3 separate incidents of high velocity shooting described by Soldier 159. Soldier 159 was questioned about these incidents during the course of his evidence. In relation to the first two incidents described by him it appears that these can be related to an entry in the radio logs:

i) In relation to the shot he described as having been fired at 1614. Serial 60 in the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment radio log W97 records that there were 2 shots at call sign 5. It is also reflected in an entry in the Porter log at W130 Serial 396. While Soldier 159 was unable to confirm this it is nonetheless submitted that the shots he described are those recorded in the logs.

ii) He described a second shooting incident at 1634. The Porter log at W131 serial 421 timed at 1621 records return fire by the army towards the Bogside Inn, after 2 incoming shots. While the timing is out, it is again submitted that the shooting described by Soldier 159 is reflected in the radio logs.

18.7.5.59 The third incident occurred according to Soldier 159 at 1638. It is clear on any account that this incident occurred some time after all of those killed and injured on Bloody Sunday had been shot. There is also a difficulty in that Soldier 159 was apparently positioned at Butcher's Gate when he heard those 2 rounds. B1952 Given the distance between these two locations it is submitted that Soldier 159's account cannot be completely relied upon. This is an issue which was dealt with in more detail in the questioning of Soldier 165 and it is submitted that the testimony of Soldier 165 on this issue serves to undermine the testimony of Soldier 159. He was in any event unable to distinguish SLR fire from other forms of high velocity weapon. Day 349/119/17 to Day 349/120/14

18.7.5.60 As with the other witnesses positioned on the Walls, Soldier 159's account suffers from his apparent failure to hear the 103 live rounds fired within a short space of time in the Bogside. Soldier 159 appeared to suggest that the reason he failed to account for this live fire in 1972 was because he was not specifically asked about this by the RMP. Day 349/126/22 to Day 349/127/7 However it is apparent from his RMP statement that he was asked about all of the shooting incidents witnessed by him. The end of his statement reads "I am unable to give a detailed account of any other shooting incidents, but I can say that two bursts of automatic fire, which in my opinion were fired from a Thompson sub machine-gun were fired from the direction of the Rossville Flats." B1952

18.7.5.61 When this was pointed out to him Soldier 159 then sought to assert that the reason that reference was not made to the 103 live rounds fired in the Bogside after the Paras went in was because it was not as significant as Thompson sub machine gun fire and because other people could have given evidence about it. Day 349/129/23 to Day 349/130/22

18.7.5.62 It is submitted that, either Soldier 159 made a conscious decision in 1972 not to give any account of the large volume of SLR fire which he must have been able to hear from the Walls. If that is the case it undermines his credibility in relation to the account given in 1972, because he restricted his evidence to an account of firing helpful to the Army, without giving information which might have been regarded as unhelpful. In the alternative, he did hear the firing but, consistent with his own account of the difficulty in the area of the Rossville Flats of making determinations about where sound came from, he took the simultaneous firing from a number of SLRs to be firing from a Thompson sub machine-gun.

18.7.5.63 Soldier 165 made a statement to the RMP in 1972 and has given evidence to this Tribunal. The evidence given to this tribunal is different in significant respects from that given in 1972, it is proposed to deal firstly with Soldier 165's 1972 account and then with the additional incidents referred to by him in his Eversheds statement.

18.7.5.64 Soldier 165 was Soldier 159's personal escort. In 1972 he described hearing three separate shooting incidents at the City Walls, in virtually identical terms to that of Soldier 159. B1971 However, according to Soldier 165 these incidents occurred sometime after 1300 hours B1971 and prior to the Parachute Regiment having entered the Bogside. B1972 The RMP who took his statement had, only 10 minutes previously taken the statement of Soldier 159. Day 374/24/23 to Day 274/25/1

18.7.5.65 He then describes hearing gas canisters and rubber bullets being fired, hearing the sound of a Thompson sub machine-gun after which he saw the first member of the Parachute Regiment in the area between Blocks 2 and 3 of the Rossville Flats. After that he heard single shots some of which came from SLRs. B1972

18.7.5.66 It is our submission that Soldier 165's statement in 1972 is completely unreliable. In particular, it is submitted that his statement in 1972 was made to corroborate his senior officer, Soldier 159, whether that initiative came from Soldier 165 or from the RMP who took the statement. It is moreover submitted that the difficulty Soldier 165 demonstrated under questioning of explaining how he could have described the shots heard in the terms he did, undermines the credibility of Soldier 159, as he would have experienced the same difficulties, being at the same location.

18.7.5.67 Soldier 165 was questioned about how he could hear a shot from the Bogside towards the Double Bastion, while positioned at Charlie OP. He gave evidence of hearing the crack and thump but stated incorrectly that the "crack is when the rifle is fired and the thump is when it goes over your head". Day 374/45/1 to Day 374/45/13

18.7.5.68 He was then asked:

"How could you have conceivably judged from 200 yards away, that a shot was directed at the double bastion?

A. Well, because you also recollect that I did not say where the shot came from, I did not know where the shot came from?

Q. And you did not know where the shot was going to?

A. Well, no, I did not know where the shot was going to, no.

Q. Thank you. All you could conceivably have heard was the noise, however it is described in words, as the cartridge is ejected by the explosive charge from the rifle?

A. Yes.

Q. Then why did you tell the RMP, in almost identical terms to your commander, that this shot was being fired at the double bastion, when you had no idea where it was being fired?

A. Well, it was not being fired at us and we assume it was being fired at the double bastion because that is where the other soldiers were." Day 374/45/22 to Day 374/46/19

18.7.5.69 Soldier 165 was also asked:

"How could you have conceivably have told, from where you were, as you were moving between Charlie OP and double bastion, that a shot was fired in [the direction of Bishop's Gate]?

A. Well it was not fired at us,

Q. That is all I want to know: it was not fired at you and your conclusion, therefore, was that it had to be at the double bastion or Bishop's Gate, because that is where the soldiers were?

A. It is the only two places that were being manned by soldiers?

Q. Again, that is a conclusion you draw from hearing the cartridge ejected from the rifle by its explosive charge?

A. Yes." Day 374/48/4 to Day 374/48/18

18.7.5.70 It is clear in our submission that Soldier 165's accounts in 1972 were simply a repetition, inaccurate though it was in terms of timing of the account which had been given to the same RMP only 10 minutes previously by Soldier 159. It is moreover questionable whether either soldier could in fact have heard that which he claimed to have heard, at least in relation to the first and third high velocity rounds fired at the Walls.

18.7.5.71 The inaccuracy in relation to timing is quite significant in that, while on Soldier 159's account, the first two shootings bear a relationship to incidents described in the logs, according to Soldier 165 these shootings occurred prior to the Paras entering the Bogside and renders even more unreliable Soldier 165's 1972 account.

18.7.5.72 In his evidence to this Tribunal Soldier 165 has described some incidents which were not contained in his RMP statement. He gives evidence that General Ford arrived at the City Walls and while in the company of Soldier 159 and General Ford he witnessed:

"a green Ford Cortina estate car with no number plates on it being loaded up by three or four men who were wearing green combat gear. . . . The men were loading up the car from the back of a shop in the Brandywell area just along from the Rossville Flats." B1977.003 paragraph 5

18.7.5.73 He then gave evidence that a shot was fired at their location at the City Walls and that he had concluded that it was fired because they had been observing these men.

18.7.5.74 He confirmed that both the incident with the men loading the car and the incident where the shot was fired at the Walls occurred when General Ford was positioned on the Walls. Day 374/5/2 to Day 374/5/18 and Day 374/7/23 to Day 374/7/25

18.7.5.75 While General Ford's Diary of Operations confirms that he was on the City Walls, there is no record of this incident having occurred. B1123 Moreover, neither incident is corroborated by Soldier 159 or receives any corroboration from the radio logs.

18.7.5.76 Soldier 165 also gives an account of what he referred to as a 'sneaky-beaky' where on the 31st January a group of soldiers led by Soldier 159 went to a lock-up at the location where they had seen the men loading the green Ford Cortina. He said that there had been a smell of marzipan consistent with explosives having been present. Soldier 159 gives no account of such an incident and Soldier 227 who was specifically asked about the matter had no recollection of such an incident. Day 371/164/14 to Day 371/164/20

18.7.5.77 The 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment's historical record refers to an operation on the 5th February 1972, when a lock-up at Meenan Square was searched and several suits of combat kit were discovered. C2107.42 Soldier 165 rejected the proposition that this was the incident to which he was referring. Day 374/17/7 to Day 374/17/19

18.7.5.78 Soldier 165 accepted that if an incident occurred as he described it then there should be documentation to verify it. Day 374/54/17 to Day 375/55/20 He also accepted towards the end of his questioning that in fact he might have been referring to the incident recorded in the

Regiment's Historical log as had been suggested to him by Counsel to the Inquiry. Day 374/55/21 to Day 374/56/5

18.7.5.79 The first point which should be made about each of the incidents described by Soldier 165 in his Eversheds statement is that they did not appear in his 1972 account, thus undermining his reliability as regards the incidents. They are also uncorroborated by either radio logs or any other witness who he claims was present.

18.7.5.80 It is submitted that in relation to Soldier 165's description of suspicious activity at the Ford Cortina and the shot fired at the City Walls he is mistaken or lying. As regards the undercover operation in the area of Meenan Square, it is submitted that he has confused the incident of the 5th February 1972, referred to in the Regiment's historical log with the events described by him in his statement.

18.7.5.81 INQ 233 has made a statement to this Inquiry. He did not make a statement or give evidence about the events of Bloody Sunday in 1972.

18.7.5.82 According to INQ 233 he was Major 159's radio operator and accompanied him on Bloody Sunday. C233.1 paragraph 5 He states that on the day they were ordered that there was to be radio silence but he was unable to explain why such an order was given. He stated that radio silence was maintained until after they had returned to base C233.1 paragraph 5

18.7.5.83 INQ 233's evidence on this point is inconsistent with the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment's radio log which can be found from W93 to W99 the contents of which demonstrate that radio messages were being sent and received all afternoon. It is also inconsistent with what appears to have been the function of the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment on the Walls and that was to report on the progress of the March to Brigade. B2204.002 paragraph 7

18.7.5.84 According to INQ 233 the soldiers on the Wall had been ordered to lie low and he has a recollection of all of the soldiers lying on the floor, including Major 159. C233.1 paragraph 6

18.7.5.85 He did hear gunfire on Bloody Sunday which "sounded like rifle fire rather than automatic gun fire although I could not say whether it was of a high or low velocity." C233.3 paragraph 7 He also recollects Major 159 standing up when the shooting started and saying "What the hell is going on?" C233.3 paragraph 7

18.7.5.86 INQ 233's statement undermines the testimony of Major 159 in relation to the hearing of automatic weapon. This witness also confirms that he heard no explosions. C233.2 paragraph 7

18.7.5.87 INQ 113 also claims to have been Major 159's radio operator on Bloody Sunday and his evidence is therefore addressed in this section.

18.7.5.88 INQ 113 was scheduled to give evidence to this Inquiry on the 18th June 2003. However having attended Central Hall, he refused to attend the Chamber to submit himself to questioning, either by Tribunal counsel or counsel for the Interested Parties.

18.7.5.89 This witness was originally scheduled to be read, however the Tribunal reconsidered its decision on that issue following representations made by Madden & Finucane, Solicitors on behalf of our clients. We asked that the witness be called and subjected to questioning because, among other matters, he claims to have heard Thompson sub-machine gun fire on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.5.90 The Tribunal determined on the 18th June that, rather than subpoena the witness and thus compel him to give oral testimony, his statement would be treated in like manner as all other statements of persons whose statements are to be read by the Tribunal and who are not called to give evidence.

18.7.5.91 It is our submission that this witness falls into a very different category to witnesses in respect of whose evidence, having received representations from the various Interested Parties, the Tribunal has determined ought to be read. INQ 113 is a witness in respect of whom, following representations from the Interested Parties, the Tribunal determined ought to give oral evidence. He should not now, as a result of his resolute refusal to give evidence, be placed in a better position, as a result of what can be categorised as a contempt of the Tribunal.

18.7.5.92 The Tribunal will be aware, having considered the statement, that this witness makes very controversial statements in relation to matters which are in dispute in this Inquiry, including, but not confined to his assertions about hearing Thompson sub-machine gun fire. He testifies to matters which appear to be uncorroborated by military witnesses or the documents to which the Tribunal has access. By way of example: he describes 3 shooting incidents in the Bogside prior to 12 noon, and rioting at the Rubble Barricade involving the use by rioters of CS gas, possibly petrol bombs and rioters being protected by sheets of corrugated iron. These allegations are made by a soldier who then goes on to assert that the deceased were members of paramilitary organisations and that they were shot for good reason.

18.7.5.93 It is our submission that this witness' evidence should be completely disregarded, given his refusal to attend the Inquiry to give oral testimony without good reason. INQ 113's evidence in our submission falls into a similar category to those of the witnesses referred to by the Tribunal in its correspondence of the 16th February 2004, who did not have good reason for not attending the Inquiry. The Tribunal is invited, in a like manner to the approach being adopted to civilian witnesses for whom no good reason has been advanced for their non-attendance, to draw an adverse inference from the failure of INQ 113 to give evidence.

18.7.5.94 It is nonetheless proposed to deal briefly with the contents of INQ 113's evidence to this Inquiry. INQ 113 claims that he was a radio operator to Major INQ 1484 who is in fact Major 159 on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.5.95 From the outset it can be seen that there are significant discrepancies between the account give by Soldier 159 and this witness, and it is submitted that the evidence of Soldier 159 is to be preferred.

18.7.5.96 It is not proposed to deal with his evidence in detail because it is submitted it is inherently unreliable save to point out the following:

i) INQ 113 claims to have 3 separate shooting incidents on Bloody Sunday, all of which occurred before 12 noon. None of the incidents is corroborated by a single other witness.

ii) None of the 3 incidents are recorded in any radio log, despite the fact that INQ 113 claims that he was a radio operator and that everything was reported. C113.4 paragraph 26

iii) INQ 113 specifically claims that the first incident where a 'Scottish section' came under fire was reported over the radio to the RUC and possibly Brigade HQ. C113.3 paragraph 17 This incident does not appear in any log.

iv) INQ 113 claims that he heard about the first incident over the "secure radio" C113.2 paragraph 15 Given the evidence about the existence of a BID 150 it is quite clear that, in the event that one existed it was not being used to report shooting incidents at the Walls on Bloody Sunday.

v) The second incident referred to by INQ 113 refers to shooting from the houses at Nailor's Row, which were occupied by army snipers. C113.3 paragraph 20

18.7.5.97 INQ 113 describes a riot taking place at the Rubble Barricade which involved: people holding up corrugated sheets; C113.5 paragraph 34 gas canisters being thrown by rioters from south of the Rubble Barricade, at the end of Bernadette Devlin's speech; C113.5 paragraph 35 objects trailing smoke being thrown by rioters; C113.5 paragraph 36. Aspects of the riot are consistent with the photographs of the riot which occurred at Barrier 14 in that rioters used corrugated iron sheets and it is alleged that gas canisters were thrown by rioters. As the Tribunal is aware Bernadette Devlin never finished her speech because the Paras started firing in the Bogside and the people at Free Derry Corner fell to the ground. The evidence given by this witness about events at the Rubble Barricade is not corroborated by the soldiers with him on the Walls and is undermined by the photographic evidence of the Rubble Barricade at the stage before the shooting started. It is submitted that this witness' evidence in relation to events at the Rubble Barricade is inherently unreliable and no weight can be attached to this account.

18.7.5.98 INQ 113 also gives evidence that he saw "three or four people lying in a prone position south of the Rubble Barricade. At around the same time, I heard three or four shots fired." He goes on to suggest that they were pistol shots and they were fired from different weapons by different people. C113.4 paragraph 32 He does not suggest that the persons behind the Rubble Barricade were firing weapons. C113.5 paragraph 40 He does however suggest that people were lying on the ground so that "if soldiers came over the top of the Rubble Barricade, the soldiers would be in line to be shot at." C113.5 paragraph 40

18.7.5.99 Whether INQ 113 saw the bodies lying behind the Rubble Barricade is unclear given our inability to question this witness. Whatever he saw his suggestion about people lying in wait for soldiers armed with SLRs is fantastical and no weight can be attached to this account.

18.7.5.100 According to INQ 113 at the conclusion of the riot he heard a burst from a Thompson sub-machine gun, he states he intended to report it but believes that someone else did. In fact there is no record in any of the radio logs of a Thompson sub machine-gun until 1647 at W138.

18.7.5.101 INQ 113 claims to have heard over the radio that a woman had reported that there were up to 6 gunmen arming the Rubble Barricade. C113.5 paragraph 33 This is unsupported by oral testimony or by the radio logs and no weight can be attached to this evidence.

18.7.5.102 INQ 113 also claims to have heard a significant volume of fire which he attributes to civilians prior to hearing SLR fire. This evidence should have been subjected to testing orally if any weight was to be attached. Given the general unreliability of this witness, this witness cannot be relied upon to provide corroboration for any other accounts of civilian gunfire.

18.7.5.103 INQ113's evidence is an amalgam of some incidents which he may have witnessed on television or in photographs, such as the use of corrugated iron sheets by rioters at Barrier 14. The rest is fantasy and invention fuelled by this witness' anti-Catholic bias and his hostility towards the Deceased and Wounded. C113.1 paragraph 4 The demonstrable inaccuracies in much of his evidence, the prejudice evident in his account of the bodies lying prone behind the Rubble Barricade and the complete absence of corroboration demonstrates that the witness is a fantasist and a liar.

18.7.5.104 At the conclusion of his statement in circumstances where, even on his own distorted version of events, he had not seen a single civilian gunmen or bomber, he stated that:

> "Thirteen people were shot that day for a good reason by professional soldiers. Soldiers do not just open fire on people for no reason. It would not bother me to go over to Northern Ireland and tell the families of the deceased men that their sons were members of illegal organisations." C113.7 paragraph 56

18.7.5.105 The reality is of course that INQ 113 could not even bring himself to walk up to the Chamber of Central Hall in London to face the families and make that allegation and no cogent reason has ever been advanced for that refusal.

18.7.5.106 INQ 325 was a soldier in the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment positioned on the City Walls. He places himself at a location between Butcher's Gate and the Platform, close to the Platform at a position marked B on his attached map. C325.6

18.7.5.107 While he was not positioned on the City Walls his evidence is relevant in that he states that he believes that there were "a couple of Intelligence officers on the Walls as well. They usually wore plain clothes . . . and they had huge cameras with long lenses for taking photographs of people in the Bogside." C325.2 Paragraph 11 If INQ 325 is correct in his evidence on this issue, it suggests that soldiers on the Walls were in a position to take photographs of events occurring in the Bogside. Undoubtedly if photographers were there and had witnessed anything indicating the presence of civilian gunmen or bombers or anything which presented any kind of threat to soldiers, photographs would have been taken of the relevant incident or individual. The absence of any photographs undermines further the suggestion that any soldier on the Walls witnessed anything which could have justified the use of lethal force by the Paras.

18.7.5.108 INQ 325 also gives evidence that 3 tracer rounds were fired towards the Walls as the crowd came down the hill from the church on Bishop's Field. He claimed that you could see tracer rounds. C325.2 paragraph 12

18.7.5.109 Soldier 165 was questioned about this and stated that:

> "I think I must point out that if tracer rounds were fired towards you, you would not see them, because they are ignited from the rear. So you would not seen them coming towards you.
>
> Q. So you would not know whether it was tracer rounds?
> A. No." Day 374/15/7 to Day 374/15/14

18.7.5.110 INQ 325's evidence is undermined by his suggestion that the rounds fired were tracer rounds. His evidence on this issue is further undermined by the fact that no other witness claims to have witnessed this incident and there is no record of it in any radio logs. Even if such an incident occurred, which is not accepted, it had no bearing on the conduct of 1 Para in the Bogside, on Bloody Sunday.

Evidence of Scottish Policemen

Robert Grey Campbell & Samuel McGonagle

18.7.5.111 Robert Grey Campbell JC4 was an Assistant Chief Constable Renfrew & Bute Constabulary. He attended upon the march on Bloody Sunday along with his colleague Superintendent Samuel McGonagle JM19. Ironically both were engaged in the presentation of a study entitled "Major Disaster Drill"

18.7.5.112 They took up a position at Walker's Monument on the Derry Walls. Upon arrival they were advised that a sniper had been firing earlier from the Rossville Flats though no official record of this incident appears to have been supplied. There is moreover no record of such an incident in the radio logs available to this Tribunal. The witnesses managed to enjoy for the most part an "uninterrupted view of the Bogside". JC4.2

18.7.5.113 Robert Grey Campbell observed the protest march and the lorry make its way from Free Derry corner. He outlined in an early statement how he heard a number of explosions, which Army personnel described as rubber bullets and CS cartridges. The witness then heard three distinctive explosions, which he was told, were "nail bombs". This was followed by the sound of two long bursts of automatic fire which he believed came from the direction of Rossville Flats, although he could see no evidence to support that impression. The witness then described what happened next in the following terms:

> "Some of the Army personnel immediately identified it as a Thompson sub-machinegun and belonged to the demonstrators. [sic] The demonstrators in the Bogside did not take cover or seem alarmed, and this appeared to confirm what the army personnel had said about that particular machinegun not belonging to the army." JC4.7

18.7.5.114 Interestingly, when asked about this matter in his evidence before Lord Widgery, the witness provided a somewhat different account of how he arrived at this conclusion:

> "Q. Was that weapon which had caused these bursts identified to you by anyone?
> A. By the soldiers, I heard one of them say to another: "That is a Thompson". WT3.37E

18.7.5.115 According to the witness, throughout this period, missiles were being thrown from the safety of the Barricade. At this point the witness heard the "unmistakeable sharp crack of a high velocity bullet" which he assumed was a warning shot deliberately fired over the heads of the "militants". JC4.7 to JC4.8

18.7.5.116 This impression was gained because they appeared to crouch down and shelter for some time before regrouping some three minutes later. It was around this time that he heard a number of shots and then saw three men lying behind the Barricade. During his evidence before Lord

Widgery, he estimated the number of shots fired to be in the region of "possibly ten or twelve". WT.3.38D

18.7.5.117 The witness then observed a "pick" being driven into his field of vision near the Barricade. He then watched a number of soldiers debus from the vehicle and "quickly but carefully" carry two of the men lying behind the Barricade into the vehicle. He observed a third man limp away. JC4.9

18.7.5.118 At no time did this witness observe any civilian carry a firearm or anything resembling a firearm. As a matter of comment it is important to note that this witness' impressions and experiences throughout the afternoon were heavily reliant upon what he was being told by Army personnel. In fact the witness during his evidence before Lord Widgery acknowledged this very point. WT3.43G

18.7.5.119 When being asked about the various sounds identified by him, namely the distinction between rubber bullets and "fire canisters", the witness acknowledged that he was "depending entirely" upon what he was told. WT3.43G

18.7.5.120 It is important to note that the witness in describing the nature of the automatic fire, used the following language:

> "I am conversant with the sound of the modern weapons. When I say a Sten gun it is possibly not so modern now, but Stens and Sterlings I have heard on rifle ranges and this appeared to me to be a much slower automatic weapon, but I could not identify it." (emphasis added) WT3.46G

18.7.5.121 Interestingly, Superintendent Samuel McGonigle uses a similar description in describing the nature of this weapon:

> "It seemed to me to be slow automatic fire and not from a sophisticated weapon. The demonstrators took no evasive action." JM19.6

18.7.5.122 Superintendent Samuel McGonigle provided a statement in 1972 that bore a remarkable similarity to the format, sequence and individual events described in the 1972 statement of ACC Campbell. In fact the witness candidly acknowledged before this Inquiry that both he and ACC Campbell discussed their evidence before providing their original 1972 statements. Day 109/32/15 to Day 109/32/12

18.7.5.123 It is submitted that the format, style, sequence and events as described are virtually indistinguishable. These include the three explosions, the two long bursts of automatic fire, which for the same reasons outlined by Mr Campbell, this witness also attributed to the demonstrators themselves. The witness then follows this event by describing the single high velocity shot which is then followed by a number of additional high velocity shots. In keeping with his colleague he also saw two people placed in an army vehicle. JM19.5 to JM19.7, Day 109/32/9 to Day 109/33/6

18.7.5.124 This witness also acknowledged that he had never heard a machinegun fired before. JM19.16 paragraph 18

18.7.5.125 As with ACC Campbell, this witness was also heavily reliant on Army personnel for the information which formed the basis for his evidence both before Lord Widgery and the present Tribunal.

18.7.5.126 It should be noted that these witness were not aware that a helicopter was hovering above the Bogside whilst some of the events described by both him and his colleagues were taking place. Day 109/57/2 to Day 109/57/22

18.7.5.127 An expert report has acknowledged that helicopters engaged in this type of activity can produce sharply impulsive sounds, a regular series of beats or thumps commonly known as "blade slap". "Blade slap" most frequently occurs during transient manoeuvres and is often associated with steep turns, shallow descents and with the "flare" approaching a hover. E9.0019

18.7.5.128 The report prepared for the Inquiry by ISVR Consultancy Services reached the following conclusion on this issue:

> "Our opinion is that, under conditions where a helicopter or submachine gun is clearly audible above any background noise, their sounds would be sufficiently distinctive that the likelihood of confusion would be small. However, taking into account that the repetition rate of blade slap is similar to the rate of firing of some submachine guns, it might be possible under some conditions for an observer on the ground to mistake a brief period of helicopter blade slap for the firing of a submachine gun at a moderate distance." E9.0020

18.7.5.129 Both witnesses assumed that the noise was created by a Thompson machine gun because according to them: (a) military observers exchanged this belief amongst themselves; (b) the failure of demonstrators to react or otherwise respond in a spontaneous manner suggested to them that the weapon was in fact fired by one among their number. This assumption of ignores the proposition, either that civilians recognised the sound as a helicopter, or that the sound was not the sound of a Thompson sub-machine gun.

18.7.5.130 The reliability of the witnesses account of hearing nail bombs and Thompson sub-machine gun fire is undermined by the following:

i) Their complete inexperience in the identification of either nail bombs or Thompson sub-machine gun fire.

ii) While Soldier 227 claims to have heard one explosion that account is not corroborated by any of his colleagues at Charlie OP.

iii) No military witness at Charlie OP refers to having heard 3 nail bombs explode.

iv) These witnesses were not aware, nor did any of the troops in their vicinity mention the idiosyncratic features of what this Inquiry has come to know as the "Derry Sound". The Tribunal is referred in particular to the evidence of Soldier 139 who was positioned on Charlie OP and who states that it would not have been possible to distinguish low velocity or Thompson sub-machine gun fire from Charlie OP.

v) The 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment's radio log, which does contain any record of either Thompson SMG fire or a nail bomb exploding W97, further undermines this evidence.

vi) The reliability of these witnesses evidence is also undermined by their failure to account for the 103 live rounds fired by 1 Para on Bloody Sunday. It is entirely possible, that the witnesses incorrectly identified the sound of simultaneous firing from a number of Paras as machine gun fire given their lack of familiarity with the sound.

Charlie OP Witnesses

18.7.5.131 When considered collectively it is submitted that the evidence of the soldiers and the police officers from Charlie OP do not provide any justification for the use of lethal force by soldiers from 1 Para on Bloody Sunday. Although there were accounts given in 1972 about a pistol man behind the Rubble Barricade and a possible nail-bomber behind the Rubble Barricade, these accounts have been retracted before this Tribunal. Thus no witness gives any evidence of any person behind the Rubble Barricade engaging in conduct which might have justified the firing of live rounds.

18.7.5.132 Moreover some of the witnesses positively assert that they would have seen weapons behind the Rubble Barricade, on that portion which could be seen by them, if there had been weapons there.[83] B2188 paragraph 5

18.7.5.133 The witnesses do give accounts of civilian gunfire. It is submitted however for the reasons set out above there must be a question-mark over the body of evidence about civilian gunfire from these witnesses given:

i) The inconsistencies as between the various accounts;

ii) The failure of these witnesses to ever account for the 103 SLR rounds which we know were fired in the area of the Rossville Flats, Rossville Street and Glenfada Park North;

iii) The fact that the witnesses have acknowledged the difficulties in recognising different fire in the area from which they claim to have been able to identify civilian gunfire; and

iv) The evidence of Soldier 139 and Soldier 012 in particular about the volume of firing on the day and the difficulty there would be given that volume in clearly discerning low velocity fire.

ECHO Observation Post

18.7.5.134 The members of the Tribunal have, we understand, visited the roof of the Embassy Building are thus in a position to form their own impression of the views available from there. Contemporary photographs of the area taken from the roof of the Embassy Building demonstrate that soldiers at ECHO OP would have had a clear view of many of the important locations, including Rossville Street and the Rubble Barricade. Among these photographs are P233.69A, P233.69, P279, P402, P403, P404, P406, P407, P408 and P409.

18.7.5.135 There were a significant number of soldiers on the roof of the Embassy Ballroom at some stage in the afternoon, including General Ford, Lt

[83] See also INQ 2002 who was patrolling the City Walls on Bloody Sunday. "The only people I saw with guns on Bloody Sunday were soldiers. . . . I did not see any civilians with weapons that day." C2002.3 paragraph 21

Col Ferguson, INQ102, Sergeant INQ0853, Warrant Officer INQ1164, Lt Soldier 009 (who claims to have been in charge of the OP), Sergeant 108, Soldier 157, Sergeant INQ1382 and Captain INQ2. Despite this not a single one of these persons claims to have seen a civilian gunman or bomber. This in circumstances where binoculars and "donkey's ears" were available at the OP. There evidence completely undermines their evidence of the soldiers of the Parachute Regiment who were deployed in front of them.

18.7.5.136 Captain 021 was an Intelligence Officer in 22 LADR and had responsibility for some of the photographers, including UNK 48. Both were on the roof of the Embassy Building. Captain 021 thus had an excellent view of the Bogside, including the Rubble Barricade, although he was reluctant to concede this. Day 317/110/4 to Day 317/110/17 He confirms that had he seen anything indicating the presence of civilian gunmen or bombers or anything which presented any kind of threat to soldiers he would have asked UNK48 to take photographs of that Day 317/109/24 to Day 317/110/3. As we know from Col. Overbury's report, no such photographs were taken. It should also be noted that Captain 021 was using binoculars B1509.003 paragraph 21 and had access to the "donkey's ears".

18.7.5.137 In his original statement Soldier 021 refers to shots being fired from the area of Meenan Square and fire being returned by soldiers from Kells Walk. He then suggests that men lying behind the Rubble Barricade could not have been shot by Paras because they were protected by 3 feet of concrete. B1503 It is apparent that the statement was designed to suggest that the people shot and killed behind the Rubble Barricade were killed by persons other than soldiers. In fact 4 people positioned behind the Rubble Barricade on the western side were shot and killed by 2 soldiers and Soldier 021 had a view of the western side of the Rubble Barricade from ECHO OP. B1509.005 paragraph 33, Day 317/110/4 to Day 317/110/17

18.7.5.138 Soldier 021 went on to claim that 3 bodies were removed from the Rubble Barricade and taken through Glenfada Park, before a further 3 bodies were removed and taken away by the army in their APC. B1504 Again this evidence, like much of his evidence in 1972 appears to have been designed to suggest that bodies were spirited away. Only Michael Kelly's body was removed from the Rubble Barricade and taken into Glenfada Park North and there is no evidence to substantiate Soldier 021's implicit allegation. He no longer has a recollection of this incident and it is submitted that no reliance can be placed upon his 1972 account in this respect.

18.7.5.139 Soldier 021 accepted that his purpose as an observer was to record what was happening. Day 317/127/1 to Day 317/127/15 Yet, while there is a reference at serial number 58 (W97) to one shot, the log entries of transmissions from ECHO OP make it clear that neither Captain 021, nor any other soldier observing the events on Rossville Street from ECHO OP reported seeing or hearing shooting or bombing by civilians. Neither apparently did they witness the 100 plus shots fired by paratroopers. When asked to explain why, given all the people that were at ECHO OP watching the scene below them, not one mentioned that soldiers were firing scores of shots at civilians on Rossville Street, at the Rubble Barricade and near the flats, Soldier 021 said, after a pause, that he had "no idea" Day 317/125/19 to Day 371/125/25.

18.7.5.140 Soldier 118 was also on the roof of the Embassy Ballroom Building with Captain 021. Soldier 118 estimated that there were nearly 2 dozen soldiers of mixed ranks and duties on the roof of the Embassy Ballroom at the material time. Day 359/206/8 to Day 359/206/13 While he had a good view of the Rubble Barricade and was focused on the Rubble Barricade, he saw no civilian gunmen or bombers behind the Rubble barricade at ant time. Day 359/217/6 to Day 359/217/11

He went on to confirm that he saw no civilian doing anything improper in the form of throwing nail bombs or anything of that kind even though he was perfectly placed to see that if it had happened. Day 359/221/21 to Day 359/222/14

18.7.5.141 As has been seen above, no other soldier gives any evidence which suggests any action on the part of civilians which could have justified the use of lethal force by soldiers from the Parachute Regiment. The evidence of these soldiers undermines entirely the justification advanced by the Paras individually and collectively for their use of lethal force on Bloody Sunday. Moreover the complete absence of any evidence about the conduct of the Paras on Rossville Street, in circumstances where we know a total of 103 SLR rounds were fired, suggests that persons at ECHO OP failed to record anything which would acknowledge the indiscriminate nature of the shooting by the Parachute Regiment in the Bogside that day.

Pet Shop OP

18.7.5.142 As stated above P364 shows the OP's at the Pet Shop and the Peter England shirt factory. Three soldiers have been identified as having occupied that OP at the Pet Shop. Soldiers 102 and 163, both of whom made statements in 1972 but have not given any evidence to this Tribunal and Soldier Z.

18.7.5.143 Soldiers 102 and 163 make generalised allegations in their RMP statements designed to suggest that they heard civilian gunfire. Soldier 102 states that "I could hear shots fired at the Paras from Rossville Flats and Glenfada area." B1675 While Soldier 163 states that "As I got outside I heard several low velocity rapid single shots from the flats area followed by one high velocity shot from what I think was an SLR. . . . I then heard spasmodic or mixture of high velocity and low velocity shots also coming from the area of the flats." B1965 Although the shooting described by Soldier 163 apparently occurred 30 minutes after the Paras went into the Bogside.

18.7.5.144 Neither soldier claims to have witnessed either civilian gunmen or bombers nor makes reference to any action by any individual behind the Rubble Barricade, or at any either location which could have justified the use of lethal force by soldiers from the Parachute Regiment. It should also be noted that both soldiers fail to provide a description of the firing by soldiers we know to have taken place in the Rossville Flats car-park or over the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.5.145 Soldier Z gives an account of having engaged a gunman at 16.50 hours on Bloody Sunday, after all of those deceased and injured had been shot. B865 He gives no evidence which justifies the use of lethal force by soldiers of the Parachute Regiment.

18.7.5.146 As a body of evidence, the evidence from soldiers in the OPs around the Bogside undermines entirely the justification advanced by the Paras individually and collectively for their use of lethal force on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.6 Soldier 028

18.7.6.1 Soldier 028 is in the unusual position of having claimed to be an observer of events at Sector 3 while being on the ground. Given the position he claims to have been in on Bloody Sunday, his evidence is dealt with as a separate category.

18.7.6.2 Soldier 028 was a Captain of the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment on the 30th January 1972. He was the Unit Press Officer answerable to his Commanding Officer Col. Ferguson.

18.7.6.3 He made an RMP statement on the 3rd February 1972 and a statement to the Treasury Solicitor, he also gave evidence to the Widgery Inquiry.

18.7.6.4 According to the evidence given by Soldier 028 in 1972 and today he was positioned at the south end of Kells Walk when the leading vehicles of the Support Company convoy came to a halt.

18.7.6.5 In 1972 he claimed to have witnessed the actions of the crowd behind the Rubble Barricade and the soldiers on Rossville Street. In particular he claims to have witnessed soldiers come under attack from gunmen at the Rubble Barricade. In his statement to this Tribunal, when questioned about the contents of his 1972 accounts he states that, "I remember almost nothing of the evidence contained within them." B1852.1 paragraph 7

18.7.6.6 However, what he does say about his previous statements is that:

> "they were made contemporaneously with the events I have no reason to believe that they are not entirely accurate in terms if my memory at the time. I certainly had no axe to grind and nothing to hide either then or now, so there would be no reason for me not to tell the truth." B1582.7 paragraph 28

18.7.6.7 In oral evidence to this Tribunal he was asked about his previous statements and confirmed that he stood over the contents of each of the statements and oral evidence given by him in 1972 "because I told the truth, the statement were made at the time and I had no reason; apart from anything else, I was on oath." Day 356/82/18 to Day 356/82/20

18.7.6.8 The accounts given by Soldier 028 in 1972 of the actions of civilians behind the Rubble Barricade, if believed would be damning. He describes soldiers coming under fire as their Pigs entered the Bogside. He describes a man with a machine-gun firing at soldiers, before soldiers return fire, according to his evidence this man was killed and he describes a pistol-man shooting from the corner of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats, as well as a man with a rifle shooting from a window at Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. It is alleged that these accounts are completely fabrications, known to be such at the time, and that Soldier 028 lied in the statements made by him in 1972 and perjured himself in his evidence to the Widgery Tribunal. The contents of the statements will be addressed in more detail below.

18.7.6.9 Soldier 028, given his role as a Unit Press officer, was also asked about whether the Army would have sought to put a 'spin' on the events of Bloody Sunday and stated:

> "I have been asked whether the army attempted to put any "spin" on the information which was given to the press after the events, or on the evidence given by the soldiers at Widgery. I certainly don't recall any and I doubt whether it would have happened. The army is a pretty truthful and uncomplicated organisation and I would certainly not describe as devious. I believe matters were reported as fact and the soldiers gave evidence in accordance with their own experience." B1852.7 paragraph 29

18.7.6.10 However there can be no more dramatic illustration, of the willingness of soldiers to perjure themselves, for no reason other than to advance the Army's case and to put a 'spin' on both the information given to the press and the information presented to Lord Widgery, than the evidence of this witness. What makes the case particularly striking is the fact that this witness did not fire live rounds, nor was he a member of the Parachute Regiment which shot and killed innocent civilians. Rather, it seems the mere fact of being a member of the British Army appeared to demand from him perjury on behalf of the soldiers and calumny of the victims and people like Fr Mulvey in order that:

> "'You know old boy, there is only one thing we want to here, We just cannot let people at home think we shot unarmed men in the back, we cannot have people thinking that, can we?'" M71.12

Murray Sayle Interview

18.7.6.11 It is proposed to deal at the outset with Soldier 028's interview in 1972 with Murray Sayle because it is submitted that this is the contextual background against which Soldier 028's testimony in 1972 and in 2003 must be tested.

18.7.6.12 One of the documents obtained from the Sunday Times archive was a memorandum prepared by Murray Sayle for internal use within the Sunday Times. Included in the document were details of a meeting with a soldier, identified in the document as Soldier 028, at the 22nd Light Air Defence Regimental Headquarters, on the 14th February 1972. Murray Sayle has now confirmed that the note was prepared by him M71.1 paragraph 1 and has given sworn evidence as to its accuracy. Day 217/71/18 to Day 217/71/23

18.7.6.13 According to the note:

> "Soldier 028 shot me an incredible line. He said he had been present at the demonstration himself, dressed in plain clothes and a wig and had seen the IRA open up with Thompsons near the barricade site, thus killing their own people." M71.11

18.7.6.14 The note then records that Soldier 028 produced a 14 year old boy, purportedly from the Bogside, who said that "he had seen the IRA open up with Thompsons and nail bombs". The note records that Murray Sayle did not believe the account because only 10 minutes previously Soldier 028 had confirmed that he had not heard any nail bombs. M71.11

18.7.6.15 Finally as the note records:

> "He then launched a wild rambling tour d'horizon. The Army had to win in Ulster, he said, otherwise violence would submerge Europe. A lot of them were Communists he told me.

All Catholics were liars, 'and the gentlemen of the cloth – well, you know about them, old boy'. You know, old boy, I often think that one of our marksmen could knock off Bernadette, John Hume and the rest of them -- that would end the whole thing in a matter of days – worth thinking about eh?
Then . . . 'You know old boy, there is only one thing we want to here, We just cannot let people at home think we shot unarmed men in the back, we cannot have people thinking that, can we?'" M71.12

18.7.6.16 According to Soldier 028, while he did not deny that he might have met Murray Sayle, he denied that he would have taken him to Regimental Headquarters Day 356/69/13 to Day 356/69/17 and states that the entire account was fabricated by Murray Sayle. Day 356/72/20 to Day 356/72/24, Day 356/73/22 to Day 356/73/23

18.7.6.17 Aside from the fact that Murray Sayle was a more credible witness than Soldier 028, there are a number of difficulties with that proposition:

v) The note which Murray Sayle has now confirmed that he prepared, M71.2 was written in 1972 and then filed away. Murray Sayle had no reason to believe that this document would ever come into the public domain. If Soldier 028 was to be believed Murray Sayle maliciously fabricated a record of a conversation in 1972 which was then archived by the Sunday Times and which would never have seen the light of day but for the existence of this Tribunal.

vi) Murray Sayle gives an account of Soldier 028's conduct on Bloody Sunday broadly consistent with what he actually claimed in 1972 in his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry. That he was in the Bogside, that he was in civilian clothes and that he had seen a man with a Thompson open up. The major differences relate to the suggestion that the man with the Thompson actually killed people and that Soldier 028 was wearing a wig when he was in the Bogside. Day 356/70/20 to Day 356/71/22 The only source for Murray Sayle's note could have been Soldier 028. It should be noted in this respect that the Sunday Times document which contains the note is dated the 19th February 1972, M71.2 while Soldier 028 did not give oral evidence to the Widgery Inquiry until Day 17, the 14th March 1972, so Murray Sayle could not have obtained this information from the Widgery Inquiry.

vii) While Soldier 028 stated that he would never have taken a journalist to Regimental Headquarters Murray Sayle in his note, recorded that while at the Regimental Headquarters he was shown a model of Derry. In oral evidence he confirmed that it looked very like the Widgery model. Day 356/74/3 to Day 356/74/11 Soldier 028 stated that he had no recollection of his Regiment having a model of Derry. Day 356/74/12 to Day 356/74/21 However INQ 1025, a soldier in the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment gave evidence that he had made the model, eventually used at Widgery, for his Regiment. C1025.10 (check reference) Thus Murray Sayle was also in a position in 1972 to confirm the existence of the model at the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment's Headquarters, which he could only have known about had he been there.

18.7.6.18 Murray Sayle had no reason to lie about this incident in an internal memo to the Sunday Times. On the other hand Soldier 028 has every reason to try to dissociate himself from the account. Given what happened moreover, it is submitted that he undoubtedly has a recollection of this incident. It is the fact of that encounter with Murray Sayle and the lies which Soldier 028 told the Widgery Tribunal which explain his reluctance to come forward to this Tribunal. Day 356/125/8 to Day 356/126/5

18.7.6.19 It is submitted that this incident demonstrates:

vi) That in 1972 Soldier 028 had a very clear agenda which he was willing to advance both to the media and to the Widgery Tribunal and that was to "pile up the case against the Deceased" (reference) while defending the reputation of the Army.

vii) He was willing to lie in order to advance the Army's case.

viii) He was willing to lie to this Tribunal and to accuse Murray Sayle of being a liar, rather than to admit the truth of his conduct at and after Bloody Sunday.

18.7.6.20 It is against that backdrop that Soldier 028's evidence must be considered, and in our submission, no weight can be attached to his testimony.

Unit Press Officer

18.7.6.21 Soldier 028's decision to enter the Bogside with the Paras, if in fact he did do so, requires some explanation. As set out above, Soldier 028 was the Unit Press Officer for the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment and as such was answerable to Col. Ferguson.

18.7.6.22 Soldier 028 suggested in his statement to this Tribunal that the reason he entered the Bogside with the Paras was because they were attached to the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment and he was thus their press officer for the day. B1582.1 paragraph 8 In fact only D Company of 1 Para were attached to the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment and the Paras had their own press officer. Day 356/8/1 to Day 356/8/17

18.7.6.23 According to the Confirmatory Notes to the Orders given by Col. Ferguson:

"PR. Unit press officer at tac HQ with the photographer.

B. Authority to speak not delegated" G89.546

18.7.6.24 When questioned about the Orders Soldier 028 stated that this meant that he was supposed to have been at tac HQ at the beginning of the day and accepted that he did not have authority to speak to the press and that this was the Commanding Officer's function. Day356/111/15 to Day 356/111/20

18.7.6.25 It is clear from Col. Ferguson's evidence to this Inquiry that, both in entering the Bogside, if he did so, and in giving a briefing to Murray Sayle, which he undoubtedly did, Soldier 028 was acting without authority express, or otherwise. Day 281/153/17 to Day 281/154/11

18.7.6.26 Soldier 028 sought to assert that he was entitled to act upon his own initiative in relation to his deployment. Day 356/115/12 to Day 356/115/21 However it is clear from Col. Ferguson's evidence to this Tribunal that Soldier 028 ought to have been with him at tac HQ throughout the day and had no authority to be either in the Bogside or giving interviews to the media. Day 356/112/5 to Day 356/113/9

18.7.6.27 It should be noted at this juncture that there is also a conflict between the evidence of Soldier 028 and Larry Doherty in relation to Mr. Doherty's account of a briefing given by Soldier 028 before Bloody Sunday. M21.1 paragraphs 4 to 5 Soldier 028 has stated that the briefing described by Larry Doherty would have been beyond his remit. Day 356/5/23 to Day 356/6/2 It is evident both from Soldier 028's briefing of Murray Sayle and the fact that he was prepared to act without Col. Ferguson's authority on Bloody Sunday itself that Soldier 028 was quite prepared to act beyond his remit in 1972. Larry Doherty's evidence should therefore be accepted on this issue.

18.7.6.28 What is clear is that Soldier 028 saw it as his role and function not just in 1972, but also to this Inquiry, to present the Army's case in a manner which served to protect the interests of the army at the expense of the Deceased and Injured. His evidence in 1972 and to this Tribunal is replete with examples of this approach.

People handing out Nail Bombs

18.7.6.29 Soldier 028 gave an account in his RMP statement of having been in the company of Brigadier Thompson on the City Walls when they were advised by INQ 2225, that occupants of 2 cars in Lecky Street were handing out what he believed to be nail bombs. B1566 Soldier 028 states that he saw that they were distributing something but was unsure what.

18.7.6.30 This incident is not corroborated by Brigadier Thompson. Similarly, INQ 2225 states "I think I would remember if I had seen anyone manufacturing or handing out nail bombs. I now have no recollection of seeing anything as is described by Soldier 021 and Soldier 028 in their statements." C2225.7 paragraph 41 Moreover the radio logs do not suggest that any such incident was ever reported, despite the fact that such an incident would have been of some importance given the March to follow later that day.

18.7.6.31 Soldier 028 did not persist with this account in either his statement to the Treasury Solicitor, or in his evidence to Lord Widgery.

18.7.6.32 It is submitted that had the incident occurred:

i) It would have been reported over the radio to Brigade given the significance of this information in view of the large Civil Rights March scheduled to occur.

ii) Soldier 028 would have given that account to Lord Widgery because given the allegations made by soldiers of nail bombs having been thrown, it was important evidence in support of the Army case.

18.7.6.33 The incident was removed from his subsequent accounts because it was untrue and the absence of corroboration by Brigadier Thompson would have undermined Soldier 028's credibility on this issue.

Conduct of Priests on Bloody Sunday

18.7.6.34 Soldier 028 demonstrated a willingness to go to extraordinary lengths in 1972 to undermine the case made by the people of Derry against the soldiers. To the extent that he was willing to accuse one of Derry's priests of having been in some way complicit with the use of lethal force against soldiers on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.6.35 In our submission Soldier 028's motivation for so doing was to undermine the testimony of the Catholic clergy; whose powerful defence of the deceased and wounded and whose criticism of the army was doing much to undermine the army's presentation of its case to the media.

18.7.6.36 It was also informed by Soldier 028's anti-Catholic bigotry which was evidenced in the notes retained by the Sunday Times of Murray Sayle's interview with him:

> "All Catholics were liars, 'and the gentlemen of the cloth – well, you know about them, old boy'." M71.12

18.7.6.37 In his statement to the RMP, made on 3rd February 1972, Soldier 028 states that, from his vantage point at Kells Walk he could see the Rubble Barricade. He states that he saw a man 20 yards behind the Rubble Barricade who fired 15 rounds from an automatic weapon which struck the ground 20 feet in front of the troops advancing towards the Barricade. "[A]t the same time, there were several people standing behind the barricade in the same side as the gunman and they had their back to him. One of those men was a priest, who appeared to be directing them." B1567 According to his statement he had attached a photograph of the priest to his statement, and a photograph of Fr Mulvey appears to have been linked to the statement made by Soldier 028 in 1972. Day 356/23/1 to Day 356/23/17 This photograph can be found at B1568.002.

18.7.4.39 By the time he came to make his statement to the Treasury Solicitor, the man with the machine-gun was still firing at the troops, this time having fired 5 shots before there was any return fire. Significantly however the priest had disappeared. B1569.001 paragraph 2

18.7.4.40 The priest also made no appearance in Soldier 028's evidence to the Widgery Tribunal. Soldier 028 now claims to have no recollection of the priest B1582.6 paragraph 6 but was unable to explain the difference between the two accounts. Day 356/27/10 to Day 356/27/15

18.7.4.41 Neither the timing of Soldier 028's statement, nor the identity of the priest identified by the photograph attached to his statement, is without significance. Fr Mulvey had been particularly prominent in articulating the views of the clergy who had been in the Bogside on Bloody Sunday that the British Army had been guilty of wilful murder, and had made the following statement on behalf of the Derry clergy to the media on the 31st January 1972:

> "We accuse the Colonel of the Parachute Regiment of wilful murder. We accuse the Commander of Land Forces of being an accessory before the fact. We accuse the soldiers of shooting indiscriminately into a fleeing crowd, of gloating over casualties, of preventing medical and spiritual aid reaching some of the dying. It is untrue that shots were fired at the troops in Rossville Street before they attacked. It is untrue that any of the dead or wounded that we attended were armed. We make this statement in view of the distorted and, indeed, conflicting reports put out by Army officers. We deplore the actions of the Army and Government in deploying a unit such as the Paratroopers who were in Derry yesterday. These men are trained criminals. They differ from terrorists only in the veneer of respectability that a uniform gives them." V4b.0.00-1.32

Father Anthony Mulvey, Press conference attended by Derry Clergymen 31st January 1972.

18.7.6.42 It is our submission that: Fr Mulvey's highlighting to the media the fact that bodies had been thrown into the back of the APC on Bloody Sunday; his prominent role in articulating the case for the Deceased and Wounded; coupled with Soldier 028's over-weaning desire to present the Army's case in a good light, informed Soldier 028's RMP statement. The reason for the removal of all references to a priest from his subsequent statements can only have been the realisation, whether by Soldier 028 himself, or by the Treasury Solicitor, that such an allegation could not seriously be advanced and would have to be abandoned.

18.7.6.43 However, in order to abandon this aspect of his allegations, Soldier 028 demonstrated his willingness to lie. Soldier 028 had stated in evidence to the Widgery Inquiry that he had a camera with him. B1578D-E He was specifically asked by Mr. Hill on behalf of the families why he had not brought photographs with him and replied that this was because they were not particularly relevant. B1578D-E However if the account given by his RMP statement was true then he had seen a priest directing people at the Barricade and a photograph of that priest was attached to his statement, such a photograph was clearly relevant. It follows that either his account to the RMP or his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry on this issue was a lie.

18.7.6.44 The other incident which demonstrates Soldier 028's continuing hostility towards the clergy and in particular Fr Mulvey relates to his account of witnessing the bodies in the back of the APC, given to this Tribunal. Soldier 028 has described an "horrific scene: bodies piled on top of each other, heads, arms and legs at strange angles and blood all over the bodies and the walls of the Pig." B1582.4 paragraph 15

18.7.6.45 His recollection was that a priest was trying to gain the attention of the local press and that he:

> "knew if any of the press did start taking photographs it would look terrible in the papers the next day. Consequently,

I pushed the priest to one side and slammed the doors shut, saying that no one was allowed to take pictures." B1582.4 paragraph 16

18.7.6.46 He went on to state that:

"The other memory I have of this incident is feeling particularly unsympathetic towards the priest by the Pig. I felt that he was helping to grind the axe for the IRA and that was not appropriate behaviour for a priest." B1582.4 paragraph 16

18.7.6.47 Soldier 028 was asked:

"Q. What was it you felt was inappropriate behaviour for the priest?

A. Well, as far as I can recollect, he was trying to encourage pressmen to take photographs of the inside of the Pig.

Q. What was wrong with that?

A. Well, I felt that if those pictures were shown publicly, that it would not help the Army's cause and as I was the unit pres officer, I felt that I was doing my duty." Day 356/49/16 to Day 356/49/24

18.7.6.48 Soldier 028's criticism of the conduct of the priest again exemplifies both Soldier 028's desire to present the Army's case in a favourable light, even if that meant hiding the facts, and his hostility to those who would seek to be critical of the Army's conduct and in particular his hostility towards the Catholic clergy.

18.7.6.49 Ultimately Soldier 028 was, as he was described by Murray Sayle to this Tribunal, an "ignorant bigot". Day 356/75/9 to Day 356/75/10

Bodies in the APC

18.7.6.50 The manner in which Soldier 028 gave evidence to this Inquiry about the bodies in the back of the APC is also illustrative of his agenda even before this Tribunal. While Soldier 028 accepted that the bodies "must have been thrown in to the Pig very hurriedly" B1582.4 paragraph 16 then went on to assert that thus must have been because the soldiers were under live fire as they placed the bodies in the Pig. The soldiers from Mortar Platoon who put the bodies in the Pig have given evidence before this Tribunal and none of them claimed that they were under fire. When this was pointed out to Soldier 028 he stated that:

> "I mean it is a fair assumption . ... that they were in a hurry? And the reason they were in a hurry is because there was fear". Day 356/106/20 to Day356/106/23

18.7.6.51 The one thing Soldier 028 was incapable of accepting was that soldiers might simply have thrown the bodies into the Pig, not because they were under fire, or in fear, but because they had nothing but contempt for those killed. Day 356/106/24 to Day 356/107/24

18.7.6.52 There are other examples of Soldier 028's willingness to present his account in a manner designed to be prejudicial to the deceased and wounded. In his Treasury Solicitor statement he refers to the body of the man, who he alleged was a gunman being covered by a tricolour, B1576 when in fact a body at that location had been covered by the Civil Rights banner.

18.7.6.53 Moreover in his statement to this Tribunal, and in contradistinction to the evidence of Brigadier MacLellan he said about the Rossville Flats that:

> "These were a thoroughly nasty place where gunmen could fire from and then disappear. In military parlance they were definitely "bandit country"." B1852.2 paragraph 6

18.7.6.54 Before considering Soldier 028's evidence about the events he claims to have witnessed at the Rubble Barricade, it is necessary to address the question of his actual location on the day. This is an important issue because there is a real question-mark over whether he could, in 1972, have witnessed the incidents he claimed to have witnessed behind the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.6.55 In essence it will be submitted that Soldier 028 was not, as he has claimed, at Kells Walk at the time Support Company went into the Bogside. More importantly he was not there when Michael Kelly, John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash or Hugh Gilmore were shot and killed at the Rubble Barricade and he could not have witnessed the events described by him at the Rubble Barricade on Bloody Sunday.

18.7.6.56 On Soldier 028's account to the RMP

> "a party of men from the Parachute Regiment, passed through the position [Barrier 14] on foot and went to the junction William Street/Rossville Street and I accompanied them to Columbcille Court." B1566

18.7.6.57 To similar effect he stated in answer to a question by Mr. Clarke QC about why he went in to the Bogside that > "I did not go in, I followed the paratrooper – Para soldiers who went in and as they were part of my regiment, um, I felt it was my job". Day 356/17/9 to Day 356/17/13

18.7.6.58 While Soldier 028 has stated that he remembers almost nothing of the evidence contained in the statements made by him in 1972. B1852.1 paragraph 7 He does claim to have an independent recollection of going into the Bogside behind C Company. This can be seen from both his statement to this Inquiry, and his oral evidence. B1582.3 paragraph 11, Day 356/17/9 to Day 356/17/13, Day 356/89/6 to Day 356/98/9

18.7.6.59 This is moreover confirmed by his evidence that:

> "I have some recollection, but it is not sufficiently clear for me to be sure, that I may well have been with Mr Phillips and his camera team when they went through the army barricade and made their way into the Bogside." B1582.5 paragraph 22

18.7.6.60 Mr Phillips has also given evidence that on Bloody Sunday he was positioned behind Barrier 14, before C Company went into the Bogside. M66.2

18.7.6.61 However, the evidence before this Tribunal shows that there was a delay in the lifting of Barrier 14 and that in consequence Support Company went through Barrier 12 in vehicles, before C Company went through Barrier 14 on foot.[84] If Soldier 028 as he has consistently stated, went through Barrier 14 with C Company then he could not have been at Kells Walk as the first vehicle entered the Bogside.

18.7.6.62 This proposition finds support in the matters in respect of which Soldier 028 does claim to have an independent recollection. Soldier 028 gives a very vivid account of witnessing the bodies of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash in the back of the APC. B1582.4 paragraph 16

18.7.6.63 If Soldier 028 had entered the Bogside with C Company then he could in fact have witnessed that incident. It is noteworthy in that respect that Mr. Phillips account of the circumstances in which he became aware that there were bodies in the Pig has parallels with Soldier 028's current recollection.

[84] Giles Peress states that as he left Barrier 14 and before any Paras came through Barrier 14 he "saw two Saracens drive over the junction from Little James Street on to Rossville Street heading in the direction of Free Derry Corner." M65.20 paragraph 7

18.7.6.64 In 1972 Mr Phillips stated that "I . . . saw a priest who approached one of two armoured cars which were in Rossville Street by the corner of the flats and speak to a soldier. I then heard the priest tell Gerald Seymour that there were three bodies in the second armoured car and that there were other bodies elsewhere. Peter Wilkinson our cameraman looked in the armoured car and confirmed that this was true. He was not allowed to film them." M66.2

18.7.6.65 This accords with Soldier 028's recollection in that it confirms that the priest drew the attention of members of the media to the fact that there were bodies in the Pig and also that the media were prevented from filming the scene.

18.7.6.66 One other factor which lends support to this proposition is the fact that in 1972, when questioned by Mr. Hill on behalf of the Families, Soldier 028 had no recollection of soldiers P and 017 as per photograph EP23.8. B1581E These soldiers were the very first soldiers of the Parachute Regiment to take up position on the western side of Rossville Street. Soldier 028's inability to account for the position and actions of these two soldiers, who if his account is to be believed, were located very close by him, is inexplicable except on the basis that he was not in fact at the location he claims to have been at.

18.7.6.67 It is noteworthy that Soldier 028 has never given any description of how he reached Kells Walk prior to the arrival of Support Company other than his account of entering the Bogside with the Paras from C Company. It is our submission that while Soldier 028 did go into the Bogside on Bloody Sunday in 1972, he went in after C Company, probably in the company of David Phillips from ITN. By the time he arrived all of those shot and killed behind the Rubble Barricade were already dead. His account in 1972 of having witnessed the incidents described by him at the Rubble Barricade were a complete fabrication.

18.7.6.68 It is thus our submission that no reliance can be placed upon Soldier 028's account of the events witnessed by him at the Rubble Barricade because:

iii) His interview with Murray Sayle demonstrated his willingness to lie in order to advance the Army's case; and

iv) He could not in fact have witnessed that which he claimed to have witnessed.

18.7.6.69 Given that submission, it is not proposed to deal in great detail with the incidents described by Soldier 028, except inasmuch as they serve to further illustrate that his evidence in 1972 was a tissue of lies.

First Live Fire

18.7.6.70 Soldier 028 has given evidence that he was in Kells Walk as the first vehicles from 1 Para entered the Bogside and that:

> "as the leading vehicle came to a halt, a shot which in my opinion was fired from a M1 carbine from the direction of FDC, struck the vehicle. This was definitely the first live round to be fired in that area, that day." B1567

18.7.6.71 For the reasons set out above it is our submission that Soldier 028 could not in fact have witnessed this incident, even if it occurred. While Lieutenant 119 has also given evidence that the first Mortar Platoon came under fire, it has been demonstrated that he also could not have witnessed the incident described by him from his location in the Anti-Tank Pig.

18.7.6.72 This account is one of many given by Soldier 028 designed to lend support to what was a major plank of the Army's case in 1972, that the first shots were fired not by the Army but by the IRA, which was regarded as a basis for justifying all that followed.

Killing of 7 men at the Rubble Barricade

18.7.6.73 Soldier 028 gives a description of 7 men being killed behind the Rubble Barricade. One of the first 5 was a man with a machine-gun, 2 more were killed, one of whom had a pistol, near the southern gable-end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

18.7.6.74 In fact, only 6 people were shot and killed behind the Rubble Barricade and the accounts given by the soldiers do not fit with the evidence of Soldier 028.

18.7.6.75 In 1972 Soldier 028 described a man with a machine-gun behind the Rubble Barricade who open fire on the soldiers on Rossville Street. In his RMP statement he stated that he fired 15 rounds and also refers to the priest, identified by the attached photograph as Fr Mulvey. He also claimed to have seen 5 bodies on the Rubble Barricade after this incident, one of which was at the location where he had seen the man with the machine-gun. B1567

18.7.6.76 He also gave accounts of this incident, albeit in different terms to the Treasury Solicitor and the Widgery Inquiry.

18.7.6.77 There are a number of discrepancies between the various accounts. In particular:

v) In no account, except for that contained in the RMP statement, is there any reference to the conduct of a priest. B1567

vi) In his RMP statement he does not actually see the gunmen fall, he just sees a body at the location where he had seen the man with the machine-gun. B1567

vii) In his RMP statement he claims to have seen the bodies of 4 men, as well as that of the body at the location where he had seen the man with the machine-gun. He does not claim to have witnessed any of these men being killed. B1567

viii) In both his statement to the Treasury Solicitor and in his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry he claims to have seen the man with the machine-gun shot and killed. B1569.001 paragraph 3 B1571F-G

ix) In his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry he claims for the first time that the machine-gun was a Thompson. B1571F-G

x) In both his statement to the Treasury Solicitor and his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry he claims to have seen the 4 men, whose bodies he claimed to have seen in his RMP statement, fall having been shot. B1569.001 paragraph 3(check) B1572E

18.7.6.78 The fundamental difficulty with Soldier 028's account however is that none of the soldiers who fired live rounds on Bloody Sunday claims to have shot and killed a man with a machine-gun behind the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.6.79 Soldier 028 then gives an account of a pistol man firing appearing from the side of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats and being shot along with another man. B1567

18.7.6.80 This account bears a marked resemblance to Soldier U's account of his shooting at a gunman, and hitting a second man, at the southern end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

18.7.6.81 We have already addressed in some detail the statement-taking process conducted by the RMP on the 4th February 1972. On that date a statement was taken from Soldier 033 designed to corroborate the account given by Soldier U of an incident which is supposed to correlate with the shooting of Alex Nash. Soldier 037 has in his evidence to this Inquiry distanced himself from that account stating that he "definitely did not" witness this incident. B1635 paragraphs 24 to 26

18.7.6.82 While Soldier 028's statement was taken on the 3rd, rather than the 4th February 1972, it is our submission that his account of this incident was expressly designed to provide corroboration of Soldier U's account of his shooting of a man near the southern gable end of Block 1 and is entirely dishonest.

18.7.6.83 Probably the most fundamental difficulty with the account given by Soldier 028 relating to each of the 7 men he claims were shot and killed behind the Rubble Barricade is that soldiers in the Parachute Regiment have never claimed that they shot and killed 7 people behind the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.6.84 As has been set out in the Introduction to this Section, the accounts given by the soldiers do not explain the deaths behind the Rubble Barricade. Corporal P claims to have killed one man positioned on Rossville Street some distance in front of the Rubble Barricade and one man crouching behind the Rubble Barricade, who was hit three times on Soldier P's account. Private U claims to have killed a man at the east pavement of Rossville Street, south of Block 1. L/Corporal F claims to have killed a man attempting to throw a nail bomb from behind the Rubble Barricade. Corporal E claims to have hit a sniper in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. L/Corporal J fired a live round but does not claim to have hit anyone. Sergeant K, Private L and Private M all claim to have seen 2 men 'leopard crawling' towards the doors of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats and carrying weapons and to have killed one or both of those men.

18.7.6.85 Therefore on the soldiers' accounts, if everyone they claimed to have hit was killed, the majority of deaths behind the Rubble Barricade took place on the Rossville Flats side of the Rubble Barricade. Soldiers U, E and K, L or M accounting for 4 deceased. While 2 more are accounted for by Soldiers F and P.

18.7.6.86 Soldier 028's account of the 5 people killed, before the killing of 2 more towards the Rossville Flats is therefore entirely inconsistent with the accounts given by the soldiers.

Soldier G's shots

18.7.6.87 Soldier 028 maintains that he took shelter in an alleyway leading to Columbcille Court. Soldier G gave evidence that as he was advancing up Rossville Street from the Kells Walk Wall he was warned about a gunman. B192E-F, B193

18.7.6.88 Soldier G "looked up the alleyway and somebody was dodging about up there." B193B Firstly the putative gunman ran from Columbcille Court to the north-west of Glenfada Park North and as he went into Glenfada Park North Soldier G saw that the man had something in his hand. The man then started dodging back round the wall and looking back at us. "From what I had seen of him I was satisfied that he was a gunman, so we had to move from there and I took aim and fired two aimed shots up this alleyway." B193D

18.7.6.89 The alleyway described by Soldier G would appear to be the same alleyway in which Soldier 028 was hiding. This raises a number of possibilities:

i) Soldier 028, who was in civilian clothes and was armed, was the putative gunman;

ii) Soldier G made the whole incident up in order to account for his firing of 2 live rounds;

iii) Soldier 028 was not in the alleyway and was not in the position he placed himself in on Rossville Street at the time that the Paras were shooting over the Rubble Barricade.

18.7.6.90 While it is our submission that in reality no weight can be attached to either Soldier G or Soldier 028's accounts, this contradiction is a neat illustration of the impossibility of accepting Soldier 028's 1972 accounts.

Rifle man at Window in Rossville Flats

18.7.6.91 Soldier 028 has also given evidence of witnessing a man with a rifle at a window on the 3rd floor of Block 1. He claimed this man was shot and killed. B1568, B1573

18.7.6.92 The incident in which Soldiers F and G fired 7 live rounds at the window of 12 Garvan Place has been dealt with in some detail above. The Tribunal has also received submissions in relation to the statement-taking process in relation to this incident. In particular, the Tribunal will have noted that on the 4th February 1972 statements were taken from the following members of the Anti Tank Platoon: Soldier J at 15.10 hours, (B269, B270) Soldier 018 at 19.15 hours, (B1487) Soldier 036 at 19.30 hours, (B1629, B1630) Soldier 147 at 20.00 hours (B1886, B1887) and L/Corporal F, time unknown. Soldiers 018, 036 and 147 had not made any statements prior to this date. The statements of each of soldiers 018, 036, 147 and Soldier J deal with the incident where they say they came under fire from the Rossville Flats and Soldiers F and G returned fire. Soldier 018 has given evidence to this Tribunal that the RMP suggested to him "that he needed to include this to substantiate details that had been provided by my colleagues to show that when they fired, they did not hit anybody. At the time I made my statement, I was led to believe the details about the location of the gunman in the flats and the area to which fire was returned were true."

B191.5, paragraph 42

18.7.6.93 It is submitted that Soldier 028's account of the shooting of a man with a rifle at a window, albeit given on the 3rd February 1972 was designed to provide corroboration for the accounts given by soldiers F and G of the circumstances in which they fired 7 live rounds at a window in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats, and is untrue.

18.7.6.94 Soldier 028 was prepared in 1972 to go to quite extraordinary lengths to assist the Army's presentation of their case. He was prepared to lie to journalists to the extent that he accused the IRA of having killed those behind the Rubble Barricade. He brought a 14 year old boy to an Army barracks in the middle of the night for the purpose of lending credibility to his own accounts. He was prepared to lie about the conduct of Fr Mulvey in order to blacken his name and undermine his credibility. He perjured himself at the Widgery Tribunal.

18.7.6.95 It membership of the British Army demanded from him perjury on behalf of the soldiers and calumny of the victims and Fr Mulvey. His reluctance to give evidence to this Tribunal was informed by the knowledge of the lies he had told in 1972. However, even before this Tribunal he was unprepared to acknowledge the wrong done by him to the Deceased and in particular those killed behind the Rubble Barricade and persisted in inviting the Tribunal to accept his 1972 accounts, stretching credulity to the limits as they did. Soldier 028 perjured himself in order to advance the Army's case in 1972 and he did precisely the same thing in front of this Tribunal.

18.8 Civilian Gunmen

18.8.1 Introduction

This section addresses the evidence identified in the Lawton document entitled "Civilian Gunmen Table" which is attached to a note from Counsel to the Inquiry dated 22nd July 2002. This section deals only with the entries at pages 81 to 85 Kells Walk and pages 135 to 140 Rubble Barricade as they apply to Sector 3. It also includes the evidence of Margot Harkin.

The Lawton Document

Kells Walk

18.8.2 Martin Bradley

The document relies on the following evidence:

After the shooting of Donaghy and Johnston the witness described being in the area of the laundry waste ground:

> "There was a crowd of people milling around taking cover close to the wall of the laundry at the SE corner of the waste ground (grid reference K9). I did not hear any shooting at that time... I remember hearing from the people around, but I do not know exactly who, that they were waiting for someone with a handgun to appear, who was going to fire back at the army. I do not remember seeing anyone coming with a gun."AB64.2 paragraphs 9 to 10

Also Day 178/108/13 to Day 178/110/2

This could not in any sense be regarded as credible evidence of a civilian gunman in Sector 3 or at all. We say this for a number of reasons:

It is hearsay evidence from a person who the witness could not identify.

No-one said where this person was going to come from, what his name was or what organisation, if any, he was from.

No civilians were being advised to get out of the way or to leave the area.

The witness saw no gunman. He heard no shooting. No gunman appeared.

The witness 1972 statement AB64.7 does not provide any other evidence on the issue.

In the circumstances the only conclusion that the Inquiry could arrive at is that Martin Bradley does not provide credible evidence in respect of the presence of a civilian gunman in that area on the day.

18.8.3 Teresa Bradley

The document relies on the following evidence:

According to the witness there was a gunman on the first floor walkway of the western side of the Kells Walk maisonettes towards the northern end.

"The man was standing completely alone and was pointing a handgun straight in front of him with arm outstretched, and was firing it in the direction he was facing." AB70.2 paragraphs 12 to 13

Mrs Bradley said that the man fired several times and the crowd shouted for him to stop. He then disappeared. He was shooting in a northerly direction. This occurred after the shooting of Damien Donaghy and John Johnston.

This could not in any sense be regarded as credible evidence of a civilian gunman in Sector 3. We say this for a number of reasons:

The witness claimed that she had told the statement taker about the gunman on 4th February 1972. This was a school teacher called William Smyth. The witness accepted at Day 064/73/1 to Day 064/73/4 that she possibly did read the 1972 statement through before signing it. Neither did she tell anyone about her unhappiness about that statement except her husband Day 64/73/8 to Day 64/73/11. The witness' husband however said that they had not discussed it Day 64/14/7.

William Smyth gave evidence on Day 83/181/14 to Day 83/182/12. He strongly refuted the suggestion that he had deliberately left out a reference to the gunman in Kells Walk in Teresa Bradley's 1972 statement[1].

If this incident occurred it happened after the shooting of Damien Donaghy and after the witness' husband assisted him to 8a Columbcille Court.

It occurred prior to the deployment of Support Company Day 64/61/3 to Day 64/61/12

It is unclear what the gunman could have been firing at.

It was not observed by the Army.

The incident relates to events in Sector 1 and not Sector 3.

18.8.4 Joe Carlin

The document refers to a Sunday Times interview. It can be found at AC150.1 to AC150.12. The witness who apparently gave the interview did not give oral evidence to the Inquiry. The account was put to a Mr John Joseph Carlin who gave oral evidence on Day 091/192/25 to Day 091/193/18 and who confirmed that the notes of the interview were nothing to do with him.

The person who supposedly gave the interview to Mr Barry of the Sunday Times is reporting people suggesting that events were about to take place.

He is speculating on the intentions of the persons who were inviting people to move however his "impression" was that this information had come from only one person and that the people pushing them and encouraging them to leave to area did not seem to know any more than they had been told by this person. He did not recognise any of the people involved.

This is an example of an individual apparently giving an interview reporting overheard conversations and gaining mere impressions of events. This could not in any way amount to credible or substantial evidence of the presence or otherwise of a gunman or gunmen in this area.

It was, of course, impossible to test this information further by examination in oral evidence and in any event appears to have occurred prior to the deployment of Support Company.

It is hard to envisage how this could be possibly represented as credible evidence of the presence of civilian gunmen in this area which appears to be more relevant to Sector 1 in any case.

18.8.5 Thomas C Doherty

The document refers to the portion of Mr Doherty's evidence at AD106.2 paragraph 6 and at Day 67. The witness said in his Eversheds statement that he remembered seeing a man about to come out of a doorway of a house, which he thought was at the northern end of Kells Walk facing into Rossville Street. The gunman was accosted by a group of men although he was not sure how many. He heard at least one of them say: "there's no shooting today" and the gunman was physically pushed back into the house. He did not see him again. The witness said the man had a shotgun but it may have been a rifle.

In respect of timing, the incident occurred after the witness heard one or two high velocity shots which could well relate to the Donaghy and Johnston shootings as Support Company have yet to be deployed in Sector 3 AD106.1 paragraph 4

Given that the gunman was "immediately accosted" and "physically pushed" not far from the northern of end of Kells Walk, this has echoes of the incident concerning OIRA1 after he fired his shot AD106.2 paragraph 6.

[1] We refer the Tribunal to the remarks by Chief Superintendent McCullough in relation to the

The witness confirmed in oral evidence that the area was not well known to him and that it was almost thirty years since he had returned to it for purposes of making his Eversheds statement Day 067/128/2 to Day 067/128/14

The witness also recalled that the gunman had what he thought was a shotgun but although it may have been a rifle. It will be recalled that OIRA 1 had a .303 rifle.

The weapon was not fired therefore the witness provides no evidence whatsoever that this individual's actions had any impact on any of the events in any Sector on Bloody Sunday.
The witness' 1972 statement provides no contemporaneous evidence on this issue, which appears to be more relevant to Sector 1 in any case.

18.8.6 Eamonn Gallagher AG8 gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 66. In the map attached to his Eversheds statement he positioned a man with a rifle in the laneway just north of the Kells Walk Block AG8.5. He described the men near the gunman as being hostile and aggressive to him and the witness first noticed them he thought there was a fight and that the men present took the rifle and either broke or dismantled it and told him "there will be no shooting here today". There had been no shots at all up to that point AG8.2 paragraphs 8 to 10.

It is clear that this witness provided a detailed account to the Sunday Times Insight Team. It is clear that the incident of which he spoke in 1972 occurred after he heard that two men had been shot and saw a crowd carrying two bodies. This must be a reference to Donaghy and Johnston AG8.7
It is also clear when one considers the witness' attached "Sunday Times" map at point "4" at AG8.10 that this is where the gunman standards of honesty of the schoolteachers in Derry. Day 231/164/15 to Day 231/164/23

appeared with the rifle. It is also the position where the "tug of war" occurred between the gunman and others present. AG8.7
This must be reference to the OIRA1 incident AG8.7 and in any case had no impact on conduct of the soldiers or of events in Sector 3.

Frank Hone AH80 In the witness' 1972 account, Mr Hone withdrew via the side entries of Columbcille Court leading to Rossville St. It was then that he heard shots. By their "tone" he knew they were army rifles and as far as he could guess they came from the Abbey Taxis Stand or the Church roof. Then he heard of two civilians being hit. About three minutes later he heard a heavier shot from very close to him in Kells Walk. AH80.1. There is no reference to this in his Eversheds statement.

This single shot was fired after the witness heard about the two civilians being hit. Clearly this is a reference to Damien Donaghy and John Johnston.

The fact that the witness referred to a "heavier shot" i.e. heavier that the "Army rifles" suggests that the witness was not referring to a pistol shot and more likely the shot fired by OIRA1.

This must be reference to the OIRA1 incident and in any case had no impact on conduct of the soldiers or of events in Sector 3.

18.8.7 Gerard Kemp M47 said that he interviewed a man that he knew to be a member of the Official IRA M47.1 paragraph 2. This interview appears at L210. OIRA1 in his oral evidence denied that he spoke to Gerard Kemp Day 395/138/5 to Day 395/138/9.

It is clear that the detail contained in the Kemp article L210 reflects to a degree OIRA1's evidence.

It is not clear at all from the article what balcony is being referred to or where the other person who supposedly fired with a pistol was located. The article then goes on to described the person giving the interview as placing himself by the barricade in Rossville Street and seeing three civilians go down.

It is not clear from the text of the article whether the person giving the interview was claiming to have seen the person on the balcony firing at the Paras or the other person firing with the pistol.

The Inquiry therefore is not in a position to determine whether this is a first hand account or hearsay. In the absence of confirmation from the interviewee, the text of the interview does not provide an answer to this question.

This could not be considered an eye witness account of either shooting from a balcony at the Paras or someone else firing with a pistol.

John Long AL20. The witness saw John Johnston and Damien Donaghy almost immediately after they were shot AL20.1 paragraph 4. He showed a doctor (who is likely to have been Dr Kevin Swords) towards Columbcille Court where the men had been taken. Someone mentioned that a man with a handgun had been seen, though the witness did not see this himself AL20.2 paragraph 7.

This is at least a third hand account of an apparent sighting of a man with a handgun. The witness reports someone "mentioned" that "a man with a handgun had been seen". This could not possibly constitute reliable evidence on which to base a finding of the presence of a civilian gunman in this area.

Sequentially, this report was made prior to the Support Company deployment in Sector 3.

This does not provide any evidence of the activity of this gunman or any reaction by Soldiers or civilians to any such activity.

18.8.9 Liam Mailey AM50 gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 163. After the Paras had entered the Bogside and begun to fire, this witness when moving across the Rossville Street Barricade heard three shots which appeared to be of lower calibre than the rifle shots. They appeared to be fired from the area of Glenfada Park or Kells Walk but the witness was unable to give the direction M50.57 to M50.58.

The witness places the firing in a number of different locations in different statements. In 1972 he thought it was Glenfada Park or Kells Walk M50.57 to M50.58. His oral evidence before Lord Widgery was that "would imagine it came from somewhere around Kells Walk" M50.27. In his statement to Eversheds he thought it came from the area of either Glenfada Park North or perhaps the southern end of Columbcille Court. He qualified this by saying he was unsure but the latter was more likely M50.2 paragraph 6. In his oral evidence to this Tribunal the witness said that he was unable to be any more precise as to where he was when he heard the low calibre gunfire Day 163/96/2 to Day 163/96/4.

It may well be that this witness has heard the shots spoken of by Father O'Gara who saw a man draw a pistol from his pocket, lean over a wall at the end of Kells Walk and fire three shots quickly.
The witness has given confused evidence in respect of how these shots fitted in to the sequence of his photographs and that he may have been looking down the Lecky Road, on his way to the Rossville Flats at the junction between William Street and Rossville Street or around the Rubble Barricade Day 163/64/18 to Day 163/95/10.

The witness thus cannot give evidence of what events were actually occurring when he actually heard these shots and therefore cannot assist the Tribunal as to the impact of these shots, if any, on events or the actions of soldiers and civilians on the day.

18.8.10 Marion McMenamin AM363 gave evidence on Day 194. In her Eversheds statement she said she was with her mother, Sarah McMenamin and alleged that she was running south down Rossville Street as the pig entered. As she was running away she saw a civilian with a gun. The gunman was in an alleyway near the pram ramp at the south gable end of Kells Walk. He had his back to the gable end wall of Kells Walk. A description of him can be found at AM363.3 paragraph 7. He had a handgun in his right hand. He was not aiming it. She did not see him fire it. He walked east towards Rossville Street, looked south towards the Rossville Flats shops and then withdrew again. She did not know where he went after that. The witness marked on photograph AM363.10 where she believed she saw the gunman. A number of points arise:

(i) We refer the Tribunal to the questioning of the witness by Arthur Harvey QC where the witness agreed it was a "good possibility" that the gunman she saw was where Father O'Gara described seeing a gunman in 1972. Day 194/218/2 to Day 194/218/22

(ii) The soldiers did not react to the presence of the gunman in any way. The witness described him as "quite discrete." Day 194/219/9 to Day 194/219/12

(iii) The weapon was not fired therefore the witness provides no evidence whatsoever that this individual's actions had any impact on any of the events in any Sector on Bloody Sunday.

It is submitted however that this is not a reliable witness. We say this for a number of reasons:

(i) The witness made no mention of seeing the gunman in her 1972 statement AM363.7. Whilst it could be said that this may have been due to a reluctance on her part not to mention anything that might in some way justify the Army's actions, the witness was prepared to say in 1972 that she heard what seemed to be a nail bomb explode an hour and a half after the first shot she heard. She now cannot recall hearing this.

(ii) The statement provided in 1972 is principally concerned with seeing Damien Donaghy shot but she cannot now recall this.

(iii) The witness confirmed that her recollection in 1972 would have been more accurate than the recollection she had been able to put into her Eversheds statement Day 194/216/22 to Day 194/217/1. In her 1972 statement the witness does not even mention being in Rossville Street at any stage. A fair reading of her 1972 statement would suggest that when she saw Damien Donaghy being shot and then went directly to 19 Meenan Drive whereas in her current statement she ran down Rossville Street in the midst of the action.

(iv) Significantly, the witness' mother, Sarah McMenamin (now deceased) made a statement in 1972 that did not mention the presence of a gunman nor even being in Rossville Street AM364.1.

18.8.11 Brendan & Kieran O'Connor AO10. Brendan and Ciaran O'Connor were twin brothers. The Sunday Times note records:

> "Met Joe Carlin at alley from R St into C Court --- Joe had a pair of binoculars (typical) They were heading up there because a woman had run out of the alleyway to say that a young fellow had been shot.
> Said it was one young man, in a white coat, clearing the line of fire around the front of Kells Walk in Rossville Street." AO75.1

There is a Sunday Times note purportedly from Joe Carlin that records "there were two people with me. One was Brendan O'Connor who runs a tea business just around the corner from the City Hotel." AC150.3 Brendan O'Connor is still alive and gave evidence on Day 108. Ciaran is deceased. The witness denied that he had ever spoken to the Sunday Times Day 108/150/4 to Day 108/150/17 and it is clear from the extract at AC150.3 that although he is named in the document, he is described therein as running a "tea business just around the corner from the City Hotel" AC150.3. The witness confirmed that his brother Ciaran was in fact a tea merchant at the time of Bloody Sunday Day 108/148/20 to Day 108/148/24.

It is submitted that the same points set out in respect of the Joe Carlin Sunday Times note apply in this case.

18.8.12 Father O'Gara. This is what he told the Treasury Solicitor:

> "A young man appeared from the Cathedral side of Kells Walk unknown and unseen by soldiers, drew a pistol from his pocket leaned over a wall at the end of Kells Walk and fired three shots quickly. The soldiers didn't even recognise his presence and he disappeared. This was the only weapon I saw throughout that day. The man wore a "longish" coat. He was completely separated from the main crowd even those around the Barricade on Rossville Street. There was at no stage any gunfire from behind me or beside me. I am certain the revolver was fired after the troops opened fire." H19.5 to H19.6

The witness later related the same incident to Lord Widgery WT7.86 B-C

It is clear that the evidence of Father O'Gara was that the incident occurred 30 seconds or a minute after soldiers opened fire on civilians WT7.86 C.

The young man fired three pistol shots and could not possibly have hit any troops. He was possibly aiming at a "Saracen" car parked on Rossville Street about 25 yards away WT7.86 C.

The soldiers did not even recognise the young man's presence and he then disappeared H19.6. The shots reported to have been fired therefore had no effect on the soldiers or their actions in Rossville Street.

That was the only weapon that Father O'Gara saw throughout the day H19.6. The witness did not witness any other gunfire directed against the soldiers WT7.86 F

18.8.13 Simon Winchester

The document relies on the portion of his evidence:

> "At Kells Walk... I thought I saw another sinister sign: a crowd that had gathered was being pushed away by a number of youths. They were clearing a way for something – was it as I noted in my book, for a line of fire?" (In Holy Terror p198) M83.3 paragraph 16

At M83.9 paragraphs 53 to 55 the witness commented on his 1972 statement at M83.17. In summary, he had described boys clearing paths for snipers on two occasions on Bloody Sunday. The first was before he heard the first shot and saw boys clearing a path in William Street just to the north of the laundry waste ground. On the second occasion he saw boys in the area of Kells Walk. When he saw the boys on this occasion he concluded that because he had heard the first shot that they were clearing a path for a sniper. There were no shots from the alleyway on the second occasion because he had stayed in the area for about five minutes after he saw the boys clearing people. In his 1972 statement at paragraph 13, the witness said he had "assumed they were clearing the line of fire for a sniper" although he could not say what he might have fired at M83.17.

In an addendum to his 1972 statement he described the first incident. He gave the movement of the boys no significance until he heard the first shot. Then he assumed there was a sniper in the area and that his line of fire was being cleared. M83.50

The witness assumed that these people were clearing the line of fire for a sniper. He could not see what any potential sniper might have been going to fire at.

In 1972 and in his evidence to the Inquiry Day 116/33/9 to Day 116/33/16 the witness was posing a question about what he had seen. In his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry Mr Winchester described the incident as having seen "something which might be relevant – a number of people who seemed to be teenage youths clearing passers by away from an entry which led into Columbcille Court." The witness went further (ibid) "It did not seem to have any significance until I heard the single shot and then I thought to myself what they might be doing was to move people away". The witness was asked did he in fact hear any shooting and he replied "No". WT3.12. A-D

In his evidence to the Inquiry Day 116/36/10 to Day 116/36/19, it was clear from the witness' evidence that he could not say whether in fact he had seen the "clearing of a path" on one or two occasions. He described it as "a very imperfect science". He could only say in his evidence on Day 116/36/20 to Day 116/36/23 that he had seen what appeared to be the clearing of a path happening on at least one occasion at the spot he had mentioned.

It is to be observed that in his Treasury Solicitor statement that in describing this incident there were in fact no shots fired from the alleyway or as far as he could tell from anywhere else in the immediate vicinity. M83.17

The witness saw no armed activity at all. At its height he saw a movement of a crowd upon which he made an assumption and in relation to that assumption in his notebook he recorded the incident with a question mark M83.3 paragraph 16. This question mark and confusion about the incident continued until his oral evidence to this Inquiry about both the number of incidents he had seen and the timing of these incidents in relation to the shot that he had heard earlier. M83.16

The witness fairly described the incident he claimed to have seen and the assumption that he made thereon as an "imperfect science" Day 116/36/10 to Day 116/36/19. Perhaps most importantly, at its height the witness did not see a gunman, did not hear a shot arising out of the incident but saw movement of people in a crowd.

If this incident occurred it happened prior to the deployment of Support Company into the Rossville Street area and had no impact on any of the events in any Sector on Bloody Sunday.

18.8.14 John Barry M3 gave evidence to the Inquiry on Day 193. He described in his Eversheds statement at M3.6 paragraph 21 that he seemed to recall there were "indications" that a pistol had been passed from hand to hand and most likely fired from the Rubble Barricade on Rossville Street or close behind it. The witness was asked about the matter in his oral evidence and whether he was referring to the evidence from the Soldiers which was set out in the article itself or whether he was referring to some other evidence. He answered "I do not remember. I think we must have had some other evidence but I do not remember what it was" Day 193/108/16 to Day 193/108/25.

It is clear that Mr Barry in his statement was properly cautious as to this note. He said that "I also seem to recall there were indications that a pistol had been passed from hand to hand and most likely fired from the rubble barricade on Rossville Street or close behind it" (emphasis added). M3.6 paragraph 21

He could not remember and was unable to assist further with its origin Day 193/108/24.

It must be emphasised that the relevant portion of the article itself is based on Soldiers' accounts, which are demonstrably unreliable. L213
There is nothing in the Insight article to suggest that the information contained in the article came from a source other than Soldiers.

The "some other evidence" Day 193/108/21 to Day 193/108/25 certainly does not appear in the Insight article L213.

Whilst her evidence post-dated the Lawton team report, we have included the evidence of Margot Harkin in this section of our submissions.

18.8.15 Margot Harkin AH23 gave evidence to the Tribunal on Day 416. The witness described seeing two very young men running down from the direction of the Little Diamond. This was startling as everyone else was running away and they were running into the area. The youths halted at the corner of the eastern wall of Glenfada Park facing into Rossville Street with one behind the other. The witness marked this point at "K" on AH23.22. They were very agitated and she saw one of them pulling the other's jacket. The young man in the foreground was very angry and resisted. He then took a gun from the other man which was delivered from inside this young man's jacket. The man armed with the handgun went to the edge of the gable, ducked his head around the gable end to his right and fired. She believed he fired the shot randomly. She did not recall that he fired more than one shot but could not be sure. She said it all "happened so fast" AH23.17 paragraph 41. Immediately after this the gun was thrust back at the other young man and they both ran away very fast the way they had come. They split off in two directions and disappeared. "It all happened in a matter of minutes." AH23.17 paragraph 41

The witness did not make a statement in 1972 or at any time before making her Eversheds statement and therefore had no means of reliably refreshing her memory.

The Tribunal would need to be satisfied that the witness would have had the view she claimed to have had into the alleyway off Rossville Street in order to conclude that she saw what she claims.

The witness claimed that the shot was discharged in the direction of a soldier at point "I" on her map AH23.22 though accepted the possibility in her oral evidence that the soldier may have been further north of this position Day 416/23/17 to Day 416/23/25

The Inquiry has not heard any evidence from any soldier who puts himself where the witness did when she made her Eversheds statement.

In terms of sequencing the civilians had already been shot at the Rubble Barricade and Rossville Street would have been saturated with Paratroopers, positioned at both sides of the street and at the northern end of Block1. It is beyond comprehension that every one of these witnesses could have failed to see the youths or hear the shot.
No civilian or military witness gives evidence that could corroborate Ms Harkin's account.

This part of her evidence is suspect as it would have been suicidal for any gunman to go near the soldiers' position armed with only a handgun and fire from a position which afforded them little cover. In this regard it is worth quoting the transcript:
"Q. I suggest it inherently unlikely that someone would place himself in a position of such obvious danger -- Yes, it was crazy." Day 416/46/18 to Day 416/46/20

It is submitted that she is mistaken as to seeing the gunman. Even if her evidence was to be accepted it is clear at its height that the actions of this person as described had no impact whatsoever on the actions of the soldiers in Rossville Street.

Rubble Barricade

In respect of Ivan Cooper the document relies on the following passage from the Sunday Times notes, which appears at KC12.68:

> "IC launched into a story: _ CIV2 _, Martin McGuiness and PIRA 17 were in a house in William Street almost down by C Street. Their place was to fire through the doorway at soldiers who IC says were occupying some of the houses on the other side of W St. The troops moved in and the trio were trapped. IC says that MM panicked and thought he was going to get caught. CIV2 said to dismantle the Thompsons and put them up their jerseys. They did and ran off with the crowd. But, IC recounts, CIV2 was also carrying a pistol in a holster. And as he ran over the barrier he dropped it. He bent down to pick it up and was shot three times by a Para – the final shot going throught the heal of his shoe. He picked up the pistol and ran off (I'm highly dubious of that whole story it reeks of "minimum approach to me.)"

In respect of the Sunday Times notes Ivan Cooper has said:

> "I have read some typewritten notes which I am informed were prepared by the Sunday Times Insight team. I have never seen them before making this statement. I find this account poisonous and disturbing and I reject it in its entirety. The manner in which it is written smacks of British security intelligence operating; it is for the most part, factually incorrect. There are many examples of factual inaccuracies in the articles. I therefore wish to reject this document in its entirety and will not even begin to give it credibility by addressing it in more detail." KC12.30 paragraph 97

Giving evidence Mr Cooper said that:

He never knew CIV2 to be "linked with the Provos" Day 419/111/11 to Day 419/111/13 and;
He was never interviewed by anyone who was said to be from or be connected with the Sunday Times Insight team Day 419/77/16 to Day 419/78/2.

In addition, the Tribunal has a statement from CIV2 where he clearly states:

"I am not and never have been a member of IRA/Sinn Fein, neither have my family before me nor my family after me."
AM208.1 paragraph 1

Even if the Tribunal was to find that Ivan Cooper had given an interview with John Barry and in all likelihood made these remarks, we respectfully refer the Tribunal to the following passage fron CIV2 's evidence:

"Ivan Cooper is a fantastic liar he is the sort of person that I have always wanted to and have tried to avoid. I would take anything he says with a "pinch of salt". The statement that he made to the Sunday Times is a fabrication. I suspect he made the statement to make himself sound like an important politician for the journalists." AM208.10 paragraph 17

Mr Barry who accepted he was the author of the note was "highly dubious" of what he was apparently told:

> "I have no idea whether it is remotely true or not..." Day 193/126/16 to Day 193/126/18

The account is in itself a highly colourful and fanciful one, which is not corroborated by any witness whether civilian or military. Moreover it appears to have escaped the notice of Special Branch, Military Intelligence and the Security Services. This note is inherently unreliable and is of no value whatsoever to the Inquiry in seeking the truth about the events on Bloody Sunday.

18.8.17 Kieran Gill M105 gave oral evidence on Day 203 and Day 206. He claimed in his Eversheds statement at M105.13 that he received information from PIRA that a member of the Official IRA had a revolver and fired it. He claimed to have gone to OIRA man's house with Peter Pringle. He claimed that the man had told him that he had fired 3 or 4 shots from the revolver around a door of the Rossville Flats. This apparently occurred after the Army had fired between 100 and 150 rounds and there was a lull in the shooting. According to Mr Gill, the man said that he put his hand around the door and fired the revolver up Rossville Street to make the Army stay away. The witness claimed that both he and Peter Pringle suggested to the man that he might have shot Alex Nash.

It is submitted if this encounter took place it is inconceivable that two newspapers (Irish Press and the Sunday Times) would not have published details of it given the hugely significant and topical nature of the story.

Peter Pringle at no stage in his evidence to the Tribunal indicated that this encounter took place.

There is no note anywhere in the Sunday Times Working Papers or notes which indicates that this encounter took place.

It is submitted that it highly questionable whether the encounter described by Kieran Gill ever occurred, particularly in light of developments after the witness gave evidence. Eamonn McCann, journalist for the "Sunday Tribune" wrote an article published 12th May 2002 in relation to this issue that undermines completely the version of events presented by Kieran Gill[2] OS1.896.

18.8.18 Observer B KO2 did not give oral evidence. We refer the Tribunal to our submissions at Section 13 for the status of this evidence.

[2] "A former Sunday Times journalist has dismissed a claim by an ex-Irish Press reporter that a member of the Official IRA admitted firing a shot which may have caused one of the Bloody Sunday casualties. Speaking from New York yesterday, Peter Pringle said that he had "no memory whatsoever" of the doorstep interview which Kieran Gill told the Saville Tribunal he and Pringle had conducted with the IRA man. Said Pringle, "If an admission like that had been made to me, I would remember it. It would have been a major development." Gill, who traveled from his home in Australia to give evidence, was Irish Press correspondent in Derry on Bloody Sunday. On Thursday, he testified that he had worked informally with the Sunday Times Insight team in the days after the shootings. He recounted that he and Pringle were told by a Provisional IRA man than an Official had fired from a revolver in Rossville Street after a number of people there had been shot by soldiers.

Gill said that the two journalists then confronted the Official at his home: "He admitted that he had fired a revolver around the door of the Rossville Street Flats...I said something like, 'So you shot Mr. Nash.' The man looked horrified."

It has been one of the perplexing details of Bloody Sunday that Alexander Nash, wounded when he went out into Rossville Street to comfort his dying son, William, was struck from a low-velocity weapon rather than from an Army-style rifle.

Pringle says he can recall neither the tip-off from the Provisional nor the interview with the Official. The story wasn't included in an Insight reconstruction of Bloody Sunday published in the Sunday Times in April 1972 nor in last year's, "Those Are Real Bullets, Aren't They?", by Pringle and Philip Jacobson, also of the Insight team. It wasn't mentioned by Pringle in his Inquiry evidence last year. When these omissions were put to Gill, he stood his ground. "I am correct in my record... I am not confused at all."

FS 1 · 2127

At the end of Gill's cross-examination, Saville agreed with a barrister for the Nash family that the Tribunal may now have to recall Pringle." Sunday Tribune 12th May 2002

18.8.19 OIRA1 AOIRA1 gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 395 and Day 396. It is recorded at AOIRA1.1-2 that after seeing Michael Kelly fall at the Rubble Barricade:

But he insists that he then saw, obliquely, three figures standing at the barricade and a burst of automatic – "machine gun" – fire, at which the three fell – adding austerely: "Whether they were hit or not I could not say. He says that there was then the buzz that troops were then coming up to Glenfada."

The witness said he had no recollection of hearing automatic fire and denied that he would have had any reason to making this comment to Mr Barry of the Sunday Times Day 395/119/23 to Day 395/120/7, Day 396/80/20 to Day 396/80/25

The note records that Michael Kelly was a cousin of OIRA1. This is untrue.

Any suggestion in this note that three people fell at the Barricade as a result of automatic fire is wholly unsubstantiated by civilian and military evidence. The Tribunal has evidence from a significant number of witnesses who were close to the Barricade including that of Fathers Bradley and O'Keefe and none of those witnesses refer to automatic fire or people on the Barricade falling as a result of automatic fire.

This evidence is obviously in the face of the overwhelming weight of evidence inherently unreliable and can not be relied upon.

18.8.20 Peter Pringle M68 gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 190 and Day 191.

The comment in the early draft of the Insight article at S303 that there was "persuasive but not conclusive, evidence that a pistol appeared at the barricade and was used" was not enough for the authors to publish a conclusion based on this information.

We are unaware of any corresponding note in the Sunday Times Working papers that suggests that a witness provided this information. Applying the "rule of thumb" that was the practice of the Insight Team viz, that there had to be some corroboration for the information to appear in the article (L213, L214, there was no corroboration at all for this information. The ultimate article itself concentrates solely on the soldiers' accounts of a pistol at the barricade since clearly the Insight team were not in possession of other material, which they considered reliable enough to publish.

We have not been made aware of the primary source of this information and therefore the Inquiry has been unable to test its quality or veracity.

It is submitted the Tribunal should hesitate to base a finding of fact on uncorroborated, untested and unsourced material that was not of sufficient quality to print or publish in 1972.

18.8.21 Conclusions

In light of the foregoing examination of the relevant evidence the following submissions are made:

(i) With the exception of Father O'Gara's gunman such evidence as has been identified does not establish to the requisite standard that civilian gunmen/bombers were operating in the Rossville Street area on Bloody Sunday; or

(ii) The evidence that has been presented indicates that any such individuals who were present and in possession of weapons

a. Were not seen by the soldiers who entered Rossville Street;
b. Did not, on the soldiers' evidence, provide the justification for them opening fire and;
c. Had no impact on the actions of soldiers on that day.

18.9 Missing Casualties

18.9.1 Introduction & Summary of Submissions

This section addresses those identified as located in Sector 3 on:

(i) The list entitled "Examples (non-exhaustive) of unknown civilian casualties" provided to the Inquiry by the Aitken team. This document appears at OS8.42;

(ii) The list of so-called "missing casualties" provided to the Inquiry by the Lawton team. The list appears at OS7.35.

There were no unaccounted for missing casualties in Sector 3. All persons killed and wounded in Sector 3 were accounted for. The people who were shot were not gunmen or bombers, but innocent civilians.

As is the case in other sectors the issue of so-called missing casualties is a distortion of the reality of events on the ground and a diversion from the reality that the casualties on Bloody Sunday have long been accounted for notwithstanding the evidence from the Soldiers.

As is the case in other sectors the issue of so-called missing casualties is a theory propounded to explain why experienced soldiers had failed to hit a single gunman or bomber in the Bogside on Bloody Sunday. Since they shot only unarmed civilians in the absence of such a theory they have committed cold-blooded murder. They were forced in desperation to rely upon this absurd theory wholly unsupported by any credible evidence to put any face upon their actions.

18.9.2 The Aitken Document

Rubble Barricade

18.9.2.1 The Aitken team advance the proposition that "there is clear evidence of at least one casualty at the Rubble Barricade whose identity remains unknown".

18.9.2.2 The suggestion that there is a 'Missing Casualty' at the Rubble Barricade is a difficult case for the soldiers to advance. On the soldiers' evidence in Sector 3 they cannot account for the 6 people killed at the Rubble Barricade, yet their legal teams advance on their instructions that there were extra casualties, in circumstances where they cannot account for the existing ones.

18.9.2.3. There is thus an inherent contradiction in the case advanced on the soldiers' behalf. On the one hand they only fired the shots they claim to have fired and only hit the number of targets claimed behind the Rubble Barricade, thus failing to account for the known dead and wounded, on the other hand, given that the known dead and wounded were innocent, they must have shot and killed others. Added to this we have the fact that, after the shooting of Michael Kelly, shooting over the Rubble Barricade was so heavy that people could not get to the bodies of three known casualties. Michael McDaid, John Young and William Nash.

18.9.2.4 The only basis upon which the soldiers can advance a case of a missing casualty which is in any way consistent with the evidence they have given is if the 'shoot-through theory' is accepted in relation to Michael Kelly, i.e. Michael Kelly was the second victim of Soldier F's bullet.

18.9.2.5 Given the volume of civilian evidence that after Michael Kelly's body was removed from the Rubble Barricade, no one was able to gain access to the other three bodies. The 'missing casualty' had to have been removed at or about the same time as Michael Kelly.

Alternatively this 'missing casualty' is in fact one of the three persons removed from the Rubble Barricade by Mortar Platoon.

18.9.2.6 If the body was removed at the same time as Michael Kelly, then despite the extensive photographic coverage of the Rubble Barricade and Glenfada Park North before and after the shooting this person was brought from the Rubble Barricade unnoticed. The removal was also unnoticed by the people at the gable wall of Glenfada Park North. Alternatively witnesses like Fr. Bradley, Barry Liddy and Fr O'Keefe have participated in a massive conspiracy, which has included the unidentified people who removed the body, a conspiracy which went into motion within minutes of this man's death and which has gone uncovered for 32 years.

18.9.2.7 In support of this implausible proposition the Aitken Team cite the evidence of the following (which with respect is far from "clear"):

George Roberts (AR13 and Day 151):

> "describes a young man in a white Aran sweater with wound under his right eye from which blood was gushing."

18.9.2.8 George Roberts' evidence is that he was at the southern gable of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North with Danny McGilloway. He amended this when he gave oral evidence, to say that this person was PIRA 1 Day 151/69/11 to Day 151/69/19.

18.9.2.9 In 1972 George Roberts evidence seemed to be to the effect that he had witnessed at least 3 people being shot:

> "...I was standing at the barricade and the army started shooting and the fellow standing beside me fell. He was hit and I got down beside him to try and pull him into the gable house. I called to the crowd and 6 of them ran forward to help us and 3 of them were shot. They fell towards me and another boy. I crawled behind the barricade behind this small wall. This person pulled me behind the wall and the shooting continued." AR13.8

18.9.2.10 However in his evidence to this Tribunal, he has stated in relation to referring to 3 people being shot:

> "I had probably heard this after, only the next day that three were shot at the barricade" Day 151/81/4 to Day 151/81/12

18.9.2.11 In his evidence to this Tribunal he has given an account of the shooting of a young man, slightly in front of him, and to his left. He describes him as wearing an arran sweater and states that he was shot below the eye. AR13.1 paragraph 7

18.9.2.12 Mr Roberts then identifies himself in EP 27/6, EP 32/1 and EP 32/2. EP 32/1 and EP 32/2 shows Mr Roberts kneeling on the ground, over the person he believes was shot in the eye. To the rear of Mr Roberts' position is Michael Kelly who has been shot.

18.9.2.13 Mr Roberts stated that at the time Robert White took P637, showing the body of Michael Kelly, he was kneeling over the body of the other young man: "I was focusing on the other young fella, my head was away from that area there." Day 151/72/17 to Day 151/73/1

18.9.2.14 Rejected the possibility that he could have been simply kneeling in that position when P637 was taken, but rather he only went down because of the young man being shot. Day 151/73/7 to Day 151/73/14

18.9.2.15 However Mr. Roberts changed his position in relation to that issue over the course of his evidence. He confirmed that he had only a recollection of one person being shot behind the Rubble Barricade and that, the person had been shot below the eye. Day 151/97/4 to Day 151 97/11

18.9.2.16 When questioned by Mr Harvey QC on behalf of the Families he was asked in reference to John Young who was shot below the eye on the Rubble Barricade:

> "Q. Could it be that is the person that you have seen shot but it is in a later sequence than in the photograph on which you can be seen crouching?
>
> A. Very possible.
>
> Q. And that simply because of the shock you were in, you have missed quite a considerable number of events that went on before the person was shot in the eye?
> A. Quite possible, yes." Day 151/97/16 to Day 151/97/24

18.9.2.17 When questioned by Mr Glasgow the witness was clear, as he had been with Mr. Harvey, Day 151/91/10 to Day 151/91/20 that the person he saw shot in the eye was not the first person shot, but was the first person he had seen shot. Day 151/106/15 to Day 151/106/18

18.9.12.18 However when the witness was re-examined the witness he was shown photograph E14.12, an enhanced copy of P636. He was asked which of the two persons which he appeared to be kneeling over was the person who had sustained the wound to the eye. His answer was that "it could be neither of them" Day 151/117/8 to Day 151/117/10, and that he could not be sure if it was either of the two. Day 151/117/16 to Day 151/117/23 At the conclusion of his evidence he was asked:

> "Q. Do you think the person you saw fall might be off this photograph?

A. I am not too sure now, I could not say, looking at it at that time, you know, a split second on a photo, it could be moved back or forward, whatever you know. (Pause) Well, I could not be sure after all this time, you know. It does not look as though any of the two is the young fella was shot, you know what I mean." Day 151/118/17 to Day 151/119/11

18.9.2.19 The witness recalls sheltering behind the rubble and puffs of smoke from rounds hitting the Barricade. He suggests that there were perhaps an interval of a few seconds between the rounds hitting the barricade. AR13.2 paragraph 9 He then describes how he crawled to the safety of the gable wall, urged on by his friend PIRA 1, and apparently oblivious to what was happening behind him at the Rubble Barricade.

18.9.2.20 Mr Roberts accepted that when he had returned to the safety of the gable wall, he was "in shock" and "could not believe what was happening". Day 151/77/14 to Day 151/77/15

18.9.2.21 Denis McLaughlin has given evidence that he was with George Roberts when he witnessed a person shot in the head. Both have also given evidence of George Roberts being assisted from the Rubble Barricade by PIRA 1.

18.9.2.22 It seems probable that both witnesses witnessed one or more of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash being shot. It is also clear that the conditions under which they witnessed the incident were frightening and distressing and life-threatening for both of them and confusion in relation to the accounts is understandable. One issue upon which both witnesses are absolutely clear is that they did not see anybody at the Rubble Barricade with a weapon and none of the people behind the Rubble Barricade were armed. The people who they saw shot and killed were shot without justification.

18.9.2.23 Robert Wallace (AW3 and Day 154):

> "gave evidence of a wounded man aged 17 or 18 being carried round the corner into Glenfada Park from the barricade a few seconds after Michael Kelly, slumped forward face down."

It should be pointed out that this witness also appears at Number 34 in the Lawton document at OS7.34

18.9.2.24 This witness gave evidence of seeing the body of Michael Kelly brought to the gable end of Glenfada Park North. He did not see anything going on at the Rubble Barricade as he was sheltering at the gable end. Day 154/135/21 to Day 154/135/23 He did not see Michael Kelly lying at the Rubble Barricade but only when Michael Kelly was brought round the corner.

18.9.2.25 At AW3.02 paragraphs 7 to 8 and Day 154/137/14 to Day 154/143/4 he described a second young man was carried around the gable end from the barricade . This happened a few seconds later. He was aged about 17 or 18 and a bit smaller than Michael Kelly. Although he was not moving at all the witness saw no wound or blood on him. The witness was still so shocked by the sight of Michael Kelly that he did not pay much attention to the second man. He did not see the man's face. He just presumed his age as he seemed to have black longish hair. Two people were carrying him. He did not know either of these people.

18.9.2.26 The man's face was facing down. He thought he was wearing dark jeans not a suit. He seemed to be slumped forward being held under both his arms. The witness did not see what happened to the man. He thinks he was put down at the corner but the witness then tried to make a break to behind a car.

18.9.2.27 The witness gave a tape-recorded statement in 1972 at X2.36.2. In that interview he mentioned a wounded boy. He confirmed he thought he was referring to Michael Kelly. He spoke in this statement of "another boy supposed to be lying at the barricade." He spoke of at least three people going out to pick him up. When asked did he remember that he replied:

> "I am not 100 per cent sure, it is a long time ago." Day 154/145/8 to Day 154/145/13. When asked did he remember anybody going from the gable end up towards the barricade to pick him up he replied: "At the moment no." Day 154/145/14 to Day 154/145/16.

18.9.2.28 The witness had then said in his 1972 statement: "I seen them going out. I did not see them coming in again. I heard afterwards that they were shot". When asked did he remember anything of that he replied:

> "There were that many stories going round at that time. I probably did hear they were shot all right but..."

18.9.2.29 In this interview he did not mention at all a second person being brought round to the gable end. It is submitted that in a contemporaneous statement the witness described seeing one person and totally omitted a person he claimed to be able to remember seeing thirty years later. There appears absolutely no reason why this detail should have been omitted from the 1972 statement if the later recollection of the witness as to what he saw is in any way reliable.

18.9.2.30 Also as can be seen from the exchanges above the witness could not now remember substantial elements of the scenes described in his 1972 statement. There must therefore be a considerable question as to how he could now remember an event i.e. the second boy brought to the gable end which he did not even record in 1972.

18.9.2.31 The witness claimed he did see a second body brought round but he did not know "whether he was hurt." He could not even confirm an impression that it was somebody who was hurt because immediately after that he made a dash for a car in Glenfada Park. He did not see any marks on him and did not see any blood on him. Day 154/146/19 to Day 154/147/12. He confirmed to Mr Glasgow that he did not know if the man had been wounded. Day 154/174/23 to Day 154/174/23.

18.9.2.32 There is no evidence whatsoever that the man described was wounded or a casualty at the barricade or anywhere else even if the witness's recollection were to be considered in any way reliable.

18.9.2.33 The absence of a description of the incident in 1972 and the witness's failure to recollect events actually set out in that statement should lead the Inquiry to treat the evidence of the witness in respect of the second man brought to the gable end with the utmost circumspection. As an account of events it cannot be relied on especially when set against the overwhelming weight of civilian evidence as to events a the gable end of Glenfada Park North which suggests no such incident occurred.

E14.12 and E14.16

"There is photographic evidence of a casualty on the left of photographs E14.12 and E14.16 apparently lying near the barricade. Mr Roberts moves to lean over him."

(i) Our comments in respect of this evidence are as follows:

(ii) There is no photographic evidence of what could be termed a "missing casualty"

(iii) It is a matter of strained speculation to even suggest that these photographs amount to credible evidence of a wounded or deceased person at the Rubble Barricade.

18.9.3. The Lawton Document

18.9.3.1 Number 6 Alan Harkens

AH8.4 paragraphs 14 to 16: "Second body in Rossville Flats. Young man propped up against inside wall of stairwell with his boots placed beside his feet."

In respect of this witness we refer the Tribunal to our submissions concerning the Aitken document.

18.9.3.2 Number 10 Pearse McCaul

AM93.3 paragraph 13: "South of Rubble Barricade. Body (other than Kelly's), which was dragged away from the barricade"

In respect of this witness we refer the Tribunal to our submissions concerning our review of the civilian evidence in respect of Michael Kelly.

18.9.3.3. Number 18 John McIntyre

AM286.4 paragraph 23: "Rossville Street, South of Rubble Barricade. Body in street, not moving"

Our comments in respect of this evidence are as follows:

His Eversheds statement states that from a house in Joseph Place in which there were 20-40 people taking cover, he was looking out of the window. Mickey Bradley had been taken to this house. AM286.4 paragraph 22

FS1 2139

From the window he saw a body lying at a position on Rossville Street identified as 'E' on his attached map AM286.9. That is back from the Rubble Barricade and out from Glenfada Park South. He was unable to assist in relation to what position the person was lying, whether face up or down. He believed the person had been shot because they were not moving. He was "hazy about the exact details of this person as I was a good distance from the person and only had a side-on view." AM286.4 paragraph 23

He saw a man crawling towards the person from the direction of Free Derry Corner. AM286.4 paragraph 24

Then some ambulances arrived in Rossville Street from the direction of the Free Derry Corner. One stopped next to the person lying at the point 'E' identified by this witness in his map. AM286.4 paragraph 25

The witness was questioned about the 'missing casualty' in oral evidence. In response to questions from Mr. Clarke QC he stated that location 'E' was inaccurate and that he would in fact place him on the footpath in line with Glenfada Park South, but at the edge towards the Rossville Flats. He marked a position which has been preserved at AM286.10. It should be noted that in relation to this position he stated as follows:

> "looking at . . . photograph [P207] . . . can you tell us where you saw somebody lying on the ground?
>
> A. (Marked with a yellow arrow) around here.
>
> Q. That appears to be on . . . around there, is that right?
>
> A. Yes, more on the footpath.
>
> Q. That is on the footpath?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. In line with the pram ramp to the north of Glenfada Park South?
>
> A. That is only a rough idea.
>
> Q. Roughly?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. But on the Glenfada Park side of the road?
>
> A. Yes, I think so, yes.

FS1·2140

Q. You think so?

A. Mmm.

Q. Could we preserve that image as AM286.10?" (emphasis added) Day 92/155/8 to Day 92/156/5

18.9.3.4 Mr. Harvey QC then questioned this witness about this 'missing casualty'. He was shown photographs P637 and EP26.20 he confirmed that the body he saw could have been in the same position as the body in the photograph, which is the body of Michael Kelly. Day 092/157/21 to Day 092/157/23 He also acknowledged that when he had marked 'X' on the map attached to his original statement AM286.7 that he had merely been trying to:

"give a rough estimate at a passage of some 28 years of what you had seen?

Day 092/157/11 to Day 092/158/3

Finally, the witness was questioned by Mr. Lawson QC about this issue and he was taken to the position marked 'E' on his first map AM286.9 and the position marked by the Yellow arrow in response to questions from Mr. Clarke QC AM286.10 it was then suggested to him that despite the differences between the two locations, the body was:

Q "... still really on the pavement outside Glenfada Park South, yes?

A. No, I recall it was on the footpath, yes.

Q. On a footpath?

A. On a footpath in that general direction.

The photographer's side, at least, of the entrance to Glenfada Park North?

A. Well, as I already said, I got – I only got a quick glance, there was still firing going on at that time." Day 092/160/8 to Day 092/161/2

18.9.3.5 The witness was then questioned about the arrival of the ambulance referred to at AM286.4 paragraph 25. In oral evidence the witness stated that he simply remembered a couple of ambulances arriving, he could not state that it had picked up a person at the location identified by him as 'E' in his map. Day 092/161/3 to Day 092/1612/2

When questioned further by Mr. Clarke, the witness indicated that although in his statement the sequence was that: he saw the body; he saw the man crawling towards the body; and, he saw the ambulances, that there was in fact a gap in time between seeing the person crawl towards the body and seeing the ambulances. He estimated the time gap to be in the region of 5-10 minutes. Day 092/162/8 to Day 092/163/11

18.9.3.6 In conclusion therefore:

(i) The witness saw this body under very difficult conditions, he was taking cover in a house, in which there were large numbers of people, including the wounded Mickey Bradley. AM286.4 paragraph 22

(ii) Even in his Eversheds statement, although he marked the map, he stated that he was "hazy" about the exact details of the person. AM286.4 paragraph 23

(iii) In response to the initial questioning by Mr. Clarke QC, he moved the location of the body and the only matter he seemed to be clear about was that it was on the edge of the footpath. He acknowledged that the information he was giving was very approximate. Day 092/155/8 to Day 092/156/5

(iv) When questioned by Mr. Harvey QC, he confirmed that the photograph showing the dead Michael Kelly could represent the image he had seen. Day 092/157/21 to Day 092/157/23

(v) He also acknowledged that he had only seen a "quick flash" in 1972 and was really some 28 years later just trying to give a "rough estimate". Day 092/157/11 to Day 092/158/3

(vi) Questioned by Mr. Lawson QC he specifically stated that there had been firing going on at the time he saw this body, which would be consistent with the body having been that of Michael Kelly.

(vii) Finally, questioned again by Mr. Clarke QC he stated that there had been a gap of 5-10 minutes between seeing the body and the arrival of the ambulance, he was somewhat unclear in his timings. Again that would be broadly consistent with having seen the body of Michael Kelly.

(viii) It is also undoubtedly the case that the witness has after 28 years amalgamated a number of incidents, for example he does not appear to recall the removal of the bodies of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash from the Rubble Barricade, a scene which from his location he ought to have seen. Of course, if this was a genuine missing casualty, it means that it went unnoticed by the soldiers who picked up the bodies of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash.

(ix) This witnesses evidence lends no support to the theory that there was a missing casualty in Rossville Street, either at the location identified by him at 'E' in his map at AM286.9 or at the position marked by him with a yellow arrow at AM286.10.

18.9.3.7 Number 34 Robert Wallace

AW3.2 paragraph 8: "South of Rubble Barricade. Body (other than Kelly's), which was dragged away from the barricade around the gable end of GPN. Aged 17-18, a bit smaller than Kelly. Witness saw no wound or blood on him."

In respect of this witness we refer the Tribunal to our submissions concerning the Aitken document below.

18.9.4.1 Stairwell of Block 1 Rossville Flats

The Aitken team appear to advance the proposition that "there is evidence of at least one body inside the stairwell of Block1 of the Rossville Flats whose identity is unknown." OS8.42

18.9.4.2 In respect of this proposition they cite the evidence of Alan Harkens (AH8 and Day 96):

> "recalled two bodies in Block1 of the Rossville Flats: one on first half landing of the stairwell, the other on the ground floor foyer area propped up against the inside wall of the stairwell. Mr Harkens was certain that the second body was inside, not outside, the flats."

It should be pointed out that this witness also appears as Number 6 in the Lawton Team document at OS7.34.

18.9.4.3 Curiously the witness claims to have seen two bodies in the stairwell of Block1, the first on the landing between floors one and two, lying flat on the ground, covered with a coat, with his shoes next to him AH8.4 paragraph 15. He alleged that the second body was propped up against a wall with his boots on in the foyer entrance AH8.4 paragraph 16.

(i) It is contended that the witness saw Kevin McElhinney's body inside the stairwell of Block1.

(ii) It is further contended that one of the bodies that he refers to was that of Hugh Gilmore (given the fact that his shoes were removed P669 and that his body was situated very close by).

(iii) The witness refused to acknowledge that he might be mistaken though he was prepared to concede that he was in a state of shock at the time and broke down when he returned home Day 096/29/9 to Day 096/29/19.

(iv) It is also worth recalling that this witness did not make a statement in 1972 and therefore was denied the assistance of a contemporary document when drafting his statement for this Inquiry.

(v) Whilst we do not challenge the witness' honesty in any way we respectfully submit that his recollection is mistaken and should not be relied upon.

18.9.4.4 Also in respect of this proposition they cite the evidence of Jim Norris (AN20 and Day 147):

" "recalled crashing" through the doors of Block1 before being caught and lowered to the ground by Mr Norris. Mr Norris described this young man as wearing a bottle green suit and white collared shirt. This person was not wearing a pull-over."

18.9.4.5. Our comments in respect of this evidence are as follows:

i) Jim Norris is referring to Kevin McElhinney AN20.10 paragraph 14.

ii) Jim Norris is the only civilian witness who stands by the suggestion that Kevin McElhinney was upright as he entered Block1. Day 147/95/14 to Day 147/95/18. All of the other witnesses who saw Kevin McElhinney who were positioned either at the southern end of the eastern Block of Glenfada Park

North, or at Glenfada Park South or inside the entrance to Block1 say that Kevin McElhinney's body was either on the ground or very close to the ground when he entered Block1.

iii) Jim Norris accurately describes that Kevin McElhinney's left side was covered in blood AN20.9 paragraph 13.

iv) Jim Norris has inaccurately recalled Kevin McElhinney's clothing. He wore a brown suit jacket and trousers although his pullover was brown and green. It may be that where the witness has described a "white collared shirt" that he has confused this with the white handkerchief around Kevin McElhinney's neck AN20.9 paragraph 13, D0215.

v) Jim Norris accurately recalls that Liam Mailey was present in the "lobby" of Block1 when Kevin McElhinney entered the Rossville Flats AN20.10 paragraphs 14 to 15.

vi) In his 1972 account, the witness described the scene differently:

> "When I reached the bottom stair, I saw a camera man and just at that on (sic) boy aged between 16-20 years fell in the doorway, he was bleeding profusely and in a matter of seconds the ground was covered in blood. The cameraman and myself carried the injured man upstairs for shelter..." (emphasis added) AN20.19

vii) It is therefore submitted that the witness' 1972 is more accurate and the witness was honestly mistaken when he said that the youth "crashed" through the doorway of Block1.

18.9.5. Conclusions

It is therefore submitted that the material relied upon does not provide evidence of "missing casualties" as defined by those representing the soldiers.

18.10 Conclusions

18.10.1 Shortly after 4.15 on the 30 January 1972, a convoy of soldiers from Support Company entered the Bogside. Soldiers P, U and 017 of Mortar Platoon debussed to the western side of Rossville Street, while the rest of Mortar Platoon debussed to the eastern side. Soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon and Composite Platoon also debussed on the western side of Rossville Street.

18.10.2 Soldier P, along with Soldier 017 positioned himself on the eastern side of Rossville Street while Soldier U positioned himself at the northwest gable end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. Anti-Tank Platoon, who had taken up the rear of the convoy, leapfrogged Composite Platoon and, having spoken with Soldiers P and 017 positioned themselves behind the Kells Walk Wall.

18.10.3 Meanwhile civilians who had run away from the soldiers as they de-bussed stopped behind the Rubble Barricade on Rossville Street to watch events unfold.

18.10.4 Within minutes of debussing Soldier P fired two shots from the hip over the Rubble Barricade, these shots did not result in any casualties. Soldier P's shooting was followed by shooting from soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon. The first civilian killed behind the Rubble Barricade was Michael Kelly shot by Soldier F. Meanwhile on the other side of Rossville Street, Soldier U fired live rounds over the eastern side of the Barricade.

18.10.5 Michael Kelly's body was removed by civilians from the Rubble Barricade and shortly thereafter Hugh Gilmore, Michael McDaid, John Young and William Nash were shot and killed. On the evidence before this Tribunal Soldier U is the prime suspect for having murdered Hugh Gilmore, while Soldier P is the prime suspect for having murdered John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash. However, Soldiers J and H, in particular must also be considered suspects for the murder of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash.

18.10.6 What is clear is that the soldiers shooting from Rossville Street acted in concert and all, including Soldier G and Soldier E, bear criminal responsibility for the murder of the men shot and killed behind the Rubble Barricade.

18.10.7 After Hugh Gilmore, shot and fatally wounded, had made it to the gable end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats and Michael Kelly's body had been removed from the Rubble Barricade, the intensity of the firing was such that civilians were unable to reach the bodies of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash. Anti-Tank Platoon then advanced forward of the Kells Walk Wall and a number, including Soldiers E, F, G, H, J, Dave Longstaff and Lieutenant 119 went into Glenfada Park North.

18.10.8 Meanwhile Alex Nash made his way out onto the Rubble Barricade to the body of his son William Nash. He sought help from the soldiers and was shot and wounded by a solider as he held his dying son.

18.10.9 Composite Platoon advanced up Rossville Street and positioned themselves at the Kells Walk Wall and on the pram-ramp at Kells Walk. One of soldiers K, L and M, acting in concert, shot and killed Kevin McElhinney as he tried to crawl to the safety of the entrance of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

18.10.10 When the firing had stopped and soldiers from Support Company had killed, not just those on the Barricade, but also their victims in Glenfada Park, Abbey Park and behind the Rossville Flats, soldiers from Mortar Platoon drove up to the Rubble Barricade and threw the bodies of Michael McDaid, John Young and William Nash into the back of an APC. They did so in a callous way and their conduct betrayed their contempt for those their colleagues had murdered.

18.10.11 The Tribunal has seen the evidence from video footage and photographs and heard the evidence of journalists, photographers, priests, civilians and soldiers about the shooting over the Rubble Barricade and the circumstances in which these 6 young men lost their lives.

18.10.12 It is submitted that the evidence clearly and indisputably establishes the following:

(i) Michael Kelly, Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash were shot and killed by soldiers of Support Company, 1 Para.

(ii) They were shot and killed in circumstances which were unjustified.

(iii) None of the deceased was armed when shot and killed and no action taken by any of the deceased justified the use of lethal force by soldiers who fired down Rossville Street.

(iv) No action taken by any of the deceased either posed a threat, or could have been perceived as posing a threat, to the soldiers.

(v) When the vehicles and soldiers of Support Company appeared on Rossville Street they did not come under fire. Soldiers opened fire without justification and not as a result of having been fired on first.

(vi) The soldiers shot deliberately into an unarmed crowd, killing 6 young men.

(vii) There were no civilian gunmen, no nail bombers and no petrol bombers behind the Rubble Barricade on Bloody Sunday.

(viii) There was no action by any member of the crowd behind the Rubble Barricade which either posed a threat, or could have been perceived as posing a threat such as to justify the use of lethal force.

(ix) No action taken by any person behind the Rubble Barricade justified the use of lethal force by soldiers.

(x) Nobody was killed behind the Rubble Barricade other than, Michael Kelly, Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Kevin McElhinney, all of whom were murdered by soldiers from Support Company of the Parachute Regiment.

18.10.13 Role & Responsibility of Soldiers of 1 Para

Based on the foregoing examination of the evidence, the role and responsibility of the individual soldiers involved in Sector 3 can be summarised as follows.

18.10.13.1 Corporal P

(i) Corporal P cocked his rifle either prior to getting into his vehicle, prior to debussing, or immediately on debussing in circumstances which were in breach of the Yellow Card.

(ii) Given that he was a Corporal his actions encouraged men less senior than him to do likewise.

(iii) His action in cocking his rifle in breach of the Yellow Card demonstrated a willingness to use lethal force on the slightest pretext.

(iv) Soldier P fired 2 live rounds from the hip over the Rubble Barricade, where large numbers of unarmed civilians were gathered in circumstances which were wholly unjustified.

(v) Soldier P probably shot one or more of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash. He did so without any justification.

(vi) In order to cover up the murder of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash he fabricated accounts of nail bombers and gunmen.

(vii) He fired a total of 11 shots on Bloody Sunday and had access to ammunition above the amount issued to him.

(viii) He fired shots over the heads of the crowd, in breach of the Yellow Card, in circumstances in which there was no threat to his life or the lives of his colleagues and in circumstances where no threat of any kind was posed to soldiers.

(ix) Soldier P as the person who probably fired the fatal shots and the person who commenced firing over the Rubble Barricade bears a personal responsibility for the murder of John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash.

(x) He covered up his own criminal behaviour and that of soldiers in Anti-Tank Platoon by fabricating accounts of gunmen and nail bombers. He also failed to account for the shooting of live rounds by soldiers in Anti-Tank Platoon who he witnessed firing live rounds in circumstances which were unjustified and murdering civilians behind the Rubble Barricade, in particular Michael Kelly.

18.10.13.2 Soldier 017

(i) Soldier 017 did not fire any live rounds.

(ii) He fired his rubber bullet gun indiscriminately into a fleeing crowd on debussing.

(iii) Soldier 017 invented false accounts of witnessing civilian gunmen and hearing gunfire in order to justify the shootings of others.

(iv) Soldier 017 was involved in collusion with Soldier P and/or the RMP and invented an account of a nail bomber in order to justify Soldier P's use of lethal force and in particular Soldier P's firing from the hip.

(v) He covered up the criminal conduct of Soldier P and soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon by inventing accounts of gunmen and nail bombers and denying that he had seen these soldiers' fire live rounds without justification.

18.10.13.3 Soldier U

(i) Soldier U fabricated accounts of automatic fire, pistol fire, and low velocity fire in order to justify his own use and his colleagues' use of lethal force.

(ii) Soldier U fabricated an account of seeing a man with a pistol operating in the Rossville Flats Courtyard in order to justify his colleagues' use of lethal force in that area.

(iii) Soldier U unlawfully assaulted and arrested James Charles Doherty.

(iv) Soldier U fired at least 1 live round over the Rubble Barricade, where significant numbers of unarmed civilians were gathered in circumstances which were wholly unjustified.

(v) Soldier U most probably shot Hugh Gilmore. He did so without any justification.

(vi) In order to cover up the murder of Hugh Gilmore he fabricated accounts of a pistol man operating at the Rubble Barricade. This account is not corroborated by any of his colleagues who were present as the potential targets of this gunman.

(vii) The original account as provided by Soldier 015 accurately reflects the circumstances in which Private U discharged his weapon.

(viii) In order to cover up the murder of William Nash and the wounding of Alex Nash he fabricated accounts of a pistol man operating and firing from the entrance to Block1.

(ix) Soldier U failed to explain how he did not see Kevin McElhinney being murdered directly south of his position.

(x) Soldier U failed to explain how he was unaware of the shooting by Soldiers C and D from the Kells Walk pram ramp at a time when attempts were being made to place the deceased and injured into ambulances directly south of his position.

(xi) Despite the fact he was in close proximity he failed to explain how he did not see the argument between Father Mulvey and Lieutenant N concerning the denial of spiritual aid to John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash.

18.10.13.4 Lieutenant 119

(i) Lieutenant 119 failed to take any or any adequate steps to acquire sufficient understanding of the conditions in Derry and in the Bogside in particular, before the launch of the arrest operation.

(ii) He failed to take any or any adequate steps to obtain clear guidance and instructions about: the purpose of the operation to be undertaken by his battalion; his own role and that of his platoon; any restrictions and constraints imposed on the operation, concerning in particular the geographical limits of their deployment, the use of their firearms and their contingency plans in the event of gunfire of any kind; and the likelihood of coming under fire.

(iii) He failed to give any or adequate briefing to the members of his platoon concerning these matters and, if anything, permitted or encouraged them to believe that: they were likely to come under sniper fire; that they ought to adopt aggressive tactics; that they ought to cock their rifles before debussing; and, that they were free to respond to any real or perceived threat by firing at civilians rather than disengaging in an orderly fashion.

(iv) In briefing his platoon Lieutenant 119 failed to disabuse members of his Platoon of the notion that: they were being sent to Derry to break the No-Go areas or that they were being sent to Derry to teach 8 Brigade a lesson.

(v) Prior to debussing Lieutenant 119 cocked his own rifle in contravention of the Yellow Card, thereby encouraging, soldiers in his Pig to do likewise.

(vi) The consequences of the failures detailed above was that mostly young, relatively inexperienced, overly-aggressive members of his platoon deployed in an unfamiliar, unfriendly environment in a heightened state of tension and under a misapprehension about the nature of the threat facing them. They did so in the belief that it was their role and function to teach the Bogsiders and 8 Brigade a lesson, significant numbers of them debussed with their rifles cocked and ready to use lethal force on the slightest pretext.

(vii) Upon debussing Lieutenant 119, as Platoon Commander, failed to exercise any supervision, command or control over Anti-Tank Platoon. Moreover he failed to exercise supervision, command and control at any material time, even when it became apparent that they were shooting unarmed civilians.

(viii) Lieutenant 119 failed to take any steps to organise his men to conduct an arrest operation on Rossville Street. In fact, contrary to their stated objective, Anti-Tank Platoon did not involve themselves in the arrest of a single person on Rossville Street. The arrests which they carried out later in Glenfada Park North were unlawful.

(ix) While positioned at the Kells Walk Wall Lieutenant 119 watched as members of his platoon fired live rounds over the Rubble Barricade at unarmed civilians and failed to take any steps to stop them.

(x) Once Michael Kelly, John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore had been murdered he either encouraged or permitted members of his Platoon to advance down Rossville Street. The advance involved all of those who had been positioned behind the Kells Walk Wall, and many, if not all went into Glenfada Park North.

(xi) Following the shootings, he covered up his and his men's criminal behaviour by inventing stories of gunmen while pretending not to have noticed any shooting by the men of his Platoon who had fired over the Rubble Barricade while standing and kneeling beside him.

(xii) As leader of the platoon whose members shot dead Michael Kelly, and also possibly John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore, Lieutenant 119 bears a personal responsibility for their murder.

18.10.13.5 Soldier J

(i) Soldier J may have shot one or more of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid or William Nash. The shots he fired were without any justification.

(ii) Soldier J cocked his rifle in contravention of the Yellow Card.

(iii) In order to cover up his involvement in unjustified use of lethal force and murder he fabricated accounts of nail bombers.

(iv) He also invented accounts of nail bombers and gunmen in order to justify the use of lethal force by other members of his Platoon.

(v) He falsely denied witnessing other members of his Platoon shooting unarmed civilians.

(vi) He also invented an account of gunfire coming from a window in the Rossville Flats in order to support Soldier F and Soldier G's account of firing at such a gunman.

(vii) Soldier J lied in an attempt to justify his own involvement in the use of unjustified lethal force, and probably murder and to cover up the criminal conduct of other members of his Platoon and also the conduct of Soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon..

18.10.13.6 Soldier H

(i) Soldier H fired at least 22 shots. His account of how he came to fire those shots was completely false.

(ii) It is impossible to know whether he was responsible for any of the casualties behind the Rubble Barricade but given that he fired 22 shots he is likely to have been personally responsible for shooting one or more of the civilians shot and killed behind the Rubble Barricade.

(iii) In order to cover up his involvement in unjustified use of lethal force and murder he fabricated accounts of gunmen, nail bombers and acid bombers.

(iv) He also invented accounts of nail bombers and gunmen in order to justify the use of lethal force by other members of his Platoon.

(v) He falsely denied witnessing other members of his Platoon shooting unarmed civilians.

(vi) He invented an account of gunfire coming from a window in the Rossville Flats in order to support Soldier F and Soldier G's account of firing at such a gunman.

(vii) Soldier H lied in an attempt to justify his own involvement in the use of unjustified lethal force, and probably murder and to cover up the criminal conduct of other members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.7 Soldier E

(i) Soldier E may have shot Hugh Gilmore. The shots he fired were without any justification.

(ii) In order to cover up his involvement in unjustified use of lethal force and murder he fabricated accounts of nail bombers, petrol bombers, gunmen and a man with a machine-gun.

(iii) He invented accounts of nail bombers, petrol bombers and gunmen in order to justify the use of lethal force by other members of his Platoon.

(iv) He falsely denied witnessing other members of his Platoon shooting unarmed civilians.

(v) He invented an account of gunfire coming from a window in the Rossville Flats in order to support Soldier G's account of firing at such a gunman.

(vi) Soldier E lied in an attempt to justify his own involvement in the use of unjustified lethal force, and probably murder and to cover up the criminal conduct of other members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.8 Lance Corporal F

(i) Soldier F cocked his weapon in breach of the Yellow Card, when there was no justification for doing so.

(ii) Soldier F murdered Michael Kelly at the Rubble Barricade. The shot that killed Michael Kelly was wholly without justification.

(iii) He acted in concert with other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise in which Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Michael Kelly were murdered.

(iv) Contrary to his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry, he fired more than one shot over the Rubble Barricade. He may thus be responsible for killing one of those behind the Rubble Barricade, in addition to Michael Kelly.

(v) He invented accounts of civilians with weapons and civilians with nail bombs. He further invented accounts of seeing and hearing a nail bomb explode, to justify his unlawful conduct and the unlawful conduct of his colleagues.

(vi) He invented accounts of coming under fire in Rossville Street.

(vii) He invented accounts of coming under fire from Rossville Flats.

(viii) Soldier F fired unjustified shots at a window in Rossville Flats.

(ix) He lied in his statements and on oath to justify his conduct and that of his colleagues in order to cover up the use of lethal force by himself and his colleagues.

(x) He lied about the locations where he fired shots in order to cover up his activity on Bloody Sunday.

(xi) He gave a false account of the number of rounds he discharged in order to cover up his activity on Bloody Sunday.

18.10.13.9 Soldier G

(i) Soldier G fired at least 6 live rounds on Bloody Sunday. The circumstances in which he fired live rounds were wholly unjustified.

(ii) In order to cover up his involvement in unjustified use of lethal force and murder he fabricated accounts of gunmen and a man with a machine-gun.

(iii) He invented accounts of gunmen in order to justify the use of lethal force by other members of his Platoon.

(iv) He falsely denied witnessing other members of his Platoon shooting unarmed civilians.

(v) Soldier G lied in an attempt to justify his own involvement in the use of unjustified lethal force and probably murder and to cover up the criminal conduct of other members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.10 Soldier 147

(i) Soldier 147 claimed to have fired no live rounds.

(ii) Soldier 147 also claims not to have been at or near the Kells Walk Wall.

(iii) However, he made up false accounts of hearing civilian gunfire, automatic fire and explosions in order to justify the shootings of others.

(iv) In particular he made a false statement purporting to support Lance Corporal F.

(v) He falsely denied witnessing soldiers shooting and killing unarmed civilians.

(vi) He covered up for the criminal conduct of others by fabricating accounts of civilian gunfire while falsely denying that he witnessed any improper shooting by members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.11 Soldier 036

(i) Soldier 036 claimed to have fired no live rounds.

(ii) In 1972 Soldier 036 made up false accounts of hearing civilian gunfire in order to justify the shootings of others, although he now acknowledges that there were no "Irish gunmen".

(iii) In particular he made a false statement purporting to support Lance Corporal F and Soldier G.

(iv) He falsely denied witnessing soldiers shooting and killing unarmed civilians thus covering up for the criminal conduct of soldiers from his Platoon and Soldiers P and U from Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.12 Soldier 018

(i) Soldier 018 claims to have fired no live rounds.

(ii) Soldier 018 made up false accounts of hearing civilian gunfire and seeing civilian gunmen in order to justify the shootings of others.

(iii) In particular he made a false statement purporting to support Lance Corporal F and Soldier G.

(iv) He falsely denied witnessing soldiers shooting and killing unarmed civilians.

(v) He covered up for the criminal conduct of others by fabricating accounts of civilian gunfire while falsely denying that he witnessed any improper shooting by members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.13 INQ 1581

(i) INQ 1581 claims to have fired no live rounds.

(ii) INQ 1581 entered the Bogside, not with the objective of carrying out an arrest operation but rather with the objective of breaking the 'No-Go' areas.

(iii) He falsely claimed to have heard civilian gunfire in order to justify the shootings of others.

(iv) He falsely denied witnessing soldiers shooting and killing unarmed civilians.

(v) He covered up for the criminal conduct of others by fabricating accounts of civilian gunfire while falsely denying that he witnessed any improper shooting by members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.14 Dave Longstaff

(i) Dave Longstaff claims to have fired a live round on Bloody Sunday, it is questionable whether he is telling the truth about either the fact of the firing of this round, or if fired, the circumstances in which it was fired.

(ii) He falsely denied witnessing soldiers shooting and killing unarmed civilians.

(iii) He covered up for the criminal conduct of others by falsely denying that he witnessed any improper shooting by members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.15 INQ 1237

(i) INQ 1237 claims not to have fired live rounds on Bloody Sunday.

(ii) He falsely claimed to have seen petrol bombs in order to justify the shootings of others.

(iii) He falsely denied witnessing soldiers shooting and killing unarmed civilians, although he acknowledged that he saw nothing to justify the use of lethal force over the Rubble Barricade.

(iv) He covered up for the criminal conduct of others by fabricating accounts of petrol bombs while falsely denying that he witnessed any improper shooting by members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

18.10.13.16 INQ 635

(i) INQ 635 denies firing over the Rubble barricade, although there is an allegation that he did fire from Kells Walk Wall over the Rubble Barricade.

(ii) He falsely claimed to have heard civilian gunfire and seen civilian gunmen in order to justify the shootings of others.

(iii) He falsely denied witnessing soldiers killing unarmed civilians, although he acknowledged that he saw soldiers shooting over the Rubble Barricade in circumstances where there was nothing to justify the use of lethal force over the Rubble Barricade.

(iv) He covered up for the criminal conduct of others by fabricating accounts of civilian gunmen while falsely denying that he witnessed any improper shooting by members of his Platoon and soldiers P and U of Mortar Platoon.

(v) He lied about the circumstances in which he conducted arrests and knowingly made false statements to police in order to ground unlawful arrests.

18.10.13.17 Captain 200

Although primarily concerned with the events which occurred at Sector 2 his overall role in respect of what happened in Sector 3 cannot be ignored. As the Officer in Charge of Composite Platoon he had overall responsibility for the actions of his men and the standards of discipline that they demonstrated during the course of the afternoon. In particular it is clear that:

(i) Captain 200 was a relatively inexperienced officer, who had been offered a command which in the prevailing circumstances had fallen outside the scope of his true experience and abilities.

(ii) Captain 200 failed to take any or any adequate steps to acquire sufficient understanding of the conditions in Derry and in the Bogside in particular, before the launch of the arrest operation.

(iii) Captain 200 failed to take any or any adequate steps to obtain clear guidance and instructions about: the purpose of the operation to be undertaken by his battalion; his own role and that of his platoon; any constraints imposed on the operation, concerning in particular the geographical limits of their deployment, the use of their firearms and their contingency plans in the event of gunfire of any kind; and the likelihood of coming under fire.

(iv) Captain 200 failed to give any or adequate briefing to the members of his platoon concerning these matters and, if anything, permitted or encouraged them to believe that: they were likely to come under sniper fire; that they ought to adopt aggressive tactics; that they were free to respond to any real or perceived threat by firing at civilians rather than disengaging in an orderly fashion.

(v) In briefing his platoon Captain 200 failed to disabuse members of his Platoon of the notion that: they were being sent to Derry to break the No-Go areas or that they were being sent to Derry to teach 8 Brigade a lesson. Rather, he deliberately hyped up his men and added to their lack of understanding by offering a bottle of whiskey for the arrest of Bernadette Devlin MP.

(vi) The witness failed to provide clear instructions to members of his platoon in respect of their objectives when entering the Bogside area. He did not expect 1Para to go beyond the junction of William Street / Little James Street as evidenced by the need for him to receive orders from Major Loden in respect of how he should deploy his men. He demonstrated the uncertainties of his command by abandoning his men in Rossville Street and approaching Major Loden with a view to obtaining some guidance in respect of their deployment and use.

(vii) This officer failed to provide effective control in respect of the movement and activities of a number of soldiers under his command that day.

(viii) This officer was prepared to offer a dishonest explanation in order to justify the members of Composite Platoon firing a number of shots. For this reason he provided an untruthful account of what took place during a Thames Television interview. He provided an untruthful account to Royal Military Police and ultimately supplied an untruthful account to the Treasury Solicitor.

(ix) The witness was less than frank during his evidence before Lord Widgery and he provided misleading and inaccurate evidence which was designed to conceal the criminal activities of soldiers under his command.

(x) The witness's failure to observe any of the shots fired by K, L and M provides a significant pointer to the unreliability of the evidence which he has provided before this Inquiry.

(xi) The witness's failure to reprimand or record the identity of a soldier whom he observed discharge a rubber bullet weapon at virtually point blank range into the rear of a APC indicates a standard of leadership and behaviour which falls remarkably short of both the legal and military imperatives of the period.

(xii) The witness failed to either adopt or recommend any disciplinary action in respect of the unlawful activities of soldiers who were at all material times under his command. By failing to conduct a proper investigation into the discharge of a weapon which in itself did not comply with the requirements of the Yellow Card the witness was providing a tacit endorsement for this type of lawless and unprofessional behaviour.

(xiii) This witness has presented a version of event, more consistent with the objective of exonerating soldiers under his command than with the requirement to be forthright and truthful with this Inquiry.

(xiv) As leader of a platoon whose members shot dead Kevin McElhinney, Captain 200 bears a personal responsibility for his murder.

18.10.13.18 Sergeant 106

(i) This witness in providing evidence before this Inquiry has been guided by the overall objective of protecting members of Composite Platoon who had behaved in an unlawful and reckless fashion. His alleged failure to observe members of Composite Platoon discharging their weapons or to see civilians unlawfully assaulted or otherwise subjected to unnecessary and violent behaviour is consistent only with a shared intent to obscure rather than highlight the truth of that day.

(ii) Having regard to the proximity of his position to the actions and activities of colleagues which provoked the concerns of both Captain 200 and Major Loden, it seems remarkable that this witness failed to make any observation which gave him cause for equal concern.

(iii) This witness' testimony is remarkable more for what he failed to see rather than what he actually saw.

18.10.13.19 Sergeant INQ 1318

(i) Notwithstanding his presence within Sector 3 whilst a considerable amount of firing was taking place he denied seeing soldiers discharging their weapons.

(ii) The approach adopted represents a determined and concerted attempt to conceal the unlawful activities upon which his colleagues were undoubtedly engaged while he remained present in this area.

18.10.13.20 Corporal INQ 739

(i) Recalled that Colonel Wilford and Captain 200 sought to motivate the men engaged in the arrest operation by offering a bottle of whiskey to whoever arrested Bernadette Devlin MP.

(ii) He claimed not to observe any of the events or incidents in Sector 3 which led to the death or injury of civilians in this area but falsely alleged that he heard AK47 gunfire.

(iii) The approach adopted represents a determined and concerted attempt to conceal the unlawful activities upon which his colleagues were undoubtedly engaged while he remained present in this area.

18.10.13.21 Private 203

(i) This former UDA/UFF commander claimed not to have observed any event which would imply any degree of criticism of a colleague or member of Composite Platoon.

(ii) However, he invented a false account of hearing civilian gunfire in order to justify the shootings by others.

18.10.13.22 Private INQ 24

(i) Despite being in close proximity to Captain 200, he falsely denied that he saw or heard any Paras firing.

(ii) The approach adopted represents a determined and concerted attempt to conceal the unlawful activities upon which his colleagues were undoubtedly engaged while he remained present in this area.

18.10.13.23 Private INQ 391

(i) Invented a false account of hearing Armalite rifle fire and bombs exploding in order to justify the shootings by others.

(ii) The approach adopted represents a determined and concerted attempt to conceal the unlawful activities upon which his colleagues were undoubtedly engaged while he remained present in this area.

18.10.13.24 Lance Corporal 229

(i) Withheld evidence in 1972 in relation to Private L's shot(s) fired in the derelict building in contravention of the Yellow Card.

FS1-2167

(ii) Tortured defenceless prisoners then lied about this to the RMP and made false declarations on his arrest forms.

18.10.13.25 Colour Sergeant INQ147

(i) He covered up the criminal conduct of members of his Platoon by suggesting that he heard civilian fire, denying he was aware of members of his platoon and suggesting that Major Loden had good control of his men.

18.10.13.26 Colour Sergeant 002

(i) Upon taking position at the low wall at Kells Walk, Colour Sergeant 002 as commander of Call Sign 71 Alpha, failed to exercise any supervision, command or control of his subordinates even when it became clear they were shooting at an unarmed civilian(s).

(ii) He ordered Soldiers L and M to fire at Kevin McElhinney in circumstances that were wholly unjustified.

(iii) He failed to take any steps to prevent Soldier K from opening fire.

(iv) Following the murder of Kevin McElhinney and the wounding of Mary Smith, he covered up his and his men's criminal behaviour by inventing stories of gunmen and heavy rioting in Rossville Street.

(v) As leader of the half platoon, Call Sign 71 Alpha, whose members shot dead Kevin McElhinney, Colour Sergeant 002 bears a personal responsibility for murdering Kevin McElhinney and wounding Mary Smith.

18.10.13.27 Sergeant K

(i) He covered up the unlawful wounding of Mary Smith by Corporal 039.

(ii) Sergeant K probably fired the fatal shot which killed Kevin McElhinney. He did so without any justification.

(iii) He failed to exercise any supervision or control over his subordinates even though he was in a position to witness the shooting by others when it was wholly apparent that they were shooting at Kevin McElhinney.

(iv) Along with Soldiers L and M he fired at Kevin McElhinney without any justification.

(v) In order to cover up his own murder of Kevin McElhinney and the unlawful shooting by other members of his Platoon, he fabricated accounts of hostile civilian activity.

(vi) By applying the safety catch to his weapon immediately after firing his 1 round he acknowledged in his own mind his confidence that the shot struck its target.

(vii) He gave deliberately misleading information to this Tribunal in respect of the dimensions of a weapon that he was intimately familiar with in an attempt to bolster a fabricated exculpatory account.

18.10.13.28 Private L

(i) Private L fired at least 4 shots.

(ii) He cocked his weapon in contravention of the Yellow Card.

(iii) He fired at least 1 shot in order to terrify a prisoner in contravention of the Yellow Card. He provided a false account of this to the RMP, Treasury Solicitor, the Widgery Tribunal and to this Tribunal.

(iv) He covered up the unlawful wounding of Mary Smith by Corporal 039.

(v) Along with Soldiers K and M he fired at Kevin McElhinney without any justification.

(vi) In order to cover up his own involvement in the murder of Kevin McElhinney and the unlawful shooting by other members of his Platoon, he fabricated accounts of hostile civilian activity.

(vii) It is impossible to know where or at what Private L fired his 4th shot.

18.10.13.29 Private M

(i) Soldier M fired at least 2 shots.

(ii) He covered up the unlawful wounding of Mary Smith by Corporal 039.

(iii) Along with Soldiers K and L he fired at Kevin McElhinney without any justification.

(iv) In order to cover up his own involvement in the murder of Kevin McElhinney and the unlawful shooting by other members of his Platoon, he fabricated accounts of hostile civilian activity including firing from snipers, automatic fire, nail and petrol bombing.

18.10.13.30 Lance Corporal 10

(i) He made up false accounts of hearing machinegun fire in order to justify the shootings by others.

(ii) He covered up the unlawful wounding of Mary Smith by Corporal 039.

(iii) He saw no civilian with a weapon when two soldiers on either side of him opened fire from the low wall at Kells Walk.

(iv) He failed to exercise any supervision or control over his subordinates even though he was in a position to witness the shooting by others when it was wholly apparent that they were shooting at Kevin McElhinney.

18.10.13.31 Sergeant 014

(i) He fabricated accounts of nail and petrol bombs exploding to attempt to justify the criminal behaviour of others.

(ii) He made up false accounts of hearing and seeing automatic fire in order to justify the shootings by others.

(iii) He covered up the unlawful wounding of Mary Smith by Corporal 039.

(iv) He invented an account of a man trailing a weapon in order to justify the murder of Kevin McElhinney.

(v) He failed to exercise any supervision or control over his subordinates even though he was in a position to witness the shooting by others when it was wholly apparent that they were shooting at Kevin McElhinney.

18.10.13.32 Private 032

(i) Private 032 fabricated accounts of automatic fire, petrol bombs and acid bombs in an attempt to justify the criminal behaviour of others.

(ii) He covered up the unlawful wounding of Mary Smith by Corporal 039.

(iii) He was prepared to admit that Colonel Wilford was present at the low wall at Kells Walk and that Colonel Wilford informed those present if anyone was going to fire it would be Sergeant K.

(iv) He invented an account of a man trailing a rifle in order to justify the murder of Kevin McElhinney.

(v) He made up an account of a pistol man firing from the southern end of Block1 in order to justify the shooting of others.

18.10.13.33 Sergeant 035

(i) Sergeant 035 covered up the unlawful wounding of Mary Smith by Corporal 039.

(ii) He invented an account of two men dragging rifles in order to justify the murder of Kevin McElhinney

(iii) He failed to exercise any supervision or control over his subordinates even though he was in a position to witness the shooting by others when it was wholly apparent that they were shooting at Kevin McElhinney.

18.10.13.34 Corporal 39

(i) He fabricated an account of missiles being thrown from 2 Kells Walk in order to justify his unlawful discharge of a rubber bullet and the wounding of Mary Smith.

(ii) He invented an account of coming under high and low velocity fire and seeing muzzle flashes from the doorway of Block1 in order to justify the use of lethal force by colleagues.

(iii) He also invented an account of two men carrying a Thompson and the other trailing a weapon in order to justify the murder of Kevin McElhinney

(iv) He failed to exercise any supervision or control over his subordinates even though he was in a position to witness the shooting by others when it was wholly apparent that they were shooting at Kevin McElhinney.

18.10.13.35 Private INQ127

(i) Private INQ127 does not appear to have fired any shots.

(ii) Colour Sergeant 002 said he was positioned at the low wall at Kells Walk. He thinks a soldier next to him fired a shot. He does not mention that he saw a weapon.

18.10.13.36 Private C

(i) Private C cocked his weapon in contravention of the Yellow Card.

(ii) He admits to firing 5 shots in Sector 3. These shots were fired at a late stage and without any justification.

(iii) In order to cover up his own use of unlawful lethal force he fabricated accounts of witnessing gunmen, petrol bombs and hearing automatic fire.

(iv) He also lied in order to justify unlawful firing by Lance Corporal D.

18.10.13.37 Lance Corporal D

(i) Lance Corporal D admits to firing 2 shots in Sector 3. These shots were fired at a late stage and without any justification.

(ii) In order to cover up his own use of unlawful lethal force he fabricated accounts of witnessing a gunman and hearing low velocity / pistol shots.

(iii) He failed to exercise any supervision or control over his subordinate, Private C, even though he was in position to witness him shooting.

(iv) He also lied to in order to justify unlawful firing by Private C.

18.10.13.38 Private 024

(i) He fabricated an account of seeing a man with a nail bomb on the Barricade in order to justify the criminal conduct of his colleagues.

(ii) He invented an account of seeing a pistol man and hearing gunfire from a window in the Rossville Flats in order to justify the use of lethal force by Private C.

18.10.13.39 Private INQ405

(i) He invented an account of hearing intense and sustained Armalite rifle and AK47 gunfire in order to justify the use of lethal force by his colleagues.

18.10.14 Concluding Section

Finally, with the exception of Soldier 027, all of the soldiers of 1 Para identified in this Sector perverted the course of justice, individually and collectively, in relation to the events of Bloody Sunday by concealing the criminal behaviour of their colleagues in Support Company and ensuring that they would evade prosecution for their crimes. Those who gave dishonest evidence on oath also committed perjury.

FS-1-2175

SECTORS 3 & 4 – SOLDIERS' EVIDENCE
TABLE 1 – DEPLOYMENT OF ANTI TANK PLATOON

SOLDIER	ROLE	PLACE IN PIG	MOVEMENT AFTER DEBUSSING	ARRESTS
Lt 119	CO	Front Passenger P1	Low wall at Kells Walk, then into GFPN after G,F,E,H,& J	Yes
INQ 1581	Pig Driver	Driver P1	Parked the pig in Rossville Street and the men deployed. Remained in the pig until 2 shots were fired from Block 1. Then remained the driver's door of the pig. Cannot remember withdrawing.	No
Private G	Not Specified / Internal Security	Rear P2	Debussed at Little James Street side of the junction at Aggro Corner. Took cover at an old building on West side of Rossville Street. (SMG) Fire was directed, probably from the Rossville Flats. G then advanced to the low wall at Kells Walk. G could not see any targets on the Rubble Barricade. Then moved forward from the low wall with L/Cpl F to NE corner of GFPN and engaged a target at the parallel (NW) entrance to GFPN. G then entered GFPN first and, standing at a parked car, saw two men at the opposite entrance carrying short M-1 type rifles. G opened fire. F also fired. Deployed along west side of GFPN and ran down the alley past the two bodies at the South end of GFPN. He then fired into Abbey Park. G assisted in conveying the arrested civilians to Columbcille Court and then reverted to his Pig. He redeployed from the pig and fired a further shot at a gunman in Block 1.	Yes. Patrick Joseph Norris. Christopher Doherty; John Noel Devine.
L/Cpl F	Not Specified / Internal Security	Rear P2	Deployed from the pig near junction of Rossville Street with G towards Rossville Flats. Took cover at a wall at west side of Rossville Street and then took position at the low wall at Kells Walk. Bombs thrown from direction of Rubble Barricade. Fired at a nail bomber. Pursued 3 men into Glenfada Park behind G. Opened fire with G at men inside car park. Moved to the gable wall and involved in arrests. Fired again in front of Block 2. Left Glenfada Park and returned to pig which had now come further down Rossville Street. Fired further rounds at targets in Block 1.[1]	Yes. Eugene Thomas Bradley; Patrick Martin Norris; Terence O'Keefe; Michael McCallion
Private H	Not Specified / Internal Security	Rear P1 according to most of 1972 evidence	Debussed near Columbcille Court on west side of Rossville Street and put on gasmask. Then to low wall at Kells Walk and took cover. Gunfire from Rubble Barricade from two gunmen with short rifles or machineguns. Followed F and G towards Glenfada Park and came under nail bomb attack but did not explode. Advanced into Glenfada Park and took position at rear of a parked car at NE entrance inside the courtyard. Saw group of youths and opened fire on one with a nail bomb hitting him. Opened fire on another youth who tried to throw the same nail bomb hitting him. Remained at the car to cover F and G who advanced southwards. Opened fire on a gunman at 57 Glenfada Park toilet window until ceasefire order and then deployed with the remainder of his platoon back to Rossville Street. Remained inside pig in Rossville Street.	No

[1] Note that this summary of Lance Corporal F's evidence is not based on that account in his 1st RMP statement which was substantially changed in his further statements and evidence to Widgery.

SOLDIER	ROLE	PLACE IN PIG	MOVEMENT AFTER DEBUSSING	ARRESTS
Corporal E	Brick NCO	Rear P2	Debussed at vacant ground in William Street, received briefing from 119 at 1st building on west side of Rossville Street, forward to Low Wall at Kells Walk, then into GFPN after G and F, possibly H. Opened fire in GFPN on petrol bomber / nail bomber. Took prisoners and reverted to pig in Rossville Street.	Yes. James Liddy; Barry Liddy; Joseph McColgan; Fergus McAteer
Private 027	Radio Operator	Rear P2	Debussed at west side of Rossville Street and received an order from Captain SA8 to "leap frog" Guinness Force and moved up to the Low Wall at Kells Walk and witnessed shooting incudents. "Cease Fire" order was called. Then advanced into GFPN following behind G,F,E and H. Witnessed further shooting incidents and then withdrew back to Rossville Street after receiving the order to withdraw on the radio.	No
L/ Cpl J	Not specified / Internal Security	Rear P2	Debussed at west side of Rossville Street then advanced to the Low Wall at Kells Walk, then into GFPN after G and F (and presumably after E and H although they are not mentioned). Arrested two prisoners and reverted to pig in Rossville Street.	Yes. Anthony Coll; John Gormley
Private INQ 023	Not specified / Internal Security	Rear P2	No mention of Low Wall at Kells Walk but did proceed to NW end of GFPN. (He probably went into the GFPN carpark). Took prisoners and reverted to pig in Rossville Street.	Yes. George Roberts; James Joseph Kelly
L/ Cpl 036	Pig Driver	Driver	It would appear that L/Cpl 036 did not debuss but stayed in his pig throughout.	No
Private 147	Radio Operator	Behind Front Passenger	Stayed either inside the same pig as L/Cpl 036 or at its rear door depending on which account is correct	No
Private 1237	Briefly radio operator for Major Loden	Rear P2	Was in the pig with F and 027. Unclear about his movements. Remembers a large crowd in front of him throwing missiles and 6-8 members of the Platoon including F, G and J standing in a line opening fire a the crowd. 30-40 shots were fired. 1237 does not think that this occurred at Kells Walk. He then remembers going to his west but is unclear where he went. He returned to the same pig as F,G and J for ammo count which was carried out by CSM 202	Yes. Charles Glenn and George McDermott
Pltn Sgt 1694	Platoon Sgt	Front Passenger P2[2]	We are unclear as there is no surviving statement. Sgt 1694 says that he remained "behind" with Colonel Wilford and Lt 119.However Lt 119 entered GFPN.	Yes. Hugh O'Boyle; Robert Wallace; Myles O'Hagan
L/Cpl 18	Unclear	?	NE end of Kells Walk and took cover. Then followed the rest of the Platoon to the low wall / SE end of Kells Walk . Then advanced to the pram ramp at NE corner of GFPN assisted INQ023 with prisoners and reverted back to Pig.	Yes. Does not specify.

[2] Note that this is only an assumption that the front passenger of the Pig would tend to be the person in command of same.

SOLDIER	ROLE	PLACE IN PIG	MOVEMENT AFTER DEBUSSING	ARRESTS
L/Cpl 1940	Escort Colonel Wilford	?	Seems to entered on foot after having escorted Colonel Wilford and another (senior) Officer to a position from where they could view the riot. Later involved in escorting prisoners to the 4 tonne trucks	Believes he escorted 4-5 prisoners to the 4 tonne trucks used by Guinness Force
Private 635	Escort Major Loden / 236	Pig 1	To the low wall at Kells Walk and then assisted in escorting prisoners to a holding area which may have been Fort George.	Yes. George Irwin, James McNulty and John Anthony Rogers

[3] F only admitted firing at his target, the "nail bomber" on the Rubble Barricade, who is undoubtedly Michael Kelly, in his statement that was given to Colonel Overbury on 19th February 1972.

[4] According to trajectory map attached to RMP statement dated 31st January 1972

H	S end of GFPN near No 59	Nail bomber	Youth aged 18-22 wearing dark trousers & bright coloured sweater / shirt	2	No-one	Yes, possibly in stomach	William McKinney; Joe Mahon; James Wray; Joe Friel; Danny Gillespe
	S end of GFPN near No 59	Nail bomber	Youth aged 18-22 wearing dark blue denim jacket and trousers	1	No-one	Yes in right shoulder / arm	William McKinney; Joe Mahon; James Wray; Joe Friel; Danny Gillespe

J	Rubble Barricade	Nail bomber	Youth	1	No-one	No	William Nash; Michael McDaid; John Young; Alex Nash
	SW end of Block 1	Nail bomber	None	1	No-one	No	Hugh Gilmore
023	West side of Block 1 either at the roof or a window	Gunman (although 023 did not actually see him)	None	1	No-one	"I could not see if my shot hit"	?

[5] F only admitted firing at his target, the pistol man, in his statement that was given to Colonel Overbury on 19th February 1972 at the same time as the admission concerning the nail bomber at the Rubble Barricade.

[6] In F's 1st RMP statement dated 31st January 1972 this was recorded as being F's first target but this account was substantially changed in his statement to Colonel Overbury on 19th February 1972 when F said that these shots were in fact fired after events in Glenfada Park. In his evidence to the Treasury Solicitor and the Widgey Tribunal F broadly maintained the order of targets and firing as set out above.

[7] Bracketed and Italicised shots for Lance Corporal F signify the re-arranged shots and targets relating to him first set out in F's statement to Colonel Overbury on 19th February 1972.

[8] However Private G did not mention this until his Treasury Solicitor statement.

[9] However 018 retracts this in his Eversheds Statement as he was inside the pig when shots were fired at the Rossville Flats.

[10] Captain 028 was the Press Officer of 22 LAD and was attached to 1 Para D Coy on Bloody Sunday. 028 says that the target was on the third floor. F's target in his Treasury Solicitor statement was on the third floor but he changed this to the second floor in his oral evidence.

[11] However 018 retracts this in his Eversheds Statement as he was inside the pig when shots were fired at the Rossville Flats.

TABLE 4 – POSSIBLE ORDER OF SHOTS FIRED
ANTI-TANK PLATOON SOLDIERS EVIDENCE SECTORS 3, 4 & 5

SOLDIER	TOWARDS	SHOTS	REMARKS
F	Rubble Barricade	1	Shot and killed Michael Kelly at the Rubble Barricade. It is generally accepted that he was the first person who was shot in Sector 3.
J	Rubble Barricade	1	Opened fire on the Rubble Barricade at an early stage. Fired at SW end of Rossville Flats later but before entering GFPN. Did not fire in GFPN.
G[1]	NW entrance of GFPN	2	These shots were fired by G before he lead F into GFPN. F makes no mention of them.
	SW Corner of GFPN	3	G fired these shots almost immediately as he entered the GFPN car park from the RHS of a parked car near the NE entrance. F was firing at roughly the same time according to G.
F	Centre of GFPN[2] / SW Corner of GFPN beside No 24	2	F entered GFPN after G. He claims to have fired 2 shots at the same nail bomber. At Widgery F said that it was only himself and G in GFPN at this stage.
E	SW Corner of GFPN	2	E entered GFPN after G and F. He may have shot Patsy O'Donnell given the position of the trajectory and intended target. He might also have shot William McKinney who was shot furthest east at the southern end of GFPN.
H	S end of GFPN near No 59	2	H entered GFPN after G and F. It is unclear if he entered before E but he remembers him being present after he fired. According to his 3rd RMP statement before he fired he saw one of the youths beside his 1st target fall. However in his Eversheds statement he now thinks that he fired first as he cannot remember anyone else fire in GFPN
	S end of GFPN near No 59	1	These shots were fired at a youth who attempted to throw the same nail bomb as H's 1st target.
	Toilet window of No 57 GFPN	19	These shots were fired at a point when Lt 119 had already entered GFPN and examined the bodies at the southern end of the carpark.[3]
F	SW end of Block 2	2	After he fired two shots at the nail bomber in GFPN F opened fire from near the lamp post at the GFPN gable at a pistol man and hit him. It is generally accepted that these shots were fired at Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan and were among the last fired in GFPN.
023	West side of Block 1 (whether at the roof / parapet or window)[4]	1	023 did not fire his shot until he resumed sentry duty at the pig in Rossville Street after the events in GFPN have concluded and he participated in arresting the civilians from the gable wall.
G	West side of Block ; 2nd storey; 3 windows from the end	1	G was told about this gunman by the driver after he had returned from GFPN and sat in the back of the pig in Rossville Street. It appears that he fired this shot at approximately the same time as F's target below.

[1] Key: Emboldened Letters signify firers within Sector 4.
[2] See Lance Corporal F's Trajectory Map for 1st RMP statement 31/1/72.
[3] See Private G's H's 1st, 2nd and 3rd RMP statements.

SOLDIER	TOWARDS	SHOTS	REMARKS
F	Block 1 Rossville Flats. 2nd Floor 3rd window from the end	3	F was told about this gunman after he had returned from GFPN and sat in the back of the pig in Rossville Street. He fired these shots from Sgt 1694's pig.
	Same floor either 2nd or 4th window from the end	3	These shots were fired almost immediately after the above shots and from Sgt 1694's pig also.
	Block 1 Rossville Flats. 8th Floor.	2	This might well have been the last admitted shots fired by Support Company on Bloody Sunday.

[2] G says that he heard a "bang" whilst he was in Glenfada Park North which could have been a gelignite bomb or a nail bomb.
[3] E says that a nail bomb exploded in Glenfada Park North at a time when F,G and H were present.
[4] H says in his Widgery evidence that he heard a explosion which was either a gelignite bomb or nail bomb whilst in Glenfada Park however the explosion did not occur in Glenfada Park.
[5] H says in his 1st RMP statement that whilst in Rossville Street Support Company "were being stoned, nail bombed and acid bombed" however nowhere else in his evidence does he repeat this.
[6] Private 027 has repudiated his statements to the RMP and Tsol in relation to seeing a civilian with a gun on the Barricade and a petrol bomber in Glenfada Park.

SECTORS 2, 3 & 4 – SOLDIERS' EVIDENCE
TABLE 1 – COMPOSITE PLATOON DEPLOYMENT

CALL SIGN 71

SOLDIER	ROLE	BEDFORD LORRY	MOVEMENT AFTER DEBUSSING	ARRESTS
Captain 200	Composite Platoon / Guinness Force Commander	Front passenger seat 1st lorry	Debussed in the lee of buildings on the east side at the north end of Rossville Street. Then ran south to speak to Company Commander's APC in relation to where Major Loden wanted Guinness Force to be. Loden told him to back up the Anti-tank platoon on the west side of Rossville Street near Kells Walk and the Mortar Platoon on the east. Heard automatic fire. Returned and split his force in two. Saw at least 3 members of Anti-tank platoon firing at 2 men on the Rubble Barricade. May briefly have crossed to the west side of Rossville Street depending on which account one reads. Then moved to burnt out vehicle and escorted some women a short distance towards Chamberlain Street. Then returned to Major Loden near the gable end of Block 1 and saw bodies in the rear of a pig. Saw a Para fire a baton round into the rear of another pig. Major Loden and Captain 200 expressed concern about the amount of firing coming from soldiers at Kells Walk. Saw a man that sounds like Alex Nash on the barricade. Told to deploy Call Sign 71 across to the west side of Rossville Street. Crossed again to the west side of Rossville Street at Kells Walk and into a courtyard with his radio operator until he reached the northwest corner of Abbey Park where he saw a body that is probably Gerry McKinney being tended by a Knights of Malta. Then went back towards Rossville Street and to the east of Kells Walk. Withdrew to Clarence Avenue for ammunition check[1].	None.
Colour Sgt INQ 147	Not specified	Thinks that he came into the Bogside in a pig.	Unclear from statement but likely that Captain 200 would have deployed Colour Sergeant INQ 147 to the left (east) side of Rossville Street given that he put the other half of Guinness Force under the command of Colour Sergeant 002 on the west side of the street.	None.
Colour Sgt INQ1318	Section Commander[2]	Not clear	This witness is very unclear about his deployment though he says that his task was to "secure the housing estate to our right hand side". He recollects the houses as being 2 storey, some terraced and some detached. Nothing of note happened when he was there. Has a recollection of seeing a man aged 40-45 at the rubble barricade (Alex Nash) shouting that he had been shot and that a priest then came to help the man.	None.

[1] Captain 200 has given various conflicting accounts of his movements. This is taken from his RMP, Tsol and Widgery evidence that was given closer to the events. Captain 200 made clear even in 1972 that the sequence of events was not clear in his recollection and that he was "continually visiting the two halves" of his force (B1987).

[2] Note that the Nominal Role says that Colour Sergeant INQ1318 was part of Call Sign 71 though from his statement he recollects being deployed on the west side of Rossville Street which was area to which Call Sign 71 Alpha were sent under the command of Colour Sergeant 002.

Sgt 106	Section Commander	Unclear from statement but probably the 1st lorry.	Deployed near William Street and Rossville Street junction. Commanded a section of 4 or 5 men who were deployed onto the left (east) side of Rossville Street. Then leapfrogged along the back of the houses in Chamberlain Street while there was a mixture of HV and LV firing going on. There were incoming rounds coming from the Rossville Flats. Then took up position at northern end of Rossville Flats. Then escorted 15/16 prisoners probably to Little James Street.	None.
Private 203	Not Specified	Unclear from statement but probably the 1st lorry	Believes that he entered the Bogside on foot with the rest of Guinness Force. Went to the east (left) of Rossville Street. Took position at an old burnt out van for cover (possibly at B2114.009) but not for a long period. Then moved towards a pig that was the direction of, but not close to, Block 2 of the Rossville Flats. Believes that he was able to see arrests being made somewhere in the Rossville Flats car park and that CSM 202 was present.	None.
Lance Corporal 229	Not Specified	Unclear from statement but probably the 1st lorry as the Nominal Role places him in Call Sign 71	Cannot now remember where he debussed (though his RMP statement says it was "near Barrier 14 in Little James Street"). He saw a youth (Joseph Lynn) running across Rossville Street and chased him into a derelict building on the west side of Rossville Street at the northern end. He ordered the youth to come down from the rafters and was then joined by Private L who fired a warning shot to get the youth to come down. Handed the youth over to other elements of Guinness Force. Then went into Glenfada Park and was involved in further arrests (Patrick McGinley and Dennis McLaughlin). Possibly near the pram ramps at some stage. Later in Fort George with the prisoners.	Yes. Joseph Lynn (ARR 29.1); Patrick McGinley (ARR 40.1); Dennis McLaughlin (ARR 42.1)
Private C	Not Specified	Unclear from statement but probably the first lorry	Debussed near junction of William Street and Rossville Street. Made his way across waste round at Eden Place. Then wall at rear of houses at Chamberlain Street. Advanced south towards Rossville Flats. Came level with Block 1 and then advanced west across the car park and to Columbcille Court. He took some prisoners from "the William Street end of the front building of Columbcille Court back to the collection point and returned to Kells Walk and took up position at the top of the pram ramp. Fired 2 rounds at a rifleman with a Kalisnikov type weapon at the SW corner of Block 1. Then fired 3 rounds at a pistol man in a window (4th from the right) on the 3rd storey of Block 1.	None.
Private 024	Not specified	Unclear from statements	Debussed at junction of Rossville Street and William Street on east side of street. Then crossed Rossville Street and moved to the corner of east end of Kells Walk. Involved in taking two sets of prisoners to Little James Street. Then went back to the veranda two storey flats opposite Eden Place (must refer to the veranda at Kells Walk) and took up position with Private C. Saw a nail bomber near the barricade at the GFPN side but did not fire, as it was not lit. Then observed a pistol man at 3rd floor window Block 1 halfway along firing and Private C fire 2 rounds hitting the gunman. Then recalled to William Street.	None.

Private INQ 24	Radio Operator	Unclear from statement but probably the 1st lorry	Seems to have been deployed with Captain 200/SA8. Ran first to a derelict vehicle in the waste ground to take cover. Then deployed to Northern end of Block1. Then across Rossville Street to the right (west) side and probably into CCCT. Then deployed back across Rossville Street to the Rossville Flats.	None.
Private INQ 391	Driver Bedford Lorry	Driver	Remained at vehicle.	None.
Corporal INQ468[3]	Not specified	Unclear	"(V)ery very limited memory" of the day and does not recognise the area at all. But remembers running across some open space where there were buildings on his left hand side, a good distance back.	None.
Corporal INQ739	Not specified	Unclear from statement but probably the 1st lorry	Got out of the lorry and saw a waste ground area in front of him. Bursts of AK47 fire from the Rossville Flats followed. Has a memory of the bullets hit the ground near where he was crouching. Then headed towards the Rossville Flats and took cover at a burnt out car wreck. Further bursts of fire from AK47 followed by SLR fire. Then reached the north-western corner of Block 1. Then crossed Rossville Street on west side of the street and went to Kells Walk. Then into CCCT where heard further AK47 fire and saw a middle aged priest with a wounded person in a blanket.	None.
Corporal INQ 2047	Not Specified	Unclear[4]	Ran through Barrier 12 and went off to his left chasing rioters. He did not chase them very and then stopped. The map provided does not assist him in his recollection. One or two rioters were caught.	None

[3] INQ468 has a very vague memory of the events but he does have a recollection of running across a large area of open ground to his left. We assume that the only place the witness is referring to is the Rossville Street waste ground. C468.2 paragraph 15.

[4] Note that the Nominal Role says that he was part of Call Sign 71, which was Captain 200's section, however the witness' current recollection is that he went through Barrier 12 on foot with the rest of Guinness Force.

TABLE 1 – COMPOSITE PLATOON DEPLOYMENT

CALL SIGN 71 ALPHA

SOLDIER	ROLE	BEDORD LORRY	MOVEMENT AFTER DEBUSSING	ARRESTS
Colour Sgt 002	Platoon Commander Call Sign 71A	2nd soft skinned lorry	Account taken from 1972 evidence as Eversheds statement appears confused. Debussed at corner of William Street and Rossville Street near derelict houses and then moved to west side of Rossville Street. Crossed Rossville Street and advanced south to low wall. Moved behind Sgt K and saw him fire. Saw 2 men crawling and ordered Privates L and M to fire one shot at the man in front as he had a rife. Did not order them to fire at rear man as he was unarmed. Then deployed to the rear of Kells Walk / CCCT and saw the prisoners who had been arrested from GFPN. He ordered his men to take the prisoners back to Barrier 12. Then carried out an ammunition check "at the north end of the block of flats". Then moved eventually to William Street.	None.
Sgt K	Protection Duties	Rear of 2nd soft skinned lorry	Debussed at corner of William Street and Rossville Street then moved to west side of Rossville Street. Then advanced until level with NW corner of a block of CCCT and then took over the position of anti-tank platoon at the low wall. Fired 1 shot at rear man performing a leopard crawl carrying a rifle. According to Private L he went down into GFPN. Then went into CCCT car park and saw civilians who had been arrested in GFPN by anti-tank platoon. Finally deployed at west side of Rossville Street at derelict houses.	None.
Private L	Not Specified	Unclear from Statements but likely the second lorry according to Colour Sergeant 002	Debussed at junction of William Street and Rossville Street then moved to the west side of Rossville Street entered a derelict house and arrested a youth firing a shot whilst in the house. Took youth to William Street and returned to the derelict house. Moved south down the low wall at Kells Walk and fired 2 rounds at front man performing a leopard crawl from barricade to Rossville Street entrance of Block 1. Moved further towards the barricade and saw an old man (Alex Nash). Gunman opens fire from entrance to Block1 and L moved back under orders from Captain 200/SA8. Deploys into CCCT at north east corner and sees a gunman firing a rifle from a burnt out factory at junction of Kells Walk and Abbey Street at whom L fires 2 rounds.	Yes. Joseph Lynn. Bundle ARR.29.1-3. L/Cpl 229 completed arrest report form alleging he was involved in throwing stones in Rossville Street.
Private M	Protection Duties (Protect Cpl	Unclear from Statements but likely the second lorry	Debussed at junction of William Street and Rossville Street then moved down the east side of Rossville Street. Saw shots strike ground near the Command Pig (Major Loden's pig) that was parked at Eden Place. Then crossed Rossville Street to the west side moving to Kells Walk.	None.

	039)	according to Colour Sergeant 002	Took cover and nail bombs were thrown which exploded. A petrol bomb was thrown from GFPN that landed in front of the barricade. Shots were fired from behind the barricade[5]. Kneeling position at Kells Walk and fires a shot at both the front and rear "leopard crawler" both of whom had rifles. Then onto pram ramp to observe Rossville Flats. Returns to Cpl 039 and both go into CCCT to escort prisoners to Little James Street and returns to lorry in William Street.
L/Cpl 10	Not specified	Unclear from Statements but likely the second lorry according to Colour Sergeant 002	Debussed at junction of William Street and Rossville Street then moved down the east side of Rossville Street. Ran to the area of the Command Pig (Major Loden's pig) and the Ferret car. Then crossed Rossville Street to the west side moving to the low wall at Kells Walk with INQ748. Saw Private L fire 2 shots at the Rubble Barricade. Did not see the target but saw one male dragging a second male towards the Rossville Flats. Then withdrawn to a derelict building on the corner of Rossville Street and William Street. Then heard a shot that seemed to come from Chamberlain Street and a burst of SMG fire but does not know from where.	None.
Sgt 014	Section Commander	Unclear from Statements but likely the second lorry according to Colour Sergeant 002	Debussed at junction of William Street and Rossville Street. Then moved to a 4 foot wall at 2 CCCT. Observed two performing a leopard crawl along the west wall of Block 1. He then took up position approximately 5 yards away from Private L and saw him fire 2 rounds at the rear man who was trailing a weapon. Then deployed into Kells Walk.	None.
Private 032	Not specified	Unclear from statements	Debussed at junction of William Street and Rossville Street. Deployed on the west side of Rossville Street in front of CCCT. Automatic fire was directed from the Rubble Barricade. Took position at 4 foot brick wall 6 metres north east of 2 CCCT. Saw Private L open fire at the rear man of two men crawling along Block1. Then saw a man with a pistol run from south end of Block1 in a westerly direction across Rossville Street into Glenfada Park. Then moved to a burnt out building on the north west corner of Kells Walk.	None.
L/Cpl D	Not specified	Thinks he was in the rear of the second lorry	Debussed at the junction of Rossville Street and William Street. Dropped his baton and threw it back into the lorry. Given a prisoner called "Finn" (probably Joseph Lynn) who he escorted to buildings at the junction. Waited with other prisoners in William Street before taking them to the RMP in Little James Street. Then rejoined his unit at CCCT. Then moved onto the 1st floor balcony on the west side of Kells Walk. Private C passed him on the balcony. Heard LV shots and saw C fire a round. Advanced to Private C's position at the top of the pram ramp. Spoke to C and then fired 2 rounds at a pistolman at the 3rd floor of Block 1. Returned to William Street.	None.

Sgt 035	Section Commander	Unclear from statements but likely the second lorry according to Colour Sergeant 002	Debussed at junction of William Street and Rossville Street. Then took position at south end of Kells Walk approximately 30 metres west from the junction of Pilots Row and Rossville Street. He saw Private M fire 2 rounds at two men who were crawling to the entrance of Block 1. Then involved with the prisoners in CCCT and saw a priest bringing two wounded men out of the maisonettes there (This must be a reference to Fr Carolan, John Johnson and Damien Donaghy.)[6]	None.
Corporal 039	Not specified.	Unclear from statements but likely the second lorry according to Colour Sergeant 002	Debussed "just inside Rossville Street and advanced to the junction of Eden Place, Rossville Street" beside two APCs that were stationed in the centre of the road facing the Flats. Crossed Rossville Street to Kells Walk and fired a rubber bullet at a first floor window as missiles were thrown from that flat apparently striking a woman in the face. Then came under fire from the Rossville Flats. Then moved to the low wall and observed two men crawling to the entrance to Block 1. One had a TSMG the other trailed a weapon with him. He ordered Privates L and M to open fire. Each fired 2 rounds. Both men were hit. Then went to opposite side of Kells Walk with Private M and escorted prisoners to junction of William Street and Rossville Street.	None.
Corporal INQ 0025	Escorting Prisoners from snatch squad	Unclear from statements	Unsure where debussed but then told to report to an area near some small blocks of flats on the RHS of some waste ground and waited for prisoners to be fed back by the other troops. Mainly involved with prisoners in the vicinity of the City Cabs Taxi office.	Unclear. Seems to have made an arrest but there is no arrest form.
Private INQ405	Driver	Second lorry	Remained at vehicle near front wheel on driver's side. Eventually redeployed at a residential area.	None.
Private INQ449	Not specified	Mainly deployed on RHS of Rossville Street so I assume that he would have been in the second lorry.	Rossville Street then in CCCT with C Company (!) where he says that he engaged a gunman at a window along with UNK 541. Later on waste ground where he saw a priest tend to a body on the ground. Seriously unreliable account – see "Review" section.	None.
Private INQ748	Not specified	Exclusively deployed on the RHS (west) of Rossville Street so I assume that he would	Thinks that he ran through Barrier 12. Then to the south corner of Kells Walk of Rossville Street. Then into the courtyard of CCCT. Heard shots and the crowd from Rossville Street. Then saw a group of soldiers with prisoners. Followed a second group of soldiers out of the northern end of the courtyard towards William Street.	None.

[6] Note that the account of Sgt 032's deployment comes from his RMP statement as his statement to Eversheds places him in a position on a roof considerably more south than he actually would have been.

		have been in the second lorry.
Private INQ812	Not specified	Not clear.	Debussed and was immediately affected by gas and then returned to the truck to get his gas mask. By this time his colleagues had gone. He remained at the tailgate of the lorry and did not advance on foot. He did not see any of the events in front of the Rossville Flats or on the waste ground. Mostly heard high velocity shots and cannot remember any explosions.	None.
Private INQ816	Not specified	Not clear.	This witness does not think that he went into the area but has a memory (perhaps from TV) of soldiers advancing up Rossville Street from a distance. He says that it is possible that he was split up from everyone else when they went into their lorries.	None.

[1] Emboldened cipher signifies soldiers who actually saw and refer to the shooter firing. Un-emboldened ciphers describe shooting by colleagues that is very similar to the circumstances in which the shooter says that he opened fire.

[2] It is not intended to consider Private L's Eversheds account in this Table due to its obvious unreliability.

	From the same positon	Rear man of two persons who were performing a leopard crawl away from the Rubble Barricade carrying what he believed to be a rifle	Light brownish jacket and a black or dark sweater or shirt. Fairly long brownish hair and light coloured trousers or jeans	1	Sgt 035; Cpl 039;	"He gave a jerk and fell to his side and rolled slightly but he carried on crawling cradling the rifle in his arms"
Private C	From the top of the Kells Walk pram ramp.	Man with a Kalashnikov rifle at the SW corner of Block 1	1972 description was "a male person wearing a dark coat". Now has a vague memory of "a dark shadow and a long coat"	2	L/Cpl D; Captain 200/SA8[3]	1st shot missed. 2nd shot hit. "...Man jerked backwards and weapon went into the air".	Hugh Gilmore (but the timing is wrong); Patrick Campbell

[3] Captain 200/SA8 whilst not actually referring to seeing Private C fire told Lord Widgery two soldiers fired on the top of the Kells Walk pram ramp. He heard the 2-3 shots but did not see what they were firing at. He looked up at the pram ramp and saw two soldiers (who must be C and D). Incidentally, Captain 200/SA8 did not hear firing from the Rossville Flats prior to the soldiers firing.

Captain 200	No[1]	No	Yes. After speaking to the Company Commander. When the light was failing from the south end of Rossville Street / Free Derry Corner.	Automatic Fire. Both automatic (5 rounds) and single shot (4 rounds).
Colour Sgt INQ 147	No	No	Yes. When standing against a building he remembers hearing firing.	No description but has the impression that it was both civilian and military firing.
Colour Sgt INQ 1318	No	No	Yes. Shortly after debussing.	Heard firing but cannot comment on the amount, direction or type.
Sgt 106	Yes	No	Yes. As Sgt 106's section were leapfrogging along the back of the houses in Chamberlain Street.	No description. High velocity & low velocity…different types of weapons being fired.
Private 203	No	No	Yes. Whilst at the east side of Rossville Street seemingly on the waste ground at the burnt out van he heard small arms fire "a dull thump"/ low velocity followed by high velocity shots come from the west.	"…a dull thump" / low velocity.
Lance Corporal 229	No	No	Yes. Whilst inside a derelict building in Rossville Street. Later "seemed to be coming from above us".	1 SLR round fired by Private L. Not specified.
Private C	Yes	No	Yes. Either just after debussing or at rear of houses in Chamberlain Street. At the top of the Kells Walk pram ramp observing a man at the far end of Block 1. When observing Block 1.	One LV shot. One shot then two shots from same rifleman (later referred to as having a Kalashnikov). One shot then two shots from same pistol man in Block 1.
Private 024	No	No	Yes. Saw pistol being fired from 3rd Floor of Block 1 half way across.	Pistol

[1] Note that this table does not deal with the shot that struck the drainpipe at the Presbyterian Church or any accounts of firing before the Paras went through Barrier 12.

Colour Sergeant 002	No	No	Not clear. "I have no memory myself of incoming shots but I do remember soldiers in front of me taking cover and behaving as if they were under fire.[3]" Says that the firing may have come from the roof of the gable end of Block1.	Not clear. This witness was a weapons training officer and believes that one cannot tell what type of weapon is firing in a built up area[4].
Sgt K	No	No	Not clear. In his TSOL statement he says "During the afternoon also there had been a good deal of firing going on but I did not pick out any in particular which I could comment on in this statement.[5]"	Not clear.
Private L	No	No	Says in his RMP statement that his unit was met with sporadic fire from the barricade but in his TSOL statement L only says that he "heard firing". In his oral evidence to Widgery he said he heard firing when taking cover in the derelict house.	Described as "several single shots, not high velocity at various intervals" to Lord Widgery.
Private M	No	No	Says in his RMP statement as they advanced they came under fire from snipers in the Rossville Flats and behind the barricade. In the TSOL statement he says that he saw about 3 bullets strike the ground at the junction of Eden Place and Rossville Street. In his TSOL statement he says that this were automatic fire from the upper storeys of Block 2 landing near the Command Vehicle.	Automatic Fire.
L/Cpl 10	No	No In his Eversheds statement he says that there was 2-3 rifle	Yes. One shot that seemed to come from Chamberlain Street. Then a short burst but he could not tell from where it was coming. However in his Eversheds statement he refers to 20 rounds being fired at the Paras in Rossville Street and 3-4 pistol shots being fired from the entrance to Block1. These were never mentioned before.	High Velocity shot. Short SMG burst.

L/Cpl D	No	No	Yes. After dealing with a prisoner rejoined his unit at Columbcille Court. On balcony at Kells Walk.	SLR and Low Velocity weapons. Low Velocity pistol shots.
Sgt 035	No	No	No. "I thought I could hear shooting but it was really all background noise to me because I was so focused on what I was watching in front of me."	None.
Corporal 039	No	No	Yes. Whilst at Kells Walk came under fire from Rossville Flats.	Low Velocity and a couple of high velocity.
Corporal INQ25	No	No	Yes. Heard occasional shots. "I could not say what kind of weapons were being used or where the shots were coming from."	No memory of machine gun fire.
Private INQ 127	No	No	Yes. Heard shooting going on but did not know where it was coming from and did not feel under threat.	None.
Private INQ 405	Yes. Intense fire for a couple of minutes.	Yes. Fire continuing as before.	Yes. Intense fire continuing for a couple of minutes. Then sporadic for a couple of minutes.	All different types of high velocity (only) including SLRs and "automatic weapons, such as Armalites or AK47s. No SMG fire.
Private INQ 449	No	No	Yes. From Kells Walk. Then from Chamberlain Street. Then from Columbcille Court. Further gunfire possibly from the Embassy building	High velocity. High velocity. Pistol. Low velocity. High Velocity.
Private INQ 748	No	No	Yes. Whilst in Kells Walk / Columbcille Court courtyard area.	Could not say whether high or low velocity.

TABLE 4 – POSSIBLE ORDER OF SHOTS FIRED
COMPOSITE PLATOON SOLDIERS EVIDENCE SECTOR 3

SOLDIER	TOWARDS	SHOTS	REMARKS
Sgt K	Rear Leopard Crawler	1	CS002 says in his evidence that he saw Sgt K fire at the rear man who was crawling just as he was moving up behind Sgt K's position. CS002 then gave Privates L and M orders to fire at this man. CS002 then gave orders to cease fire. Note however Sgt K in his TSOL statement said that Privates L and M fired "almost simultaneously".
Either Private L	Front Leopard Crawler	2	CS002 says that he saw Sgt K fire before ordering Privates L and M to fire. See above comments by Sgt K in relation to the almost simultaneous firing. Private L says that after he fired his shot at the first man "several or one of the other platoon fired at him as well". We know that Private L did not shoot at the front man at all though his second shot may have struck him on his evidence.
Or Private M	Front Leopard Crawler	1	As above.
	Rear Leopard Crawler	1	Private M has consistently said that he fired at the rear man after he shot the front man. Note also that Private M says that after he fired his second shot that another member of his platoon fired. In his evidence to Widgery this was approximately 10seconds later.
Private C	Rifleman at SW corner of Rossville Flats	2	Private C fired these shots after he had been deployed for some time on the west side of Rossville Street with Call Sign 71 took a party of about 20 prisoners to the collection point. He over took Lance Corporal D on the balcony at Kells Walk and took up position at the south end.
	Pistolman on 3rd storey of Block 1.	1	Roughly one minute after his first shooting, Private C fired 1 round and then informed Lance Corporal D where the gunman was.
	As above	2	Private C said that Lance Corporal D fired his 2 rounds at the same time that he fired his 2 rounds at the pistolman on 3rd storey of Block 1.
Lance Corporal D	Pistolman on 3rd storey of Block 1.	2	Lance Corporal D fired his two rounds at the same time that Private C fired his 2 rounds at the pistolman on 3rd storey of Block 1. Note however at Widgery Lance Corporal D changed his evidence to say that "Soldier C fired just a split second before me" (B81)
Private L	Rifleman in second storey window of burnt out factory on west side of the junction of Kells Walk and Abbey Street.	2	This occurred after the final shooting on the barricade ended and when L was redeploying back to William Street via CCCT which would indicate that it happened at a very late stage in the events. It is hard to fit in with the other firing in Rossville Street at Block 1 from Soldiers C, D, F and G as no other military witness seems to have seen Private L fire these shots. Note however that Lance Corporal 229 said that Private L fired 1 shot whilst in a derelict building in Rossville Street shortly after debussing[1] in the course of arresting Joseph Lynn said that Mr Lynn said that the soldier who arrested him fired 2 shots inside the building. Perhaps this accounts for the fact that none of the military witnesses corroborate Private L's account of firing 2 rounds at this target?

[1] Corporal JL Smith (deceased) also took some statements of members of the Anti-tank platoon. These include Private G and Lance Corporal 018. He took Lance Corporal 018's RMP on 4th February and Lance Corporal 018 has said in his statement to this Inquiry that he was persuaded by 018 to fabricate an account of gunmen in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats to corroborate Private G's account in relation to shots that he fired towards the end of the incident.

[2] Note that both on the written and typescript RMP statements that the date is recorded as "4th Jan". Presumably this is an error and should say 4th February 1972.

TABLE 1 (a) – DEPLOYMENT OF COMMAND PIG[1]

SOLDIER	ROLE	PLACE IN PIG	MOVEMENT AFTER DEBUSSING	ARRESTS
Major 236 / Loden	Company Commander	Front Seat Passenger	16.10 hours CO ordered company to deploy down Little James Street. Around 16.13 until Coy moved. Travelled in the 3rd pig escorted Ferret car. Approximately 30 second delay occurred at Barrier 12. Command pig stopped at the junction of Pilots Row and Rossville Street in close vicinity of two young men who were throwing stones. Crew of his vehicle debussed and arrested two men throwing stones. Heard approximately 15 LV automatic shots which were seen strike the ground by his signaller. Returned to his vehicle with his crew. Ordered his driver to move vehicle against the north wall of Block 1. Remained there for 10 minutes during which time the majority of the firing occurred. Made a "fleeting visit" to Kells Walk[2]. Ran back to Block 1 and can be seen on actuality footage wearing a red beret. Spoke to Colonel Wilford there. When volume of the firing died down can be seen on Rossville Street ordering his men to "Cease Fire". Returned to the F.U.P. (Forming Up Point) in Clarence Avenue and interviewed Firers in the rear of the Command Pig.	No. But grappled with and batoned a man (breaking his baton) in Rossville Street.
CSM 202	Company Sgt Major	Unclear (possibly the rear)	Debussed from Command Pig on Rossville Street and soon after heard 2 HV incoming rounds. Went to the back of the Command pig and saw Corporal 33 point his gun at the Rossville Flats balcony. Heard rubber bullets fired. Remained in vicinity of the Command Vehicle. Ran across to Kells Walk on his own and saw INQ1694 along with other members of the Anti-tank Platoon. Saw the Paras there fire 2 shots at the barricade. CSM202 did not see any gunmen on the barricade but he was satisfied if INQ1634 told him there was. Saw Colonel Wilford run to the low wall as he ran back towards the Command Pig. Loden was at the Command pig and told him that they needed to get cover and they got inside the pig and moved the pig to the north end of Block1. Remained at the pig until the company withdrew back towards William Street.	No.

[1] N.B. We do not yet have a statement from the driver of the Command pig. When we receive same this report will be updated.
[2] This was mentioned for the first time in his Eversheds statement B2283.007

Corporal 33	Signaller	Unclear (probably the rear)	Debussed from pig in Rossville Street. Then arrested a man taking him back to the ACV. Then came under fire from a Thompson SMG (20-25 shots) at the corner of Eden Place and Rossville Street. Present with Loden and another soldier (possibly INQ 0627). Did not see gunman. Saw one person lying dead on the barricade and another beside him waving his arm. A pistol man opened fire from Block1 at ground level. The gunman then opened fire on the man at the barricade.	Yes. Unclear who it is. 33 signed an arrest form for PIRA 1 but he was arrested in GFPN.
L/Cpl 0627	Signaller	Unclear (probably the rear)	Debussed approximately 500 feet north of the Rossville Flats. With Major Loden throughout. Saw numerous petrol bombs explode in the carpark. Came under fire from various weapon from the flats. Later walked around the flats area with Loden and claims to have seen 4 bodies in various unlikely positions[3].	Yes. James Charles Doherty. ARR15.1.

[3] C627.4. These are inside the car park west of the low wall facing Block2; Lying on the east side of Rossville Street level with the Glenfada Park North pram ramp; Carried out of the rear of approximately 34 Chamberlain Street; Lying on the elevated ground outside of Block3.

TABLE 1 (b) – DEPLOYMENT OF FERRET CAR

SOLDIER	ROLE	PLACE IN FERRET	DEPLOYMENT	ARRESTS
Private INQ993	Ferret Driver	Driver	From Barrier 12 to Rossville Street following Command pig and saw Major Loden and CSM 202 debuss. Saw a gunman on the barricade with a rifle which he pointed out to Cpl INQ1826[4]. The gunman "disintegrated with the amount of fire directed at him". Loden warned them not to fire the Browning. Then went back to base.	No
Sgt INQ1822	Escort to Coy Commander	Unclear	Mistakenly believes that the Ferret car was the first vehicle in the convoy. Moved from Barrier 12 to Rossville Street. Scanned Block 3 of the Rossville Flats with the Browning machine gun fitted to the vehicle. The occupants of the Ferret car did not debuss. Returned back to a meeting point with the other Command vehicles.	No
Cpl INQ 1826	Escort to Coy Commander	Radio Operator	Followed Company Commander's pig down Rossville Street. Moved from Barrier 12 to Rossville Street. Stayed with Command Pig and cocked Browning briefly. Then moved to north end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. Remained inside the vehicle. No memory of withdrawing from the area.	No

[4] Cpl INQ1826 however says "At no time did I see a civilian with a weapon. I did not hear any low velocity gunfire."

[1] Mentioned for the first time during his Widgery Evidence but not mentioned previously. B2258

[2] Whilst looking at the barricade and seeing one man dead and another waving his arms in the air Corporal 33 saw a pistol man firing from the ground level of Block1 approximately 3 or 4 windows from the end. The gunman then fired at the man behind the barricade. (Reference to Alex Nash.) B1619

[3] Lance Corporal INQ 0627 saw "quite a few" petrol bombs explode in the Rossville Flats car park. The area was covered in black smoke. According to him there was also a mixture of pistol and rifle fire from the Rossville Flats. C627.4

19.1. Introduction and summary of submissions

19.1.1. Four people were shot dead and five people wounded by the Anti-Tank Platoon in sector 4 - Glenfada Park and Abbey Park.

19.1.2. The deceased are Willie McKinney, Jim Wray, Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey. The wounded are Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie.

19.1.3. The evidence before this Tribunal makes it abundantly clear that Willie Mc Kinney, Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel and Patrick O'Donnell along with Jim Wray, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie were shot in Glenfada Park North and that Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey were shot in Abbey Park.

19.1.4. In considering the deaths of Jim Wray, Gerard McKinney, Gerard Donaghey and Willie McKinney Lord Widgery said "I deal with the cases of these four deceased together because I find the evidence too confused and too contradictory to make separate consideration possible" Widgery Report, Page 31, Paragragh 83

19.1.5. Despite this confusion in the evidence Lord Widgery was able to say:

> "it seems to me more probable that the civilians in Glenfada Park were running away than that they were seeking a battle with the soldiers in such a confined space....the balance of probability suggests that at the time when these four men were shot the group of civilians was not acting aggressively and that the shots were fired without justification." Widgery Report, Page 3, Paragraph 85

19.1.6. He further concluded that:

"...in Glenfada Park, firing bordered on the reckless." Widgery Report, Page 38, Paragraph 8

19.1.7. The evidence shows that a significant number of people made their way into Glenfada Park when Support Company's convoy of vehicles entered the Bogside. Many attempted to leave the area via the various exits out of Glenfada Park, others sheltered there in the belief that soldiers would not come that far down Rossville Street.

19.1.8. It quickly became apparent to those who remained in Glenfada Park that soldiers were firing live rounds and that they were indeed advancing down Rossville Street. Those sheltering at the south gable wall of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North saw what took place at the Rubble Barricade across Rossville Street and also the shooting of Kevin McElhinney as he crawled on the eastern side of the street near the entrance to Block 1. Many of them had seen Michael Kelly shot and brought into the shelter of the gable wall from the Rubble Barricade.

19.1.9. In our submission the evidence clearly shows that at least eight members of the Anti-Tank Platoon entered Glenfada Park from Rossville Street. Those soldiers are Lt 119, Soldiers E, F, G, H, J, 027 and David Longstaff. While it is not entirely clear in which order they entered Glenfada Park the evidence is clear that Soldiers F and G led the way. Soldiers E and G are dead but the others all gave evidence before this Tribunal.

19.1.10. Immediately upon, or very soon after entering the courtyard of Glenfada Park North soldiers opened fire from the north east corner of the car park on people fleeing across the southern end of the courtyard to the alleyway in the south-west corner of the car park which leads into Abbey Park. At least one of the soldiers shot from the hip. A number of the people who were fired on were carrying Michael Kelly across the car park from east to west. Also among the people running across the car park were Jim Wray, Willie McKinney, Joseph Mahon and Joseph Friel.

19.1.11. Soldiers E, F, G and H claim to have fired 29 shots in Glenfada Park.

19.1.12. After the shooting stopped three bodies lay in the car park, on or beside the pavement that runs along the southern end of Glenfada Park North. Trevor McBride's chilling photograph of what the Anti-Tank Platoon left in their wake can be seen at P439. The bodies that can be seen in that photograph are William (Willie) McKinney, Joseph Mahon and Jim Wray. Only Joseph Mahon survived.

19.1.13. Soldiers F and G then made their way south into Glenfada Park North – Soldier F along the eastern side of the car park and Soldier G along the western side - from where Soldier F opened fire across Rossville Street along Block 1 of the Rossville Flats and Soldier G entered the alleyway which leads to Abbey Park and opened fire, killing Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey. There is a large body of photographic evidence that shows clearly that Gerry McKinney fell and was treated on the shallow steps just inside Abbey Park.

19.1.14. After the shooting finished a number of people who had remained at the south gable wall of the eastern block were arrested and marched in a northerly direction through Columbcille Court to transport that conveyed them to Fort George.

19.1.15. There is little photographic evidence available as to what took place in Glenfada Park. Such evidence as exists does not show the actions of soldiers in sector 4. The same is true in relation to the events in Abbey Park.

19.1.16. The civilian evidence relating to sector 4, although confused in parts, is clear as to what took place there. The military evidence on the other hand, relying as it did on the statements made by the soldiers in 1972[1] was far from credible.

19.1.17. In our submission, the evidence supports the following conclusions:

i) All of the deceased and injured in Sector 4 were shot by members of the Anti-Tank Platoon;

ii) All of the deceased and injured in Sector 4 were unarmed when shot;

iii) They were shot deliberately - not accidentally - and without any justification;

iv) None of the deceased or injured had handled a gun or bomb at any time on Bloody Sunday. None of the deceased or injured had acted in support of any person handling or using a gun or bomb at any time on Bloody Sunday;

v) None of the deceased or injured was doing anything at the time they were shot which would have led the soldiers responsible for shooting them to believe that they posed a threat of any kind;

vi) None of the deceased or injured was in the vicinity of civilian gunmen or bombers when shot. Nothing was taking place in the vicinity of the deceased or injured at the time they were shot which would have led the soldiers to believe that their lives or those of their colleagues were at risk;

vii) None of the deceased or injured was shot in crossfire or in the course of a 'gun-battle' with civilian gunmen;

viii) There was no 'gun battle' and no 'exchange of fire' as alleged by the soldiers;

ix) There are no "missing casualties" - all of the persons killed and injured in Sector 4 have been accounted for;

x) All of the civilians arrested in Sector 4 were arrested unlawfully and without justification;

xi) Soldiers may have fired more rounds than they accounted for.

[1] Except of course for David Longstaff who did not make any written statement before making one to this

19.1.18. The evidence concerning the arrests in this sector is dealt with in Section twenty one. In this section, firstly, we provide an overview of the civilian evidence concerning the events of Sector 4. Secondly, dealing with each of our clients individually, we examine the civilian evidence concerning the circumstances of their shooting as well as the medical and forensic evidence relating thereto. Thirdly, we examine the evidence of the soldiers involved in this sector, i.e. those of Anti-Tank Platoon as well as those soldiers in Observation Posts overlooking the area. Finally, on the basis of the evidence, we shall specifically address the Soldiers' case that civilian gunmen and bombers were present in Sector 4 and that those who were hit were spirited away from the scene.

19.3. Civilian Evidence

19.3.1. Introduction and Summary of Submissions

19.3.1.1. The civilian evidence to the Tribunal is clear that when soldiers arrived in Glenfada Park a number of people were attempting to escape from the area via the southwestern alleyway, which leads to Glenfada Park South and Abbey Park. Among that number were three young men who, in an attempt to make their escape, ran from the eastern side of the car park along the southern end of Glenfada Park in a westerly direction. As this group of people ran they were shot at by soldiers who had entered Glenfada Park North via the northeastern entrance. Three men fell alongside or on the pavement on the south side of Glenfada Park North. They are Willie McKinney, Joseph Mahon and Jim Wray and they can be seen where they fell in the photographs taken by Trevor McBride at P438 and P439. Another young man, Joseph Friel, was struck in the chest by a bullet as he approached the southwest corner of the car park but managed, with the help of others to make it through the exit. A fifth man, Patrick O'Donnell, was wounded in the shoulder as he sheltered behind fences at the southeastern corner of Glenfada Park North. Michael Quinn was shot in the cheek in the area of the southwestern corner of Glenfada Park North and Danny Gillespie was at the southern end of the car park when a bullet grazed his head.

19.3.1.2. The civilian witnesses who give evidence about what took place in Glenfada Park fall, broadly speaking, into one of a number of categories as follows:

(i) Those who took shelter at the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North. Many of these people had views of the rubble barricade and across Rossville Street to Block 1 of the Rossville Flats and also into Glenfada Park North. The people among this group give the best descriptions of the actions of the three men who can be seen in P439;

(ii) Those who at some point crossed Glenfada Park from east to west in an attempt to leave the area via Abbey Park (the three men seen in P439 were doing just that);

(iii) Those who were taking shelter in Glenfada Park itself, either behind cars, in houses or in gardens behind fences.

19.3.1.3. The civilian evidence as to what took place in Glenfada Park North does not provide any support for the version of events given by the soldiers of the Anti-Tank Platoon who fired there. There is no evidence from any civilian witness that suggests that those killed or injured in Glenfada Park or any of them was:

(i) In possession of or throwing a stone towards soldiers when he was shot;

(ii) In possession of or throwing a petrol or nail bomb towards soldiers when he was shot;

(iii) In possession of or pointing a firearm towards soldiers when he was shot;

(iv) In any way acting aggressively or in a hostile manner towards soldiers when he was shot;

(v) In the vicinity of a gunman/bomber when he was shot;

(vi) In the vicinity of someone who may have been mistaken for a gunman/bomber when he was shot;

(vii) In the vicinity of someone who was acting aggressively towards soldiers when he was shot.

19.3.2. The South Gable End of the Eastern Block of Glenfada Park North

19.3.2.1. This group of people provides a number of key witnesses as to what took place in Glenfada Park. Photographs P428, P433, P434 and P435 show this group at various stages before the shooting in Glenfada Park took place. One of the deceased, Willie McKinney, can be seen in P433 (he is marked in the annotated version at P433.001).

19.3.2.2. Professor (then Father) Terence O'Keefe was one of the crowd of people at the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park. He can be seen at P435 and P435.001. In his written evidence to the Tribunal he told of seeing a number of young men shot on Rossville Street while he was at the gable wall and then:

> "four young fellows tried to make a dash across the courtyard of Glenfada Park. A crowd stopped one youth from going by holding on to him but the other three dashed across the courtyard and there were more shots and they fell. All three of them fell. They all fell more or less at the same time. Two fell in the courtyard itself. One fell with his body halfway onto the pavement which runs at the edge of the maisonettes. Again I'm certain that these young fellows weren't carrying arms and they were running in a direction which seemed to be away from the troops" H21.11 paragraph 19

19.3.2.3. Giving evidence to this Tribunal he described:

"four youths, all of whom were extremely upset. We, or the crowd, managed to restrain one young person, but the other three ran across Glenfada Park." Day 127/109/6 to Day 127/109/9

19.3.2.4. At the time the three young men ran out Professor O'Keefe thought that there were less people at the gable wall than are shown in P428, perhaps 25 to 30. At the time they ran out he was not conscious of anything going on in the car park or of people milling about in the car park Day 127/120/4 to Day 127/120/15. When shown P438 Professor O'Keefe confirmed that the scene depicted in that photograph is very close to his recollection of how the three men who ran across fell. Day 127/121/16 to Day 127/121/25

19.3.2.4.1. Professor O'Keefe was clear that he was not conscious of nor did he see or get any impression of any hostile activity in the car park from civilians. He did not see anyone with weapons or firearms or anything that appeared to be weapons or firearms nor did he hear any explosions: Day 127/122/21 to Day 127/123/5

"Can you say, as the three people that you saw made their way across, were there other people about, near or adjacent to them, at the time?

A. I no longer have any memory of there being people in that top alleyway to which the young men were running. If anything, my memory is that the alleyway was empty.

Q. And I think your evidence to this Tribunal, and also when you gave your Widgery evidence...you were being questioned by Mr Stocker and you were asked "Question: Were any of these three men, as far as you could see, armed in any way?

"Answer: No, I am quite positive they were not armed, they were not carrying guns. What they were carrying in their pockets I have no idea, but I am quite positive they were not carrying guns in their hands and I presume they were not carrying any offensive weapons at all. They were in fact running away from where they thought the soldiers would have been, I think"

That is still your evidence?

A. Yes it is. I was being very scrupulous there in saying that since I could not tell what they had in their pockets. I should say that, but certainly that paragraph is my present recollection as well as my recollection then.

Q. As they made their way across in the direction of the other alleyway, did you see them do anything at all which would have justified them being shot?

A. No my memory was they were running and as they ran, they fell.

Q. The case which has been made by the soldiers in this case is that the soldiers who fired reacted reasonably to mob violence and to the use of lethal force against them, that is the case that is being made on behalf of the soldiers in respect of all the killings and the wounded. Was that your impression of what you saw that day?

A. No, I think my impression is contained in that answer."

19.3.2.5. Giving evidence Professor O'Keefe was clear that when the three men were running across the square he could not see anybody else in the square. Day 127/178/3 to Day 127/178/6 While he did not see who shot the men or even soldiers shooting he was conscious that the shots he heard were "recognisably different" from the shots he had heard from the Rossville Street direction and that they were coming from Glenfada Park. Day 127/178/7 to Day 127/178/12

19.3.2.6. While Professor O'Keefe admitted that because of his position he does not believe he would have seen more of the Glenfada Park car park than is shown in P428, Day 127/177/5 to Day 127/177/7 and that what he describes is a brief sighting of an event over 10 seconds or so Day 127/176/19 to Day 127/176/22 he was a clear, impressive and thoughtful witness to this Tribunal. His evidence about what happened in Glenfada Park has been consistent over the years and is supported by other civilian evidence and the photographs at P438 and P439.

19.3.2.7. Professor O'Keefe was one of those arrested from Glenfada Park and taken to Fort George as to which see ARR50.1 to ARR50.4. He has described how soldiers arrived at the gable wall from inside Glenfada Park after the shooting had finished. Giving evidence to this Tribunal he said that they appeared to be pumped up with adrenalin and very aggressive. H21.48 paragraph 19

19.3.2.8. Professor O'Keefe also gave evidence that he requested permission from the soldiers to be allowed to attend to the bodies lying in Glenfada Park. This permission was refused crudely by soldiers and he was struck about the body with a rifle. Day 127/125/19 to Day 127/126/11

19.3.2.9. Two brothers who also found themselves at the southern gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North are Eamon McAteer and Fergus McAteer.

19.3.2.10. Eamon McAteer has identified himself in photograph EP23.11, his marked version appears at AM41.35. He describes what took place in Glenfada Park thus:

> "I became conscious of people running in Glenfada Park North, and saw three men from our group run from the gable wall where I was in the direction of the south west exit of Glenfada Park North going into Abbey Park. People were saying, "Don't run" but they did. I think they were frightened and running to get away. They were not doing anything other than trying to make their escape." AM41.13 paragraph 27

19.3.2.11. Giving evidence Mr McAteer also indicated that at the time when the three people ran out from the gable end there were less people there than appear in P428, Day 135/20/1 to Day 135/20/6.

19.3.2.12. His statement goes on to say:

> "I heard three shots "Bang, bang, bang" and two just dropped, one after the other. I do not know what happened to the third one. In the movies people seem to go down dramatically but these men just dropped to the ground. It was very frightening. It was like a grouse or turkey shoot; the men were running at speed but still got shot. It was very precise – bang and down – that sudden. The impression I had is that they were shot from inside Glenfada Park North because I have a memory of hearing people shouting "They're in, they're in"." AM41.14 paragraph 28

> "I had the impression that shots were still coming down (north to south) Rossville Street like a stream but the shots fired in Glenfada Park North were more deliberate and more selective." AM41.14 paragraph 29

> "I cannot describe the three men as they were running or the bodies that I saw on the ground. Each just looked like a single bundle. A lot of people wore jackets then and these just looked like young fellows in jackets. I was conscious of one furthest away from me...lying half on and half off the pavement with another man...lying just behind him....I don't know what happened to the third person. I saw it happen, I knew what happened but I cannot recall the detail." AM41.14 paragraph 30

19.3.2.13. Shown P438 he said "I only recall seeing two bodies, but when the people actually ran from our group and then the shots occurred I felt as if three people went down, three positive single shots. Although I may have scanned the area, my eyes became fixed on one particular body." Day 135/20/24 to Day 135/21/4

19.3.2.14. When asked if he had seen any sign of hostile activity in Glenfada Park and then if he had seen anyone with a weapon Mr McAteer said "There were people hurrying to and fro, I did not see any bombs or weapons or any such things." Day 135/21/19 to Day 135/21/25

19.3.2.15. Eamon McAteer's brother Fergus was also at the southern gable wall of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North. He describes the group of people there as "very frightened, terrified, people, isolated..." Day 168/56/20 to Day 168/56/21 In 1972 he described what he saw there thus:

> "Suddenly three men dashed away from my right along the footpath in Glenfada Park. They had only got a few yards away from me when there was a burst of firing which came from the other end of Glenfada Park. The three men fell. I could see two of them clearly lying on the footpath." AM42.1

19.3.2.16. He then said:

> "I thought at first that they had thrown themselves on the ground for protection. As they did not get up I looked harder. They were still. They did not move at all. I realised then that they had been shot. No one went to their aid. As they lay there, I could not see any gun or weapon about them. They had been shot while in flight. No one reached the men before the troops did." AM42.2

19.3.2.17. Mr McAteer confirmed this account in his statement to this Tribunal AM42.9 paragraph 30 to 31. Giving oral evidence he admitted that when this group of three men first caught his eye they were already running so he did not know where they had originally come from Day 168/65/6 to Day 168/65/9.

19.3.2.18. He said that, aside from that group of three men he was not aware of others running in the same direction Day 168/65/20 to Day 168/65/23. When shown P439 Mr McAteer indicated that the position of the bodies in that photograph approximated to the position where he saw the men fall in Glenfada Park Day 168/66/16 to Day 168/66/22.

19.3.2.19. When asked if he was aware of any hostile or potentially hostile activity in Glenfada Park as the men ran across the south side of the car park Mr McAteer was clear:

> "None at all, absolutely none. I mean again all I saw are people either sheltering with me at the gable wall or people trying to exit the area with the increasing amount of gunfire that seemed to be, maybe on reflection, trained on some spots...So all of the people in my picture, all of the people at the gable wall and in front of me, or if they were there, wherever the voices were coming from were all people desperate to shelter and people trying to get out of the way." Day 168/67/4 to Day 168/67/15

19.3.2.20. Giving oral evidence Fergus McAteer, like Professor O'Keefe, indicated that " the burst of fire in Glenfada Park that I associated with the shooting of the three people who had run in front of me was in some ways qualitatively or distinctly different for me, because it was so close." Day 168/58/23 to Day 168/59/2

and excited. They were yelling and shouting and acting rather weirdly. They seemed to be crazed. Their manner and demeanour was very frightening. Perhaps they were intentionally trying to scare us, but they seemed strange and almost wild" AM42.10 paragraph 33. His abiding impression was the "conduct and state that they seemed to be in when they appeared around the corner." Day 168/69/4 to Day 168/69/5.

19.3.2.22. Mr McAteer also indicated that when the soldiers came around the corner "to my knowledge and in my vision there was no-one else anywhere. I cannot even recall, there were no voices or anything...We were simply the isolated group in the gable wall itself and there was to, again my best recollection, no one near or opposite or down at the southwest corner. There may have been people hiding in the gardens with the wooden fences or taking shelter, but I saw no-one and I did make the point that I was one of the first then taken from the gable wall under arrest." Day 168/82/19 to Day 168/83/4.

19.3.2.23. This version of events is very similar to that given by James Kelly who in 1972 said, "...I saw three youths make a dash for a safer refuge in the Glenfada Park area. They were shot, either dead or wounded (personally I think they were dead). At that moment troops from the 1st Parachute Regiment appeared and I am of the opinion, I can't swear to it, that these were the troops responsible" AK12.1. In his statement to this Tribunal Mr Kelly confirmed that he was at the southern gable wall of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North with a number of other people:

> "All of a sudden Jim Wray, who was wearing a woolly hat and a black jacket...made a dash for it across the square with two other men...They all seemed to fall at the same time and were lying quite close together. They appeared to be dead. I can't say whether I actually saw them being shot, or heard the shots that killed them as there were so many shots being fired at the time, but I remember seeing all three bodies lying close together and I took it that they had been shot. All three were just running away; there was nothing antagonistic about their actions, nor were they waving their arms or throwing anything. They had no weapons or bombs that I could see." AK12.4 paragraph 17

19.3.2.24. Giving evidence to this Tribunal Mr Kelly indicated that he believed that the shots fired at the three men were fired from the William Street end of Glenfada Park Day 145/31/12 to Day 145/31/17. Having seen these men fall Mr Kelly's recollection is that he moved around the western corner of the gable end to see who had shot them Day 145/32/6 to Day 145/32/10. At that point he was confronted by a soldier who he believed was called "Falstaff" but now knows to be David Longstaff Day 145/32/11 to Day 145/32/19.

19.3.2.25. In his 1972 account Mr Kelly also indicated "Two priests were in my company at that time and despite repeated protests they were refused permission to treat the wounded." AK12.33. While Mr Kelly initially only remembered Fr Bradley (as he then was) being present, when shown photographs he recalled that the second priest was Fr O'Keefe Day 145/44/24 to Day 145/45/11.

19.3.2.26. Giving evidence to Lord Widgery Fr O'Keefe (as he then was) indicated that the boy who was prevented by the group from running out across Glenfada Park with the other three had red hair H21.62D. This was Patrick "Ginger" McGinley. He gave evidence to the Tribunal on Day 425. Mr McGinley indicated that he was one of a group of four young men at the gable wall who decided to make a run for it across Glenfada Park North into the alleyway at the north east corner of Glenfada Park South AM 241. 4 paragraph 22, (emphasis added). The other three boys made a dash for it but someone caught Mr McGinley from behind, around his neck. Mr McGinley at first thought it was a policeman but it was in fact Barry Liddy AM 241.4 paragraph 22. This account is confirmed by Mr Liddy:

> "Members of the Paratroop Regiment who were at this time in Glenfada Park. On seeing this some of the crowd who were with me started to run for some safer (?) place. I managed to get hold of one lad and pleaded with him not to run, as he would be shot. Some of the people ran up an alleyway facing us and got away, but some other people ran in a different direction these people were shot at. Three of these lads fell, and again I found out they were shot dead." AL13.8

19.3.2.27. Mr McGinley then described one of the three boys who had run out in front of him crumple to the floor less than 20 feet away near a gate and a wooden fence. Mr McGinley went back to the area recently but cannot now locate the fence AM241. 4 paragraph 23.

19.3.2.28. Mr McGinley is not sure if the other 2 boys were shot AM241. 4 paragraph 23. In his 1972 statement however he said "There were three young fellows across from us, they went to run and they were shot down." AM241.10 When this was brought to his attention the witness said "One fella crumpled and the other two fell forward as though diving for cover" AM 241.8 paragraph 47.

19.3.2.29. Mr McGinley did not have time to see what happened to the boy who was shot as soldiers then appeared at the corner of the gable wall. He was arrested and taken to Fort George AM 241. 5 paragraph 24. His 1972 statement says that he saw the soldiers before the three boys ran out AM 241.10 but he now says that he remembers the soldiers arriving after this happened AM 241. 8 paragraph 48.

19.3.2.30. Giving evidence to this Tribunal Mr McGinley was "more or less certain" that the group of boys including him tried to run for the north east corner of Glenfada Park South Day 425/141/20 to Day

425/141/22. He thought it was more likely to have been this alleyway than that leading into Abbey Park Day 425/145/1 to Day 425/145/6. However when the evidence of his friend Myles O'Hagan was put to Mr McGinley he indicated that Mr O'Hagan could be right when he said that the group that ran out into Glenfada Park were running towards the south west alleyway into Abbey Park. Day 425/147/2

19.3.2.31. Myles O'Hagan also gave evidence to this Tribunal. He indicated that he had made his way to the Rubble Barricade and then into Glenfada Park North where he stood in the area of the south end of the car park. There were about 20 people there with him, just milling around AO43.2 paragraph 15. He remembers hearing someone shouting, "The Brits are coming back up" and "Stand your ground" AO43.2 paragraph 15.

19.3.2.32. Mr O'Hagan believes shooting must have started then and he ran to the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North. He got in tight against the wall with the other people who were in Glenfada Park North. He does not remember the shooting starting, but from the position they took believes it must have been coming from the north. Giving oral evidence he was clear that the shooting was coming from the Kells Walk direction AO43.3 paragraph 16, Day 388/102/18. Mr O'Hagan could not identify the type of shooting Day 388/102/11.

19.3.2.33. Mr O'Hagan then saw some people try to run west towards the alley between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South which leads into Abbey Park AO43.3 paragraph 17. He knew one of the people to be Patrick McGinley. Mr McGinley tried to run towards the alleyway but someone shouted at him and he ran back towards the gable AO43.3 paragraph 17. While Mr O'Hagan understands that people were shot in this area he has no memory of seeing it AO43.3 paragraph 20.

19.3.2.34. Mr O'Hagan then said that a soldier appeared right beside him and that the soldier must have come from inside Glenfada Park North. He was followed by about 20 other soldiers who appeared out of the blue. There were about 20 people there and all were arrested AO43.3 paragraph 21; Day 388/104/4.

19.3.2.35. James Patrick McNulty, another of those arrested at the gable wall ARR43.1 to ARR43.3, gave evidence that he thought that the three men who were shot in Glenfada Park North had also been at the southern gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North Day 152/4/2 to Day 154/4/14.

19.3.2.36. Mr McNulty's evidence was that they fell down separately but quite quickly after one another and almost at the same time and that they fell in a row almost parallel with the length of the northeast block of Glenfada Park south. When he was shown the photograph that appears at P438 Mr McNulty indicated that that is roughly how he remembers the three men lying after they had been shot AM377.2 paragraph 10

19.3.2.37. Mr McNulty indicated that he remembered shots being fired at the men but does not remember how many there were. He was facing west at the time and he thought that the shots came from his right from inside Glenfada Park North Day 152/7/10 to Day 152/8/2.

19.3.2.38. At the time they fell Mr McNulty believed that the three men had been shot Day 152/8/3 to Day 152/8/8. While it appears that Mr McNulty may now be confused about some aspects of his evidence such as his own actions[2] the statement he made in 1972 is clear about the three men who fell in Glenfada Park. There he describes three fellows making a break for it towards the Stardust (i.e. in the direction of the alleyway in the south west corner of Glenfada Park). The statement then states that Mr McNulty heard more shots and all three fell one after the other before they reached the opening they were heading for AM 377.8. Giving evidence Mr McNulty indicated that he thought the statements he made at the time would be the most reliable Day 152/41/4 to Day 152/41/7.

[2]Mr McNulty now indicates that he himself started to run across Glenfada Park but turned back. The statement made by him in 1972 indicates however that he considered "making a break for it" but he did not actually do so. When asked about this giving oral evidence Mr McNulty was clear that he had run out and turned back because of the shooting Day 152/25/11 to Day 152/25/12.

19.3.2.39. When Soldier E's account of a "full scale riot" going on in Glenfada Park was put to Mr McNulty he commented "He is lying, there were no rioting then" Day 152/31/8. He also gave evidence to the effect that he had not heard any nail bombs or seen anybody in Glenfada Park with weapons. Mr McNulty also indicated that he did not see anybody in Glenfada Park who posed a risk to soldiers Day 152/31/11 to Day 152/32/8.

19.3.2.40. The questioning of Mr McNulty is worthy of note for what it reveals about the case being made by those acting on behalf of the soldiers who were present in Glenfada Park. Peter Clarke QC suggested the following to Mr McNulty:

(i) "there was not so much a riot, but there was a great crowd of people in the car park when that soldier arrived; was there not" Day 152/47/1 to Day 152/47/3;

(ii) "The soldiers come into that car park and those three men are shot amongst a large group of people who are making for the southwest corner.." Day 152/49/1 to Day 152/49/3;

(iii) the three men were "surrounded by many other people" when they were shot Day 152/49/23;

19.3.2.41. Mr McNulty did not agree with these suggestions Day 152/49/24 to Day 152/50/1. In our submissions they are not substantiated by either the civilian or military evidence relating to Glenfada Park.

19.3.2.42. Another witness who gave a similar version of events is Denis Patrick McLaughlin. Mr McLaughlin was also at the gable wall and is the man with the distinctive trousers who is marked in P435.001. Mr McLaughlin says that he saw a group of 4 people who were standing furthest away from Rossville Street. He thinks that they had a better view of the soldiers approaching and made a run for it across the courtyard of Glenfada Park North towards the south west corner AM326.6 paragraph 23. Mr McLaughlin says that there were about 3-5 boys who ran but he cannot really remember anything about them as he was in a complete state given what he had seen happen on the rubble barricade AM326.6 paragraph 23.

19.3.2.43. Mr McLaughlin then says he heard one soldier shout "stop or I'll shoot". That soldier lifted his rifle to his shoulder but did not sight it and shot in quick succession, rapid fire. Mr McLaughlin saw one of the boys who was running fall along the southern side of Glenfada Park North. One of the boys, Patrick McGinley, came back with his hands on his head AM326.6 paragraph 23. Mr McLaughlin indicates that within seconds other soldiers arrived from the Glenfada Park North courtyard AM326.7 paragraph 24.

19.3.2.44. Mr McLaughlin's evidence is somewhat confused as to whether he saw the boys shot before or after he saw soldiers. Giving oral evidence the witness indicated that the group of four made a run for it before the soldiers reached the gable end Day 159/42/14. The witness marked with a red square the area in which the first soldier was when he fired AM326.37, Day 159/43/2 to Day 159/48/19. Mr McLaughlin is quite clear that the man he saw shot in Glenfada Park North was not carrying or throwing anything AM326.9 paragraph 34.

19.3.3. Running Across the Car Park

19.3.3.1. The second of the above mentioned groups of people are those who attempted to escape from Glenfada Park North by crossing the car park from east to west towards the alleyway that leads into Abbey Park. Some people can be seen doing this in P428.

19.3.3.2. These people were best placed to see the soldiers, how and where they entered Glenfada Park North and what they did upon entry, including the shots they fired. Perhaps of most significance in this category, the Tribunal has the evidence of a number of those injured in Glenfada Park as to what happened there on that day.

19.3.3.3. Joseph Mahon was shot and injured in Glenfada Park North on Bloody Sunday. He is one of those who can be seen in P439. He is the figure lying closest to the fencing at the southern end of Glenfada Park. Mr Mahon, who was an impressive witness and was visibly moved on a number of occasions throughout his testimony, told of how he was standing just at the footpath at the north eastern corner of Glenfada Park South when the soldiers entered Glenfada Park North. He describes a group of four or five soldiers entering Glenfada Park North from the north eastern entrance AM18.2 paragraph 12. One of the soldiers, who wore a distinctive jacket, fired a number of shots from the hip. This soldier came in first and was followed by at least three or four others AM18.2 paragraph 12.

19.3.3.4. Mr Mahon then said that he ran from where he was standing on the eastern side of Glenfada Park towards the gap between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South, banging on the fences of the houses on the southern side of the courtyard as he ran to see if any were open for him to take cover AM18.2 paragraph 12.

19.3.3.5. Mr Mahon says that he had run perhaps twenty or thirty yards when something hit him. He fell to the ground and lay sprawled on his stomach on the pavement with his head pointing towards the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South and his feet pointing back towards the Rossville Flats AM18.3 paragraph 13.

19.3.3.6. Mr Mahon also describes two other bodies lying near to him. One was two or three feet behind him and to his right, lying just to the north of the pavement. He was also lying on his stomach with his face in Mr Mahon's direction. He wore glasses and a heavy dark coat. The man was still alive and called out "I'm hit – I'm hit!". Mr Mahon now knows this man to be William McKinney. AM18.3 paragraph 14. The second body was in front of him and he now knows it to be Jim Wray AM18.3 paragraph 15.

19.3.3.7. Joseph Friel is another of the wounded who was shot in Glenfada Park North. He now remembers cowering down behind the cars which can be seen parked in the southeastern corner of Glenfada Park North in P428 Day 155/53/20 to Day 155/55/13. At that stage he indicated that he could not really see what was going on in the body of the car park, the only thing he was aware of was people milling about on the footpath along the back fence - "nothing untoward" Day 155/55/16 to Day 155/55/20.

19.3.3.8. At one stage Mr Friel, along with a number of others in that area, ran towards the exit in the southwest corner of Glenfada Park. When he was about eight to ten feet away from the alleyway he heard a shout from someone he now knows to have been Gregory Wilde and he turned and looked over his right shoulder AF34.2 paragraphs 14 to 15. He saw soldiers about five or six feet into Glenfada Park coming from the northeastern corner. Mr Friel describes one soldier at the front with two or three others right behind him. The soldier in front was moving forward with his gun in front of him at just above waist height and was moving it from side to side. He was firing randomly AF34.3 paragraph 16. Mr Friel was then shot.

19.3.3.9. Giving evidence Mr Friel indicated that when he was running across Glenfada Park South and was fairly close to the alleyway there were perhaps six or seven people in front of him Day 155/113/10 to Day 155/113/18. He confirmed that when he saw the soldiers there was no one else between him and the soldiers "...There was a direct line. I could see directly over towards the soldier..." Day 155/76/9 to Day 155/76/10.

19.3.3.10. He further indicated that the soldier who fired had his gun halfway between his waist and his arm Day 155/59/13 to Day 155/59/21 and that the memory of that soldier "firing from the hip" is one of the few memories that is "totally crystal clear because, as I said, I came that close to being killed, that could have been my last vision on this entire earth" Day 155/116/1 to Day 155/116/3.

19.3.3.11. Michael Quinn, another of those wounded in Glenfada Park North took shelter in Glenfada Park North after hearing shots on Rossville Street. Once inside Glenfada Park North he moved for safety up to the middle of the eastern block. He has indicated that there were few people in the area at this stage and that all those present appeared to be passing through Day 169/67/12 to Day 169/67/14. He has further stated that after the shooting of Michael Kelly, crowds began flooding into courtyard although he had no recollection of a bottleneck in the alleyway Day 169/86/17 to Day 169/87/8.

19.3.3.12. Among the group of people running across Glenfada Park are those who carried Michael Kelly from east to west across the car park after he had been attended to at the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North. Joseph Donnelly was one of that group. At AD124.4 paragraph 17 he described making his way west across Glenfada Park North, when three Paratroopers entered Glenfada Park North from the northeast entrance. The crowd carrying Michael Kelly almost dropped him in panic at the sight of the soldiers. At AD124.4 paragraph 18 Mr Donnelly indicated that he noticed one of the soldiers was taking up a firing position. He was kneeling on the ground with his rifle at his shoulder and was aiming towards them. The two other soldiers had their rifles at waist height. All three soldiers fired shots at the crowd. He thought that the soldiers who had weapons at waist height had, roughly, only a 20% chance of hitting him, but he was afraid of the third soldier who knelt down. He confirmed that he thought the three soldiers were firing at them since the sound came from the three of them. Day 128/99/20 to Day 128/99/25

19.3.3.13. At AD124 paragraph 19 Mr Donnelly described the scene thus:

> "I ran across Glenfada Park North towards the entrance to Abbey Park carrying Michael. Paddy was running beside me to my right and Michael's brother-in-law, George Downey, ran in front of us. I am sure that had there not been so many people in Glenfada Park North the soldiers would have had a clear shot at me and I am in no doubt that I would have been fired at. As it was bullets were flying past me and hitting the wooden fence, which was splintering. The soldiers seemed absolutely determined to hit someone. I was in no doubt that I was running for my life". The witness confirmed that there was no threat to the soldiers or anyone apart from a soldier with a firearm. Day 128/100/8 to Day 128/100/10

19.3.3.14. Another of this group, Paddy Doherty, confirmed that he had been in Glenfada Park North with Mr Donnelly and assisted with carrying Michael Kelly. After the shooting began people scattered, leaving about three of them, who continued to take Michael Kelly to a house in Abbey Park. He heard the shooting but did not see the soldiers himself. He was running for his life. AD97.3 paragraphs 7 to 11 and Day 157/159/7 to Day 157/160/5.

19.3.3.15. Pearse McCall described running to the southern gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North as soon as live shots were fired. He said there were about fifteen to sixteen people sheltering there. From his position he could see people sheltering behind fences of houses in Glenfada Park North AM93.3 paragraph 12.

19.3.3.16. He then went on to describe picking up another body, which he recently found out was the body of Michael Kelly. They each took hold of one of his legs and possibly his shoulder and carried him from the Rubble Barricade west toward and through the Glenfada Park North car park. He saw the bullet entry wound in his abdomen and he recalled the clothing on his back felt very wet. The witness identified himself in the photograph which shows him helping to carry Michael Kelly west through the Glenfada Park car park EP27.10. He identified himself as the man without a beard, whose face is facing the cameraman. AM93.3 paragraph 13

19.3.3.17. At AM93.3 paragraph 15 Mr McCall described how, when they reached a point just before the southwest entrance to the alleyway leading into Abbey Park he looked up and saw two soldiers sauntering into the car park from the direction of Rossville Street through the alleyway at the northeast corner of Glenfada Park North. They were both tall soldiers, approximately the same height. The witness believes that they may have been wearing face paint but he may be wrong about this. He was unsure if they had facial hair or what they were wearing on their heads, although they may have been wearing helmets with the visors raised. The soldier on the left was holding his rifle at his chest in a very casual fashion "like John Wayne". The soldier on his right was holding his rifle higher up. The witness did not see them shoot, but had no doubt in his mind that they were about to start shooting. As soon as he saw the soldier, he believes he must have either dropped Michael Kelly on the ground or put him down somewhere in the car park. He and Seamus Friel started to run towards the northwest corner of Glenfada Park North. Mr McCall was unsure where the other person who had helped him to carry Michael Kelly was. The gunfire started almost immediately and he recognised different types of gunfire and the distinct crack of Army rifle fire.

19.3.3.18. Gregory Wild who was fourteen years old at the time of Bloody Sunday has made a statement to this Tribunal. In that statement he describes how he would not be willing to give oral evidence to the Tribunal due to the pain and distress that it would cause him AW15.10 paragraph 31. That Mr Wild's distress is genuine and heartfelt is obvious from the terms of his statement AW15.10 paragraphs 30 to 31.

19.3.3.19. Mr Wild's evidence is important however. He describes how when he went into Glenfada Park North he thought he was in a safe, enclosed area away from the riot and trouble. He says that at that stage there was a "crowd of us in the car park just milling around." AW15.6 paragraph 9.

19.3.3.20. As the crowd was milling around he saw a soldier standing in the north west corner of Glenfada Park and another standing in the north east corner AW15.6 paragraph 10. He says the soldier at the northeast corner of the car park:

> "had the standard issue SLR. He was holding it with both hands with the butt of the gun at his hip and the barrel of the gun leaning against the wall of the wheelchair ramp which was in front of him. I don't know if anyone else saw this guy at the same time as me, but the minute I saw him I shouted "there's a limey!" or something to that effect. I shouted as a natural reaction and at the same second as I shouted I started running to the southwest corner at the exit to Abbey Park. It seemed like everyone else started running as well." AW 15.6 paragraph 11

19.3.3.21. Mr Wild says "everyone was running for their lives in sheer panic." He says that it seemed as though in the same second that he shouted "there's a limey", the soldier started firing with his gun resting casually on the wall. He was standing still and firing and Mr Wild thinks he fired two or three shots in all AW15.6 paragraph 12.

19.3.3.22. Mr Wild says that as he exited the south west corner of Glenfada Park North "the sound of gunfire from the army really started to increase. It seemed that things really kicked off then." AW15.7 paragraph 13

19.3.3.23. The material elements of Mr Wild's statement to this Tribunal also appeared in the note made by Peter Pringle which appears at AW15.12 to AW15.13 and is dated April 6. Mr Pringle has commented that Mr Wild "is very bright, good witness, in spite of his age. also very articulate". Mr Wild agreed with most of the content of that note but confirmed that his recollection is of seeing soldiers in both of the northern corners of Glenfada Park whereas Mr Pringle's note only mentions the one he saw in the north eastern corner AW15.9 paragraph 27.

19.3.3.24. Paul Coyle's written evidence, confirmed when he testified to the Tribunal, was:

> "As I was running I came into the Glenfada Park courtyard and looked to my right where, I noticed two paras entering Glenfada Park North from the north east entrance. There were two or three people in front of me running in the same direction at the time and there could have been some people behind me. Their faces were blackened or they were wearing gas masks and they were carrying SLR rifles. I only glanced at the soldiers but I remember that the two soldiers stood side by side and began firing their weapons at us from the hip. I put my head down and ran as fast as I could to the southwestern exit. I have a vague recollection of jumping over somebody in front of me who had fallen to the ground....In all, the soldiers fired between 10 and 20 shots at us as we ran across the courtyard." AC105.7 paragraph 14

19.3.3.25. When he gave evidence the following exchange took place:

"were you aware of anyone who looked as if they were getting ready to throw something at the army, at the soldiers?
A.No
Q. In the time that you were in Glenfada Park North, were you aware of anyone who looked as if they were getting ready to engage with the army?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Were you aware of anybody carrying anything that might have looked like a weapon?
A. No" Day 152/76/16 to Day 152/77/2

19.3.3.26. Mr Coyle also made the following comments about the numbers and location of people in Glenfada Park while he was there:

(i) As he ran out of the south western exit into Abbey Park he had "no recollection whatsoever of there being any people to his right as he looked towards the soldiers." Day 152/86/18 to Day 152/86/21

(ii) "When I left that gable and looked to my right there was nobody in Glenfada Park except two soldiers stepped into an alleyway and started firing from the hip." Day 152/100/18 to Day 152/100/21

(iii) "the image you have in your mind is quite a narrow file of people making their escape across the south side of the car park?
A.Correct.
Q. Not 10 abreast?
A.No
Q. Almost in Indian file?

A.No, no, might have been more in a bunch, you know.

Q. More in a bunch?

A.Yeah. My biggest fear was tripping the person in front of me.

Q. Do you remember colliding with people coming southwards having dropped Michael Kelly's body?

A.No." Day 152/101/24 to Day 152/102/13

19.3.3.27. In his statement to this Tribunal Dennis McFeely indicated that he was in Glenfada Park North and walking towards the southwestern exit when somebody shouted "there are the Brits". At this, he turned and saw that two soldiers had come in to the courtyard through the northeastern entrance. The soldiers came out from behind cars parked in the northeastern corner and started shooting from the hip in the direction of the person who had shouted the warning AM7.9 paragraph 15.

19.3.3.28. Mr McFeely says that he saw at least three people standing in front of the garden fences of the southern block of Glenfada Park North "The boys appeared to be petrified as the paras came in and began running parallel to the fence, towards the south western exit out of the courtyard. I heard two or three shots, and saw two of the boys fall." AM7.9 paragraph 16

19.3.3.29. Mr McFeely says that his "clear memory is of two" soldiers although he has "always believed that there may have been more" Day 409/105/25 to Day 409/106/1 and that they were shooting from the hip "that is my firm memory that they had their weapons low and at hip level" Day 409/110/6 to Day 409/110/7.

19.3.3.30. Mr McFeely also gives evidence that the soldiers had come some way into Glenfada Park when they started to shoot. He says that the soldiers were no more than 12 yards maximum from the people they shot Day

409/183/23 to Day 409/183/24. On this point his evidence does not accord with other evidence that the Tribunal has heard.

19.3.3.31. Mr McFeely also says there was a "bottleneck" in the SW corner of Glenfada Park Day 409/108/17 to Day 409/108/18. His impression was that the "bottlenecking" was caused by the group carrying Michael Kelly through the alleyway. He did not see that but he thinks it can be the only explanation Day 409/137/15 to Day 409/137/22. When shown P428 he said that there are perhaps more people on the pavement in the photo than he remembers but it is close to the scene that he saw Day 409/137/12 to Day 409/137/14.

19.3.3.32. John O'Kane remembers approximately 15 people trying to get through the southwestern exit when he was there Day 163/18/14 to Day 163/18/17. He has indicated that at some stage himself and his brother-in-law Gerry McKinney helped to carry a youth across Glenfada Park. In 1972 he said that as they ran through the opening at Glenfada Park "another youth was shot down who was running with us." AO48.40:

> "As we dropped the boy, I looked to my right and saw that three paras had entered Glenfada Park North, two via the north eastern entrance and one via the north western entrance. These Paras were wearing battle gear, headgear and visors and were carrying rifles. They were walking towards us, pointing their rifles ... Gerry and I ran with the crowd along the southern block of Glenfada Park North, towards the southwestern exit. The paras were firing, and I could hear the bullets whizzing past my head and hitting the wall to my left. I do not know if all three paras were shooting but I assumed they all were. I would describe the shooting as random rather than specifically aimed and quite heavy. Any one of us could have been shot. When we ran from the Paras we left the boy where he fell... AO48.3 paragraph 13.

19.3.3.33. Brendan Harley who was also fourteen years old on Bloody Sunday states that he took shelter in the alleyway at the southwest corner of Glenfada Park North. He was frightened and did not know where to go. He did not notice any soldiers in Glenfada Park North at the time that he was there but did say that at some stage there was a "bottleneck in the south west corner" AH35.3 paragraph 17. Giving evidence he confirmed that the scene in P428 resembles the "bottleneck" to which he was referring Day 121/139/1 to Day 121/139/13.

19.3.3.34. George Patrick Hillen also ran towards the alleyway leading to Abbey Park when he heard people shouting, "they are coming, they are coming" Day 164/30/17 to Day 164/31/1. There were approximately 40 to 60 people ahead of him in the alleyway trying to get away AH74.14 paragraph 19. As he tried to get through the alleyway he saw Jim Wray to his right AH74.14 paragraph 19. Mr Hillen says that he looked back into the car park and saw one soldier standing near the car parked to the north-east end of Glenfada Park North lift his gun and aim in his direction AH74.14 paragraph 20. At that Jim Wray said 'I'm hit' and fell forwards. Mr Hillen did not see him hit the ground. Mr Hillen has marked the soldier as being just to the north of the central reservation in Glenfada Park when he saw him AH74.20.

19.3.3.35. Benn Keaveney has identified himself in a photograph inside Glenfada Park North. This is photograph P685 which is also found at AK2.14. This photograph places Mr Keaveny in Glenfada Park North at a time after Michael Kelly's body is brought into the mouth of the car park from the Rubble Barricade but before the shootings in Glenfada Park itself.

19.3.3.36. Mr Keaveney stated that he saw two soldiers enter Glenfada Park North via the northeast entrance. He thought that one of the soldiers had a Sten gun because he seemed to be firing without aiming. This soldier was kneeling down when he fired AK2.9 paragraph 38. The other soldier fired from a standing position. Giving oral evidence Mr Keaveney confirmed that he did not see a riot of any kind taking place in Glenfada Park North Day 160/65/9 to Day 160/65/12.

19.3.3.37. Mr Keaveney then describes a person standing to his right being hit in the face or neck. The person had not been holding anything that looked like a weapon Day 160/15/20 to Day 160/15/22. Nor was he running or crouching Day 160/67/25 to Day 160/68/2. This person is likely to be Michael Quinn although when shown a photograph of Mr Quinn the witness was unable to say that it was in fact him AK2.9 paragraph 39. Mr Keaveney there were about 10-15 persons in this corner of the car park at this time and a further 5-8 persons in the square Day 160/20/4 to Day 160/20/21.

19.3.3.38. Mr Keaveney remembers two soldiers moving towards him at the southwest exit. He also saw a soldier move to the area of the gable end at the southeastern end of Glenfada Park North and seemingly fire into the ground AK2.9 paragraph 42.

19.3.3.39. Patrick Noel McLaughlin also ran towards the southwest alleyway with a group of people. Just before he reached the southwest exit, he saw 4 or 5 soldiers standing in the northeast alleyway of Glenfada Park North. The soldiers were pointing their rifles in the direction of the group at the southwest exit. He remembers one as being tall and thin. Mr McLaughlin managed to get through the alleyway. About 20 people were trying to get through in front of him Day 153/105/6 to Day 153/105/17. A few seconds later he heard 3 or 4 gunshots.

19.3.3.40. Gerry McLaughlin thought that the safest option would be to run through the alley directly in front of him into Glenfada Park South and on over to Lisfannon Park AM 332.3 paragraph 14. Before he made a move however a soldier appeared in the gap that he had just come through (i.e. the north east corner). As the soldier appeared he looked over his shoulder in the direction of Rossville St and yelled "here the bastards are, Sarge" AM 332.3 paragraph 15, Day 162/120/7 to Day 162/120/18, Day 162/122/1 to Day 162/122/7. As the Tribunal knows the Sergeant of the Anti-Tank Platoon was INQ 1694.

19.3.3.41. Mr McLaughlin began to run and others who had been taking cover at the southern gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North ran too AM 332.3 paragraph 17. Some people ran in the same direction, others ran to the right (i.e. SW alleyway) Day 162/122/18 to Day 162/122/24.

19.3.3.42. Before Mr McLaughlin reached the gap he glanced over his shoulder and caught a fleeting glimpse of possibly four or so helmets of soldiers running into Glenfada Park North at the NE corner. He does not know if more of them were already in Glenfada Park North but he did not stop to look. Mr McLaughlin could hear the sound of gunfire from behind him and it sounded so close he was certain they were firing AM 332.3 paragraph 18, Day 162/124/1 to Day 162/124/16.

19.3.3.43. Mr McLaughlin did not see anyone shot Glenfada Park although he thinks he heard a shout "I'm hit, I'm hit". This shout seemed to come from his right AM 332.3 paragraph 19.

19.3.3.44. He thinks that there were 40-50 people behind him, possibly more AM 332.3 paragraph 19, Day 162/125/5 to Day 162/125/6 and there was a lot of pushing and shoving to get through the alleyway which leads from the south east corner of Glenfada Park North into Glenfada Park South AM 332.3 paragraph 20.

19.3.4. Sheltering Elsewhere in Glenfada Park

19.3.4.1. Behind a Car

19.3.4.1.1. Hugh O'Boyle, who has identified himself with an arrow in AO1.21, indicates that he hid behind a car in the southeast corner of Glenfada Park (he has circled the car in AO1.11). "There was a young boy who was about 12 years old who was also crouched behind the car and I remember telling him to stay where he was and not to move. There were two or three others crouched behind the same car." AO1.5 paragraph 25

19.3.4.1.2. At some point after he crouched behind the car Mr O'Boyle saw three bodies in Glenfada Park:

> "Two of the bodies were lying very close together and were lying face down but leaning on their left sides...and the other body (which was furthest from me) was lying half on the pavement and half on the tarmac of the car park....I did not see these people running but they were definitely not on the ground when I first got behind the car. I remember that all three bodies were just crumpled on the ground. They were all lying face down and their heads were all pointing west towards Abbey Park and their feet were all pointing east towards the Rossville Flats." AO1.5 paragraph 27

19.3.4.1.3. Mr O'Boyle then describes how a soldier came into the car park and shouted "hands above your head" and motioned him forward Day 132/18/12 to Day 132/18/19. Mr O'Boyle indicated that when the soldier shouted he was in the northeast corner of Glenfada Park (at point K on his map AO1.18). He then said that a second soldier entered the car park shouted "do not shoot, do not shoot, press, press" Giving evidence Mr O'Boyle indicated that he was sure about that but that because he was concentrating on these two soldiers there may have been more soldiers in Glenfada Park that he was not aware of Day 132/19/12 to Day 132/20/19. Mr O'Boyle estimated that he was behind the car for between 5 and 15 minutes. Day 132/98/17 to Day 132/98/20

19.3.4.1.4. Anthony Coll, at the time of Bloody Sunday a fifteen year old schoolboy, may be the young boy to whom Mr O'Boyle was referring. Mr Coll has indicated that he hid behind a car in the southeastern corner of Glenfada Park North with a number of others AC84.6 paragraph 16. He says:

> "While I was behind the car I could hear shooting all the time. I could hear the crack-crack of rifle shots, non-stop. This was the heaviest shooting I ever heard in my life. It went on for 4 or 5 minutes and there was an awful echo. When I had been on the Rubble Barricade, I heard the clear crisp crack of rifle shots, but in Glenfada Park North the sounds were echoing. I assumed that soldiers were at both northern ends of Glenfada Park North, but I did not look to see where they were. Sometimes the shooting seemed to be at a distance and sometimes very near. I cannot say that the soldiers fired in the square, as I didn't see, but I would say that the sounds were echoing and they were different sounds to those that I heard when I was on the Rubble Barricade. They were so intense; I could hear the difference. I was not aware of any bullets hitting the car." AC84.6 paragraph 17

19.3.4.1.5. When the shooting stopped Mr Coll describes putting his head up and seeing soldiers advancing towards him. "They were in a line, coming down along the fence and yard on the east of Glenfada Park North. They were spreading out towards the middle of the courtyard as they moved towards me. They were also on the left hand side (west side) of Glenfada North, moving south and again spreading out. They were at both sides and were also cutting into the centre in a pincer movement. This was a deliberate approach. To the left of me were three or four people lying on the ground. I do not know if they were dead or alive, I had not seen them fall..." AC84.7 paragraph 21

19.3.4.1.6. When shown P438 Mr Coll said "I do recognise this scene and I was behind the car. As I have said, I recall two bodies close together but my recollection was of these together with one behind. However my recollection is that there was only one body where there are two shown on the photograph and two where there is one shown. I did not see them fall and I do not know who they are." AC84.9 paragraph 39(7).

19.3.4.1.7. Another witness, John Devine who did not give oral evidence to the Tribunal also claims to have been hiding behind a car in the southeast corner of Glenfada Park. While his statement to this Tribunal is confused in a number of respects Mr Devine did give two accounts in 1972. One was an interview to Kathleen Keville AD41.16 to AD41.19 and the other a "NICRA" statement AD 41.12. He told Ms Keville:

> "...so I threw myself behind a car and there were three other fellas behind the car too and we got up and run and about 12 paratroopers came in around the back way and opened fire on the three fellas". AD41.16

19.3.4.1.8. His "NICRA" statement indicates that:

> "Paratroopers came running round the corner, and in Glenfada Park took aim from about 10-15 yards and I saw them shoot 3 people" AD41.6

19.3.4.2. In Back Yards

19.3.4.2.1. John Michael McCourt was one such person. He said that when he entered Glenfada Park North there was "pandemonium" and people were running trying to run through the alleyway in the southwestern corner into Abbey Park Day 152/137/25 to Day 152/138/4. Mr McCourt went into the yard of 21 Glenfada Park North, which is on the western side of the park. He pulled a young boy in with him Day 152/139/22 to Day 152/139/24.

19.3.4.2.2. Mr McCourt has described how he lay behind the fence and called to people to lie down and stay still. There were some people lying outside the fencing, some lying in the square and some to his right towards the alleyway Day 152/139/25 to Day 152/140/7. Mr McCourt has two vivid memories from the time that he was in the yard. The first is of a soldier in the northeast corner in a kneeling position pointing his gun towards the southeast corner. The second is of soldiers at the southeast corner and people with their hands up against the wall Day 152/160/15 to Day 152/161/22.

19.3.5. The View From the Rossville Flats

19.3.5.1. Celine Dunleavy was in 11 Garvan Place (Block 1 of Rossville Flats) looking towards the Rossville Street entrance to Glenfada Park North. Her written evidence to this Tribunal indicated that she saw three men casually walking towards the southwest corner of Glenfada Park North AD168.3 paragraph 12. She heard shots fired and the men then lay prone on the ground AD168.4 paragraph 13.

19.3.5.2. Ms Dunleavy did accept however that in 1972 she had said that "The crowd started to run from Glenfada Park and I heard gunshots. Three fell" AD168.5. She also accepted that this account could be correct Day 132/177/10 to Day 132/177/19.

19.3.5.3. Sheila Stewart was also observing from a flat at the North end of Block 2 where she had taken shelter. The window from which the witness was observing was on the west side overlooking Joseph Place but with a view of Glenfada Park North AS 36.2 paragraph 9. She looked into Glenfada Park North and saw bodies there. She couldn't see any soldiers or people there. The bodies were all lying on their bellies and were lying with their heads pointing towards the west block of Glenfada Park North. They were not moving AS36.3 paragraph 14. Ms Stewart has marked the bodies as lines on a map attached to her statement AS36.10. Although these lines are not terribly clear they appear to have been marked in the area of the footpath at the south of Glenfada Park North and in the area of the south west corner.

19.3.6. Other Evidence

19.3.6.1. Numbers and Locations of People in Glenfada Park North

19.3.6.2. Although Julien Daly did not recall seeing anybody injured in Glenfada Park North he did say that there were approximately 12 to 20 people in total in the car park who were running or sheltering but not doing anything else Day 183/13/5 to Day 183/13/19.

19.3.6.3. Gerry Doran says that there was pandemonium in the car park and everybody was running in different directions Day 157/177/7 to Day 157/177/13. People were climbing into alcoves trying to get out of the way AD187.3 paragraph 16. Mr Doran ran across Glenfada Park North from east to west but did not find it difficult to push past any people to get through the alleyway Day 157/184/9 to Day 157/184/13. He did not see soldiers in Glenfada Park but the "general message was coming across that the army were in that area at that time" Day 157/184/17 to Day 157/184/20.

19.3.6.4. Joseph Martin Gallagher said that when he saw Mr Wray fall, there was still a number of people (possibly as many as 10 or more) around Glenfada Park North. They were all running Day 165/36/1 to Day 165/37/4.

19.3.6.5. Charles Lamberton said that he remembers there was a crowd of people at the gable end, and people continuing to enter the area through Columbcille Court and from Rossville Street AL3.13 paragraph 37. As the shooting in Rossville Street was continuing he made a run for the alleyway leading to Abbey Park where his aunt lived (Michael Kelly's body was still by the gable end at this stage). The alleyway was packed with people trying to get into Abbey Park, and as he joined the crowd he looked back into Glenfada Park North and saw a soldier standing at the northeastern entrance wearing a gas mask and holding his SLR in the air AL3.13 paragraph 38. As he continued to make his way through Mr Lamberton heard shots fired in Glenfada Park North, though he did not actually see the soldier fire AL3.13 paragraph 39.

19.3.6.6. John Gabriel McGee said that there were about 30 to 50 people in the car park of Glenfada Park North before the shooting started there. He says that the area near the ramps at Rossville Street was very congested AM224.4 paragraph 24.

19.3.7. Entry and Position of Soldiers

19.3.7.1. Don Campbell has said that he noticed about 10 soldiers running along behind the garages to the north of Glenfada Park. He thought the soldiers were sealing the whole lot of Glenfada Park off AC8.2 paragraph 6.

19.3.7.2. Gerry Campbell is a nephew of William O'Reilly who lived in Abbey Park. He says that he saw about 4 or 5 soldiers at the north west end of the western Block of Glenfada Park North though he does not say that they fired AC13.3 paragraph 15.

19.3.7.3. Eileen Collins walked through Columbcille courtyard and had got as far as the alleyway on the northwest side of Glenfada Park North when somebody shouted that she should not proceed any further as there were soldiers in the vicinity. She then saw seven or eight soldiers on the northern side of the northern block of Glenfada Park North AC72.2 paragraph 14 laughing and joking. They were all carrying rifles or baton guns. One of them attempted to stop her going any further, but she ran on Day 161/138/3 to Day 161/139/12.

19.3.7.4. Ms Collins made her way through the alleyway between Abbey Park and Glenfada Park North and along the western side of Glenfada Park North where she was stopped by a soldier who emerged from behind the wooden fence. She also saw one or two other soldiers behind this fence and a further few kneeling on the walkway over the northeast corner of Glenfada Park North AC72.3 paragraph 17. The latter soldiers were facing towards Rossville Street.

19.3.7.5. Daniel Pius Hutton saw soldiers positioned at the northeastern end of Glenfada Park North as he ran across the southern side of the car park hugging the fence AH93.5 paragraph 20.

19.3.7.6. While sheltering in Glenfada Park North Brendan McCrossen saw three soldiers come through an opening opposite him. He recalls two of the soldiers standing around and one of them grinning while lying back as if against a wall Day 062/159/21 to Day 062/160/18. This soldier was "fresh-faced, about five-foot nine or ten and wore a hat, not a helmet" Day 062/160/23 to Day 062/161/3. A young boy who had been hysterical shouted 'you murdering bastards' and the soldier who had been grinning started firing, from the hip and not taking aim. He fired two or three shots Day 062/161/16 to Day 062/162/5.

19.3.7.7. Patrick Moyne then looked up and saw soldiers – no more than about four - running into Glenfada Park from the north west and north east corners, with rifles at the hip. The first soldier came in from the northeast corner; one or two soldiers came in behind him Day 162/22/23 to Day 162/23/25. The same number came in from the northwest corner Day 162/24/1 to Day 162/24/3.

19.3.7.8. Mr Moyne recalls in particular the first soldier who came in from the northeastern corner ahead of the other soldiers. This soldier proceeded towards the centre of the square on his own in front of the others Day 162/24/4 to Day 162/25/18.

19.3.8. The shot fired at Eibhlin Mahon

19.3.8.1. Eibhlin Mahon (nee Lafferty) has told the Tribunal how, when she was in Abbey Park, she looked into Glenfada Park and saw three bodies lying around the footpath near the wooden fence. She also saw a soldier in a position almost in the centre of the car park AM17.4 paragraph 24. There were other soldiers at the northeast entrance. Mrs Mahon has also always had the firm impression that one of them was at the north western entrance AM17.4 paragraph 26.

19.3.8.2. As she went through the alleyway leading into the car park the soldier without the helmet turned his gun straight towards her as if taking aim and a shot rang out AM17.4 paragraph 25. Mrs Mahon did not see either a flash or recoil come from the soldier's rifle Day 166/54/14 to Day 166/54/18. A consistent account is found in her "McGovern interview" at AM17.24.

19.3.8.3. After the shot was fired and Mrs Mahon entered Glenfada Park North she again shouted out "first aid". A soldier shouted, "Your white coats are a target but your red heart is a better one". Mrs Mahon says she then threw down her bag in anger AM17.4 paragraph 26.

19.3.8.4. Mrs Mahon's evidence that a shot was fired at her is corroborated by Joseph Mahon who has given evidence that after the shooting in Glenfada Park and Abbey Park and while he was still lying on the ground as can be seen in P439 he noticed a soldier at the north east entrance to Glenfada Park. He believes that the soldier appeared to notice him moving, got down on one knee and aimed his rifle at him. However, a person Mr Mahon now knows to be Eibhlin Lafferty enters Glenfada Park North at this stage from Abbey Park shouting "First Aid—don't shoot" and a shot was fired Day 167/29/8 to Day 167/30/4.

19.3.8.5. Mrs Mahon's colleague in the Knights of Malta, Sean MacDermott, remembers Eibhlin Lafferty arriving in Abbey Park where he was treating Gerry McKinney. He thinks she had seen other bodies on the ground through the entrance to Glenfada Park North although he had not at that stage seen any other bodies himself. Ms Lafferty (as she then was) called to Mr MacDermott and started to walk into Glenfada Park North. She had her hands on her head and was shouting "First Aid – don't shoot" AM188.2 paragraph 9. Mr MacDermott followed her, also with his hands up. As they entered Glenfada Park he saw two or three sparks on the pavement or chips of concrete flying up. While he does not remember hearing the shots he remembers that the sparks or chips were very close to Eibhlin and on her left hand side (i.e. to the north of her) AM188.2 paragraph 9, Day 180/104/11 to Day 180/104/25.

19.3.8.6. Mr MacDermott saw two soldiers in the northeast corner of Glenfada Park North, taking cover by a wooden fence Day 180/105/19 to Day 180/105/25. One was standing with his rifle raised pointing towards him and Ms Lafferty. The other was kneeling with his rifle pointing towards them. The soldier kneeling was also laughing. Although Mr MacDermott previously said it was the soldier standing who was laughing he now remembers it to have been the kneeling soldier AM188.3 paragraph 10.

19.3.8.7. Seamus Doherty arrived in Sector 4 largely after the shooting was over Day 166/121/14 to Day 166/121/25. He said that as he ran towards Glenfada Park North through Abbey Park he saw the body of Gerry McKinney who was being given heart massage AD102.2 paragraph 8. Eibhlin Lafferty (as she then was) had been standing in front of him in the alleyway leading into Glenada Park North. He saw her move into the courtyard Day 166/127/12 to Day 166/129/6. There was still shooting and he agreed that someone may have tried to stop her going out. Miss Lafferty shouted 'stop that' whilst the shooting was going on. One or two shots were fired and she ran back into the alleyway Day 166/128/7 to Day 166/131/10.

19.3.8.8. Thomas Heaney was on the edge of the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South. As he was about to enter Glenfada Park North Eiblin Lafferty ran out in front of him. She threw her hands in the air and shouted 'first aid.' He could see a line of about a dozen British soldiers on the northern side of Glenfada Park North. AH56.10 paragraphs 25 to 27. Mr Heaney looked up and saw the soldiers in the firing position with their rifles pointed in their direction however he did not hear any shooting Day 140/42/2 to Day 140/42/13.

19.3.8.9. Journalist Nell McCafferty also describes an incident that corresponds to Mrs Mahon's evidence about being fired on. While Ms McCafferty readily admitted that her memory of the day was faulty she gave a description of a young woman who she saw walk from the eastern walkway linking Glenfada Park North with Columbcille Court towards the bodies that were lying in Glenfada Park. As she approached the middle of the courtyard the soldiers fired at her feet to "make her dance" M54.7 paragraph 14. Ms McCafferty had said in 1972 that the woman threw herself to the ground as one of them fired at her M54.14. When questioned by Mr Glasgow QC Ms McCafferty accepted that her current description of the female Knight of Malta being made to "dance" was somewhat colourful although she is certain that the soldiers fired at the woman Day 169/39/10 to Day 169/41/12.

19.3.9. Conclusions

19.3.9.1. It is submitted that as a result of the civilian evidence relating to the events in Glenfada Park North on Bloody Sunday the following conclusions can be drawn:

(i) No one in Glenfada Park at the material time was in possession of any sort of weapon;

(ii) None of those who were shot in Glenfada Park and no-one in their immediate vicinity was in possession of any sort of weapon when soldiers opened fire;

(iii) They were not carrying anything that could have been mistaken for such a weapon;

(iv) There was no hostile, aggressive or threatening behaviour displayed towards the soldiers who entered Glenfada Park;

(v) Those who were shot in Glenfada Park and those in their immediate vicinity did nothing that could in any way have been mistaken for hostile, aggressive or threatening behaviour;

(vi) Soldiers opened fire on a crowd fleeing for their lives;

(vii) At least one soldier fired from the hip;

(viii) Soldiers were aggressive, abusive and "hyped up";

(ix) When the shooting was over soldiers prevented the priests in the area from administering spiritual aid to the deceased and wounded

(x) When the shooting was over soldiers attempted to prevent first aiders in the area from attending to the deceased and wounded by opening fire on them.

19.4 Photographic Material

19.4.1. As the Tribunal knows, when compared to other sectors there is a dearth of photographic material relating to the events that took place in Glenfada Park. Having said that the material that does exist is of considerable assistance to the Tribunal in its task of finding out the truth of what happened on Bloody Sunday.

19.4.2. The Liam Mailey photographs EP23.10, EP23.11 and EP23.12 show scenes at the south gable wall of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North. Willie McKinney can be seen in EP23.10 moments before his death, standing over the body of Michael Kelly. The photographs show in the region of 30-40 people in the area at that time. The Tribunal knows that eventually 24 people were arrested from that gable end.

19.4.3. The provenance of P428 is not clear. It is listed on the Inquiry's index to Bundle P5 as having been taken by Fulvio Grimaldi, however such a photograph does not appear to fit with Mr Grimaldi's evidence of his movements. In addition Mr Grimaldi, when shown the photograph (which also appears at P869) indicated that he had only taken one photograph from the flats, that of the two army vehicles in Rossville Street which can be seen at P520 Day 131/186/23 to Day 131/187/14. It appears clear from these two photographs in any event that they are not taken from the same position.

19.4.4. P428, which has clearly been taken from a position in one of the flats in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats shows a considerable number of people at the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North and also a number of people in the alleyway that leads from the south western corner of Glenfada Park North through to Abbey Park. It shows three people in the centre of the southern end of the car park two of whom are clearly heading for that southwestern corner. It also shows, at the southern end of the group of people within the shelter of the gable end, a number of whom appear to be just about to take flight across the car park. There are no bodies in view in the photograph, either on Rossville Street or in Glenfada Park North.

19.4.5. It is not clear when this photograph was taken. It bears a handwritten note which reads "Sheltering in Glenfada as the Paras advance" thereby suggesting it was taken on Bloody Sunday. Only one other photograph in the Inquiry's possession bears a similar note which appears to be in the same handwriting i.e. P919. That photograph was taken by Sam Gillespie, but he was clear when he gave evidence that he the handwriting that appears on P919 is not his Day 142/54/9 to Day 142/55/12. He was also clear that he had not taken P428 Day 142/100/16 to Day 142/100/21.

19.4.6. In addition the following issues arise about this photograph:

(i) Michael Kelly's body is nowhere to be seen in the photograph. This means that either the photograph has been taken before he was shot or it was taken after and his body has been taken both away from behind the Rubble Barricade and also from the entrance on the eastern side of Glenfada Park. In any event his body is not visible in the photograph.

(ii) It is submitted that the former scenario is unlikely because the photograph shows no people behind the barricade on Rossville Street, as can be seen in P412 for example.

(iii) It is submitted that the latter is also unlikely because of the evidence before the Tribunal that by the time Michael Kelly's body was taken from where it lay in the entrance to Glenfada Park, as to which see P433, others had fallen at the barricade and should be clearly visible on this photograph.

(iv) The Tribunal also knows that a much smaller group than can be seen in P428 was arrested by soldiers in Glenfada Park and it is clear that there are no bodies lying in Glenfada Park in the manner seen in P439.

(v) The exact date, timing and provenance of this photograph are therefore unclear.

19.4.7. C.J. Donnelly's photographs show how Michael Kelly's body was carried from the gable end around the corner in a northerly direction and then across Glenfada Park North. They appear at P432, P436 and P437.

19.4.8. P438 and P439 were taken by Trevor McBride and show two bodies and the legs of a third lying along the south end of Glenfada Park. These photographs were not before Lord Widgery

19.4.9. The Tribunal has also seen the photograph at P440, also taken by Trevor McBride, which shows the bodies of Willie McKinney and Jim Wray being carried from Glenfada Park North. The Knight of Malta Eibhlin Mahon can be seen in the background of the photograph.

19.4.10. The figure on the far right hand side of P440 holding a cine camera is Michael Rodgers. His video footage of the bodies being taken out of Glenfada Park and into various houses in Abbey Park can be seen at V19/3.52 to 4.05.

19.5 William (Willie) McKinney

19.5.1 Personal Details and Background

19.5.1.1. William (Willie) McKinney was 27 when he was murdered. He lived at home with his parents and was engaged to be married. Willie was from the Creggan area of Derry and had six brothers and three sisters. He worked as a compositor at the Derry Journal and his colleagues there paid tribute to him in the first edition of the paper published following Bloody Sunday L130.5. Willie McKinney was a keen amateur photographer; he had taken his cine camera with him to the march at Magilligan the previous week and on the march on Bloody Sunday. The results of his filming on those and other days can be seen on Video 32. Willie McKinney had no criminal record or political affiliations.

19.5.2. Civilian Evidence

19.5.2.1. Willie McKinney went on the march with his next-door neighbour Peter Barnes Harrigan AH37.1 paragraphs 2 to 3. They were together on William Street AH37.1 paragraph 7 but as gas was fired decided to make their way out of the area. Mr Harrigan lost Mr McKinney on Macari's Lane as they attempted to escape the gas AH37.2 paragraph 10.

19.5.2.2. Father Andrew Dolan saw Willie McKinney on William Street H7.4 paragraph 7. Fr Dolan says that Willie and he helped a man who had been wounded on the forehead, probably by a stone, into a house at the junction of William Street and Chamberlain Street H7.5 paragraph 8. Fr Dolan then lost Willie back on William Street H7.5 paragraph 9.

19.5.2.3. Willie's brother George McKinney met him at the junction of William Street and Rossville Street where he believed he had come from further to the east along William Street AM301.2 paragraph 11. George gave evidence that himself and Willie ran a short distance up Rossville Street together before he lost him AM301.3 paragraph 13.

19.5.2.4. John McLaughlin, an old school friend of Willie McKinney's saw him standing "just past the end of Kells Walk" as the march proceeded down Rossville Street AM 339.1 paragraph 5. Mr McLaughlin asked Willie "whether he was going to hear the speeches at Free Derry Corner....He said that he wasn't and he wanted to hang around for a little while longer. He had his hand on his camera as he said this and I took it to mean he must be going to stay around to take some photographs. I shook his hand and got off." AM 339.2 paragraph 7.

19.5.2.5. Thomas Heaney was Willie McKinney's apprentice compositor at the Derry Journal. Heaney also saw Willie before he was shot on Bloody Sunday. Heaney saw Willie McKinney standing on some rubble near the northern gable of Glenfada Park South. Willie was looking north up Rossville Street towards the Army. He had a camera bag over his shoulder. The men spoke briefly. AH56.3 paragraph 14.

19.5.2.6. The evidence about the shooting of the three men who fell in Glenfada Park, including Willie McKinney, is rehearsed in detail at section 19.3 above. The only one of the three to survive, Joe Mahon, describes how he had run perhaps twenty or thirty yards along the southern end of Glenfada Park North when something hit him. He fell to the ground and lay sprawled on his stomach on the pavement with his head pointing towards the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South and his feet pointing back towards the Rossville Flats AM18.3 paragraph 13.

19.5.2.7. Mr Mahon also describes two other bodies lying near to him. One was two or three feet behind him and to his right, lying just to the north of the pavement. That man was also lying on his stomach with his face in Mr Mahon's direction. He wore glasses and a heavy dark coat. The man was still alive and called out "I'm hit – I'm hit!". Mr Mahon now knows this man to be William McKinney. AM18.3 paragraph 14. The second body was in front of him and he now knows it to be Jim Wray AM18.3 paragraph 15.

19.5.2.8. Don Campbell who knew Willie McKinney says that he met him first in Glenfada Park North. In the statement prepared by him for this Tribunal he describes seeing at least three people lying just to the south of the Rubble Barricade (one was obviously wounded), and hearing that another had been shot at the southern gable of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. He then says that himself and Willie McKinney went across to the Rossville Flats, and both then went to the forecourt of the Flats, in the area in front of the maisonettes at Joseph Place. They then noticed a commotion near the northern gable wall of Glenfada Park South and Willie McKinney wanted to return to take photographs. Mr Campbell describes how on three occasions Mr McKinney had to be restrained from running across Rossville Street as gunfire continued from further up Rossville Street. However he says Willie McKinney then got up and ran across Rossville Street and he saw him bend over the body of a man. Mr Campbell saw him fall over, but could not associate his falling with a particular shot AC8.2 paragraphs 6 to 15.

19.5.2.9. Mr Campbell says he ran across Rossville Street to Mr McKinney, who was conscious and complaining of pain in his back. Two other bodies lay in close proximity to him. Mr Campbell then helped carry McKinney to the O`Reilly home at 7 Abbey Park. AC8.4 paragraphs 18 to 19.

19.5.2.10. Mr Campbell's description of how and where Willie McKinney was shot is at odds with other evidence before the Tribunal including that of Joe Mahon. When he appeared before the Tribunal Mr Campbell confirmed that his statement to this Tribunal was the first he had made. He had not made a statement at the time and he agreed that being asked to recount his experiences some thirty years later was "very confusing" Day 157/79/4 to Day 157/79/8. He also agreed that his recollections are "extremely vague" Day 157/79/9 to Day 157/79/12.

19.5.2.11. Such was the vagueness of Mr Campbell's recollection that he could not even identify himself with certainty from the photographs and video that show Willie McKinney's body being carried out of Glenfada Park North Day 157/75/8 to Day 157/77/9.

19.5.2.12. John McGee arrived in Glenfada Park after the shooting had taken place. He > "came across two more men lying on the ground. The first was lying on the pavement and against the wooden fence which fronted the houses at the southern end of Glenfada Park North, approximately at the point marked B on the map (grid reference H14 on Q8) and the second, slightly to the east of the first, was at the point C (grid reference H15 on Q8). I recognised the man lying at point B as Jim Wray; he was at school with me. The second man was William McKinney." AM 223.5 paragraph 9.

19.5.2.13. Mr McGee also said, when shown P438 that he recognised that as the scene he saw in Glenfada Park "save that I only saw two and not three bodies." AM 223.5 paragraph 12.

19.5.2.14. Giving evidence Mr McGee indicated that he knew Willie McKinney Day 065/44/17. He also states

> "Jim Wray's body was taken away I think by St Johns Ambulance but I cannot be more precise. I then went over to William McKinney. I was still in a state of shock and I remember little of what I saw. I cannot be certain whether he was already dead when I reached him. My only clear recollection is picking up his glasses. I recall that some months after Bloody Sunday, when I learnt that he was William McKinney, I offered to return the glasses to his mother but was told not to do so by his brother as I would only be re-opening wounds." AM 223 .5 paragraph 11

19.5.2.15. He confirmed this account when giving evidence before the Tribunal Day 065/44/4 to Day 065/46/1.

19.5.2.16. Greg Doherty recognised himself on the Michael Rodgers cine film carrying a body towards a house in Abbey Park V19/3.31 to 4.30, AD66.5 paragraph 23. He had a white armband on and was wearing a tweed coat. He subsequently discovered that it was Willie McKinney's body he carried AD66.5 paragraph 24.

19.5.2.17. Michael Feeney also assisted in carrying Willie McKinney into 7 Abbey Park, the O'Reilly's house AF9.2 paragraph 9.

19.5.2.18. Anthony Martin saw a body in Glenfada Park North. The man was wearing a black coat and his glasses had fallen off. Mr Martin helped carry this man from the square to a house. He was still alive. Mr Martin now knows the man to be Willie McKinney Day 176/81/22 to Day 176/81/25.

19.5.2.19. Mr Martin did not go far into the square. He now thinks that the body had been lifted before he got to it and he then assisted Day 176/84/3 Day 176/84/6. He recognised himself in a photograph AM 24.15 carrying the body Day 176/81/15 to Day 176/81/17.

19.5.2.20. A number of people claim to have seen Willie McKinney shot in Abbey Park. This evidence has, in our submission, been demonstrated to be wrong. It appears that confusion has arisen due to the fact that Gerry McKinney and Willie McKinney were shot in close proximity to each other and that Willie McKinney was later carried into Abbey Park.

19.5.2.21. John Carr initially indicated that a man who answered the description of Willie McKinney had been shot as he ran towards the body of Gerry McKinney in Abbey Park. He accepted however when he gave evidence that the man he saw could have been Leo Young. Mr Young told the Tribunal that he was shot at by a soldier and fell to the ground Day 159/112/25 to Day 159/115/25. Mr Carr was thirteen years old on Bloody Sunday AC42.1 paragraph 1.

19.5.2.22. Maureen Mary Doherty is sure that before she saw Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey shot she "saw the young McKinney whom I knew because he worked for the "Journal" creeping along at the Glenfada Flats. He appeared to be injured but I did not see him shot. AD85.11"

19.5.2.23. In her statement to this Tribunal Mrs Doherty placed Willie McKinney crawling along the wall of the western block of Glenfada Park towards the entrance between Glenfada Park and Abbey Park AD85.2 paragraph 11. It is difficult to see how Mrs Doherty can possibly be correct about this in light of the other evidence, which puts William McKinney being shot inside the Glenfada Park courtyard apparently running towards the exit into Abbey Park.

19.5.2.24. When she gave oral evidence Counsel for some of the soldiers suggested to Mrs Doherty that the person she saw at this position might well have been Gerard McKinney however the witness maintained that the man that she saw in this position was Willie McKinney Day 161/112/18 to Day 161/113/19.

19.5.2.25. Noel Kelly initially thought that William McKinney, whom he knew, was one of the bodies he had seen in Abbey Park AK17.11 paragraph 13. However when he gave evidence he was shown photographs of William McKinney and James Wray being carried through the alleyway from Glenfada Park North into Abbey Park. Mr Kelly can be seen on the photograph as one of the people carrying Mr McKinney. He has identified himself in the photo at AK17.29. Having recognised himself in this photograph Mr Kelly agreed that he was mistaken in his belief that Willie McKinney was one of the bodies on the steps of Abbey Park Day 062/54/13 to Day 062/54/21.

19.5.2.26. A number of witnesses saw Willie McKinney in 7 Abbey Park. Bridget O`Reilly and her husband William both remember Willie McKinney being in their house AO66.3 paragraphs 20 to 21, AO69.3 paragraph 16. Mrs O'Reilly witnessed him being carried up the steps towards her house. He was taken into her living room and was alive at that stage but "pure grey" in colour. Two doctors and a priest treated him. He remained in the house for about a half an hour. He was not wearing his glasses AO66.3 paragraph 20.

19.5.2.27. When Jim McDaid a volunteer in the Order of Malta treated William McKinney in the O`Reilly home he was still breathing. Dr Raymond McClean was with Mr McDaid as was the Knights of Malta volunteer Sophia Marley. After some attempts on their part to control his blood loss Willie McKinney`s pulse stopped and Dr McClean indicated that he was dead AM166.5 paragraphs 33 to 36.

19.5.2.28. Dr McClean says he knew Willie McKinney slightly but did not recognise him as he treated him, probably because he was not wearing his glasses. While he was in 7 Abbey Park Willie McKinney spoke to Dr McClean telling him he was not in pain and did not require morphine. Within 20 minutes of first treating Willie McKinney, Dr McClean says that his pulse became weaker and he died AM105.6 paragraphs 34 to 35.

19.5.2.29. John Joseph Doherty whose brother worked with Willie McKinney also saw him in 7 Abbey Park AD75.3 paragraphs 12 to 13, .

19.5.3. Injuries Sustained

19.5.3.1. Dr Carson carried out the post mortem examination on Willie McKinney at 7.30pm on 31st January 1972. The report of Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan appears at E2.42, E2.43, E2.44, E2.45 with the accompanying diagram at E2.77. The morgue photographs are at P128 to P142.

19.5.3.2. Willie McKinney sustained four gunshot wounds. A bullet entered the right side of his back and exited the left side of his lower chest. A bullet also entered the palm side of his left arm exiting at the back of that arm.

> "Assuming the Normal Anatomical Position William McKinney was shot in the right back and the bullet has passed horizontally (or very nearly so) through the body and exited on the left side of the chest" E2.0045

19.5.3.3. The cause of Willie McKinney's death was stated to be Laceration of Diaphragm, Right Lung, Liver, Spleen, Stomach and Colon due to Gunshot wound of Trunk D0281.

19.5.3.4. Gunshot wounds were present as follows on the trunk:

(ii) An oval exit wound 20mm x 16mm on the left side on the anterior axillary line, centred 8 cm below the nipple and 10cm to its left D0281; P134, P138, P142.

19.5.3.5. The track connecting these two wounds through the body passed in a horizontal plane from back to front and from right to left at an angle of 33 degrees to the coronal plane D0281.

> "The entrance wound was located on the right side of the back, 9cm below the lower end of the shoulder blade and 13 cm from the mid-line. The bullet had then penetrated the 10th right rib and crossed the lower chest and upper abdomen before fracturing the 6th and 7th left ribs and leaving the left side of the trunk well below the armpit. In its course through the trunk the bullet had lacerated the diaphragm, the right lung, the liver, colon, stomach and spleen. These injuries were associated with bleeding into the chest and abdominal cavities and death, which would probably have been rapid but not instantaneous was due to their combined effects. " D0285

19.5.3.6. Further gunshot wounds were present as follows on the right upper limb:

i) An irregular elliptical wound 15mm x 10mm vertically on the flexor surface on the forearm, centred 7cm above and 2 and a half cm in front of the tip of the radial stolid D0282, P135.

ii) A gaping elliptical wound 8cm x 3cm vertically on the back of the lower forearm, its lower end 2 and a half cm above the tip of the radial styloid D0282, P136, P142.

19.5.3.7. The two wounds were connected by a ragged track through the tissues of the forearm associated with a comminuted fracture of the lower third of the radius D0282.

19.5.3.8. Dr Carson concluded in his opinion on the Autopsy findings that "the two wounds on the left forearm appeared to have been caused by the same bullet which had penetrated the trunk, the bullet having entered the front of the lower forearm near its radial border and shattered the lower third of the radius before leaving the back of the forearm." D0285

19.5.3.9. Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan conclude that it is equally possible that the arm wounds were caused by the same bullet or by a second bullet.E2.0045

19.5.4. Removal to Hospital

19.5.4.1. Willie McKinney was carried from where he fell in Glenfada Park P439 into William and Bridget O'Reilly's house at 7 Abbey Park AO66.3 paragraph 19; Day 172/22/2[3]. There he was tended to by Dr McClean AM105.6 paragraphs 34 to 38, and Fr Mulvey H15.4C to whom he spoke, before being taken to Altnagelvin hospital in an ambulance driven by Norman McElhinney ED37.5, ED37.6, attended by Willy Wilson ED37.7, ED37.8 and accompanied by Knights of Malta Volunteer Sophia Marley ED37.8. The ambulance arrived at Altnagelvin Hospital at 1720 hrs D500.27.

19.5.5. Forensic Evidence

19.5.5.1. No explosive residue was detected during tests on Willie McKinney's clothing in 1972 D0265.

19.5.5.2. In 1972 the tests showed lead particle density on Willie McKinney's coat to be within the normal range D0269. No lead was detected from the hand swabs tested D0269. Dr Martin concluded that Mr McKinney had not been using a firearm D0270.

19.5.5.3. Dr Lloyd has noted that the filter papers relating to the test of Willie McKinney's blazer (worn inside his coat) in 1972 are labelled to the effect that two lead particles were present and that the filter papers are marked accordingly E1.0047 paragraph 8.7.6.a. Dr Lloyd has suggested two possible reasons for the presence of lead particles here. The first is that transfer of particles may have occurred when Constable McCormick retrieved Willie McKinney's wallet from his body for identification purposes E1.0047 paragraph 8.7.6.a. Secondly, Willie McKinney's job as a compositor may have brought him into contact with type metal, a lead based alloy. E1.0047 paragraph 8.7.6.c.

19.6 Joseph Mahon

19.6.1. Personal Details and Background

19.6.1.1. Joseph (Joe) Mahon was 16 when he was shot on Bloody Sunday. At the time he was single and lived in the Creggan area of Derry with his parents. Having left school in January 1972, he was about to begin an apprenticeship as a joiner, which he could not then take up due to the injuries he sustained on Bloody Sunday.

19.6.2. Civilian Evidence

19.6.2.1. The general civilian evidence relating to those who were shot in Glenfada Park has already been seen above. There are however a number of individuals who were in a position to give specific evidence about Joe Mahon's movements on Bloody Sunday as they knew him at the time and recognised him when they saw him at certain stages of the day.

19.6.2.2. The Tribunal does of course have the evidence of Joe Mahon himself and he has said that he was on the march on Bloody Sunday, joining the crowd at Bishop's Field before the march set off. When he got to William Street he heard a rumour that two men had been shot nearby and that they had been taken to Shiels' house in Columbcille Court. Mr Mahon walked over to Shiels' house but did not go in AM18.1 paragraphs 1 to 6.

19.6.2.3. When he was outside Shiels' house Mr Mahon heard others shouting "The Paras, the paras, they're coming in!" AM18.1 paragraph 6. At that Mr Mahon decided to leave the area. He did so via Columbcille Court, entered Glenfada Park at the northwest corner and saw a crowd of people gathered at the south gable end of the eastern block. AM18.2 paragraphs 7 to 8. He stood in that area for a while AM18.2 paragraph 10 although he was some way from the gable end within the square Day 167/18/6 to Day 167/18/12.

19.6.2.4. Mr Mahon said that when he walked through the square initially before any shooting had started there were quite a lot of people there Day 167/51/22 to Day 167/52/1. While he indicated that there were "crowds of people" in Glenfada Park at that stage Day 167/53/11 Mr Mahon was clear that "there were not that many walking about, the most of them were gathered behind the gable" Day 167/53/17 to Day 167/53/18.

19.6.2.5. Mr Mahon then describes a group of four or five soldiers entering Glenfada Park North from the north eastern entrance AM18.2 paragraph 12. One of the soldiers, who wore a distinctive jacket, fired a number of shots from the hip. This soldier came in first and was followed by at least three or four others AM18.2 paragraph 12.

19.6.2.6. Mr Mahon then said that he ran from where he was standing on the eastern side of Glenfada Park towards the gap between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South, banging on the fences of the houses on the southern side of the courtyard as he ran to see if any were open for him to take cover AM18.2 paragraph 12. When he saw the soldier described above shooting from the hip he had already started to run Day 167/20/16. When asked, Mr Mahon indicated that he was running with a group of about fifteen, twenty people or more Day 167/20/23 to Day 167/21/3 although while he was running and the paratrooper was firing he does not recall that there were any other people in the body of the square Day 167/20/19 to Day 167/20/22. His impression was that the soldiers' shots were just directed into the crowd Day 167/21/13.

19.6.2.7. When he had run perhaps twenty or thirty yards Mr Mahon felt something hit him. He fell to the ground and lay sprawled on his stomach on the pavement with his head pointing towards the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South and his feet pointing back towards the Rossville Flats AM18.3 paragraph 13.

19.6.2.8. Mr Mahon also describes two other bodies lying near to him. One was two or three feet behind him and to his right, lying just to the north of the pavement. He was also lying on his stomach with his face in Mr Mahon's direction. He wore glasses and a heavy dark coat. The man was still alive and called out "I'm hit – I'm hit!". Mr Mahon now knows this man to be William McKinney. AM18.3 paragraph 14. The second body was in front of him and he now knows it to be Jim Wray AM18.3 paragraph 15.

19.6.2.9. Mr Mahon indicated that in the photographs P438 and P439 he is the person located closest to the fence with James Wray's legs to the right of the photograph and Willie McKinney in the gutter below the pavement Day 167/22/15 to Day 167/22/25

19.6.2.10. When Mr Mahon was questioned by Mr Glasgow QC the following exchange took place

"Q. If there were as many as 15 or 20 people running with you, I do not suppose you could pretend to be able to help the Tribunal with what all of them were carrying, if anything; you could not have seen what they all had in their hands?

A. They were not all in a big tight bunch, there was a group running.

Q. Were there a number of people to your right, do you remember, you refer to the fence; were you quite close to the fence?

A. On the footpath.

Q. Right on the footpath and some of the people who were running on your right between you and the soldiers?

A. Very few

Q. Quite a few?

A. Very few.

Q. But you recall some people between you and where the soldiers were coming from and ultimately firing from?

A. There was more people behind me to the right than there was to my right.

LORD SAVILLE: Again it is the Chairman: do you recall as you were running along there anyone between you and the soldiers that you saw?

A. The only person that could have been was the person fell beside me, that is the only person I would have seen.

MR GLASGOW: To be sure about that: the person who was also shot?

Yes..." Day 167/64/18 to Day 167/65/23

19.6.2.11. When asked, Mr Mahon said that there had been no confrontation with soldiers going on in the park at the time he was shot, nor did he see anybody with a rifle or a gun or any fizzing object or a bomb. In fact he said he did not even see any stones thrown Day 167/23/20 to Day 167/24/5

19.6.2.12. He now says that after he had been shot he could see between five and six soldiers in Glenfada Park Day 167/35/5 to Day 167/35/10

19.6.2.13. Mr Mahon also describes how, when he was lying on his side with his face looking towards the north, he saw a soldier walking towards the body of Jim Wray. This was the same paratrooper with the distinctive jacket that he saw shooting from the hip before Day 167/24/19 to Day 167/25/9.

19.6.2.14. Mr Mahon then describes how he saw Jim Wray's shoulders move and the soldier pointed his rifle at Jim Wray's back and fired two shots. He saw Jim Wray's coat move twice Day 167/25/10 to Day 167/25/23.

19.6.2.15. Mr Mahon readily agreed that he had not described the shooting of Jim Wray in that way when he spoke to the Sunday Times in 1972. He indicated forcefully that this had been because he feared for his life given that reporting it to the police would mean making a statement to the security forces, one of whose members he had seen shoot Jim Wray while he was lying on the ground Day 167/79/15 to Day 167/80/5.

19.6.2.16. Mr Mahon then indicates that the soldier walked into the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park and he then heard about three or four more shots coming from both that area and Rossville Street Day 167/26/3 to Day 167/26/13. This soldier went into Abbey Park alone and no other soldier followed him Day 167/26/14 to Day 167/26/18. After some time he came back through the gap, took his helmet off and wiped the back of his forehead with his hand. Mr Mahon could see that he had blond hair and indicated that he had recognised him in Video 3. An image of the soldier he recognised is now preserved as AM18.26 Day 167/26/19 to Day 167/27/20.

19.6.2.17. The soldier shouted out "I've got another one". Mr Mahon then heard someone shouting "We're pulling out Dave" although he does not know if this remark was directed to the soldier with the blond hair or someone else. Day 167/27/21 to Day 167/29/7

19.6.2.18. A short time afterwards Mr Mahon saw the same soldier standing in the northeast corner of Glenfada Park North. He thinks the soldier must have seen him move because he aimed his rifle at him. Mr Mahon then turned to look the other way and he heard a woman's voice shout "Don't shoot – first aid" and then he heard a shot. He later discovered the voice was that of Eibhlin Lafferty Day 167/29/8 to Day 167/30/4

19.6.2.19. Giving evidence Mr Mahon identified himself as the person being carried out of Glenfada Park in Video 19 V19/3.52 to 3.59, Day 167/30/15 to Day 167/30/25.

19.6.2.20. Other witnesses who say that they saw and recognised Joe Mahon on Bloody Sunday include William Arthur Downey who indicates that he saw Mr Mahon, who he knew, at a point south of William Street (grid reference K10 on Q8). He says

> "We used to play football together and I think we were in the same class at St Columb's College. I joined the group of lads as they were discussing the shooting, earlier in the day, of two people in William Street. In particular, they were discussing where the shots came from. My recollection is that the general consensus was that the shots were fired by soldiers on the north side of William Street in the vicinity of the GPO Sorting Office." AD136.1 paragraph 7

19.6.2.21. Eibhlin Mahon (nee Lafferty) a Knight of Malta on duty on Bloody Sunday was in Abbey Park after the shootings took place. She says

"As I was there, I could see other bodies to my right, lying in Glenfada Park North. There were I think three bodies lying in the area marked on the photograph attached [along the south side of the car park]. The bodies were lying around the footpath near the wooden fence. As I came out of the alleyway that led into Glenfada Park towards them, I saw a soldier, about halfway across Glenfada Park North, down on one knee at the point marked D on the map attached. There were three or four other soldiers standing at the northeast entrance to Glenfada Park North. The soldiers were agitated and hyped up. I could tell this by the tone of their voices as they were calling to each other. They seemed quite tense and were looking around them as if they were calling. I couldn't say what they wearing, I think it was army uniforms. I didn't look closely at them. There were no other civilians in the car park." AM17.4 paragraph 24

19.6.2.22. She describes how she was shot at as she attempted to reach those bodies and later says

"I shouted for someone to get the bodies and people emerged and gathered around them. The bodies were lifted away. I just wanted them to be taken. I was the first person there. Joseph Mahon who is now my husband, was one of the men lying there. I remember being in a house after that and asking him whether he was alright, but I don't know now which house that was. I also remember him asking for water. I asked him was he alright and he said he was." AM17.4 paragraph 27

19.6.2.23. Seamus Doherty has told the Tribunal that he too was in Abbey Park after the shootings took place. He saw Gerry McKinney's body there AD102.2 paragraph 8. From his position in Abbey Park Mr Doherty says he > "...took a look diagonally across Glenfada Park North and saw Joe Mahon lying at point G [grid reference H14 on Q8] which was east of where I was standing. When I first saw Joe Mahon he was at point G but I cannot remember whether he had crawled there or not. I do not remember seeing anyone else who was lying on the ground in Glenfada Park North – there may have been but I cannot remember. I knew that it was Joe Mahon because I knew him well. I remember that he had light brown short hair. I do not remember what he was wearing. I cannot remember seeing Joe Mahon being carried to an ambulance and do not remember seeing an ambulance anywhere. People around me thought he had been shot in the leg but I did not see his injury." AD102.2 paragraph 9

19.6.2.24. Giving evidence Mr Doherty indicated that while he was not clear about exactly where he had seen Joe Mahon he saw him he was clear that it was Joe Mahon he had seen and that Mr Mahon was in Glenfada Park North Day 166/122/10 to Day 166/124/5. He later confirmed that he had seen Joe Mahon being helped out of Glenfada Park and it was only then that he recognised him Day 166/124/124/6 to Day 166/125/12.

19.6.2.25. Noel Kelly who has given evidence to the Tribunal also recognised Joe Mahon that day. Mr Kelly's evidence was that when he first saw Mr Mahon he was crawling in the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park.

"I knew the first man by sight – he was my foreman's son, and afterwards people told me he was called Joseph Mahon. He was tall and thin with light brown hair. I cannot remember what he was wearing. He had his hand up, he was crawling towards me and I could see that he had been shot. I heard after that he'd been shot in the hip...." AK17.12 paragraph 14

19.6.2.26. However Mr Kelly admitted that he was confused about some aspects of his evidence, he had for example also indicated that he was sure he saw Willie McKinney lying parallel to Gerry McKinney on steps in Abbey Park. Having been shown the photograph P440 however, and recognising himself there as one of the group carrying Willie McKinney from Glenfada Park North, he admitted that he must be wrong in this recollection Day 62/54/13 to Day 62/55/6.

19.6.2.27. Thomas McGlinchey has also given evidence that he saw Joe Mahon after he had been shot. He says

"I then walked south along the west side of the west block of Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South along the route indicated which led me to Fahan Street West. As I was walking that route I saw Joe Mahon lying on the ground with a Knight of Malta tending to him. Joe Mahon was a friend of mine. Somebody said that Joe has been shot although I do not remember seeing any blood, but I do recall that he was having serious trouble breathing; I don't think he was conscious. When I visited the site I was unable to mark where I saw Joe but it was somewhere between positions E and F (grid reference E15 on Q8) on the plan." AM250.3 paragraph 13

19.6.3.1. Joe Mahon sustained one gunshot wound. The bullet entered over the right pelvic bone, lodged in the muscles beyond the pelvic bone and was extracted during surgery on the evening of 30th January 1972. As a result of his injuries Mr Mahon had to have a massive blood transfusion. D0824.

19.6.3.2. During surgery it was discovered that Mr Mahon had "multiple injuries of the small gut which were sutured and he also had a resection and anastomosis of the bowel. The bullet was taken out from the exit wound (from the subcutaneous tissue) at the level of the lateral anterior superior iliac spine" D0819

19.6.3.3. On 10th February 1972 consultant surgeon at Altnagelvin Hospital Mr H.M. Bennet wrote to Chief Superintendent Lagan about Joe Mahon's injuries in the following terms

> "The bullet was a high velocity one and such missiles when they penetrate abdominal viscera, carry a notoriously bad prognosis. I am not therefore prepared at this moment to state the possible outlook for this patient and he may well have a very stormy period if indeed he survives at all." D0824

19.6.3.4. Mr Mahon's recovery was hampered by a pelvic abcess, which was drained on 16th February 1972 D0819. He remained in hospital for almost one month, being discharged on 29th February 1972.

19.6.3.5. The bullet removed from Mr Mahon was a badly damaged 7.62 calibre rifle bullet that was "fired from a weapon rifled with six grooves right hand twist. This is consistent with a British Army type self-loading rifle." D0827. After comparing the bullet with test bullets from the rifles made available by the soldiers for testing Dr Martin could not confirm that the bullet either had or not been fired from one of these weapons D0827.

19.6.3.6. Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan examined the shirt worn by Joe Mahon on Bloody Sunday and found damage consistent with the passage of a bullet through clothing that had been folded and tucked into trousers E10.009; F7.1, F7.2, F7.3, F7.4, F7.5, F7.6

19.6.3.7. However, they concluded, "The damage to the bullet is unlikely to have been caused during its passage through the clothing or the body. It is most likely that this bullet has struck an intermediate object prior to hitting Joseph Mahon" E10.010

19.6.3.8. It may be that the bullet that struck Joe Mahon first passed through Willie McKinney.

19.6.4. Removal to Hospital

19.6.4.1. Joe Mahon was carried from where he fell in the car park P439 through the alleyway at the south west corner of Glenfada Park North and into McCourt's house at [redacted] AM 141.2 paragraphs 6 to 8[4] where he was treated by a nurse, Jackie Cassidy AM18.15, Day 167/38/24. He was taken from the area in the ambulance driven by Ronald Moore ED36.8, ED36.9 attended by John Rutherford ED36.10, ED36.11, along with the bodies of Gerry McKinney and Michael Kelly, arriving at Altnagelvin Hospital at 1700 hrs D500.27.

19.7 Joseph Friel

19.7.1 Personal Details and Background

19.7.1.1. Joseph (Joe) Friel was 20 when he was shot on Bloody Sunday. He was single and lived with his parents in the Rossville Flats. He worked as a tax inspector for the Inland Revenue and as such had security clearance to enter the Embassy building. Joe Friel had no criminal record or political affiliations.

19.7.2. Injuries Sustained

19.7.2.1. Joe Friel sustained two gunshot wounds. A bullet entered the front of his chest at the right of the sternum a little below the clavicle and a larger, more ragged exit wound showed that it had exited the front of his chest at almost the same position to the left of the sternum. The bullet therefore travelled from right to left across Joe Friel's chest. D0780.

19.7.2.2. Mr Friel underwent surgery on the evening of 30th January 1972. He was described by the consultant surgeon at Altnagelvin Hospital, Mr H.M. Bennett, as "an extremely lucky young man" D0778. Joe Friel was discharged from hospital on 10th February 1972 D0778.

19.7.3. Civilian Evidence

19.7.3.1. The Tribunal has received both written and oral evidence from Joe Friel himself.

19.7.3.2. Mr Friel is another of the wounded who was shot in Glenfada Park North. At the time of Bloody Sunday he lived in 9 Donagh Place in Block 1 of the Rossville Flats with his family. Mr Friel went on the march on Bloody Sunday joining it in the area of the Bogside Inn. As he was walking down Rossville Street and came to the last "threepenny bit" between Rossville Street and Joseph Place he heard shooting. It was sharp cracks, all single shots and there did not appear to be a pattern. He could not tell where the shots were coming from AF34.2 paragraph 8

19.7.3.3. Upon hearing the shooting Mr Friel ran back towards the Rossville Flats in an attempt to reach home. He aimed for the telephone box at the south gable end of Block 1 and when he reached it moved around the corner to the entrance at the southwestern corner of Block 1. Due to the volume of people in the entrance he could not get in and so he crossed the street to Glenfada Park AF34.2 paragraphs 10 to 12.

19.7.3.4. There is some confusion as between Mr Friel's various accounts about what route he then took before arriving in Glenfada Park North. His current recollection however is clear that he did make it to the southern gable end of Block 1 and tried, unsuccessfully, to get back to his parents' flat through the entrance to Block 1 on Rossville Street Day 155/42/7 to Day 155/46/10.

19.7.3.5. Mr Friel now remembers cowering down behind the cars that can be seen parked in the southeastern corner of Glenfada Park North in P428 Day 155/53/20 to Day 155/55/13. At that stage he indicated that he could not really see what was going on in the body of the car park, the only thing he was aware of was people milling about on the footpath along the back fence - "nothing untoward" Day 155/55/16 to Day 155/55/20.

19.7.3.6. At one stage Mr Friel, along with a number of others in that area, ran towards the exit in the southwest corner of Glenfada Park. When he was about eight to ten feet away from the alleyway he heard a shout from someone he now knows to have been Gregory Wilde and he turned and looked over his right shoulder AF34.2 paragraphs 14 to 15. He saw soldiers about five or six feet into Glenfada Park coming from the northeastern corner. Mr Friel describes one soldier at the front with two or three others right behind him. The soldier in front was moving forward with his gun in front of him at just above waist height and was moving it from side to side. He was firing randomly AF34.3 paragraph 16. Mr Friel was then shot.

19.7.3.7. He describes hearing three shots

> "bang, bang, bang. I felt a slight blow to my body no harder than a tap by a couple of fingers. My first thought was that I had been hit by a rubber bullet: I could not take it in that I had been shot. I looked down and could see blood. Within a second or two a large gush of blood came out of my mouth. I shouted "I'm shot, I'm shot!". I staggered but I do not think I hit the ground. Three fellows grabbed me and took me, as marked by an arrow on the map, between Glenfada Park and Abbey Park, to the Murray's house, [redacted] The three men who helped me were Leo Young (John Young's brother), Eugene McGillan and Jackie Chambers." AF34.3 paragraph 17

19.7.3.8. Giving evidence Mr Friel indicated that when he was running across Glenfada Park South and was fairly close to the alleyway there were perhaps six or seven people in front of him Day 155/113/10 to Day 155/113/18. He confirmed that when he saw the soldiers there was no one else between him and the soldiers "...There was a direct line. I could see directly over towards the soldier..." Day 155/76/9 to Day 155/76/10.

19.7.3.9. He further indicated that the soldier who fired had his gun halfway between his waist and his arm Day 155/59/13 to Day 155/59/21 and that the memory of that soldier "firing from the hip" is one of the few memories that is "totally crystal clear because, as I said, I came that close to being killed, that could have been my last vision on this entire earth" Day 155/116/1 to Day 155/116/3.

19.7.3.10. Mr Friel now thinks that he must have fallen in Glenfada Park "because I got the impression of getting nearly trampled to death with people running over me" Day 155/63/10 to Day 155/63/12.

19.7.3.11. Mr Friel then describes how three people helped him to the Murray house in Lisfannon Park. In his statement he said that the three people who helped him were Leo Young, Eugene McGillan and Jackie Chambers but giving evidence he indicated that > "those names were supplied to me later on by Leo Young. I met Leo Young either in the meeting at the Ardoyne Hotel or it may have been the day I was up at the Widgery because Leo Young was up the same day as me. I later found out that Jackie Chambers did not in fact carry me. I have only recently found that out, by the way.

>
> Q. Were these people three people whom you knew before Bloody Sunday?
>
> A. I knew none of them.
>
> Q. Leo Young, but not the others?
>
> A. None of them, I did not even know Leo Young.
>
> Q. You did not know any of them?
> A. No." Day 155/60/5 to Day 155/60/18

19.7.3.12. Mr Friel has been consistent in his accounts that he was not carrying anything in his hands when he was shot Day 155/76/21 to Day 156/77/1. A transcript of a television interview with Mr Friel when he was in hospital can be found at X.1.4.5. In that interview he was asked "Were you carrying a gun?" and his response was "You are joking, the only gun I ever had was when I was a wee'un". Giving evidence Mr Friel confirmed that this meant a toy gun and that he would not have known "one end of a gun from another" Day 155/80/11 to Day 155/80/19.

19.7.3.13. Gregory Wild who was fourteen years old at the time of Bloody Sunday has made a statement to this Tribunal. He describes how when he went into Glenfada Park North he thought he was in a safe, enclosed area away from the riot and trouble. He says that at that stage there was a "crowd of us in the car park just milling around." AW15.6 paragraph 9. He has identified himself as the young boy on the extreme right hand side of photograph EP27/10.

19.7.3.14. As the crowd was milling around he saw a soldier standing in the north west corner of Glenfada Park and another standing in the north east corner AW15.6 paragraph 10. He says the soldier at the northeast corner of the car park

> "had the standard issue SLR. He was holding it with both hands with the butt of the gun at his hip and the barrel of the gun leaning against the wall of the wheelchair ramp which was in front of him. I don't know if anyone else saw this guy at the same time as me, but the minute I saw him I shouted "there's a limey!" or something to that effect. I shouted as a natural reaction and at the same second as I shouted I started running to the south west corner at the exit to Abbey Park. It seemed like everyone else started running as well." AW 15.6 paragraph 11

19.7.3.15. Mr Wild says "everyone was running for their lives in sheer panic." He then states "Running next to me was a man who I didn't know at the time but found out later was Mr Joseph Friel." He says that it seemed as though in the same second that he shouted "there's a limey", the soldier started firing with his gun resting casually on the wall. He was standing still and firing and Mr Wild thinks he fired two or three shots in all. "Mr Joseph Friel, as I now know him to be, got shot. It was as if he didn't know he'd been hit because he ran on a few paces before he fell. I know Mr Friel had nothing in his hands. He was running like the devil, just like me and everyone else because we were all shit scared." AW15.6 paragraph 12.

19.7.3.16. Mr Wild says that as he exited the south west corner of Glenfada Park North "the sound of gunfire from the army really started to increase. It seemed that things really kicked off then." Mr Wild then says that he "ran straight past Mr Friel and on through the gap between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South into Abbey Park." AW15.7 paragraph 13.

19.7.3.17. Mr Wild had "never met Joseph Friel before Bloody Sunday but I went to see him in hospital the day after. He said I had saved his life that day because I shouted "there's a limey" as he started to run, but I knew he had it the wrong way around; he saved my life because he was older than me and had longer legs and could run faster so he got ahead of me and got shot. He took a bullet in the chest but I was a kid and if I had taken that bullet I would have taken it in the head." AW15.10 paragraph 28. Mr Wild therefore has particular reason to remember Joseph Friel.

19.7.3.18. Mr Wild spoke to Peter Pringle about what he saw on Bloody Sunday and Mr Pringle's note of that conversation appears at AW15.12 to AW15.13 and is dated April 6. Mr Wild appears to agree with most of the content of that note AW15.9 paragraphs 25 to 27 which records him as saying that on the other side of the alleyway "friel became hysterical and shouted i'm shot, i'm shot" AW15.12.

19.7.3.19. Another witness, Patsy Bradley, was in Glenfada Park and began to run towards the southwestern alleyway. He says he > "was approximately in the position marked E on the plan [in the area of the alleyway at the south western corner of Glenfada Park North at grid reference G14 on Q8]when a man running in front of me fell forward. He was slightly in front of me about a yard or so with his back to me and to my right. The man did not look over his shoulder before he fell. At this time I could hear bangs which I thought were rubber bullets. I cannot recall if he cried out, but he possibly did. At first I thought he had been hit by a rubber bullet. Everything happened very quickly and he seemed to fall after I had turned into Glenfada Park North. AB68.3 paragraph 22

> "Another man whom I did not know and I helped him to his feet. I would have fallen over him had I not stopped to pick him up. At the time we would not leave wounded people to be arrested by the army. I recognised the injured man as Joe Friel, I knew him from school even though he was a few years younger than me. I did not look around when I was in Glenfada Park North and there were certainly no soldiers in front of us (I was still facing the western exit). I can only assume Joe Friel was shot from behind. There was blood coming from Joe Friel's mouth and from his neck and the top of his chest. I realised he had been hit by a live round. I cannot remember what he was wearing. He fell onto the black tarmac of the car park and not the pavement. As I lifted Joe Friel we heard a different sharper noise than the bangs I had before. I can only assume this was live rounds and these were coming from somewhere behind (to the north of us)" AB68.3 paragraph 23.

19.7.3.20. Mr Bradley confirmed this account when he gave oral evidence before the Tribunal. He also said that he did not look around to see where the firing had come from and therefore did not see soldiers in Glenfada Park. He also said that he assumed that the army had come on down Rossville Street and that the "different sharper noise" he heard was live rounds coming from somewhere behind him although he could not tell whether they were coming from inside Glenfada Park or not Day 153/131/19 to Day 153/133/23.

19.7.3.21. Mr Bradley then says

The other man and I carried him in stretcher fashion through the western exit of Glenfada Park North. We had no problem getting him through the exit, people were running on either side of us and the crowd was thinning out. I went first carrying his legs and the other man had Joe under the arm pits, supporting Joe's head and shoulders. We could have been doing more harm than good by running with him and possibly should have left him. There were definitely no soldiers in Abbey Park AB68.3 paragraph 24

19.7.3.22. He then describes how Mr Friel was brought to a house in Lisfannon Park, the location of which is marked on AB68.12. Giving evidence Mr Bradley indicated that he does not remember Mr Friel talking at all while he was with him

> A. I do not remember him talking. There was a lot of blood coming out of his mouth.
> Q. He was obviously in considerable pain?
> A. Yes.
> Q. You do not remember him talking for example, in any coherent way; nothing that has lingered in your memory from that?
> A. Afterwards I realised he must have been choking on his blood because the back of my coat was sparked with blood."
> Day 153/153/17 to Day 153/154/1

19.7.3.23. Mr Bradley has marked the spot where Joe Friel fell in Glenfada Park with a blue arrow on AB68.13. He says

> "I can state categorically that Joe Friel was not carrying any form of weapon when he was shot. I did not see any civilian gunmen or bombers. There weren't any people in Glenfada Park who were throwing stones." AB68.5 paragraph 37.

19.7.3.24. Leo Young had come through Columbcille Court and Glenfada Park to the Old Bog Road. In his statement to this Tribunal he says that he > "looked towards the south western alleyway leading from Glenfada Park South to the Old Bog Road (Fahan Street West). That alleyway was about 40 or 50 yards away from me. I saw a man come through the alleyway – he appeared to be one of the last out. He was not making as much headway as everyone else. There was a small wall of a garden (about 2-3 feet high) immediately to his right as he came out of the alleyway and he stumbled against it and appeared to collapse. He was obviously struggling. I could still hear the bangs of what I thought were rubber bullets, lots of squealing and people shouting "they're shooting". I thought at that time that the man had been hit by a rubber bullet. I had not heard any shots and the shouts that the army were shooting had not really registered with me. I could see that the man needed help but it never crossed my mind that he might have been shot. I ran over to him, across the Old Bog Road. A couple of other people also reached him. He was down on his side and he was conscious. Four of us picked him up. I carried him by one leg, someone had his other leg and the others were holding his arms. We carried him back across the Old Bog Road and into a house in Lisfannon Park."

AY1.2 paragraph 9

19.7.3.25. Mr Young confirmed this location as where he had first seen this man when he gave oral evidence Day 388/26/15 to Day 388/26/17. However, attached to his statement is a note with a map relating to Mr Young, which appears to have been compiled by Peter Pringle AY1.26 to AY1.27. On the map that appears at AY1.27 can be seen a location marked with a cross and a note that says "saw Joe Friel here". The point marked is just on the Abbey Park side of the alleyway that runs between Abbey Park and the southwest corner of Glenfada Park. That Mr Friel was at this location is clear from his own evidence and that of Gregory Wild and Patsy Bradley above. It follows therefore that either

i) Mr Young is mistaken about where he first saw Mr Friel or;
ii) that at the time when Mr Young first saw Mr Friel he was already being assisted by others and had come along the walkway that runs between the west side of the western block of Glenfada Park South and the Abbey Park houses.

19.7.3.26. When he gave evidence Mr Young was asked about this as follows

"Q. When you saw Mr Friel was there anyone already assisting him or was he on his own, or what?
Well, when I looked round and the - there was a lot of people coming from that area, some of them were coming out where C is (i.e. on Fahan Street West at the south west corner of Glenfada Park South) and some of them were coming out below that again where there is another entrance, but when I seen Mr Friel, he seemed to be the last was coming out, whether the crowd brought him with them and then sort of scattered, but he, he seemed to be under pressure at that time.
Q. Did you see anybody else looking after him or helping at that point or –
A. No, well the time I got to him then, there were three other people that had given me a hand to carry him across" Day 388/25/24 to Day 388/26/14

19.7.3.27. Mr Young remained clear however that the point he had marked on the map accurately reflected where he first saw Mr Friel Day 388/26/15 to Day 388/26/14.

19.7.4. Removal to Hospital

19.7.4.1. Joe Friel was shot in Glenfada Park and taken to the Murray house at [redacted] where he was treated by Eibhlin Lafferty of the Knights of Malta AF34.3 paragraphs 17 to 18. He was then placed in a car and driven towards Altnagelvin Hospital by CIV 1, accompanied by Manus Morrison and Eugene O'Donnell. AF34.3 paragraph 21.

19.7.4.2. The car, and that carrying Gerard Donaghey which was just behind, was stopped at the check point on Barrack Street AF34.3 paragraph 22 at which point CIV 1 and Mr O'Donnell were arrested and Mr Morrison ran away.

19.7.4.3. Soldier 104 got into the car and drove it onwards a short distance with Mr Friel still inside. He was then joined by a police officer, Constable

Malone and they drove to the bridge location JM5.9, Day 219/119/9 to Day 219/120/6. Joe Friel was attended to at this location by Soldier 138 and then conveyed to hospital in an army vehicle with Mr Patrick Campbell AF34.4 paragraph 25.

19.7.4.4. The specific allegation made by Soldier 104 against Joe Friel is examined in detail in section 19.19.1.

19.8 Patsy O'Donnell

19.8.1 Personal Details and Background

19.8.1.1. Patsy O'Donnell was 41 on Bloody Sunday. At the time of Bloody Sunday he was employed with roofing contractors, North West Ashphalt. Patsy married his wife Kathleen in 1955. In 1972 they had 6 children Donna aged 15, Caroline aged 14, Tricia aged 13, Marcelline aged 9, Philip aged 5 and Linda aged 4.

19.8.1.2. Patsy went on the March on Bloody Sunday with a group of friends, while his wife Kathleen went with her sisters. He was not a regular marcher, although he had been on Civil Rights Marches previously.

19.8.1.3. Patsy O'Donnell was one of those shot and wounded in Glenfada Park. After being shot he was unable to return to work for 6 – 8 months as a result of his injuries. He did eventually return to his profession as a roofer and in 1978 started up a roofing contractors business for himself, a business which he continues to run to this day.

19.8.2. Civilian Evidence re Shooting and Assault

19.8.3. Relevant Photographs

19.8.3.1. P772.2 and EP22/2 show Patsy O'Donnell on the march. These are the only photographs in which Patsy O'Donnell is seen on Bloody Sunday.

19.8.3.2. P316 and P317 are photographs which show the rear of the houses on the eastern side of Glenfada Park North and show the wooden fence just around the corner from the gable wall where Patsy O'Donnell took shelter from the soldiers firing in Glenfada Park North.

19.8.3.3. Although there are a series of photographs showing those arrested along with Patsy O'Donnell at the gable end wall, including Father Bradley, and Winifred O'Brien. Patsy O'Donnell has not been identified in these photographs. EP2/9, EP2/10, EP2/11, EP2/12, EP19/3, EP20/3, EP20/4

19.8.3.4. EP5/19 shows City Cabs, EP5/20 shows arrestees spread-eagled on the wall beside City Cabs. EP5/21 and EP5/22 show one of the arrestees, Charles Canning spread-eagled against the wall, soldiers from 1 Para and people at City Cabs including, Alex Bradley.

19.8.3.5. Finally, Patsy O'Donnell can be seen on Video 3 at 8.40 – 10.40

19.8.4. Bloody Sunday

19.8.4.1. Patsy O'Donnell was one of those wounded in Glenfada Park North. His injury unlike that of the others shot in Glenfada Park North is an injury which came from the left because he was cowering near the Glenfada Park North gable wall, presenting his left side to the soldier who shot him.

19.8.4.2. Having been shot Patsy O'Donnell was arrested and was eventually released at City Cabs having been assaulted by a soldier who hit him over the head with a baton. This section deals not merely with the shooting of Patsy O'Donnell, but also his arrest and the assault sustained by him at City Cabs.

19.8.4.3. Patsy O'Donnell made a number of statements in 1972. It appears that he was interviewed by Detective Inspector Gillanders on more than one occasion and that Detective Inspector Gillanders took notes of what Patsy O'Donnell said on the 4th February 1972 which can be found at ED61.4. He made a statement for the Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association, dated the 7th February 1972 which can be found at AO35.7 to AO35.8. Patsy O'Donnell made a statement to Detective Inspector Gillanders of the RUC dated the 13th February 1972 which can be found at AO35.9. He was also interviewed for the Sunday Times and the notes of the interview which also include notes of an interview with Winifred O'Brien, can be found at AO35.20 to AO35.25. Patsy O'Donnell also gave evidence to the Widgery Tribunal, his statement to the Treasury Solicitor can be found at AO35.18 to AO35.19 and the transcript of his evidence can be found at WT6.41 onwards.

19.8.5. Shooting

19.8.5.1. By and large the accounts given by Patsy O'Donnell are the same. There are some discrepancies in relation to whether Patsy O'Donnell saw the bodies on the Rubble Barricade prior to being shot and whether the soldier who shot him aimed in his direction prior to shooting him. This will be dealt with below.

19.8.5.2. Patsy O'Donnell attended the Civil Rights March on Bloody Sunday. At about the time that rioting was taking place at Barrier 14 Patsy O'Donnell stood around the junction of William Street and Rossville Street. He saw rubber bullets being fired by the army and smelt the CS gas before moving to the wasteground at Eden Place. AO35.1 paragraph 5

19.8.5.3. While at Eden Place Patsy O'Donnell heard that people had been shot on William Street and that they had been taken to a house in Columbcille Court. Out of curiosity he went to the area of Columbcille Court before deciding to make his way to Free Derry Corner to hear the speeches. AO35.1 paragraph 6 to 7

19.8.5.4. On his way from Columbcille Court to Free Derry Corner he arrived in Glenfada Park North. He believes that shortly after entering Glenfada Park North people at the gable end wall of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North began shouting. "They seemed to be huddled down and were taking shelter behind the gable end wall and everyone appeared frightened. The shouts were "Get down – they're firing!"" AO35.1 paragraph 8

19.8.5.5. At that stage it appears that the shooting he described was taking place on Rossville Street and that the soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon had not yet moved into Glenfada Park North. AO35.2 paragraph 9

19.8.5.6. Patsy O'Donnell took shelter just around the corner from the gable end wall. He decided to make his way to Abbey Park, but he saw 3 or 4 people running in that direction and saw one of them fall. He then decided to return to the location behind the fence just around the corner from the gable end wall. Day 156/115/1 to Day156/115/5, Day 156/116/13 to Day 156/117/4 A photograph of the location where he took shelter can be found at AO35.6

19.8.5.7. Mr. O'Donnell became aware of soldiers in Glenfada Park North the position of the soldiers seen by him are marked 'A' and 'B' on the map attached to his statement at AO35.26.

19.8.5.8. There were two other people taking shelter at this location, a woman Winifred O'Brien and another man. It would appear both from the account given by Winifred O'Brien and the account given by Patsy O'Donnell that while trying to take shelter, he threw himself on top of Winifred O'Brien. AO35.5 paragraph 33, AO35.7, AO4.3, Day 156/122/25 to Day 156/123/7

19.8.5.9. In the evidence he gave to this Tribunal Mr. O'Donnell did not see the soldier who fired at him but he describes the shooting as follows:
"I then heard a loud crack. The first sensation that I can recall was a burning feeling in my right shoulder. I did not feel a thump. I was wearing a heavy overcoat and I thought that my coat was on fire. I put my left hand up to my shoulder and there was blood on it. I was not really in pain at the time but I realised that I had been shot. Some smoke came from my shoulder. A chip came out of the wall behind me." AO35.2 paragraph 14

19.8.5.10. He was unable to state which had come first the burning sensation in his shoulder or his awareness that the bullet had hit the wall behind him. He accepted the possibility that the bullet which hit him might have ricocheted off the wall and that portions of the shrapnel hit his shoulder. Day 156/118/12 to Day 156/118/18

19.8.5.11. Mr. O'Donnell then moved around the corner to the gable end wall. Winifred O'Brien gave him a hanky to put in his shoulder. AO4.3 Fr. Bradley also became aware of Patrick O'Donnell wounded beside him at the Glenfada Park North gable end at that time. H1.10 paragraph 25

19.8.5.12. In 1972 in the accounts he gave about the shooting Patsy O'Donnell described having seen bodies behind the Rubble Barricade and it appears that this is what triggered his decision to make a break for Abbey Park. AO35.18 paragraph 3, ED61.4, AO35.20, WT6.41 E-F He does not refer to seeing the two bodies in his statement to NICRA, although he does seem to suggest that he got as far as the edge of the Rubble Barricade. AO35.7

19.8.5.13. Mr. O'Donnell does not now recollect seeing bodies behind the Rubble Barricade. Day 156/121/2 to Day 156/121/10 AO35.4 paragraph 30 Nonetheless from the evidence of Fr. Bradley it is inevitable that Patsy O'Donnell was at the gable end of Glenfada Park North after John Young, Michael McDaid and William Nash had been shot and killed at the Rubble Barricade and before those bodies were removed by soldiers. H1.10 paragraph 25

19.8.5.14. Also from the notes taken by Detective Inspector Gillanders it appears that Patsy O'Donnell saw a soldier aiming in his direction and it was that, rather than the young man stumbling as he made his way towards Abbey Park which caused him to take shelter behind the fence. Day 156/122/20 to Day 156/123/19 Patsy O'Donnell accepted that it was possible that this was the sequence of events.

19.8.5.15. A number of newspaper accounts about the incident were put to Patsy O'Donnell by Mr. Glasgow QC who then suggested that "you did not see a soldier taking aim before you were shot?" to which Patsy O'Donnell replied "No, not really, no." Day 157/12/20 to Day 157/12/22

19.8.5.16. However, Mr. O'Donnell was then questioned further by Mr. Clarke QC on behalf of the tribunal about the statement made to the RUC which stated as follows:

> "As I ran along I could still hear shooting. I stopped for a second and across Glenfada Park in the direction of Columbcille Court and about 30 or 40 yards from me, I saw a soldier with a rifle in his hands. He appeared to be aiming in the direction of where I stood. There was a woman just in front of me and we both dived down behind a wooden fence and I kept the woman pushed down as far as possible. I heard a crack and felt pieces of cement of the wall behind me hit me around the shoulders." ED61.4

19.8.5.17. As it was pointed out to Mr. O'Donnell that account is consistent with the suggestion that prior to being shot he saw a soldier aiming in his direction, he was then asked further about his recollection of that sequence

> "Well, seeing – I seen the two soldiers.
> What happened immediately after you saw them?
> Well, we did dive down behind the wooden fence . .
> When you saw the two soldiers, what were they doing?
> Well, they – the two that I seen they had their guns at the ready.
> When you say "at the ready" - -
> Well, they were pointing, I would not say they were shoulder-high, they were –
> They were in what position?
> Well, they seemed to be heading into Glenfada Park." Day 157/26/8 to Day 157/27/6

19.8.5.18. Certainly it appears that even now Patsy O'Donnell has some recollection of the soldier who shot him, prior to his being shot and it would seem from the first account given by him in 1972 that he saw that soldier aiming his weapon in his direction just before he was shot.

19.8.5.19. The only other discrepancy is that it appears from the interview conducted by the Sunday Times journalists that Patsy O'Donnell was aware of two shots rather than one. Patsy O'Donnell's current recollection, consistent with all of the statements he made and his evidence to Lord Widgery is that he was only conscious of 1 bullet. Day 156/125/12 to Day 156/125/15

19.8.6. Arrest

19.8.6.1. Almost immediately after Patsy O'Donnell was shot, while sitting on the ground behind the gable wall, soldiers came around the gable wall told everyone to get up and marched them out through the north-eastern exit of Glenfada Park North. AO35.3 paragraphs 16 to 17

19.8.6.2. Patsy O'Donnell gave evidence that he had difficulty in keeping his hands above his head because of his injury, and that the soldiers shouted abuse at him and constantly poked him, although they had been made aware by Fr. Bradley that he had been shot and injured. AO35.3 paragraph 18 H1.42 In the statement made by him to the RUC on the 4th February 1972 Patsy O'Donnell describes both physical and verbal abuse. He stated that "I was unable to put my right hand up due to the injury and the soldiers kept hitting me on the back and telling me not to turn round. I eventually managed to get both hands up against the wall. A soldier behind me pulled my head back by the hair and said to me "You are a Fenian bastard and I hate Fenian bastards". He also said "You have a bullet in you and when we get you down to the barracks you'll have another one in you. You mark my words". He said to other soldiers, "Chaps there will be blood flowing tonight"." ED61.5

19.8.6.3. In his NICRA statement Patsy O'Donnell stated that he was butted with a rifle in the wrist in order to keep his hands above his head, he has no current recollection of that incident although he thinks it may well have happened. AO35.4 paragraph 30

19.8.6.4. Patsy O'Donnell along with the other arrestees from the Glenfada Park North gable end was marched under a set of stairs at the north end of Kells Walk. He can be seen on Video 3 at [REFERENCE] marching under the stairs. They were then marched to City Cabs on William Street and told to stand against the wall there. AO35.3 paragraph 19

19.8.7. Assault by Soldier

19.8.7.1. Patsy O'Donnell then describes an incident where he was assaulted by a soldier hitting him over the head with a baton. A number of persons witnessed this assault. Inasmuch as there are discrepancies between the various accounts given below it is our submission that the account given by Patsy O'Donnell is to be preferred.

19.8.7.2. Patsy O'Donnell's evidence about the incident was as follows:

> "we were marched up to a taxi stand . . . People were told to stand up against the wall there. There were a few taxi drivers outside and one of them seemed to know that I had been shot or at least that I was hurt. He told me to go into the taxi office and I went in and sat down. . . . Very shortly afterwards, soldiers burst in by either pushing or kicking the door and ordered me to get out. I think I jumped up as they came in. As I went out of the door I was hit very hard on the head although I could not see by whom. The soldier behind me was pushing me and I certainly didn't expect to get that whack that I got. I may well have been hit with a baton, and the wound required eight stitches. I still bear the scar. Because I was hit so hard, my recollection of what followed is hazy." AO35.3 paragraph 19

19.8.7.3. Fr. Bradley gave an account of this incident to Lord Widgery in 1972:

"When I went round the corner I saw about five people against the wall outside City Cabs in William Street, and I recognised the person who had said to me he had been shot in the shoulder. What happened to him? A. He had his arms up against the wall with his legs out, and there was a soldier standing behind him. He half turned away from the wall, took his arms down and half turned away and as he turned towards the soldier the soldier hit him on the head with a baton.

Q. What did you do? A. I went over to him. I pulled back his coat and pointed out to the soldier that he had been hit by a bullet in the shoulder.

Q. What happened? A. There was an officer standing at the corner of William Street and Rossville Street, I knew he was an officer because he had a red beret on. I went over to him and said to him "Can I speak to you?" He said come back when this is all over, I don't have time now. And then I said to him "This man has been hurt or has been shot". And he asked the soldier if he had been shot, and the soldier looked at him and nodded his head, and he said "Let him go" . . . and I put him into a car that was parked on William Street." WT4.39D to 4.40A

19.8.7.4. Fr. Bradley gave a virtually identical account to the Sunday Times in 1972, which was put to him in the course of his evidence to this Tribunal and which he accepted as correct. Day 140/151/23 to Day 140/153/29

19.8.7.5. An account of the incident is also given by another of the arrestees James Doherty, who stated:

"I was aware of a man on my right walking west along William Street. I only caught a glimpse of him out of the corner of my eye since I was afraid to turn my head. I heard one of the soldiers shout "stop him" and was aware that he was stopped by soldiers and questioned. He must have then been allowed to carry on wherever he was going because I heard the same voice shout out again "I told you to stop that fucking man". He must have been grabbed by the soldiers and I am under the impression he was dragged into a building on the south side of William Street . . . I could hear someone squealing and shouting from that area and I also recall a priest shouting "he has been shot in the arm". I could not see the priest and I am unable to say what he looked like but I knew he was a priest because I heard him say so" AD69.4 paragraph 27

19.8.7.6. There are also accounts given by three persons who worked in City Cabs, Alex Bradley, who ran City Cabs and Denis McLaughlin who and Frankie Boyle both of whom worked for City Cabs.

19.8.7.7. Denis McLaughlin gave an account in which an older man in his late 30's went into the back room along with 3 soldiers. He was unable to recollect whether the soldiers had dragged him in or followed him in. More soldiers came in and the man was dragged out of the back room. One of the soldiers struck the man with a baton. AM327.1 paragraphs 5 to 7 The man was subsequently taken away in a taxi.

19.8.7.8. According to Alex Bradley, an incident occurred in which a youth, described by him as about 18 years old ran into the office of City Cabs, having apparently been shot in the shoulder. He was followed shortly afterwards by some soldiers. Frankie Boyle went at one of the soldiers with a brush shaft and was struck on the top of his head with a baton, causing blood to run down his forehead. A large number of people then got into a taxi, including the youth who had been injured, who was able to make his way out with everyone else unnoticed by the soldiers. AB55.3 paragraphs 16 to 19

19.8.7.9. When shown a photograph of Patsy O'Donnell in the course of his oral evidence, Alex Bradley stated that a number of people had run into City cabs and Patsy O'Donnell was only one of those people. Day 98/163/17 to Day 98/164/3 He accepted that he could have been confused about the person's age. Day 98/167/5 to Day 98/167/20

19.8.7.10. By any reckoning this was a pretty confused account, particularly given his description of Frankie Boyle having sustained the assault and injury described, Day 98/171/12 to Day 98/171/15 an assault and injury which Frankie Boyle maintains he did not sustain. Day 122/80/21 to Day 122/81/1 It is noteworthy that his description of the assault on Frankie Boyle and the fact that arising from it "blood started to run down Frankie Boyle's forehead", AB55.4 paragraph 18 is identical to the manner in which Patsy O'Donnell sustained his injury and its consequences. As Patsy O'Donnell stated in the statement made by him on the 4th February 1972 "blood streamed down my face." ED61.5

19.8.7.11. Alex Bradley's first statement about the events of Bloody Sunday was made in May 1999. It is in our submission clear that Alex Bradley while he may well have witnessed the incident involving Patsy O'Donnell has confused this with other incidents. In this respect it appears that on any account the scenes at the taxi-rank were somewhat chaotic after the shooting with "people were running from Rossville Street into William Street and into our office. They wanted to hire taxis and get away. People were shouting and crying and were very distressed." AB55.2 paragraph 12 He also refers to taking 14 people away in his car after the incident. AB55.4 paragraph 19 While he acknowledges now that 14 was an exaggeration he still gives evidence that about 9 people got into the car all frightened and trying to get away from William Street. Day 98/158/14 to Day 98/158/21

19.8.7.12. Frankie Boyle gave an account in which someone was dragged into the back office, followed shortly thereafter by a soldier. There was an altercation between the soldier and Frankie Boyle, in which Frankie Boyle pointed a sweeping brush at the soldier. The soldier then left the office having been called out by other soldiers. AB48.1 paragraph 21 to AB48.4 paragraph 22 Frankie Boyle then took the boy from the back office up to the Creggan. He maintains that "Patrick O'Donnell came to find me after Bloody Sunday to thank me. He said that I had saved his life." AB48.4 paragraph 23

19.8.7.13. Frankie Boyle's account makes no reference to seeing Patsy O'Donnell or anyone else being assaulted by a soldier. It will be our submission that the evidence establishes conclusively that he was assaulted in the manner he describes.

19.8.7.14. Frankie Boyle's credibility has already been significantly undermined by having given an entirely implausible account of Michael McDaid having been arrested, placed in the rear of a Saracen, a soldier having fired a gas canister into the Saracen, Michael McDaid having escaped and then having been shot in the back as he ran away. AB48.2 paragraph 14 to AB48.3 paragraph 16

19.8.7.15. Frankie Boyle apparently witnessed this incident from Kells Walk and the Saracen he describes was at the south side of the Rubble Barricade. Day 122/61/20 to Day 122/63/16 Aside from the fact that Michael McDaid was not shot in the back, according to Frankie Boyle Michael McDaid was in his continuous sight from the point at which he was arrested to the point at which he was shot. Day 122/65/8 to Day 122/65/17 This evidence is totally undermined by the photographic evidence. Moreover the other two persons who apparently escaped from the rear of the Saracen have never come forward.

19.8.7.16. Frankie Boyle of course gave evidence about this matter for the first time in 1999 and it is submitted that at best his evidence is confused. In any event it is our submission that while he was undoubtedly at the taxi-rank and would appear to have had some altercation with soldiers, given his evidence about Michael McDaid, little weight can be attached to his evidence unless corroborated by other witnesses.

19.8.7.17. It is our submission that accounts given by Patsy O'Donnell and Fr. Bradley, accounts consistent with each other and the accounts they gave in 1972 are to be preferred. They are also of course broadly consistent with the account given by James Doherty.

19.8.7.18. Moreover, the account given by Patsy O'Donnell, Fr. Bradley and James Doherty is consistent with the evidence of INQ25 who described an assault on an injured man in similar terms. In his statement to this Tribunal INQ 25 stated that:

> "I can recall seeing a chap who appeared in a dark overcoat. He was short, he looked a bit grey and was in his forties. He was trying to get into the taxi rank. I remember there being something of an incident because one of my colleagues was trying to stop him. I think he thought that the man had been arrested but had then left the holding area. The soldier hit the man on the head with his baton, but not too hard.
> A baldish priest intervened and I remember him saying, "For God's sake, he's been shot!" At that stage, the man opened up his overcoat and I could see that he was wounded. I remember seeing blood in one of his armpits, but I cannot remember whether it was his right arm or his left arm, but it was around the armpit/shoulder area." C25.3 paragraphs 26 to 27

19.8.7.19. In oral evidence INQ25's account was really on all fours with that of Patsy O'Donnell. He was of the view that Patsy O'Donnell had managed to get into the taxi office and was being brought out by one of INQ25's colleagues who then hit him on the head. Day 300/89/16 to Day 300/89/22

19.8.7.20. He gave evidence that Patsy O'Donnell was struggling violently in order to get away, albeit he acknowledge that Patsy O'Donnell was "obviously in a lot of pain and distress". Day 300/90/12

19.8.7.21. While he continued to maintain that the man had not been hit very hard he acknowledged that Patsy O'Donnell's head was split open as a result of the blow. Day 300/90/18 to Day 300/90/25

19.8.7.22. While seeking to argue that the force used was minimum INQ 25 accepted that:

i) Although at that stage he had not seen Patsy O'Donnell's injury, he could see he was in considerable pain and distress. Day 300/91/10 to Day 300/91/15

ii) All of the arrestees were under control. Day 300/91/16 to Day 300/91/18

iii) There were 6 soldiers in a position to restrain the man if necessary. Day 300/91/19 to Day 300/91/25

19.8.7.23. It is our submission that Patsy O'Donnell was a credible witness, who has given a consistent account of his shooting and assault in 1972 and to this tribunal and that his evidence about how he sustained his assault, as corroborated by Fr, Bradley, James Doherty and INQ25 is to be believed.

19.8.7.24. On the evidence before the Widgery Tribunal and this Tribunal Patsy O'Donnell was shot while unarmed. He was shot by a soldier positioned further north in Glenfada Park, in all probability as he stated in 1972, a soldier who aimed in his direction from a position 30 to 40 yards from him in the direction of Columbcille Court. As a result of the shooting he sustained a shoulder wound. Having sustained an injury and while in some pain and distress he was arrested by soldiers who had no justification for arresting him. He was subject to vile abuse by soldiers and sustained assaults because of his inability to raise his arms above his head. Despite the fact that soldiers were aware that he had been injured no steps were taken to obtain medical treatment for his injuries. Instead he was subjected to a further unprovoked assault by a soldier who hit him on the head with a baton, splitting his head open. Even the soldier from Composite Platoon of 1 Para who witnessed the assault was able to discern that at the time he was assaulted he was visibly in considerable pain and distress.

19.8.8. Injuries Sustained

19.8.8.1. Patsy O'Donnell sustained two injuries. As a result of the shooting he sustained a wound to his right shoulder. Mr. Bennett the Consultant surgeon who supervised his care in Altnagelvin Hospital noted that "X-ray showed multiple small foreign bodies in this area. Both wounds in his shoulder were excised and sutured that evening but only one tiny piece of metal was extracted from the shoulder wound." ED61.7

19.8.8.2. It should be noted that this correspondence from Mr. Bennett to the RUC follows earlier correspondence in relation to Mr. O'Donnell's scalp wound. The reference to 'both' wounds is obviously a mistake and is in fact a reference to the fact that both the shoulder wound sustained as a result of the shooting and the scalp wound sustained as a result of the assault were excised and sutured. It can be seen from Mr. O'Donnell's discharge letter that there was only one wound to the shoulder, described as "through and through". D0899

19.8.8.3. As well as the injury resulting from the shooting a 1½ inch wound to the left side of the scalp is referred to in the operative report, in which it is noted (? from fall). D0898 The scalp wound is the result of a further report from Mr. Bennett arising from enquiries made by the RUC. In that report he notes that:

> "He had a small scalp wound just at the junction of the forehead and hair-line on the left side of the forehead. At the time it was assumed that he had got this on falling but I understand there is now an allegation that it was in fact a baton injury.
>
> I am quite unable to be definite about this but can only note that the wound looked more like an injury from a fall than from a baton injury although the latter cannot be completely excluded on medical grounds alone." D0902

19.8.8.4. As Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan have noted "In the absence of a more detailed wound description it is not possible to determine how he came to this conclusion." E10.010

19.8.8.5. In the first account given by Mr. O'Donnell to the RUC on the 4th February 1972 Mr. O'Donnell alleged that after he had been shot and arrested

> "later in William Street another soldier hit him over the head with a baton. . . . Doctor [Fallon] conveyed O'Donnell to Altnagelvin Hospital and on the way there allegedly advised O'Donnell to say that the head wound was the result of a fall.

19.8.8.6. O'Donnell told D/Sgt. Cudmore and myself that he told the Hospital Staff that he received the head wound while falling, although to date I have not been able to establish to whom this was related." ED61.2

19.8.8.7. To similar effect in his statement for the Treasury Solicitor Patsy O'Donnell stated that "There were a lot of soldiers and police at the hospital. I was scared. Dr Fallon told me to say just that I was shot and if they asked about the head wound to say I had fallen down. This is what I did." AO35.19 paragraph 5

19.8.8.8. Mr. O'Donnell in his evidence to this Tribunal has stated in relation to Dr. Fallon that "I remember him giving me that advice but I do not know why he gave it; I think it was probably to avoid me getting into trouble with the police, although I had done nothing wrong." AO35.5 paragraph 31

19.8.8.9. In any event Dr. Bennett was unable to dismiss the possibility "on medical grounds" that Patsy O'Donnell was hit over the head with a baton and it seems likely that the assumption that Patsy O'Donnell had fallen came from Patsy O'Donnell himself acting on the advice of his Doctor.

19.8.8.10. Mr. O'Donnell was detained in Hospital until the 11th February as a result of his injuries.

19.8.9. Removal to Hospital

19.8.9.1. The consistent evidence of all witnesses is that he was removed from City Cabs in a taxi. AO35.3 paragraph 22, H1.15 paragraph 37, AM327.2 paragraph 8

19.8.9.2. According to Mr. O'Donnell's own account to the RUC on the 4th February 1972 he was taken from the taxi-rank to a First Aid Centre in Creggan. He was then examined by Dr. Fallon at another house in the Creggan and was brought to Hospital by Dr. Fallon. ED61.5 According to his NICRA statement the second house was in Swilly Gardens, which is in the Creggan, and it was there that he was examined by Dr Fallon. AO35.8

19.8.9.3. A more detailed account is contained in the Sunday Times report, which reflects in part an interview with Mr. O'Donnell, but also apparently interviews with Winifred O'Brien, as well as members of the Knights of Malta. According to this report:

> "O'Donnell was taken to the Fanad Drive Community Centre where he was treated by Supt. Attracta Simms and Lance Corporal Hugh Deehan of the K.o.M. Their report states: "We treated a young man with gunshot wounds in the left shoulder and forehead (pp: the baton wound). He was taken to house in the Creggan estate where he was treated (O'Donnell says by Dr Fallon . .) but he refused to go to hospital at first. It was only after some persuasion from the doctor that he was taken by him to Altnagelvin." AO35.25

19.8.9.4. In his evidence to this Tribunal Patsy O'Donnell's recollection was that he was taken to a house in Swilly Gardens and that there was someone from the Knights of Malta there. Day 156/129/14 to Day 156/129/16 When his NICRA statement was shown to him he accepted that it was possible that he been taken to a first aid centre first, then the house in Swilly Gardens, where the woman rang Dr Fallon who then took him to Hospital, but that he could not remember. Day 156/129/20 to Day 156/130/9

19.8.9.5. Aside from Patsy O'Donnell's own account a William MacDermott made a statement to Eversheds in which he stated that he attended the house in which Patsy O'Donnell was treated and that Patsy O'Donnell had expressed a wish to go to Letterkenny because he was scared to go to Altnagelvin Hospital. AM189.6 paragraph 25

19.8.9.6. William MacDermott describes Patsy O'Donnell as having sustained a chest wound but also gives evidence about the cut on his head Patsy O'Donnell had sustained because of a baton round. According to Patsy O'Donnell "There was no discussion of taking me to Letterkenny. I was to go to Altnagelvin." AO35.3 paragraph 22

19.8.9.7. William MacDermott never gave oral evidence because he died. It is submitted that Patsy 'Donnell's evidence is to be preferred on the question of whether he expressed a desire to go to Letterkenny Hospital, although there is no doubt, on his own account that he was scared going to Altnagelvin because of the army and police presence in light of his experiences that day. AO35.19 paragraph 5

19.8.9.8. William MacDermott assisted in keeping Patsy O'Donnell propped up in Dr Fallon's car and an indirect route was taken in order to avoid check points. AM189.6 paragraphs 27 to 28 It would appear from William MacDermott's statement that Patsy O'Donnell arrived at Altnagelvin before 6pm. AM189.6 paragraph 30

19.8.10. Forensic Evidence

19.8.10.1. As has been seen from the medical evidence referred to above, although a number of metallic fragments were noted in Mr. O'Donnell's shoulder wound on X-ray, only one appears to have been extracted. D0902.1

19.8.10.2. The metal extract was submitted to the Forensic science lab. Dr. Martin identified the fragment as "a small fragment of lead which could be part of a bullet. It is not possible to indicate calibre or type." D0906

19.8.10.3. Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan have stated that "No comment can be made concerning the nature of the projectile." E10.010

19.8.10.4. Given Patsy O'Donnell's oral evidence about the circumstances in which he was shot it is undoubtedly the case that he was shot by a soldier.

19.8.10.5. At the Widgery Tribunal Patsy O'Donnell was asked whether he had retained the clothes he was wearing on the day and whether he was willing to have them investigated by forensic tests. He answered in the affirmative in relation to both questions. WT6.45A In fact although he had retained the clothes they were never examined. AO35.4 paragraph 26

19.9 Military Evidence

19.9.1 Introduction and summary of submissions

19.9.1.1 As has been seen in section eighteen the Anti-Tank Platoon entered the Bogside in the two APCs that brought up the rear of the Support Company convoy. They debussed at a point close to the junction of William Street and Rossville Street and moved south down the west side of Rossville Street to the low wall at Kells Walk.

19.9.1.2 Their actions at that wall and on Rossville Street both before and after they entered Glenfada Park North are dealt with in section eighteen and must be read in conjunction with the analysis of their evidence in relation to sector 4 that appears in this section.

19.9.1.3 After Michael Kelly, Michael McDaid, William Nash, John Young and Hugh Gilmore had been shot at the rubble barricade, members of the Anti-Tank platoon moved from the low wall at Kells Walk into Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.4 Lord Carver has told this Tribunal that he does not know:

"why the paratroopers were in Glenfada Park. The role of Support Company was to protect the rear of those carrying out arrests. Vehicles went into the area even though the order stated that the arrest operations should take place on foot." KC8.10 paragraph 20

19.9.1.5 On their own accounts Soldiers E, F, G, H, J, 119, 027 and David Longstaff were in Glenfada Park North when shooting was taking place. However, there are varying accounts of who made up the "brick" that led the foray into Glenfada Park. That F and G were part of it is clear. However a brick usually comprises four people and Soldiers E, H, J and David Longstaff all claim to have been part of the brick that included Soldiers F and G.

19.9.1.6 In addition to these eight soldiers it appears that it is possible that at least another three members of the platoon may have been in Glenfada Park at some stage before they withdrew back to Rossville Street. Those soldiers are INQ 635, INQ 1237 and the platoon sergeant INQ 1694. In addition, at least one member of composite platoon, Soldier 229, indicates that he escorted prisoners from Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.7 Only soldiers E, F, G and H admit to firing in sector 4. They admit to firing a total of 29 shots in Glenfada Park North and also claim to have hit six or seven people. Nineteen of those shots have been claimed by Soldier H in respect of the sniper he claims to have seen behind a frosted glass window at the south end of Glenfada Park[5]. The hits claimed include this person. Soldier F claims that he hit one person twice. The total number of hits not including Soldier H's "sniper" is therefore five or six with ten shots, one of those being hit twice.

19.9.1.8 In fact, 2 people were shot dead and five people injured by army gunfire in Glenfada Park North. One of the deceased, Jim Wray, was shot twice and there is some evidence that the other, Willie McKinney, may also have been hit by two bullets.

19.9.1.9 The accounts given by soldiers as to what happened in Glenfada Park differ in important respects. There are many discrepancies between the various accounts made by each solider. In addition the accounts made by the different soldiers do not corroborate each other.

19.9.1.10 The 1972 evidence of the soldiers can be summarised as follows:

[5] This issue has been dealt with in section eighteen above.

(i) Lieutenant 119 says that when he entered Glenfada Park he saw F fire two shots. He did not see what F was firing at and did not see any other soldier fire in Glenfada Park.

(ii) Soldier E initially says the soldiers were met with petrol bombs, nail bombs and other missiles when they entered Glenfada Park North. He later says there was a crowd of forty to fifty people there. He says he fired two shots at a man who threw a petrol bomb and a nail bomb at them.

(iii) Soldier F's evidence is that while on Rossville Street he saw people moving from the barricade into Glenfada Park. While he initially says this was a large crowd of rioters he later says they were three people and one of them was carrying a rifle. Once in Glenfada Park F says that he fired on a man who was about to throw a nail bomb and G fired on the man with the rifle.

(iv) Soldier G did not see any rioting in Glenfada Park and he is clear that he did not see any petrol bombs or nail bombs exploding. He heard one bang that day but did not know where it came from nor what it was. He says that he saw two gunmen in the southwest corner of Glenfada Park North. He fired three shots at one of them but both fell. A crowd of about fifteen people who were standing along the south end of the car park ran past the bodies and the weapons were removed.

(v) Soldier H claims that he fired and hit at two men in Glenfada Park, one of whom fell, the other ran away. He also claims to have fired nineteen shots at a sniper he says was located behind a frosted glass window at the south end of Glenfada Park.

(vi) Soldier J's evidence to Lord Widgery was that he entered Glenfada Park after soldiers F and G. As he entered the car park they fired at two men at the far corner of the park who may have been carrying nail bombs.

19.9.1.11 Soldiers E and G are dead. However, Soldiers F, H, J, 119 and David Longstaff all gave evidence to this Tribunal. Their evidence was striking as much for what they did not say as for what they did. Soldier 027 also gave written and oral evidence. As has previously been submitted, the members of Anti-Tank Platoon who gave evidence before this Tribunal appear to be suffering from some kind of "collective amnesia" in relation to the events of Bloody Sunday. Such is the severity of this apparent condition that it seems that the surviving members of the platoon that arguably has the most to answer for in terms of deaths and injuries on Bloody Sunday ask the Tribunal to accept that they have the least memory of what actually happened. Giving evidence to this Tribunal Soldier F agreed that this state of affairs was a "very curious paradox." Day 376/21/2 to Day 376/21/16

19.9.1.12 In our submission the collective failure of memory of the surviving members of the Anti-Tank platoon is merely a shield, a device, and the only possible way in which they could avoid facing the uncomfortable questions that must be answered as a result of their murderous actions on 30th January 1972. Their evidence in 1972, to the Royal Military Police and to Lord Widgery and their evidence to this Tribunal in 2003 is replete with lies and they have made no serious attempt to assist this Tribunal in its task of finding the truth of what happened on Bloody Sunday. Instead they prefer to continue their attempts to defend the indefensible and ask the Tribunal to believe that despite the evidence they gave in 1972 and the evidence they gave before this Tribunal they acted properly on Bloody Sunday.

19.9.1.13 Table 1 at Appendix 1 shows the soldiers who fired and their claims as to where they fired from, what and where they fired at, the number of shots they fired, by whom they were seen to fire, whether they struck their targets and the most likely victims.

19.9.1.14 Table 2 Appendix 2 shows the accounts of the soldiers as to when they first heard shots.

19.9.1.15 Table 3 Appendix 3 suggests a possible order in which shots were fired by soldiers. Relying, as it does, on admittedly unreliable soldiers' evidence, the contents of this table are highly speculative.

19.9.1.16 Table 4 Appendix 4 represents an attempt to provide a quick-reference tool which allows ready comparison of the accounts given by all the soldiers in Anti-Tank Platoon about certain material matters, such as whether they saw any civilians with weapons or heard any nail bombs.

19.9.1.17 Table 5 Appendix 5 outlines the number and dates of statements given by the members of Anti-Tank Platoon to the Royal Military Police.

19.9.1. Individual Soldiers in Anti-Tank Platoon

19.9.1.1. Lieutenant 119

19.9.1.1.1. As has been outlined in section eighteen the conduct of Lieutenant 119 on 30th January 1972 is of particular significance given that he was the commander of the Anti-Tank Platoon on that day. As such, and given the actions of certain members of the Anti-Tank Platoon on Bloody Sunday, and their conduct since that date in accounting for those actions, a serious issue arises for this Tribunal as to whether Lieutenant 119 exercised any or adequate control over the men in his platoon.

19.9.1.1.2. Lt 119 has said "I believe that in my own conduct and in the conduct of the NCOs who commanded the little groups, it was as it should be." Day 364/11/5 to Day 364/11/7. In our submission this is demonstrably wrong and in fact what emerges from the evidence before the Tribunal is that Lt 119 was not in effective command and control of the Anti-Tank Platoon on that day. This issue is of particular significance when the nature and experience of the Anti-Tank Platoon and its members is remembered.

Did Lt 119 give an order to go in to Glenfada Park?

19.9.1.1.3. In his first RMP statement Lt 119 said:

> "Under the command of 'E' and 'F' a number of my platoon entered a square, Columbcille Court. " B1752.041

19.9.1.1.4. In his second RMP statement this changes to:

> "I noticed that it was possible to get into Glenfada Park from an entrance directly to my right. I sent 'E' and 'F' together with a party of men around the right of Glenfada Park, and sending for my vehicles at the same time for cover. When I had satisfied myself that the men in the open were now in cover I myself moved into Glenfada Park. " B1752.037

19.9.1.1.5. In the statement he made for the purposes of the Widgery Tribunal Lt 119 said:

> "To cover us against the fire from Block 1 I sent a runner to order up our vehicles to give us cover on the road. I then ordered some men forward into the courtyard of Glenfadda Park, hoping to cut off the gunman by the barricade. As soon as my vehicles were in a position to give us satisfactory cover from the fire from Block 1 I moved myself into Glenfadda Park courtyard." B1752.044 paragraph 7

19.9.1.1.6. Giving evidence to the Widgery Tribunal the following exchange took place:

> "MR GIBBENS: How is it that you did not fire yourself if you saw the man firing with the pistol? A. I had two things on my mind: the first was to get my vehicles up to give us cover from the men who were firing from Rossville Flats, and the other thing was to try and cut off the man who was firing at us. Therefore, I despatched the men into Glenfada Park." B1752.050 D

19.9.1.1.7. When cross-examined on this point by counsel for the families Lt 119 said:

> "Q. Just to recapitulate briefly, you sent E and F into Glenfada Park, is that correct? A. That is correct." B1752.056 A 19.9.1.1.8. It can be seen therefore that, after his first statement to the RMP, Lt 119's description of his role in the foray into Glenfada Park becomes that of a commander in that he talks about sending, despatching or ordering men into Glenfada Park where previously he simply said that they had gone in under the command of E and F. It should be noted that Lt 119's second statement to the Royal Military Police was signed on 4th February 1972. The Tribunal will be aware that it is our submission that the statement taking process on 4th February was nothing more than a "clear up" exercise by which certain evidence was "straightened out" and corroboration gathered for the actions of some soldiers[6].

19.9.1.1.9. In his Eversheds statement Lt 119 said:

> "I have been asked whether I ordered the men to move into Glenfada Park. I do not now remember whether I ordered it or whether they did it because it was appropriate in order to secure our flanks. Securing our flanks was a standard practice. I have been asked why it was necessary to secure our flanks and in that connection I have been referred to my RMP statements where I describe a pistol being fired from the corner of Glenfada Park. I do not remember that event. However, I believe that whatever I said to the RMP and the Widgery Tribunal was accurate." B1752.016 paragraph 31.

19.9.1.1.10. By the time he came to give evidence to this Tribunal the following exchange took place:

> "Q. It looks from that [his second RMP statement], does it not, as if your recollection is that you sent two non-commissioned officers, together with others, into Glenfada Park?
> A. That is right sir
> Q. As opposed to their going of their own initiative?
> A. That is right sir." Day 363/147/7 to Day 363/147/12

19.9.1.1.11. In his evidence to this Tribunal Lt 119, while he says that he does not remember that he ordered the move into Glenfada Park has now, for the first time, presented an alternative justification for his men entering Glenfada Park, even on their own initiative.

[6] For further discussion of this issue see section five

19.9.1.1.12. Lt 119's evidence alone is not conclusive on this point. The clear evidence given by other members of the Platoon who admit to entering Glenfada Park North is broadly consistent that they were not ordered or sent in by Lt 119.

19.9.1.1.13. Soldier E, the section commander, says they moved into Glenfada Park to try to "head off" rioters who moved into the courtyard from the barricade B87. Giving evidence at the Widgery Tribunal he was quite insistent when asked if he got instructions from anybody at that stage. He said that he "acted on my own initiative, sir, and moved around to cut them off, sir." B102F

19.9.1.1.14. When E was cross-examined by counsel for the families Mr Hill the following exchange took place:

"Q. You moved into the area of Glenfada Park on your own initiative, is that right? A. Yes

Q. You had no instructions or orders to do that? A. No, sir

.....

Q. Do you know whether you had any instructions to proceed so far down Rossville Street or not? A. I took it on my own bat to do so.

Q. You accept full responsibility for that, do you – for having made the decision to go into Glenfada Park? A. Yes sir.

Q. And to proceed as far down the Rossville Street area as you did? A. Yes

Q. Why do you accept that responsibility? A. Because I am an NCO, sir.

Q. Is it true that you did it on your own initiative? A. Yes sir.

Q. Were you closely questioned by the SIB about that? A. Yes".

B109D- G

19.9.1.1.15. Later in this exchange E also acknowledged that Major Loden was probably unaware that the men had gone into Glenfada Park B110B.

19.9.1.1.16. Soldier F was clear in his evidence to Lord Widgery on this point. When asked by Mr McSparran whether he went in to Glenfada Park as a result of receiving any order from the Lieutenant F replied "No, sir" B152G. Giving evidence to this Tribunal the following exchange took place:

"When you went towards Glenfada Park by whatever route you took, was that as a result, do you recall, of any order that you had been given?

A. No

Q. You are sure about that; are you?

A. Possibly

Q. The reason that I ask – I do not want there to be a trick in these questions – if we have a look at B153, in your oral evidence to Lord Widgery, the top of the page, please, the first half, you were asked, see the second question:

"Question: You went in completely on your own initiative?

"Answer: No, sir.

"Question: Who told you to go in there if you did not go in on your own initiative?

"Answer: E, sir.

"Question: What rank is E?

"Lord Widgery: We have seen him. He is the corporal"

Q. Is that likely to be correct?

A. If that is what it says in the statement then that is correct, yes."

Day 375/95/21 to Day 375/96/18

19.9.1.1.17. Soldier G initially says that he went into Glenfada Park first with F, followed by two others B169[7] Under cross-examination at the Widgery Tribunal he said the following:

"Q. When you first went into the alleyway, did you decide to go, or did F decide to go first? A. I think somebody else decided to go.
"Q. Can you recall who that was? A. No sir. I follow F, sir.
"Q. So you did not hear if F got an order to go into the alleyway?
"A. No sir." B200 E-F

19.9.1.1.18. Soldier H indicated in his first statement that his entry into Glenfada Park was as a result of the pursuit of rioters. B219 Giving evidence to Lord Widgery he says that while he was taking cover behind the two walls on Rossville Street he did not "receive any orders at that time." B250C-D To this Tribunal his evidence was:

"LORD GIFFORD: Soldier H I come to the time when you went into Glenfada Park. You told Mr Clarke yesterday that your recollection is that you went in to make arrests.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. In effect on the day is it right that you would have seen F and G go in that direction?
A. I would have thought – yes.
Q. If they went in that direction, it was your duty to follow them?
A. We would have moved in the brick, yes, sir.
Q. Was there any order from any of them or from any senior officer that you recall or did you just go there?
A. We just went I think, sir, I think.
Q. And you followed, it was your responsibility to follow the two leaders?
A. Yes, sir.

[7] He says in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor that he actually arrived in Glenfada Park first, with F closely behind him B186 paragraph 5. He makes no mention of having received an order to go in to that area but does mention that they were recalled by their Platoon Commander B187 paragraph 8.

Q. In the brick.

A. Yes, sir." Day 378/80/15 to Day 378/81/7

19.9.1.1.19. David Longstaff (INQ 023) makes no mention of an order or otherwise: "I remember following Lance Corporals F and J and Private G and others to the right. They were ahead of me. Other members of our platoon could have been behind me or to my right but I am not sure." C23.5 paragraph 30

19.9.1.1.20. Corporal J first mentioned the possibility of an order having been given to go in to Glenfada Park when he gave evidence to Lord Widgery. He said "I think there was a Platoon Commander standing behind us who shouted 'Move into Glenfada Park as there are a lot of people there and arrest them'" B280G. He confirmed this evidence when questioned by Mr Hill for the bereaved and wounded in the following exchange:

"Q. Were you authorised to go in? A. As I said, I heard the Platoon Commander's voice behind me telling us to go into the Glenfada Park as a lot of rioters had moved up there.

Q. Is that Corporal F? A. No this was the Platoon Commander.

Q. What was his rank? A. Lieutenant.

Q. A Lieutenant ordered you to go in? A. He was behind us at that stage.

Q. May I suggest to you that that was the Corporal's idea to go in?

A. I would not know about that.

Q. And that your presence in Glenfada Park was not in fact authorised?

A. It was authorised by the Platoon Commander, which is good enough for me." B288 B-D

19.9.1.1.21. In his statement to this Tribunal Soldier J said:

"I have no recollection of receiving orders to go into Glenfada Park. Generally, in situations such as these, we did not have time to await orders. It was a matter of acting on our own initiative. No one is able to see everything that is happening and, if someone can see something that is endangering life, they have to await orders and must act appropriately." B289.007 paragraph 44

19.9.1.1.22. Giving evidence to this Tribunal he said he now has no recollection of receiving orders to go to Glenfada Park or of who gave them. Day 370/53/23 to Day 370/54/2

19.9.1.1.23. Soldier J is therefore the only soldier who admits to having been in Glenfada Park who also indicates that the members of the Anti-Tank Platoon were given an order to enter that area. Even at that, the first time he gave such evidence was when he appeared before Lord Widgery.

19.9.1.1.24. Soldier J has no current memory of receiving such orders and in fact thinks it unlikely. The other members of the platoon either make no mention of receiving orders from Lt 119 or positively assert that there was no order and that they acted on their own initiative.

19.9.1.1.25. In his RMP statement Soldier 027 makes no mention of an order to go into Glenfada Park being received but rather says that he "followed Soldiers E, F, G and H round to corner of the building into Glenfada Park." B1547 The same formulation appears in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor. B1552 paragraph 5 In fact, in none of his accounts does Soldier 027 mention such an order being received. He now does not recall Lt 119 ordering anybody to go into Glenfada Park. Day 246/83/10 to Day 246/83/13

19.9.1.1.26. In our submission the evidence clearly points to no order having been given by Lt 119. This is significant for the following reasons:

(i)The anti-tank platoon was without effective command on the day;

(ii)The soldiers of the platoon were therefore not subject to any restraint in terms of where they went and what they did;

(iii)There was no co-ordination of the movements of the platoon as part of the overall operation by Support Company as they moved south along Rossville Street.

The events in Glenfada Park

19.9.1.1.27. In his statement of 31st January 1972 Lt 119 says:

i) "Under the command of E and F a number of my platoon entered a square, Columbcille Court. On rounding the corner they informed me that they had fired a number of aimed shots at male persons in the process of preparing nail bombs." B1752.041

ii) "They were killed. 3 youths and the bodies were located at GR 43181685. They were under fire from the youths locations. As we advanced, a large crowd appeared from the flats and began to run around the bodies. On arrival at the scene, no sign of any subversive activity was found. The bodies of the three youths were still there. They were not touched by my men." B1752.041

iii) "At that stage, ambulance men wearing pale grey suits appeared. They were from the Knights of Malta Ambulance. They did not say anything. They removed the bodies. They informed me that they were removing the bodies to the hospital. They did not mention any particular name." B1752.042

iv) "The lighting conditions were dull. No examination of the bodies was possible and we were ordered to withdraw." B1752.042

v) In his second statement to the RMP dated 4th February 1972 Lt 119 says:

a) "When I had satisfied myself that the men in the open were now in cover I myself moved into Glenfada Park. As I did so I saw 'F' fire 2 x 7.62 rounds at a target which I could not see from MR 43231687." B1752.040

b) "I then moved into Glenfada Park where I saw three bodies, all apparently dead, lying on the ground. I have previously been shown photographs of these bodies, but I am unable to identify them as the bodies recovered from this location..." B1752.040

c) "A crowd had gathered around the three bodies prior to my arrival and the bodies were obscured from our view for some time. Shortly afterwards we were ordered to withdraw by which time I had allowed the Knights of Malta ambulance service to deal with the apparently dead bodies." B1752.040

vi) In his statement to the Treasury solicitor Lt 119 says:

a) "As I came through the archway on the northern side of Glenfadda Park I saw F, who was standing on the eastern side of the courtyard; fire two shots. I looked quickly but could not identify his target. The courtyard then contained only my own men and on the far corner three bodies about which one or two civilians had started to assemble." B1752.044 paragraph 9

b) "I set off towards the bodies with the intention of seeing what could be done but just at that moment a man standing by my radio operator shouted that we had orders to withdraw. I saw Knights of Malta first aid staff approaching the bodies and therefore left them to take care of them." B1752.044 paragraph 9

19.9.1.1.28. When Lt 119 gave evidence to Lord Widgery the following exchange took place:

"Q. What did you see happening when you got into the courtyard?
A. As I came in I saw soldier F fire two rounds. I did not see who he fired at because of my position. Once I got in there I saw three civilians lying here.
Q. That is the south west corner? A. Yes.
Q. Was he firing in their direction or which direction? A. No I think he fired down in this direction here. It would be difficult to say from where I was standing, but that is the direction it appeared to me.

Q. More or less straight down the east side? A. Yes.

Q. You did not see what he was firing at? A. No

Q. Did you ask him? A. Not at that time because he had stopped firing, and I was more concerned with the bodies that were lying on the road

Q. Did you see E or G fire? A. No I did not sir." B1752.051 C-E

19.9.1.1.29. He later was asked:

"Q. You were concerned with the bodies. What did you do? A. I wanted to move up and check the bodies to see what they might have on them and to see what help was provided for them. There were a number of civilians who had already gathered around the bodies at this stage, and my intention was to move forward. However, at that stage of the game we were told to withdraw.

Q. You were about to go and see to the bodies? A. Yes.

Q. But you got an order to withdraw? A. Yes

Q. So did you and your men leave the courtyard? A. Yes. In fact, just then a crowd of 20 – 30 people emerged from here on the corner. They must have been standing behind a building. They came out into the courtyard; and also some Knights of Malta ambulance people came from that side and started to attend to the bodies.

Q. Are you clear that at that time those three bodies were within the car park area and not through the alleyway? A. At that time there were three bodies lying there, sir.

Q. Did you then return with your men to the command vehicle? A. Yes." B1752.052 A-C

19.9.1.1.30. In his statement to this Inquiry Lt 119 now says:

i) "I accept that at least four men went into Glenfada Park. I followed them but I do not remember the interval in time, it was probably shortly afterwards." B1752.017 paragraph 32

ii) "I remember the general geography of Glenfada Park and I have a snapshot image of it in my memory. However, I do not remember shots being fired by any of my men. I note that in my RMP statement I say that two shots were fired by soldier F in my presence, but I do not now remember that." B1752.017 paragraph 33

iii) "I remember being aware that something had happened but otherwise cannot now say where people were or what they were doing. I have only a hazy recollection of there being civilians there and do not now independently remember the numbers." B1752.017 paragraph 34

iv) "I remember that we received an order to withdraw but beyond that I have precious little memory of what happened next. I do not remember arresting any people in Glenfada Park..." B1752.017 paragraph 35

19.9.1.1.31. Giving evidence he:

i) Accepted that what he said in his second RMP statement suggested that the shots he had seen fired by soldier F were the last two shots fired in Glenfada Park. Day 363/151/13 to Day 363/151/17

ii) Said that he never asked F or any other firers what they were firing at. "At the end of that afternoon, all the firers actually went back to company headquarters for the investigation of who had fired and so at that stage it was taken out of my hands." Day 363/154/2 to Day 363/154/4

iii) Could not explain the fact that his first RMP statement suggests that he did not see any firing at all in Glenfada Park but rather was only told of it later. Day 363/154/7 to Day 363/155/10

iv) Confirmed that he has no recollection of hearing sub-machine gun fire or nail bombs exploding on Bloody Sunday. Day 363/156/3 to Day 363/156/9

v) Confirmed that his evidence to Lord Widgery suggests that when he entered Glenfada Park Soldiers F and J were on the east side of the park and E and G were on the west side. Day 363/156/10 to Day 363/158/1

vi) Confirmed that he does not recall seeing the Knight of Malta Eibhlin Lafferty enter Glenfada Park or a soldier shooting at her. Day 363/161/13 to Day 363/161/21

vii) Confirmed that he does not recall Father Bradley being prevented from reaching the dead or dying in Glenfada Park. Day 363/163/21 to Day 363/164/2

viii) Confirms that he now has no recollection of the reason for arresting the people in Glenfada Park. Day 363/162/22 to Day 363/163/20

ix) Confirmed that if he was not in charge of the arrest operation in Glenfada Park he would at least have witnessed it. Day 363/164/3 to Day 363/164/8

x) Indicated that he did not believe the soldiers were hyped up. Day 363/164/18 to Day 363/164/21

xi) Confirmed that he never asked or discovered how the three men shot in Glenfada Park had come to be shot. Day 363/169/12 to Day 363/169/18

xii) Indicated that his first RMP statement should read not "in the process of preparing nail bombs" but rather "in the process of preparing to throw nail bombs." Day 363/169/19 to Day 363/170/18

xiii) Confirmed that he never spoke to Soldier H about his 19 rounds. Day 363/174/6 to Day 363/174/7

xiv) As radio operator 027 would have been near him or fairly near to him. It appears from his evidence to Lord Widgery that Soldier 027 arrived in Glenfada Park shortly after Lt 119. Day 364/2/22 to Day 364/4/15

xv) Indicated that the return visit to Derry was not his idea. He would have been sent by more senior officers. Day 364/7/4 to Day 364/7/14

xvi) After the Widgery Inquiry he did not re-evaluate the effectiveness of his command and control of his men. Day 364/13/2 to Day 364/13/4. He "got on with my career." Day 364/13/12

xvii) Confirms that not all of his men went into Glenfada Park initially. Day 364/36/21 to Day 364/36/24 xviii) Confirms that no comment was ever made to him about what went on in Glenfada Park. Life just carried on. Day 364/82/19 to Day 364/83/3

xix) Thinks that he did not examine the bodies so much as look at them. He "did not go close enough to them to physically examine them." Day 364/90/22 to Day 364/91/4

xx) Is clear that it was not his duty to examine the bodies to see if they needed medical assistance. Day 364/91/11 to Day 364/92/6

xxi) Is clear that it would not have been within the scope of the operation for a soldier to pursue people deeper into the Bogside into a place like Abbey Park. Day 364/93/16 to Day 364/93/19

xxii) Thought it was within the scope of the order for soldiers to go in to Glenfada Park. Day 364/93/20 to Day 364/93/23

xxiii) Thinks that it is likely that the effect of his orders was to go as far as was necessary to deal with rioters. Day 364/96/14 to Day 364/96/18 xxiv) Thinks now that even if he had not seen a pistol man at the edge of Glenfada Park North it made tactical sense to send men into Glenfada Park to cover their flanks. It was "pretty standard operating procedure". He had been given no geographical boundary beyond which he should not go. Day 364/106/14 to Day 364/107/11

xxv) Agreed that at least 11 of his men entered Glenfada Park that day at one stage or another. Day 364/109/8 to Day 364/109/11

Issues and Discrepancies Arising from Lt 119's accounts

19.9.1.1.32. In none of his statements does Lt 119 claim to have seen any weapons or threatening or aggressive activity by civilians in Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.1.33. As noted above and accepted by him in evidence, Lt 119's first statement to the RMP makes no mention of him having seen any of the soldiers in Glenfada Park firing when he entered the park. In fact this statement appears to be clear that Lt 119 did not see anyone shoot at all. The first three sentences of the paragraph that begins: "They were killed..." appears to be an account of what he was told. It is possible that that whole paragraph is Lt 119 recounting what he was told rather than what he saw.

19.9.1.1.34. Lt 119's second statement to the RMP is dated 4th February 1972.

19.9.1.1.35. The second statement gives a quite different account, which suggests that Lt 119 entered Glenfada Park at a stage while soldier F was still shooting, although he could not see F's target from his position. Given that Lt 119 does not claim to have seen any shooting from soldiers after this it follows, and he accepted, that what he claimed to have seen were the last shots fired in Glenfada Park. There are a number of difficulties with this:

i) F says he fired as soon as he entered Glenfada Park from the northeast corner towards an area between the centre and west of the southern end of the park. He then does not claim to have fired any other shots until he reached the southeast corner of the park. These are clearly not the shots Lt 119 claims to have seen.

ii) Lt 119 claimed that F fired shots towards the southeast corner of Glenfada Park. F never claims to have done this, although soldier E does, but Lt 119's evidence to Lord Widgery is clear that when he entered Glenfada Park Soldier E was already on the west side of the park.

iii) F fired at almost the same time as G. If the shots Lt 119 saw are F's shots from the northeast corner of Glenfada Park then he should have seen G fire at the same time.

iv) If Lt 119 saw F's shots from the northeast corner he should also have seen H fire all of his 22 shots.

19.9.1.1.36. The effect of this evidence is either that Lt 119 did not see what he said he saw and has given a lying account OR Soldier F has lied about the number of shots he fired and where he fired them OR they have both lied. Given Lt 119's previous statement which suggests he may not have seen what went on in Glenfada Park but only come across the aftermath, it is likely that he has not been truthful in his accounts. We will also be submitting that Soldier F has given a lying account about his actions in Sector 4.

19.9.1.1.37. Lt 119's evidence to Lord Widgery was that when he entered Glenfada Park he saw four soldiers there, namely E, F, G and J. The first thing to note is that he does not remember seeing Soldier H or David Longstaff. Secondly, he describes seeing F and J on the eastern side of the park and G and J on the western side. This being the case, he must have then seen the soldier who fired into Abbey Park and also F's shots across the back of Block 2 of the Rossville Flats. In addition, both F and G claim that before those shots Soldier F shouted out words to the effect of "there's a gunman". Lt 119 does not seem to have heard that.

19.9.1.1.38. Giving evidence to Lord Widgery and under cross-examination by Mr McSparran Lt 119 appeared to claim for the first time that when he sent the men into Glenfada Park he could hear mixed firing coming from that area B1752.056 A-B. When pressed by Mr McSparran however, he backtracked somewhat, saying he could not be sure that it was all coming from Glenfada Park, that it was rather difficult to pinpoint B1752.056 B-D. When he was further pressed the following exchange took place:

"Q. Are you now attempting to suggest that there was other fire from Glenfada Park before you went in? A. I cannot tell you that directly, no, because I did not in fact hear it, but I know that there was.

Q. But you did not hear it but you know now as a result of something told you by some of your soldiers, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. But it was firing you did not hear? A. Yes." B1752.056 D-E

19.9.1.1.39. This exchange is interesting in that it shows that Lt 119 once pressed is unable to substantiate the claim he made in answer to Mr McSparran. It is also interesting because the position that Lt 119 eventually reaches – i.e. that he knows that there was fire other than army fire in Glenfada Park because his soldiers told him so – does not correspond with the evidence of any of the soldiers who were there, none of whom claim to have actually been fired on in Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.1.40. As to what Lt 119 says he was told about what had happened in Glenfada Park, in his first statement he says "...they [his men] informed me that they had fired a number of aimed shots at male persons in the process of preparing nail bombs." B1752.041. His second statement contains no reference to any reports he was given, nor does his statement to the Treasury Solicitor. When he was cross examined by Mr McSparran before Lord Widgery Lt 119 was asked if the sight of the bodies in Glenfada Park had caused him any concern:

"A. I wanted to know why it had happened.

Q. That is the point I want to make. Did you find out there and then why it had happened? A. Yes.

Q. From whom? A. From the soldiers concerned.

Q. Did you get a report from them? A. Yes.

Q. Before leaving Glenfada Park? A. I got a quick report before leaving Glenfada Park and a full report afterwards.

Q. What did the soldiers tell you at that time? A. They explained how people had been in the act of throwing nail bombs and they explained also that they saw someone with a weapon in his hand in the position where these three bodies were.

Q. And that explanation was given to you in Glenfada Park? A. Initially and then it was gone into more fully afterwards.

Q. And that explanation was given to you before you made any attempt or thought of going up to look at these bodies? A. That is right." B1752.058 F to B1752.059 B

19.9.1.1.41. It should be noted that this evidence before Lord Widgery is the first time that Lt 119 mentions a person with a weapon in their hand.

19.9.1.1.42. Giving evidence to this Tribunal Lt 119 indicated that his first RMP statement should read not "in the process of preparing nail bombs" but rather "in the process of preparing to throw nail bombs" Day 363/169/19 to Day 363/170/18. This is a significant adjustment and one he did not make at the time or in the thirty years since he signed that statement. Given his claimed lack of memory Lt 119's proposed amendment to his first statement should not be relied upon, as it would appear to be an ex post facto attempt to "tidy up" portions of his account.

19.9.1.1.43. The few things that Lt 119 does say he was told by the soldiers in his platoon do not appear to accord with their own first accounts of what happened in Glenfada Park (this is in addition to how his account of what happened on Rossville Street differs from theirs, as to which see section eighteen). For example, soldier E claims as follows

i) There was a man with a petrol bomb in Glenfada Park. B22

ii) The soldiers were bombarded with missiles including petrol and nail bombs. B22

iii) There was one man with a petrol bomb and a nail bomb B22 (E claims to have shot and hit this man).

iv) That there was a "full scale riot" in Glenfada Park. B91

19.9.1.1.44. Lt 119 does not claim to have been made aware of any of this.

19.9.1.1.45. Lt 119's position in relation to any crowd that may have appeared around the bodies changes between in his statements. In his first statement he says, "As we advanced a large crowd appeared from the flats and began to run around the bodies. On arrival at the scene, no sign of any subversive activity was found" B1752.041. In his second statement: "A crowd had gathered around the three bodies prior to my arrival and the bodies were obscured from our view for some time." B1752.040 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor. "The courtyard then contained only my men and on the far corner three bodies about which one or two civilians has started to assemble." B1752.044 paragraph 9 Giving evidence to Lord Widgery he said "There were a number of civilians who had already gathered around the bodies at this stage, and my intention was to move forward..." B1752.052 A Quite apart from the fact that Lt 119's description of the number of civilians that gathered around the bodies is not consistent he does not suggest that these civilians were hostile or aggressive – indeed he indicated to the Treasury Solicitor that he was about to approach the bodies and the crowd to see what could be done when he was recalled. B1752.044 paragraph 9 He does not suggest that he saw the crowd removing weapons or even that he was told this had taken place.

19.9.1.1.46. Another issue of concern is the attitude taken to the men who were lying dead or injured at the south end of Glenfada Park. It appears that no attempts were made by the soldiers and by Lt 119 in particular to ascertain whether they were dead or alive nor did they take action to ensure that they received prompt medical attention. Joseph Mahon was still alive at this time and the Tribunal knows from other evidence that Willie McKinney was also alive when he was brought into the O'Reilly house at 7 Abbey Park. In his various statements Lt 119 said:

i) "They [the bodies] were not touched by my men. At that stage, ambulance men wearing pale grey suits appeared. They were from the Knights of Malta Ambulance. They did not say anything. They removed the bodies. They informed me that they were removing the bodies to the hospital. They did not mention any particular name. The lighting conditions were dull. No examination of the bodies was possible." (1st RMP) B1752.041 to B1752.042

ii) "I set off towards the bodies with the intention of seeing what could be done but just at that moment a man standing by my radio operator shouted that we had orders to withdraw. I saw Knights of Malta first aid staff approaching the bodies and therefore left them to take care of them." (Treasury Solicitor) B1752.044 paragraph 9

iii) "I wanted to move up and check the bodies to see what they might have on them and to see what help was provided for them...However, at that stage of the game we were told to withdraw." (Evidence to Lord Widgery) B1752.052 A

iv) "...some Knights of Malta ambulance people came from that side and started to attend to the bodies." B1752.052 B

19.9.1.1.47. Lt 119's evidence to this Tribunal, in contrast to his evidence to Lord Widgery was that he did not examine the bodies so much as look at them. He "did not go close enough to them to physically examine them." Day 364/90/22 to Day 364/91/4 Incredibly, he was also clear that it was not his duty to examine the bodies to see if they needed medical assistance. Day 364/91/11 to Day 364/92/6

19.9.1.1.48. Given his evidence about the Knights of Malta arriving in Glenfada Park, above, Lt 119 must have seen the incident where shots were fired at Eibhlin Lafferty. He claims that he does not recall seeing this. Day 363/161/13 to Day 363/161/21

19.9.1.1.49. As to the arrests that were made in Glenfada Park, Lt 119 makes no mention of them in his first or second statements. In his third statement he says: "At that moment about 20 people emerged from the gable end of the east building. They were clearly in a hazardous position. I therefore picked them up and did so as a routine arrest operation because I thought the gunman who had fired at us might still be amongst them." B1752.044 paragraph 9 Lt 119 confirms that he now has no recollection of the reason for arresting the people in Glenfada Park. Day 363/162/22 to Day 363/163/20 He also confirmed that if he was not in charge of the arrest operation in Glenfada Park he would at least have witnessed it. Day 363/164/3 to Day 363/164/8 The reasons that he gave for arresting the people who were gathered at the southern gable wall of the east block of Glenfada Park in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor need little comment save to say that they are impermissible and do not stand up to scrutiny.

Lt 119's attempts to find out what his soldiers had done

19.9.1.1.50. Although he was the officer in charge of the men who entered Glenfada Park Lt 119 now claims that he did not:

i) ask his soldiers what happened in Glenfada Park whether for information purposes or to make an assessment of his and their actions;

ii) take any further action in relation to what took place there.

19.9.1.1.51. Incredibly he claims that he never asked or discovered how the three men he saw lying in Glenfada Park had come to be shot. Day 363/169/12 to Day 363/169/18

19.9.1.1.52. He is further clear that he was never debriefed about the events of the day nor was any comment made to him about them, even after Lord

Widgery's conclusions were published. Giving evidence to this Tribunal Lt 119 was clear that after the Widgery Inquiry he did not re-evaluate the effectiveness of his command and control of his men. Day 364/13/2 to Day 364/13/4 He "got on with my career" Day 364/13/12. Life just carried on. Day 364/82/19 to Day 364/83/3 This is in marked contrast with what was put on Lt 119's behalf to Soldier INQ 1253 on Day 304 by Mr Glasgow QC:

"Q. He was, even at that time, a very serious-minded young man?
A.Correct.
Q.Who took his responsibilities extremely seriously?
A.Indeed,sir.
Q. He was a man who was very concerned – you knew him as a friend – about the implications of the findings of the Widgery Report?
A. I would agree with that, yes, sir. I do not know whether he would be concerned about the findings. I cannot remember whether it was before -- I feel it was before Widgery, otherwise I think we would have taken a different track in the conversation. But I cannot be certain of that." Day 304/11/10 to Day 304/11/23 (emphasis added)

19.9.1.1.53. The fact that no action was taken or procedures put in place, if only to ensure that such a situation could never be repeated, defies belief. His evidence shows that the shootings on Bloody Sunday were treated in an entirely cavalier manner by those above him in the Parachute Regiment in particular and the British Army in general.

19.9.1.1.54. Under cross-examination by Mr McSparran at the Widgery Tribunal Lt 119 was asked if the sight of three bodies in Glenfada Park caused him concern:

"I wanted to know why it had happened.

Q. That is the point I want to make. Did you find out there and then why it had happened? A. Yes.

Q. From whom? A. From the soldiers concerned.

Q. Did you get a report from them? A. Yes.

Q. Before leaving Glenfada Park? A. I got a quick report before leaving Glenfada Park and a full report afterwards.

Q. What did the soldiers tell you at that time? A. They explained how people had been in the act of throwing nail bombs and they explained also that they saw someone with a weapon in his hand in the position where these three bodies were.

Q. And that explanation was given to you in Glenfada Park? A. Initially and then it was gone into more fully afterwards.

Q. And that explanation was given to you before you made any attempt or thought of going up to look at these bodies? A. That is right." B1752.058F to B1752.059B

19.9.1.1.55. Giving evidence to this Tribunal, Lt 119 made it clear that he had not made any attempts to ascertain what his soldiers had done or take any action as a consequence thereof. He said that he never asked F or any other firers what they were firing at. "At the end of that afternoon, all the firers actually went back to company headquarters for the investigation of who had fired and so at that stage it was taken out of my hands." Day 363/154/2 to Day 363/154/4 This is in marked contrast to what he said initially and to what he told Lord Widgery when cross-examined by Mr McSparran.

19.9.1.1.56. In our submission the only possible explanation for this attitude to what happened on Bloody Sunday is that either Lt 119 was fully aware of what had happened and supported his men or he was not acting effectively as a platoon commander, or both. His actions after the event are in marked contrast to those of Captain 200, for example, the platoon commander of the composite platoon, as to which see his statement at B1981 to B1983.

Soldier H

19.9.1.1.57. Lt 119's statements about his lack of action after the events of Bloody Sunday also does not sit easily with the evidence he gives to this Tribunal in relation to Soldier H:

> "I remember that my reaction to hearing about H's firing was one of surprise and disbelief that he could have fired so many rounds of ammunition without me knowing about it. Sometime after Bloody Sunday but before the Widgery Tribunal I went back to Londonderry with a number of others in civilian clothes and accompanied by a number of RMP soldiers. My concern was to investigate the situation regarding H. The window at which he said he had fired 19 rounds was inspected and there were no signs of any damage around it, which, if H was correct, there should have been, and which could not have been repaired in the time. The only other explanation was that every round had gone through the window and only the glass needed replacing." B1752.018 paragraph 37

19.9.1.1.58. There are a number of issues arising out of these paragraphs. First, Lt 119 is saying he heard about the 22 shots much later than would be expected if he had asked and received a full report from his soldiers while they were in Glenfada Park and again shortly afterwards.

19.9.1.1.59. Secondly, Lt 119 describes an incident where he went back to Derry to investigate what Soldier H said about the shots he fired. This in itself appears very strange as, although Lt 119 gives clear evidence that this visit was not carried out on his own initiative but that he would have been sent by more senior officers Day 364/7/4 to Day 364/7/14 it is not clear what his role would have been in making such a visit. This is particularly so when it is remembered that Lt 119 has clearly said that he had no investigative role in the aftermath of Bloody Sunday and that he did not see H fire. What then would be the value in Lt 119 revisiting the scene, especially given that the visit must, from the Army's point of view, have involved some considerable planning and risk? This visit to Derry was something that Lt 119 had never mentioned before.

19.9.1.1.60. In addition Lt 119 now presents this Tribunal with a theory about soldier H and what actually happened. In his statement to this Inquiry he has said:

> "It did not occur to me until sometime later, but I have a theory that on the day H may have lost a magazine full of ammunition and decided that the easier option to admitting that was to say that he had fired off the ammunition. This could have been a panic reaction by a soldier who was not, in truth, very bright. Afterwards the platoon sergeant would have inspected the ammunition in order to check that it was the same as that issued. He might not have checked an empty magazine and in any event a spare empty magazine was relatively easily obtainable. It seems to me that the only explanation for me not hearing that number of shots is my theory." B1752.018 paragraph 38

19.9.1.1.61. Lt 119 has absolutely no basis for the theory and Soldier H vehemently denies it. From Lt 119's point of view, however, if he were right about this it would resolve some awkward questions that remain for him as a result of Bloody Sunday. The first issue that would be easily explained by this theory is why he did not see H fire. The second is how a member of his platoon was able to fire 22 shots in circumstances that even Lord Widgery did not believe and those shots remain unaccounted for.

Lt 119's lack of memory of the incident

19.9.1.1.62. Because of the very nature of the events outlined above it is at least questionable that Lt 119 has little or no memory of the incident. Given his relative inexperience it is incredible that he appears to have no independent memory of what happened in Glenfada Park. It is almost certain that he would not, before Bloody Sunday, have been involved in an incident such as this where men under his control killed and injured such a large number of people.

19.9.1.1.63. His memory loss in the light of this is inconceivable and in our submission merely a method of avoiding questioning which may otherwise cause him difficulties.

19.9.1.2. Corporal E

19.9.1.2.1. It appears that Soldier E made three statements to the Royal Military Police. He made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor and gave evidence before Lord Widgery. He is now deceased and therefore this Inquiry did not receive either written or oral evidence from him. He admits to firing two shots in Glenfada Park and claims to have hit one person. His trajectory photograph can be found at P6.

19.9.1.2.2. Corporal E was the NCO in charge of the brick who entered Glenfada Park North. As has been noted above he was insistent when questioned that he acted entirely on his own initiative and led the members of his brick into Glenfada Park.[8] The gist of his evidence about what took place in sector 4 is that when the soldiers entered Glenfada Park they were met by a crowd of people some of whom were throwing missiles.

[8]When questioned at the Widgery Tribunal he accepted full responsibility for having gone into Glenfada Park. He claims that he was unaware that Lt 119 also accepted responsibility for having given the order to go in. B102

E claimed that he fired at a person with a nail bomb and a petrol bomb in the area of the southeast corner of the car park.

1972 accounts

19.9.1.2.3. In his first account of events Soldier E says that he moved from Rossville Street into Glenfada Park in an attempt to cut off rioters who had moved in that direction from the barricade B87. He indicated that he moved about 10 metres to his right from Rossville Street "into an archway at Glenfada Park" B87. In this account, given to the Royal Military Police at 0140 on 31st January 1972, he claims that when he and his colleagues entered Glenfada Park:

i) They saw about six men coming towards them.

ii) A petrol bomb exploded in the square in front of them.

iii) A nail bomb exploded nearby.

iv) Other missiles were thrown at them.

v) They were then bombarded with missiles including nail and petrol bombs. At this point E says he heard shots from around him and saw two of the rioters fall to the ground. B87

19.9.1.2.4. Soldier E then says that he saw a man, about 30 metres from his position, who had:

"what appeared to be a petrol bomb and nail bomb in his hands. I saw him light one of these objects and threw it in our direction and then a petrol bomb exploded near us. I saw him light the other. I shouted at him to drop it. I don't know if he heard me or not but he threw it in my direction. I fired two aimed shots at this man. The first shot missed the target but I saw the second strike him in the chest and he was knocked backwards and he fell to the ground. Immediately after I fired a nail bomb exploded near my position. " B87 to B88

19.9.1.2.5. E further claimed, "numerous people came out of the flats and went over to the bodies." B88

19.9.1.2.6. Soldier E made a second statement to the Royal Military Police at 1400 on 31st January 1972. In it he states that he picked out a photograph of Michael Kelly from a number of photographs shown to him. He further stated that he was "reasonably sure I shot this man in an incident at the Glenfada Flats, Londonderry during a full scale riot on 30 Jan 72 for throwing bombs." B91. Michael Kelly was shot by Soldier F on Rossville Street.

19.9.1.2.7. Another statement, timed at 1410 on 31st January 1972, also appears among the papers relating to Soldier E. This statement bears the title "Soldier F" however and there has been some confusion about its exact provenance. In it, the relevant soldier has picked out a photograph of Gerard Donaghey from photographs shown to him and has stated that he is "reasonably sure I shot this man in a full scale riot in the Glenfada Flats on 30 Jan 72 for being in possession of nail bombs." B93.001

19.9.1.2.8. Immediately it can be seen that if this statement is one that was made by Soldier E he has, with these two additional statements, and contrary to the statement he gave to the RMP just a few hours before, admitted to shooting two people in Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.2.9. It should also be noted that it appears that, just as soldiers showed themselves willing to sign "pro forma" statements in order to provide (false) evidence to ground arrests they were similarly willing to sign "pro forma" statements in relation to the identification of individuals they claim to have shot and the circumstances in which they shot them. The statement that appears at B91 is just one example of this. Soldiers F and G made similar statements purporting to identify individuals from photographs as having been shot in the course of a full scale riot in the Glenfada Flats.

19.9.1.2.10. The thrust of Soldier E's statements is therefore very clear that he encountered riotous behaviour in Glenfada Park and that soldiers were met there with a bombardment of missiles, including petrol and nail bombs.

19.9.1.2.11. In Soldier E's statement to the Treasury Solicitor he indicates that:

i) The soldiers moved into Glenfada Park after seeing "part of the crowd trying to infiltrate to their left through Glenfada Park." B94

ii) when the soldiers entered Glenfada Park there were about forty or fifty people there, some of whom started to throw missiles. He does not say that these missiles included petrol bombs and nail bombs. B95

iii) Of the man he fired at, he says that on the extreme left of the crowd a man threw a petrol bomb in his direction and it landed about 10 yards from him. He says that the same man then lit a nail bomb. As he was doing so, E shouted at him to drop it. The man had already lit the bomb so E fired at him. He fired two aimed shots, firing the second because he missed with the first. The second shot hit the man and he fell. The nail bomb exploded but E did not see anyone hurt by it. B95

iv) The petrol bomb and nail bomb thrown by this man are the only ones Soldier E mentions in this statement. B95

v) In addition, Soldier E indicates that he is not sure where the first round he fired went to but that he could see "that no-one else was in my line of fire." B95

vi) Soldier E also indicates that he saw two more bodies fall in Glenfada Park although he did not notice if they had anything in their hands. At this stage he says, "The crowd were still aggressive and some of them surrounded the body of the man I had shot." B95

19.9.1.2.12. At B95 Soldier E refers to the statement he made where he picked out photographs of Michael Kelly as being a person he had shot in Glenfada Park. When making his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he was no longer sure that this was the person he shot. At B96 however he refers to the other statement in the following terms:

"I also made a statement in which I said that I was reasonably sure I had shot a person whose photograph was shown to me called Donaghey. I stated that I shot this person in Glenfada Park. Having seen further photographs of Donaghey I am still reasonably satisfied that he is the person I shot because he bears a close resemblance"

19.9.1.2.13. This would therefore appear to be a clear acknowledgement by Soldier E that the statement identifying Gerard Donaghey from photographs had been made by him on 31st January 1972. Soldier F's statement to the Treasury Solicitor contains a similar statement. B138.001 paragraph 14 It may be that both soldiers made such a statement. That being the case, there are two possibilities. Either Soldier E has picked out the two individuals as possible candidates for the person he fired at or, forgetting that he had previously said he had shot only one person, he has picked out more than one because the reality is that he fired at and/or hit more than one person.

19.9.1.2.14. It is submitted that the latter is the more likely possibility for the following reasons:

i) There is no indication in the statements to the RMP that the individuals were identified as alternative possibilities for the one person E claimed to have shot in his statement;

ii) The identification process was clearly carried out as one process, the two statements being signed within ten minutes of each other.

19.9.1.2.15. Soldier E also gave evidence before Lord Widgery. On that occasion he indicated that when he got into Glenfada Park:

i) there was a crowd of about forty there throwing missiles including rocks and nail bombs. B103A - C

ii) One person threw a petrol bomb which landed about ten metres in front of the soldiers. B103C-D

iii) This man was about 30 metres from E and he also had a nail bomb in his right hand. B103D

iv) In this account E says that he did not see the man light the nail bomb as he was distracted by the petrol bomb exploding. He then described how he fired two shots at the man in rapid succession and he fell to the ground. The nail bomb then exploded. B103E – B104B

v) In answer to Lord Widgery Soldier E indicated that the man he fired at was in the southeast corner of Glenfada Park. B104C-D

19.9.1.2.16. In this account E also indicated that he could hear other shooting going on and that he saw two other people fall. B104B-C

19.9.1.2.17. Soldiers G, F, H & J all entered Glenfada Park at around the same time as E, however only H says that he saw E fire there. B225 The evidence before the Tribunal indicates that only one person was shot in the area identified by Soldier E, the southeast corner of Glenfada Park, namely Patrick O'Donnell.

Issues and Discrepancies Arising From Soldier E's accounts

19.9.1.2.18. The main issues that arise from Soldier E's account are as follows:

i) Although his accounts vary as to the size of the crowd and the missiles they threw, Soldier E's evidence is that the soldiers were met with a significant numbers of rioters when they entered Glenfada Park. This is in marked contrast to the evidence given by other soldiers. In his first RMP statement he described six men coming towards them, claimed he had seen a nail bomb and petrol bomb explode close to them and indicated that the soldiers were bombarded with missiles including more nail and petrol bombs. B87 In subsequent accounts to the RMP Soldier E claimed a "full scale riot" was taking place in Glenfada Park. B91, B93.001 In his statement to the Treasury solicitor he indicated that when the soldiers entered Glenfada Park there were about forty to fifty people there, some of whom threw missiles. He does not say that these missiles included petrol bombs and nail bombs. B95 However he indicated to Lord Widgery that the crowd was throwing "Rocks and stones and nail bombs." B103B-C

ii) As to the man E fired at, he initially said that he had both a nail bomb and a petrol bomb in his hands. He then lit one and threw it and a petrol bomb exploded near to the soldiers. B87 to B88 E's description of this man's actions are that, with both of these objects in his hands, he lit one and threw it, before lighting the other and throwing it. It is difficult to see how it would be physically possible for one person, holding a nail and a petrol bomb in his hands, to hold both and at the same time light one! Significantly, in his later statement to the Treasury Solicitor E said that when he first saw the man he was throwing the petrol bomb and he then lit the nail bomb. B95 When he came to give evidence to Lord Widgery E said that he had not actually seen the man light the nail bomb as he was distracted by the petrol bomb exploding. B103E

iii) In his first RMP statement E said that he shouted at the man to drop the nail bomb but when he didn't E fired two aimed shots at him. The first missed but the second struck him in the chest and he was knocked backwards and fell to the ground. Immediately a nail bomb exploded near the soldiers' position. B87 to B88 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor and in his evidence to Lord Widgery he confirmed this account.

iv) In each of his accounts E has said that he saw two other people fall in Glenfada Park. Initially he calls them "rioters" B87 but in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he claimed that he saw two more bodies fall in Glenfada Park although he did not notice if they had anything in their hands. B95 In his evidence to Lord Widgery he confirmed this and indicated that the two other bodies were in the centre of the park at the southern end. B112C-D

v) In his initial statement E says that "numerous people came out of the flats and went over to the bodies" B88. In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he says, "the crowd were still aggressive and some of them surrounded the body of the man I had shot." B95 Giving evidence to Lord

Widgery E indicated that after the man had been shot some of the crowd remained and some ran. B104D-E

vi) In answer to Lord Widgery E claimed that the people who were arrested were those "around the man who had the nail bomb and had been shot." B105B-C

vii) Significantly, E confirmed in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor that he could see that no one else was in his line of fire. B95 On his own account therefore, Soldier E's second shot hit the person it was intended to hit. It appears clear from his account that neither of his shots could have or did hit another, unintended target.

viii) E's claim that the soldiers were confronted by rioters in Glenfada Park should be contrasted with the accounts given by his Anti-Tank Platoon colleagues. It can also be seen from P439 that there is no evidence of any riotous behaviour, by way of debris on the ground, in Glenfada Park.

Arrests

19.9.1.2.19. Corporal E was involved in the arrest of "approximately 30 persons" from the gable end of Glenfada Park. We know that he claims to have arrested Seamus (James) Liddy ARR 27.1 to ARR27.3[9], John Liddy ARR28.1 to ARR28.3 [10], Fergus McAteer ARR31.1 to ARR31.3 [11] and Joseph McColgan ARR35.1 to ARR35.3 all of whom he claimed were throwing stones in Rossville Street.

19.9.1.2.20. Fergus McAteer has given written and oral evidence to this Tribunal. His statement indicates that:

i) he was arrested from the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North AM42.10 paragraphs 34 to 35;

ii) he was not engaged in any stone throwing or other such behaviour which might be described as "riotous" AM42.11 paragraph 44.

[9] Liddy was a 49 year old NAAFI worker in Fort George who he handed over to Sergeant Graham.
[10] Liddy was the barman in Fort George.
[11] McAteer is the son of Nationalist Party MP Eddie McAteer. By 1972 he was a qualified accountant.

iii) he does not remember seeing Corporal E in Glenfada Park at the time of his arrest AM42.12 paragraph 44;

19.9.1.2.21. Giving oral evidence Mr McAteer confirmed that he "had not actually set my foot on Rossville Street per se at any stage during that day, to my recollection. I certainly was not rioting, throwing stones." Day 168/77/5 to Day 168/77/8

19.9.1.2.22. Joseph McColgan has also given evidence to this Tribunal. He is clear that:

i) On Bloody Sunday he finished work at Dupont at 4pm AM123.8 paragraphs 1 to 4;

ii) He met Charlie Glenn as he walked across the Diamond AM123.8 paragraph 5;

iii) They made their way to William Street where they were confronted by paratroopers who marched them off at gunpoint AM123.9 paragraphs 12 to 13;

iv) His watch, ring and wallet were taken by one of the soldiers AM123.10 paragraph 14;

v) He and Mr Glenn were taken to the waste ground on the south side of William Street where they were eventually ordered into a lorry with others AM123.10 paragraphs 15 to 17;

vi) At Fort George paratroopers selected people at random whom they claimed had been rioting. Mr McColgan was selected by two paratroopers one of whom told police that he had been throwing stones in the Rossville Flats car park AM123.12 paragraphs 30 to 32;

vii) A few days later his watch and wallet were returned to him by police. All cash had been taken from the wallet and his watch had been broken. He did not get his ring back. AM123.12 paragraph 29

19.9.1.2.23. Giving evidence Mr McColgan confirmed that he had not been throwing stones on Bloody Sunday. Day 104/20/18 to Day 104/20/23

19.9.1.2.24. The Tribunal has 1972 accounts from Seamus (James) Liddy who claims that he was detained by the army in William Street at 3.50pm on Bloody Sunday. He was on his way to work. AL12.2 Mr Liddy also made clear that "while I was in the compound at the maintenance base a Corporal E came in and singled me out and said I threw stoned. Corporal E was not the person who arrested me. I contradicted him but he laughed in my face." AL12.3

19.9.1.3. Lance Corporal F

19.9.1.3.1. In 1972 Lance Corporal F made four statements to the Royal Military Police, a statement to Lt Col Overbury, a statement to the Treasury Solicitor and gave evidence at the Widgery Tribunal. He has also made a statement and given oral evidence to this Tribunal.

19.9.1.3.2. Soldier F was arguably one of the most important soldier witnesses to give evidence to this Tribunal in the sense that he, on his own and together with his partner and friend G, was undoubtedly responsible for a large number of the deaths and injuries on Bloody Sunday.

19.9.1.3.3. Soldier F's evidence was characterised by the loss of memory that those who had followed the evidence to the Inquiry came to expect from the members of Support Company who face allegations of murder. As with others, he sought refuge in the statements he made at the time, often repeating the mantra that if it appeared in his statement it must be true or at least what he believed when he made the statement. It defies belief that Soldier F does not remember the events of that day and his evidence in this regard cannot be accepted for the following reasons:

i) He had never killed anyone before Bloody Sunday Day 375/59/8 to Day 375/59/9.

ii) He did not kill anyone in Northern Ireland after Bloody Sunday Day 375/59/10 to Day 375/59/11.

iii) He agreed it was a "pretty dramatic day" Day 375/59/12 to Day 375/59/14.

iv) When questioned he was able to recall a previous incident in Northern Ireland where he had fired at a target but was not sure whether or not he had hit it. He indicated that he remembered that incident very well. Day 376/164/10 to Day 376/165/1

v) Since Bloody Sunday the families of those who were killed and the injured have protested their innocence. The soldiers who fired on that day would therefore always have been aware that they were accused of killing and/or injuring innocent people.

vi) He gave evidence to a public inquiry in 1972 about what happened that day.

vii) The report from that public inquiry criticised the firing that took place in Glenfada Park, firing in which he took part viii) The events of Bloody Sunday have been a matter of acute public controversy for thirty years.

19.9.1.3.4. It is also worthy of note that Soldier F did remember certain things when they were put to him. For example, he was in a position to give the following evidence:

> "The circumstances which I was involved in in that day was, I felt a threat to my life and the life of my fellow soldiers were under threat and I acted in accordance with the Yellow Card...and I thought my life was in danger." Day 376/87/19 to Day 376/87/24

19.9.1.3.5. He also appeared to have no difficulty denying allegations of wrong doing by himself or other members of his platoon. For example:

i) When asked about the incident described by O27 where two Catholic youths were abducted and seriously assaulted in Belfast in the week after Bloody Sunday F was certain that he was not involved. Day 375/174/17 to Day 375/176/19

ii) When asked if he had been elated and/or jubilant in the aftermath of Bloody Sunday he was certain that he had not been. Day 376/15/19 to Day 376/15/22

iii) He gave evidence that he did not witness or participate in any ill-treatment on Bloody Sunday. Day 376/25/19 to Day 376/26/2

iv) When asked if his lack of explanation for the discrepancies in his statements was due to the fact that he had been telling lies to conceal the truth and got into trouble with the detail F was clear that was "not correct." Day 375/144/23 to Day 375/145/2

19.9.1.3.6. By the time he came to give oral evidence to this Tribunal it must have been clear to Soldier F that by relying on his statements he would, at the very least, be exposing himself to allegations that he fired without justification and perjured himself before Lord Widgery. It can therefore be assumed that the consequences for him of telling the truth would be even more serious.

19.9.1.3.7. Quite apart from whether or not Soldier F was telling the truth when he came to give evidence to this Tribunal, the contents of his 1972 statements and his evidence to Lord Widgery are, in our submission, enough to condemn him as a liar. It was quite clearly demonstrated, by counsel to this inquiry and others, that Soldier F had told lies in 1972. This has been rehearsed at section eighteen. In common with many of his colleagues, this was best illustrated by his evidence about the people he claimed to have arrested and in particular the arrest statements he signed in relation to Michael McCallion ARR32.3 and Father O'Keefe. ARR50.3

19.9.1.3.8. In the former statement, F claimed to have arrested Mr McCallion at William Street at 1915 on 30th January 1972 – a time when 1 Para was not in that area. Day 376/39/23 to Day 376/40/9 He further claimed to have arrested Fr O'Keefe for throwing stones at the patrol on William Street. Day 376/40/10 to Day 376/41/13 This allegation was not maintained on F's behalf or put to Professor O'Keefe (as he now is) when he gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 127. In his oral evidence however, Soldier F maintained that he "would not lie." Day 376/41/11

19.9.1.3.9. Soldier F has consistently indicated that he fired two shots at one target in Glenfada Park. However his evidence as to the circumstances of this shooting has varied. Soldier F's evidence in relation to his target in Glenfada Park cannot be examined in isolation from the evidence he gives about his actions on Rossville Street and his firing along the southern end of Block 2 of the Rossville Flats. This evidence is dealt with in section twenty. That evidence, in our submission, provides ample support (if such support is needed) for our conclusions in relation to F's evidence about his actions and target in Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.3.10. Soldier F admits to firing two shots in Glenfada Park and killing one person there. The trajectory photograph that includes F's shots in Glenfada Park appears at. P7 It can be seen that the trajectory line in that photograph ends at the southern end of Glenfada Park North at a point which corresponds very closely to the point at which the bodies of Willie McKinney and Joseph Mahon lie in photograph. P439

19.9.1.3.11. Giving evidence to his Tribunal Soldier F denied that he had shot and killed Willie McKinney. Day 376/88/23 to Day 376/89/15 When counsel to the Tribunal put the allegation that he may have murdered Willie McKinney to him he answered that it was not correct "Because as I refer to my statements, the people I shot were either petrol bombers or a person who had a weapon." Day 376/176/5 to Day 376/176/12[12] (emphasis added). He had no comment to make when counsel to the inquiry put it to him that he may have wounded Joseph Mahon. Day 376/176/13 to day 376/176/21 The only other soldier who admits to firing at targets in that area is Soldier H.

[12] In fact Soldier F's evidence has always been that he fired at a NAIL bomber in Glenfada Park

Soldier F's 1972 accounts of what happened in Glenfada Park

19.9.1.3.12. In his first statement to the RMP at 0204 hrs on 31st January 1972 Soldier F indicated that around 30-40 rioters left the barricade on Rossville Street and moved to the right behind a block of flats out of his sight B122. F indicated that he then moved into Glenfada Park and gives the following account of what happened there:

i) On entering Glenfada Park Soldier F saw "one of the men" light something. He saw it "fizzle and spark" and he realised it was some kind of bomb. B122

ii) F then claimed the man raised his arm as if to throw the bomb. B122

iii) F fired two aimed shots at him; the first struck him in the shoulder and the second in the stomach. The bomb did not explode. B122

iv) Together with other members of his unit F advanced towards "the rioters" who dispersed. B122

v) F then checked around the corner of a building where he saw about 20 people, nineteen men and one woman. F and his team arrested these people. B122

19.9.1.3.13. In a second RMP statement dated 31st January 1972 at 1410hrs Soldier F picked a photo of Gerard Donaghey out of a collection shown to him as being the man he shot in a "full scale riot" in the Glenfada Flats for being in possession of nail bombs. B126

19.9.1.3.14. This statement has also been attributed to Soldier E as to which see above.

19.9.1.3.15. In his third (undated) RMP statement F claimed that:

i) He had seen three men move from the barricade on Rossville Street into the area of Glenfada Park flats. One of the men was carrying what looked like a rifle. B129

ii) On entering Glenfada Park North with G he "saw the three men on the other side of the square about thirty metres away near to 24 Glenfada Park, south west of our position." B129

iii) He then "shot and hit one man as he attempted to throw an object which looked like a nailbomb. I saw G fire and hit another of the men who was carrying what appeared to be a rifle." B129

iv) "The third man ran off but I believe he was engaged by another soldier. I did not see this." B129

19.9.1.3.16. In his fourth RMP statement Soldier F gives a detailed account of his actions in relation to the arrests he carried out in Glenfada Park. B132 to B133

19.9.1.3.17. Soldier F's fifth statement was given to Lt Col Overbury on 19th February 1972. In it he indicated that he had "mistaken the sequence of events" B135 and proceeded, for the first time, to indicate that he had fired shots:

i) Over the barricade in Rossville Street before entering Glenfada Park.

ii) From the south east of Glenfada Park North at a gunman positioned at a wall at the far (eastern) end of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats.

19.9.1.3.18. In that statement he confirmed that he had fired two rounds in Glenfada Park at a man who was about to throw a bomb. He indicated that he was certain the object was a bomb "because it was fizzing." B135

19.9.1.3.19. In his (undated) statement to the Treasury Solicitor F again stated that three men, one of whom was carrying a rifle, left the barricade and moved in the direction of Glenfada Park. B137 paragraph 4 He then said

"Myself and G moved round the side of the wall to the right and into Glenfada Park in order to cut their retreat off. As we entered Glenfada Park the three men were directly in front of us on the far side. One of them turned and was about to throw what appeared to be a bomb (because it was fizzing) in our direction. Myself and G dropped down on one knee. I took an aimed shot. The first shot seemed to hit the man with the bomb in the shoulder, the second in the chest. The man fell to the ground." B137 paragraph 5

19.9.1.3.20. Soldier F then describes hearing pistol shots in the direction of Rossville Flats and approached the southeast corner of Glenfada Park. He did not mention seeing the person he claimed was in possession of a rifle in Glenfada Park, nor did he say what G fired at.

19.9.1.3.21. In this statement F said:

"I also made a statement in which I said that I was reasonably sure I had shot a person whose photograph was shown to me called Donaghey. I stated that I shot this person in Glenfada Park. Having seen further photographs of Donaghy I am still reasonably satisfied that he is the person I shot because he bears a close resemblance." B138.001 paragraph 14

19.9.1.3.22. Soldier F's evidence to Lord Widgery about what happened in Glenfada Park can be summarised as follows

i) He indicated that the man he fired at in Glenfada Park was on the left of a group of three men and was attempting to throw what appeared to be a nail bomb. B141 F-G

ii) The bomb was in his hand and it was fizzing. B141 G

iii) The men were directly in front of the soldiers as they entered the courtyard, in the south west corner. B142 A-B

iv) F got down on one knee and fired two shots at the man. The first hit him in the arm and the second hit him in the chest. B142 D

v) He was hit in the right arm. B162 E

vi) At that time G was firing at the other persons, one of whom was carrying a firearm. The firearm was a long rifle. B142 D-F

vii) G hit that person but F could not remember what happened to the third person. B142 F-G viii) At that stage there were no other soldiers in the courtyard but others came in soon afterwards. B142 C-D ix) Four soldiers went into Glenfada Park altogether. E, F, G and H. B162 A-B

x) F could not see any other civilians in the courtyard at that time. There was no crowd of people. B162 B-C

xi) Apart from the people he arrested F saw only some ambulance people come forward shortly after the bodies fell. B162 C-D

xii) F first says he did not see E in Glenfada Park at all. B143 A-B xiii) He then says he remembers E being there when the order to withdraw came. B144 C

xiv) F also said that of the three men the man with the rifle was "the middle man." B158 C

xv) G fired at the man with the rifle and he fell. The rifle fell to the ground. B158 C-D

xvi) The soldiers made no attempt to recover the rifle or the unexploded nail bomb. B158 D to B159 B

Soldier F's evidence to this Tribunal

19.9.1.3.23. Soldier F has given both written and oral evidence to this Tribunal. His statement was signed on 2nd March 2000 and he gave oral evidence on Days 375 and 376.

19.9.1.3.24. In his statement he said, "I remember very little about the day." B167.001 paragraph 8. He also says "I recall a lot of people and noise in Glenfada Park, but nothing more. I do not recall firing my weapon there. I presume that Private G was with me, we covered each other, but do not know what he was doing. I have been shown photographs of Glenfada Park....It does not look familiar to me." B167.004 paragraph 31

19.9.1.3.25. When shown the statements he made in 1972 Soldier F:

i) Does recall "people moving to our right from the barricade, but I do not now recall how many did so." B167.006 paragraph 42 (i)

ii) Does not specifically recall seeing three men move from the barricade north west. B167.006 paragraph 44 (c)

iii) Does recall "that we 'moved position to our right'. We must have moved for a reason, but I do not now know why." B167.006 paragraph 42 (j)

iv) Does not recall seeing a man carrying "what looked like a rifle" but says "If I saw a man then this is a possible explanation for my movement right, but I cannot now recall this." B167.006 paragraph 44 (d)

v) Does not recall taking up position in Glenfada Park or seeing three men there. B167.006 paragraph 44 (e)

vi) Does not recall a nail bomber in Glenfada Park or firing at such a man. B167.006 paragraph 42 (k) to (l)

vii) Knows that Private G was with him but did not see what he did. He does not recall seeing him "fire and hit another of the men who was carrying what appeared to be a rifle." B167.006 paragraph 44(g) viii) Does not remember "the third man or anything about him." B167.006 paragraph 44 (h)

ix) Does not remember identifying a photograph of Gerard Donaghey. B167.006 paragraph 43

19.9.1.3.26. Soldier F's oral evidence to the Tribunal adds little or nothing by way of detail to the evidence given previously by him.

Discrepancies and Issues arising from Soldier F's accounts

19.9.1.3.27. Although at first sight F's evidence as to what happened in Glenfada Park may appear to be broadly consistent, in that in each account he claims to have fired two shots at a man holding a nail bomb, it is clear that on closer examination the various accounts do not stand up to scrutiny. The following issues arise:

i) In his first statement to the RMP F indicates that he moved into Glenfada Park after seeing 30-40 rioters leave the barricade and moving in that direction. B122 By the time he signed his third statement he no longer described such a large crowd of rioters moving from the barricade but rather three men, one of whom was carrying what looked like a rifle. B129 He confirms this account in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor although in this statement he positively identifies the item being carried by the man as a rifle, rather than indicating that it looked like a rifle. B137 paragraph 4 When he gives evidence to Lord Widgery he again refers to the man "carrying what appeared to be a rifle" B141 E-F when questioned by Mr Gibbens, but says that the man "was with a rifle" when cross examined by Mr McSparran. B157 B Giving evidence to this Tribunal, Soldier F was not able to explain these discrepancies. Day 376/67/23 to Day 376/71/6

ii) On entering Glenfada Park, F says in his first statement that he saw "one of the men", by this he presumably means one of the men he had seen move from the barricade, light something which he then saw "fizzle and spark" and he realised it was some kind of bomb. B122 In subsequent statements F's first glimpse of the man is as he is about to throw the bomb, he does not again refer to seeing the bomb being lit. B129, B135, B137 paragraph 5, B141 F-G

iii) In his second statement F says he saw the three men "on the other side of the square about thirty metres away near to 24 Glenfada Park, south west of our position." B129 Giving evidence to Lord Widgery he said that the three men were directly in front of the soldiers as they entered the courtyard, in the southwest corner B142 A-B and that the man with the nail bomb was on the left of a group of three men. B141 F-G

iv) In his first statement F then described the man raising his arm as if to throw the bomb. He fired two aimed shots at him, the first struck him in the shoulder and the second in the stomach. The bomb did not explode. B122 In his third statement F said he "shot and hit one man as he attempted to throw an object which looked like a nail bomb." B129 In the statement he gave to Lt Col Overbury F confirmed that the rounds he fired in Glenfada Park had been at a man who was about to throw a bomb and added that he knew it was a bomb "because it was fizzing." B135 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor F said that the man turned and was about to throw what appeared to be a bomb (because it was fizzing) in the soldiers' direction. He then went on to say that the first shot seemed to hit the man with the bomb in the shoulder, the second in the chest and he fell to the ground. B137 paragraph 5 By the time he gave evidence to Lord Widgery F was saying that the man was attempting to throw what appeared to be a nail bomb. B141 F-G and that the bomb was in his hand and it was fizzing. B141G. F indicated that he got down on one knee and fired two shots at the man. The first hit him in the arm and the second in the chest. B142 D When asked, F indicated that the man had been hit in the right arm. B162 E

v) In his first statement F indicated that, after shooting the man he claimed had a nail bomb, he, together with other members of his unit, advanced towards "the rioters" in Glenfada Park and they dispersed. B122 This is in keeping with his initial description of 30-40 rioters leaving the barricade. In his second statement to the RMP in which he purports to identify Gerard Donaghey as the man he shot in Glenfada Park he claimed that he shot the man during the course of a "full scale riot" in the Glenfada Flats for being in possession of nail bombs. B126 Previously he had only ever mentioned seeing one nail bomb. These are the only times that Soldier F mentions rioting or rioters in Glenfada Park, indeed when he gave evidence to Lord Widgery he indicated that he did not see any other civilians in the courtyard apart from the three men he described, the people he arrested and some ambulance people who came forward to the bodies. B162 B-D When questioned about the "full scale riot" before this Tribunal however Soldier F maintained said "Okay, I have no recollection, as I have said before now of the events, but if I put that in my statement, that is what happened." Day 376/77/16 to Day 376/77/18 When the evidence he gave to Lord Widgery was put to him he again had no explanation for the discrepancies. Day 376/77/19 to Day 376/79/8

vi) Soldier F does not mention that other members of his platoon fired until he made his third RMP statement. Then he says he saw G fire and hit another of the (three) men who was carrying what appeared to be a rifle. B129 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he simply indicated that on entering Glenfada Park himself and G dropped down on one knee. B137 paragraph 5 He did not say what G fired at. Giving evidence to Lord Widgery F indicated that while he was firing at the man with the nail bomb G was firing at the other persons, one of whom was carrying a long rifle. B142 D-F The man with the rifle fell and the rifle fell to the ground. B158 C-D

vii) The soldiers made no attempt to recover the rifle, or indeed the unexploded nail bomb they claimed these men had. B158D to B159B

19.9.1.3.28. In our submission the progression of F's evidence can be fairly simply explained. His initial statement was given at a time when the events of the day where not quite so clear as they later became. He gave a thoroughly mendacious account at that time and the detail of that account changed with each additional statement he gave in order to fit in with the emerging facts. This can be illustrated by his willingness to indicate, contrary to what he said in his earliest statement, that he had seen only three men, one of whom had a rifle, move from the barricade into Glenfada Park. This account was clearly designed to fit in with the account given by Soldier G of his target in Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.3.29. In addition, F never gives the same account twice of where he says his shots struck the man he fired at. In his first account he refers to the shoulder and the stomach, the second is the shoulder and the chest and giving oral evidence to Lord Widgery he describes the shots hitting the target in the arm and the chest. When questioned more closely he was able to say the man was hit in the right arm. This was despite the fact that he had never mentioned a shot hitting his target in the arm before. It can be noted at this stage that in relation to one of those who was shot dead in Glenfada Park, Willie McKinney, it is possible that he was struck by two bullets. In addition to the bullet wounds to his torso,

Willie McKinney had bullet entry and exit wounds in his arm, albeit his left arm. This is a point that Lord Saville was alive to when F gave oral evidence. Day 376/89/16 to Day 376/92/12

19.9.1.3.30. Soldier F has never given evidence to the effect that the weapons carried by the men he saw shot in Glenfada Park were recovered by civilians and taken away from the scene. He simply said that the soldiers did not attempt to recover the weapons. He was effectively cross-examined by Mr McSparran about the implausibility of this in circumstances where the soldiers say they were under attack when he gave evidence to Lord Widgery. B158 C to B159 B

19.9.1.3.31. It should also be noted that F describes the person G fired at as being in the middle of the three men he saw in Glenfada Park. He was also clear when asked that that man carried a long rifle. This is in marked contrast to G's evidence which was that:

i) there were two men in the south west corner of the park;
ii) both men were carrying firearms;
iii) those firearms were small rifles;
iv) he did not see anyone with a nail bomb in Glenfada Park;
v) he fired at the man on the right of the two men
vi) a crowd of civilians recovered the weapons from the bodies after the men fell.

19.9.1.4. Private G

19.9.1.4.1. Private G made four statements to the RMP. He also made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor and gave oral evidence at the Widgery Tribunal. He is now deceased. He admits to firing three shots in Glenfada Park which can be seen marked on his trajectory photograph at. P11

19.9.1.4.2. The gist of Private G's evidence is that he entered the car park with Soldiers E and F, moved around to the west of a car parked at the entrance and immediately saw two gunmen in the south west corner armed with what may have been M1 carbines. He fired three aimed shots at one of them. Both men fell. A crowd gathered around the bodies after they fell and weapons were removed from them. G then moved along the north end of Glenfada Park North and down the west side to the bodies while his partner Soldier F moved down the east side.

19.9.1.4.3. Private G does not claim to have seen any nail or petrol bombs explode in Glenfada Park. It was not until he made his statement to the Treasury solicitor that he said he heard a "bang" on the day but did not specify where he heard it and indicated that he would not be able to say what it was. In common with other members of his platoon he appears to have signed a "pro forma" statement purporting to identify the person he shot in Glenfada Park during the course of a "full scale riot" but the nature of this riot was never elaborated on. In fact it was only when he gave evidence to Lord Widgery that he mentioned any missiles being thrown in Glenfada Park, and even then he said while he saw bricks being thrown he did not take any notice.

19.9.1.4.4. A bullet from Private G's weapon was recovered from the body of Gerard Donaghey who was shot in Abbey Park and the evidence in relation to this is dealt with below in section 19.15. However, his failure to account for those deaths and his actions in Abbey Park are of great significance in the assessment of his evidence as a whole. In this section, however, we deal with his evidence in relation to the events that occurred in Glenfada Park North.

Private G's 1972 accounts

19.9.1.4.5. In his first statement to the Royal Military Police Soldier G says that when he entered Glenfada Park North:

i) He saw "two men standing about twenty five metres away, both of them were holding what appeared to be small rifles in their hands. There was a small group of people standing near to them." B169

ii) He fired three aimed shots at one of the men and saw him fall to the ground. B169

iii) Soldier F fired at the same time and G saw the other gunman fall. B169

iv) The group of people standing near to the gunmen picked up the two weapons and ran off down an alleyway in a North Easterly direction. B169

v) F and G split up and gave chase. B169

vi) G ran down the alleyway past the two bodies lying on the ground but the people with the weapons had already turned off from the alleyway out of sight. B169

19.9.1.4.6. In a second (signed) statement to the RMP at 1420 on 31st January 1972 Soldier G claimed to recognise John Young from photographs and said "I am reasonably sure that I shot this man in an incident in the Glenfada Flats, Londonderry during a full scale riot on 30 Jan 72. The youth was throwing nail bombs." B176

19.9.1.4.7. In this statement G therefore claims to have shot a nail bomber rather than a gunman in Glenfada Park and further, for the first time, claims that there was a "full scale riot" taking place there. Not surprisingly, as he did not mention anything about shooting a nail bomber in his 1st RMP statement, this account was amended by manuscript in a third (undated) statement to say that Young had been armed with a rifle. B177.001 Private G also signed this statement. Of course the Tribunal knows from other evidence that John Young was shot at the rubble barricade.

19.9.1.4.8. Soldier G made a fourth statement to the RMP dated 14th February 1972. In that statement he indicated that he wished to add to his first statement as follows:

"The gunmen I saw in Glenfada Park were accompanied by a third man. Because this man did not have a rifle like the others I did not pay any more attention to him. I shot at one of the gunmen and I heard "F" fire at the same time and because the two gunmen fell to the ground I automatically thought that the second gunman had been engaged by "F". However in view of the fact that I fired 3 shots it is possible that I hit both men and the third man who was with them, I later saw was lying on the ground but not moving. Therefore it is likely he was shot by "F"." B179

19.9.1.4.9. This statement appears to be an attempt by Soldier G to account for three bodies in Glenfada Park rather than the initial two described by him. It should immediately be noted that if the third man described by G was shot by F or any other soldier it is clear from G's evidence that G saw no justification for that shooting as he did not take any further notice of the man as he "did not have a rifle like the others." B179 In any event Soldier F claims that he shot at a nail bomber.

19.9.1.4.10. In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor G describes entering the courtyard and moving to the right side of a parked car when he noticed two men in the opposite corner:

"These men were armed. I cannot identify their weapons exactly but I think they were short rifles like an M1 carbine. They both had some weapon of this sort. I immediately dropped to one knee and fired three aimed shots at one of the men. F was firing beside me and I saw both the men fall." B186

19.9.1.4.11. Soldier G describes a "fair number of people on the opposite side of the courtyard". B187 and a small group gathering around the men when they fell. G then says, contrary to what he said in earlier statements, that he did not actually see these people pick up a weapon.

19.9.1.4.12. In this statement Private G also mentions for the first time additional shots fired by Soldier F. At the point of recall from Glenfada Park North he says:

"I heard F shout "There's a gunman" or something like that. I saw him down on one knee at the south east corner of Glenfada Park aiming in an easterly direction. I saw him fire one or two shots in a direction out of my sight". B 187

19.9.1.4.13. This is the first time that Private G appears to recall seeing Lance Corporal F fire in the direction of Joseph Place. G only appears to have recalled this action by F after F's 5th statement in which he admitted for the first time that he fired over the barricade and from Glenfada Park along the back of Block 2 of the Rossville Flats.

19.9.1.4.14. Also in his statement to the Treasury Solicitor Soldier G gives explanations for a number of the statements he made previously:

i) He says he initially assumed that he had shot one of the two men he saw in Glenfada Park and F had shot the other. In this statement he says it is possible he shot both while F shot a third man he was not observing. B188 paragraph 12

ii) In relation to the third man he mentioned in his statement of 14th February 1972 G says in this statement that he did not have a third man under close observation near the two targets he mentioned earlier. While he says he could have shot those two men he says he certainly could not have shot the third man, although it is possible that F did. B188 paragraph 12

iii) G confirms that he saw weapons after shooting at the men and seeing them fall and that a crowd surrounded the bodies and "when the crowd had gone the weapons had gone too." B188 paragraph 13

iv) As to his identification of John Young G says that the person he shot could have been John Young but he is not certain. He also says that the man he shot was not throwing nail bombs and he does not recall saying that to the investigating officer. "I think there was a mix up when this statement was taken with a number of others. I do not recall hearing it read over to me and I am quite certain I did not say that the man I shot at was throwing nail bombs." B188 paragraph 13

v) As to whether or not he had heard any explosions on the day G says "The only thing I heard that day was a bang, but I would not like to say what it was." B188 paragraph 13

19.9.1.4.15. At no time does he refer to shots fired in Glenfada Park other than his own and those of Soldier F. He certainly does not mention Corporal E or Private H's shots.

19.9.1.4.16. There are a number of significant points arising from Soldier G's evidence to Lord Widgery

i) He confirmed that he had seen two gunmen standing at the southwest corner of Glenfada Park. They were on the footpath. B194 C-D

ii) The men were holding the weapons in both hands. B206 G

iii) They were not pointing at the soldier. B207 A – B

iv) Soldier G fired without warning. B207 A-B

v) He fired three quick shots at the man on the right hand side who was slightly in front of the other man. B207 B-C

vi) He confirmed that he could have shot both of those men. B195 B-C

vii) He made it clear that he was not aware of a third man or a third body. B195 C–D viii) The crowd of (about fifteen) people were on the footpath and immediately the two men fell they ran past them and when they had run past the weapons had gone as well. B195 D-E

ix) He indicated that he fired through the alleyway in the direction of Abbey Park. B196 A-B[13]

x) He gave evidence that F fired across towards the Rossville Flats from Glenfada Park. B196 B-D

[13] For a discussion of Private G's actions in Abbey Park including this evidence see below section 19.15

xi) He confirmed that he did not hear any nail bombs in Rossville Street. B199F

xii) He confirmed that all he heard in Glenfada Park was one bang, he did not see where it came from and he did not know what it was. B200 A-B xiii) He indicated that he did not take notice of whether missiles were being thrown in Glenfada Park or not. The only time he knew there was something being thrown in the way of troops was when he was kneeling down to fire and some bricks came in front of him. B200 F-G

xiv) He confirmed that he did not see anyone with a nail bomb in Glenfada Park. B200 G

xv) The prisoners were not taken out of Glenfada Park until after F fired across the front of the Rossville Flats. B202 D

xvi) He did not see a soldier shoot a man who was lying on the ground twice in the back. B202 E-F xvii) He did not see a first aid girl coming to tend to some of the wounded. B202 F xviii) When he fired at the people there was no one else immediately in front of them or immediately behind them in the line of fire. B202 F-G

xix) The crowd that ran towards the bodies ran from his left (i.e. the east). B202 G

xx) They moved fairly quickly, like people who felt in danger. B203 A-B

xxi) He did not and could not see whether any of the people in that crowd actually stopped at the bodies. B203 C-E xxii) While he heard other shooting in Glenfada Park he did not know who was shooting or what they were firing at. B208 A-D xxiii) His evidence appears clear that when, in his first RMP statement, he referred to people picking up weapons and running down an alleyway in a north easterly direction he was referring to the bodies in the south west corner of Glenfada Park and to the alleyway in that area. B209 B-E xxiv) It was confirmed that his rifle was serial number A.5259. B209 F-G

Issues and Discrepancies Arising from Soldier G's accounts

i) Unlike Soldiers E, F and H, Soldier G does not give any reason for the soldiers' move into Glenfada Park. He simply says that he followed Lance Corporal F. B168 to B169

ii) In his first statement G indicated that when he entered Glenfada Park North he saw two men standing about 25 metres away both holding what appeared to be small rifles in their hands. He also said that there was a small group of people standing near to them. B169 In his fourth statement to the Royal Military Police G indicated that the two gunmen he saw in Glenfada Park were accompanied by a third man but he did not have a rifle like the others. B179 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor G's evidence reverts to seeing two armed men on entering Glenfada Park. B186 He later said that he did not have the "third man" under close observation. B188 In his evidence to Lord Widgery he confirmed his sighting of the two gunmen but was clear that he was not aware of a third man. B195 C-D

iii) In his first statement G described firing three aimed shots at one of the gunmen. He saw him fall to the ground. B169 He also said that F fired at the same time and the other gunman fell. B169 In his fourth statement to the RMP G indicated that because himself and F fired at the same time and the two gunmen fell to the ground he assumed that the second gunman had been engaged by F. In this statement G indicated that it was possible that he hit both men and the "third man" he first mentions in this statement. B179 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor G again describes aiming at one of the two men and himself and F firing at the same time. He also describes seeing both men fall. B186 He then indicates that he could have shot both of the men he saw, while F could have shot a "third man" that he was not observing. B188 Giving evidence to Lord Widgery he confirmed that he had seen two gunmen, that he fired three shots at the man on the right hand side of the two, that he could have shot both men and that he was not aware of a third man or third body. B195 C-D iv) It is clear from G's evidence that both himself and F were not justified in opening fire in Glenfada Park. When G first describes the "third man" in Glenfada Park he is clear that he "did not have a rifle like the others." B179 It is therefore submitted that if the third man described by G was shot by F or any other soldier it is clear from G's evidence that G saw no justification for that shooting as he did not take any further notice of the man. B179

v) As to the man that G fired at he was clear giving evidence to Lord Widgery that he had fired at a time when the gunmen were not pointing their weapons at the soldier. He also indicated that he fired without warning. B207 A – B This action was in contravention of the Yellow Card. ED71.2 paragraphs 6, 7, 8, 13

vi) In his first statement to the RMP G described the crowd he saw in Glenfada Park picking up the weapons and running off down an alleyway in a North Easterly direction. B169 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor G confirms that the crowd gathered around the bodies but indicated that he did not actually see the weapons picked up. B187 He later clarifies this by saying that "when the crowd had gone the weapons had gone too." B188 He confirmed this evidence before Lord Widgery. B195 D-E It is clear from his evidence at the Tribunal that his reference to the crowd running past bodies and into an alleyway in a northeasterly direction was meant to refer to the bodies in the southwest corner and the alleyway in that area. B209 F-G

vii) Like a number of his colleagues G also purports to identify the individual he shot from a photograph. Also in common with his colleagues, in his second and third statements to the RMP he indicated that he shot this person during a "full scale riot" in Glenfada Park. B176 That these are "pro forma" statements is best illustrated by the two signed by Soldier G. Despite the fact that G had previously claimed to have shot a gunman and had never claimed to have even seen a nail bomb in Glenfada Park the first "identification" statement he signed indicated that the person he had shot had been "throwing nail bombs." B176 This was later corrected. B177.001 viii) In addition, apart from this reference to a "full scale riot" Soldier G makes no other reference to the soldiers being faced with rioters in Glenfada Park. In fact Private G's evidence is clear in that he does not mention seeing or hearing any nail or petrol bombs, or indeed any other missiles, in Glenfada Park. It is only when he gives evidence to Lord Widgery that he mentions missiles being thrown in Glenfada Park at all, and even then only bricks. B200 F-G Despite the terms of his third RMP statement he does not at any time further describe the "full scale riot" he said was taking place there.

ix) It is also significant that G confirms that when he fired at his targets there was no one else immediately in front of them or behind them in the line of fire. B202 F-G It therefore appears clear that G could not have hit another, unintended target with his three shots.

x) Soldier G's evidence is clearly designed to support the case that was being made by his friend and partner Soldier F. It must have rapidly become clear that these two soldiers, who were side by side in Glenfada Park, had given significantly different accounts of what took place there. F had indicated that his target was a nail bomber while G indicated that he saw men armed with guns. Despite their best efforts – for example G's invention of a "third man" to allow for F's nail bomber and F changing his evidence to include sightings of men with guns in Glenfada Park - when they gave evidence to Lord Widgery these great friends contradicted each other. In fact, F gave evidence that the gunmen he saw were holding long rifles, when G's evidence had always been that the men he saw carried small weapons. G on the other hand gave clear evidence that at no time did he see a nail bomber in Glenfada Park.

xi) It is apparent from his evidence that G was prepared to lie in order to protect himself and his colleagues, especially Soldier F. That he lied casually is evident from his fourth RMP statement and the introduction of the "third man" in Glenfada Park B179 and from his statement to the Treasury Solicitor where he provides corroboration for Soldier F's account of the shots he fired across towards Block 2 of the Rossville Flats for the first time. B187 paragraph 8

xii) It is possible, given G's evidence as to where he fired his shots, that one of them struck Joseph Friel.

Arrests

19.9.1.4.17. All Private G says in his evidence is that he saw F and some others ferry back a party of about 20 persons from across the courtyard. He accompanied them back to Columbcille Court where they handed them over to another party from their unit. B187 However Arrest Forms and photographs can be found in relation to Patrick Joseph Norris ARR 45.2 and Christopher Doherty ARR 14.1 who Private G claims to have arrested for "throwing stones and shouting abuse at SF in Glenfada Park" and John Noel Devine ARR 12.2 who was "throwing stones at his patrol".

19.9.1.4.18. Mr Doherty has made it quite clear that he did not throw stones in Glenfada Park although he admitted that he had thrown a stone earlier in William Street. AD58.14 paragraph 37 He also said that he "did not recognise who had picked me out. I doubted it was the soldier who had arrested me and had a gun to my head in Glenfada Park but I did not see much of him so I cannot be certain of this." AD58.14 paragraph 36

19.9.1.4.19. In his taped interview with Kathleen Keville in 1972 Mr Devine indicated that he had been in Glenfada Park when he was arrested and denied that he had been throwing stones. He said, "They looked at my hands and they said "scruffy, a bit of dirt on them". Well I says it couldn't be anything else with the treatment we got in the van and up against barbed wire..." AD41.16 to AD41.19

19.9.1.4.20. This is further clear evidence (if any more were needed) that Soldier G was prepared to lie and clearly did so quite casually.

19.9.1.5. Private H

19.9.1.5.1. Before he came to give oral evidence the Tribunal was in possession of a considerable amount of evidence concerning Soldier H. Not only did Lord Widgery single him out in his report as a witness who could not be believed but other soldiers had given evidence (both written and oral) indicating that they held very strong views about him. H's platoon commander, Lt 119 said:

"....I did not know H very well as he had only very recently come back to the Platoon for this deployment. He had been away for the previous six months as a waiter in the officers' mess. He had been in the Platoon when I first became its commander. It was common for soldiers to be selected to become mess servants and when there were no other mess staff available." B1752.017 paragraph 36

19.9.1.5.2. INQ 1574 had the following comment to make about him:

"He was a reject. He was a runner, but was a bit of a plank. He was nonsensical and shared a brain with an amoeba. He was a bit of a pratt and could not tell jokes..." C1574.6 paragraph 43

19.9.1.5.3. INQ 2037 said:

The [Widgery] report did mention that one soldier had fired at windows and this was Lance Corporal H. He was a first class idiot, a clown.C.2037.5 paragraph 27

19.9.1.5.4. H was quite unique among the "Glenfada Park" soldiers who gave evidence to the Tribunal in that he does claim to have some memories of the day and of what happened in Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.5.5. H admits to firing 22 shots on Bloody Sunday – more than any other soldier and more than the rest of the anti-tank platoon put together! He claims that all of those shots were fired in Glenfada Park. He claims three hits. His trajectory photograph can be found at. P12 Soldier H made three statements to the Royal Military Police, a statement to the Treasury Solicitor in the presence of Major Loden and gave evidence to the Widgery Tribunal. He has also given written and oral evidence to this Tribunal.

Soldier H's 1972 accounts

19.9.1.5.6. The proximity in time between Soldier H's first statement to the RMP and the second (0210 and 0230 31st January 1972) has already been pointed out and commented on in section eighteen. Also referred to above are some of the outlandish statements made in that account. In addition to those H also says the following in his first statement:

i) I was part of a force the complete Company which had been deployed in Creggan area. This action had followed intense shooting by the local residents at the Security Forces. B218 (emphasis added)

ii) A barricade has been erected across Rossville St at the location of the crowd. It consisted of old cars and paving stones, mostly plundered from the works ground B218 to B219 (emphasis added).

19.9.1.5.7. These claims made by H are quite simply bizarre and they are not the only bizarre elements of Soldier H's first statement.

19.9.1.5.8. Giving evidence, H said that he did not know where the Bogside and Creggan were. Day 379114/6 to Day 379/114/17 In relation to the "intense shooting by local residents" he suggested that was shooting "over the previous weeks and months." Day 377/114/6 to Day 377/115/5 He could not explain his description of the barricade. Day 377/117/10 to Day 377/117/20 When H's first statement is considered it very quickly becomes apparent why a second statement would be prepared within such a short space of time (his first RMP statement is timed at 0210 on 31st January and his second is timed at 0230) and why Major Loden accompanied H when he gave his statement to the Treasury Solicitor.

19.9.1.5.9. When one looks at the content of the second statement (four type written pages) it defies belief that such a statement (which differs considerably from the first) could have been taken and signed within the apparent timescale – at most twenty minutes. This is a point that was made by H himself when he gave oral evidence to this Tribunal.

Day 377/126/18 to Day 377/126/20 No explanation has been given for this.

19.9.1.5.10. H's first statement is very unclear as to the location of the various incidents that took place. He could not explain this lack of clarity when he gave evidence. Day 377/119/13 to Day 377/120/25 Insofar as is possible and it appears to be relevant to what happened in Glenfada Park the statement can be summarised as follows:

i) The soldiers were being "stoned, nail bombed and acid bombed as well as being shot at on Rossville Street. B219

ii) As the patrol neared a north west junction leading to a collection of flats facing William Street H saw a group of youths who threw stones and nail bombs at the advancing patrol. B219

iii) The youths then turned and ran north west in the direction of waste land between two blocks of flats about 50-60 metres apart. B219

iv) H did not recognise the youths that threw the nail bombs. The soldiers pursued them through the gap between the two flats about 15 metres wide. B219

v) At the gap they saw the group of youths hiding behind a broken down car. Around them in all directions were groups of other youths. They began to throw bricks and any other material on the waste land. B220

vi) H saw three youths at a distance of about 70 metres hiding behind the wall. They were dressed in light clothing. B220

vii) H was with F and G at that stage. B220

viii) He saw the youths in possession of nail bombs and cocked his rifle, aimed at the youth in the middle of the group and fired two rounds at the centre of his stomach. The other two soldiers fired at the other persons. All three youths fell to the ground. B220

ix) A youth then appeared from the northwest block of flats. He ran from a crowd of people. He was dressed in a jean suit. He picked up an object from one of the youths that had been shot and ran in the direction of the north block of flats across the wasteland. H fired at him and struck him in the shoulder. The youth was 20 metres from him when H fired and he aimed his shot at his central back. The youth disappeared into a crowd of people converging on the three youths who were lying at the side of the broken car. B220

x) H said he saw " G1" (i.e. Lt 119) examine the bodies of the three youths. He later informed them that they were dead. B220.

xi) H then says "the patrol continued along Rossville Street towards the barricade, this was broken up by the Company. I then returned along Rossville Street back towards the junction with William Street." B221

xii) "There is a block of flats extending east towards Chamberlain Street. On the west side of the flat about 200 metres from my passing location, the patrol came under fire from a concealed sniper, using a high velocity rifle. I located his position to be a toilet window facing me. He was firing from the window, about 1ft square." B221 xiii) He then says, "I took a covering position, cocked my rifle and fired 17 x 7.62 aimed shots at the sniper. I then changed my magazine, loaded the rifle with a fresh magazine and fired 2 x 7.62 shots. He did not return fire. No investigation of the premises was carried out. We then continued back to our vehicles...." B221

19.9.1.5.11. The second statement is a much clearer and coherent description of events, even though it gives a completely different account to the first. In it H indicated that:

i) A group of about five youths appeared in an alleyway leading to a block of garages in Glenfada Park. B229

ii) One of the youths had in his right hand a round shaped object, brown in colour, which looked like a nailbomb. The object struck the floor in front of H but did not explode. The youth ran away. B230

iii) Following two other members of his section H ran into Glenfada Park, entering at the north east corner. B230

iv) On entering the square H saw F and G in the aim position behind the rear of a parked car. B230

v) He saw F fire at a man near an opening in the south west corner of the square. B230

vi) H saw a youth aged between eighteen and twenty two standing about five feet north east of the north east wall of 59 Glenfada Park. He was about 50 yards south west of H's position and he had his right arm drawn back in the throwing position. In his hand the youth had a round object the size of a coca cola tin which looked like a nail bomb. H fired two shots at the youth and he fell to the ground. The nail bomb did not explode. B230

vii) Another youth about the same age dressed in blue denim jeans and trousers ran from the gap in the south west corner of the square, picked up the nail bomb and turned to face the gap he had run from. H fired one aimed shot at the youth. He staggered and ran north east into the gap where other people had assembled. B230 to B231 viii) H then took up position behind a low wall about four feet high next to the north east corner of the block of garages in Glenfada Park. Whilst he was in this position he heard a single shot being fired and saw a puff of smoke come from a toilet window in 57 Glenfada Park. He could see the shape of a man and the muzzle of a rifle pointing out of the window. B231

ix) H fired the remainder of his magazine at the window. He then changed his magazine and fired a further two shots at the man behind the window. He saw him fall and believed he hit him. He stopped firing just as a cease fire order was given to him by CSM Lewis. B231

x) "G1" carried out a follow up action and discovered that the youth he first fired at was dead. B231

xi) H is certain that "none of my rounds struck anyone but those who I aimed at. All these persons had walls behind their position. B231

19.9.1.5.12. In his third statement to the Royal Military Police which covers in large part the events that took place in Glenfada Park and appears to be designed to deal with the actions of others H said:

i) He was positioned behind a civilian car in the north east corner of the Glenfada car park with other members of his platoon including F and G. B224

ii) To the south west of their position, on a footpath about 70 metres away were a group of civilian youths (between 5 and 7) aged between 18 and 22 years. B224

iii) "I am positive that two of these youths were carrying nail bombs, I cannot say if the others carried weapons of (sic) offensive weapons." B224

iv) Before he fired at one of the youths carrying a nail bomb he saw him fall to the ground. This was followed by more shots from members of the platoon and four of the youths were shot dead. B224

v) He did not see who shot the other two youths as he was watching a youth who appeared from the west of the car park, ran to where the bodies lay, picked up a nail bomb and as he turned, H fired one shot and hit him in the upper right arm or shoulder. The youth continued on and left the area the way he had come. He was wearing a blue denim jacket and trousers. B225

vi) He cannot say what happened to the other youths who were not shot. There was between one and three of them. B225

vii) He knows that E and G fired but does not know what at. B225 viii) Lt 119 arrived "shortly after the shooting" and went to look at the bodies of the youths. He may have been present for some time but H didn't see him because he was behind him. B225

ix) H was wearing a gas mask when he fired. B225

x) At the end of the statement, he describes firing 19 shots at "a sniper situated in a toilet within a flat on the south side of the car park....my 19th shot appeared to hit him because I saw him fall and then I received the order to cease fire from WOII Lewis." B225

19.9.1.5.13. H's statement to the Treasury Solicitor was taken by J. L. Heritage "in the presence of 236 [Major Loden] on 2nd March 1972" B235. In that statement:

i) He describes seeing youths on Rossville Street, at the end of an alleyway leading into "Columbcille Court." B233 paragraph 2

ii) One had an object in his hands, which H thought was a nail bomb because of its shape and colour. B233 paragraph 2

iii) It was smooth and cylindrical about the same size as a Coca-Cola tin. It was dark brown in colour. B233 paragraph 2

iv) H said he was positive that it was not a rock or other missile of that kind. The lad threw the bomb in his direction and "although I did not watch it land I heard it hit the ground near us. It did not then explode." B233 paragraph 2

v) Soldiers then chased these youths into Glenfada Park. B233 paragraph 2

vi) H then describes how F and G arrived in the car park about two seconds in advance of him B234 paragraph 3

vii) He saw F fire. B234 paragraph 3.

viii) He saw a lad with an object like a coca cola tin in his hand. He was drawn back in a throwing position. H fired two shots at him and he fell to the ground. The bomb just thudded to the ground without rolling or bouncing. It did not explode. B234 paragraph 3

ix) There was an alleyway at the opposite corner of the square from which a youth ran. He picked up the bomb and H thought he was about to throw it. He fired one round at him and thinks it hit him in the right shoulder or upper arm. He was able to stagger away. He did not drop the bomb." B234 paragraph 3

x) He then heard a shot and saw the muzzle of a rifle sticking out of a window. It was a single window with frosted glass and an upper pane which was open. The rifle was sticking out of this pane. H fired 19 shots at the window, aiming at the centre. With his last shot he believed he saw the gunman fall. He could see the shape of him through the frosted glass window. B235 paragraph 4

19.9.1.5.14. Giving evidence to Lord Widgery, H confirmed on oath that he and his colleagues had chased youths into Glenfada Park and that he had fired three shots at two youths there B240A to B241B. For the first time he indicated that:

i) His first shot had missed the boy he fired at first and only his second shot hit him. B240C-D

ii) His first shot had hit a wall directly behind the boy. B253 E to B254 B

iii) He had heard an explosion while he was behind the parked car in Glenfada Park North. B253 C-E

19.9.1.5.15. The ridiculous nature of Soldier H's evidence about the 19 shots he claimed to have fired was easily exposed by Mr McSparran's cross-examination. B255A to B259G

Soldier H's evidence to this Tribunal

19.9.1.5.16. In Soldier H's statement to this Tribunal he said "Over the years I have tried hard to forget what happened on Bloody Sunday and I have not thought about it for a long time. Although I have some quite vivid memories of specific events which happened on the day, I have forgotten quite a lot of what happened". B262 paragraph 2

19.9.1.5.17. However, unlike his former colleagues in the Anti-Tank Platoon Soldier H does remember significant portions of what happened in Glenfada Park. He gave evidence about:

i) His feelings of fear as he entered the courtyard. B264 paragraph 16, Day 377/52/15 to Day 377/52/21

ii) Taking cover behind either a car or a short wall. Day 377/56/17 to Day 377/56/19

iii) A group of civilians at the south side of the courtyard. One of them threw a nail bomb at H. Although he did not see it land he was aware of it landing quite close to him and he heard it land. It did not explode. B264 paragraph 18, Day 377/56/20 to Day 377/57/19

iv) A youth among the group of civilians holding a smoking object in his hands and being sure that it was a bomb. The youth was positioned as if he was about to throw the bomb B264.001 paragraph 19. H told Lord Widgery that he did not notice any fizzing or smoking B252. Giving evidence to this Tribunal he accepted that his 1972 account was more likely to be accurate. Day 377/59/6

v) Firing two quick shots at this youth and hitting him with one of them, possibly both. He fell to the ground B264.001 paragraph 20. Giving evidence he acknowledged that he should only have fired once, the standard army practice of firing two shots did not apply in Northern Ireland Day 377/59/21 to Day 377/60/3. He did not remember telling Lord Widgery that his first shot had missed. Day 377/60/11 to Day 377/61/13

vi) Bloody Sunday being the first time he had fired at a live target. B264.001 paragraph 21

vii) That it is possible that because of his youth and inexperience he may have seen someone who was about to throw something and shot him in panic, although he did not think this was the case. Day 377/61/18 to Day 377/61/23

viii) That it was not possible that he had mistaken a stone or a brick for a nail bomb. Day 377/61/24 to Day 377/62/13

ix) He does not know what happened to the youth's body. Day 377/62/14 to Day 377/62/19

x) That he did not shoot from the hip that day. B264.001 paragraph 20

xi) Another youth running out, picking up the bomb and starting to run, holding the bomb. H fired one shot, hitting him in the shoulder or upper arm. He did not fall to the ground and continued running B264.001 paragraph 22. H later says that he must have thought this youth was about to throw the nail bomb. B264.006 paragraph 43, 1.15

xii) Firing at sniper behind a window. B264.002 paragraph 24

xiii) Changing his magazine. B264.002 paragraph 25

xiv) The sniper failing to reappear after the 19th shot.

19.9.1.5.18. H does not now recollect:

i) The group of lads appearing from the alleyway leading into Columbcille Court. Day 377/46/9 to Day 377/47/11

ii) His Platoon commander checking the bodies B264.007 paragraph 43 1.18; Giving evidence to this Tribunal H said that not only did he have no recollection of Lt 119 doing this "I did not see him do it. I did not see him go forward" Day 377/125/15. In answer to Mr Glasgow QC he agreed it may be that Lt 119 later told him the people who had been shot were dead and from that H assumed that he had examined the bodies. Day 377/136/5 to Day 377/137/18

iii) What his second target in Glenfada Park was wearing. Day 377/63/14 to Day 377/63/17

iv) Hearing an explosion when he was in Glenfada Park. Day 377/64/24 to Day 377/65/6

v) Receiving a cease fire order from CSM Lewis. Day 377/132/15

19.9.1.5.19. Giving evidence to this Tribunal Soldier H:

i) accepted that he could have shot William McKinney and Joseph Mahon; Day 377/89/89/10 to Day 377/89/16

ii) could not explain why he said that G engaged a nail bomber when G had said he fired at two gunmen; Day 377/21/25 to Day 377/23/1

iii) agreed that his second target was "utterly mad" to have placed himself in the direct line of soldiers' fire; Day 377/24/8/to Day 377/24/22

iv) accepted that he probably followed G down the west side of Glenfada Park; Day 378/92/4 to Day 378/92/14

v) indicated that he saw a crowd of people in Glenfada Park in the area of the south west alleyway. They were trying to get away but some of them were still in the square; Day 378/99/7 to Day 378/100/8

vi) confirmed that his second target had his back to him when he shot him and that he must have "assumed" that he was about to throw a nail bomb at him. Day 378/128/21 to Day 378/130/5

Issues and Discrepancies Arising from Soldier H's accounts

i) Soldier H's first account indicated that he and his colleagues chased a group of youths through a 15 metre gap between two flats as a result of seeing them throwing stones and nail bomb at their patrol B219. In his second statement he describes a group of about five youths appearing in an alleyway "leading to a block of garages in Glenfada Park" B229. He described one of the youths as having an object in his hand which looked like a nail bomb, he threw it at soldiers but it did not explode and the youth ran away B230. In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor H claimed that the soldiers had chased youths who appeared at an alleyway leading into Columbcille Court as one of them had thrown a nail bomb at the patrol B233 paragraph 2. He confirmed this account on oath before Lord Widgery. B238F to B239D

ii) H initially indicated that when he entered Glenfada Park he saw the group of youths hiding behind a broken down car. Around them in all directions were groups of other youths. They began to throw bricks and any other material. B220 He does not mention these youths again.

iii) In his first statement H claimed to have seen three youths at a distance of about 70 metres hiding behind a wall. He saw that the youths were in possession of nail bombs so he cocked his rifle, aimed at the youth in the middle of the group and fired two rounds at the centre of his stomach. He was with F and G at that time and they fired at the other persons. All three fell to the ground B220. In his second statement H said that when he entered Glenfada Park F and G were already in the aim position behind the rear of a parked car and he saw F fire at a man near an opening in the southwest corner of the square B230. He did not say what F had fired at. In his third statement H does not specifically mention that F fired, never mind what he fired at. He further says "I know 'E' and 'G' fired but I did not actually see what they were aiming at." B225 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he does say he saw F fire, but again does not say what he fired at. B234 paragraph 3 When he gave evidence to Lord Widgery he indicated that he entered Glenfada Park and saw a soldier firing although "I don't know which one it was, sir, not by the letters." B252 B The following exchange then took place between him and Mr McSparran:

iv) "Q. Could you see what he was firing at? A. I took a look over here, sir, and I saw a youth with a nail bomb and I didn't worry any more about what he was shooting at.

v) Is the answer to that that you did not see what he was firing at?

vi) No sir I didn't" B252 C-D

vii) Giving evidence H said he did not know how he could have truthfully said in his initial statements that he had seen what F had fired at and then say to Lord Widgery that he could not see what F was firing at. Day 378/25/15 to Day 378/28/18

viii) In his first statement H claimed to have seen three youths at a distance of about 70 metres hiding behind a wall. He that the youths were in possession of nail bombs so he cocked his rifle, aimed at the youth in the middle of the group and fired two rounds at the centre of his stomach. The other two soldiers fired at the other persons and all three fell to the ground. B220 In his second statement H then saw a youth aged between eighteen and twenty two standing about five feet north east of the north east wall of 59 Glenfada Park. He was about 50 yards south west of H's position and he had his right arm drawn back in the throwing position. The youth had what looked like a nail bomb in his hand. H fired two shots at him and he fell to the ground. The nail bomb did not explode. B230 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor H confirmed that he fired at a lad with an object like a coca cola tin in his hand. He was drawn back in a throwing position. H fired two shots at him and he fell to the ground. The bomb just thudded to the ground and did not explode. B234 paragraph 3 Giving evidence to Lord Widgery H indicated that his first shot missed the boy and the second hit him. B240 C-D In his statement to this Tribunal H as indicated that when he entered Glenfada Park he saw a group of civilians at the south side of the courtyard one of whom threw a nail bomb at him. Although he did not see it land H was aware of it landing quite close to him. It did not explode. B264 paragraph 18

ix) As to his second target, H's statement to the Treasury Solicitor was the first time that H claimed he believed the boy was going to throw an object at him. B234 paragraph 3 H initially indicated that after he shot the first boy another youth then appeared from the northwest block of flats. This boy was dressed in a jean suit. He picked up an object from one of the youths that had been shot and ran in the direction of the north block of flats across the wasteland. B220 When he made his second statement H described this boy as running from the south west corner of the square and after picking up the nail bomb, turning to face the gap he had come from. H claimed that after he fired at him this boy staggered and ran northeast into the gap where other people had assembled. B230 to B231 In his third statement H described this boy as appearing from the west side of the car park and running to where the bodies lay. H said that he picked up a nail bomb and as he turned H fired one shot and hit him in the upper right arm or shoulder. The youth continued on and left the area the way he had come. Again he describes him as wearing a blue denim jacket and trousers. B225 H's statement to the Treasury Solicitor gives much the same account but he does not say that the boy had his back to him when he was shot. B234 paragraph 3

x) H accepted when he gave evidence that anyone who put themselves in the mortal danger that this youth did by running directly into the line of the soldiers' fire and picking up a lethal weapon would be "utterly mad". Day 378/128/21 to Day 378/130/5

xi) Again with reference to his second target it is clear that H shot him in the back as he was running away from him. H initially said that the youth was twenty metres from him when H fired and he aimed the shot at his central back. B220 In his second statement H described this boy as turning to face the gap he had come from. B230 to B231 Neither H's statement to the Treasury Solicitor nor his evidence to Lord Widgery mention this boy turning or having his back to H when he was shot. Giving evidence to this Tribunal H confirmed that he had aimed at the boy's "central back" as he was running away from him. Day 378/29/9 to Day 378/32/13

xii) H lied before Lord Widgery when he claimed, in answer to Mr McSparran that his first statement indicated that he believed his second target was going to throw the nail bomb at him. B254 G, Day 378/33/12 to Day 378/35/21 As noted above, his statement to the Treasury Solicitor is the first time that H mentions a belief that the boy was about to throw the nail bomb at him. B234 paragraph 3 xiii) Another issue that arises in relation to H's second target is his description of a person who when shot and clearly injured staggered out of Glenfada Park via the southwest alleyway. The Tribunal is aware of the evidence that exists in relation to the shooting of Joseph Friel. Mr Friel was shot close to the southwest alleyway in Glenfada Park. He did not stop or fall there but rather staggered on into Abbey Park. Giving evidence to this Tribunal H indicated that he had only seen one shot person stagger out of Glenfada Park. He did not accept he had shot Joseph Friel however when he realised that he had been shot in the chest. Day 378/40/11 to Day 378/41/8

xiv) Giving evidence to this Tribunal Soldier H indicated that he did not think it was possible that he missed his targets and hit another one. Day 378/138/15 to Day 378/139/2

H's nineteen shots

19.9.1.5.20. The issue of the nineteen shots fired by soldier H has been comprehensively dealt with in section eighteen. Because so many of his shots are unaccounted for H must be seen as a candidate for the shooting of all of those killed and injured in Glenfada Park.

Conclusion

19.9.1.5.21. Soldier H was, even among his colleagues in the anti-tank platoon, in a league of his own, both as a soldier on the ground on Bloody Sunday, and as a witness. He has clearly told lies about what took place on the ground on that day, the most striking relating to the nineteen shots he claimed to have fired at one target in Glenfada Park.

19.9.1.5.22. The material before the Tribunal relating to the actions of Soldier H on Bloody Sunday cried out for an explanation. Soldier H has consistently refused to provide that explanation opting instead to treat this Tribunal with contempt by forcing all involved to listen to a version of events that was not even believed by other soldiers including his platoon commander in 1972 and, we submit, cannot be believed now.

19.9.1.6. Soldier J

19.9.1.6.1. Soldier J does not admit to having fired at all in Glenfada Park on Bloody Sunday.

19.9.1.6.2. He says that on Bloody Sunday he was "with another soldier and we were covering each other." B272 He now says "We worked in pairs; I must have been with another person that day, but I do not remember who it was." B289.004

19.9.1.6.3. It appears that soldier J may have been paired with David Longstaff (INQ 023) on the day. We know that soldiers F and G worked together. Longstaff says:

"I was always close enough to be able to communicate with Private G, Lance Corporal F and Lance Corporal J. They knew I was behind them and I knew they would never leave me. We were always in touch. I was with them throughout that day except when I was with the prisoners and I am not sure when that was." C23.8 paragraph 51

Soldier J's 1972 accounts

19.9.1.6.4. A curious feature of Soldier J's first statement to the RMP (1st February 1972) is that his evidence about the events in Glenfada Park amounts to the following:

"I then received orders to go to Glenfada Park and assist in escort duties for a number of civilians that had been arrested for rioting. They were escorted by us to our vehicle location where they were taken in armoured vehicles, I do not know where." B266

19.9.1.6.5. In his second RMP statement (4th February 1972) Soldier J says:

"At approximately 1605 hrs I proceeded along Rossville Street and took up a further position on the left hand corner of Glenfada Park observing in the direction of the compound, which was directly in front of me. As I took up this position (I SAW TWO MALE PERSONS AGED ABOUT 26 YEARS POSITIONED)[14] at the far left hand corner of the block of flats just beyond the compound. These persons were wearing suits one with an all dark suit the other a Brownish coloured suit. The two persons were in possession of nail bombs which failed to go off. The nail bombs were in their left hands.

"Two members of my Coy namely F and G fired at these two nail bombers and I saw them fall to the ground. At this same time rioters were running away from the main crowds up into the alleyway alongside the flats. I could not recognise these nail bombers again as at this time the orders had been given to withdraw and at no time did I search any wounded or dead personnel." B269 to B270

19.9.1.6.6. In his statement prepared for the purposes of the Widgery Tribunal Soldier J says:

"We then went through the alleyway to the entrance of Glenfada Park and while we were doing so I heard an explosion and the report sounded like a nail bomb. When I reached the entrance to Glenfada Park I saw soldiers F and G firing at two men on the opposite side of Glenfada Park and they fell. They had objects in their hands which looked to me like nail bombs but I could not be sure. These objects did not explode. At that time there were a crowd of people in the area of Glenfada Park where the men had been shot and they surrounded the bodies." B273

19.9.1.6.7. When questioned by Mr Underhill at the Widgery Tribunal Soldier J said:

"Q. Where did you go then? A. We then moved up into Glenfada Park. I think there was a Platoon Commander standing behind us

[14] The portion underlined and capitalised above has been omitted from the type written version of the statement but can be seen in the hand written version at B270.002

who shouted, 'Move into Glenfada Park as there are a lot of people there and arrest them.'

Q. Did you go? Did you carry out that instruction? A. Yes, sir. Just as we were moving into it I heard a loud bang which sounded to me like a nail bomb.

Q. Where was that loud bang Corporal? A. It seemed to be coming from Glenfada Park sir.

Q. There is an archway. I think we have heard you have to go under the archway? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got into Glenfada Park did you see any paratroop soldiers in there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the letters that they are called by? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were they? A. F and G

Q. Where were F and G when you came into Glenfada Park? A. They were just--- I will point it out. I think they were about here. Just as I came around the corner I saw them.

Q. Were they doing anything? A. As I came to the corner they fired at two male persons across the other far side, the far corner of Glenfada Park.

Q. Those two male persons at the other side of Glenfada Park, did you see what they were doing? A. They were carrying objects in their hands, metallic objects. I thought that they could have been nail bombs but I wasn't sure.

Q. Those shots that F and G fired as far as you could tell did they find their targets? A. Yes, sir

Q. What happened to the men you thought F and G were firing at? They were shot.

A. Did they remain on their feet? A. No, they fell down sir.

Q. Apart from those two men were there other civilians in Glenfada Park? A. Yes, sir. There were a lot of civilians coming through the park and they surrounded the two bodies and it must have been the people behind them they must have picked up the objects that fell from these two people's hands." B280G to B281F

19.9.1.6.8. Under cross-examination by Mr Hill the following exchange took place:

"Q. Then in Glenfada Park you saw two objects which you took to be nail bombs, is that so? A. I think they could have been nail bombs, I am not sure." B283C-D

19.9.1.6.9. The main flaw in Soldier J's account of what took place in Glenfada Park was put to him when he was cross-examined by Mr Hill:

"Q. In Glenfada Park you saw F and G shoot two people with explosives, is that so? A. I don't know if they were explosives. I saw two objects in their hands which had a metallic glint to them.
Q. You saw F and G shoot two persons? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And each of those two persons had a metallic object each?
Yes, sir
Q. The metallic object was of what size? A. I couldn't say.
Q. Was it inches long or feet long? A. I would say inches long.
Q. May I put it to you that F's version is that he and G fired upon two men, one of whom was a bomber and the other one a rifleman and G's version of that incident is that they shot at two men, each of whom were riflemen. Now we have your version, the third version, that F and G shot at two men, each of whom were bombers. You say they were bombers? A. I wouldn't say they were bombers. I said they could have been bombers.
Q. By reason of the fact that they could have been bombers, is it not clear that they could not both have been riflemen? A. I do not know what the other soldiers said. This is what I saw and as far as I know it is true.
Q. Have you discussed your evidence with F and G? A. Not really sir.
Q. Did you know that F's version was that one was a bomber and one was a rifleman? A. No sir.

Q. Did you know that G's version was that both were riflemen? A. No.

.....

Q. May I suggest to you that your evidence must be absolutely wrong, that you are either telling something which you did not see, or you have misinterpreted what you saw? Is that possible? A. No sir." B285B -G

19.9.1.6.10. This account is largely the same as the account given in J's statement to the Treasury Solicitor.

Soldier J is "Soldier X"

19.9.1.6.11. Shortly before giving evidence to the Tribunal Soldier J admitted that he was the "Soldier X" referred to in the article by Toby Harnden published in the Daily Telegraph which appears at L282.1-.2. This aspect of his evidence is comprehensively dealt with at section eighteen.

Soldier J's evidence to this Tribunal

19.9.1.6.12. Even among those from the anti-tank platoon who appeared before this Tribunal Soldier J's evidence was remarkable for his failure to give substantive answers to questions about the detail of what happened on Bloody Sunday:

i) Soldier J does not now remember being in Glenfada Park. B289.004 paragraph 27

ii) Despite this he indicated that the reference to the position he took up in Glenfada Park in his second statement was probably a reference to taking up position at the north-east side of Glenfada Park itself. Day 370/56/18 to Day 370/56/24

iii) He also indicated that the people he then referred to seeing in his second statement could have been at the south east corner of the park. Day 370/56/25 to Day 370/57/9

iv) He had a memory of H's 19 shots being discussed afterwards in the context of him having fired the most shots. J said he had no reason to doubt H's account of how he had fired those shots. Day 370/65/14 to Day 370/65/16

19.9.1.6.13. Soldier J now has no memory of:

i) hearing an explosion like a nail bomb as he went into Glenfada Park; Day 370/57/13 to Day 370/57/17

ii) F and G firing at two men who had what looked like nail bombs in their hands or of anybody falling in Glenfada Park; Day 370/57/18 to Day 370/58/3

iii) Any soldier firing in Glenfada Park; Day 370/59/8 to Day 370/59/10

iv) seeing any petrol bombs explode in Glenfada Park Day 370/59/11 to Day 370/59/16

v) anyone carrying a rifle there; Day 370/59/17 to Day 370/59/18

vi) seeing three bodies in Glenfada Park; Day 370/61/19 to Day 370/61/21

vii) what way the people who were shot by F and G were facing when the soldiers opened fire; Day 370/62/21 to Day 370/62/23

viii) seeing any Knight of Malta in Glenfada Park; Day 370/76/2 to Day 370/76/4

ix) seeing a soldier firing at a Knight of Malta in Glenfada Park; Day 370/75/11 to Day 370/76/1

19.9.1.6.14. Despite this lack of memory the following exchange took place between Soldier J and counsel to the Inquiry, Christopher Clarke QC:

> "May it be that the reason why that evidence does not fit is because there was in fact indiscriminate and unjustified firing in and from Glenfada Park North which then had to be covered up by explanations that purported to justify it?
> A.Certainly not, sir" Day 370/69/11 to Day 370/69/16

Issues and Discrepancies arising from Soldier J's accounts.

i) It can therefore be seen that Soldier J's evidence progresses from saying nothing about what happened in Glenfada Park (1st RMP) to giving a description of the targets engaged by F and G (2nd RMP, TSOL and Widgery Evidence). From reading his first statement it appears that Soldier J did not see any shooting in Glenfada Park, nor was he there at a time when the shooting was taking place, only later receiving orders to go into the Park to assist in escort duties for arrested civilians. This is most curious given the accounts that he later gives. It should also be remembered that, unlike other soldiers, this first account given by soldier J was two days after the event, at a time when the extent of the shooting by paratroopers was much clearer and the controversy over the killings was raging. In addition, it was clear that there would be an Inquiry into what happened.

ii) Soldier J's second account also makes it far from clear that he was in Glenfada Park at the material time. He describes moving up Rossville Street and taking up position on "the left hand corner of Glenfada Park observing in the direction of the compound, which was directly in front of me". There is no mention of turning right off Rossville Street and going through an alleyway into the car park. "The compound" may be a reference to the courtyard of Glenfada Park north as it is surrounded by walls but this description does not make it clear that the soldier was actually in the compound. It can be noted that a position on Rossville Street at the north east corner of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North, rather than a position actually inside the compound, corresponds to the position marked on a map by soldier J, or on his behalf and attached to his 1st RMP statement. This appears at B267.

iii) At this point Soldier J then gives a very detailed description of seeing two civilians who he very definitely says "were in possession of nail bombs" and carrying them in their left hands. He then describes F and G firing at the men who fell to the ground. At the very least this is a radically different account from that given by Soldier J in his initial statement. It is inconceivable that when he felt it was important enough to describe the escort duties he carried out in Glenfada Park in the first statement he would not have described this incident.

iv) It may be of some significance that this second statement was taken on 4th February 1972 (at 15.10). The Tribunal is aware that, in our submission, the statement taking procedure on 4th February was essentially a "clear-up" exercise designed to provide support for many of the allegations made by those who did the bulk of the firing on 30th January 1972. Further discussion of the statement taking exercise on 4th February appears at section five.

v) His statement to the Treasury Solicitor is the first time that Soldier J mentions going through an alleyway to Glenfada Park North and also hearing an explosion there.

vi) However, it must be noted that Lt 119 has said that he saw Soldier J in Glenfada Park B1752.057 as has David Longstaff (INQ 023). C23.6 paragraphs 33 to 35

vii) Soldier J's evidence is that he saw Soldiers F and G in Glenfada Park and that he saw them fire at two people who may have been holding nailbombs. In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he says that he saw F and G firing first rather than, as previously, seeing the civilians first. His certainty as to what the two men fired at were carrying diminishes as time goes on until at the Widgery Tribunal he cannot be sure that what they had in their hands were explosives. B285B-C As was put to him by Mr Hill at the Widgery Tribunal, Soldiers F and G describe their targets in Glenfada Park differently – F says he shot at a man with a nail bomb which was fizzing, and that G shot at a man with what appeared to be a rifle; G says he saw two men with what appeared to be small rifles in their hands. He fired at one and F fired at the same time, both men fell. The progressive uncertainty in J's statements leaves open the possibility that his evidence as to what the men were carrying can be reconciled with that of F and G.

viii) It should also be noted that that J's account of what happened in Glenfada Park begins and ends with a description of what F and G were doing and the civilians that they shot. He does not mention any other soldiers being in Glenfada Park when it appears clear that at least Soldiers E and H were there and claim to have fired in the park – H claiming to have fired 19 shots at one target. If the evidence given by the other soldiers is considered it is clear that if Soldier J saw Soldiers F and G fire in Glenfada Park he should also, on his account, have seen Soldier H fire all of his 22 shots.

19.9.1.6.15. It is also clear from his evidence that J did not see the following:

i) A "full scale riot" in Glenfada Park (Soldiers F B126 and G B176).

ii) A petrol bomb thrown at soldiers in Glenfada Park (Soldier E B103B-C).

iii) A crowd of about 40 people throwing missiles in Glenfada Park (Soldier E B103A-C).

iv) A youth picking up a nail bomb from one of those who was shot in Glenfada Park (Solider H B220).

19.9.1.6.16. He also claims not to have seen the following:

i) Soldier G making his way down to the southwest exit and firing into Abbey Park.

ii) Soldier F firing across from Glenfada Park along Block 2 of the Rossville Flats.

iii) Knights of Malta personnel or the incident where Eibhlin Lafferty was fired on as she entered Glenfada Park. AM 17.4 paragraph 25

Arrests

19.9.1.6.17. Soldier J has signed arrest forms for two individuals Anthony Coll and John Gormley. The arrest photographs and documentation appear at ARR10.1 to ARR10.3 and ARR23.1 to ARR23.3 respectively.

19.9.1.6.18. In his first statement J indicates only that he was ordered to assist in escort duties in respect of civilians arrested in Glenfada Park and not that he had arrested anyone himself. B266

19.9.1.6.19. He makes no mention of arrests in his second statement B269 to B270 but then goes on to say in his statement made for the purposes of the Widgery Tribunal:

"Two suspects had been arrested by myself and my companion and they were taken by us to armoured vehicles waiting in front of the low rise flats in Rossville Street. From there they were taken over to the three tonners parked in front of the forecourt of Rossville Flats. We then got in to our vehicles and there were two sentries posted outside. Shots came from the direction of Rossville Flats and one of the soldiers who was sitting forward in the vehicle located the gunman and gunfire was returned. Then another gunman, or perhaps the same gunman, fired from the flats and the fire was again returned. There was then an ammunition check and I had fired two rounds." B274

19.9.1.6.20. This statement appears to be clear that the individuals were arrested by Soldier J and his companion in Glenfada Park. On Soldier J's evidence he certainly had not arrested civilians elsewhere and then brought them with him into Glenfada Park!

19.9.1.6.21. This can be contrasted with the arrest forms which indicate in respect of both arrestees that they were arrested by the Soldier for throwing stones at the Security Forces in Rossville Street.

19.9.1.6.22. Anthony Coll, says that he was in Glenfada Park when he was arrested. He alleges that Lance Corporal J, who he names in his statement as the soldier who gave details of his arrest to the RUC officer, gave him "a thumping." AC84.8 paragraph 29 He also says, "I had not seen him before and I do not know if this was because he was not around earlier or because I had not noticed him." AC84.8 paragraph 29

19.9.1.6.23. The second individual arrested by Soldier J, John Gormley, also claims to have been in Glenfada Park when apprehended. He now says he was unconscious at the time when he was apprehended as a result of being struck by a soldier in the mouth AG 46.4 paragraph 15 and only came to when he was being made to stand against a wall with others. AG 46.4 paragraph 15

19.9.1.6.24. J now has no recollection of making the arrests. He purported to rely on the statements he made at the time as evidence that the arrests were justified. When asked "may the position be that you were simply told to identify two people as having stoned the security forces when in fact you had not seen either of them do that?" he answered "certainly not, sir". Day 370/88/6 to Day 370/88/10 This evidence is in marked contrast to the evidence given by J's colleague David Longstaff who admitted that he had done just that.

19.9.1.6.25. As noted above, Soldier J's evidence was remarkable for what he did not say. In our submission he has followed through with the threat he made in his interview with Toby Harnden to withhold evidence from this Tribunal. As with others however, when it came to answering allegations of wrongdoing, on his own behalf or on behalf of his colleagues, he was strident in his denials. This does not sit easily with his claimed loss of memory.

19.9.1.7. David Longstaff (INQ 023)

19.9.1.7.1. David Longstaff was a Private in the Anti Tank Platoon on Bloody Sunday. He had been in the army since 1966 and left in 1992. Longstaff is unique among the lower ranked soldiers in that he does not have the benefit of anonymity since he has placed himself and his views in the public domain by his appearance on 2 television programmes in the mid 1990s.

19.9.1.7.2. One other unique aspect of Longstaff's evidence is the fact that he claims that he fired a shot on Bloody Sunday but was not recorded as having done so at the time. As noted above at section eighteen there is no evidence beyond his own that supports his account that he did so. This revelation first came to light during the course of his interviews for the programme "A Tour of Duty".

19.9.1.7.3. Given that he was not identified as a shooter or key witness at the time, Longstaff did not make a statement in 1972, nor did he give evidence to the Widgery Tribunal. Despite this he appears to have a relatively good memory of the day although he says:

> "I want to say at the outset that I only remember certain things about what happened on Bloody Sunday. At times, it is difficult for me to distinguish between what has been impregnated in my mind by the TV and the media and what I actually saw and did. I cannot be sure what are genuine memories. I have a lot of memories in my head, which I must have obtained from the press, TV and radio or even the recent pictures in the newspapers, which are of scenes that I was nowhere near to but which now seem familiar to me because I have seen them or heard about them. I will therefore try and make it clear what it is I remember and what it is that I have seen or read about subsequently." C23.1 paragraph 4 19.9.1.7.4. Longstaff appears to have been particularly close to F and G:

> "...I was not paired with any particular person but the three of us, me Lance Corporal F and Private G often used to work together and sometimes there was a fourth person depending on the situation." C23.3 paragraph 17

19.9.1.7.5. It appears from his statement and evidence that the fourth person on Bloody Sunday may have been Lance Corporal J.

Longstaff's evidence to this Tribunal

19.9.1.7.6. Longstaff's evidence can be summarised as follows:

i) He remembers following Lance Corporals F and J and Private G and others to the right. They were ahead of him. He remembers seeing "the big block of flats to my left". C23.5 paragraph 30. Giving evidence he confirmed that this was the Rossville Flats. Day 374/67/10 to Day 374/67/20

ii) Lance Corporal F and Private G were ahead. "I do not know where they were in relation to me except that they were close enough so that we could always communicate. We needed to be able to talk to one another. I do not remember who else was with me. They would stop, we would move. They would move, we would cover. We moved in a zig zag." C23.5 paragraph 31

iii) He indicated that he was detailed to cover the rear area of the platoon "they moved forward I was to keep my eye behind me". Day 374/68/24 to Day 374/69/18

iv) Longstaff was in a group of four with Soldiers F and G. He does not now know who the fourth person was although he worked regularly with F, G and J. Day 374/69/22 to Day 374/70/16. Later in his evidence he indicates that on Bloody Sunday he was always close enough to communicate with F, G and J. C23.8 paragraph 51

v) Giving evidence Longstaff confirmed that he was familiar with the sound of nail bombs exploding and that he did not hear that sound that day. Day 374/74/22 to Day 374/75/5

vi) He identifies the place they went to as Glenfada Park where he "was looking towards a straight road and saw lots of people." C23.6 paragraph 33. In the map attached to his statement he has indicated that he took up position in the North West entrance to Glenfada Park C23.15. Giving evidence he said he was not alone at that location Day 374/104/9 and that there were other members of Anti-Tank Platoon around there to the east of his position. Day 374/216/2 to Day 374/218/5

vii) Longstaff says "....I believe I was at the north west corner of Glenfada Park North ... and that I was looking northwards into Columbcille Court when I heard gunshots. They were coming from behind me, from the south as I faced north. There were no shots in my area of visibility. I cannot remember how many shots there were. I do not know now whether it was a single shot, a tap or a volley of shots. I could not tell if it was high or low velocity fire. I just have a memory of firing. I remember being aware that the threat to me had increased. I was more alert because of it. I was extra vigilant. I did not turn around to pinpoint where the shots were coming from as it was my job to cover the rear of my mates ahead of me." C23.6 paragraph 34 (emphasis added).

viii) When it was suggested to him that he may have taken up position with F, G and J in the north east corner of Glenfada Park Longstaff was "positive" that he did not. Day 374/88/19 to Day 374/90/7

ix) He did confirm however that in order to take up position in the North West corner of Glenfada Park it was more likely that he had first entered the park with his colleagues at the north eastern corner and crossed the northern end than that he had continued along the alleyway to the rear of the garages at the north end of Glenfada Park where he would have been out of contact with this colleagues. Day 374/156/7 to Day 374/158/8

x) That being the case he confirmed that he would have had a very good view of what was happening in Glenfada Park. Day 374/158/9 to Day 374/158/21

xi) Longstaff indicates that he was always close enough to communicate with F, G and J meaning that he was within shouting distance of them. Day 374/87/7 to Day 374/87/15

xii) Giving evidence he confirmed that he would not have been facing north the whole time and would have "taken glances around the area" Day 374/93/23. He also confirmed that he "must have" glanced into Glenfada Park. Day 374/93/25 to Day 374/94/2.

xiii) He could not recall what he saw there but was able to say that he would not have forgotten seeing a crowd of about 40 people throwing missiles there "I would not forget that but I did not see that, sir". Day 374/94/5 to Day 374/94/7

xiv) He also recalls seeing people lying on the ground although he does not know if they were taking cover or wounded. He does not remember where this was although he says it may have been Glenfada Park. He then says "It did not concern me. I took only a fleeting glimpse at them and when I registered that they were no threat to me or my mates

I stopped looking. I was much more concerned about any threats to me and my mates. I was aware when I was in the Glenfada Park area of other soldiers being there too but who they were and how many of them there were I cannot say." C23.6 paragraph 36 Photograph P686 was not familiar to him. Day 374/99/7

xv) Another recollection he has is of seeing people running. Indeed he has a particularly vivid memory of "an old man wearing a very old long coat who was not going very fast. He sticks in my mind because I remember thinking he was a bit too old to run. He was no threat." C23.6 paragraph 37. Longstaff is not now sure where he saw these people although he has a vague memory of people running in the direction through Abbey Park to the Old Bog Road (Fahan Street West). C23.6 paragraph 37

xvi) Longstaff gave evidence that he moved through Glenfada Park "afterwards" from northwest to southeast Day 374/100/17 to Day 374/101/20, C23.16. He does not now remember people at the southern gable wall of the eastern block of Glenfada Park. Day 374/106/21 to Day 374/107/13

xvii) Giving evidence Longstaff confirmed that he had no recollection of hearing the noise of a crowd behind him, or hearing the sound of missiles hitting the ground or of hearing a nail bomb explode. Day 374/92/23 to Day 374/93/9 xviii) Of his colleagues, Longstaff says "I did not see any of them fire. All through the time I was with them I could hear shooting; not a great volley of rounds but some shooting. I could not tell if it was high velocity or low velocity shooting, I just knew that rounds were being fired. I was not looking around at the others. I was on one knee with my weapon up in defensive mode." C23.8 paragraph 50

xix) He also comments "The guys I was with were first class. It is possible that they fired their weapons but I could not be certain. I did not see who fired. I was not in a position to look and see which of them fired or whether any of them fired. It was a confined area and shots always seem louder when they echo." C23.9 paragraph 52 (emphasis added)

Issues Arising from Longstaff's accounts

i) Longstaff therefore appears to be saying that he was in Glenfada Park but that his role was to cover the rear of the other soldiers and, while he heard firing, he did not turn around to see what was going on. If he heard firing inside Glenfada Park it must have been from the soldiers, as even they themselves do not say that they were actually fired on while they were in Glenfada Park.

ii) Longstaff is quite clear in his evidence therefore that he did not see anything that posed a threat to him or his colleagues. He did not see or hear anything in Glenfada Park that would have justified the shooting of civilians. Day 374/154/11 to Day 374/154/20

iii) Longstaff was unwilling to assist the Tribunal with any more detail. In his statement he had said, "I was not in a position to look and see which of them fired or whether any of them fired. It was a confined area and shots always seem louder when they echo." C23.9 paragraph 52. It must have become clear to him that asking the Tribunal to believe that at no time during the firing in Glenfada Park did he look around to see what was going on was a step too far and therefore when giving evidence he admitted that he did look round on occasion. Day 374/93/25 to Day 374/94/2

iv) However, despite the fact that he did look around, that he was so close to F, G and J, and that he accepted he probably did enter Glenfada Park via the north east entrance before taking up position at the north west entrance, Longstaff claimed he was not in a position to describe what his colleagues did or what they were firing at. Day 374/154/21 to Day 374/155/15

v) It should be noted that if, as we submit, Longstaff did enter Glenfada Park with the rest of his colleagues the evidence of Soldiers F and G is that they fired almost immediately upon entering. Longstaff therefore must have seen that, or at the very least, he must have been in a position to confirm or refute their evidence as to the targets they say they saw as soon as they entered the park.

vi) He gave evidence that there were other members of the Anti-Tank Platoon in his vicinity – to the east of his position at the northwest corner of Glenfada Park. Day 374/216/2 to Day 374/218/5 This is the only evidence the Tribunal has to this effect.

vii) Longstaff says he did not see Eibhlin Lafferty enter Glenfada Park. Day 374/103/13 to Day 374/105/4 viii) He also maintained, in common with others, that he was not able to identify any other members of his platoon from the "arrest sequence" in Video 3. Day 374/116/18 to Day 374/116/23

ix) When asked to identify the "rotten eggs" in the platoon that he had referred to in his TV interviews Longstaff initially indicated that he was not prepared to give their names Day 374/164/9, then that he did not know who they were Day 374/164/11 and then that he would not give their names unless he had an opportunity to speak to his counsel. Day 374/164/24 When pressed to give the names Longstaff indicated that he could not be positive as to who they were and "would not like to give an incorrect answer". Day 374/168/24 He then went on to identify Soldiers H and O27 as the soldiers he was talking about. In our submission it would have been clear to Longstaff that he was on relatively safe ground identifying those two soldiers in particular. H was apparently a figure of ridicule within the company and, given O27's evidence to the Tribunal, it is to be expected that he would no longer attract the loyalty that a member of the company could otherwise have expected to rely on from his colleagues.

Arrests

19.9.1.7.7. Longstaff appears in the records for the day as having arrested two people on Bloody Sunday– George Roberts and James Joseph Kelly. In both arrest photos he can be seen grinning broadly. ARR 51.1, ARR 26.1 Longstaff confirmed that he signed arrest documents in relation to these two individuals. Day 374/121/2 to Day 374/122/3

19.9.1.7.8. Both Roberts and Kelly are said to have been arrested after "being seen throwing stones at the security forces in Rossville Street". The documentation supplied includes arrest forms signed by Longstaff which contain this account of the reason for the arrests. ARR51.3, ARR26.3

19.9.1.7.9. Roberts tells of being made to sing "the sash" or "God Save the Queen" at Fort George although he cannot remember by which soldier. AR13.3 paragraph 16 Kelly indicates that he was arrested from Glenfada Park and that the first soldier he encountered there was Longstaff (he remembers the name as "Falstaff"). He denies throwing stones on Bloody Sunday. AK12.5 paragraph 19

19.9.1.7.10. As to Bloody Sunday Longstaff said in his statement:

"All I remember about the detention place is big sheds with barbed wire compounds and a lot of military police. I think I was there to see if I recognised anyone. I remember the military police pointing at one or two people and asking me if I remembered them. The gist of what they were saying was "You remember them don't you?". Frankly they all looked the same to me and I probably said no, I did not remember them. There were hundreds of them. However, I probably agreed in the end that I had arrested some of them and probably signed something although I do not now remember the details. As far as I could see they were being looked after alright. They were just standing there. They were not lying on the ground. I then met up with my mates again and we went back to Belfast." C23.7 paragraph 41

19.9.1.7.11. Although Mr Glasgow QC, representing Mr Longstaff, questioned Mr Roberts on the basis that Longstaff may well have seen him throwing stones and identified him correctly Day 151/111/1 to Day 151/113/3, when Longstaff gave evidence the following exchange took place:

"Q. The allegation that has been made and put to other soldiers is essentially that they lied when they said that they had arrested a particular individual and they went along with that lie so that they arrived at Fort George, picked out someone; stood next to him when a photograph was taken and lied as the arrest report form was filled out; do you follow what the allegation is?

A. Yes, sir

Q. Would you have taken part in such conduct?

A. I have done, sir, by the looks of it.

Q. So you would have done that?

A. Yes, sir." Day 374/111/23 to Day 374/112/10

19.9.1.7.12. Longstaff later admitted that he had been prepared to lie and say he had arrested the two individuals involved when he had not. Day 374/121/21 to Day 374/122/3

Conclusion

19.9.1.7.13. Giving evidence to this Tribunal David Longstaff appeared to be in somewhat of a quandary. As is noted above at section eighteen, he was not prepared to go so far as to provide a lying account to corroborate his colleagues' versions of events but nor was he prepared to break the bond of loyalty or go outside the brotherhood to assist the Tribunal by telling the truth of what they did on Bloody Sunday.

19.9.1.7.14. This approach left David Longstaff treading a very fine line before this Tribunal. On the one hand, he was prepared to admit that he had lied about arresting Mr Roberts and Mr Kelly and was also prepared to say that he had not seen anything that justified the shooting of civilians. On the other hand in order to maintain his position and despite his clear evidence that he was close to Soldiers F, G and J throughout the operation, in relation to their conduct he presented a story that was a mixture of claimed failed memory and downright lies, based on the premise that he did not see anything they did. It does not stand up to scrutiny. The fact that he was willing to freely admit to some matters stood in sharp contrast to his failure to admit to others. The reason for the contrast is all too evident.

19.9.1.7.15. The flaws in Longstaff's approach are perhaps best illustrated by his insistence that he was positioned at the northwest corner of Glenfada Park looking towards Columbcille Court and covering the rear of the platoon. As noted above, giving evidence he accepted that it is likely that he entered Glenfada Park by the northeast entrance and that he would have looked around on occasion from his position in the northwest corner. These admissions would clearly have afforded him ample opportunity to see at least some of his colleagues' actions. Given that when he was asked he was sure that he would not have forgotten a crowd of forty throwing missiles it can be assumed that he would not have forgotten seeing his colleagues open fire.

19.9.1.7.16. Despite what appear to be reservations about his colleagues' actions on Bloody it is apparent that the "brotherhood" between the paratroopers is still strong. Longstaff maintains that those he was operating with on Bloody Sunday were "first class soldiers". Day 374/172/20 to Day 374/174/4

Other soldiers who may have been in Glenfada Park North

19.9.1.8. Private 027

19.9.1.8.1. Soldier 027 was a radio operator who was a member of B Company but attached to the Anti-Tank Platoon of Support Company at that time.

19.9.1.8.2. The soldiers represented before this Tribunal had a clear interest in discrediting Soldier 027 given the allegations he makes about a number of members of his platoon. Their legal representatives took some time and care in questioning him in an attempt to show that his accounts of what happened on the day could not be relied upon. They suggested to 027 that he is liar, is prone to exaggeration and has exaggerated in his account of what took place on Bloody Sunday and on other occasions and in providing an account to this Tribunal, and to others, has been motivated by financial considerations.

19.9.1.8.3. We accept that in respect of a number of issues Soldier 027's evidence is unreliable and that his 1975 "statement" in particular contains exaggeration. When assessing the evidence of Soldier 027 however the Tribunal must bear in mind that whatever the reason it was not for the purpose of building up a case against the army or the soldiers in general. He does not do that and indeed it can be seen, even from his most recent statement, that he is keen to provide a favourable account of soldiers in general, particularly in relation to their actions in Northern Ireland:

"My overall impression of our battalion on the streets is one of remarkable self control and self restraint. I was incredibly impressed by the way in which the Army, and specifically the Parachute Regiment, conducted itself in Northern Ireland. I do not believe that any other army in the world, in the circumstances in which we operated, would have conducted itself in such a way". B1565.033 paragraph 50

19.9.1.8.4. Many other examples of this are to be found in 027's written and oral evidence. It is to be presumed that the majority of the soldiers represented before this Tribunal would not disagree with sentiments such as this and it is our clear submission that the impression gained by 027 and the statement made by him above are demonstrably wrong. However, we do recognise that such a statement is typical of the attitude of many of the soldiers who have given evidence to this Tribunal and of the military in general to what took place in Northern Ireland over a very long period of time. It is also a good illustration of the loyalty shown by individual soldiers to the army and to other soldiers.

19.9.1.8.5. Rather than simply dismissing the entirety of the evidence given by 027 on the basis of the exaggerations that are contained in some of his accounts, the Tribunal must attempt to distinguish those portions that cannot be relied upon from other portions that can. The reason for doing this is that in a number of material respects 027's evidence chimes with other evidence before the Tribunal.

19.9.1.8.6. In relation to his description of what took place in Glenfada Park, Soldier 027 has the impression that events there were "shocking and unspeakable" B1565.043 paragraph 109 and that he saw:

> "...no civilians with weapons, no threatening gesture, neither could I see or hear any explosive devices during the entire situation I was there." B1565.043 paragraph 104

19.9.1.8.7. In our submission he is clearly correct in his impression of the events that took place in Glenfada Park and further he is correct that soldiers were not under attack or in any way threatened there. However, when Soldier 027 was questioned by Sir Allan Greene the following exchange took place:

> "Q. 027, I have to ask you this: I accept that you were in Glenfada Park at some stage, but could you have been there at a time when the shooting had stopped and you did not actually see any of it; is that a possibility?
> A. (Pause). My current memory of the events in Glenfada Park (or lack of memory) does allow for that possibility, yes." Day 249/136/20 to Day 249/136/23

19.9.1.8.8. Given this admission it would be difficult for the Tribunal to place significant weight on any of Soldier 027's evidence as it relates to Glenfada Park. While it may be that Soldier 027 has given a first or second hand account of what happened in Glenfada Park we submit that his evidence is not necessary for the determination of what took place there and therefore we do not seek to rely on it.

19.9.1.9. INQ 635

19.9.1.9.1. The statement which begins at C635.1 is the only statement we have for this witness given that he does not appear to have made any statements in 1972. In his written statement to this Tribunal and on giving evidence INQ 635 was at pains to stress his limited memory of the events of Bloody Sunday. In his statement he said:

"My memory generally of the events of 30 January 1972 is limited and I only recall a few specific events." C635.1 paragraph 4 19.9.1.9.2. On giving evidence it appears that the limits of his memory were further constrained:

"The only memory of that day I have got is actually going from the building where I was a bodyguard to coming out of the Pig and seeing the gunmen at the barricade, that is my only recollection." Day 352/50/19 to Day 352/50/22

19.9.1.9.3. In his statement to this Tribunal INQ 635 describes being on Rossville Street and hearing a cease fire order. He then says:

"My next recollection is of suddenly being in what I would describe as a car park or courtyard area underneath some "flats on stilts". I remember a pavement and concrete pillars. It is an image I have in my mind and I cannot give a better description of the area. I cannot say where on the map this area was or how far away from Rossville Street this car park was. I remember being in this car park with two or three other soldiers and seeing three or four civilians running to my right to get out of the car park area. I cannot remember anything else about these people or where they went to. I then withdrew, I assume upon a command to. I looked to my right and saw a man hiding behind a car. We made eye contact, and I turned to withdraw. We did not speak to each other. I cannot give any description of the man. I cannot give any description of the car" C635.5 paragraph 33

"I cannot remember getting from the small wall at Kells Walk to this car park area I have described. I know I did not move forward of the low wall. I think I ended up over to my right. I do not know if we were acting as snatch squads at that stage or not. I cannot remember being ordered in as a snatch squad. I do, however, remember that from being in the car park area someone then ordered us to pull back. I do not know where this command came from." C635.6 paragraph 34

"As we moved into this car park area, I do not know if firing was continuing at this stage or not. I cannot remember who the two or three other soldiers who were with me in the area were. I cannot give any description of what they looked like. I cannot remember if they were the same soldiers who had been with me behind the small wall at Kells Walk. Neither I nor the two or three soldiers who I was with fired any shots in this car park area." C635.6 paragraph 35

19.9.1.9.4. From the description given in this evidence it seems like INQ 635 may have been in Glenfada Park North. If that is so then given that he states he saw civilians running across Glenfada Park to get out of the car park he must have been there at a relatively early stage. However he does not remember seeing any bodies or seeing any soldier fire in that area.

19.9.1.9.5. Another indication that INQ 635 may have been in Glenfada Park North comes from the fact that he is listed as having arrested a number of people who say they were arrested from there. INQ 635 states:

> "As we withdrew, I remember that we were given a line of prisoners to take back to the holding area. I do not remember where these prisoners had come from, or who gave them to us, but I just have a recollection of escorting them to a holding area. I remember there was at least one woman in the group of prisoners and they were giving us a lot of verbal abuse. As I escorted the civilians to the holding area, I do not remember if there was firing taking place." C635.6 paragraph 36

19.9.1.9.6. In fact INQ 635 is listed as arresting officer for three people namely George Irwin, James McNulty and John Rodgers. Despite his current recollection that he acted only as an escort Day 352/34/22 to Day 352/34/24 it is clear that in 1972 INQ 635 said that he saw these three people throwing stones at the security forces in Rossville Street. ARR25.2, ARR43.3 and ARR52.3

19.9.1.9.7. Two of the three people INQ 635 claimed to have arrested were arrested from Glenfada Park. Mr Irwin says (at AI 4.1 to AI4.2) that he was initially on a balcony on the Rossville Flats then, when he saw gas, he left the building and went in to a car park where he lay down behind a car. From his position he saw the people at the southern gable wall of the eastern block of flats at Glenfada Park North and joined them. They were also joined by Fr Bradley when soldiers arrived and arrested them.

19.9.1.9.8. Mr McNulty says:

> "....One soldier said that he had arrested me in William Street at about 4.30pm. I said that I had not been lifted there but had been lifted in Glenfada Park North. The soldiers were making it up about where we had been lifted so that they could say that we were lifted for rioting...." AM377.5 paragraph 22

19.9.1.9.9. Mr Rodgers has said that he was in a car on William Street when it was stopped by soldiers, himself and the others travelling in the car were taken out and taken to Fort George AR42.1 paragraphs 4 to 8.

19.9.1.9.10. Mr Rodgers has also said:

"Later on we were each brought out of the line and made to stand against a wall to have our photo taken with the soldier who was allegedly our arresting officer that had seen us rioting. I had been pulled out of the crowd and there was a man behind a desk. I cannot remember if he was police or army. There was a soldier standing behind me and the man behind the desk just said to me "He's arresting you..." pointing at the soldier behind me, "...for rioting." I cannot recall if this was the soldier that had arrested me, but this is the first time I remember seeing this soldier, whose name is INQ 635. I know his name because I saw it written down on the piece of paper on the desk. I was told not to look but I did and saw the name INQ 635. I was not rioting – I was caught in a car at the top of William Street as I have already described above. I never threw stones in Rossville Street. I was not given an opportunity to give an explanation." AR42.3 paragraph 12

19.9.1.9.11. Mr Rodgers confirmed this account when he gave evidence before this Tribunal on Day 410.

19.9.1.9.12. Giving evidence INQ 635 indicated to the Tribunal that he was sure that he had not gone forward of the low wall on Rossville Street at all and that he was sure that he had not been in Glenfada Park. Day 352/27/22 to Day 352/32/17

19.9.1.10.1. This soldier was the platoon sergeant of the Anti-Tank Platoon and was present in Derry on Bloody Sunday. Despite this fact no contemporaneous statement exists from him at all. He is now dead and this Inquiry was therefore not in a position to take a statement from him.

19.9.1.10.2. INQ 1694 is listed as having arrested two individuals namely Hugh O'Boyle ARR47.1 to ARR47.3 and Robert Wallace. ARR55.1 to ARR55.3 His name also appears on the board in the photograph of Myles O'Hagan, the schoolboy who was taken to Fort George but later released without further action. ARR49.1 No supporting documentation exists in relation to Myles O'Hagan beyond an incomplete arrest report form bearing his name and address. ARR49.2

19.9.1.10.3. All three of these individuals said that they were arrested from Glenfada Park North although in the arrest report forms in respect of Mr O'Boyle and Mr Wallace it is alleged that they were seen throwing stones on Rossville Street. ARR47.3, ARR55.3

19.9.1.10.4. Mr Wallace is clear that the paratrooper who identified him in Fort George was INQ 1694 and that he was not the same paratrooper who had arrested him in Glenfada Park North. Day 154/167/15 to Day 154/168/17 Mr Wallace denied that he had been rioting. AW3.12 paragraph 19

19.9.1.10.5. Mr O'Boyle gives a similar account, namely that the soldier who identified him at Fort George was not one of the soldiers who had actually arrested him in Glenfada Park North. AO1.8 paragraph 47

19.9.1.11. INQ 1237

19.9.1.11.1. INQ 1237 describes how, after firing had ceased on Rossville Street, the soldiers were told to seal off the area to the right. C1237.7 paragraph 56

19.9.1.11.2. INQ 1237 does not appear to be able to identify where he went next. What he does say is that he ran down an alleyway to his right (west) where he came across a group of people including a priest. C1237.7 paragraph 57 INQ 1237 does not appear to remember seeing any bodies or anything untoward happening although he does describe threatening a priest with arrest.

19.9.1.11.3. Giving evidence INQ 1237 could not assist any further as to where he might have been Day 366/28/7 to Day 366/34/14 and he denied that he was the soldier who had stopped Father Bradley from attending to the bodies in Glenfada Park. Day 366/76/2 to Day 366/72/15

19.9.1.11.4. INQ 1237 is listed as the arresting officer for Charles Glenn and George McDermott. He has signed arrest forms to say that he saw them both throwing stones at his patrol on William Street. ARR22.4, ARR37.2

19.9.1.11.5. As has been seen above Mr Glenn was arrested with Joseph McColgan on William Street. He had previously attended to the dying Jackie Duddy with Fr Daly. Mr Glenn has said:

"the para said that he had arrested me in William Street although I said that I had never seen him before....The para then said he had seen me throwing stones..." AG43.8 paragraph 59

19.9.1.11.6. Giving evidence Mr Glenn denied that he had been throwing stones that day. Day 080/199/22 to Day 080/199/24

19.9.1.11.7. Mr McDermott's 1972 statement indicates that he was arrested in Abbot's Walk. AM183.3

19.9.1.11.8. As the Tribunal knows INQ 1237 would not have been on William Street at around 1600 when he claims he saw Mr Glenn and Mr McDermott throwing stones there.

19.9.1.12. Soldier 229

19.9.1.12.1. In his statement to the Royal Military Police Soldier 229, a member of Composite Platoon, states that he:

> "finished up with elements of Support Company in Glenfadda (sic) Park. There was a crowd of civilians throwing stones at us and being generally abusive. I was aware that shooting was taking place, but it seemed to be coming from above us. I do not recall seeing any of the soldiers firing at that time, neither do I recall seeing any dead or injured persons in the area at that time". B2208

19.9.1.12.2. He then states that he arrested two young male civilians, one of whom was called McLoughlin. He took them back to the "rear echelon" where he handed them over. B2209

19.9.1.12.3. Soldier 229 now says "At some point I must have been in Glenfada Park, because this is recorded in my previous statement given to the RMP....I cannot remember being there now though." B2211.005 paragraph 37 Giving evidence he confirmed that he could not remember being in Glenfada Park Day 341/46/3 to Day 341/46/13 and that it may be that he had encountered the arrestees somewhere further north such as Columbcille Court. Day 341/47/6 to Day 341/48/7

19.9.1.12.4. Soldier 229 is listed as having arrested Patrick McGinley and Denis McLaughlin. The arrest report forms in respect of both of these individuals claim that they were seen throwing stones at the security forces in Rossville Street. ARR42.3, ARR40.3 Both men say they were arrested from Glenfada Park. Giving evidence however, Soldier 229 admitted that he had signed the arrest forms Day 341/56/9 to Day 341/56/10 and indicated that he may have just provided standard information to the police even though he knew it was not true. Day 341/56/24 to Day 341/57/4

19.10 ABBEY PARK

19.11 Civilian Evidence

"These men were shot in cold blood" AD85.3 paragraph 17

19.11.1 Summary of Submissions

i) Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney were shot dead in Abbey Park.

ii) The civilian evidence establishes, as Maureen Doherty stated, "these men were shot in cold blood" AD85.3 paragraph 17.

iii) The evidence suggests that one soldier was responsible for these killings. This was Soldier G.

iv) There has been no attempt to explain, let alone justify, thesekillings.

v) It has accordingly been established that both Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney were murdered by Soldier G in Abbey Park.

vi) The bulk of the civilian evidence is also inconsistent with the"shoot-through" theory.

19.11.2 William O'Reilly

19.11.2.1 William O'Reilly (now deceased) gave evidence to Widgery - see AO69.8 to AO69.15. On 30 January he was at 7 Abbey Park and he told Lord Widgery that he was looking out of the front window of his house on the ground floor. He saw a soldier come through the alleyway that leads into Glenfada Park North. He saw two individuals sheltering behind the western wall of Glenfada Park North who then ran towards the steps that lead to numbers 9 to 11 Abbey Park. These two, he said were Gerard Donaghey, wearing blue jeans and blue top and Gerard McKinney who was wearing a brown overcoat.

19.11.2.2 He said that Gerard Donaghey ran up the steps that lead to Nos. 9 to 11 Abbey Park, followed by Gerard McKinney, who got between the soldier and Gerard Donaghey. Then, according to Mr O'Reilly, the soldier fired two shots clasping the rifle to his side by his elbow inside his upper arm. He said both men fell. On his account it was Gerard McKinney who shot first.

19.11.2.3 He told Lord Widgery that neither of the two men had any weapon and they were both running away at the time they were shot across the line of fire of the soldier who fired two single shots.

19.11.2.4 In his Eversheds statement at AO69.2 paragraph 11 he stated:

"The one lad who was wearing a denim jacket and tight denim jeans (which was then the fashion) jumped over the small wall that bordered the grass area to the west of the block of flats, being the western block of Glenfada Park North. He had his hands in the air. He ran up towards the Credit Union building up the steps that were in grid reference F14. An older fella then jumped after him and I think that he was shouting at the young boy to stop. He got to just behind the young boy who had already reached the top of the steps. Their position was as shown in photograph C. They were two to three fee apart when shot".

19.11.2.5 At AO69.2 paragraph 12 he stated:

"The soldier, who was then in the position that I have shown on photograph B, shot both of them. He did not aim the rifle to his shoulder, but had his gun rather tucked in to his side ..."

19.11.2.6 What this evidence demonstrates is that this witness sees a boy in denim clothes running towards the steps. He is followed by an older man. A soldier who had come out of the alleyway from Glenfada Park North shot both of them.

19.11.3 John O'Kane

19.11.3.1 John O'Kane attended the march with Gerard McKinney, his brother in law. Insofar as Abbey Park is concerned he ultimately found himself with a group of six or seven others including Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney taking cover in a small garden which ran alongside the western side of the western block of Glenfada Park North surrounded by a low wall about two feet high AO48.4 paragraph 15

19.11.3.2 In his statement dated 23 February 1972 AO48.40 to AO48.41 he said:

"As we did so I noticed my brother-in-law and Gerard Donahey who was still standing. I stepped about five paces from them and said 'Come back, come back it's not worth it'. It appeared that they were sure they would get across.

My brother-in-law was standing with his left side facing the opening which we had run through and young Donaghey was standing just next to him on his immediate right. My brother-in-law's arm was outstretched across the boy's chest and James Gerard McKinney said just a minute son till we see if it's clear.

As he turned towards the opening to see if it was safe to cross his arms shot up in the air and he shouted 'No! no!' as he did so a shot rang out and he fell to the ground right in front of my eyes and then another shot rang out and young Donaghey fell to the ground gripping his stomach and squealing right in front of my eyes".

19.11.3.3 In an undated typed statement AO48.24 he gave a similar account in the following terms:

"Gerry decided after a few minutes to take a chance and accompanied by a youth, whom I don't know, he led us out across the court. As we went forward I was some yards behind Gerry [McKinney]. At a stage when I can only assume he was visible from the other side of the entrance Gerry turned, shouted 'no, no' and put his hands in the air. A shot rang out which caught Gerry about the chest and he fell forward. A second shot rang out and the youth who was leading the way along with him fell to the ground".

19.11.3.4 He describes in AO48.4 paragraph 16 how Gerry McKinney and he made their way north along the wall to the point marked K on the map AO48.26. He said they were all talking about how they would escape.

19.11.3.5 In AO48.4 paragraph 17 he refers to the cobblestone steps in Abbey Park and states:

"... One of the boys with us was particularly anxious to escape and he went first. Gerry was behind him and I was behind Gerry. The boy in front walked over the cobblestones to the right of the steps as we looked at them, in an arc shape, which brought him out at the top of the steps. As he hit the top step, he made as if he was about to run, but at that point a single shot rang out. The boy fell to the ground, clutching his stomach as he did so".

19.11.3.6 Mr O'Kane did not see the soldier who shot Gerard Donaghey as he was out of his line of vision but that he would have been about 25 feet away.

19.11.3.7 At AO48.6 paragraph 18 he stated:

"I did not know the name of the boy, but I now believe it was Gerard Donaghey. As far as I know, he had come through the southwestern exit of Glenfada Park North with us and I think he must have been in front of us because he was further north in the garden that we were when we got to it. He would have been conscious that the Paras were there as he walked out because he had run with us through the courtyard and had been with us in the small garden when we were discussing how to get away from the Paras".

19.11.3.8 At AO48.5 paragraph 19 he states:

"Despite the shooting of the young boy, Gerry and I decided to take our chance. In any event, we wanted to go to the young boy's assistance. Gerry was about five feet in front of me. I remember saying to him "be careful". He walked forward onto the cobblestones and across them at a right angle, which led him on to the second of the three shallow steps. He was watching the alleyway all the time. As he approached the step, he turned his head to the left and put his hands in the air, saying "no, no, don't shoot". A shot rang out and he fell across the steps. He landed on his back and I remember him saying "Jesus, Jesus" and blessing himself. His legs kicked and then he lay still. I knew that he was dead".

19.11.3.9 In his undated 1972 statement Mr O'Kane said that Gerard McKinney was shot before Gerard Donaghey AO48.24. In his 23rd February 1972 statement Mr O'Kane said that Gerard McKinney was shot before Gerard Donaghey AO48.41. In his evidence he agreed that it was pretty clear that his consistent recollection in 1972 was that Gerard McKinney was shot first Day 163/34/21 to Day 163/34/24. In his Eversheds statement Mr O'Kane said that Gerard Donaghey was shot before Gerard McKinney AO48.4 paragraphs 18 to 19. In his interview with Stephen Gargan he said that Gerard Donaghey was shot before Gerard McKinney AO48.62. In his oral evidence he said that it was his brother-in-law who was shot first Day 163/27/22 to Day 163/27/25.

19.11.3.10 The witness "totally disagreed" with the suggestion that there may have been a "shoot through" scenario Day 163/57/9.

19.11.4 Maureen Doherty

19.11.4.1 This witness was looking from the kitchen window of number 7 Abbey Park. At AD85.3 paragraph 16 referring to Gerard Donaghey and Gerry McKinney she stated:

"The soldier that I described earlier was aiming his gun at these two men".

19.11.4.2 At AD85.3 paragraph 17 she states:

"As I looked at the two men, I heard two shots and they both fell. I cannot remember which one was shot first. It is possible that the older one fell first and the young one fell afterwards, but I honestly can't remember. ... I do not recall seeing the youngster move at all. As far as I am concerned these men were shot in cold blood - they were not doing anything - they had their hands raised and were simply not doing anything".

19.11.4.3 Maureen Doherty's account of the death of Gerard Donaghey is, as Christopher Clarke QC said during the opening, "congruent with a substantial body of other testimony" Day 030/25/5

19.11.4.4 In her evidence she describes how the soldier who shot Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney was aiming his gun at these two men Day 161/105/21 to Day 161/106/7 and how as she looked at the two men she heard two shots and they both fell.

19.11.4.5 When asked whether she could tell where the shots were coming from she said "that soldier fired the two shots. He was the only one there with a gun". When asked whether she had actually seen him fire she said yes and when asked what it was she saw she said "I think his gun sort of moved and I knew it was him was firing the shots for there was nobody else there, he was near - there were nobody else round the men only him" Day 161/106/21 to Day 161/106/25

19.11.4.6 When asked if she could remember which one was shot first she said that she wasn't too sure now but that she thought Mr McKinney fell first Day 161/107/1 to Day 161/107/14

19.11.4.7 In her contemporary accounts it was the older man who fell first AD85.9 and AD85.11.

19.11.5 John William Porter

19.11.5.1 William Porter (now deceased) was a Quarter Master Sergeant who was serving in the Irish Army who made a number of contemporary statements and gave evidence at the Widgery Inquiry.

19.11.5.2 In his statement at AP11.16 he describes how from No.7 Abbey Park he saw a young man running from the direction of Fahan Street and then noticing an older man lying on his back between the corner of Glenfada Park and Abbey Park. The older man had a rustic coloured overcoat on. He could not see the older man's wounds but he didn't move. He stated that the young lad running had his hands up. He saw him stop, look up toward Abbey Street or Columcille court and shout "don't shoot". He then saw him fall in the same area as the older man. In his oral evidence to Widgery he said "As I looked out of the door. He was coming to my left" WT8.49B

19.11.5.3 In his evidence to Widgery the following exchange took place:

"Q.What was this second young lad doing?"

A. "He was running towards the direction of where the man was lying on the ground and waving his hands in the air as he done so. Whenever he got to the corner he stopped and he looked sort of half-way up from where he was standing and he shouted "Don't shoot, don't shoot.

Q. What happened?

A. I saw the man begin to fall and I heard a bang immediately to the left in a similar direction to where the boy was looking.

Q. Did he fall fairly near to the older man that you have described as lying motionless?

A. Going down in the direction slightly to the left about half-way between where I was and the man".

WT8.46D

19.11.5.4 The Tribunal is also referred to WT8.49A-G where Mr Porter describes the sequence of events including how he saw a woman running towards the two bodies and falling.

19.11.5.5 Asking her afterwards, Eiblin Lafferty told him that she had been shot at and that was the reason she fell AP11.27.

19.11.5.6 It is clear from Mr Porter's evidence to Widgery that Gerard McKinney was already on the ground before Gerard Donaghey was shot. Based on this man's evidence there could not have been a "shoot-through".

19.11.6 Gerard McCauley

19.11.6.1 This witness describes in his statement seeing two people moving out from the area which he had marked D on his attached map. He did not know where they were heading. They were walking and reached a set of two or three low steps set in a cobbled area between Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park. One was a man and the other was a, what he described as a "wee lad, a cub". He then describes them going down, having been shot. He could not see where the shots came from. He states that they were not doing anything which caused them to be shot and there was nothing in their hands. He says that "wee lad" started falling first but because the man fell straight to the ground he hit the ground first. The man fell on the shallow steps. AM95.2 paragraph 11

19.11.6.2 He says he went over to the man first but that he was dead. He then moved towards "the cub" who was groaning and as he walked over to him he saw two soldiers in the alleyway between GFPN and GFPS. AM95.2 paragraph 12

19.11.6.3 Whilst bending over the boy a girl in a white coat or uniform appeared and a came up between the two soldiers at points knelt down and fired a shot which hit the pavement about two feet in front of her. He did not see the bullet but he saw movement on the surface of the concrete. AM95.2 paragraph 13

19.11.7 John Carr

19.11.7.1 John Carr was looking out the front bedroom window of his house at 8 Abbey Park. He heard gunfire and saw a group of people take shelter tight against the wall of the western block of Glenfada Park North. A soldier emerged through the entrance into Abbey Park and all those who had been taking shelter ran away except one man. He states that when the man saw the soldier he threw his hands up in the air and turned to his left to look at him. He states that as the man put his hands up and looked at the soldier, the soldier put his rifle to his right shoulder and shot the man. The man fell to his right and then onto his side and rolled onto his back. He fell in the position where he was standing. AC42.3 paragraph 19

19.11.7.2 Gerard McKinney was standing on the steps leading to Frederick Street, facing in a south-easterly direction. Upon seeing the soldier he put his hands in the air and turned to face him Gerard McKinney was doing nothing and had his hands clearly in the air He also stated:

"From the window I could see that he blessed himself with his right hand across the centre of his face. I could not believe what I had seen. There was absolutely no reason for it. The man had been doing nothing and had his hands clearly up in the air".AC42.3 paragraph 19

19.11.7.3 The witness was referred to this paragraph in questioning by Christopher Clarke QC:

Q. You say in the sentences that follow that:

"There was absolutely no reason for it. The man had been doing nothing and had his hands clearly up in the air."

Had anything been going on at that stage, or immediately before this stage, other than the arrival of the soldier and the other civilians running away?

A. Nothing, no.

Day 158/172/17 to Day 158/172/24

19.11.8 Gerry Campbell

19.11.8.1 Gerry Campbell (from whom there is no contemporary statement and who did not give evidence before Widgery) was looking out through the kitchen window of No. 7 Abbey Park. He states:

"Suddenly a young lad ran away from the group ... He would have been about 17 or 18. As the lad ran out, the soldier ... turned towards him and shot him in the chest or stomach". AC13.3 paragraph 17

19.11.8.2 This young lad, we know, was Gerard Donaghey.

19.11.8.3 At AC13.3 paragraph 18 he states:

"After the lad had been shot, a man who had been hiding behind the wall by Glenfada Park South ... jumped up with his hand in the air shouting 'don't shoot, don't shoot!' ... He started to climb over the wall ... The man was not young, I would say he was in his 40's. I think he was wearing glasses. He had his hand up in the air, slightly higher than his head. .. As he straddled the wall with one foot over it, he was shot..."

19.11.8.4 This man was Gerard McKinney

19.11.8.5 The witness confirmed this account in his oral testimony on Day 401.

19.11.9 James Logue

19.11.9.1 This witness was looking out of the living room window of No. 7 Abbey Park. He described seeing Gerard McKinney with his hands in the air facing the soldiers in Glenfada Park North nearest the alleyway. There were two soldiers near the alleyway with rifles to their shoulders. They aimed their rifles at Gerard McKinney. AL18.2 paragraph 15

19.11.9.2 He then describes hearing shots and Mr McKinney falling. He is confident that these soldiers shot him Day 161/70/16, AL18.3 paragraph 15. Mr Logue stated that he did not see Gerard McKinney with anything in his hands and he did not see anything thrown or fired at the soldiers who shot him AL18.4 paragraph 22.

19.11.9.3 He told Ms McGahey, when giving evidence, that it was still his recollection that he saw two of the soldiers near the alleyway raise their rifles to shoulder height and aim them at the man. Day 161/70/1 to Day 161/70/4

19.11.10 Vincent Harkin

19.11.10.1 This witness was in a "ditch" along the pathway between Abbey Park and Glenfada Park South AH34.5 paragraph 9. He states that he saw Gerard McKinney standing facing the entrance into Glenfada Park North AH34.5 paragraph 10. He then saw Gerard McKinney with his hands up in the air was waving a white hankerchief. He was approximately 20 yards away from the witness.

He did not actually see Gerry McKinney shot AH34.3 paragraph 12. He then remembers seeing Mr McKinney on the ground and, at some stage, Fr Mulvey giving him the last rites AH34.3 paragraph 113.

19.11.11 Paddy McCauley

19.11.11.1 This witness describes how there was panic in Abbey Park and that people were diving for cover in the gardens Day 162/79/14 to Day 162/79/15. He describes seeing a man lying on the eastern side of the path but he was unsure whether this man was shot or simply taking cover. He later learned through this Inquiry that it was Gerard Donaghey. Day 162/85/1 to Day 162/85/12.

19.11.11.2 He then describes seeing a man to his left, whom he now knows to be Gerard McKinney, running in a southeasterly directions towards the man he thinks was Gerard Donaghey. Day 162/84/15 to Day 162/84/20. He describes how in what seemed to be one movement, how the soldier shot Jim Wray then spun to his right and, with his rifle at hip level, shot in the direction of himself and the man he thinks was Gerard McKinney. He describes that as the soldier turned to shoot he dropped to the ground and heard the man he thinks was Gerard McKinney make an 'Ugh' like noise and fall down on the stone steps on his backside lying sprawled across virtually all five of the steps Day 162/87/6 to Day 162/88/4.

19.11.12 Joe Mahon

19.11.12.1 Joe Mahon witnessed Jim Wray being shot twice in the back by a soldier. He then describes the same soldier walk into the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South and go into Abbey Park and no longer seeing him. He describes hearing three or four shots coming both from Abbey Park and ringing out behind him in the area of Rossville Street. He then describes that after some time the soldier came back through the gap and took his helmet off and wiped his forehead with the back of his hand. He could then see that the soldier had blond hair. See this witness' statement at AM18.4 paragraphs 21 to 23 confirmed in oral evidence Day 167/26/4 to Day 167/26/22

19.11.13 Other Witnesses

19.11.13.1 Other witnesses who did not actually see the shooting did however confirm, inter alia, the general locus of where Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney fell. Some of these witnesses rendered assistance in the most difficult circumstances and without concern for the risk to their own lives. See, for example:

i) Eiblin Lafferty (now Mahon) - AM17.2 paragraph 16 to paragraph 18 (re Gerard McKinney) and AM17.3 paragraph 23 (re Gerard Donaghey) – Day 166. Her most detailed account is at AM17.3 paragraphs 17 to 18. She says that bullets were bouncing around her, that she was shouting "First aid", that the shooting was "continuous" and that one bullet hit the side of her trousers causing her to dive to the ground. This bullet singed the trousers at knee level on the right leg Day 166/85/5 to Day 166/85/15 She tried to attend to Gerard McKinney and could see three bodies to her right, lying in Glenfada Park North.

ii) Sean McDermott – AM188, Day 180 - This witness was in Abbey Park and saw the body of a man lying on his back on the steps. There were a few people around him and they thought that he had had a heart attack because there was no blood - he gave him chest massage but he was already dead from a gunshot. This man was Gerard McKinney Day 180/103/23 to Day 180/104/10 - He remembers Evelyn Lafferty coming on to the scene - she had her hands on her head and was shouting "First aid, do not shoot".

iii) Robert Cadman – AC1 – Knight of Malta who treated Gerry McKinney along with Sean McDermott and Eiblin Lafferty;

iv) Benn Keaveney - AK2.10 paragraph 47 to AK2.11 paragraph 48 – Day 159

v) Brian Baker – AB1, Day 088

VI) Michael Rogers – AR22 – he took the cine film of Gerry McKinney on the ground being treated in Abbey Park.

vii) Dr McClean – AM105, Day 175 - left No. 8a Columbcille Court having treated Damien Donaghey and John Johnston. He proceeded south from the house and walked across the open space between Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park where he saw Gerry McKinney lying on the shallow steps between the cobbles. There was a suggestion that he had a heart attack. There was no pulse. Dr McClean opened his coat and saw that there was blood on both sides of his chest.

19.12 The "Shoot-Through" Theory

19.12.1 It is clear from the above civilian evidence that Gerard Donaghey and Gerry McKinney were shot separately and that Gerard Donaghy was not killed as a result of a "shoot-through".

19.12.2 The forensic evidence does not assist those seeking to advance the "shoot-through" theory – if in fact that theory is still being pursued.

19.12.3 On this issue the principle evidence of Dr Shepherd in relation to Gerard Donaghey is to be found at Day 229/37/16 to Day 229/49/21, Day 229/64/22 to Day 229/66/14 and Day 229/102/9 to Day 229/102/17.

19.12.4 Dr Carson had recorded that the bullet that entered Gerard McKinney had traveled from front to back at 10° and from left to right and upwards at 10°. Dr Press told Lord Widgery that the bullet that entered Gerard Donaghey had traveled at an angle of 15° downwards – Day 229/64/22 to Day 229/65/7.

19.12.5 Accordingly, assuming they were standing, the bullet that exited Mr McKinney's body was traveling upwards and the bullet that entered Gerard Donaghey's body was traveling downwards Day 229/65/8 to Day 229/65/11.

19.12.6 It was then suggested to Dr Shepherd that if the measurements were correct, the bullet that exited Mr McKinney's body was traveling upwards and the bullet that entered Mr Donaghey's body was traveling downwards and if that was the case he was asked whether he agreed that it makes it less likely that the so-called shoot-through theory could be correct to which he replied "Absolutely. The orientation - if they are correct, then the orientation cannot be one that would allow for the shoot-through.

19.12.7 In fact the civilian evidence from those who witnessed the circumstances in which Gerard Donaghey and Gerry McKinney were shot is inconsistent with any shoot-through theory.

Conclusion

19.12.8 Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney were murdered in Abbey Park by Soldier G.

19.12.9 The overwhelming evidence is to the effect that Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghy were shot separately and that Gerard Donaghy was not killed as a result of a "shoot-through".

19.13 Gerard McKinney

19.13.1 Personal Details and Background

19.13.1.1 Gerard (Gerry) McKinney was 35 when he was murdered on Bloody Sunday. He was married to Ita and they had seven children. His eighth child, also Gerry, was born eight days after Gerry McKinney died. Gerry McKinney lived in the Waterside area of Derry and worked in John McLaughlin ornamental wrought iron works. He had no political affiliations.

19.13.2 Civilian Evidence

19.13.2.1 Please see Section 19.10 entitled Abbey Park.

19.13.3 Injuries Sustained

19.13.3.1 The post mortem examination was carried out by Dr Carson 9pm on 31st January 1972. The report of Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan appears at E2.49, E2.50 with the accompanying diagram at E2.79. The morgue photographs are in Bundle P2 TAB 10.

19.13.3.2 Gerry McKinney sustained two gunshot wounds. He was struck by a bullet which entered the left side of his chest and exited the right side of his back.

"Gerard McKinney was struck by a single shot and, assuming he was in the Normal Anatomical Position, the shot passed from right to left and slightly from front to back."(E2.50)

19.13.3.3 The cause of Gerry McKinney's death was stated to be Laceration of Lungs, Spinal Cord, Left Kidney and Spleen Gunshot wound of Lower Chest (D0313).

19.13.3.4 Gunshot wounds were present as follows on the chest:

A triangular exit wound on the right back measuring 16mm x 14mm and centred 2cm below the level of the lower angle of the scapula and 17 cm from the mid-line. (D0314; P146; P149).

The track connecting the two wounds through the body passed from left to right with an inclination backwards at about 10 degrees to the coronal plane and an inclination upwards at about 10 degrees to the horizontal plane (D0314).

"The bullet had entered the left side of the chest in line with the centre of the armpit and 15cm below it and had then passed between the 8th and 9th left ribs, before lacerating the lower part of the left lung. It had fractured the inner ends of the 11th and 12th left ribs and passed through the 11th and 12th thoracic vertebrae, severing the spinal cord at this level. On leaving the spine the bullet had fractured the posterior ends of the 11th and 12th ribs lacerated the lower part of the right lung and left the back of the right side of the chest between the 8th and 9th right ribs. In its course the bullet had also damaged the spleen and the left kidney." (D0317)

19.13.3.5 An abrasion found on Gerry McKinney's right leg was described as 1cm in diameter. Dr Carson concluded that it was "possibly made by a bullet fragment on the back of the mid-thigh" (D0314). Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan conclude that while it may be possible that this abrasion was caused by impact by a bullet fragment "this cannot be stated with certainty" (E2.50)

19.13.4 Removal to Hospital

19.13.4.1 Gerry McKinney was shot and fell in Abbey Park on the shallow steps directly opposite the alleyway which leads from Abbey Park to the south west corner of Glenfada Park North and the north west corner of Glenfada Park South (VIRTUAL REALITY HOTSPOT 39). He was treated where he fell by Knights of Malta volunteers Sean McDermott and Robert Cadman (AM188.2, paragraph 8, Day 180/103/19 to Day 104/10; AC1.37, paragraph 25[15]). Due to the absence of blood from his wound the two medics did not believe that he had been shot but rather that he had had a heart attack. Gerry McKinney was taken directly from the steps in Abbey Park to an ambulance driven by Ronald Moore (ED36.8, ED36.9) attended by John Rutherford (ED36.10, ED36.11), along with the bodies of Joe Mahon and Michael Kelly, arriving at Altnagelvin Hospital at 1700 hrs (D500.27).

19.13.5 Forensic Evidence

19.13.5.1 No explosive residue was detected during tests on Gerry McKinney's clothing in 1972 (D0301).

19.13.5.2 In 1972 tests showed lead particle density on Gerry McKinney's coat to be within the normal range (D0304). No lead was detected from the hand swabs tested (D0304). Dr Martin concluded that Mr McKinney had not been using a firearm (D0304).

19.14 Gerard Donaghey

19.14.1 Personal Details

19.14.1.1 Gerard Donaghey was 17 when he was murdered on Bloody Sunday. He had been adopted and his adoptive parents died within four weeks of each other in 1966, when he was just 10. Gerard then lived with his sister Mary Doherty and her husband in the Bogside area of Derry. Gerard had been at Technical College and at the Maydown Training Centre and got work at Carlin's Brewery in the Waterside area of Derry.

19.14.2 Civilian Evidence

19.14.2.1 Please see Section 19.10 entitled Abbey Park.

19.14.3 Injuries Sustained

19.14.3.1 The post mortem examination was carried out by Dr Press at 10.30am on 31st January 1972. The report of Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan appears at E2.22, E2.23 with the accompanying diagram at E2.70. The morgue photographs are in P2.11.

19.14.3.2 Gerard Donaghey sustained one gunshot wound. A bullet had entered the left side of the abdomen about two inches above and three inches to the left of the umbilicus. It had passed through the stomach, the duodenum, the aorta, the largest artery of the body, and the inferior vena cava, the largest vein in the body. It had then grazed the right side of the second lumbar vertebra before lodging in the muscles on the right side of the back wall of the abdomen D0372.

"Assuming the Normal Anatomical Position the angle of contact is clearly from left to right and downward" E2.0023 19.14.3.3 The cause of Gerard Donaghey's death was stated to be Laceration of Aorta, Inferior Vena Cava, Stomach and Duodenum due to Gunshot wound of Abdomen D0369.

19.14.3.5 The track in the body was from front to back with an inclination downwards of about 15 degrees to the horizontal plane and a deviation of about 40 degrees to the right D0372.

19.14.3.6 There was no exit wound and a bullet was found lodged about 4cm to the right of the 2nd lumbar vertebra. This was removed during the post mortem examination D0370, D0371; P159, P160.

19.14.3.7 Dr Martin noted that the size of the hole in Gerard Donaghey's clothing indicated a bullet with its stability upset by striking some object, causing it to yaw or tumble D0354.

19.14.3.8 Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan concluded that there is no doubt that Gerard Donaghey "was struck by only one bullet and that that bullet struck his abdomen approximately "side on" most probably with the nose of the bullet pointing downwards and the base upwards" E2.0023.

19.14.3.9 They further note that "The "side on" contact, the lack of penetration of the body and the damage to the bullet all indicate that the bullet had struck another object or person before striking Gerard Donaghey" E2.0023.

[16] Also P153; P154; P156; P157; P163; P164

19.14.3.10 The bullet recovered from Gerard Donaghey's body was forwarded to Dr Martin. He identified it as:

"...a slightly damaged 7.62 NATO rifle bullet with rifling marks consistent with having been fired in a British Army self loading rifle" D354

19.14.3.11 After further tests Dr Martin pronounced himself "satisfied" that the bullet in question was fired in the rifle with the DIFS reference "JLS/7" D0356. Soldier G later confirmed that this rifle was his.

19.14.3.12 Suggestions have been made to a number of witnesses by those representing the soldiers[17] that the bullet that struck Gerard Donaghey was the same bullet that had previously struck Gerry McKinney. The "Shoot-Through" theory is dealt with in Section 19.12.

19.14.4 Removal to Hospital

19.14.1 The evidence suggests that Gerard Donaghy was shot and fell at a point just to the north west of Gerry McKinney and the shallow steps in Abbey Park AM7.11 paragraph 22 AS42.2 paragraph 13. He was then carried into Raymond Rogan's house, 10 Abbey Park, where he was examined by Dr Swords AS42.3 paragraphs 17 to 21. He was taken in a car driven by Raymond Rogan towards Altnagelvin hospital, accompanied by Hugh Leo Young AR24.3 paragraphs 10 to 11; Day 184/20/19 to Day 184/21/8. The car was stopped by soldiers at Barrier 20 in Barrack Street and Mr Young and Mr Rogan were arrested. The car was then driven by Soldier 150 to the Bridge Location via Company HQ in Henrietta Street B1918.002 paragraphs 10 to 12.

[17] See, for example Mr Glasgow QC's questioning of John O'Kane (163/56/22 - 57/9)

19.14.2 On arrival at the Bridge Location Gerard Donaghy was examined by Soldier 138 B1859.002 paragraphs 9 to 11; B1859.003 paragraphs 16 to 18. At some point after his arrival at the bridge location nail bombs were found on Gerard Donaghy's person. The ATO, Captain 127 arrived some time later and after he had dealt with the nail bombs Gerard Donaghy's body was removed in an ambulance manned by Samuel Hamilton ED47.24 and Alan Cahill ED47.25, AC2.2 to Altnagelvin Hospital.

Military Evidence

19.15.1. Introduction and summary of submissions

19.15.1.1. The submissions made in respect of the soldiers of the Anti-Tank platoon who gave evidence about the events in Glenfada Park apply with greater force to the circumstances surrounding the deaths that occurred in Abbey Park. Unlike the other locations with which the Tribunal is concerned there has been no attempt to explain, never mind justify, the events in Abbey Park and the deaths of two people there.

19.15.1.2. The state of the evidence is such that no soldier admits to

i) Being in Abbey Park;
ii) Firing into Abbey Park from the south west corner of Glenfada Park North or any other position or;
iii) Seeing or becoming aware of any of his colleagues being in Abbey Park or firing into that area.

19.15.1.3. However there is evidence before the Tribunal that does account for what happened in Abbey Park and the deaths that occurred there in that it places Soldier G either in Abbey Park or as firing into Abbey Park. Together with the civilian evidence outlined above this evidence therefore identifies Soldier G as the soldier who murdered both Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey. That evidence is

i) Soldier G's first statement to the Royal Military Police;
ii) Soldier G's evidence to the Widgery Tribunal and;
iii) The bullet recovered from the body of Gerard Donaghey and matched to Soldier G's weapon.

19.15.2. Evidence of Relevant Soldiers

19.15.2.1. Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey were shot dead in Abbey Park. No soldier has ever claimed responsibility for their deaths and there is very little military evidence as to what took place there.

19.15.2.2. The soldiers who were best placed to account for the deaths in Abbey Park were the members of the Anti-Tank Platoon who had entered Glenfada Park. The evidence they have given is as follows

i) Solider E saw no soldier go near the south western exit into Abbey Park, nor did he see anyone fire there or any civilian fall there. B114 C-F

ii) Soldier F, giving evidence to this Tribunal, claimed that not only did he not see or become aware that a soldier had gone into or shoot into Abbey Park he could not recall seeing a soldier on the west side of Glenfada Park. Day 375/112/18 to Day 375/113/6

iii) Soldier H said he was not conscious of any soldier being in Abbey Park, nor did he see any soldier come back from Abbey Park Day 377/93/17 to Day 377/94/3. He said that he did not discuss it with G nor did he become aware that G had lied Day 377/94/4 to Day 377/95/22

iv) Soldier J "cannot remember" seeing a soldier on the west side of Glenfada Park. He did not see a soldier either go into Abbey Park or return from Abbey Park. Did not see a soldier shoot into Abbey Park. He did not go into Abbey Park. He did not become aware that a soldier had gone into Abbey Park Day 370/63/18 to Day 370/64/10. Soldier J said he did not learn from Soldier G where he had fired that day. He said that he may have discussed it with him afterwards but does not remember now Day 370/64/11 to Day 370/64/20.

v) Lt 119 does not remember going down the alley way into Abbey Park Day 363/171/16 to Day 363/171/17. Nor does he remember hearing that two people had been shot in Abbey Park Day 363/172/11 to Day 363/172/14.

He does not know how it comes to be that no soldier admits to firing in that area Day 363/172/24 to Day 363/173/5.

19.15.2.3. We submit that the evidence of these soldiers in relation to what took place in Abbey Park is a blatant attempt to conceal the true circumstances in which two men were murdered there. Despite these attempts however there are two separate lines of evidence, which show that Soldier G was responsible for those shootings.

19.15.2.4. The first comes from Soldier G himself. In his first statement to the Royal Military Police he describes entering Glenfada Park and shooting there, as described above. He says

> "The group of people standing near to the gunmen picked up the two weapons and ran off down an alleyway in a North Easterly direction. We split up and gave chase. I ran down the alleyway past the two bodies lying on the ground but the people with the weapons had already turned off from the alleyway out of sight." B169 (emphasis added)

19.15.2.5. Although this statement refers to a "north easterly" direction it is submitted that, read in its entirety it is clear that the location being referred to in Soldier G's evidence is the south-west alleyway in Glenfada Park for the following reasons:

i) The marked map at B171;
ii) In all subsequent statements where he describes their location he indicates that the gunmen he claimed to have shot were in the southwest corner of Glenfada Park North;
iii) His trajectory photograph P11.

19.15.2.6. In his statement made for the purposes of the Widgery Tribunal Soldier G said on this point

"There were a fair number of people on the opposite side of the courtyard. When the men fell a small crowd gathered round quickly. I could not actually see anyone pick up a weapon because there were too many people in front. I did not fire at them. The crowd ran off quickly up a little alleyway only a couple of yards behind them. F moved down the wall of the eastern building to the big opening by the barricade and I worked around the other two walls. We could not run straight across the courtyard because it is open on a number of sides and we could have been fired on. By the time I reached the far corner the crowd had completely vanished. There was nobody there at all, just the two bodies and another body a few yards further down towards the opening." B187 (emphasis added)

19.15.2.7. When he gave evidence before Lord Widgery Soldier G described shooting at gunmen in the southwest corner of Glenfada Park North and seeing them fall. The following exchange then took place between him and Mr Gibbens

"Q. What went on round there? A. There was a fair crowd along this footpath. They immediately ran past these two and when they had run past the weapons had gone as well.

Q. When you say a crowd, what do you call a crowd? A. About 15 people – around that number.

Q. They ran past them and through the alleyway? A. Yes.

Q. Did you then see what F was doing? A. F then went up this wall over here sir, while I made my way round here and over here and up this way.

Q. Why did you not go diagonally across the park? A. As you can see, this is open from a number of ways. I had to cover him and he had to cover me, and we had to get across without being shot ourselves.

Q. You ran along the sides of the courtyard? A. Yes.

Q. How far did you get? A. I got up to the top here.

Q. You got to where the bodies were? A. By them, yes.

Q. Had the other people gone by now? A. Yes, sir, there was no sign of anyone there.

Q. Was it still your duty at the time to cover F, or was he on his own? A. F had cover from the rest but I was sort of located with him. I kept my eye on where he was, and he the same with me. My idea of moving up there was to find where the weapons had gone.

Q. And you could not find any? A. Just as we got there – it all happened in a short time, and just as we got there we got the recall.

Q. Before you got the recall did you fire through that alleyway in the direction of Abbey Park, towards you on the model? A. Yes, sir

Q. Did you see any bodies through there in the open space just beyond the gap? A. Do you mean through here?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. You did not see any bodies through there? A. No

Q. Then you say you got a recall? A. Yes." B195D to B196C (emphasis added)

19.15.2.8. This appears to be a clear admission on Soldier G's part that he fired through the alleyway that leads from the southwestern corner of Glenfada Park into Abbey Park. As counsel to this Inquiry, Christopher Clarke QC, indicated

"This is a very puzzling piece of evidence in more than one respect". : if in what he said to Mr Gibbens he meant to say or was understood to say that he shot towards Abbey Park through the alleyway which leads there from Glenfada Park, he would have been the only soldier who accepted firing into or towards Abbey Park." Day 31/10/12 to Day 31/10/18

19.15.2.9. Indeed as Mr Clarke also recognised this evidence would also mean

i) That G had, at the very least, lied either about the number of shots he fired or about the circumstances in which he fired those shots and;

ii) That the significance of the evidence had been missed by a large number of people including Lord Widgery and the counsel involved in the case Day 31/10/18 to Day 31/11/11

19.15.2.10. While the latter proposition was, according to Mr Clarke QC, "a hypothesis that seems inherently improbable" Day 31/13/2 to Day 31/13/3 it must be remembered that, at the time this evidence was being given there was still confusion about where Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey died. This confusion was not resolved by Lord Widgery who found the evidence "too confused to make separate consideration [of the deaths of Willie McKinney, Jim Wray, Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey] possible" (paragraph 83 of the Widgery Report). In these circumstances it is perhaps not such a surprise that the significance of the answer was not appreciated at the time.

19.15.2.11. In any event, when he was questioned further by Mr Read, counsel to the Widgery Tribunal, G clearly confirmed his earlier evidence that he had entered the alleyway

Q. In the first statement that you made to the SIB you said "The group of people standing near to the gunmen picked up the two weapons and ran off down an alleyway in a north-easterly direction"? A. Yes

Q. "We split up and gave chase" Do you remember saying that? A. Yes.

Q."I ran down the alleyway past the two bodies lying on the ground, but the people with the weapons had already turned off from the alleyway out of sight". Do you remember saying that? A. Yes.

Q. To what alleyway did you intend to refer? A. What I mean is that I came through here, through there and looked down here.

Q. And looked across here? A. Yes.

Q. You did go down that alleyway? A. I did not go down here or in here. I just went into that alleyway, sir.

Q. Coming just to the people who had fled down there? A. I mean trying to ascertain what is happening. I could not actually chase across there. We had to do that in a soldierly way, working our way round.

Q. You went up that alleyway looking for the people who had gone away with what you believed were the weapons from the two men who you thought had been shot? A. I did not follow them any further than that, sir, because we got a recall.

Q. Who recalled you? A. Our Platoon Commander. He came over.

Q. He came over and recalled you? A. Yes. I do not know whether it was him who actually said to me, but I got the words "come back" B209 B-F (emphasis added)

19.15.3. Soldier G's bullet

19.15.3.1. It is submitted that it is most likely that the evidence recorded on the transcript of the Widgery Tribunal is correct as it ties in with the second line of evidence which connects Soldier G to the deaths in Abbey Park, i.e. the fact that a bullet from his weapon was recovered from Gerard Donaghey's body.

19.15.3.2. While Soldier G was giving evidence to Lord Widgery Mr Gibbens acting on his behalf indicated that the rifle with the number A.5259 was that which Soldier G kept with him all the time B209F.

19.15.3.3. The rifle with that serial number had previously been linked to the bullet recovered from the body of Gerard Donaghey by Dr Martin D0356, D0566A - D.

19.16 Observation Posts

19.16.1 Introduction

19.16.1.1 According to the Operation Order:

> "The containment line and the area within it are to be dominated by physical military presence, by OP observation and by sniper posts. The maximum number of soldiers are to be in the shop window. They are to be covered by deployment of OP's and by a massive deployment of snipers in the anti-sniper role, who should be deployed at every possible vantage point within our secure area" (Operation Order G95.568, emphasis added)

19.16.1.2 Bearing in mind that soldiers were to be deployed at "every possible vantage point", the most striking feature of the evidence of the soldiers deployed in the observation posts, both permanent and ad hoc, is that claimed sightings of civilians engaged in hostile action against the army are few and far between. The majority of these soldiers did not claim to have seen anything that could have justified the use of lethal force by the Parachute Regiment on Bloody Sunday. None of the witnesses positioned on the Observation Posts claims to have witnessed the sort of widespread and intensive shooting and bombing that the Parachute Regiment claims to have sustained.

19.16.1.3 While there is some evidence from soldiers on Observation Posts of civilians firing a weapon or throwing a nail bomb, these allegations are undermined by the following:

i) The fact that their colleagues positioned beside them and observing the same area see nothing;

ii) Their universal failure to report the claimed sightings over the radio, as is reflected by the radio logs;

iii) Their universal failure to report these sightings to their more senior colleagues.

19.16.1.4 There were a large number of soldiers positioned on the City Walls on Bloody Sunday. A small number of them give evidence about incidents they claim to have seen in sector 4.

19.16.2 Soldier 030 and Soldier 001

19.16.2.1 Soldiers 030 and 001 were members of the 22 Light Air Defence Regiment and on Bloody Sunday were stationed on a platform at the City Walls. The location of this platform can be seen marked as point A on B1612.009 and is shown in P198.

19.16.2.2 Both soldiers say that they were tasked to observe the Rossville Flats/ Glenfada Park areas. Soldier 030 says

"My first memory is of being deployed on the City Walls at the approximate point marked "A"...I am almost certain I was observing with UNK 358 with whom I did everything at the time. We would have been together throughout the time we were deployed that day. We did not have a radio with us." B1612.001 paragraph 7

19.16.2.3 In his second RMP statement (taken by Colonel Overbury) he says

"My position was at the wall. 134 and 040 were right behind on the top floor of a building on the other side of the street." B1612.017

19.16.2.4 Giving evidence to Lord Widgery he was asked

"Q. Did you have any radio apparatus there? A. No.
Q. What means of communication did you have of such things as you observed? A. Above us was another OP and he had radio communication. We were within shouting distance from him.
Q. You were within shouting distance to an OP who was to the back and rear, only a few yards away? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Apart from the radio operator there, did he have other soldiers with him? A. One.
Q. Was he a Sergeant or Corporal? A. One Sergeant and one gunner was up there.
Q. And a radio operator? A. No the two of them. Just the two.
Q. Their duty, apart from other duties, was to transmit such messages as you might send? A. Yes, sir." B1612.026

19.16.2.5. Soldier 001's current recollection is that "We had radios with us and were in contact with our headquarters, but no special orders came through..." B1347.002 paragraph 11

19.16.2.6 Both soldiers say that a crowd began to filter into Rossville Street from William Street. By 1620 hrs the crowd had built up to 2-300 people around the Rossville Flats and they then heard baton rounds and gas cartridges being discharged in the area of Rossville Street/William Street B1590, B1344.

19.16.2.7 At this point Soldier 030 describes hearing one low velocity shot and then a number of low velocity shots. He says

"It was then I saw a youth standing firing a pistol. He was in between Blocks Nos 1 & 2 Rossville Flats. Taking cover slightly behind Block 2. There were about 10-15 people crowding around him, therefore I did not shoot for fear of hitting a member of the crowd. The gunman was wearing a brown jacket, faded blue jeans and he had long dark well kept hair." B1612.010

19.16.2.8 Soldier 030 gave other evidence about his alleged sighting of this gunman. His evidence on this point has been examined in some detail in the section on observation posts in sector 2.

19.16.2.9 Soldier 030 later describes hearing

"A burst of slow automatic fire of a low velocity which in my opinion came from a Thompson Sub Machine Gun. 001 directed my attention to a 5' high wooden fence on the left hand corner and the far block in Glenfada Park. I then heard another burst of slow automatic fire and saw muzzle flashes on the top of the fence. I then started to aim my SLR at the gunman.

"Suddenly a soldier in combat kit appeared running from between the two blocks of Glenfada Park from the right. He stopped and knelt down about four doors (30 yards) to the right of the gunman, on the same side of the road. He aimed his SLR in the direction of the gunman and fired three rounds. The gunman disappeared and automatic fire from that position ceased.

"The soldier then turned and aimed his SLR in my direction. I then heard a number of single low velocity shots from below me. This was followed by one shot from the soldier in Glenfada Park. I then glanced down and saw a body below me. It was surrounded by about 20 people who were shouting for a priest. I then saw a priest run towards the body. I could not see any soldiers about." B1591

19.16.2.10 In the statement taken by Col Overbury he says

"When I first heard shooting the crowd at Free Derry Corner was quite separate from the crowd at Rossville flats and Glenfada Park.

"When I saw the soldier kneel and fire in the direction of the machine gun fire, he was in the open space somewhat to the right of the last tree in the centre on the southern end. He then swung round and aimed his rifle in my direction towards the area between Joseph Place and the Rossville Flats. I heard a volley of low velocity single shots coming from below me. I then saw the paratrooper fire one shot in the direction from which the shots had come. When I looked over the wall I saw a man lying on the ground.

"A crowd gathered round him and some kneeled down. I heard them shouting for a priest who came. The man was lying by the trees and was in the position from which I had heard the low velocity shots. My position was at the wall. 134 and 040 were right behind on the top floor of a building on the other side of the street." B1597

19.16.2.11 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor he says

"Then I saw a body lying on the pavement by a telephone box between block 1 and 2 Rossville Flats, there was a big pool of blood round him. At this time I had heard no high velocity fire at all. I then heard a burst of low velocity automatic fire which to my mind came from a Thompson SMG, and 001 pointed out the direction of fire which was a high wooden fence on the far left hand corner of Glenfada Park in the block nearest Columbcille Court which has trees in the centre of a carpark.

I heard more automatic fire from this direction and saw muzzle flashes coming from the top of the fence. I started to aim my SLR at this position. Just at that moment a soldier came into my view. He stopped and knelt down to take aim at a position just by the last tree in the centre of the carpark at the south end. He aimed his SLR in the direction where I had seen the muzzle flashes from the top of the fence and fired 3 rounds. I could not see behind the fence to tell whether anyone had been hit.

"The soldier then turned and aimed his SLR in my direction, immediately after this I heard single low velocity shots from below me but I could not see who was firing since my view was obstructed by the City Wall. However, I looked down and could see a body lying below me opposite the gap between Blocks 2 and 3 of Rossville Flats. People had gathered round the man lying on the ground and I could not see him clearly. I heard the crowd shouting for a priest and I then saw a priest running up who gave the man the last rights." B1599 to B1600

19.16.2.12 By the time Soldier 030 came to give evidence to Lord Widgery however, his account had changed substantially and he was in a position to say that he saw the gunman, saw him running and also that he could see his weapon and was able to positively identify it

Q. Then you heard a burst of fire? A. Yes, I heard automatic fire – low velocity automatic fire.
Q. What kind? A. I would say Thompson sub-machine gun, sir.
Q. Have you experience of hearing Thompson machine gun fire? A. Yes, I have had one fired at me, sir.
....
Q. Then did you see who was firing the Thompson sub-machine gun? A. Not the first burst I did not see it.

Q. Did you see what direction it came from? A. No, it was the Sergeant that was in charge of me. I believe his number is zero-zero-one. He noticed a gunman run. This was in Glenfada Park.

Q. He drew your attention to it? A. Yes.

Q. Did you see a man running? A. No I was elsewhere at the time.

Q. When he drew your attention to it what did you see? A. In Glenfada Park. There was a gunman running there with a machine gun. Then I saw him there at the corner of Glenfada Park.

Q. You saw him where about? A. In here, sir.

Q. In the south west corner?

LORD WIDGERY: Of the southern block? A. No sir, there I am sorry.

MR GIBBENS: The alleyway going towards Abbey Park, yes. Did you see what he was doing? A. He was aiming up Glenfada Park. He was aiming up this way.

Q. Northwards? A. Yes.

LORD WIDGERY: What sort of weapon had he? A. It looked like a Thompson sub machine gun.

Q. Could you see the weapon? A. Yes, I could see the weapon.

MR GIBBENS: Could you see it close enough to distinguish what type it was? A. Since I have been out here the only thing I have been fired at with is a Thompson and to me it looked like a Thompson. It is one of the smallest machine guns you can get.

Q. Have you ever used a Thompson yourself? A. No

Q. What happened when you saw him fire? A. He fired another burst and then I took aim to fire and a soldier running in from Glenfada Park knelt down and fired three shots towards the gunman.

LORD WIDGERY: He ran in? A. Yes sir.

Q. Ran in from where to where? A. From this area sir. I couldn't say whether he came that way or that way, because I couldn't see over there.

MR GIBBENS: A soldier suddenly came into your view, knelt down and took three shots at him? A. Yes, sir

Q. Did you fire? A. No, sir

Q. Or did you refrain? A. No sir.

Q. Did you see whether the soldier's fire had any effect? A. There was no more automatic firing after that.

Q. Did you see what happened to the man? A. When he fired, the man who was firing seemed to go back quick. I don't know whether it hit him or he ran.

Q. Did you lose sight of him then? A. Yes, sir."

19.16.2.13 When he was cross examined by Mr McSparran QC the witness indicates that he reported this incident to an officer in his own regiment and told him about "seeing a man with a Thompson sub machine gun" B1609.

19.16.2.14 Giving evidence to this Tribunal Soldier 030 agreed that he had developed his account significantly when he gave evidence to Lord Widgery Day 366/144/5 to Dy 366/144/11. He could not explain the "improvement" in his account of the second gunman by the time he came to give evidence to Lord Widgery Day 366/144/20 to Day 366/145/1.

19.16.2.15 Soldier 030's current recollection places the second gunman he saw at the back of the Joseph Place flats and gives a detailed description which he has never given before. He also says

"I do not recall hearing a burst of slow automatic fire of a low velocity which at the time I believed came from a Thompson sub-machine gun which I described at paragraph 6 of my RMP statement. I have no recollection of UNK 359 directing my attention to a five foot high wooden fence on the left hand corner and the far (western) block in Glenfada Park. I have marked the position of the second gunman who I saw that day around the approximate point "E"....I know that I saw a second gunman in my area of observation but, as I have said, I cannot now recall for certain where he was. I have no memory of hearing another burst of slow automatic fire and seeing muzzle flashes on the top of the fence which I also describe at paragraph 6 of my RMP statement. I have no recollection of starting to aim my SLR at the second gunman because I do not remember aiming my SLR at all that day." B1612.005

19.16.2.16 In his statement to this Tribunal Soldier 030 indicated that he now has no recollection of the soldier firing at the gunman in Glenfada Park and then across in front of Block 2. He now thinks that this has been mixed up and the second gunman he saw (who was dressed in combat gear) has been "misinterpreted by them at the time" B1612.005.

19.16.2.17 Giving evidence Soldier 030 indicated that he wished to rely on the accounts he gave in 1972 rather than on the statement he prepared for this Inquiry Day 366/82/13/to Day 366/82/15.

19.16.2.18 Soldier 001's RMP statement records that he heard fire from a Thompson sub machine gun and directed his observations towards the Glenfada Park area and told Soldier 030 to do the same. He also made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor and has made a statement for the purposes of this Inquiry.

19.16.2.17 Soldier 001 also describes hearing automatic fire and seeing made one other statement in 1972 to the Treasury Solicitor where he said that at about 1500 he heard the sounds of baton rounds and gas cartridges being fired in the area of Rossville Street/ William Street. He then said that it appeared to be coming from Glenfada Park and he saw a youth with long hair behind a fence. He also described the youth popping up and down behind a fence and a soldier firing at him.

19.16.2.18 In relation to whether or not he reported this incident Soldier 030 was questioned by Mr McSparran at B1612.026. The gist of the questioning was that it would have been important for him to report the sightings of gunmen given that troops would be coming in to the Bogside. Soldier 030 denied that he had any prior knowledge of this. However, in his Evershed's statement he remembers

"hearing a shout from the command post: something like "Watch it, the paras are coming in." B1612.002

19.16.2.19 He now says that he did report both gunmen he saw to officers in the command post B1612.008 paragraphs 46 to 47.

19.16.2.20 The following observations can be made about the evidence given by these soldiers:

i) There is no shot admitted by any soldier in Glenfada Park that would account for the shots Soldiers 001 and 030 say the soldier they saw fired at the gunman with the Thompson sub machine gun.

ii) None of the soldiers who admit to having been in Glenfada Park says they were fired on while there at all never mind by a Thompson sub-machine gun.

iii) There is no report on the log of the 22 Light Air Defence Regiment of the incidents described by Soldiers 030 and 001.

iv) It is also clear that, despite having what appears to be a good view of Glenfada Park neither of them claims to have seen the actions of the soldiers in Glenfada Park or the bodies of the people they shot there. Nor do they appear to see Fr Mulvey on Rossville Street by the ambulance and coming under fire.

19.16.2.21 It is submitted that the allegations made by Soldiers 001 and 030 to the effect that they saw and heard automatic gunfire emanating from Glenfada Park, that they saw a gunman behind a fence there and that they saw a soldier engage this gunman are fabrications. Both soldiers lied in their statements to the Royal Military Police and to the Treasury Solicitor and Soldier 030 lied under oath when he gave evidence to Lord Widgery.

19.16.3 INQ 1990

19.16.3.1 INQ 1990 was a Staff Sergeant in 1 Royal Anglian Regiment. He did not make any statement in 1972 . In his statement to this Tribunal he says

"I regret not having given evidence because 28 years later memories fade. I was in the army for [redacted] years after this incident and I could easily have mixed things up in my mind. However, I am a Historian and it is my job to remember things and although I may have got a few incidents mixed up, everything I have said in this statement is something I remember from the day." C1990.7 paragraph 35

"The statement is made with the best intentions. I cannot say it is 100% accurate. After 28 years many memories merge. I have been back to Londonderry in 1999 to try and refresh my memory. However it has changed, many buildings are now not there." C1990.7 paragraph 38

19.16.3.2 INQ 1990 says he was at the point marked A on the map on the city walls and as he looked down he could see thousands of people milling around below. C1990.2 paragraph 10

19.16.3.3 INQ 1990 says

"On the day of the march, there were about a dozen people on the top Block 3 of the Rossville Flats. I could see them quite clearly. There were always people on the roofs of the flats; in fact I never knew a time when they were not there, except possibly in the middle of the night and they were probably there then as well. In the past, people had thrown stones at us off the top of the roof but on this day they were just standing there shouting. With all the noise going on I do not know if they were shouting at us or at all, but I assumed they were." C1990.3 paragraph 14

19.16.3.4 It should be noted that, when asked, soldier 134 who was in position with soldier 040 in 3 Magazine Street said that he did not see anything untoward on the top of the flats that day Day 363/95/16

19.16.3.5 INQ 1990's evidence is that on the day he saw at least three gunmen from his position on the City Walls. He describes what he saw thus

"Then I saw a figure carrying a handgun. It was not a revolver, it was too square for that. It was probably a pistol, it was definitely a gun. It might have been a toy gun for all I know but he was pointing it around. He came out from between Block 2 and 3 of the Rossville Flats, southwards from the car park area towards Joseph Place. He moved in a westerly direction along the southern side of Block 2, stopped started moving again and then disappeared from my view....He looked like what we used to call a "drama-merchant". He was running, in sharp, swaggering movements, taking up position, pointing his weapon and looking around and then running off again and stopping. He thought he was the big "I-Am" but in fact there was no one around that he could have been pointing his weapon at. He had the gun in his right hand and every now and then he would point his weapon but I have no idea what at. The people around him were cheering him. We could not do anything about him because the Yellow Card would not allow it" C1990.4 paragraph 16

19.16.3.6 He describes this gunman as

"Wearing a dark olive-green anorak coat with the hood up, dark trousers and trainers. The anorak was not particularly long. I cannot remember whether he was wearing gloves or not. He was also wearing a mask which covered his mouth and nose. It was either a balaclava or a scarf, I could not tell because he had his hood up and just his eyes were showing. He was of average height but I cannot say anything else about him." C1990.4 paragraph 17

19.16.3.7 INQ 1990 then says

"Shortly after I saw a second gunman. He came out of Joseph Place and I first saw him at about point B... on the map. He moved back the oppopsite way to the route the first gunman had taken, towards the gap between Block 2 and Block 3 of the Rossville Flats away from Joseph Place. He seemed to be a lot more focused and calmer somehow than the first gunman. He was also carrying a gun but it was pointing downwards and he was not holding it or moving it in such a dramatic fashion as the first gunman. His gun was not a hand gun and from where I was I would say it was UZI-type weapon, a machine pistol or something of that nature. Perhaps it was a pistol with a stock on it which was quite common amongst civilians at the time but I could not see very well from where I was. I lost sight of him as soon as he moved through the gap between Blocks 2 and 3." C1990.4 paragraph 18

"He was a similar sort of build to the first gunman and dressed in similar clothes but he was definitely wearing a balaclava rather than a hood. He was dressed almost entirely in black but then it was a dull day so everything below me looked dark anyway." C1990.4 paragraph 19

19.16.3.8 As to the third gunman he saw

"The next thing I remember is seeing a car arrive and drop off a third gunman. I think it came west down Fahan Street West from the direction of the cemetry and parked at approximately point C...near Lisfannon Park. I am not entirely sure about the street the car came down but I have looked at a photograph...and I think it was Fahan Street West. The car was greyish in colour and I think it had two doors. I did not see who was driving. It was a smallish car, which looked like what a Corsa looks like today. Perhaps it was a Viva or something similar. The third gunman was, once again, in dark clothing with a black woolly bobble hat. I could just see the white of his face." C1990.4 paragraph 20

19.16.3.9 INQ 1990 then goes on to say that the third gunman met up with another two gunmen at a point in the middle of Rossville Street south of the rubble barricade and between Glenfada Park South and Joseph Place. He says

I believe these were the first two gunmen I had seen and had lost sight of, but they may have been two others. They all stood...and talked to each other for about 10 or 15 seconds and appeared to be reporting back to one another.

19.16.3.10 The witness also says

The two who I believe were the first two gunmen I had seen were holding their weapons differently but that was the only difference in them, otherwise I would say they were the same men. However, there were so many people in dark clothing running about that day that they might not have been. There was a fair bit of arm waving and gesturing going on. Then, after about 10 to 15 seconds one of the gunmen, I did not know which one by this point, went back north up Rossville Street towards the Rubble Barricade. The other two walked south together for a little while back to about point C, and then split up. One went off towards Joseph Place (east) and the other went back towards where the car the third gunman had got out of was still parked in Fahan Street West. I did not see him get into the car but he definitely went in that direction. C1990.5 paragraph 23

19.16.3.11 The witness also thinks that the length of time during which he was looking over the city walls was at least 30 minutes C1990.5 paragraph 24. Incredibly he says

"I did not report my sightings. Whilst I was on the City Walls I was not specifically asked to observe but to escort the 2IC. There were lots of other people there on the Walls who must have seen what I saw. There was certainly some language there to the effect of "look at that..." but so much was going on that day you could not report it all. In a normal Thursday afternoon riot situation everything would have been reported about 50 times but on that day there was just too much happening. Everything we saw that day was worthy of logging but I do not know if it actually was. I was never asked to make any sort of report either." C1990.5 paragraph 26

19.16.3.12 There are no entries on the log of the 1 Royal Anglian Regiment or in the statements of other soldiers that describe three (or more) gunmen as suggested in this statement. Indeed the major who INQ 1990 was escorting, INQ 1310, says

"I do not remember seeing any unusual activity in the Bogside or hearing any. This could be because there was no activity below the City walls at the time I looked over or because the noise was masked for some reason or because I was so used to seeing and hearing it." C1310.2 paragraph 19.16.3.13 INQ 1990 indicated when he gave evidence that he was always within 15 yards of the officer whom he was escorting on Bloody Sunday Day 367/10/10 to Day 367/10/12.

19.16.3.14 It defies belief that at least three gunmen would have been acting in the manner described in this statement in full view of the soldiers stationed on the walls and not have been seen by others. Even INQ 1990 himself accepted that

"Because there was so many people on the wall that day it would have been impossible for only one person to have seen what I seen" Day 367/4/8 to Day 367/4/10

19.16.3.15 Even less credible is the assertion that something so important would not have been reported by a soldier because he expected others to do it. In any event it is clear because no entry appears on the communications log that no other soldier in fact reported the incidents described by INQ 1990. It is submitted that this is because they did not happen.

19.16.4 Soldier 227

19.16.4.1 The evidence of this soldier is examined in detail in the section on observation posts in Sector 3.

19.17 Civilian Gunmen

19.17.1 Introduction

19.17.1.1 This section addresses the evidence identified in the Lawton document entitled "Civilian Gunmen Table" which is attached to a note from Counsel to the Inquiry dated 22nd July 2002. This section deals only with the entries at pages 62 to 78 – Glenfada Park and Abbey Park.

19.17.2 The Lawton Document

19.17.2.1 Willie Barret

19.17.2.2 The portion of Mr Barrett's evidence relied on is "My wife and I lived at Glenfada Park South until 1979. It was a celebrated place...There was a man called [redacted] who used to fire a machine gun at the army post at the top of the Embassy Building and the area itself was pretty dodgy." AB110.3 paragraph 4

19.17.2.3 Mr Barrett confirmed on evidence that this individual would sometimes fire from Glenfada Park North Day 198/64/21 to Day 198/65/2. He also indicated that he would fire from "inside the square" Day 198/65/16 but that he could not remember whether or not this happened before Bloody Sunday Day 198/66/1 to Day 198/66/20.

19.17.2.4 As noted in the Lawton document (at page 62) Mr Barret was not in a position to say whether this happened before or after Bloody Sunday. He certainly did not make any suggestion that this individual was present in Glenfada Park North with a gun on Bloody Sunday. His evidence can not therefore be relied on for this purpose.

19.17.3 Joe Carlin

19.17.3.1 This is a Sunday Times interview. The witness did not give oral evidence to the Inquiry. The account was put to a Mr John Joseph Carlin who gave oral evidence on Day 91/192/25 to Day 91/193/18 and who denied that the notes of the interview were anything to do with him.

i) The person who supposedly gave the interview to Mr Barry of the Sunday Times is reporting people suggesting that events were about to take place.

ii) He is speculating on the intentions of the persons who were inviting people to move however his "impression" was that this information had come from only one person and that the people pushing them and encouraging them to leave to area did not seem to know any more than they had been told by this person. He did not recognise any of the people involved.

iii) This is an example of an individual apparently giving an interview reporting overheard conversations and gaining mere impressions of events. This could not in any way amount to credible or substantial evidence of the presence or otherwise of a gunman or gunmen in this area.

iv) It was, of course, impossible to test this information further by examination in oral evidence and in any event appears to have occurred prior to the deployment of Support Company.

v) It is hard to envisage how this could be possibly represented as credible evidence of the presence of civilian gunmen in this area which appears to be more relevant to Sector 1 in any case.

19.17.4 Ivan Cooper

19.17.4.1 In respect of Ivan Cooper the document relies on the following passage from the Sunday Times notes which appear at KC12.71

"IC had seen the Officials in the march. But nowhere else. And IC only heard later that OIRA6 had fired a revolver in Glenfada Park. CIV2 [CIV2 , Provisional IRA] told IC that OIRA6 had been running around mad with a pistol all afternoon. CIV2 says he fired very early."

19.17.4.2 In respect of the Sunday Times notes Ivan Cooper has said

"I have read some typewritten notes which I am informed were prepared by the Sunday Times Insight team. I have never seen them before making this statement. I find this account poisonous and disturbing and I reject it in its entirety. The manner in which it is written smacks of British security intelligence operating; it is for the most part, factually incorrect. There are many examples of factual inaccuracies in the articles. I therefore wish to reject this document in its entirety and will not even begin to give it credibility by addressing it in more detail." KC12.30 paragraph 97

19.17.4.3 Giving evidence Mr Cooper said that

i) He never knew CIV2 o be "linked with the Provos" Day 419/111/11 to Day 419/111/13 and;

ii) He was never interviewed by anyone who was said to be from or be connected with the Sunday Times Insight team Day 419/77/16 to Day 419/78/2.

19.17.4.4 In addition, the Tribunal has a statement fron CIV2 in which he states

i) "I am not and never have been a member of IRA/Sinn Fein, neither have my family before me nor my family after me." AM208.1 paragraph 1

ii) that he does not know anyone of the name of OIRA6 AM208.4 paragraph 16.10.

19.17.4.5 Even if the Tribunal was to find that Cooper have an interview with John Barry and in all likelihood made these remarks, we respectfully refer the Tribunal to the following. AM208.10 paragraph 17:

"Ivan Cooper is a fantastic liar he is the sort of person that I have always wanted to and have tried to avoid. I would take anything he says with a "pinch of salt". The statement that he made to the Sunday Times is a fabrication. I suspect he made the statement to make himself sound like an important politician for the journalists."

19.17.4.6 As a general comment this is in itself a highly colourful and fanciful account, which is not corroborated by any witness whether civilian, or military and moreover the incidents described therein appear to have escaped the notice of Special Branch, Military Intelligence and the Security Services. In these circumstances it is submitted that this extract from the statement cannot be relied on.

19.17.5 Danny Craig

19.17.5.1 The Tribunal is referred to our submissions on this witness at section 14.3.3.3.29

19.17.6 Alphonsus Cunningham

19.17.6.1 The portion of Mr Cunningham's evidence relied on is

> "When I was behind the gable wall at the position marked F on the map (the south gable wall of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North), I heard semi-automatic, high velocity gunfire. I cannot remember which direction it was coming from but my impression was that the shots were being aimed and were not being fired simply to scare people." AC125.2 paragraph 10

19.17.6.2 Mr Cunningham is clearly referring to army gunfire here. As the Tribunal knows the SLR was a semi-automatic high velocity weapon.

19.17.7 Daniel Dunn

19.17.7.1 The extract relied on in respect of this witness appears in his "NICRA" statement

> "I was standing in Glenfada Park at the Archway entrance into Abbey Park. There were about five of us including Derek McFeely and a Christian Brother. Shooting began and we ran shelter to this spot. The soldiers at the time were moving up Rossville Street passed (sic) the flats. A crowd had been in the car park. There was a burst of automatic fire followed by a few single shots." AD172.8

19.17.7.2 Giving oral evidence to this Tribunal Mr Dunn did not remember hearing automatic gunfire Day 161/13/23 to Day 161/14/2. He also confirmed that he was in the company of Derek McFeely and a man "in clergy clothes with a white collar" at the time when he was in Glenfada Park Day 161/9/9 to Day 161/9/16.

19.17.7.3 Derek McFeely has made a statement to this Tribunal and has given oral evidence. Giving oral evidence. Mr Dunn's 1972 statement was put to him and Mr McFeely does not have any recollection of hearing automatic fire. In fact his recollection is of "single rounds as opposed to automatic fire" Day 061/105/5 to Day 061/105/14.

19.17.7.4 The "clergy man" referred to may have been Brother Francis Bernard Sharpe. His statements and attachments appear at H23.1 to H23.22. He has made a written statement to this Tribunal and gave oral evidence to Lord Widgery. He does not refer to hearing automatic gunfire.

19.17.7.5 The Tribunal has also heard from a large number of witnesses who agree that although they initially thought that they heard automatic fire in fact what they had heard was a large number of SLR rounds being fired at once.

19.17.8 Insight Article

19.17.8.1 The following portion of the Insight Article is relied upon:

"One, and possibly two, IRA gunmen were in fact operating in the car park." L213

19.17.8.2 along with the following exchange between Peter Pringle and Mr Glasgow QC:

"Q. That is the passage I wanted you to help the Tribunal with, if you could: do you know where the possibility of the second came from?

A. I cannot recall that. I should say that it ought to be clear from this article that we are being as scrupulously fair as we could have been to the question of what the IRA did on this day. Therefore, if there is a possibility that there was a second gunman, either identified by eyewitnesses or heard as a low velocity shot, then we have included it in our final article, in order to be as objective as possible.

Q. Would that too, sir, have to pass the rule of thumb test: that it must have been corroborated by at least one person, or might it have just depended on one account?

A. In principle it would have passed that test.

Q. So be it. Again, I will not waste time on it," Day 191/39/11 to Day 191/40/2

i) Like Mr Glasgow, we are also unable to find anything in the Sunday Times material that supports the conclusion above, viz, that "two IRA men were in fact operating in the car park". We are also curious why the quotation ends in mid-sentence in the Lawton document and does not carry on from Day 191/40/2 to Day 191/40/7.

ii) It may be that one of the gunmen referred to in the article is OIRA6 who features in the document that purports to be an interview with Ivan Cooper by John Barry KC12.71. In that document it says that (CIV2 told Ivan Cooper that "OIRA6 had been running around mad with a pistol all afternoon" and that he had fired it in Glenfada Park very very early on. If this is the case OIRA6 denied that he was armed on Bloody Sunday, or that he knew either Ivan Cooper or (CIV2 and that he had never spoken to the Sunday Times or any other journalist Day 413/163/4 to Day 413/164/4. Similarly CIV2 has denied knowing the real name of OIRA6 AM208.4 paragraph 16.10. He was not a member of the OIRA Command Staff and would not have been entitled to carry a personal weapon.

19.17.9 Benn Keaveney

19.17.9.1 The following portion of Mr Keaveney's written evidence to the Tribunal is relied on

"As I returned to the Abbey Parade area, people were in shock, I saw 2 people carrying a large box containing between 2 and 4 nail bombs. I remember that the box was too big for the amount of nail bombs contained in it. They were wearing bulky jackets and may also have had some other bombs in their pockets. They appeared to have just arrived in the area and did not know anything about what had happened. They were between 19 and 20 years old and they asked me where the Brits were. At that point, an old man approached us and he and I both looked at the bombs. He said, "Don't do it. The soldiers moved back." And he added that they (by which he meant the army) would only use it as an excuse for their actions that day. After the old man had spoken to them they appeared to be resigned and moved back towards the Bog Road." AK2.12 paragraph 54

19.17.9.2 Giving oral evidence Mr Keaveney indicated that he would have known one of the boys by sight and he had seen him at previous riots, although he had never seen him in possession of a nail bomb before Day 160/46/2 to Day 160/46/25. He confirmed that he assumed that the boys had just arrived in the area Day 160/47/24 to Day 160/48/11.

19.17.9.3 Mr Keaveney has made it clear that

i) This incident happened "long after the shooting was over" AK2.22
ii) He did not see any other nail or petrol bombs or gunfire AK2.22
iii) The men did not "pass them to anyone else, light the fuses or throw them" AK2.22.

19.17.9.4 For these reasons it is submitted that even if Mr Keaveney's account of what he saw in Abbey Park is correct it occurred at a time well after the shootings in that area had taken place and therefore had no impact on the actions of soldiers on Bloody Sunday.

19.17.10 Gerard Kemp

19.17.10.1 Gerard Kemp M47 said that he interviewed a man that he knew to be a member of the Official IRA M47.1 paragraph 2. This interview appears at L210. OIRA1 in his oral evidence denied that he spoke to Gerard Kemp Day 395/138/5 to Day 395/138/9.

i) It is clear that the detail contained in the Kemp article L210 reflects to a degree OIRA1's evidence and some of what is contained in the PIN437 document.

ii) If it is accepted that OIRA1 did speak to Gerard Kemp, it is clear that OIRA1 put his .303 into the boot of the car and did not remove it again. Further, the article states that this occurred 10-15 minutes before the Paras moved up.

iii) It is not clear at all from the article what balcony is being referred to or where the other person who supposedly fired with a pistol was located. The article then goes on to described the person giving the interview as placing himself by the barricade in Rossville Street and seeing three civilians go down.

iv) It is not clear from the text of the article whether the person giving the interview was claiming to have seen the person on the balcony firing at the Paras or the other person firing with the pistol.

v) The Inquiry therefore is not in a position to determine whether this is a first hand account or hearsay. In the absence of confirmation from the interviewee, the text of the interview does not provide an answer to this question.

vi) This could not be considered an eyewitness account of either shooting from a balcony at the Paras or someone else firing with a pistol.

19.17.11 Michael Kivelehan

19.17.11.1 The following extract from the material attached to Mr Kivelehan's statement is relied on

"Off the record:
- Man with short arm in their flat, disarmed and got rid of
- Two nail bombs dumped in the street outside his flat. Know because dragged the 2 boys in who had them." AK45.1

19.17.11.2 This extract is a portion of notes taken by John Goddard of the Praxis team which are described as "off tape".

19.17.11.3 Mr Kivelehan has given written and oral evidence to this Tribunal. In his written evidence Mr Kivelehan says that he "does not remember the interview" AK45.5 paragraph 22

19.17.11.4 He then says

"I do not remember anything about two boys with nail bombs. Maybe there were two boys in the house with us but I did not see them and I don't remember them having nail bombs. I have been referred to the evidence of Michael Quinn given to this Inquiry where he talks of two lads with nail bombs being led away. I know nothing about this. Certainly, I was not involved in any such incident. I do have a vague memory of a youngster about 18 and 19 who was brought into the house by John McCourt but I do not remember him having any nail bombs of there being any short arm or pistol in the house. If it happened I do not remember it." AK45.5 paragraph 26

19.17.11.5 He also said "I have to say I do not remember the interview but in view of what he says about lots of Kivelehans being together I wonder whether these notes were made at the 50th wedding anniversary of my parents in 1992." AK45.5 paragraph 22.

19.17.11.6 Giving oral evidence, Mr Kivelehan confirmed that he did not remember being interviewed by a journalist Day 406/65/20 to Day 406/66/9 and that he had no memory of how the journalist even made contact with him Day 406/68/6 to Day 406/68/10.

19.17.11.7 Nor did he recall making the "off the record" statement to the journalist Day 406/78/8 to Day 406/78/19.

19.17.11.8 Mr Kivelehan was clear in his evidence that he did not see anybody with nail bombs or a shortarm in the area on Bloody Sunday nor was he ever told about such a thing Day 406/79/5 to Day 406/79/22. He was also clear that had he seen such things he would be prepared to tell the Inquiry about them Day 406/81/11 to Day 406/81/14. He admitted that he was probably drunk at the time he spoke to the journalist Day 406/81/18 and suggested that if he said such a thing to the journalist then it could have been because of this Day 406/83/16 to Day 406/83/23.

19.17.11.9 Mr Kivelehan's wife who was also in the flat in Glenfada Park on Bloody Sunday with her husband has indicated in both written and oral evidence to the Tribunal that she has no knowledge of the alleged interview Mr Goddard conducted with Mr Kivelehan nor of the content of the note. She says "There was certainly no such man in the living room, and nobody in my family has ever mentioned such a thing to me. I would certainly have remembered if they had. The same comment applies to the suggestion in the notes that boys with nail bombs were dragged into the flat and that the nail bombs were dumped outside." AK48.4 paragraph 28.

19.17.11.10 Mrs Kivelehan confirmed this evidence when she appeared before the Tribunal on Day 423. She said that

i) She was not aware of a journalist ever coming to her home to speak to her husband Day 423/82/24 to Day 423/83/1;

ii) Her husband had never told her he had been interviewed by a journalist Day 423/83/2 to Day 423/83/4;

iii) She never heard from either her husband or another member of the family that there had been a person in the flat who had a firearm Day 423/84/16 to Day 423/84/19;

iv) If she had been aware of such an incident she would have mentioned it in her statement to this Inquiry Day 423/86/14 to Day 423/86/19;

19.17.11.11 Mr Kivelehan's brother-in-law John Michael McCourt also gave evidence to this Tribunal. He was also in the flat in Glenfada Park on Bloody Sunday.

19.17.11.12 Mr McCourt has a vague memory of seeing a journalist with blond hair in Mr Kivelehan's home AM144.10 paragraph 7. He is clear that if he had seen anyone with a gun he would not have let him into the house AM144.10 paragraph 4. He also says that his wife's grandmother was very religious and she would not have let an armed man into the house AM144.10 paragraph 5.

19.17.11.13 Mr McCourt also stated that Mr Kivelehan had once before mentioned to him that he had seen a "boy with a gun" on Bloody Sunday but Mr McCourt dismissed it "In my view Michael can be fanciful on occasions and I just put it down to silly, stupid talk." AM144.10 paragraph 6. He also commented "I do not think that what is described in the Praxis notes happened" AM144.10 paragraph 7. Giving oral evidence he said "Mickey was the type of person who tended to make himself feel important, you know." Day 423/105/25 to Day 4236/106/1 and also "Very strange that no-one else seen this, I mean, there was quite a lot of people in this flat." Day 423/107/1 to Day 423/107/2.

19.17.11.14 Mr McCourt also indicated that Mr Kivelehan could not have dragged two boys with nail bombs into the flat because Mr Kivelehan and himself had gone inside at the same time with Mr Kivelehan before him. As they entered the flat they closed the door and "nobody went back out again" Day 423/108/2 to Day 423/108/16.

19.17.11.15 Mr McCourt's wife (who is Mr Kivelehan's sister) also gave evidence to the Tribunal. She did not remember a journalist interviewing her brother Day 423/121/4 to Day 423/122/5, nor did she see the incidents described in the note Day 423/123/5 to Day 423/124/4. She agreed that her husband could be "fanciful" Day 423/125/2. She also indicated that her sisters were not on the march on Bloody Sunday and therefore could not have supported Mr Kivelehan's story Day 423/126/11 to Day 423/126/22.

19.17.11.16 The only evidence before the Tribunal that such an incident took place appears in Mr Goddard's notes of the interview he says he had with Mr Kivelehan. Mr Kivelehan does not now remember giving such an interview and is clear that on Bloody Sunday he did not see what is described in the notes. No other witness gives evidence of such an incident and the others who were present in the flat in Glenfada Park are clear that they did not see any person with a gun or nailbombs. In these circumstances and given the evidence of Mr McCourt that his brother-in-law is prone to making himself "important" and may have made up the incident for the journalist's benefit it is submitted that it did not happen.

19.17.12.1 The portion of this witness' evidence relied on is as follows

"Whilst I was still standing at point E, I looked west across Rossville Street into the car park of Glenfada Park. I heard between six to eight shots of very raid fire; the shots were all in succession. I could see dust coming up from the tarmac as the bullets hit the ground, between points J and K on the attached map (grid reference I15). The first shots were at point J and then moved in a zig zag fashion to point K....These shots were duller, louder and heavier than I had heard previously and they came from a machine gun. They made a different sound to the high velocity SLRs I had heard earlier, and were not from an SLR being fired very quickly. I had heard a lot of shooting on previous occasions and was able to distinguish between different weapons and shots. This was the only burst of machine gun fire I heard that day and I presumed that it had come from the army ferret car on Rossville Street, which people had heard earlier they had seen." AK42.12 paragraph 26

19.17.12.2 Points J and K are located on the witness' map AK42.17 at the south-eastern corner of Glenfada Park North.

19.17.12.3 When this witness gave oral evidence he said

i) When he heard this fire he was "fairly certain" that it was machine gun fire but "I suppose if a number of rifles were being fired at the same time it is possible that it could have been – confusion there." Day 424/43/5 to Day 424/43/9

ii) It seemed like the firing was coming from the direction of the army Ferret car Day 424/44/2 to Day 424/44/19

19.17.12.4 Given the witness' uncertainty it is submitted that what he heard was not machine gun fire but army fire. In addition, his clarity about where he had seen the shots land reinforces the proposition that it was not civilian fire he saw given that it would appear that there would be no point in civilians firing towards that position given that there were no soldiers in that area. In addition, there is no other evidence that there was machine gun fire in the vicinity of Glenfada Park and certainly not towards that position.

19.17.12.3 However, this witness is not the first to have given evidence that suggests that the army fired from the Ferret car. The Tribunal is referred to the evidence of journalist Robert Hammond M37.2, WT2.36D-E and that of John Gorman, who had previously served nine years with the Royal Enniskillen Fuisiliers AG45.2, WT8.37D to WT8.39C.

19.17.13 Michael Lynch

19.17.13.1 The portion of this witness' evidence relied on is as follows

> "I returned gradually to the window in the living room to see what was happening. I remember seeing a man with a handgun come out quickly from the north east side of Glenfada Park North at approximately the point marked B on the attached map (grid reference J13) and fire two shots towards the soldiers in Rossville Street. I think the pistol was in his right hand. I do not think he had time to aim at anyone. He was wearing a Parka jacket and he had the hood of the jacket up covering his head. From the way he moved I formed the impression that he was a young man. I cannot recall any further details about the man. As soon as he had fired the shots, he ran away in the same direction from which he had come from. I do not know what happened to the gunman after this." AL38.2 paragraph 10

19.17.13.2 The Tribunal is referred to the oral evidence given by this witness on Day 148 in which he accepted that he may be wrong in placing this gunman on the Rossville Street side of the Rossville Flats and it may in fact have been Father Daly's gunman that he saw Day 148/220/4 Day 148/229/12. Alternatively Mr Lynch accepted that the man he saw could have been "Father O'Gara's gunman" Day 148/230/14 to Day 148/234/24. Either way it is submitted that the person seen had no impact on the actions of the soldiers on Bloody Sunday.

19.17.14 Liam Mailey

19.17.14.1 Liam Mailey M50. After the Paras had entered the Bogside and begun to fire, this witness when moving across the Rossville Street Barricade heard three shots which appeared to be of lower calibre that the rifle shots. They appeared to be fired from the area of Glenfada Park or Kells Walk but the witness was unable to give the direction M50.57 to M50.58.

i) The witness places the firing in a number of different locations in different statements. In 1972 he thought it was Glenfada Park or Kells Walk M50.57 to M50.58. His oral evidence before Lord Widgery was that "would imagine it came from somewhere around Kells Walk" M50.27. In his statement to Eversheds he thought it came from the area of either Glenfada Park North or perhaps the southern end of Columbcille Court. He qualified this by saying he was unaure but the latter was more likely M50.2 paragraph 6. In his oral evidence to this Tribunal the witness said that he was unable to be any more precise as to where he was when he heard the low calibre gunfire Day 163/96/2 to Day 163/96/4

ii) It may well be that this witness has heard the shots spoken of by Father O'Gara who saw a man draw a pistol from his pocket, lean over a wall at the end of Kells Walk and fire three shots quickly.

iii) The witness has given confused evidence in respect of how these shots fitted in to the sequence of his photographs and that he may have been looking down the Lecky Road, on his way to the Rossville Flats at the junction between William Street and Rossville Street or around the Rubble Barricade Day 163/64/18 to Day 163/95/10.

iv) The witness thus cannot give evidence of what events were actually occurring when he actually heard these shots and therefore cannot assist the Tribunal as to the impact of these shots, if any, on events or the actions of soldiers and civilians on the day.

19.17.15 Anthony Martin

19.17.15.1 The portion of the Mr Martin's evidence relied on is as follows:

"...I met an IRA man and he told [me] there were 2 rifles in a car – a green Avenger – parked in Glenfada Park and he wanted me to help him get to it. I learnt later that the rifles had been removed before the shooting started." AM24.5

"When we were in GPN to collect the body... soldiers were in the NE corner of the square and one soldier opened fire at us with a pistol. The shots rang out above my head. I had the impression it was an officer who fired because only an officer would have a pistol." AM24.12 paragraphs 26 to 27

19.17.15.2 In oral evidence the witness added "I thought it was a pistol because... an SLR would have took a lot more masonry out." He saw no soldier with a pistol. He did see a soldier without a rifle kneeling. "I would assume he had just had a couple of shots with a pistol". Day 176/87/7 to Day 176/87/12

"I headed out of GPN and met the man I knew who was involved in the IRA. He explained that there was a green Avenger car parked in GPN that had rifles in the boot. He asked me if I would help him go and collect them. I was so angry by that point that I said I would take one of the rifles myself and do something... The car was in position I have marked on the attached map at grid reference I14 [parallel to E block]. The soldiers were still there and we decided it was too risky to approach the car". AM24.12 paragraph 27

i) The witness' evidence in relation to the rifles in the boot of the Avenger is hearsay evidence. The witness did not see any rifles near a car in Glenfada Park or in the Sector 4 area at all and in this regard is repeating something that he has been told.

ii) The witness' account is clearly suspect given his description contained in his Eversheds statement of a soldier firing a pistol in Glenfada Park AM24.12 paragraph 26. No soldier was armed with or fired a pistol in Glenfada Park.

iii) It is submitted that the witness is not qualified to give expert evidence in relation to bullet sounds or effects upon striking masonry. It is further submitted that the witness was never under any doubt that he was being fired upon by the Army AM24.17, AM24.12 paragraph 26, AM24.20 Day 176/87/1 to Day 176/87/12..

iv) Even if the witness' account to the Sunday Times was to be accepted the weapons were removed from before the shooting started and therefore had no impact on the actions of the Soldiers in this area.

v) The witness is also clear that at no time on Bloody Sunday did he see any civilian gunmen or nail bombers in this area AM24.13 paragraph 28.

19.17.16 Noel McCartney

19.17.16.1 The portion of Mr McCartney's evidence appears in his 1972 statement to the Treasury Solicitor

"I went through Glenfada Park to Fahan Street looking for a first aid man. I then saw a civilian with a rifle who appeared at the opening to Rossville Street, who crossed inside Glenfada Park in the direction of Abbey Street. I found a first aid post at Blucher Street but they were assisting a 15 year old youth shot in the cheek..." M55.9

19.17.16.2 In his Evershed's statement the witness says

"I think that after reaching Blucher Street I then went to the Lisfannon Park area. It was at some point around this time that I saw a civilian wearing a three quarter length coat holding a rifle in an upright position. The light was not good by this point and other than being able to say that this person was male I an unable to offer any more detail as to his appearance." M55.2 paragraph 7.

19.17.16.3 When Mr McCartney gave oral evidence to this Tribunal he indicated that he saw the man on the way to Blucher Street as opposed to when he was returning Day 157/94/12 to Day 157/94/14. He confirmed that it would only have been "when you had in effect got to or virtually to Fahan Street that you saw this civilian" Day 157/117/6 to Day 157/117/12.

19.17.16.4 Given this evidence it is clear that even if Mr McCartney's evidence is correct this man had no impact on the actions of the soldiers on Bloody Sunday.

19.17.17 Charles McGill

19.17.17.1 A note from the Eversheds representative who conducted the interview with Mr McGill reads

"Information given by witness on condition that it was NOT used in Statement

Mr McGill said he did not see any firearms on civilians that day but after the shooting had finished he saw a man with a rifle in Glenfada Park. He was wearing a long khaki/brown coat and had a rifle underneath his coat, which you could see. It was a swallow tail coat. Mr McGill spoke to him that day. The man asked him where he could get a firing point and Mr McGill told him to fuck off. After that the man disappeared. Mr McGill thinks that perhaps he came from one of the flats in Glenfada Park and that he was a member of the Official IRA.

19.17.17.2 Mr McGill also mentioned nail bombs. He said that he saw these long after the shooting was over. He saw three people, young men with long hair who were panicking wanting to get rid of nail bombs. They had a tray with about 10 nail bombs in it which looked like grenades, shiny and well made. He saw them at about the same time and in the same area as the man with the rifle. He thinks these men were Official IRA (Stickies)." AM230.11

19.17.17.3 In a supplemental statement to the Inquiry Mr McGill indicated that

i) He believed the man with the rifle was a member of the Official IRA because he knew that the Provisional IRA had said they would be nowhere near the march. He reached the same conclusion about the three boys for the same reasons AM230.9 paragraph 6;

ii) He believes he saw the gunman in Abbey Park AM230.9 paragraph 7;

iii) He saw him after the shooting had ended and he did not know where he had come from AM230.9 paragraph 9;

iv) He saw the boys with nailbombs at about the same time AM230.10 paragraph 10.

19.17.17.4 Giving evidence Mr McGill was clear that when he saw these people he had already seen the body of Gerry McKinney who he knew Day 069/113/8 to Day 069/113/9. He was also clear that he had not been in Glenfada Park that day Day 069/1565/11 to Day 069/156/25 and that he had not seen any soldiers in the area of Abbey Park that day Day 069/158/18 to Day 069/158/19. That being the case it is submitted that even if Mr McGill's evidence is correct these men had no impact on the actions of the soldiers on Bloody Sunday.

19.17.18 Eamon Melaugh

19.17.18.1 The portion of Mr Melaugh's evidence relied on appears in the Sunday Times notes bearing his name which are attached to his statement at AM397.29

"The only time that I heard low velocity weapons being fired was when I was attending to the lad in the house who was shot in the back and I distinctly heard two low velocity shots ring out and I would conjecture again that they came from a 45 revolver. You see if you have lived in Derry you have a certain expertise in the calibre of weapons. They seemed to come from the house directly on the other side of the street – that is Glenfadda Park. I know now from Officials that they did take some action. They did fire some shots. I can state with utter conviction that before the troops came into the area there were no shots fired at them and I can rake (sic) you to the area where I can show you that the snipers would have taken a deadly toll of the troops had they been in position." AM397.29

19.17.18.2 When he gave evidence Mr Melaugh stated

"...I never made that statement and I think it is sinister to put the best connotation on it. I never made that statement, because I never heard any low velocity shots. Had I heard them I would not have drawn attention to it in the manner that it appeared in that. I did not hear any – at any time during the day, so that is sheer fiction and I put a sinister connotation on it." Day 143/64/21 to Day 143/65/3

19.17.18.3 Mr Melaugh therefore denies that he heard any low velocity shots on Bloody Sunday. Even if it were the case that he had heard something it is clear that the "lad in the house who was shot in the back" was Patsy McDaid and that Mr Melaugh therefore was in a house in Joseph Place. Given his location and what he was engaged in there, including the taking of photographs and attending to the seriously wounded Patsy McDaid the following submissions can be made:

i) Mr Melaugh may not have been fully concentrating on what he heard;
ii) Given his location inside the house it is doubtful that he would have clearly heard and been able to distinguish the sounds of gunfire;
iii) It is further doubtful that he would have been in a position to pinpoint the location of the source of the gunfire;
iv) In addition the houses "directly on the other side of the street" from Joseph Place are, at most, those of Glenfada Park South (see for example P324).

19.17.18.4 For the above reasons we submit that this evidence cannot be relied on to establish the presence of a gunman in Glenfada Park.

19.17.19 David Mills

19.17.19.1 The document relies upon a letter to Colonel Tugwell from David Mills (of BBC's "24 hours") dated 20th April 1972.

"You may also be interested to know that it is almost certain there were a car load of Officials in Glenfadda (sic) Park as the paratroopers came in. In their haste to escape they drove their car into a wall and fled on foot taking their weapons. Minutes after three of them started shooting from some way back near "Free Derry" corner. The fourth circled around and was shot at by Soldier G or F." B1333.057

i) This evidence is at least double-hearsay evidence. According to the witness this information may have come from Peter Pringle however the PIN437 document or the Insight Article L211 did not say that the car was driven into a wall or that three of the men allegedly in Glenfada Park North started shooting from some way back near Free Derry corner.

ii) The Official IRA witnesses do not speak of any incident like this occurring.

iii) The Anti-tank platoon soldiers do not refer to seeing a "car load" of IRA men in Glenfada Park who drove their car into a wall and then fled on foot taking their weapons.

iv) The witness confirmed in oral evidence that he did not investigate the allegation very closely "and it was really just a piece of gossip that I was passing on. The Army had never mentioned this to me and my impression was they did not actually know about it." Day 235/24/4 to Day 235/24/10.

v) The witness confirmed that he could not say that the information was right or wrong at this stage Day 235/24/13 to Day 235/24/14. He further confirmed that he did not get information to suggest that whilst in Glenfada Park before fleeing, that any of the Officials fired Day 235/25/7 to Day 235/25/18.

vi) Given the foregoing it is submitted that the Tribunal could not possibly rely on this as credible evidence of events in Glenfada Park North.

19.17.20 Thomas Mullarkey

19.17.20.1 The portions of Mr Mullarkey's evidence relied on are as follows:

19.17.20.2 From his 1972 statement

"We waited until things appeared to quieten down and came out again on Rossville Street between the two blocks of Glenfada Park. A few minutes quiet and another shot. Then I heard what sounded like a burst from a machine gun and said "There's a Thompson". "It's time we were out of here". AM452.16

19.17.20.3 From his statement to this Tribunal

"I no longer remember coming out onto Rossville Street between the two blocks of Glenfada Park and hearing a burst from a machine gun. I was very familiar with the sound of a Thompson sub machine gun from my childhood. I grew up in the 1950s in an area near the border between Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland and I regularly heard such noises."

19.17.20.4 When he gave oral evidence Mr Mullarkey confirmed that he could not remember this sound but that it would have been clear in his mind when he made the statement in 1972 Day 069/37/16 to Day 069/38/1. It should be noted, however that the 1972 statement says only that the burst of fire "sounded like" a burst from a machine gun. It is also possible that what Mr Mullarkey heard was the sound of a number of army SLRs being fired simultaneously, or very close together.

19.17.21 Observer B

19.17.21.1 The Tribunal is referred to our submissions on Observer B which appear at section 12.5.6

19.17.22 OIRA 1

19.17.22.1 The Lawton document relies on what is recorded in the "PIN437" document, taken by John Barry, also found at AOIRA1.1 to AOIRA1.2. The note records the Bogside section of the Officials was under OIRA1's control. The Bogside OIRA units's available arms were in the boot of a car, possibly a green avenger. The note goes on to describe how OIRA1 removed a .303 rifle from the boot of the car and fired the shot from Columbcille Court after hearing about the two boys being shot in William Street.

19.17.22.2. The note goes on to say that OIRA1 returned to Glenfada, put the rifle back in the boot of the car. After seeing either Michael Kelly fall or the Saracens approach he shouted at five or six Stickies to get the car out of Glenfada but they could not get it out in time. OIRA1 then said to abandon it and get the arms out of the boot. They removed a Sten, a carbine, two .303s and a .22 automatic.

19.17.22.3 The note continues:

"He toyed with the idea of trying to make a fight of it, but rejected the idea. "The men weren't in position". Shouted to everyone to retreat. All did, except for one – who ran up to what OIRA1 swears was the north-western corner of Glenfada, that is the corner towards Wm St and furthest from the flats. OIRA1 says he got up on a balcony – on the front of C. Court, he said the bloke told him later, - and got in a couple of shots with the .22 automatic…

19.17.22.4 The note continues that OIRA1 saw Kelly fall and then saw 3 people at the barricade who fell after a burst of machine gun fire.

"He says that there was then the buzz that troops were coming up to Glenfada. He ran for it across Glenfada, out the Abbey Park entrance. He says that there were 2 or 3 people in front of him, and he is convinced that he was the last person to make it. He says there were 5 or 6 behind him. Says the person first behind him was Wray, whom he claims to have known."

19.17.22.5 He saw soldiers at both northern entrances to Glenfada Park, one of whom was carrying a Sterling SMG and then heard a burst of fire as he entered the Abbey Park alleyway.

19.17.22.6 A number of points arise in respect of this evidence:

i) OIRA1 has denied that he had an interview with John Barry but did not deny that he had ever met him. He has accepted that a number of the facts in the document are true in the sense that they reflect reality although some others are untrue Day 395/106/8 to Day 395/109/18.

ii) For example he was not in charge of the Bogside Unit of the OIRA. He said in his evidence that there was only one weapon in the boot of the car and this remained there and was collected after the killings. He denied that he took part in the march or that the .303 was obtained from the boot of the car in Glenfada Park. He also said that the language in the document would not have been his and further confirmed that Michael Kelly was not a relative of his. Day 395/109/16 to Day 395/119/22.

iii) Even if it is accepted that OIRA1 did provide John Barry with all or some of this information, it would appear from the document that the OIRA men had left the area before the Anti-tank platoon had entered it and their presence therefore did not impact upon their actions there.

iv) OIRA1 was unarmed once he returned the .303 rifle to the boot of the car. He further confirmed that there were no armed IRA volunteers in Glenfada Park Day 395/125/1 to Day 395/125/2.

v) We know that the Anti-tank Platoon entered Glenfada Park North with SLRs and not with rifles.

vi) For these reasons and the reasons set out in our Section relating to Sector 3 civilian gunmen we say that the PIN437 document is not a reliable account of what occurred on Bloody Sunday.

19.17.23 Praxis

19.17.23.1 The Lawton document refers to the note found at O17A.1, which is a reconstructed conversation with two OIRA men on 14th June 1991. It says the following:

"Q. What about the car load of men seen driving into GP, getting out, shooting their weapons and driving off again?

"They weren't our people. Definitely not"

19.17.23.2 A number of points arise from this note:

i) This is an un-sourced and untested account.

ii) The allegation is contained in the interviewers' question as opposed to any answer from the two OIRA men.

iii) The allegation is denied by the two OIRA men.

iv) The allegation is completely uncorroborated by either civilian or military witnesses including those witnesses who were positioned on the walls or observation posts and would have been observing the Glenfada Park area.

19.17.24 Michael Quinn

19.17.24.1 The portion of Michael Quinn's evidence relied on appears in the Sunday Times notes bearing his name.

"NOTES: under guaranty (sic) of total anonymity, quinn told us the following:

1. there were two 'IRA cars' parked in glenfadda park. he knows they were IRA men, known in the district. two were in one, unknown in the other. he saw no guns.

2. while standing between the fences on the south side of glenfadda he saw two youths carrying nail bombs in their hands. one had long fair hair and was wearing a blue denim jacket; the other had very black hair, shortish, and was wearing a fawn jacket. the boms (sic) were cylindrical shape with a black fuse projecting from the top; they were about 6ins long he estimates. at no time did he see the bombs lit but he is adament (sic) that he saw them....

3. he says he heard from a close source that a senior Official IRA man arrived on the scene and told the nail bombers to take them away as there was too much danger to other civilians..."

19.17.24.2 In his Evershed's statement Mr Quinn says

"I do not know how long I was in Glenfada Park North but I remember after some time seeing two young fellows in the northeast corner...who were looking round the corner of the flats into Rossville Street. They were only young, about my age or a little bit older, and I did not know them. I was concerned in case they did anything. They were clearly nervous too, looking out and back again. I recall one of them having a denim jacket and dark hair and one with fair hair and a quilted anorak. The boy with the fair hair and quilted anorak had something which might have been a nail bomb in his left side pocket. I had not seen one before and I didn't know what it looked like but I remember something like a coke tin with grey tape and a piece of material coming out of the top. Coupled with the fact that they were peering out towards the army and seemed very nervous and were keeping a look out I was very frightened by what I saw. It was then that I saw a man coming from the northwest corner of Glenfada Park North...towards these two boys. I remember hearing him say words to the effect of "Put those away, you will only get people killed". My only recollection is of seeing what I took to be a nail bomb in a pocket but my memory of those words suggests to me that the boys may have had something in their hands which I saw but cannot now remember seeing." AQ11.22 paragraph 19

19.17.24.3 Giving evidence Mr Quinn said that while he was concerned that what he saw was a nail bomb he could not say for sure that it was Day 169/70/10 to Day 169/70/13. He also agreed that whatever he saw may or may not have been a nail bomb, that the height of his evidence was that he had seen one of the boys who had something in his pocket that might have been a nail bomb, that he had never seen a nail bomb before and that the young boys had left Glenfada Park before the army came in Day 169/123/11 to Day 169/124/22.

19.17.24.4 Given the evidence he gave to this Tribunal it is submitted that what Michael Quinn saw was not a nail bomb. In any event he is clear that the boys he saw had left Glenfada Park were "long gone" by the time the army entered that area Day 169/129/20 to Day 169/130/4. They therefore had no impact on the actions of the soldiers.

19.17.25 Raymond Rogan

19.17.25.1 The following portion of Mr Rogan's evidence to Lord Widgery is relied on

"Q. Can you tell my Lord this: is it not right that frequently rifle fire or IRA fire comes from Glenfada Park flats?
A. That I could not say with a great deal of certainty who actually does the firing.
Q. But firing does come from that area against the troops, does it not?
A. It is common knowledge." AR24.31C-D

19.17.25.2 When Mr Rogan gave oral evidence to this Tribunal he was shown this portion of his evidence and the following exchange took place

"I understand you there to have been saying that prior to Bloody Sunday it was common knowledge that fire directed against the troops came on occasion from the Glenfada Park flats; is that what you were accepting?
A. That is correct, yes." Day 184/7/25 to Day 184/8/4

19.17.25.2 Mr Rogan gave no evidence either in 1972 or to this Tribunal that indicated that there was any firing at the army on Bloody Sunday. It is therefore clear that Mr Rogan's evidence does not provide any support for an assertion that there was a civilian gunman present in Glenfada Park on Bloody Sunday.

19.17.26 Simon Winchester

19.17.26.1 The following portion of Mr Winchester's evidence is relied on

"...I was able to hear high velocity fire and I also heard what sounded like machine gun fire returning the army's fire. I am not now sure whether I heard this sub-machine gun when I was sheltering in a stairwell or when I had reached the south eastern end of Block 2 where it joins Block 3 but I am familiar with the sound of a SLR being fired and I was also aware of a helicopter flying overhead. I am obviously familiar with the sound of a helicopter's rotars turning and I am pretty sure that what I heard was neither a helicopter nor an SLR but the sound of a belt-fed machine gun. I also knew that the IRA had these weapons in their arsenal. It sounded to me as if this firing was coming from an elevated position in the Glenfada Park area or somewhere behind me in that direction." M83.4 paragraph 24.

19.17.26.2 In both his written and his oral evidence to Lord Widgery Mr Winchester only mentions sub machine gun fire on one occasion and indicates that it came from Rossville Flats M83.19 paragraph 22, M83.27E. His evidence is in these terms "I also thought I heard a sub-machine gun firing." M83.19 paragraph 22.

19.17.26.3 Mr Wichester's article which appeared in the Guardian on 31st January 1972 and appears at M83.44 to M83.45 states

"There was certainly some firing from the IRA. I heard one submachine gun open up from inside the flats..." M83.45

19.17.26.4 When Mr Winchester gave evidence to this Tribunal the following exchange took place

"How confident are you that what you heard was the noise of a machine gun?

A. Well, it is difficult to be absolutely precise. I was well aware, I think even at the time, that it might have been a helicopter. There certainly was one, if not two helicopters in the air at the time. I remember thinking, noting in fact that the sound I had heard sounded rather more like a machine-gun, of a type that I knew that the Provos had at the time, than a helicopter. So it seemed vaguely consistent, but I could not swear to it." Day 116/52/12 to Day 116/52/22

19.17.26.5 Given the above it is submitted that either

i) The sound heard by Mr Winchester was not the sound of a machine gun. He cannot now be certain that it was or

ii) In any event he is not clear about the source of the firing and given the differing accounts he gives the firing certainly cannot be located in Glenfada Park.

19.17.27 Witness X

19.17.27.1 The Tribunal is referred to our submissions on Witness X which appear at section 3.1.

19.17.28 Conclusions

19.17.28.1 In light of the foregoing examination of the relevant evidence the following submissions are made

i) Such evidence as has been identified does not establish to the requisite standard that civilian gunmen/bombers were operating in sector 4 on Bloody Sunday or

ii) The evidence that has been presented indicates that any such individuals who were present and in possession of weapons

a) Were not seen by the soldiers who entered Glenfada Park and Abbey Park;

b) Did not, on the soldiers' evidence, provide the justification for them opening fire and;

c) Had no impact on the actions of soldiers on that day.

19.18 "Missing Casualties"

19.18.1 Introduction

19.18.1.1 This section addresses those identified as located in Glenfada Park and Abbey Park on

i) the list of so-called "missing casualties" provided to the Inquiry by the Lawton team. The list appears at OS7.35 and;

ii) the list entitled "Examples (non-exhaustive) of unknown civilian casualties" provided to the Inquiry by the Aitken team. This document appears at OS8.42.

19.18.2 The Lawton Document

19.18.2.1 Number 1 Kevin Barrett

North of FDC. Boy of 14-15, slim build, in about thigh length brown coat, with dark hair being carried from direction of Rubble Barricade or RF in direction of FDC. Possibly still alive while being carried.

19.18.2.2 This witness claims that, whilst in the area of Free Derry Corner as the shooting died down, he saw a boy of fourteen to fifteen, who was of slim build, had dark hair and was wearing a thigh length brown coat, being carried from the direction of the Rubble Barricade or the Rossville Flats. AB 26.4 paragraphs 27 to 30. The witness accepts, however, that it is possible that this person came from the direction of Lisfannon Park. Day 170/52/18 to Day 170/52/21. In the latter event, it is probable, if the person to whom he refers was indeed injured, that this is a reference to Joe Friel who, wearing a parka type jacket, had been taken from Glenfada, where he was shot, to [redacted] and, from there, to a civilian car. A lesser possibility is Michael Quinn who, although also helped to Fahan Street and around the same age as the person supposed to have been seen by Mr Barrett, had a very obvious wound on his face.

19.18.2.3 It must be noted that this witness did not make a statement in 1972. He cannot remember precisely the location from which the 'wounded' person came, whether anyone with the person said that he had been shot or whether he saw any blood or bandages, Day 170/52/4 to Day 170/53/21. Mr Barrett's assertion in his statement, at AB26.4 to AB26.5 paragraph 27, that the boy was died on route to Letterkenny Hospital is invalidated by:

(a) His oral evidence when he accepts that he connected general talk around about someone dying on route to hospital, he does not repeat Letterkenny therefore this is most likely a confused reference to Gerard Donaghey. Day 170/53/24 to Day 170/54/9

(b) His unfounded connection of the person he saw with the rumour about someone dying on the way to hospital.

19.18.2.4 Finally, it is Mr Barrett's memory that just before he saw this boy, when an ambulance arrived in Rossville Street, he could not see any soldiers. "It seemed as though they went away as quickly as they had come in." AB26.4 paragraph 26. The Tribunal is aware, based on the majority of the evidence, that this was not the case. It is our view that this witness provides insufficient detail to allow the Tribunal to consider the person he describes as a missing casualty. If, however, the Tribunal decides that the person that this witness describes in paragraphs 27 to 29 of his statement was wounded, the probability is that the witness has seen an identified casualty, most likely Joe Friel or Michael Quinn, but has become confused, in terms of location, timing and description, due to the passage of time.

19.18.3 Number 2 Paul Coyle

19.18.3.1 Alleyway between GPS and Abbey Park? Man with dark hole in centre of his chest being supported by two others. Tall, in his 20s. Long hair. Plain khaki top. Walking in northerly direction.

19.18.3.2 When asked about this man when he was giving evidence Mr Coyle was not entirely clear about where he had seen him. He indicated that

i) he had seen him just the other side of the exit from Glenfada Park North within the area between the two western blocks of Glenfada Park North and South Day 152/79/22 to Day 152/80/21;

ii) in relation to the direction in which the man was walking, when Mr Coyle was coming out of the alleyway into Abbey Park the man was coming towards him Day 152/80/23 to Day 152/82/3;

19.18.3.3 When shown P572, a picture of Joe Friel Mr Coyle said he "would not have a clue" whether that was the man he saw or not Day 152/83/23.

19.18.3.4 The Tribunal knows that

i) Joe Friel was shot in the area of the south western alleyway which links Glenfada Park North and Abbey Park;

ii) With some assistance he exited Glenfada Park North into Abbey Park;

iii) He was shot in the chest;

iv) He was in his twenties;

v) He had long hair;

vi) He was wearing a parka, green with a hood, a light blue shirt and light grey trousers Day 155/146/14 to Day 155/146/23

19.18.3.5 In these circumstances it is submitted that the person seen by Mr Coyle may have been Joe Friel.

19.18.4 Number 3 Paul Coyle

Alleyway between GPS and Abbey Park? Young man holding something to his face, which was red with blood. Walking in a northerly direction.

19.18.4.1 As above Mr Coyle was "not 100 per cent sure" where he had seen this man Day 152/82/24 to Day 152/82/25 although he thought it was somewhere in the area of the alleyway that runs between the Abbey Park houses and the western side of the western block of Glenfada Park south Day 152/83/5 to Day 152/83/18.

19.18.4.2 Again when shown a photograph (this time of Michael Quinn P779) and asked if that could be the man he saw Mr Coyle said "the second man I saw was walking with his hand up to his face, he had a handkerchief or something to his face which was soaked in blood; I could not tell you" Day 152/83/24 to Day 152/84/5

19.18.4.3 The Tribunal knows that

i) Michael Quinn was shot in the face;
ii) He was shot in the area of the south-west corner of Glenfada Park North;
iii) He exited Glenfada Park North via the alleyway into Abbey Park.

19.18.4.4 In these circumstances it is submitted that the person seen by Mr Coyle may have been Michael Quinn.

19.18.5 Number 5 John Gormley

GPS. Man lying on his stomach on the ground, not moving. Body moved by witness towards a house.

19.18.5.1 This witness did not give oral evidence and therefore the parties did not have an opportunity to test his evidence on this point. The following points can be made however about his written evidence

i) The witness does not mention this incident in the statement he made in 1972 AG46.15 to AG46.16

ii) He makes no mention of being in Glenfada Park South in his 1972 account;

iii) The only reference to carrying a body in his 1972 account relates to a time before he went to Glenfada Park;

iv) He does mention being with Fr McLaughlin in his 1972 account but not in connection with carrying a body;

v) Father McLaughlin's 1972 account indicates that he was in Shiels' house in Columbcille Court at the same time as Mr Gormley H13.1. This is confirmed in his account to this Tribunal at H13.5 paragraph 14

19.18.5.2 Given the above it is submitted that Mr Gormley is mistaken when he describes being in a house in Glenfada Park South at the same time as Fr McLaughlin and when he says he saw and attended to a body in Glenfada Park South.

19.18.6 Number 7 Patrick Kelly

GPN. Man lying close to pavement on his side

19.18.6.1 When Mr Kelly gave evidence on Day 158 he was asked about this boy. He said

i) "..I did not see the wound, I did not see any wound or any blood. It is possible he might have been hit with a rubber bullet, you know, it is possible. I did not see any blood" Day 158/99/5 to Day 158/99/17;

ii) "When I seen him limping, getting carried about, I took it, but I did not actually see any wound or any blood at the time. I cannot remember seeing that, but I took it when he was getting help like that he probably was shot." Day 158/100/9 to Day 158/100/14

19.18.6.2 Given his evidence on this point and the lack of corroboration of this evidence it is submitted that the man seen by Mr Kelly may not have been shot at all.

19.18.7 Numbers 8 & 9 Michael Love

GPN or South of CC. 16-18 year old boy, who was shot

GPN or South of CC. Man with grey hair, shot in the hip.

19.18.7.1 The following points can be made about this "missing casualty"

i) Mr Love's statement to this Tribunal is his first relating to the events of Bloody Sunday.

ii) Mr Love did not give oral evidence to the Tribunal and therefore his evidence on this point has not been tested by the parties.

iii) In his statement Mr Love has said that John Hume was encouraging people to come along to the march AL21.6 paragraph 2. As the Tribunal knows, Mr Hume gave evidence to the effect that

iv) Mr Love is not clear about the location of the two people mentioned at AL21.8 paragraph 15.

v) The Tribunal knows that Gerry McKinney and Gerard Donaghy were shot in Abbey Park. According to his map which appears at AL12.5 the point at which the Tribunal knows Gerry McKinney and Gerard Donaghy fell would have been in the witness' line of sight as he ran from Glenfada Park through to Frederick Street.

vi) The witness' description of an older and a younger man fits with the description of Mr Donaghy and Mr McKinney.

vii) The witness claims to have seen Barney McGuigan shot at a location south of the rubble barricade AL21.7 paragraph 12 when the Tribunal knows he fell to the south of Block 2 of the Rossville Flats.

viii) The witness claims to have been in the vicinity of the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park when he saw Mr McGuigan fall AL21.7 paragraphs 10 to 11. The Tribunal knows that at the time Mr McGuigan fell there were soldiers in Glenfada Park North and it is submitted that the witness could not have failed to

(a) see the soldiers;
(b) hear shooting in Glenfada Park and;
(c) see other bodies lying in Glenfada Park.

ix) Mr Love does not claim to have

(d) heard shots;
(e) seen soldiers at the time when he saw these two men and;
(f) seen that the boy he saw was shot.

x) Finally

(g) No other witness claims to have seen people shot here;
(h) The Tribunal has no other evidence that anyone was shot at this location;
(i) On Mr Love's account the individuals he claims to have seen fall were not engaged in any activity that would have justified their shooting and;
(j) No soldier claims to have shot or shot at anyone at that location.

xi) Given the above considerations it is submitted that either Mr Love is mistaken about where or when he saw these men or the men seen by Mr Love may not have been shot at all.

19.18.8 Number 11 Derek McFeely

GPN. Man face down on ground in quite long tweed effect black/charcoal overcoat. Quite short hair. Stocky. Mid-40s. Head facing GPS, feet towards GPN. Part of right side on kerb, left side and lower part of body lying on surface of car park.

19.18.8.1 When Mr McFeely gave evidence before the Tribunal he was shown the photograph P439. The following exchange took place between himself and Arthur Harvey QC

"Q. ...You have indicated to Mr Clarke that there is something familiar about – is there something which rings a bell in your mind about the body which can be seen in the centre of the photograph closest to the Mini?
A. Yes, as I stated, that is – it is basically the position of the body that I had witnessed in Glenfada Park on entering it." Day 061/99/4 to Day 061/99/10."

19.18.8.2 While Mr McFeely acknowledged that he would be speculating if he said that the body he saw was that of Willie McKinney Day 061/100/23 to Day 061/101/2, he agreed that

i) The body of the man he saw was in the same position as the body in P439 that the Tribunal knows is Willie McKinney and;

ii) He had the impression that the man he saw was an older man, perhaps someone in his mid-40s. He agreed that although Willie McKinney was in his mid-twenties he looked older Day 061/100/9 to Day 061/100/22.

19.18.8.3 In these circumstances it is submitted that the body seen by Mr McFeely may have been that of Willie McKinney.

19.18.9 Numbers 13 & 14 Thomas McGlinchey

Northwest of GPN. Man in mid-30s with frizzy curly blonde hair, probably in a sports coat.

Northwest of GPN. Man's body lying on the ground.

19.18.9.1 When he gave evidence before the Tribunal Mr McGlinchey was shown P694, P697 and P690.1. These photographs show Gerry McKinney where he fell on the steps in Abbey Park. When shown these photographs Mr McGlinchey was asked

"Q. Gerard Donaghy was shot in the abdomen on that day. Is it possible that the man that you saw fall at point E was Gerard McKinney

A. That is very possible, yes." Day 389/56/22 to Day 389/56/25.

19.18.9.2 In these circumstances it is submitted that the people that Mr McGlinchey saw may have been Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghy.

19.18.20 Number 20 Denis McLaughlin

GPN. Shot male

19.18.20.1 In his statement to this Tribunal Mr McLaughlin says he saw a group run out from the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North and that he saw one of them fall AM326.6 paragraph 23.

19.18.20.2 When he gave oral evidence before the Tribunal Mr McLaughlin accepted that at the time he saw this man fall in Glenfada Park he was hysterical and traumatised Day 159/57/7 to Day 159/57/14.

19.18.20.3 He also indicated that what he remembered of the incident was

"The group running and I can remember the soldier firing and I can remember, whether one, two or three fell, I know one fell, so I cannot actually say how many" Day 159/52/20 to Day 159/52/24.

19.18.20.4 In addition, the statement made by Mr McLaughlin in 1972 says

"It was here that I saw four persons running away. These were part of our group farthest away from Rossville St. and so they would have seen the soldiers first. They got up and ran across the courtyard at right angles to the soldiers. A soldier shouted "Stop or we'll shoot." One Patrick McGinley, came back but the others were cut down as they ran from the soldiers." AM326.21.

19.18.20.5 The Tribunal knows that Patrick McGinley was one of the group of people that included Willie McKinney, Joe Mahon and Jim Wray and who attempted to make their escape from Glenfada Park North by running from east to west along the southern end of the car park. This can be seen, for example, in Myles O'Hagan's evidence at AO43.3 paragraph 17.

19.18.20.6 In light of this evidence it is submitted that Mr McLaughlin saw the three people who were shot and fell along the southern end of Glenfada Park North, as noted in the statement he made in 1972. His current recollection of only seeing one person fall is incomplete.

19.18.21 Numbers 24 & 25 Sean O'Neil

To the North of GPS. Man, possibly lying dead. FS 1. 2510

To the North of GPS. Boy sitting wounded.

19.18.21.1 Mr O'Neil did not give oral evidence to this Tribunal on medical grounds. The account he gives in his statement has therefore not been tested by any of the parties.

19.18.21.2 The "Lawton list" notes that Mr O'Neil has located the persons alleged to be "missing casualties" to the north of Glenfada Park South. In fact it is clear from Mr O'Neil's statement at AO65.12 paragraph 57 that both of those listed were located along the southern side of Glenfada Park North.

19.18.21.3 Also at AO65.21 paragraph 57 Mr O'Neil indicates that he remembers, at some point during the day, diving behind a fence on the south side of the Glenfada Park car park. While there he saw a soldier shooting from a north easterly direction and a man in his thirties was hit just in front of him on the other side of the fence. Mr O'Neil says that this was "possibly William McKinney" AO65.21 paragraph 57. He then says that he saw another man who was "possibly lying dead to the east of the first body". Mr O'Neil has located this body at grid reference H15 on Q8.

19.18.21.4 This location appears to be very close to where the person he identifies as Willie McKinney fell. The Tribunal knows from, inter alia, P439 that three people fell in a line on or beside the pavement that runs along the south end of Glenfada Park North. Mr O'Neil has indicated in his statement that he knew Jim Wray and saw him fall AO65.11 paragraph 53 to 56. It may then be that the body seen by Mr O'Neil in close proximity to the person he identified as Willie McKinney was that of Joe Mahon. Alternatively the body he thought was Willie McKinney may have been that of Joe Mahon. The Tribunal knows from Mr Mahon's evidence that the man seen lying against the fence in P439 is that of Joe Mahon.

19.18.21.5 In light of the above considerations it is submitted that this body was not a "missing casualty" and may have been one of the three men who fell along the southern side of Glenfada Park.

19.18.21.6 Mr O'Neil then describes seeing a "boy sitting wounded further east still at grid reference H15 although I am not sure who this was either" AO65.12 paragraph 58. Mr O'Neil does not describe how he knew this boy had been wounded, whether he could see a wound or bloody and what the nature of the wound was. It is therefore submitted that this person may not have been wounded at all and if he was he may not have been shot.

19.18.21.7 It can also be seen that Mr O'Neil's evidence is somewhat confused in that he refers to seeing Gerry McKinney lying wounded in Glenfada Park. The Tribunal knows that Mr McKinney fell in Abbey Park.

19.18.21.8 For the above reasons it is submitted that the individuals seen by Mr O'Neil were not "missing casualties".

19.18.22 Number 26 John Porter

"Slipway" in Southwest corner of GPN. Young man in group emerging from slipway in blue suit. Right eye covered in blood.

19.18.22.1 Mr Porter gave evidence at the Widgery Tribunal. He has since died and therefore this Tribunal has not received either written or oral evidence from him.

19.18.22.1 It is clear from the transcript of Mr Porter's evidence to Lord Widgery that when he refers to the "slipway" in the southwest corner of Glenfada Park North he means the alleyway in that area AP11.5D.

19.18.22.2 The actual description given of the person he saw is this "The young man in the front to the right wore a blue suit and I noticed his whole right eye was all covered in blood and I got the impression that the side of his head had been shot off." AP11.5D.

19.18.22.3 In the statement he prepared for the purposes of the Widgery Tribunal Mr Porter also indicated that this boy had "long dark hair" AP11.16.

19.18.22.4 In the first statement he made in 1972 he said "The first thing I saw was about 4 or 5 people coming through one of the little gateways between the flats. A man at the front wearing a light blue suit and his right eye was shot off. In my opinion he kept running." AP11.19.

19.18.22.5 Given the injury that the man had sustained to his face and the location in which he was seen by Mr Porter it is submitted that this is not a "missing casualty" but rather that the person the witness saw may have been Michael Quinn.

19.18.23. Numbers 27 & 28 John Quigg

Middle of GPN. Man in his 40s lying on his back with head facing southwards.

Middle Of GPN. Severely injured man lying on his front.

19.18.23.1 Giving evidence Mr Quigg acknowledged that a lot of events have faded in his mind, and that at the time he was not familiar with the Glenfada Park area, he lived on the Waterside Day 53/104/18 to Day 53/105/25. Indeed his 1972 statement records that he was in the "Glenfada Park area" when he saw these individuals.

19.18.23.2 Mr Quigg was with Charlie Meehan on the day. Mr Meehan, who is now dead, made a statement in 1972 in which he described the shooting of Gerry McKinney, whom he knew personally AM390.2. Attached to this statement is a marked map which looks like the sort that was used by the Sunday Times journalists upon which it is indicated that he had seen "one body, maybe two" in Abbey Park, not Glenfada Park AM390.3. Although this map also indicates that Gerard McKinney fell in the south west corner of Glenfada Park and William McKinney in Abbey Park the Tribunal knows that in fact the opposite is the case.

19.18.23.3 When he gave evidence Mr Quigg acknowledged that Mr Meehan knew the Bogside area better than he did Day 53/106/15 to Day 53/106/17. It also appears from his answers that he accepted that the bodies he described seeing could be those of Gerry McKinney and Gerard Donaghy Day 53/111/3 to Day 53/114/2.

19.18.23.4 It is therefore submitted that the bodies Mr Quigg saw may have been those of Gerry McKinney and Gerard Donaghy.

19.18.24 Number 29 Michael Quinn

Alleyway from GP car park to Abbey Park. Young man (19-20) shot in the leg whilst facing GP garages, fell to ground.

19.18.24.1 Michael Quinn has given a number of accounts about the man he says he saw shot in the leg. He spoke to Sunday Times journalists Philip Jacobson and Peter Pringle. Their note, dated 1st March 1972, records

"The next thing I recall is seeing a young man shot in the leg on the footpath near the passway to abbey park. My impression is that the shot came from the north east corner of glenfadda and when I looked back to the man – I had seen the bullet wound in his leg – he had gone (he saw him again later).." AQ11.55

19.18.24.2. The note then describes how Mr Quinn was shot and then records "I staggered through the passage way into abbey park and remember seeing the man shot in the leg lying near the back of the glenfadda block." AQ11.55

19.18.24.3 The draft article based on these notes says

"He had seen a young man shot in the right thigh. The man was wearing a black anorak and he had brown hair. Quinn saw him lying on the ground clutching his right leg and there was a dark stain on his trousers. He could not have been badly hurt as he had gone the next time quinn looked at him." AQ11.57

19.18.24.4 It later says that after Michael Quinn had been shot "he remembers seeing the same man who had been shot in the leg lying in the corner on the abbey park side of the alley way." AQ11.57

19.18.24.5 In his statement to the Treasury Solicitor Michael Quinn states

I saw a man who appeared to be nineteen of twenty years of age who was shot in the right leg at the entrance to the small alleyway that leads from the car park into Abbey Park (not Joseph Friel). I am quite sure that this man had nothing in his hands when I saw him." AQ11.60

19.18.24.6 Again, after Mr Quinn describes how he himself was shot, he says "I stumbled but got up again and ran on through the alleyway. As I was passing through I noticed the man whom I had seen being shot earlier, lying in the shadows of a nook in the alleyway." AQ11.61

19.18.24.7 Giving evidence to Lord Widgery Michael Quinn said that the boy was "standing just in front of the alleyway which leads into Abbey Park" AQ11.70G. He was then asked if he had seen any soldiers around when he saw this boy shot and he replied "No, I knew where they were, but there were none inside the car park at that time." AQ11.71B. He later confirmed "I didn't see any at the time" AQ11.71C. Again he confirmed that he had seen the boy in the alleyway as he exited from Glenfada Park. For the first time however, he indicated that he had heard shots in Glenfada Park as the boy was shot although he couldn't be certain how many AQ11.73F.

19.18.24.8 In each of these accounts therefore Mr Quinn locates the man at or near the entrance to the alleyway that leads into Abbey Park.

19.18.24.9 In his statement to this Tribunal he says

"...I noticed a young fellow facing me, looking in my direction. My best recollection now is that he was standing at point J which I have marked on the map at grid reference H13 and I was standing at about point K grid reference I14 the other side of Glenfada Park North. I have also marked on the attached photograph MQ2 the points J and K. He was not doing anything and he certainly had nothing in his hands. Suddenly I heard him scream and saw him collapse to the ground. I did not hear the shot that hit him, he just went down. He was tall, thin, aged about 18 or 19. I saw the hole in his leg with blood coming out of it and it was clear to me he had been shot. I recall that he was wearing a grey jacket and grey trousers and the blood was a dark patch which appeared in the trousers covering the top of the right thigh. I looked round at the northeast corner of Glenfada Park North where I had seen the two boys earlier because I assumed that that was where they shot had come from. I could see no soldiers there. When I looked back towards the boy he had gone." AQ11.22 paragraph 20

19.18.24.10 Mr Quinn describes seeing the boy again after he had been shot

"I believe it was then, as I exited Glenfada Park North that I caught sight once again of the man I had seen shot in the leg in Glenfada Park North. Having looked at the map I believe that this was in the Glenfada Park North area and my best estimate is that it was at point M, grid reference H14....Again I did not stop because I was so keen to get away, but our eyes met. I saw this man propped up on one arm. No-one was with him and I don't know who he is. He had not been doing anything sinister and as far as I know he was not among the listed wounded." AQ11.24 paragraph 26

19.18.24.11 Giving oral evidence to this Tribunal Mr Quinn indicated that when he saw what he was sure was blood on this boy it appeared "high up on the thigh" Day 169/74/20. Mr Quinn agreed that his "description of the wound makes it rather difficult to suppose that he was capable of getting to where you saw him subsequently under his own steam" Day 169/79/17 to Day 169/79/19. He now has no recollection of hearing the shot that hit the boy.

19.18.24.12 Giving oral evidence Mr Quinn accepted that the location where he currently places the boy could be wrong Day 169/106/22 to Day 169/107/2.

19.18.25.13 Michael Quinn has therefore a number of accounts which indicate that he believes he saw a boy wounded in the leg in Glenfada Park. The following points can be made about his evidence on this issue

i) His evidence as to whether he heard a shot when he saw the boy fall varies;

ii) At the time he saw the boy fall he did not see any soldiers, despite looking towards the north eastern corner of Glenfada Park;

iii) No soldier says he shot a man in the leg in that area;

iv) In any event Quinn does not say the man was acting in a manner that could be considered to be hostile towards soldiers, he is clear the man had nothing in his hands when he was shot;

v) No other witness saw this boy shot;

vi) As to his second sighting of this boy, Mr Quinn's evidence is that that occurred after he had himself been shot;

vii) No other witness saw a man lying in the alleyway in the manner suggested by Mr Quinn.

19.18.25.14 It is inconceivable that the details of this incident where a civilian who was unarmed and was not acting in a threatening manner to the soldiers and was shot and wounded in the leg would not have emerged at the time or over the last 30 years.

19.18.25.15 Michael Quinn stands alone as a witness to this event. His account is not corroborated by a single other witness either in Glenfada Park North or in Abbey Park.

19.18.25.16 It is also worth observing that nowhere in the intelligence material available to the Tribunal is there any mention of a so-called "missing casualty" in either Glenfada Park or Abbey Park.

19.18.25.17 We therefore submit that Mr Quinn is mistaken when he says he saw a man shot in the leg. Alternatively this boy is not a "missing casualty" in the sense that is intended by the Lawton team because he was not a threat to soldiers (or anyone else) when he was injured.

19.18.26 The Aitken document

19.18.26.1 The only example of an "unknown civilian casualty" listed for Glenfada Park North on this document is a man wounded in the leg. The document states

"The Tribunal knows that an unidentified man was wounded in his leg in Glenfada Park." OS8.42 (emphasis added)

19.18.26.2 The evidence cited in support of this assertion is that of

i) Michael Quinn AQ11 and Day 169

ii) Hugh Duffy AD156 and Day 150

iii) Patrick Kelly AK21 and Day 158

19.18.26.3 The evidence of Patrick Kelly and Michael Quinn has been examined in some detail above. The evidence of Hugh Duffy is examined below. It is submitted that to assert as a matter of fact that "The Tribunal knows" that an unidentified man was wounded in the leg in Glenfada Park is misconceived and is not borne out by the evidence.

19.18.26.4 The extent of Hugh Duffy's evidence about the so-called "unknown casualty" is as follows

> "I have a vague recollection of somebody being taken into one of the houses near where Mr McKinney was lying. I think there were also a couple of other bodies in the area close to Mr McKinney, although I do not remember anything about them. I also remember that around this time I either saw, or somehow became aware of a man who had been shot in the leg. He may have been one of the other bodies I saw close to Mr McKinney or the person I saw taken into one of the houses near Mr McKinney's body." AD156.4 paragraph 22 (emphasis added).

19.18.26.5 Giving oral evidence Mr Duffy stated "I had not seen the chap was shot in the leg, I did not see his injury, no..." Day 150/96/4 to Day 150/96/5. In addition, he accepted that the person he saw injured in the leg could have been Joe Mahon who was shot at the top of the right thigh and who was carried past the area in which Gerry McKinney's body lay Day 150/96/3 Day 150/97/3. Mr Duffy was not questioned on this issue at all by counsel instructed by either the Lawton or Aitken teams.

19.18.26.6 It should also be noted that in a statement dated 30th January 1972 Mr Duffy did not mention seeing anybody who had been shot in the leg in the area of Glenfada Park. In fact, the only person he may have seen shot in the leg was at the rubble barricade. That statement records

> "Two lads, we couldn't get out to them, were lying at the barricade. They were shot. One of the young lads was scraping away at his leg. First of all, I thought it was the leg he was shot in but I seen the blood coming out of his side." AD156.9

19.18.26.7 Mr Duffy's evidence does not in any way lend support to the any allegation of a man wounded in the leg in Glenfada Park or an "unknown casualty". The Tribunal could certainly not say that it "knew" a man had been wounded in the leg in Glenfada Park on the basis of Mr Duffy's evidence.

19.18.27 Conclusions

19.18.27.1 It is therefore submitted that the material relied upon does not provide evidence of "missing casualties" as defined by those representing the soldiers.

19.19.1.1.Specific Allegation Against Joe Friel

19.19.1.1.1. Introduction and summary of submissions

19.19.1.1.2. We submit that the specific allegation made by Soldier 104 against Joseph Friel is a fabrication. It cannot be maintained and, on Mr Friel's behalf, we invite the Tribunal to so find in express terms for the following reasons:

Soldier 104 is the only person to have made any allegation against Mr Friel. Mr Friel himself makes the allegation on the basis of an alleged admission to the soldier. Mr Friel has consistently denied that he was in possession of any sort of weapon on Bloody Sunday and further, has always denied that he made such an admission;

i) Soldier 104 now has no recollection of the alleged conversation he had with Joseph Friel and has not made himself available to give oral evidence to this Tribunal;

ii) The incident described by 104 bears no resemblance to Mr Friel's account of how he was shot;

iii) Neither does it accord with the evidence of eyewitnesses to Mr Friel's shooting, the evidence of the soldiers who admit to having fired in Glenfada Park, or any soldiers who admit to having fired on that day;

iv) None of the eyewitnesses to Mr Friel's shooting or those who saw him in its immediate aftermath describes Mr Friel carrying a gun or having one in his possession;

v) Soldier 104 was the only person to hear the alleged admission. He admits that he told no one except his Platoon Commander, this is despite the fact that almost immediately after he alleges it was made he was close to army colleagues. In addition, an RUC officer, Constable Malone, accompanied him to the Bridge Location with Mr Friel;

vi) Soldier 145, 104's Platoon Commander, has made two statements. He makes no mention of 104 telling him of the alleged admission in either statement. This is despite the fact that in the second statement he recalls that 104 spoke to him about Gerard Donaghey on his return from the Bridge Location;

vii) Soldier 104's evidence was not considered sufficiently reliable to ground a criminal charge against Mr Friel or to mount a defence to his civil action against the Ministry of Defence;

viii) Mr Friel was never cautioned or charged for any offence arising out of the events of Bloody Sunday. He was not placed under arrest. His clothes were not removed for forensic analysis;

ix) Mr Friel was not aware of the allegation until it was put to him under cross-examination at the Widgery Tribunal. At that point it came as a complete shock to him. It would also appear that his legal representatives had no advance knowledge of the alleged admission;

x) Mr Friel had a clear criminal record and at the time and until 1992 worked as a tax inspector for the Inland Revenue, a position that required security clearance;

xi) The allegation is not repeated in any of the intelligence material in the Tribunal's possession.

19.19.1.2. The Allegation

19.19.1.2.1. Soldier 104 made a specific allegation in 1972 that Joe Friel admitted to him that he had been carrying a firearm at the time he was shot on Bloody Sunday. Soldier 104 was a member of the First Battalion the Royal Anglian Regiment and, at the relevant time, was on duty with other members of his platoon at Barrier 20 in Barrack Street B1705.001 paragraph 5.

19.19.1.2.2. Mr Friel was shot in Glenfada Park North and taken, via Abbey Park, to the Murray house at [redacted] where he was treated by Eibhlin Lafferty of the Knights of Malta AF34.3 paragraphs 17 to 18. He was then placed in a car and driven towards Altnagelvin Hospital by CIV 1, accompanied by Manus Morrison and Eugene O'Donnell. AF34.3 paragraph 21.

19.19.1.2.3. The car, and that carrying Gerard Donaghey which was just behind, was stopped at the check point on Barrack Street AF34.3 paragraph 22 at which point CIV 1 and Mr O'Donnell were arrested and Mr Morrison ran away.

19.19.1.2.4. Soldier 104 then got into the car and drove it onwards a short distance with Mr Friel still inside. He was then joined by a police officer, Constable Malone, and they drove to the bridge location from where Mr Friel was brought to hospital JM5.9, Day 219/119/9 to Day 219/120/6

19.19.1.2.5. The substance of 104's allegation is contained in his RMP statement B1680 to B1682, his statement to the Treasury solicitor B1690 to B1691 and in his evidence to the Widgery Tribunal.. He has also made a statement to this Inquiry B1705.001 to B1705.006. He states, in the first of these:

> "When the youth, who appeared to be quite lucid, asked me to take him to hospital, I asked him what he had been up to. He said that he had been shot, and I told him that I could see that and that he shouldn't have been playing with guns. I asked how he had been shot and he said that he had a gun and was carrying it when he walked around a corner and bumped into some soldiers, one of who shot him. He did not say where the incident had occurred nor did he say what sort of gun he had been carrying, but he did say that he had never done that sort of thing before and that he would never do it again. I asked him what had happened to his gun, and he said that he did not know." B1681

19.19.1.2.6. In his second statement soldier 104 recounts the alleged admission in broadly the same terms. He then says that it was too dangerous for him to drive the injured man to Company Headquarters, as ordered, without a police escort and, to this end, he asked an RUC man who was nearby to go with him B1690[18] Mr Friel was actually taken to the RAP at RHQ, beside the Craigavon Bridge, where he was treated and transferred by army vehicle to Hospital.

19.19.1.2.7. Giving evidence at the Widgery Tribunal Soldier 104 recounted the incident in more detail. He told how he had been ordered to get into the silver coloured Cortina (the vehicle in which Joe Friel was lying) in order to stop it rolling downhill. He drove it to the top of the hill, about 40 yards behind the barricade, and was then told to take the car and the injured man in the back seat to Company Headquarters. He stated that he considered it was unsafe to do so and that he asked a nearby policeman to accompany him. In his direct evidence 104 stated, for the first time, that the man in the back of the car had been sitting up talking to him. He again recounts the alleged admission in terms similar to those in his statements B1694D to B1696C.[19]

19.19.1.2.8. During the course of 104's direct evidence at the Widgery Tribunal the following exchange took place

"Q. What did he [i.e. Friel] say?
I asked him what he was doing and he said he had walked round a corner and he got shot. I said to him "you shouldn't play with guns". He said, "I wouldn't do it again". Then he asked me my name and I would not tell him and he asked me to take him to hospital.
Q. Is that all he said?
I think so, sir.
Q. Now did he say what he had with him when he was wounded?
Yes, he said he had a gun." B1695B to B1696A

[18] This was not mentioned in the earlier statement.
[19] Soldier 104 also gave evidence that he was present in court when Mr Friel was giving evidence to Lord Widgery. He therefore said he was able to identify him as the man he had seen injured in the back of the car.

19.19.1.2.9. It is clear that it was only by the use of a leading question that 104 was prompted to give this extremely important evidence which formed the basis of his allegation against Mr Friel.

19.19.1.2.10. When the allegation was put to Mr Friel under cross-examination at the Widgery Tribunal it was with the suggestion that the admission had taken place in an Army vehicle when Mr Friel was being taken from the RAP to Hospital AF34.22D to AF34.23B. 104's allegation was that the admission had been made when he first got into the car with Friel and even before they had left Barrack Street.

19.19.1.2.11. In his statement to this Inquiry, soldier 104 now states that he saw three people in the back seat of the car carrying Joe Friel. He says

"Two of these people were dead and one was alive although he was injured. My 1972 statements state it was two bodies in two cars; one dead in one car and an injured man in the other. However my memory now is of three bodies in one car. It is more likely that my 1972 evidence is correct on this point." B1705.002 paragraph 16

19.19.1.2.12. As soldier 104 himself points out, this is completely at odds with his previous evidence, and also with that of Constable Malone, soldiers 138 and 145 and the civilians who accompanied Joe Friel as far as Barrack Street.

19.19.1.2.13. In relation to the alleged admission, Soldier 104 says

"I think I did have a conversation with him but I cannot remember any of the details of it now." B1705.003 paragraph 17

19.19.1.2.14. The incident, as described by 104 in 1972, is completely different to the evidence that has been given by Mr Friel. Mr Friel states that he was in Glenfada Park North trying to escape the shooting. He made his way across the car park from the eastern side towards the southwest alleyway that leads to Abbey Park in an attempt to do so. As he approached the exit he heard someone shout "look out there's the limeys". At this, he stopped momentarily and turned around to look whereupon he saw at least three, perhaps four, soldiers in the NE corner of Glenfada Park North. One of these soldiers was standing out in front of the others, moving forward and firing with his firearm held just above waist height, moving it from side to side. Mr Friel then states that he heard three shots and felt a slight blow to his body. It was not until he looked down and saw blood that he realised he had been shot. Day 155/56/5 to Day 155/60/2[20] 19.19.1.2.15. Mr Friel has consistently denied that he was carrying a weapon when he was shot. In fact he has stated that he was not aware of the allegation until it was put to him under cross-examination at the Widgery Tribunal. At that point it came as a complete shock to him AF34.26A to AF34.27B. It would also appear that his legal representatives had no advance knowledge of the alleged admission AF34.21B-C.

19.19.1.2.16. Mr Friel made a statement to police while he was still in hospital AF34.10 to AF34.11, and two further statements are in existence, one taken from Mr Friel by the Sunday Times AF34.13 to AF34.14 and a second taken by the Treasury Solicitor for the Widgery Tribunal AF34.15 to AF34.16. Mr Friel gave evidence at the Widgery Tribunal AF34.17 to AF34.27.

19.19.1.2.17. As has already been seen, witnesses Gregory Wilde and Patsy Bradley were close to Mr Friel when he was shot. They describe him as being part of the crowd running towards the southwestern exit of Glenfada Park North AW15.6 paragraphs 11 to 12; AB68.3

[20] See also the account Joe Friel gave of his shooting while in hospital V4/10.56 to 12.16

paragraphs 22 to 23. Their evidence clearly corroborates that of Mr Friel in that Mr Wilde clearly indicates that shots were fired from soldiers he saw in the northeast corner of Glenfada Park North AW.15.6 paragraph 12. While Mr Bradley did not look around at the time, and therefore did not see any soldiers, he indicates that he was running towards the western exit of Glenfada Park North when he saw Joe Friel fall and, as there were no soldiers in front of him, he assumed that Joe Friel had been shot from behind AB68.3 paragraph 23.

19.19.1.2.18. Others who say they saw Mr Friel in the aftermath of the shooting are Leo Young, Eibhlin Lafferty, Eugene McGillen, John Chambers, Eugene O'Donnell, CIV 1 and Manus Morrison. None mentions him carrying a firearm. In addition, none of these civilian witnesses describes an incident that resembles the admission allegedly made to Soldier 104.

19.19.1.2.19. Soldier 104 admits that he did not mention the admission to anyone at the time or shortly afterwards B1703A-B – this despite waiting close to the checkpoint for some time after he alleges the admission was made. Nor was the matter mentioned to Constable Alexander Malone who accompanied the soldier to the RAP who would have noted it in his report if it had been Day 219/121/20. Soldier 104 states that the only person he told of the admission was his Platoon Commander – soldier 145 – when he returned to the bridge later B1703E.

19.19.1.2.20. Soldier 145, who has since died, provided two statements, the first to the RMP B1876 to B1877 and the second to the Treasury Solicitor B1881. He makes no mention of being told of the alleged admission in either statement; this is despite the fact that, in the later statement, he mentions soldier 104 speaking to him about Gerard Donaghey on his return from the RAP B1881.

19.19.1.2.21. In an opinion prepared for the Crown Solicitor in respect of Mr Friel's civil action against the Ministry of Defence, reference is made to the report of a Detective Inspector who attended the Widgery hearings and reported on Mr Friel's case to the Director of Public Prosecutions OS1.191 to OS1.195 The opinion was prepared and signed by J.B.E. Hutton (former Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland and now a retired Law Lord) and W.A. Campbell (now a Judge of the Court of Appeal in Northern Ireland). It states that, from the D/I's report it would appear that 104 was a "rather poor witness" OS1.194. The opinion also notes the D/I's observations that, as can be seen from the transcript, the soldier had to be led to give evidence that Mr Friel was carrying a gun OS1.194 and that he made no mention of the alleged admission to army investigators present at the scene OS1.193.

19.19.1.2.22. The author of these comments was D/I McNeill. His report states

> "I could not relate the content of the alleged statement [i.e. Friel's admission] with any of the evidence given." OS1.197

19.19.1.2.23. D/I McNeill also noted that

> "In Friel's evidence on Page 38 he was under cross-examination by Mr Gibbens and he was asked about the alleged admission as though it had taken place in an Army ambulance at the Bridge to Altnagelvin Hospital. In actual fact the soldier in his evidence did not come up to strength on his evidence (page 42) regarding the alleged admission" OS1.197

19.19.1.2.24. Thus it is clear that soldier 104's evidence was not considered sufficiently reliable to ground a criminal charge against Mr Friel or to mount a defence to his civil action against the Ministry of Defence.

19.19.1.2.25. Soldier 104 has not made himself available to give evidence to this Tribunal to stand over the allegations he made in 1972. He has failed to respond to communications from those representing him to such an extent that they have taken their instructions to have been withdrawn and he is no longer represented before the Tribunal Day 380/1/9 to Day 380/6/12, Day 382/131/1 to Day 382/131/9.

19.19.1.2.26. In addition, Mr Friel was never cautioned or charged for any offence arising out of the events of Bloody Sunday. He was not placed under arrest. His clothes were not removed for forensic analysis.

19.19.1.2.27. Mr Friel was employed as a tax inspector by HM Inspector of Taxes, a job he held until 1992 and which required security clearance. He had never been in trouble with the police and had a clear criminal record. In his statement to this Inquiry Mr Friel also notes that at the time of the incident his father was a civilian worker at Ebrington Barracks. His father, grandfather and great-grandfather had all served in the British army. In fact, he notes, the family would have almost been seen as a pro-British family AF34.1 paragraph 3.

19.19.1.2.28. The Tribunal also has evidence from Hugh Martin Gallagher who was fifteen at the time of Bloody Sunday. He has indicated that on 30th January 1972 he was near his home on Long Tower Street in Derry talking to a neighbour when a solider walked past them. The soldier walked on and then came back and "grabbed" Mr Gallagher saying that he was arresting him under the Special Powers Act for no apparent reason AG66.1 paragraph 2.

19.19.1.2.29. Mr Gallagher was then handed over to another soldier whose named he discovered later was Solider 104 AG66.1 paragraph 3.

19.19.1.2.30. Mr Gallagher was processed and received a summons on a charge of riotous behaviour. He appeared in court and the soldiers who initially arrested him and soldier 104 gave evidence against him. The neighbour Mr Gallagher had been talking to at the time of his arrest gave evidence on his behalf AG66.2 paragraph 9.

19.19.1.2.31. Both soldiers gave evidence that Mr Gallagher had been seen throwing stones at troops in Barrack Street. Mr Gallagher said he was not in Barrack Street at the time of his arrest or at all that day, nor had he been throwing stones and that the soldiers were lying. The charge against him was dismissed AG66.2 paragraph 9.

19.19.1.2.32. Mr Gallagher confirmed this evidence on oath before this Tribunal on Day 158/1/3 to Day 158/16/18. The Tribunal is also in possession of the newspaper article which reports the proceedings involving himself and soldier 104 to which he referred at AG66.4. The Tribunal has therefore had an opportunity to assess both the evidence of the witness and other, independent, material.

19.19.1.2.33. In our submission it is clear that Soldier 104 lied about the circumstances in which Mr Gallagher came to be arrested. In addition, he was prepared to commit perjury in court in an attempt to assure Mr Gallagher's conviction. We submit that there is a clear parallel between what Soldier 104 did and was prepared to do in respect of Mr Gallagher and what he did in respect of Joe Friel. Both involved lies and, eventually, perjury, their object being an attempt to falsely attribute criminal behaviour to a wholly innocent individual.

19.19.1.3. Conclusion

19.19.1.3.1. We therefore invite the Tribunal to reach the following conclusion in respect of the allegation made by Soldier 104 against Joe Friel

i) That it is not supported by any other evidence;

ii) That it is a fabrication;

iii) That Soldier 104 knowingly gave a false account of his contact with Joe Friel and;

iv) That Soldier 104 committed perjury when he gave evidence before Lord Widgery.

19.19.2 Gerard Donaghey

19.19.2.1 Summary of Submissions

19.19.2.1.1 The nail bomb(s) were planted on Gerard Donaghey at some time after he transferred from civilian custody to the custody of the security forces.

19.19.2.1.2 This is an inescapable inference from the evidence of numerous witnesses who saw Gerard Donaghey:

i) before he left the house that day;
ii) who accompanied him on the march;
iii) who saw him being shot;
iv) who tended to him after he had been shot;
v) who carried him to 10 Abbey Park;
vi) who examined and searched him there;
vii) who carried him out to Raymond Rogan's car;
viii) who travelled with him in the car;
ix) who saw him at Barrier 20; and
x) who examined him at the Regimental Aid Post (like Corporal 150 and Captain 138)
xi) that the nail bombs must have been placed on his body after their contact and examinations.

19.19.2.1.3 Whilst in the nature of things there will be no direct evidence of planting there is powerful circumstantial evidence which includes the following:

i) The fact that the evidence regarding the "discovery" of a nail bomb was bizarre, contradictory and unreliable;
ii) The fact that the police and/or army had motive, opportunity and access to the relevant materials to enable them to plant nail bombs;

iii) The fact that the nail bombs themselves were of a highly unusual composition and construction;

iv) The fact that there was no attempt or no adequate attempt to preserve the "crime-scene";

v) The fact that no explosive sample was forwarded to the Northern Ireland Forensic Science Department to enable the source of the explosives to be determined;

vi) The fact that the RUC photographer only took a photograph of one nail bomb on Gerard Donaghy's body;

vii) The fact that there was no fingerprint examination;

viii) The fact that Mr Rogan and Mr Young were not questioned about the nail bombs.

19.19.2.2 Introduction

19.19.2.2.1 On 29 December 1992 the then Conservative Prime Minister, John Major, in a letter to John Hume, stated:

"The Government made clear in 1974 that those who were killed on 'Bloody Sunday' should be regarded as innocent of any allegation that they were shot whilst handling firearms or explosives. I hope that the families of those who died will accept that assurance".

19.19.2.2.2 The evidence which this Inquiry has heard provides powerful support for the Irish Government's assessment of new material which was presented by them to the British Government in June 1997 (and which helped bring about the present Inquiry) in which they stated at U325 paragraphs 260 to 261

"Having regard to the evidence before Lord Widgery, his finding that on a balance of probabilities the bombs were in Donaghey's pockets throughout is so extraordinary as to border on the farcical. Nail bombs, which are bulky (weighing about half a pound and measuring roughly 4.5 by 2 inches) could not conceivably have escaped the notice of civilians, medical experts and military personnel. If they were present, they would have been removed in any case by those civilians who had brought him to shelter. Nail bombs were not noticed by either Soldier 138 or any of the civilians who were with Donaghey during the last minutes of his life - one of whom, Young, actually stated that he searched Donaghey's jacket pockets.

The logic of the evidence presented to Lord Widgery is that the nail bombs were not in Donaghey's pockets until they were placed there while his body was in the custody of the authorities. Lord Widgery claimed that "not evidence was offered as to where the bombs might have come from, who might have placed them or why Donaghey should have been singled out for this treatment". However, the testimonies of the Royal Anglians' Medical Officer and the civilian eyewitnesses all agree fully on the point that Donaghey was not carrying nail bombs prior to his death; and the evidence clearly shows that the RUC and Army had the opportunity to plant them. Evidence was therefore offered as to where the bombs might have come from and who might have placed them there. The motive for planting nail bombs on Donaghey is clear since even Lord Widgery found that the shooting was without justification. Lord Widgery's attempt to besmirch Gerard Donaghey emerges as transparent as it was tawdry".

19.19.2.2.3 The British Prime Minister's statement and the Irish Government's assessment have both been reinforced by the substantial body of further material which has been made available to this Inquiry since both were made.

19.19.2.3 Personal Background

19.19.2.3.1 Gerard's father worked in the post office in Derry and his mother had worked in the shirt factory until they married. These were his adoptive parents. There were three children of whom Gerard was the youngest. His sister Mary was the eldest, and he had an older brother Patrick, who is now a priest and who is currently in Atlanta, Georgia.

19.19.2.3.2 Gerard went to St Eugene's school in Francis Street and then to Rosemount Boys Primary School. On leaving Rosemount Boys he went to St Joseph's Secondary School, Strand Road Technical College and Maydown Training Centre. When he was aged sixteen he took up his first and only job at Carlin's Brewery in the Waterside.

19.19.2.3.3 When Mary was about 18 and Gerard 10 their father had an accident at work and died three days later. Four weeks later their mother died as well. At this time his brother Patrick, who was studying for the priesthood in Spain, returned but eventually had to go back to college.

19.19.2.3.4 That just left Gerard and his big sister Mary who effectively took over the role as mother and as she says in her statement to the Tribunal at AD86.1 paragraph 2 "since then, I had brought Gerard up more or less as my own son". They continued to live in the family home in Wellington Street and when that was knocked down in the redevelopment of the Bogside they were given a flat in [redacted] They were moved there in 1969.

19.19.2.3.5 Mary describes him as having a brilliant sense of humour and being a very kind person who was always very kind to her. His cousin, Margaret Mary McNulty, describes him in her statement to the Tribunal as a "gentle and mild person".

19.19.2.3.6 Gerard continued to live with his big sister after she married in 1970. In fact he was the best man at her wedding and when her son Denis was born in 1971 he babysat and looked after him.

19.19.2.3.7 Mary says in Eamon McCann's book "Bloody Sunday – What Really Happened" OS1.226:

"He hung around with a lot of fellows his own age from the area; a lot of them I never really got to know. There was trouble all over this area building up every day at that time and he would have been out in it. If you were his age and went out, you were in it. In 1971, when he was 16, he was given six months for throwing stones at policemen. He was running around dodging that for a time but then he came in one day and told Patrick and me that he thought he'd better give himself up. Patrick went with him to the RUC and they took him away".

Six months imprisonment was then the mandatory penalty for any offence of riotous or disorderly behaviour.

19.19.2.3.8 Whilst in prison he wrote regularly to his sister and she has kept these letters. In one of them OS1.219 he says:

"Tell Eddie McCallion if you see him to go down to the Barracks and hand himself in. I am very sorry for all the trouble I caused you but it won't happen again I can assure you".

19.19.2.3.9 In another letter dated 2 December 1971 OS1.221 he said:

"Well how's young Denis keeping? Does he still keep you awake at night or is he quieter now? I'm sorry I can't be there for the anniversary but I should be there for Christmas. I was wondering could you get me a pair of wranglers and a wrangler jacket which is a jean coat with the money in the Credit Union and get yourself a present and a few drinks on me."

19.19.2.3.10 He finished off that letter OS1.222 by saying:

"Well this is all for now - PS Don't forget about the jeans - coat size 34, trousers 29 make sure that -? they are wranglers".

19.19.2.3.11 He was released from prison on Christmas Eve 1971. Five weeks later he was dead - wearing the denim jeans and jacket that he had asked his sister Mary to buy for him. He was only 17 at the time of his death. He never did see his 18th birthday which would have been a couple of weeks later on 20 February. (DOB: 20 February 1954).

19.19.2.3.12 Donncha MacFicheallaigh, who was a personal friend of Gerard Donaghey, stated in cross-examination Day 409/146/23 to Day 409/147/1 that after Gerard Donaghey had been released from prison "he had more interest in reconnecting with some of his friends trying to pick up on a relationship that he had with a young Protestant girl"[21].

19.19.2.3.13 Mary also says in Eamonn McCann's book OS1.22

"Twenty years on I still feel very angry. I have bitterness towards the Paras. I pray every night that the truth will come out. I will never be satisfied until it does. I miss Gerard very much. I would love to have him here today".

[21] In view of the fact that Gerard Donaghey gave himself up to the police, was writing to his sister from the prison indicating that he was sorry for the trouble that he had caused and that it wouldn't happen again and the fact that on release his focus was on re-establishing his relationship with his protestant girlfriend – these considerations, which were never challenged, would make it unlikely that he would have involved himself with nail bombs - he would have had neither the motive nor the inclination to have done so.

19.19.2.3.14 In an article entitled "He was a son as well as a brother"OS1.225 Mary Doherty says:

"I've only the one brother now, I have no sisters. There was just the three of us. Mammy and Daddy had died and I reared him from when he was 10. So he was a son as well as a brother. Gerard was a very good young fellow, there was never much bother with him really. He was football mad.

The doctor said if they could get him to hospital there would be a chance of him living. So Raymond Rogan and John Young put him into the back seat of the car. But they were stopped by the army and arrested.

I always think about what was going through his mind, him dying on his own. They left him lying alone in the car until he drew his last breath. It makes be very angry. To think that he died in an army post when they knew that they could have saved his life. That's when they planted the nail bombs on him.

He couldn't have got them into the rousers that he was wearing and the denim jacket was far too tight. Dr Kevin Swords, who saw him before he left for the hospital, didn't see the nail bombs.

I was on the march and came home. I was sitting knitting away, and happened to look out the window when I saw everybody running and heard bangs. You would have hardly seen the peoples' feet hitting the ground, they were running that hard.

So when I saw all Gerard's pals coming back I said there's definitely something up. Then Father Rooney came and told me he was dead. A young fellow came to the door and he says, 'Mary, your Gerard was shot dead today'. He just came straight out with it. If I had got hold of him, really I would have thrown him over the railings.

The army eventually released his body to the hospital around 10 o'clock that night. My husband went to the morgue. 'They had no call even to lift the sheet', he says 'I knew him by the boots that he had on him'.

After Gerard's death I started to go blind for spells. This lasted for five years. The doctor told me that it was delayed shock.

Sometimes I would be setting the table I would go to call him and then realise ... One night I got this rare feeling there was somebody in the room with me. When I woke up, I could see him as plain as anything. Ooh God, I loved him so much. Well, he never really goes away. Perhaps it's because he was the youngest, too.

I find that it doesn't get any easier. I pray every night that their names be cleared. I wake up thinking about it.

Can they not come out and admit that they were wrong? I don't think it would hurt them. I know it may be in the past but until justice has been done I cannot forgive anybody".[22]

19.19.2.4 Movements on the Day

19.19.2.4.1 In his sister Mary's statement AD86.1 paragraph 8 she describes making lunch earlier than usual so that the whole family could take part in the civil rights march that afternoon.

19.19.2.4.2 Gerard left the house between 1.00pm and 1.30pm having indicated that he would be back home at about 6.00pm AD86.1 paragraphs 8

to 9. He left the house to meet his friends, Dennis McFeely, Eddie "Nark" McCallion and Jim Begley (now deceased). She describes the clothing that he was wearing which included tight wrangler jeans and a wrangler jean jacket.[23]

19.19.2.4.3 She says that the jeans were always so tight, so much so that, inter alia, he could barely get any small change into his pockets. At the time Gerard left the house Mary was upstairs getting baby Dennis ready to go out on the march.[24]

19.19.2.4.4 In his statement Conal McFeely stated that on the morning of the march Gerard Donaghey had called to his house in Leenan Gardens to see his younger brother Dennis. Gerard wanted to know whether they would be going on the march. AM 216.6 paragraph 1. Conal went to the start of the march with his younger brother Dennis and a number of friends including Frankie McCarron, Gerard Donaghey and Jim Begly..." AM 216.6 paragraph 2.

19.19.2.4.5 In her statement Margaret Mary McNulty AM 378.1 states that she met her cousin, Gerard Donaghey at place where the march was due to set off from AM378.1 paragraph 4 to 5. He came over to see her. She observed that he was wearing, inter alia, denim jacket and "skin tight drainpipe jeans". His jeans were so tight that he couldn't even get his cigarettes into his pockets.

19.19.2.4.6 In Donncha MacFicheallaigh's statement AM7.7 paragraph 4 he recalls being with Gerard Donaghey and others and that during the course of the march he moved with different people at different times but most of the time he was with his brother and Gerry Donaghey. He states that Gerry and he were separated somewhere

[23] The evidence about his clothing is absolutely clear and is corroborated by numerous other witnesses. This demonstrates beyond peradventure that Paddy Ward was lying when he claimed that Gerard Donaghey was wearing a Parka

[24] In view of the fact that Gerard's family, including his baby nephew and his sister, were, to his knowledge, going on the march it is rather unlikely that he would engage in any activity that would endanger them.

on William Street between the junction of Rossville Street and the junction of Chamberlain Street AM7.7 paragraph 2 19.19.2.4.7 He doesn't encounter him again until he describes his attention being drawn to the sight of Gerry Donaghey lying in Abbey Park.

19.19.2.4.8 In his statement Ciarán McLaughlin confirmed that Gerard Donaghey was with him, as well as Dennis McFeely and Patrick "Pudger" O'Hagan..." AM12.1 paragraph 6

19.19.2.4.9 At AM12.1 paragraph 17 he refers to the stewards around the junction of William Street, Rossville Street and Little James Street who were ushering people to move south to Free Derry Corner and that he was still with Gerard Donaghey and some others at this time. He states that they did not want to get involved in any rioting and so would go and hear the speeches at Free Derry Corner.

19.19.2.4.10 He then describes, inter alia, walking with Gerry Donaghey south along the rear of Kells Walk and making their way into Glenfada Park North via the north eastern entrance. Whilst there Gerard and he stopped by some wooden fencing and they went into the garden and hid behind the fencing at about position G (Grid Ref. J13) marked on the map attached to his statement AM12.10. At AM12.5 paragraph 29 he states that he decided to make a run for it to the south west corner of Glenfada Park North through the entrance to Abbey Park. He doesn't think Gerard came with him and it is at this point that he thinks he lost him. At AM12.6 paragraph 37 he states that Gerard had definitely been with him at position G but at the time he had made his crossing to the SW exit to Abbey Park he does not think that Gerard Donaghey had joined him. He states that he thinks that Gerard Donaghey ran to the north-west corner of Glenfada Park North.

19.19.2.4.11 He later found out that Gerard Donaghey had been shot dead not far from Mrs Carr's house AM12.8 paragraph 57

19.19.2.5 Civilian Evidence – Planting of Nail Bombs

"...there were definitely no bombs in any of Gerard Donaghey's pockets at any time when he was with me or in my house."

AR24.5 paragraph 18

Raymond Rogan

19.19.2.5.1 Raymond Rogan, who volunteered to take Gerard Donaghey in his car, was by any standard a pillar of the local community. He was the Chairman of the Tenants Association and also liaison person between the local people, the Army and the RUC. Sergeant McTaggart at JM41.2 paragraph 14 stated that Raymond Rogan was "straightforward and honest" and that he "had no reason to doubt anything they were telling me".

19.19.2.5.2 Raymond Rogan assisted in carrying Gerard Donaghey's legs from the front door. He also describes his close fitting denims and the wound to his side. He describes Dr Swords examining him. He also says that Dr Swords was the first person to search him. Mr Rogan's wife also searched him. Raymond Rogan patted his trousers but Dr Swords and Mrs Rogan actually put their hands into his pockets. They may have found a religious medal. This witness states that Gerard Donaghey was "definitely alive" at that time and that now and then you would hear him groan. Gerard Donaghey was taken out of the house and put into the back seat of Raymond Rogan's car with Leo Young - AR24.3 paragraph 9.

19.19.2.5.3 At AR24.5 paragraph 18 he says:

"... Lord Widgery failed to appreciate that no-one in their right mind would deliberately take a person with bombs into their house with their children there. I had told the truth and the truth was obvious. If Gerard Donaghey had bombs on him, I would not have taken him in. If I had at any stage become aware of the nail bombs when he was in the house, I would have got him taken out. Its' one thing being helpful trying to save someone's life, it is another thing to put other people's lives at risk, especially family. No way would I have put him into a car ant taken him to hospital if I had known that the bombs were there. The point is that there were definitely no bombs in any of Gerard Donaghey's pockets at any time when he was with me or in my house. I have never seen a nail bomb but would have recognised one if I did see one. I have seen what they do and wouldn't have had anything to do with them".

19.19.2.5.4 At AR24.3 paragraph 19 he refers to the second of the three photographs attached to his statement which is a photograph of the back seat of his car with Gerard Donaghey lying on it. He says that he never saw Gerard Donaghey in the position shown in this photograph when he was driving the car. He also states that it is possible that the doctor opened his trousers when he was examining Gerard Donaghey but Mr Rogan does not remember this being done. He then states that he "simply could not have missed seeing any bombs if they had been there at the time" and would have spotted them either when carrying Gerard Donaghey's body into the house, when he was in the house or when he "patted his pockets".

19.19.2.5.5 In his oral evidence he was questioned by Christopher Clarke QC about his account regarding the searching of Gerard Donaghey by Dr Swords, Mrs Rogan and by himself in that he "patted" Gerard Donaghey's trousers front and back. Day 184/18/22 to Day 184/19/7

19.19.2.5.6 He did not remember the sequence in which the pockets were searched but he stated "certainly all the pockets were searched that were obvious to me". He stated that they could not find any form of identification. Day 184/19/14 to Day 184/19/19

19.19.2.5.7 He was then shown P703 which is a photograph of Gerard Donaghey that was taken later in the day at the car-park by the side of the Foyle which shows in Gerard Donaghey's right hand pocket an object with what is said to be a fuse sticking out of it. He was asked whether it was possible in the confusion of the moment if he could have missed something of that kind to which he replied "I do not think it is possible that I could have failed to see that, if it had been there". Day 184/20/1 to Day 184/20/8

19.19.2.5.8 He was then asked whether, if he had found an object like that in any one of the four pockets, what would he have done to which he replied "Well, in the first instance I – when the young Donaghey was outside, I could not have failed to observe those in his pockets. Consequently I would not have allowed him to be brought into my house" Day 184/20/12 to Day 184/20/18

19.19.2.5.9 In cross-examination by Sir Allan Greene the witness stated "I am convinced – and I have very clear memories of the body, or the young Donaghey being searched for identification" Day 184/51/25 to Day 184/52/2 – see also Day 184/55/20 to Day 184/55/25

19.19.2.5.10 Mr Rogan stated that his recollection was that Gerard Donaghey was in his house for between approximately 5 and 10 minutes before Gerard Donaghey was taken away in his car. Day 184/22/1 to Day 184/22/5 None of those who were present in the house saw any nail bombs.

19.19.2.5.11 Mr Rogan, dealing with events at Barrier 20 and having been referred to the relevant portion of his statement was asked:

Q. And you describe facing the wall and when you looked around you saw that your car had gone; is that right?

A. Eventually, yes.

Day 184/25/3 to Day 184/25/5

19.19.2.5.12 Mr Rogan had been detained at this location for an appreciable time anywhere between 25 minutes to approximately 1 hour Day 184/25/7 to Day 184/25/8 and Day 184/38/20 to Day 184/38/22

19.19.2.5.13 It was only after the car and body had passed into the custody of the security forces that the nail bombs were subsequently discovered.

Dr Kevin Swords

"I can say with total conviction that he did not have these objects in his pockets when I examined him"

AS42.3 paragraph 20

19.19.2.5.14 This witness (now deceased) describes seeing two bodies on the ground about six feet from each other in Abbey Park. He describes Gerard Donaghey's denim clothing and that he noticed nothing in his denim jacket pockets. He bent down to look at Gerard Donaghey and opened his clothing to look at him. The wound was then obvious. Though "deeply unsconscious" Gerard Donaghey was alive. He informed people present and several men came forward to help him into Mr Rogan's house. Inside Mr Rogan's house he identified himself as a doctor and examined Gerard Donaghey on the floor. He says that he did not search his pockets as he was not looking for any identification. He was only interested in his wound. He doesn't remember touching his clothes in detail or if he undid his trousers AS42.2 paragraph 11 to AS42.paragraph 18

19.19.2.5.15 When shown photograph P6/703 in respect of the nail bomb he said "I could not have failed to notice it" WT6.27G and that there was no such object there when he examined Gerard Donaghey WT6.28A.

19.19.2.5.16 Further, at Widgery he said that he pulled up his shirt, after, someone had looked in his pockets for identification. He could not have failed to notice a quantity of nails and explosives in those pockets and he himself helped to carry Gerard Donaghey out to the car WT6.28A to WT6.29C. He went over his whole body WT6.30C and frisked his whole body WT6.32A and WT6.33A.

19.19.2.5.17 In his statement dated 28 February 1972 he stated:

"4. In the course of my examination I saw the clothing Donaghy was wearing. I had a good look at him the house. When I examined him I felt over his whole body to check for other gross injuries. If he had any bulky object in his pockets I could not have missed it. I am sure there were none. I have seen the photographs EP5, 25, 26 and 27. I am sure that the bombs appearing in photographs 26 and 27 were not there when I examined him.

5. In the room there was a fire burning and we were smoking. If there had been bombs in Donaghy's pocket I would have wanted them removed because I would have thought them dangerous. I am certain they would have been removed before he was put in the car. People went through his pockets for identification".
AS42.9 paragraphs 4 to 5

19.19.2.5.18 At AS42.3 paragraph 20 he stated as follows:

"Attached as Attachment 3 to this statement is a copy photograph of Gerard Donaghey's body P6/703. This shows very obvious bulges in his pockets and I think this is the first thing that would strike you when looking at him. I can say with total conviction that he did not have these objects in his pockets when I examined him. I have not the slightest idea what a nail bomb looks like as I have never seen one before. I think the people in Raymond Rogan's house were smoking and I am sure they would not have done so if there had been any nail bombs on the body".

FS1.2547

Leo Young

"...it is an impossibility..."

AY1.6 paragraph 28

19.19.2.5.19 In his statement AY1.3 paragraph 12 he describes his movements towards Abbey Park, hearing a crack and the bang of a bullet hitting the ground behind him and feeling the "whack" of the bullet as it hit the ground. The bullet missed him and he carried on running as he was committed to getting to the man who was on the ground. This round was discharged by a soldier as he ran past the entrance to the alleyway between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South.

19.19.2.5.20 Eiblin Lafferty had been running behind him. He describes Gerard Donaghey's clothing. He tried to move Gerard Donaghey by the shoulder but he was too heavy to move. Gerard Donaghey was alive AY1.3 paragraph 13. He saw Raymond Rogan gesturing to bring the boy to his house and with the help of some other men, carried him by his shoulders into 10 Abbey Park AY1.3 paragraph 14. There were 6 or 7 people in the house huddled around Gerard Donaghey. A tall man in a herringbone jacket asked who was the boy and Young checked the two flap pockets of his denim jacket for identification but there was nothing there. The tall man who he knows to Kevin Swords took control of the situation and began examining Gerard Donaghey and told the people present to get Gerard Donaghey to hospital AY1.3 paragraph 15. Leo Young assisted in carrying Gerard Donaghey through the kitchen of the house and bringing him out to Raymond Rogan's car at the rear of the houses in Abbey Park. He got into the back seat with him behind the driver's seat AY1.3 paragraph 16.

19.19.2.5.21 At AY1.6 paragraph 28 Leo Young states:

"It has been said that four nail bombs were found on the body of Gerard Donaghey, two in his jeans pockets and two in the bottom pockets of his denim jacket. I simply cannot believe that - it is an impossibility. There is attached to this statement two photographs showing Gerard Donaghey's body in Raymond Rogan's car marked 2 and 3. I only checked the top pockets of Gerard Donaghey's denim jacket. However if there had been nail bombs in his pockets as shown in photograph 3, I would have seen them. I saw his body on the ground where he fell, I helped to carry him to the house, I saw his body lying on the floor in the house, I helped to carry him from the house to the car and I sat in the car with him for perhaps ten minutes. On most of these occasions I was at his head, looking down at his body. There is no way that I could have missed the nail bombs shown in photograph 2. To be honest, if I had seen the nail bombs I doubt whether I would have carried Gerard Donaghey into the house. If I had thought he was carrying bombs, is it really likely that I would have been there in the back seat of the car with him? Everyone would have cleared off – he would have been left at the back of the house or something. If he had been carrying bombs why didn't the doctor see them? Why didn't Raymond Rogan see them? I knew that he had been shot but I had no idea why. When I saw the photograph marked 2, I simply couldn't believe it. Something that has always bothered me is that the RUC photographer only took a photo of one nail bomb on Donaghey's person – why didn't he take photos of the other nail bombs on his person?

19.19.2.5.22 Mr Young gave evidence on Day 388/20/8 to Day 388/67/21 and confirmed his previous accounts.

19.19.2.5.23 There is evidence from numerous other civilian witnesses such as Gerald McCauley AM95.3 paragraph 17, Ciaran McLaughlin AM12.8, AM12.9 paragraph 58, Denis McFeely AM7.12 paragraph 25, Ursula Clifford AC68.7 paragraph 34 and John Stevenson AS33.2 paragraph 13 all of whom were in close contact with or proximity to Donaghey and all of whom confirm that there were no nail bombs.

Gerald McCauley

19.19.2.5.24 This witness assisted in carrying Gerard Donaghey into and out of Raymond Rogan's house. He correctly recollects the tight blue jeans and jacket that Gerard Donaghey was wearing and said that if Gerard Donaghey had anything in his pockets he would have noticed. "If there had been anything in the boy's pockets I would have seen it. They were wee tight pants. There is definitely no way that the nail bombs shown in the photograph attached as Attachment 3 were there (EP 5/28 and EP5/27)" AM95.3 paragraph 17.

19.19.2.5.25 In his oral evidence he was asked by Sir Allan Green whether it was possible that he could have overlooked objects that were in Gerard Donaghey's pocket to which he said no Day 173/130/15 to Day 173/130/22.

Ciaran McLaughlin

19.19.2.5.26 This witness states that Gerard Donaghey's whole demeanor and body language that day was not of someone who was carrying anything or hiding anything. He was not involved in any rioting. "...he wore a tight fitting denim jacket and tight jeans that day, there was nothing in his pockets, no bulges, I would have seen it if he had been carrying bombs. I was with Gerard Donaghey the whole time until we got split up at position G AM12.8, AM12.9 paragraph 58.

19.19.2.5.27 He confirmed his account during his oral evidence on Day 415.

Donncha MacFicheallaigh

19.19.2.5.28 This witness states: "If he had been carrying nail bombs I am sure I would have seen them. Also he would not have been able to run properly. What is more, had I noticed nailbombs in Gerry's pockets when I found him lying on the floor near Abbey Park, I would have removed them myself" AM7.7 paragraph 25.

19.19.2.5.29 He confirmed his account during his oral evidence on Day 409.

Ursula Clifford

19.19.2.5.30 This witness, a theatre nurse at Altnagelvin Hospital, who attended Gerry McKinney in Abbey Park and who went into Raymond Rogan's house stated:

"(34)...I saw nothing bulky in his pockets. His jeans were so tight that I do not know how I could have failed to notice any bulky items in his pockets. They were that tight.
(35) (re the photographs)...As I have said, although I was concentrating on the boy's abdomen at the time, I don't see how I could have missed seeing anything in his pockets."
AC68.7 paragraphs 34 to 35

19.19.2.5.31 In cross-examination by Sir Allan Green the following exchange took place:

Q. You were asked this afternoon by my learned friend who questioned you first: could you have missed a bulky object and your answer, perhaps very fairly "I rather doubt it". Is this the position: that you think it very unlikely there were bulky objects in his pockets, but there is a possibility that there were; would that be fair?
A. I would say the number of people who were there in that room and the doctor and me and other people that had obviously looked at him before, that I would be really quite shocked to say that those things were in his pocket and not removed.
Q. But it remains a possibility?
A. Well, I do not think so.

Day 165/136/1 to Day 165/136/14

John Stevenson

19.19.2.5.32 This witness also refers to Gerard Donaghey's jeans being tight-fitting and states:

"(13) Gerard Donaghey was wearing a short blue denim coat and denim jeans. I specifically remember that the jeans were tight fitting and I remember noticing at the time how neat and tidy they looked, more like suit trousers. His trousers and belt were done up and his trousers were not creased. The jacket was loose.

"(14)...I am absolutely certain that there was nothing at all in Gerard Donaghey's jean pockets. The jeans were so tight, I have no doubt that we would have seen anything that had been there. The doctor did not find any identification on him".

AS33.2 paragraphs 13 to 14

(24) It is common sense that, if Gerard Donaghey had bombs in his pockets, Rogan would not have taken him in his car. He would not put a man with bombs in his pockets into his car."

AS33.3 paragraph 24

19.19.2.5.33 In his evidence to Widgery he said:

"I am sure that even if he had a bar of chocolate or anything similar I would have noticed that. They were that tight you could not have missed noticing anything at all in his pocket."

WT6.9E

19.19.2.6 Military Evidence – Planting of Nail Bombs

Soldier 135

"...I think it more likely that they were not there."

B1835.008 paragraph 19

19.19.2.6.1 Soldier 135 (Rifle Man in 7 Platoon B Company Royal Anglians) was shown photos of Gerard Donaghey when interviewed by Eversheds – he says at B1835.008 paragraph 19

"I think that if he had anything of any size sticking out of the pocket I would probably have noticed it, but I cannot be sure...I think it more likely that they were not there."

19.19.2.6.2 This is consistent with his RMP statement B1832 to B1834 and his Treasury Solicitors statement B1835.001 to B1835.002 where he does not refer in either to having noticed anything sticking out of his pocket.

19.19.2.6.3 He also reiterated in his evidence that "they would have been mad to have had them in the car and would have dumped them before coming near the road block" B1835.008 paragraph 19

19.19.2.6.4 At B1835.008 paragraph 18 he says that he definitely pulled the blanket off Gerard Donaghey and in his oral evidence at Day 379/175/20 to Day 379/176/6 he pulled the blanket off and saw the wound.

19.19.2.6.5 He said that when he pulled the blanket back he had clear recollection of seeing his "gut" Day 379/177/1

19.19.2.6.6 He agreed that this account was similar to that of Leo Young's account in his statement dated 23 February 1972 AY1.9 where Mr

Young referred to the boy being "unconscious and his intestines seemed to be protruding out of his stomach" Day 379/177/15 to Day 379/178/4

19.19.2.6.7 After he had pulled the blanket right off him he went to the front of the car and hung on to the wing mirror while it was drifting backwards. He said that he had pulled the blanket right off him. Day 379/179/16 to Day 379/179/21

19.19.2.6.8 When questioned by Mr Ritchie he said that he let the blanket drop inside the car and that as far as he was concerned the body had been left with nothing covering it Day 379/180/6 to Day 370/180/11

Corporal 150

19.19.2.6.9 Corporal 150 gave evidence about what happened at Barrier 20. His account demonstrates that the police accounts of what transpired at Barrier 20 were unreliable and untruthful. For example, 150 agreed that from the description of the incident in his RMP Statement and indeed from his own recollection that he did not see any cars breaking through or attempting to break through the army barriers Day 380/52/21to Day 380/53/1

19.19.2.6.10 Corporal 150 was asked to look at the account by Constable Scott at JS2.1. The transcript at Day 380/52/21 to Day 380/53/15 records the following:

Q. When you were there, from your description of the incident in your RMP statement and, indeed, from your own recollection, you did not see any cars breaking through or attempting to break through the Army barriers?
A.No.
Q. I want you to look at what an RUC officer by the name of Scott, JS2.1, this is what he said:

"At about 4.15 pm I heard a number of shots apparently from an automatic weapon coming from the direction of the Bogside. At approximately 4.30 pm I saw two cars break through an Army barricade. These cars were subsequently stopped by the Army."
You saw and heard nothing of that; is that right?
A. At the barricade I was on, the two cars were stopped before they got to the barricade.
Q. You agree with me, therefore, you did not see or hear any of the activity that that police officer refers to there?
A. No.

19.19.2.6.11 By the time Corporal 150 came over to the car that Soldier 135 was already out of the car (after having pulled back the blanket) and was actually holding on to the wing mirror at that stage.

19.19.2.6.12 It is clear from his contemporary statements and his evidence to the Inquiry that at any time at which he was involved with the car he did not see any blanket covering the body, that he was in a position to observe a gunshot wound and to such an extent that we was able to describe the location of the wound ie in the lower abdomen Day 380/54/11 to Day 380/56/9

19.19.2.6.13 Corporal 150 was directed by Lt 145 to take the dead or dying boy to Company Headquarters. When asked whether Lt 145 had explained to him why he was being directed to take the boy to Company Headquarters he told the Inquiry that he was given no explanation at the time. Day 380/56/25 to Day 380/57/14

19.19.2.6.14 Corporal 150 told the Inquiry that once he got to Company Headquarters someone spoke to him there and directed him to take the car containing Gerard Donaghey to the bridge location but that he doesn't now remember who had given him that instruction.

19.19.2.6.15 Corporal 150 agreed that if Gerard Donaghey was not already dead at this stage then he was very, very seriously wounded and that he obviously needed intensive care. He agreed that those facilities were certainly not going to be available at Co HQ in Henrietta Street and that they were certainly not going to be available at the bridge location either. He was then asked:

Q. "Again it was not your decision but you cannot assist us as to why those decisions were taken?
A. No I cannot".
Day 380/57/9 to Day 380/58/1

19.19.2.6.16 The witness agreed that he had made a detailed statement to the Inquiry and he did not put anything in his statement that he did not believe to be true.

19.19.2.6.17 The following exchange then appears:

Q. What you say there is:
"I am sure if there had been a nail bomb or bombs in the man's pockets, I would have seen them. Had I seen them, I would have told my officer and the thing would have unfolded from there. I had the opportunity to see if there was a nail bomb when I picked up the man's right arm to feel his pulse."
"Had he had anything in his jacket or trouser pockets, I think I would have seen them."
If you go to paragraph 21, about the middle of paragraph 21, beginning the sentence:
"I have no idea how the nail bombs got there, but they were certainly not there when I saw the body."
That is still the case, is it not?
A. That is still the case.

Q. Could I then also ask you to look at paragraph 29 of your statement:
"I did not see any bombs on the body."
Then you say, without any equivocation whatsoever,
"They were not there"; is that right?
A. That is right.
Q. You are quite sure that you definitely did not see what is shown in the photographs which are attached to your statement?
A. I am certain.
Day 380/59/23 to Day 380/60/22

19.19.2.6.18 When Corporal 150 arrived at the RAP the RMO (Captain 138) looked at the body - he pronounced Gerard Donaghey dead and told Corporal 150 to move the car to one side B1900.

19.19.2.6.19 In Corporal 150's evidence to Widgery he stated that within a couple of minutes after the arrival of the car at the RAP he felt Gerard Donaghey's pulse and there was none. B1915, B1916 He informed the MO about this.

19.19.2.6.20 He looked at the body from the driver's door. He saw no bomb or anything remarkable. After this the MO pronounced him dead and on his instruction he moved the car to one side.

19.19.2.6.21 In Corporal 150's BSI statement at B1918.003 paragraph 20 he states:

"I do not remember anyone at the time saying that the man in the back of my car had nail bombs in his pockets. There was certainly nothing in the back that was visible to me. I would not have driven the car if the man had nail bombs in his pockets in case the bomb was rigged or something. I am sure if there had been a nail bomb or bombs in the man's pockets I would have seen them. Had I seen them I would have told my officer and the thing would have unfolded from there. I had the opportunity to see if there was a nail bomb when I picked up the man's right arm to feel his pulse. I picked it up by leaning over the man's head and shoulder. Had he anything in his jacket or trouser pockets I think I would have seen them. I do not think there was anything that looked like a nail bomb. There was nothing in there, either in the pockets of his denim jacket, that looked like the white object in that photograph 2."

19.19.2.6.22 At B1918.004 paragraph 21 he states:

"...(W)hen I gave evidence at the Widgery Tribunal I was shown the photograph attached to this statement P6/703 of the body with the nail bombs in the pockets. I was amazed when I saw it."[25]

19.19.2.6.23 Here is another person who had close contact with Gerard Donaghey. We know from other evidence, including the photographs, about the prominence of the nail bomb in the right pocket. There is no way that this could have been missed. And if he had seen it he would not have forgotten.

19.19.2.6.24 We refer also to B1918.005 paragraph 29 where he states:

"I did not see any bombs on the body. They were not there."

19.19.2.6.25 This witness also effectively repudiated the evidence which had been given by Sergeant Carson before Lord Widgery. This is dealt with in a later section at 19.19.2.10.

Captain 138

"It would have been extraordinary if I had not seen nail bombs".
B1859.007 paragraph 36

19.19.2.6.26 Captain 138 agreed that he made a statement to the Treasury Solicitor in March 1972 in which he describes having carried out two examinations on the body of Gerard Donaghey. He agreed that he had indicated in the final paragraph of that statement that about 5 minutes after he had carried out his second examination he heard somebody indicate that a nail bomb had been found on the boy's body. He agreed that that statement was made 30 or so years ago and at a time when matters would have been considerably fresher in his mind and that he would not have stated anything in his Treasury Solicitor's statement which he did not believe to be true. Day 383/56/1 to Day 383/56/24

19.19.2.6.27 Having been reminded of the evidence he had given before Lord Widgery the witness agreed that in his Treasury Solicitor's statement and in his Widgery evicence that he was clear in his mind at the time that he did not learn about the nail bomb until some time after he had concluded his second examination. Day 383/58/15 to Day 383/59/15

19.19.2.6.28 He agreed that the two examinations that he described to Lord Widgery were performed from the passenger's door on the driver's side of the vehicle. Accordingly, from the nature of the examinations and from his location he would have been extremely well placed to observe the nail bomb sticking out of the pocket shown in the photograph – a proposition to which the witness did not dissent in cross-examination Day 383/60/20 to Day 383/61/1.

[25] P6/703 which shows the view that Corporal 150 would have had since the photograph was taken from the

19.19.2.6.29 He was also reminded of his statement at B1859.006 paragraph 36 where he stated "it would have been extraordinary if I had not seen nail bombs". The following exchange then takes place:

> May I take it that one of the reasons you say that -- because, as we can see from the photograph, if you had been carrying out these two examinations, you would have been -- it would have been extraordinary, in view of what we can see in the photograph, it would have been extraordinary if you had not seen that nail bomb; is that not so?
>
> Yes, I think it is possible, yes.
> Day 383/61/15 to Day 383/61/22

19.19.2.6.30 With reference to his first examination of Gerard Donaghey he stated at Widgery that he opened the off-side rear door; examined Donaghey's pulse (thinks the right wrist) and examined breathing, colour and pupil reactions to the extent that he was satisfied he was dead. He said he noticed nothing in his pockets B1852. When asked by Widgery would he have noticed a nail bomb or bombs in his pockets from the first examination he answered that he did not think that he would have B1853. However in respect of the second examination he stated that he believes that he would have noticed.

19.19.2.6.31 After the first examination of Gerard Donaghey, he carried out examinations of Friel and Campbell. He was away from Gerard Donaghey's body, according to his Widgery evidence, for 12 -15 minutes each examination of Friel and Campbell having taken between six to ten minutes B1857D

19.19.2.6.32 He returned to Gerard Donaghey to try to "find out why the man had died" – therefore to conduct a second – more thorough examination. He thinks that the door at the driver's side was still open – but he can't remember whether the car had been moved or not – he doesn't think it was.

"Although I cannot be certain I think I had been away from the white Cortina for less than 10 minutes."
B1859.003 paragraph 16

19.19.2.6.33 In his Widgery evidence he says that he was away from the body for 12 to 15 minutes (each examination of Friel and Campbell having taken roughly 6 minutes) B1857D.

19.19.2.6.34 Captain 138 described his second examination to Mr Gibbens at Widgery as follows. (138 had one foot inside the car and one foot outside) B1853C

"I examined his head and his neck. I then pulled up his shirt and vest and examined his abdomen and on through to the chest. I then unzipped his trousers and looked at the pelvis region to see if I could determine the cause of death....and having felt round everything here and on his right side I then unzipped his trousers to look at the groin and pelvis region...I unzipped his trousers and I put the zip up again, but I may not have put it up fully. " B1853B-D

"I did not see any wound in the left side, because I did not move the body or the back. All I could see was the front and his right hand side" B1854A

19.19.2.6.35 This last piece of evidence is particularly significant since practically all the witnesses who saw the cream coloured and arguably most noticeable nail bomb saw it in Donaghey's right trouser pocket) P6/703

19.19.2.6.36 Lord Saville made an important interjection during the course of Mr Clarke's opening in respect of ATO 127's oral evidence to WT.9.55 C Day 036/124 to Day 036/126 in which 127 said that he saw the body lying on his back with the wound being highly visible. However as we have just seen the MO (138) was unable to see the wound or even any blood which meant that the body must have been turned to its left. As Lord Saville observed: "when the bomb disposal expert turns up his evidence is that the body is lying on its back and the wound or the blood therefore would be visible. If those two pieces of evidence are correct, (stated Lord Saville) someone has moved the body".

19.19.2.6.37 At B1859.006 paragraph 36 he states:

"...on the second examination I would have noticed something bulky sticking out of the trouser pocket had there been anything there, but I do not recall seeing anything there, but I do not recall seeing anything. I would have noticed something in his trousers, but I can be less certain regarding the jacket as that area was not the focus of my examination. I t, however would have been extraordinary if I had not seen nail bombs."

19.19.2.6.38 At B1848 paragraph 7, he states:

"About five minutes after I had finished the second examination I heard someone say that a nail bomb had been found either on the man's person or in the car, I cannot remember which. As a result there was a delay in the time before the body left for the Mortuary, because a bomb disposal officer was sent for".

19.19.2.6.39 Compare B1859.007 paragraph 37 of his Eversheds statement where he states:

"In paragraph 7 of Appendix C, I state that approximately '... five minutes after I had finished the second examination I heard someone say that a nail bomb had been found either on the man's person or in the car'. As I stated earlier, my memory now tells me that I think I stopped the second examination because someone told me that there was possibly a nail bomb on the man. I did not hear this five minutes later. I was not told that a nail bomb had been found; I was told that it was possible that the dead man had a nail bomb on his body". (He did not state this earlier))

138's Eversheds Statement - TIME LINE

19.19.2.6.40

1st Examination of Gerard Donaghey	5 to 7 minutes
Examinations of Friel and Campbell	6 to 10 minutes
2nd Examination of Donaghey	5 to 8 minutes
Total time of Examinations	16 to 25 minutes without finding a nail bomb

138's Evidence in 1972

19.19.2.6.41

1st Examination of Donaghey	No timing but 138 indicated in his evidence that it was a cursory examination which did not last very long
Examination of Friel and Campbell	12 minutes (6 for each)
2nd Examination of Donaghey	8 to 10 minutes
Total time of examinations	About 22 minutes

19.19.2.6.42 Mr Clarke QC commented in his opening with reference to the timing of Captain 138's Medical Examinations:

"The timing given in his evidence to Widgery is somewhat different, but it adds up to about 22 minutes, so it comes to much the same thing in the end. That is a 16 to 25 minute period over which no bomb is found, either by the medical officer or by somebody who tells the medical officer about it. It seems inconceivable that if somebody had found what might be a nail bomb on Gerard Donaghey and knew that someone else was about to examine the body, that they would have not have said so."

19.19.2.7 Police Evidence – Planting of Nail Bombs

"I was immediately aware that it might be alleged that the nail bombs had been planted ..."
Inspector Dickson – Day 212/71/12 to Day 212/71/15

Inspector Dickson

19.19.2.7.1 Inspector Dickson agreed that to get from Barrack Street to the Detention Centre is a short distance which one could probably travel by car within a minute or so Day 212/65/11 to Day 212/65/15

19.19.2.7.2 Inspector Dickson agreed that "the standard practice" was that if a police officer or a soldier had discovered nail bombs on a person's body that the first thing that they would be to isolate the body at the area and call the ATO Day 212/60/12 to Day 212/60/16.

19.19.2.7.3 Inspector Dickson agreed that a police officer, aware that a nail bomb had been discovered and in radio contact, would have raised the alarm immediately Day 212/61/13 to Day 212/61/19.

19.19.2.7.4 Sergeant Carson was in radio contact via pocket phone Day 212/61/20 to 24. Inspector Dickson was then shown the RUC log at W161 and his attention was directed to the entry in the log for 16.44 at which time it appeared that Sergeant Carson had made a radio communication. Dickson agreed that when Sgt Carson made this radio communication it was correct to say that he made no reference whatsoever to any nail bomb and made no request for any ATO. This is to be contrasted with the Widgery evidence of Sergeant Carson who claimed to have discovered the nail bomb within half a minute of the arrival of the car WT16.63D-E.

19.19.2.7.5 It appears that the ATO was not tasked until in or about 1650. See entry for that time on W49. Inspector Dickson agreed that the log entry would have been more or less contemporaneous with the discovery of any nail bomb Day 212/61/9 to Day 212/61/12.

19.19.2.7.6 Inspector Dickson also agreed that Mr Rogan and Mr Young were being interviewed by Detective Sergeant McTeggart and DC Neely after the discovery of nail bombs on the body of Gerard Donaghey.

19.19.2.7.7 It was put to the Inspector that if the police believed that these nail bombs had been on his body at the time he was taken into the Detention Centre it is inconceivable that experienced CID officers would not have investigated that with the two persons who travelled with Gerard Donaghey in the car. To this he said "I would expect that yes" Day 212/67/5 to Day 212/67/11

19.19.2.7.8 In fact we know, for example, from the evidence of Mr Rogan, which was put to Inspector Dickson in cross-examination, that he was not questioned about any nail bomb at the time when Detective Sergeant McTeggart was taking the statement from Mr Rogan Day 212/67/12 to Day 212/68/18

19.19.2.7.9 It was then suggested to Dickson that it must come as a very considerable surprise to him that notwithstanding the claim that these nail bombs were found at the time, these two individuals, the driver and the man who traveled with Gerard Donaghey were never ever questioned about it at all. In reply the Inspector said "I find that very strange" Day 212/68/19 to Day 212/69/2

19.19.2.7.10 Inspector Dickson agreed that there was almost an entire page of his original Eversheds statement that he wasn't happy with ie paras.15, 16, 17 and 18. He agreed that these were his words, that he had signed the statement and that unlike many civilians he would be more than familiar with the making and taking of statements. He had also read the statement over three or four times before he decided to take these paragraphs out Day 212/69/23 to Day 212/71/3

19.19.2.7.11 In the deleted para.16 of his original statement he had stated in respect of the nail bomb that he was "... immediately aware that it might be alleged that the nail bombs had been planted by the army and considered the possibility at the time" Day 212/71/12 to Day 212/71/15.

19.19.2.7.12 Although he sought to qualify this in his evidence it is apparent on either account that he was alert at an early stage to the possibility of it being alleged that the nail bombs had been planted Day 212/72/1 to Day 212/72/5.

19.19.2.7.13 He also told the Tribunal that he had never been involved in an incident prior to January 1972 where it had occurred to him as a possibility that it might be alleged against the police or the army that materials had been planted on someone Day 212/72/6 to Day 212/72/11.

19.19.2.7.14 Chief Superintendent Lagan stated at JL1.19 paragraph 114:

"I think I was first told about it on the evening of Bloody Sunday. During the conversation that I had about it someone told me within the RUC that there was a rumour that the bombs had been planted. I was also told that a doctor had examined Mr Donaghey and that he had not discovered the bomb, but that when Mr Donaghey arrived at an Army location the bombs were found on him."

19.19.2.7.15 These accounts demonstrate that at an early stage and prior to the obtaining of any evidence from civilian sources, that rumours were circulating within the RUC, even at the highest levels, that the nail bombs had been planted.

19.19.2.7.16 Inspector Dickson acknowledged that it would be possible to plant devices for example, by someone who had access to explosives Day 212/73/6 to Day 212/73/8. Victor Carson gave evidence before Lord Widgery that he was the person who discovered a nail bomb. Dickson agreed that Carson was an explosives officer who would have had access to explosive such as quarry explosives. Three of the four nail bombs recovered from Gerard Donaghey's body and were made of quarex which was uncommon Intsum 102 dated February 1972 at G108.654 paragraph 8.

19.19.2.7.17 Then the following exchange appears at Day 212/75/11 to Day 212/76/2

Q. What I want to know from you, is this: even on that account, what was it you had learnt from fellow officers that led you to suppose there might be an allegation that this device or devices could have been planted on the body of Gerry Donaghey?
A. The opinion was widely held and was being bandied in the media that the Army had opened fire without justification and that is what led me to believe that somewhere in there, that something like that could happen.

Q. Why?

A. Well, the military -- would it not be obvious that the military would try to protect themselves?

Q. By how?

A. By whatever means.

Q. By planting nail bombs?

A. Well, that thought arises in your mind.

19.19.2.7.18 He also agreed that the nail bombs could have been "put together", inter alia, by the army and that the nail bombs did not bear any relationship to his previous experience of nail bombs at the time. The following exchange appears Day 212/79/14 to Day 212/79/20:

Q. Which did not bear any relationship to your previous experience of nail bombs at the time?

A. Yes, this is the recollection I have.

Q. And that is what struck you?

A. Yes.

Q. Apparently at the time?

A. Yes.

19.19.2.7.19 Inspector Dickson was questioned about the differences between the accounts contained at JD3.1, JD3.2 (14 February 1972) and JD3.3, JD3.4 (March 1972).

19.19.2.7.20 It was suggested to the witness that by the time he had made his second statement it would have been obvious to those taking the statement from him that there was a problem in relation to the evidence that the medical officer had given and would give because by that stage it would have been known, inter alia, that the medical officer had examined the body of Gerard Donaghey and had made no mention of nail bombs. So instead of having, as in the first account, a nail bomb which was "obvious and protruding" – in his second statement he had a nail bomb that was not so obvious so much so that in order to be able to see it, it was now being maintained that he had to lean into the car to look at it and that when he leaned into the car all he could see was the bulge in the pocket.

19.19.2.7.21 He appeared to agree that these accounts were "hopelessly and irreconcilably in conflict" Day 212/92/19 to Day 212/93/8. When asked to explain how it could be that between February and March 1972 he could end up writing two accounts which are so at variance one with the other he said "I have no idea how I could make that error.

19.19.2.7.22 Inspector Dickson indicated that he was aware that the only police officer save photographers who were at the Detention Centre and who were called to give evidence was Sgt Victor Carson. He agreed that Carson's account and his were "completely at variance" and said that he did not know who made the decision to call Carson and not him and when asked whether he was surprised at the time that he hadn't been called he stated "I have always wondered why I was not called" Day 212/100/9 to Day 212/101/5

19.19.2.7.23 He agreed that any officer discovering a nail bomb would immediately take precautions for himself and others around and that it would be highly unlikely that the medical officer could have examined the body of Gerard Donaghey, gone away and come back and been allowed to examine the body again if, by that stage, a nail bomb had been discovered Day 212/102/11 to Day 212/102/17 and Day 212/103/1 to Day 212/103/13

19.19.2.7.24 He also told the Tribunal that he did not take any steps in relation to those officers who had been under him on the day in question to ascertain from them what their accounts were or anyone's account was as to the finding of the bomb or bombs Day 212/110/3 to Day 212/110/11

19.19.2.7.25 Having had the accounts put to him of McTeggart, Carson and Hamilton he agreed that not only can they not all be right but that it would be "incredible" if within 6 weeks of the day memories had so failed as to an officer believing that he or she had discovered a bomb when that was not the case Day 212/110/12 to Day 212/110/18.

19.19.2.7.26 He agreed that if one officer had put a hand in the pocket and discovered the bomb that it would be extraordinary for another officer to go into the car and put a hand into the same or another pocket and find another bomb. And that for a third officer to do it would be more extraordinary Day 212/110/25 to Day 212/111/8.

19.19.2.7.27 Inspector Dickson told the Tribunal that he did not discuss with any of the three officers named above the circumstances in which they came to find the bomb – at any time Day 212/111/9 to Day 212/111/14.

19.19.2.7.28 Inspector Dickson agreed that his report dated 14 February was the last report and that in none of his fellow officers' reports was there any reference to a blanket or anything of that kind over any part of the body but that there was a reference in his report of 14 February Day 212/111/15 to Day 212/112/3.

19.19.2.7.29 In stark contrast, in the statements made for the purposes of Widgery in March the three officers referred to above made reference to a blanket or a bed-cover. When asked whether he had spoken to any of these officers about a bedspread, rug, blanket or anything of that kind between February and March when the Widgery statements were taken he maintained that there was never any discussion whatsoever about anything like that at all Day 212/112/7 to Day 212/112/17

19.19.2.7.30 Notwithstanding his evidence that it was possible for a member of the security forces to plant a device if, for example, they had access to explosives and that Carson was one of those individuals who claimed to have discovered the nail bomb and who was an explosives officer with access to explosives he did not consider the possibility that nail bombs may have been planted by an officer or officers of the RUC Day 212/114/23 to Day 212/115/3. Sergeant Carson was "reticent" about signing his Eversheds statement and in fact never signed it JC6.11.1.

19.19.2.7.31 When asked by Christopher Clarke QC if he had any idea why the evidence of the police officers concerned is all so internally inconsistent he said "I wish I knew. I have not a clue why it should be like that" Day 212/118/2 to Day 212/118/6.

WPC Hamilton

19.19.2.7.32 WPC Hamilton, in her original account, at JH3.1 did not make any mention of a soldier having firstly indicated to her that there was something in the deceased's pocket. In that statement she had claimed that she had looked into the car and saw an object protruding from his right hip pocket. Before Counsel could complete his question she stated "Yes I can see where you are going with this. There are complete differences in the way I have made out both statements ..." It was then put to her that the two accounts are completely different, that in the first account she has an object which is obviously visible because it is protruding from the pocket and in the second account she had to lean in to the car and take the steps she had therein described in order to get a look at it. In answer to this suggestion she said "That is correct, I agree with what you say" Day 212/146/12 to Day 212/146/25

19.19.2.7.33 She was then asked whether if it happens that the shift (as Counsel described it) between the accounts is similar as between Dickson and herself that that was just a coincidence. She said "I would describe it as a coincidence" Day 212/147/20 to Day 212/147/23

19.19.2.7.34 She also stated that she was more than surprised when she discovered that more than one nail bomb had been found because "up until recently I thought there was only the one that I had encountered. I was not aware that there was more than one". When asked when she found out that there were others she said "I think it was when I was making the statement to the Inquiry team two years ago" Day 212/153/22 to Day 212/154/3

19.19.2.7.35 Sergeant Carson's account was put to her and she was asked "Of course that is what you did?" to which she replied "Yes. I do not know why, this seems to be a repeat of my actions, I cannot explain that" Day 212/164/11 to Day 212/164/13

19.19.2.7.36 When asked to assist the Tribunal as to how her account and Carson's account are put forward side by side for the same incident she said "I cannot explain it". She was asked whether or not she agreed that both Carson and her cannot have done what is set out in the statements and she said "It would seem very unlikely that we could have both done the same thing and one not having seen the other ..." She also said that she couldn't remember Carson's actions because she does not remember seeing him. Day 212/166/17 to Day 212/166/25

Constable Hogg

19.19.2.7.37 Constable Hogg in his original statement at JH9.1 states that Gerard Donaghey was looked at by WPC Hamilton who noticed that there was a nail bomb "hanging out of his pocket". When he was asked whether he had been told this by WPC Hamilton or whether he had seen it himself he stated "I saw a nail bomb in the gentleman's pocket. It was approximately an inch or so out of his pocket ..." Day 213/161/23 to Day 213/162/2 [Later in his testimony he said

"possibly 'hanging' is not the right expression" Day 213/164/3 to Day 213/164/4.

19.19.2.7.38 When questioned about the natural reading of what he had written in his contemporary account he said "I am saying that she [Hamilton] noticed the nail bomb and clearly at the same time I noticed it" Day 213/163/12 to Day 213/163/13

19.19.2.7.39 According to the evidence of Sergeant Carson before Widgery he claimed that he got to the car containing Gerard Donaghey within half a minute of its arrival in the Detention Centre and that it was not visible at all when he saw it. He further stated that he didn't notice that the pocket bulged until he put his hand into Gerard Donaghey's pocket. When it was suggested to Hogg that his contemporary account and Carson's evidence were, on the face of it, completely different Hogg said "I am happy enough with my account" Day 213/166/91.

19.19.2.7.40 Although the witness denied that in his original account he was recording something that he was told rather than something that he himself had seen he did accept that the first time that he personally claimed to have seen anything himself not only in respect of the nail bomb but also in respect of his claim to have heard shooting was when his statement on 17 July 2000 was made Day 213/167/1 to Day 213/167/11

19.19.2.7.41 This witness also claimed at JH9.5 paragraph 12 of his statement that after Hamilton had pulled the nail bomb far enough out of the pocket so that she was able to confirm that it was a nail bomb that she then pushed it back into the pocket. Even when it was pointed out that Hamilton had never claimed either at the time or in her evidence to have pushed it back into the pocket he insisted "Well I certainly remember it happening" Day 213/167/1 to Day 213/168/7

Sergeant Penney – Missing Photographs

19.19.2.7.42 Sergeant Penney was shown CW1.6 paragraph 37 of the statement of Warrant Officer Woods in which Woods had stated that the body was upright on the back seat of the car. Sergeant Penney stated that at no stage did he ever see the body in that position Day 219/105/19 to Day 219/105/21 and Day 219/106/7 to Day 219/106/14.

19.19.2.7.43 When asked whether apart from the photographs that he had directed Constable Simpson to take, was he aware of any other photographs being taken he stated that he wasn't aware of other photographs being taken at all. He did say that it was possible that they could have been taken because sometimes the army took their own photographs.

19.19.2.7.44 He was then referred to CW1.7 paragraph 42 in which WO Woods told the Tribunal that he took Polaroid photographs of the body. WO Woods said "I also took some photographs when the bombs were in the top pockets of his jacket. I do not think I took any photos of the bombs in the bottom pockets as there was nothing to see" Day 219/107/3 to Day 219/107/16

19.19.2.7.45 When asked whether he had ever seen any of the photographs that were taken by WO Woods he stated no Day 219/107/16.

19.19.2.7.46 It is to be noted that Captain 127 also refers to these photographs in his RMP statement at B1783. So far as we are aware no such photographs have been furnished to the Inquiry nor has any explanation been forthcoming for their absence.

19.19.2.7.47 At JP7.8 paragraph 29 he indicated that he had a very clear recollection that day of seeing four nail bombs and he also told the Tribunal that he had a recollection of having seen a photograph in which four nail bombs were visible on the body of the deceased Day

219/107/17 to Day 219/107/25 He believed that this was a black and white police photograph Day 219/108/1 to Day 219/108/11

19.19.2.7.48 This witness also told the Tribunal that there was a nail bomb "clearly visible" in the deceased's right trouser pocket, for example see Day 219/108/16 to Day 219/108/17

Detective Sergeant McTeggart

19.19.2.7.49 It was put to Detective Sergeant McTeggart that the security forces would have had an opportunity to plant bombs on Gerard Donaghey. He agreed that they "certainly would" Day 223/125/6 to Day 223/125/13.

19.19.2.7.50 It was also put to him that if you were planting bombs on somebody one of the things you would seek to do is to try and prevent the source or origins of the explosive material being disclosed. It was put to him that one of the precautions that the army or police would take in such a scenario to prevent discovery would be to try and disguise where the explosives actually come from to which he replied "You would think so". Day 223/126/5 to Day 223/126/14

19.19.2.7.51 It was pointed out to this witness that the package containing the explosives and the package containing the detonators did not find their way to the Forensic Science Laboratory. It was put to him that that would be "wholesale departure" from contemporary good practice to which he said "I would believe so, sir, because everything like that is of evidential value and should go to the Forensic Science Laboratory for examination but I did not see explosives, detonators" Day 223/129/1 to Day 223/191/12

Constable Montgomery

19.19.2.7.52 Constable Montgomery of SOCO at D0721 paragraph 6 said that he recalled having been given a piece of explosive in a plastic bag presumably for tests but that he did not now remember what tests were carried out on it. He knew nothing about this and was unable to help the Tribunal Day 223/130/1 to Day 223/130/16

19.19.2.7.53 In Alan Hall's Evershed's statement at D0624 paragraph 44 he confirms that samples from the explosive cores of the devices were not forwarded to DIFS for examination. He comments that in normal circumstances the army would send samples for DIFS to attempt to identify and trace the source or origin of the various elements in bombs that were found by the security forces.

19.19.2.7.54 Constable Montgomery was then reminded that Inspector Dickson had told the Tribunal that if there had been a real belief that nail bombs had been on the body of Gerard Donaghey when he arrived in the Regimental Aid Post that it would have been "inconceivable" that the police officers who were involved in questioning the driver and passenger of the car would not have discussed the subject of the nail bombs with those two individuals. When asked whether he agreed with Inspector Dickson's evidence he said no.

19.19.2.7.55 He did agree that he was involved in the questioning of Mr Young and Mr Rogan and that he never mentioned the nail bombs to them. His explanation for that was that he was "very happy" with the statements he had taken from them. He agreed that he had never mentioned nail bombs at all to them "because they were not involved in anything that day" Day 223/132/8 to Day 223/132/9

19.19.2.7.56 It is interesting to observe that in attempting to explain why no questions had been put about the nail bombs he said "Mr Rogan and Mr Young gave me very, truthful and accurate statements. I had no reason to question them about explosives" Day 223/135/1 to Day 223/135/4

19.19.2.7.57 The witness was later reminded that one of the reasons he had given for not discussing the nail bomb with Mr Rogan and Mr Young was because he was "completely happy" – a proposition from which the witness did not dissent. However, it was pointed out to him that in his contemporary report which he signed on 1 February 1972 the following paragraph appeared:

> "It will be noticed that there are some slight discrepancies between the stories of both witnesses. This could be as the result of the excited state of the witnesses at the time or that they were both only prepared to state what suited them" [Emphasis Added] Day 223/137/7 to Day 223/138/2

19.19.2.7.58 This witness saw only one nail bomb Day 223/136/3 to Day 223/136/4.

19.19.2.7.59 The witness also agreed that the first time he made any mention of covering over the body or anything to prevent one from seeing it was in his statement to Mr Hall on 9 March 1972 (it was also the first occasion on which he mentioned WPC Hamilton). When asked if he could tell the Tribunal whether there was any particular reason why he had left out from his previous statements any reference to the bed-cover or WPC Hamilton he said no.

19.19.2.8 INQ 2584

19.19.2.8.1 INQ 2584 has made a statement to the Tribunal C2584.1 to C2584.31 in which he has stated that nail bombs are "easy to make and could be made in a few minutes" C2584.3 paragraph 16.

19.19.2.8.2 At C2584.7 paragraph 41 he states that he has been asked whether it would be possible for the RUC or the army to get hold of materials necessary to make the nail bombs which are shown in Gerard Donaghey's pocket to which he said "I would have to say yes".

19.19.2.8.3 At C2584.7 paragraph 40 referring to EP5/26 and EP5/27 he states "this looks like a dangerous situation to me ... use of such a short length of safety fuse is dangerous due to the possibility of 'flash-through'. I have investigated fatal incidents following the flash-through of short lengths of safety fuse. I would always try to use at least 18 inches of safety fuse".

19.19.2.9 Captain Conder

19.19.2.9 Captain Conder gave evidence on Day 313. In his Evershed's statement CC1.1 paragraph 1 he was describing his role in the Royal Anglian Regiment in which he indicated that he was the Batallion's Public Relations Officer. He told the Tribunal that his explanation for describing himself in this way was that his principal role, on that day, was as a Press Officer Day 313/128/17 to Day 313/129/4

19.19.2.10 In fact Captain Conder had made two statements, one of which was made in 1998 and which is Attachment 4 to his statement and can be found at CC1.19. That was a statement prepared by him and submitted to the Tribunal. He did not make any reference in that statement nor in his Evershed's statement to being an Intelligence Officer. His explanation for that was the same namely that his principal role, on that day, was press relations Day 313/129/5 to Day 313/129/15

19.19.2.11 It was pointed out to him that in the opening paragraph of his statement that he volunteered in 1998 he described his role within the First Batallion of the Royal Anglian Regiment and that he was not seeking to confine his role on 30 January. It was pointed out that that was apparent from the first sentence of the first paragraph of that statement. He appeared to agree with these propositions Day 313/129/18 to Day 313/130/1

19.19.2.12 Accordingly, neither in his 1998 statement nor in his Evershed's statement had he ever disclosed the fact that he had any role as an Intelligence Officer. His explanation for this was "I was not asked" Day 313/130/19

19.19.2.13 When asked did he not think that Eversheds would have been interested to know his role as an Intelligence Officer he said "I was not asked it" Day 313/130/22

19.19.2.14 He was asked was it not the case on 30 January that he was in fact deployed as an Intelligence Officer to which he said no Day 313/130/25

19.19.2.15 Captain Conder was in fact Col Jackson's Intelligence Officer. In Col Jackson's statement CJ2.7 paragraph 31 he says "my Intelligence Officer at the time was Captain Conder, who was able to gather information from all sides of the community".

19.19.2.16 Captain Conder was also referred to the statement of INQ 1199 which appears at C1199.1 paragraph 3 in which he says "one of my main duties was as public relations/military intelligence photographer and I reported to both the PR Officer (I believe his name was UNK 14) and also to the Intelligence Officer whose name was INQ 8" (INQ 8 being Captain Conder).

19.19.2.17 It was therefore clear that in neither the statement from his Commanding Officer or from his photographer was he referred to as anything other than the Intelligence Officer.

19.19.2.18 At CJ2.45 the written orders from Captain Conder's Commanding Officer appear. Captain Conder's attention was drawn to CJ2.45 paragraph 9 which stated "All company cameras are to be deployed forward. Films of marchers will be required soon after the event. IO [ie Captain Conder the Intelligence Officer] is to arrange collection and dispatch to Brigade Headquarters". In light of the contents of that document it was suggested to Captain Conder that he had actually been deployed in his role as Intelligence Officer. He denied this. Day 313/132/19 to Day 313/133/13

19.19.2.19 He agreed that one of the principle functions that day was to arrange for collection of any films from the company cameras that were deployed and that this role was not confined to photographer INQ 1199. When asked how many cameras he stated "As far as I know there was probably one per company but I cannot confirm that". When asked if he had in fact arranged for the collection of the films from the cameras that were deployed he stated "I cannot recall any films being collected" Day 313/134/5 to Day 313/134/25

19.19.2.20 John Chartres was a journalist with a military background of which Captain Conder professed to be unaware Day 313/136/21 to Day 313/136/22. According to Chartres' evidence before Widgery Captain Conder had told him his location earlier in the day and invited him to call there if he required information on what happened Day 313/135/17 to Day 313/136/13

19.19.2.21 Captain Conder at CC1.5 paragraph 27 stated that he suggested to Mr Chartres that he might want to see the body in the back of the car and the reason he gave for this was because he was, as Captain Conder put it, an independent witness.

19.19.2.22 Captain Conder was then asked whether or not it had struck him as being wholly inappropriate and indeed disrespectful to the body of the dead boy in the back of the car for him to have brought a reporter over to put the body on display to the press. In answer to that suggestion he said "he was acting as an independent witness". When asked why did he need an independent witness he stated "It was not necessary to have one but I felt it would prove helpful to dispel any question that anything might have been planted on the body at any stage" Day 313/136/25 to Day 313/137/10

19.19.2.23 It was then pointed out to the witness that he had never mentioned planting of nail bombs as being the explanation as to why it was necessary to have an independent witness.

19.19.2.24 He was then asked Day 313/138/14 to Day 313/138 21:

> Q. What was it made you think at that time, contemporaneously with the events that you have described, that that is a suggestion that might be made?
> A. Because I was fairly certain that that is what would happen.
> Q. Because it was so obvious, was it not, that that is exactly what happened?
> A. What?

19.19.2.25 Captain Conder also said that his "immediate reaction" was that it would be "helpful" if they had an independent witness. He was then asked "Helpful to the army?" and he replied "Helpful to the truth" Day 313/139/8 to Day 313/139/11

19.19.2.26 Captain Conder was then shown part of the statement of Mr Chartres M14.2 paragraph 8 where he had indicated that Captain Conder had told him that "here was a corpse lying on the back seat of a civilian car". The transcript records the following exchange Day 313/142/13 to Day 313/143/6

> Pausing there for the moment, his statement indicates that all you told him was that there was a corpse in the back of the car, not that there was a corpse there with nail bombs. He then goes on to say: "He told me that this car had been stopped at a road barricade. I examined the corpse, which was in a car in the HQ car park, and I saw a nail bomb projecting from the jacket pocket of the corpse. I am quite familiar with the appearance of nail bombs. I then saw the car driven away by a bomb disposal officer ..."

I do not think I need to read the rest of that.
According to him you merely told him that there was a body in the back of the car, and that he then went over and examined the corpse, and he discovered the nail bombs. Whereas what you have indicated to the Inquiry is that you, having discovered the nail bombs and wanting an independent witness there, asked Mr Chartres to come over and verify that. Can you explain that?

A. No.

19.19.2.27 Captain Conder had also told the Tribunal that he was very anxious to get across the point that an no stage did he touch the body except on the neck because he wanted to preserve the scene and didn't want to damage anything which might interfere with the forensics. It was suggested to him that this was not what was really going through his mind at the time and that it was hard to square with what the reporter had been allowed to do. To this suggestion he responded that the reporter, as far as he was aware, did not touch the body in any way or get into the car. Day 313/143/7 to Day 313/143/19.

19.19.2.28 Captain Conder agreed that what he had seen that day was of considerable significance and that if his account was right, that he was the first person to discover the nail bombs in the car Day 313/145/4 to Day 313/145/12.

19.19.2.29 He also confirmed that he was not called to give evidence before Lord Widgery and when questioned as to whether or not he had been asked to make a statement in 1972 about what he had seen he said "No not that I recall". Nor was he able to shed any light on why he was not asked to make a statement even though according to his Evershed's statement he had reported this to his Batallion Adjutant Day 313/145/12 to Day 313/146/14

19.19.2.30 This witness, who had professed only an interest in establishing the truth and tried to create the impression that he was a neutral or disinterested witness, was then confronted with a letter which he had written to his MP, Sir George Young, on 30 January 1998, in which he stated Day 313/141/6 to Day 313/141/18

"There were two nail bombs in the man's jacket pockets. I reported this, but I was never called on to give evidence of it. I now feel that this should also be made known to the new Inquiry: not everyone killed was totally innocent."

You then go on to say:

"Special Branch of the RUC informed me that there had been several -- I think the number was seven -- IRA men also killed that day. But, to hide the fact that they had been involved, had taken their bodies to Bunerana in County Donegal.

"Of course I had no way of confirming this, but perhaps others can."

19.19.2.31 It was then pointed out to him that there was no suggestion in any Special Branch document that had been made available to the Inquiry that there were either seven or any dead people who were spirited away over the border. He was asked did he wish to comment on the fact that there wasn't a shred of evidence in the contemporaneous documentation from Special Branch to support the suggestion he had made in his letter to his MP and then repeated in his two statements. It was then put to him that either he had been lied to or that he was being less than frank to the Inquiry to which he said "All I can tell you is what I was told at the time". Day 313/148/2 to Day 313/148/20

19.19.2.32 At no stage did he ever identify the member or members of Special Branch who allegedly provided him with this information and there is no contemporary account from the witness regarding this information. During his evidence he was unable to provide any assistance to the Inquiry as to who gave him this information.[26]

19.19.2.10 Evidence of Victor Carson

19.19.2.10.1 Before Lord Widgery Sergeant Victor Carson alone testified on oath that he was the first person to discover the nail bomb and that he had done so within half a minute of the arrival at the RAP of the car containing Gerard Donaghey WT16.63D-E. Inspector Dickson agreed that a police officer, aware that a nail bomb had been discovered, and in radio contact would have raised the alarm. Sergeant Carson was in radio contact via pocket phone and there is an entry in the RUC log for 16.44 at W161 at which time Sergeant Carson made a radio communication during which he made no reference whatsoever to any nail bomb and made no request for any ATO – this at a time when, according to his Widgery evidence, he would have already discovered the nail bomb.

19.19.2.10.2 In his statement dated 9 March 1972 JC6.27 (but not in his statement dated 7 February 1972 JC6.26) he claimed that the upper half of his body, including his head, was covered by a blanket and that he opened the rear passenger door behind his head and removed the blanket. He claimed that as he began to search the body looking for identification starting with his left-hand trouser pocket. As soon as he opened the pocket he saw the fuse of the nail bomb and claimed to have said to the soldier who brought the car "Do you see what you have been driving?" to which he alleged the soldier said

"F... me". He claimed that he asked a soldier standing nearby to contact the ATO. He claimed in both of his statements that he remained with the car until the ATO arrived.

19.19.2.10.3 This account given by Sergeant Carson in his statement dated 9 March 1972 and portions of his Widgery evidence were put to Corporal 150 on Day 380/37/2 to Day 380/41/5. The entirety of the accounts given by Sergeant Carson were effectively repudiated by Corporal 150 when he gave evidence. Corporal 150said that the body was not covered Day 380/38/1 to Day 380/38/5. Summarising Sergeant Carson's accounts, Counsel to the Tribunal said:

"Mr Carson's 1972 evidence was that you were present while he inspected the body in the back of the car; he found a nail bomb and he showed it you and it caused you considerable surprise. Did anything like that occur?
A. No." [Emphasis added]

19.19.2.10.4 When asked if he had been presented in a situation with a police officer showing him a nail bomb whether he thought it would stay in his mind he said "Oh yes" Day 380/41/2 to Day 380/41/5.

19.19.2.10.5 Contrary to the evidence of Sergeant Carson, Corporal 150 had no recollection of an RUC Officer arriving just after the Medical Officer. Day 380/41/4 to Day 380/41/23

19.19.2.10.6 The account of Woman Constable Hamilton made for the Widgery Inquiry at JH3.2 was also shown to Corporal 150. Woman Constable Hamilton had likewise claimed in this statement that the head and shoulders were covered with a blanket, that she had pulled down and off the body. In her account she stated "a soldier on the other side of

[26] After the ATO, Captain 127, had dealt with the nail bombs Gerard Donaghey's body was removed in an

the car, looking through the offside windows said 'there is something in his pocket'" and that she "could see that there was a bulge in the right pocket of his denim jeans [and she] leaned over him, felt with [her left hand] what was in the pocket ... tried to pull it out but it was difficult ... could feel that it was a round object covered with insulating tape ... leaned further over to see what it was ..." and she then went on to say "the soldier then shouted 'Get out, it is a bomb'. I covered the man again and closed the door gently". Corporal 150 was asked whether anything like that had happened and he said "No". He was also asked did he recall a soldier shouting a warning like "Get out, it is a bomb" to which he said "No".

19.19.2.10.7 In his statement and his evidence Corporal 150 described parking the car, getting out, opening the back door on the driver's side and leaning over the body to take the pulse of Gerard Donaghey. He told the Tribunal that it would have taken him a minute to feel for a pulse Day 380/27/18 to Day 380/28/3. He agreed that he would have leant over the head and shoulders of Gerard Donaghey to check his pulse Day 380/46/16 to Day 380/46/21. He was also shown EP5.26 which is a photograph which showed more closely the kind of view Corporal 150 would have had. The photograph shows an object in the right hand pocket. He was then shown EP5.27A which was a closer view of the object shown in the previous photograph. He was then asked if he recalled seeing anything in Gerard Donaghey's pockets to which he replied "No" and he was asked:

Q. Gerard Donaghey was wearing a blue denim jacket and blue denim trousers. Do you recall seeing any kind of bulky objects in his pockets?

A. No.

ambulance manned by Samuel Hamilton ED47.24 and Alan Cahill ED47.25, AC2.2 to Altnagelvin hospital.

Day 380/47/23 to Day 380/48/1

19.19.2.10.8 Corporal 150 also told the Tribunal that the first he knew that there were nail bombs on the body was at the Widgery Tribunal.

19.19.2.10.9 In his Widgery evidence Sergeant Carson was described as someone who was normally employed as an explosives inspector WT16.58B-C whose role was checking with quarries etc. He confirmed that he had access to explosives and that he would have gelignite at times WT16.62A-B. (It is to be noted that three of the four nail bombs were composed of quarex which is a quarry-based explosive of a type not used by the PIRA in 1972 Intsum 102 dated February 1972 at G108.654 paragraph 8.

19.19.2.10.10 In his Widgery evidence he stated "I put my hands in his trouser pocket and found what appeared to be a nail bomb". He stated that he could not see the nail bomb before he searched the pocket WT16.59A-B.

19.19.2.10.11 His explanation for approaching the body and searching it was that he was looking for "identification" WT16.62B-C.

19.19.2.10.12 When asked what sort of thing he was looking for when he was making an identification he said "Driving licence, national insurance card, unemployment benefit card ..." WT16.63A-B. The following exchange took place:

"Q. You first looked in a man's trouser pocket in order to see if you could find a driving license, a National Insurance car, a letter or something of that sort? A. That is correct.
Q. Would your ordinary experience not teach you that you might have found a better chance of finding any of those items in one of his top pockets, an inside pocket or breast pocket?

A. This is quite possible; it just happened to be the pocket I went to first.

WT16.63C-D

19.19.2.10.13 Sergeant Carson was interviewed in May 1999 by Eversheds and a full note of the information given by Sergeant Carson was taken. A typed draft statement was sent to Sergeant Carson for his approval. Christopher Clarke QC indicated that Sergeant Carson was "reticent" about signing the statement JC6.11.1. In fact Sergeant Carson died without signing the statement.

19.19.2.10.14 The draft statement at JC6.17 paragraph 31 states:

"Unfortunately I disposed of my entire box of police notes six months ago when I was clearing out my house to renovate it. Everything was put in a shredder. I am not now able to remember what was in my notebook".

19.19.2.10.15 JC6.18 paragraph 37 states:

"At page 58 of the transcript at letter F, I state that the upper part of the body was covered by a blanket and I started to search it to see if there was any means of identification. Again, I cannot now recall the blanket or searching the body. I cannot recall whether the medical officer had seen the body, but this would be standard procedure. On page 59 at letter A I say that I put my hand into the man's trouser pocket and found what appeared to be a nail bomb. Today I am surprised by my statement as I am convinced that I noticed nail bombs in his two breast pockets only. However, I am now speaking of events that occurred 27 years ago". (Emphasis added)

19.19.2.10.16 At JC6.19 paragraph 46 he said that he assumed that somebody would have fingerprinted Gerard Donaghey and the nail bombs but that he did not know if they did that in 1972.

19.19.2.10.17 He confirmed in JC6.18 paragraph 41 that he had access to quarries.

19.19.2.11 David Mills[27]

19.19.2.11.1 David Mills who worked as a Producer for BBC on a current affairs programme made an Eversheds statement which is to be found at M108.1. In answer to questions by Counsel to the Inquiry this witness stated:

> "What I am fairly certain happened is that in my many discussions with Colin Wallace, Colin Overbury, it was accepted that those nail bombs were planted on Donaghy"
> Day 235/29/1 to Day 235/29/3

19.19.2.11.2 He also went on to say:

> "When I discussed these nail bombs with them I am fairly certain that we all sort of laughed about it. But they would not have tried -- they did not try to convince me that this was anything else but a plant ..."
> Day 235/31/10 to Day 235/31/13

19.19.2.11.3 He further said:

> "... I am quite clear, overwhelmingly, it is overwhelmingly probable that they made no attempt to suggest that these bombs had actually been found on him and that we all took a similar attitude, that they had almost certainly been planted ..."

Day 235/32/4 to Day 235/32/8

19.19.2.12 Paddy Ward, Kathryn Johnston & Liam Clarke

19.19.2.12.1 On Day 165/1/1 to Day 165/5/7 Counsel for Gerard Donaghey's next of kin drew to the Tribunal's attention to an article appearing on the front page of the Sunday Times on 18 November 2001 discussing allegations which appeared in a recently published book by Liam Clarke and Kathryn Johnson. Counsel requested the Tribunal to confirm that steps would be taken, inter alia, to interview the authors, their sources and obtain their notes.

19.19.2.12.2 The book was an unauthorised biography of Martin McGuinness by Liam Clarke and his wife Kathryn Johnson entitled "Martin McGuinness: From Guns to Government".

19.19.2.12.3 Liam Clarke carried out an interview with a former member of the INLA and self-confessed RUC Special Branch informer called Paddy Ward on 8 April 2001 AW8.42. Ward claimed to be the Officer Commanding the Provisional Fianna on Bloody Sunday. He alleged that on the evening of 29 January Martin McGuinness told Ward to bring the Fianna to a garage prior to the march and gave him a list of premises that were to be attacked by nail bombs T487; that at lunchtime on Bloody Sunday Martin McGuinness and two IRA men gave Ward and seven other members of the Fianna two nail bombs each in the garage with the instructions that when the march got to the Guildhall "McGuinness told us to pick our target and throw the nail bombs at it. He told us that this was to cause havoc once we got into the city centre" T487; The plan was called off due to the fact that the Army had created a barricade, the Fianna was informed of this by Gerry Doherty and were instructed to bring the gear back to behind the Bogside Inn. "We rounded up everybody except for one, Gerry Donaghey. He was just out of jail after doing six months for rioting" T488.

Paddy Ward

19.19.2.12.4 Ward provided a statement to Eversheds. It can found at AW8 and gave screened oral evidence on Day 385 and Day 386.

19.19.2.12.5 Ward's first account as given to Liam Clarke in the interview dated 8 April 2001 was inherently implausible and unreliable. Contrary to this account and his evidence it is clear that nail bombs were not suitable for attacks on buildings and were in fact anti-personnel devices (see later section on the PIRA Evidence). Ward also claimed in the course of the interview that:

- He claimed not to know until he reached William Street that the march would not get into the City Centre AW8.46. There is an abundance of evidence to show that it was widely known at an early stage that the march was to prevented from getting to the Guilhall.
- He claimed to have seen a Major fire the first shot from a barricade at Sackville Street. According to Ward, the Major shot both Damien Donaghey and John Johnston AW8.46. This is a completely uncorroborated account. There is an abundance of evidence that Damien Donaghey was shot in Rossville Street at approximately 3.55pm by Soldiers A or B of the machine gun platoon who were positioned the Abbey Taxis building in William Street see P198.
- This shooting caused a mad rush up Rossville Street in panic. AW8.46. This did not cause any panic in Rossville Street. The only panic in Rossville Street occurred at 4.10pm approximately when Support Company entered the Bogside.
- He got a Mark2 Cortina estate VRM: RAT141G parked in St Columbs Wells and the Army fired a shot through the roof of the car AW8.7. This vehicle was traced by the Inquiry who confirmed in correspondence that it was in fact a commercial vehicle registered in the north of England.

Liam Clarke accepted in oral evidence that none of the claims that Ward made were independently checked by himself or Ms Johnson when the chapter concerning Bloody Sunday was written. Day 387/198/15 to Day 387/199/24; Day 387/199/2 to Day 387/199/21; Day 387/200/2 to Day 387/200/4 and Day 387/202/10 to Day 387/205/11.

19.19.2.12.6 Ward's statement to Eversheds was 215 paragraphs long and was dated 20th August 2003. It was an even more dramatic and implausible account which contains many discrepancies with respect to the interview that he gave Liam Clarke. Some, but by no means all, of the examples of this are that:

- Gerard Donaghey was at a meeting with Ward and Martin McGuinness on the Thursday before Bloody Sunday when an agreement was made to attack targets in the City Centre after the march AW8.8 paragraph 41 to AW8.9 paragraph 46.
- He now claimed to have made up the nail bombs himself the night before Bloody Sunday AW8.10 paragraph 50
- On Bloody Sunday Gerard Donaghey was waiting at the corner of Westland Street and Ebrington Terrace just before 12.30pm. Everyone wore parka jackets and Gerard Donaghey was given two nail bombs AW8.11 paragraph 55. He claimed that he was "sure" Gerard Donaghey was wearing a Parka on Bloody Sunday AW8.18 paragraph 84
- He now claimed that he called off the nail bombing operation himself and did not speak to Gerry Doherty on Bloody Sunday at all AW8.24 paragraph 119
- He maintained that he saw the Major fire the short arm but now denied seeing Damien Donaghey and John Johnston shot and blamed Liam Clarke for making a inaccurate presumption that he witnessed Donaghey and Johnson shot. AW8.13 paragraph62; AW8.24 paragraph 121

- He maintained the Major's shots started a "stampede" up Rossville Street and that he saw two people fall on the Barricade who may have been Michael Kelly and William Nash AW8.14 paragraph 65
- He now claimed to have seen Barney McGuigan shot dead which was never mentioned previously AW8.14 paragraphs 65 to 66
- Presumably alive to the difficulty he changed the number plate of the car to VRM RAT142G in his statement AW8.24 paragraph 122. He confirmed this was a proper plate. The Inquiry confirmed that this was registered to a different commercial vehicle in England
- He now mentioned for the first time that he fired on and possibly hit a helicopter from his girlfriend's parent's garden at Rinmore Drive in Creggan with a .303 rifle AW8.15 paragraphs 71 to 73. This was denied by Daniel and Vera McGilloway in their statements to the Inquiry and also by Eddie Dobbins who lived in this area Day 399/148/2 to Day 399/148/5
- He claimed that all but two of the nail bombs that were apparently deployed came back except the two given to Gerard Donaghey AW8.16 paragraphs 72 to 73. But when shown the nail bombs found on Gerard Donaghey he confirmed they were not those in the photographs as their nail bombs were always in cans EP5.25; EP5.26; EP5.27 AW8.16 paragraph 73; AW8.18 paragraphs 89 to 90
- "What is photographed is not what he was given earlier in the day" AW8.18 paragraph 90

19.19.2.12.7 It emerged by the time Ward gave evidence that there was a large body of other evidence from prominent Republicans in Derry including Martin McGuiness, Eddie Dobbins, Gerry O'Hara, Gerry Doherty, Sean Keenan and a large number of the ciphered PIRA witnesses which all contradicted Ward's assertion that there was any such operation as claimed by Ward that involved the Fianna on Bloody Sunday.

19.19.2.12.8 It also emerged from the evidence of Gerry O'Hara that if anyone was considered as "OC" of the Fianna on Bloody Sunday, it would have been he and that Paddy Ward was someone who was on the periphery of the Fianna at the time of Bloody Sunday. He was certainly not the OC and was not a member of the Fianna during the time that Mr O'Hara was involved with that organisation Day 406/122/24 to Day 406/24/10; AO79.10 paragraph 7.

19.19.2.12.9 It emerged in the course of cross examination that Chadas shop, which was one of Ward's targets that he claimed to have "recced" during the week prior to Bloody Sunday was already burnt to the ground the previous month Day 386/61/9 to Day 386/63/16

19.19.2.12.10 It further emerged that in an intelligence interview carried out by the RUC on 3 January 1974 with Mr Ward he admitted a number of offences including riotous behaviour. Whilst he provided the RUC with information concerning the PIRA INT2.1471, INT2.1472, he provided no information concerning Bloody Sunday or Gerard Donaghey.

19.19.2.12.11 Counsel put to him that he had ample opportunity over a period of 30 years through his dealings with the police to explain to them precisely what occurred on Bloody Sunday. The witness confirmed that he never took that opportunity because he did not want to implicate himself notwithstanding the fact that he did implicate himself in the course of his 3rd January 1974 interview with the RUC in relation to other offences Day 386/79/18 to Day 386/80/8.

19.19.2.12.12 It also emerged that he was not charged with or convicted of any criminal offence in the early 1970s Day 386/33/19 to Day 386/34/4.

19.19.2.12.13 Ward also admitted that he was considering writing a book about this life as an undercover agent and as an IRA and INLA member Day 386/35/15 to Day 385/36/20.

19.19.2.12.14 He confirmed that no-one should place any reliance on anything that he said to Johnston and Clarke. The witness said "It was an unthought of, unresearched statement" (sic) Day 386/75/3 to Day 386/75/8

19.19.2.12.15 He claimed during his evidence that around the same time as the Major fired the two shots from the Sackville Street barrier that the soldiers came out of Sackville Street carrying their shields Day 386/91/2 to Day 386/92/19. This simply did not happen. Nonetheless Ward confirmed that he had "a mental picture" of the soldier firing Day 386/95/6 to Day 386/95/8. The Inquiry is well aware that Support Company entered the Bogside in the convoy of vehicles through Little James Street.

19.19.2.12.16 Ward claimed that he simply ran straight up Rossville Street, over the Rubble Barricade and along past Block1. Ward said that he did not stop running and that he actually saw Barney McGuigan being shot whilst waving his white hanky Day 386/92/2 to Day 386/94/23. The Inquiry knows that Barney McGuigan was the last person shot and that happened not before 4.20pm. Ward agreed that this terrible image had stayed with him to a certain extent for 30 years but could not explain why he did not tell Clarke and Johnston about it. His explanation was that he had seen a lot of terrible images over the last 30 years Day 386/98/9 to Day 386/98/23

19.19.2.12.17 Counsel put to him that if his story of what occurred on Bloody Sunday was to be believed the Tribunal would have to discount a very substantial if not 99 per cent of the evidence that has been given to it about what happened on Bloody Sunday:

Q. I suggest to you if your story is to be believed, we would have to discount a very substantial if not almost 99 per cent of the evidence that has been given to this Tribunal about what happened on Bloody Sunday; your account of how it started, an officer coming out on to the wasteground at Little James Street, I suggest to you is a figment of your imagination; do you understand that? Do you understand that?

A. I understand what you are saying, but I seen what I seen and that is all there is to it.

Q. No civilian, no Army officer, no journalist, no photographer, no priest ever claims such a thing as having happened except you; could you account for that?

A. No, not in particular, because there was a lot of things seen that day --

Q. No Army officer --

A. -- that no other people have mentioned.

Q. What I suggest to you is: you could not have seen Barney McGuigan being shot if the rest of your story is true.

A. Well, it is a fact.

Q. And I suggest to you, you could not have seen two young men fall and die at the barricade quite literally seconds before you saw Barney McGuigan being shot; do you understand?

A. I seen what I seen."

Day 386/123/4 to Day 386/124/4

19.19.2.12.18 It is clear that Ward is a fantasist and a liar. He claimed to see things that he could not have seen. He was in reality an insignificant figure and what he did in terms of the issues of Bloody Sunday was to weave himself into a picture which places him not on the periphery but in the in the centre of all the action.

19.19.2.12.19 In the preface to the second Edition of the book published in 2003 the authors published further allegations in relation to Gerard Donaghey. They can be found at T477

The following is recorded:

"Another eye witness claims that he saw Gerard Donaghey outside the bookies, where rioters wanted to throw nail bombs over the roof onto the army barricade. Because of the shortage of nail bombs after McGuinness had issued orders for their recall, at least one person at the scene argued with Donaghey, trying to get the nail bombs off him to throw himself."

19.19.2.12.20 This paragraph from the preface to the second edition comes from Kathryn Johnston's notes which are found at M112.44 to M112.47 and the typed version at M112.50 and M112.51:

(i) These notes record on page 1:

"High Street full of people

Gerard Donaghey had several nail bombs, S McCallion wanted them.

Throw nail bombs over roof Knows nothing about bomb." M112.44, M112.50; and

(ii) On page 4 it is recorded:

"G Donaghey + McG standing beside each other + Eddie Daly standing against wall when arg with McCallion was going on" M112.47, M112.51.

Kathyrn Johnson

19.19.2.12.21 This witness was examined on Day 387. It emerged that she was a member of the Official Republican Movement – Republican clubs since 1976 and then the Workers Party until 1986.

19.19.2.12.22 In relation to Paddy Ward, she claimed she believed what he had said. Day 387/122/16 to Day 387/122/20

19.19.2.12.23 She dated her handwritten notes from approximately 8/2/02. She said that she thought that the notes related to several people, though she could not be sure Day 387/43/16 to Day 387/43/17, Day 387/48/2 to Day 387/48/9

19.19.2.12.24 Ms Johnston confirmed that she knew the source for the information in relation to Gerard Donaghey in High Street but she would not identify him/her Day 387/130/8 to Day 387/130/13 and Day 387/138/20 to Day 387/140/5.

19.19.2.12.25 In her evidence she said that her source was "speculating" that McCallion[28] wanted the nail bombs to throw over the roofs of the houses in High Street Day 387/43/20 to Day 387/43/22. However when she came to write the Preface for the second edition she sexed up the allegation so that it read as follows:

"Another eye witness claims that he saw Gerard Donaghey outside the bookies, where rioters wanted to throw nail bombs over the roof onto the army barricade. Because of the shortage of nail bombs after McGuinness had issued orders for their recall, at least one person at the scene argued with Donaghey, trying to get the nail bombs off him to throw himself." T477

19.19.2.12.26 She excluded the note however that appears at M112.47, M112.51 referring to Bishop Daly because (a) It would mean that Bishop Daly had perjured himself before this Inquiry; (b) Bishop Daly could contradict what the source said; (c) Johnston knew the source was [28] McCallion has made a supplementary statement AM492.7 in which he has denied the allegation made against him in the book.

providing obviously unreliable and uncorroborated evidence and chose not to print this part of it.

19.19.2.12.27 Counsel pointed out the inherently implausible nature of the "plan" to throw the nail bombs from High Street over the three storey houses and into William Street by demonstrating to the witness in terms of the height and distance that the nail bombs would have to be thrown Day 386/136/3 to Day 386/137/6

19.19.2.12.28 As a result of her failure to identify her sources the Donaghey family has had to face un-attributed comments and allegations. They have been unable to identify their accuser and have not had material made available to them where they can challenge that accuser.

19.19.2.12.29 Patrick Ward is the only Clarke and Johnston source that the Donaghey family have been able to challenge. He was exposed as being an individual who did not give accurate, reliable, dependable or truthful information. Counsel asked Johnston:

"Q. You do appreciate in fact he was basically exposed –
A.I appreciate your point."
Day 387/138/2 to Day 387/138/11

19.19.2.12.30 Paddy Ward's evidence was tested in cross-examination. He was exposed as a fantasist and a liar. In light of his exposure no weight should be attached to his evidence. The provider(s) of the information concerning "events" in High Street has not been identified, did not make a statement to the Inquiry, did not give evidence on oath and has not had his/her account tested. Had s/he done so s/he would have been similarly exposed. That opportunity has been denied to the Donaghey family. Accordingly no weight should be attached to an untested account from an unidentified accuser.

19.19.2.13 PIRA Evidence

Non-access of Fianna to nail bombs

19.19.2.13.1 The Tribunal is aware that Gerard Donaghey's name was included on a roll of honour of local Republican dead that was read at the Easter commemoration ceremony in Derry in 1972 (see, for example, L202).

19.19.2.13.2 In response to a letter from the Inquiry enclosing an extract from 'Tírghra' Gerard Donaghey's sister, Mary Doherty, stated that she had no direct knowledge of him having joined the Fianna but was not in a position to dispute the suggestion that he was a member at the time of Bloody Sunday T472 to T473.

19.19.2.13.3 On Day 391/42/12 to Day 391/42/19 Martin McGuinness in answer to a question about whether the Republican Movement would let 16 year olds be involved in guns or bombs stated that he was saying "very clearly" that "those people who were associated with the Fianna would not under any circumstances have been allowed to be involved in any military activity which would have endangered them or others in any fashion.

19.19.2.13.4 On Day 399/88/12 to Day 399/88/14 when asked whether Fianna members ever handled nail bombs Edward Dobbins responded "Not to my knowledge, they, they would not be privy to that kind of weaponry, they would be too young".

19.19.2.13.5 On Day 402/60/21 to Day 402/60/25 Michael Clarke, confirmed that the Fianna had no access to explosives. When asked why he said "Because I was the explosives officer".

19.19.2.13.6 On Day 406/92/13 to Day 406/92/19 Gerard O'Hara stated that when he was a member of the Official Fianna no members, to his knowledge, never had access to weapons or explosives, including nail bombs.

19.19.2.13.7 On Day 406/132/19 to Day 406/133/15 the following exchange takes place between Gerry O'Hara and Christopher Clarke QC:

Q. As the OC of the Fianna would you have known if any Fianna member had been carrying a nail bomb?
A. Yes, unless they had, unless, as you say they might have found one or something, but, in an organised way they should not have had them and I would have known.
Q. Did you ever come across an incident in which a member of the Fianna was in possession of a nail bomb?
A. No.
Q. As the OC would you have had to authorise Gerry Donaghey to carry nail bombs on the day, had he wished to do that?
A. I suppose I would have had to have been involved in the decision that Fianna were going to be involved in carrying nail bombs, not just in the specific case, and that did not happen, so it does not arise.
Q. Can you think of any reason at all which Gerry Donaghey might have been carrying nail bombs on that day?
A. Well, I am actually 100 per cent certain that he was not, so ...
Q. Are you aware from anywhere from which he could have obtained nail bombs?
A. No.

19.19.2.13.8 At Day 406/129/19 to Day 406/130/5 Gerry O'Hara states in response to Christopher Clarke QC:

Q. Could we go on in your statement, please, over the page to paragraphs 23 and 24. You are dealing there with evidence that has been given about the use of explosives and in particular nail bombs. You say:

"It was not part of our role in the Fianna to throw nail bombs. If nail bombs were thrown, they were only thrown by IRA volunteers involved in the military side."

Did you at any time between August 1971 and 30th January 1972 ever throw a nail bomb?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any Fianna member ever doing that?

A. No.

19.19.2.13.9 On Day 408/87/20 to Day 408/88/4 PIRA 18 was asked by Christopher Clarke QC whether in January 1972 members of the Fianna ever had access to nail bombs. PIRA 18, in answer, confirmed that members of the Fianna were not trained in the use of weapons or explosives.

PIRA evidence re the make-up of the bomb (and contrary to the evidence of Paddy Ward they are not suitable for attacks on buildings but are anti-personnel devices)

19.19.2.13.10 On Day 402/28/6 to Day 402/30/2 Michael Clarke is questioned by Christopher Clarke QC in relation to a number of photographs of nail bombs. When shown EP5.26 the witness states that the nail bomb shown does not look like one of his. He says that he would have allowed seven seconds on any fuse he would have made, that it would have been approximately three and a half inches long and that he would never have used that amount of tape to make up a nail bomb.

19.19.2.13.11 When shown EP5.27 the witness stated that the match was not touching the fuse and therefore he did not think that it could have ignited and that it was not the way [we] would have made it. He stated that the match head would have been in the 45-degree angle, cut and taped around the fuse.

19.19.2.13.12 The witness was shown EP5.28 which was said to be a photograph of what was taken from Gerard Donaghey's body and the following exchange takes place Day 402/29/17 to Day 402/30/1:

> Q. Could we have on the screen EP5.28. This is said to be a photograph of what was taken from Gerard Donaghey's body. As I understand it, each of these four sachets is said to contain the wrapping and the nails. This sachet has sticks of gelignite, one of which has the words "Gelamex" on it. Is that the sort of size of gelignite that you would use?
>
> A. No.
>
> Q. What size would you use?
> A. Half that size.

19.19.2.13.13 On Day 426/60/5 to Day 426/65/12 Christopher Clarke QC asked PIRA 24 about paragraph 22 of his statement in which he deals with nail bombs and the photographs that he had been shown of the nail bombs said to have been found on the body of Gerard Donaghey. In his statement he said that he had never seen nail bombs made up like the ones in the photographs and that they did not look familiar to him as PIRA nail bombs. When asked the reason why they did not look familiar he stated that "the whole structure of the thing does not seem right". An elaborate exchange as to what this meant then took place[29].

[29] Furthermore there are other unusual features thus, for example, at INTSUM 102 dated February 1972 G108.654 paragraph 8 it is stated that three of the four nail bombs found (on Donaghey) were made with Quarex which, it is stated, "is not common here and not an efficient type of explosive for such a purpose".

19.19.2.14 Forensic Evidence[30]

19.19.2.14.1 Vital scientific evidence which points in the direction of the nail bombs having been planted was not put before Widgery by Dr Martin or by Mr Hall. This has emerged from the comprehensive and helpful expert report obtained by the Inquiry from Dr JFP Lloyd.

19.19.2.14.2 According to Dr. Martin's notes, considered by Lloyd at E1.0055 paragraph E 'the bullet that struck Donaghey passed through the lower left pocket of the jacket.' This is one of the pockets that allegedly held a nail bomb. Yet, in the course of Dr. Martin's evidence to Widgery (Days 9 & 17) "no reference is made to the pocket; only a hole in the left front of the jacket is mentioned (9/15F)." E1.0055 paragraph E

19.19.2.14.3 Moreover in relation to Mr. Hall's report which was prepared for the Widgery Tribunal:

"Mr. Hall's notes record that both side pockets of the jacket and one of the trousers pockets were slit open, but no reference is made to a bullet hole." E1.0055 paragraph E

19.19.2.14.4 Accordingly in the evidence placed before the Widgery Tribunal by Dr. Martin and Mr Hall no attempt was made to alert the Tribunal or the representatives of the families to the fact that the shot which killed Gerard Donaghey had passed through the pocket at the left front of the denim jacket he was wearing which pocket purportedly contained a nail bomb at the time he was shot. The significance of this omission cannot be lost on anyone and it is Lloyd's conclusion on this issue that E1.0059 paragraph B:

[30] Lead particle density on the front and right arm of the jacket was much higher than normal. Lead particles were detected on the swabs from the back and palm of the right hand. No lead was detected on the swabs from the left hand D0354.
The nature and distribution of lead particles on the swabs and jacket are not fully consistent with exposure to discharge gases from firearms; the levels on the jacket are too high. It is possible that lead particles from the bullet which entered the deceased's stomach were the main cause of the contamination D0355.

"A bullet had passed through the jacket's left lower pocket, from which a nail bomb was recovered. The bomb could have been at least damaged if not exploded by the bullet, if the bomb was present in the pocket at the time. On the evidence available, the bomb was undamaged."

19.19.2.14.5 In his report entitled "Initial Report on Firearms & Explosives Residues" dated June 1999 JPF Lloyd stated as follows E1.0056

"...The condition of the bomb is not stated in Mr Hall's notes, but from photographs of the reconstructed bombs, there appears to be no damage to any of them that might have been caused by the bullet that passed through the pocket. It is expected that some damage to the bomb, caused by the bullet, would have been evident both to Mr Hall and to Soldier 127 who retrieved the bomb the bomb was in place when Donaghey was shot.

There is a significant chance that the bullet could have exploded the bomb, particularly in view of the presence of a detonator. Soldier 127 testified that it was extremely unlikely that the bomb would be exploded by a bullet unless the bullet struck the detonator (9/64F). However, gelignites, such as Gelamex compositions, are amongst the more impact-sensitive of the explosives manufactured for commercial and militarv use. Militarv explosives are designed to withstand bullet impact. Under the circumstances of laboratory test procedures, an explosive probably comparable to Gelamex was reported to be sensitive to projectile impact velocities lower than bullet velocities generally, but the relevance of the laboratory results to actual events is uncertain, as is the velocity of the apparently deflected bullet that struck Donaghey".

While he does not accept Dr Martin's suggested explanation for the particles detected, Dr Lloyd agrees that 19.19.2.14.6 In his statement to this Tribunal Mr Hall states that he recalls 'placing, item 12, the nail bomb taken from the left hand jacket pocket of Gerard Donaghey into that pocket to test whether or not a bullet could have passed by without striking the nail bomb. I concluded that this was possible, although this was not necessarily easy to do. I think I concluded that it could only have occurred of the nail bomb was placed deep into the pocket . . . I think I also discussed this issue with Dr Martin at the time, although I do not remember what Dr Martin's view was at the time.' Mr Hall's statement D0625 paragraph 48. Significantly, Lloyd notes that E1.0057 paragraph K

"There are no relevant observations or comments in the notes or his report. If the dimensions of the pocket, relative to the nail bomb were thought to be important, they should have been recorded."

19.19.2.14.7 In Shepherd & O'Callaghan's report (on the pathology and ballistic evidence) they stated E2.0023

"These tests do not appear to have been documented nor does it appear that notes were made of any discussions between Dr Martin and Dr Hall on the matter. Neither Dr Martin nor Dr Hall dealt with the issue in their reports or testimony".

19.19.2.14.8 Lloyd also stated E1.0057 to E1.0058

According to Mr Hall's notes, the bombs were 4½ " long, and 1¾"-2" in diameter. Presumably this referred to the reconstructions shown in photographs in the laboratory file. According to the testimony of Soldier 127, the actual bombs had been 1/4"-1/2" fatter (9/63B). Mr Hall states that he placed relevant nail bombs in the "distribution is not attributable to the use of a firearm, as Dr Martin accepted." E1.0043

Donaghey's jeans in order to satisfy himself that the bombs would fit into the jeans (07/04/99, §49). I agree that a typical unworn pair of jeans might readily accommodate items of these dimensions. However, such items are much less readily accommodated when the jeans are worn. According to PC Montgomery's statement (20/05/99, §7), the jeans were tight fitting.

19.19.2.14.9 And of course there was a substantial body of civilian and other evidence relating to the tightness of the jeans worn by Gerard Donaghey.

19.19.2.15 Conclusion

19.19.2.15.1 This is an inescapable inference from the evidence of the numerous witnesses who saw Gerard Donaghey:

i) before he left the house that day;
ii) who accompanied him on the march;
iii) who saw him being shot;
iv) who tended to him after he had been shot;
v) who carried him to 10 Abbey Park;
vi) who examined and searched him there;
vii) who carried him out to Raymond Rogan's car;
viii) who travelled with him in the car;
ix) who saw him at Barrier 20; and
x) who examined him at the Regimental Aid Post (like Corporal 150 and Captain 138) that the nail bombs must have been placed on his body after their contact and examinations.

19.19.2.15.2 As far as the planting of nail bombs is concerned it is in the nature of things that there will be no direct evidence. There is however a substantial body of other circumstantial evidence which demonstrates that the police and/or army had motive, opportunity and access to the relevant materials to enable them to plant nail bombs. Moreover, the nail bombs themselves were of a highly unusual composition and construction.

Motive

(i) There can be no doubt that the security forces had a powerful motivation for planting nail bombs on the body of Gerard Donaghey who had been murdered by the army. We know that the army case at the time was that all those who were shot and wounded were either gunmen or bombers and being able to point to at least one of the deceased being in possession of a nail bomb would help to support their false case. At the very least it would provide convenient propaganda – see, for example, statement of the Irish Government at U325 paragraph 260 to 261 and Inspector Dickson at Day 212/75/11 to Day 212/76/2.

Opportunity

(ii) Nail bombs were not discovered until after the body of Gerard Donaghey and the car in which he was traveling had been seized and removed to premises jointly occupied by the RUC and the army. Clearly this would have provided an opportunity for nail bombs to be placed on the body of Gerard Donaghey. It was put to Detective Sergeant McTeggart that the security forces would have had an opportunity to plant bombs on Gerard Donaghey. He agreed that they "certainly would" Day 223/125/6 to Day 223/125/13. Nail bombs are "easy to make and could be made in a few minutes" C2584.3 paragraph 16.

Access

(iii) There is no doubt that it would have been possible for the RUC/army to get hold of the materials necessary to make the nail bombs found on Gerard Donaghey. This emerges from a number of sources including the recent statement of INQ 2584 C2584.3 paragraph 16 and Inspector Dickson Day 212/73/6 to Day 212/73/8.

Composition

(iv) The nail bombs were of an unusual composition and did not, for example, bear any relationship to Inspector Dickson's previous experience of nail bombs Day 212/79/14 to Day 212/79/20. The PIRA witnesses also confirmed that the nail bombs were not constructed in the way in which PIRA would have made them – see section on PIRA evidence at 19.19.2.13. Moreover they were of a potentially lethal construction so far as risk to the user was concerned C2584.7 paragraph 40. Three of them were made with quarex (a quarry-based explosive) which was "not common here" Intsum 102 dated February 1972 at G108.654 paragraph 8.

19.19.2.15.3 Furthermore, the "crime-scene" was not preserved properly or at all. Photographs of only one of the devices in situ have been provided to the Tribunal. Other photographs which may have been taken have not survived. No samples of the explosives were forwarded to the Northern Ireland Forensic Science Laboratory. There is no evidence of any attempt to carry out a fingerprint examination and those who travelled in the car with Gerard Donaghey were not questioned about the alleged presence of nail bombs.

19.19.2.15.4 In short the evidence establishes that the nail bombs were planted on Gerard Donaghey at some time after he transferred from civilian custody to the custody of the security forces.

19.20 Nature and Character of the Anti-Tank Platoon

19.20.1. The nature of the anti-tank platoon that formed part of the Support Company convoy that entered the Bogside on Bloody Sunday is best illustrated by reference to a horrific incident that took place just a few days after Bloody Sunday in Belfast. Two innocent Catholics who were on their way home after attending a prayer meeting at the hostel where they were volunteers were set upon by soldiers, who savagely beat and otherwise assaulted them. They were then abducted and dumped in an area where the soldiers knew that their lives were in danger.

19.20.2. It is submitted that this incident is relevant to the events of Bloody Sunday for a number of reasons

i) its proximity in time to Bloody Sunday;

ii) the fact that many of the same individuals are involved;

iii) it demonstrates the lack of control exerted over his troops by Lt 119 and;

iv) it demonstrates that members of the Anti-Tank Platoon were prepared to engage in abduction, robbery and serious assault.

19.20.3. The incident is described in detail in the various statements and evidence of Soldier 027. In the section of his "1975 statement" entitled "February 1972" he describes the incident as follows

"In two pig loads, we the anti-tanks moved to Albert Street Mil.. After a wait we were briefed by Lt. 119 for an operation at Divis Flats on the Falls Road....From the base of Divis Flats complex we saw a barricade of fiercely burning lorries and cars. In our usual manner we drove straight at them but before impact came under fire from the Flats....036 meanwhile continued to ram the barricade with the pig writing it off in the process. Hoards of crap-hats moved into and all around the flats.

"Meanwhile several blokes had been beasted severely. I was with 119, in a pig parked between the main tower and the annex 30 or 40 metres away was E's pig on waste ground among some derelict buildings. Beyond that could be seen the glow of the fires. Then I noticed G and F running towards the pig with a bloke bent double between them. They kept him going head first into the armour plating. The bang was quite audible where I was. He was temporarily knocked out but was revived and thrown into the back of the pig....Lt 119 was also aware of what was going on but the bloke was in no fit condition to be taken to Musgrave for vetting as was the normal practice. So he had no other choice than to turn his back on the situation while the body was taken to the Shankill to be dumped – a fate worse than death for a Catholic to be placed in the middle of a Protestant area if his identity is known or vice versa. He was dropped outside the Horseshoe Bar and Provs [should be Prots] were informed (at this time, a few weeks after Bloody Sunday we were angels in their eyes and could do no wrong)....We had a man in the back of the vehicle who was crying hysterically and uncontrollably thinking that we were going to shoot him....As it was H took all his money and we let him go." B1565.014.11, B1565.014.12, B1565.014.13

19.20.4. When he gave evidence Soldier 027 said, "I have a vague memory of an event which has some correspondence with what occurred here, but I cannot recognise a good deal of the detail which you have just read out." Day 247/63/3 to Day 247/63/6. He also accepted that while he "was present during the incident" he was not "witness to the physical abuse which these characters suffered" Day 247/64/3 to Day 247/64/5. He indicated that he may have got the detail of what appears in the account from soldiers talk or talk within the vehicle Day 247/64/6 to Day 247/64/14.

19.20.5. A similar incident is described by another member of the anti-tank platoon in the notes of his "Praxis" interview where he appears to have said

"...I took two Roman Catholics what we caught with weapons. I dropped them outside the Horseshoe bar up Shankill, went inside and said 'I've got two blokes out here' because then if you got caught with a weapon you got five year, which I thought was ridiculous. I mean these blokes were going out to kill somebody. I went inside Horseshoe bar....

Q. Is that the Horseshoe bar?

Z: Horseshoe bar up Shankill, Shanklin Road. I went inside the bar, I said 'I've got two blokes outside here for you', and them blokes turned up about five days later.

Q. Dead?

Z: Nowt to do with me.

Q: So the Prots got them?

Z: Nothing to do with me. You know what I mean?" C1243.63 to C1243.64

19.20.6. INQ 1243 now denies that this incident ever happened and in oral evidence indicated that he had a drink problem at the time and that the interviewer got him drunk and got him "waffling" trying to make his story all the more interesting C1243.3 paragraph 16, Day 309/136/10 to Day 309/138/7. John Goddard from the Praxis team indicated that the transcript of the interview supplied to the Tribunal must be an accurate reflection of the interview as he was using a cassette recorder Day 234/127/12 to Day 234/127/13. He denied that he would have got INQ 1243 drunk, that he would have put things into his mind and that the transcript would contain any material that has been invented or exaggerated Day 234/127/14 to Day 234/128/14.

19.20.7. Quite apart from the independent recollections of these two soldiers who were members of the anti-tank platoon, the Tribunal also has the statements of Francis Creagh AC146.1 to AC146.17 and Raymond Muldoon AM496.1 to AM496.4 whose evidence about an attack on them by soldiers is reported in the Irish News Report dated 4th February 1972 at L152 and appears very similar to the incidents described by soldier 027 and INQ 1243.

19.20.8. Mr Creagh and Mr Muldoon describe how they were walking home from a prayer meeting using a short cut through Divis Flats when they were confronted by soldiers. Mr Creagh then describes a horrific attack carried out on the two men by those soldiers. He remembers being forced on to the ground and then says

"They spread my legs apart and for some reason removed my shoes and emptied my pockets. I had no cash with me but I can remember that I had three or four pounds in bus tokens that were taken.

"I can then remember three things happening to me while I was on the ground. Firstly, I was kicked a large number of times on the side of my body and chest, on my legs and on my shoulders. I was not kicked in the head. I can remember crying out at this point and saying that I was a member of a religious organisation and that I believed in God..." AC146.2 paragraphs 7 to 8.

19.20.9. Mr Creagh then describes how a gun was put to his head, he was thrown into the back of a Saracen on top of someone else and how he heard the soldiers say "we'll throw them in Sandy Row or Shankill Road" AC146.2 paragraphs 9 to 10. He remembers a short journey in the Army vehicle after which he and the other person, who he discovered was Mr Muldoon, were thrown out on to the ground

"We were in a side street off the Shankill road. On the corner of the side street and the Shankill Road there was a bar, and a side door to the bar opened on to the side street where we had been dumped. As we lay there on the ground, a crowd of men came out of the bar, through the side door." AC146.2 paragraph 12

19.20.10. Mr Creagh then describes how one of the crowd shouted "are you the two IRA men". Despite his terror Mr Creagh was able to explain that himself and Mr Muldoon were volunteer workers in the Morning Star hostel in Divis Street and the crowd let them go AC146.2 paragraph 13. As they made their way home they were confronted by another crowd who attacked them. Mr Creagh managed to escape AC146.3 paragraph 15.

19.20.11. Mr Muldoon also describes how soldiers set upon him and Mr Creagh. Mr Muldoon then says

"They told us to lie on the ground and at that stage I was kicked in the ribs and they broke three ribs. I screamed because the pain was unimaginable – the muzzle of the rifle was put to my head and clicked a few times so I tried to muffle my screams. I think I did go out of consciousness and when I came round barbed wire was being dragged across me. I could feel the barbed edge through my trousers." AM496.2 paragraph 9

19.20.12. Mr Muldoon also states that he was sexually molested during the attack AM496.2 paragraph 10. He also describes being thrown "head first against the side of the Saracen" at which point he lost consciousness AM496.2 paragraph 13. This description bears a striking resemblance to that provided by Soldier 027. Mr Muldoon also describes being thrown out on to the street he describes being set upon by the crowd that came out of the pub AM496.2 paragraph 15. He also describes how he was being taken to a car by a number of people and thought he was going to die when soldiers intervened and he was taken to hospital AM496.3 paragraph 16. He spent six or seven days there and describes the, understandably, huge emotional impact the attack had on him AM496.3 paragraph 16.

19.20.13. When Mr Creagh was shown the account of the incident given by Soldier 027 he said

"it is entirely possible that this diary describes the actual incident that Raymond and I were involved in, albeit that no-one was castrated. My impression at the time was that the soldiers were trying to beat us up without marking us. They were going to leave that to the people in Shankill Road. If there was no similar incident that week in Belfast, then I am pretty sure that this diary refers to what happened to us." AC146.4 paragraph 24.

19.20.14. Mr Muldoon commented on Soldier 027s account thus "Much of what he describes does sound similar to the attack on Francis and me but obviously not all the incidents are the same." AM496.3 paragraph 21.

19.20.15. Attached to Mr Creagh's statement are papers relating to the action taken by him against the Ministry of Defence in respect of this incident AC146.11 to AC146.17. Mr Muldoon took a similar action. The cases were settled out of court. A document contained among the papers at AC146.16 is clearly an internal Ministry of Defence document. It is headed "NORTHERN IRELAND LITIGATION - RAYMOND MULDOON AND FRANCIS CREAGH" and states

> "The claims arise out of an incident which occurred on 3 February 1972 when Messrs Muldoon and Creagh allege that they were assaulted by soldiers....The Army account of the incident indicates that the two men were taken away for screening by a mobile patrol after cuttings of newspapers had been found on them containing IRA literature...There is evidence that the Security Forces used more force than was necessary....Moreover it is evident that they were dumped in a hostile area with little regard to their future safety." AC146.16

19.20.16. From the above it is clear that there was an internal investigation of some sort into the incident to the extent that those responsible gave their version of events - "The Army account of the incident...". It should therefore be possible for the Ministry of Defence to identify with precision who were the soldiers involved. They have not done so. Given that the production of such material would establish Soldier 027's unreliability and would be crucial in showing that Soldier 027's allegations against Soldiers Lt 119, F, G, H and 036 were false it can be presumed that their legal representatives have asked for, and the Ministry of Defence has conducted, a search for any material relevant to this incident. It would appear that not all of it has been provided to this Tribunal.

19.20.17. When Lt 119 gave oral evidence he was asked about this incident. He said that he "remembered being involved in an operation in support of another unit, um, at around that time." Day 363/181/18 to Day 363/181/19. However he did not remember any of the elements of the incident described in Soldier 027's account. In fact he said "I do not believe it happened sir, and if it had happened I would have stopped it, put it like that" Day 363/184/5 to Day 363/184/6.

19.20.18. Not surprisingly Soldier F said he had no recollection of the incident and then that he was not engaged in an operation which involved dumping a Catholic who had already been beaten in the Shankill Road Day 375/174/17 to Day 375/176/19.

19.20.19. Soldier H said "Not only was I not present, sir, I believe that to be a lie, I just cannot imagine anybody being banged into an armoured personnel vehicle head first and living to tell the story about it." Day 377/134/10 to Day 374/134/13.

19.20.20. Soldier 036 lives outside the jurisdiction, has not co-operated with the Tribunal, and was not asked about the incident when questioned by Mr Tate.

19.20.21. We therefore make the following submissions

i) That the incident involving Mr Creagh and Mr Muldoon is the same incident as that described by Soldiers 027 and INQ 1243;

ii) That Mr Creagh and Mr Muldoon were savagely beaten by members of the Anti-Tank Platoon, Support Company, 1 Para on 3rd February 1972;

iii) That they were abducted and dumped in an area where they were in mortal danger;

iv) That the Ministry of Defence is aware of the background to and circumstances of this incident;

v) That they have failed to identify the individuals involved for the assistance of the Tribunal;

vi) The Tribunal should therefore be in a position to draw an inference that those involved were soldiers Lt 119, F, G, H and 036;

vii) That soldiers Lt 119, F and H lied to this Tribunal when they indicated that they knew nothing of this incident;

viii) That Soldiers Lt 119, F, G, H and 036 were at the very least present while this incident took place and that at least soldiers F, G, and H took part in the assault on Mr Creagh and Mr Muldoon;

ix) That the circumstances relating to this incident provide clear evidence of the following

a) The casual brutality of Soldiers F, G, and H;

b) The inability of Lt 119 to control his troops, or alternatively, his acquiescence in and approval of, their actions;

c) The failure of the Ministry of Defence to co-operate fully with this Inquiry by providing relevant evidence where it is clearly in their possession.

19.21 Conclusions

19.21.1. After firing at civilians behind the rubble barricade on Rossville Street some members of Anti-Tank Platoon left the low wall at Kells Walk and advanced along Rossville Street, entering Glenfada Park North by its northeastern entrance. It seems likely that Soldiers F and G entered the car park first and, immediately upon entering, opened fire on civilians some of whom were attempting to flee the area via the alleyway at the southwestern corner of Glenfada Park. The evidence shows that most of those killed and injured were in this vicinity.

19.21.2. It also seems likely that Soldiers E, H, J, David Longstaff and Lieutenant 119 entered Glenfada Park shortly after Soldiers F and G. Soldiers E and H also opened fire there. When shooting was finished three men lay dead or wounded along the pavement, which runs along the southern side of the car park. Where they fell is clearly depicted in P439. The injuries sustained by these three men, Willie McKinney, Joseph Mahon and Jim Wray are consistent with the civilian evidence that they were shot from the direction of the northeastern corner of Glenfada Park North as they were running from east to west towards the exit to Abbey Park.

19.21.3. P439, consistently with the civilian evidence, clearly shows an absence of riot debris on the ground in Glenfada Park North. Nor is there any evidence of damage caused by nail or petrol bombs.

19.21.4. Soldier G advanced to the southwestern exit of Glenfada Park which leads to Abbey Park. From this position he discharged a number of rounds as a result of which Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney were fatally wounded.

19.21.5. Soldier F advanced to the southeastern exit of Glenfada Park which leads to Rossville Street. From this position he discharged a number of rounds towards sector 5.

19.21.6. It is submitted that the evidence clearly and indisputably establishes the following:

i) William McKinney, Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey were shot and killed by soldiers of Anti-Tank Platoon, Support Company, 1 Para.

ii) They were shot and killed in circumstances which were unjustified.

iii) Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel and Patrick O'Donnell were shot and injured by soldiers of Anti-Tank Platoon, Support Company, 1 Para.

iv) They were shot and injured in circumstances which were unjustified.

v) None of the deceased or injured was armed when shot and no action taken by any of them justified the shooting by soldiers who fired in Glenfada Park and Abbey Park.

vi) No action taken by any of the deceased or injured either posed a threat, or could have been perceived as posing a threat, to the soldiers.

vii) There were no civilian gunmen, no nail bombers and no petrol bombers in Glenfada Park or Abbey Park on Bloody Sunday.

viii) There was no action by any individual in Glenfada Park or Abbey Park which either posed a threat, or could have been perceived as posing a threat such as to justify the shooting.

ix) Nobody was killed in Glenfada Park other than William McKinney and Jim Wray both of whom were murdered by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon

x) Nobody was shot and injured in Glenfada Park other than Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel, Patrick O'Donnell, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie all of whom were shot and injured by soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon.

xi) Nobody was killed in Abbey Park other than Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey both of who were murdered by Soldier G.

19.21.7. Role and Responsibility of Individual Soldiers in Anti-Tank Platoon

19.21.7.1. Based on the foregoing examination of the evidence, the role and responsibility of individual soldiers in Anti-Tank Platoon who were involved in Sector 4 can be summarised as follows.

19.21.7.2. Lt 119

i) Was not in effective command or control of his platoon at any time on Bloody Sunday;

ii) He failed to take any or adequate steps to acquire sufficient understanding of the conditions in Derry and the Bogside in particular;

iii) He failed to take any or adequate steps to obtain clear guidance and instructions about the purpose of the operation to be undertaken by his battalion; his own role and that of his platoon; any restrictions and constraints imposed on the operation, concerning in particular the geographical limits of their deployment, the use of their firearms and their contingency plans in the event of gunfire of any kind; and the likelihood of coming under fire;

iv) He failed to give any or adequate briefing to the members of his platoon concerning these matters;

v) When his platoon debussed, he exercised no supervision or control of any kind over his men at any stage during the material events even when it was obvious that they were shooting at innocent civilians;

vi) He saw the actions of his troops in Glenfada Park and Abbey Park and failed to take any or adequate steps to prevent them from exercising, inter alia, unlawful lethal force;

vii) Ordered or allowed those sheltering at the south gable end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North to be illegally detained and unlawfully arrested;

viii) In the foregoing circumstances and as leader of the platoon whose members shot dead William McKinney, Jim Wray, Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey and wounded Joseph Mahon, Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Friel, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie Lt 119 bears a personal responsibility for murdering William McKinney, Jim Wray, Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey and causing grievous bodily harm to Joseph Mahon, Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Friel, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie.

19.21.7.3. Corporal E

i) lied about the reason for soldiers moving into Glenfada Park;

ii) led soldiers into Glenfada Park without authorisation;

iii) led soldiers into Glenfada Park in circumstances where he was aware that there was a risk they would open fire on innocent civilians;

iv) lied about what he and the other soldiers encountered when they entered the park;

v) lied about soldiers being attacked and missiles being thrown;

vi) lied about seeing a man throwing a petrol bomb and a nail bomb;

vii) was or became aware of the circumstances in which his colleagues opened fire in Glenfada Park and Abbey Park;

viii) may have shot and wounded Patrick O'Donnell;

ix) may have fired more shots than he admitted to;

x) lied about the circumstances in which people were arrested from Glenfada Park;

xi) knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of Fergus McAteer, Joseph McColgan, Seamus Liddy and John Liddy.

19.21.7.4. Soldier F

i) Did not come under threat in Glenfada Park;

ii) Did not see civilians acting in an aggressive or hostile manner;

iii) Was not justified in opening fire in Glenfada Park;

iv) May have fired more shots in Glenfada Park than he has admitted to;

v) May have murdered Willie McKinney;

vi) May have injured Joseph Mahon;

vii) Either saw or became aware of the circumstances in which other members of his platoon, namely E, G and H opened fire in Glenfada Park and Abbey Park; viii) Knew or became aware that they were not justified in opening fire on Bloody Sunday;

ix) Knew that they had committed murder on that day;

x) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of Terence O'Keefe, Thomas Bradley, Patrick Norris and Michael McCallion.

19.21.7.5. Soldier G

xi) Did not see civilians in possession of firearms or what looked like firearms in Glenfada Park on Bloody Sunday;

xii) Did not shoot civilian(s) who he thought was/were in possession of firearms there;

xiii) Did not come under threat in Glenfada Park;

xiv) May have shot and wounded Joseph Friel.

xv) Did not see civilians acting in an aggressive or hostile manner there;

xvi) Was not justified in opening fire in Glenfada Park; xvii) May have fired more shots in Glenfada Park than he has admitted to; xviii) Either saw or became aware of the circumstances in which other members of his platoon, namely E, F and H opened fire in Glenfada Park;

xix) Knew or became aware that they were not justified in opening fire on Bloody Sunday;

xx) Knew that they had committed murder on that day;

xxi) Murdered Gerard McKinney; xxii) Murdered Gerard Donaghey; xxiii) Failed to provide any information relating to the deaths of Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey; xxiv) Fired more rounds than he admitted to;

xxv) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of Joseph Norris, Christopher Doherty and John Noel Devine.

19.21.7.6. Soldier H

i) Did not see civilians in possession of a nail bomb(s) or what looked like a nail bomb(s) in Glenfada Park on Bloody Sunday;

ii) Did not shoot civilian(s) who he thought were about to throw a nail bomb;

iii) Did not come under threat in Glenfada Park;

iv) Did not see civilians acting in an aggressive or hostile manner;

v) Was not justified in opening fire in Glenfada Park;

vi) May have murdered Willie McKinney;

vii) May have shot and injured Joseph Mahon;

viii) May have shot and injured Joseph Friel;

ix) May have shot and injured Patrick O'Donnell;

x) Did not fire his twenty two shots in the manner he has described;

xi) Witnessed or became aware of the circumstances in which his colleagues (in particular F and G) opened fire;

xii) Knew or became aware that they were not justified in opening fire on Bloody Sunday; xiii) Knew that they had committed murder on that day.

19.21.7.7. Soldier J

i) Did not come under threat in Glenfada Park;

ii) Did not see civilians acting in an aggressive or hostile manner;

iii) Witnessed or became aware of the circumstances in which his colleagues (in particular F and G) opened fire;

iv) Knew or became aware that they were not justified in opening fire on Bloody Sunday;

v) Knew that they had committed murder on that day;

vi) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of Anthony Coll and John Gormley.

19.21.7.8. David Longstaff

i) Witnessed or became aware of the circumstances in which his colleagues (in particular F and G) opened fire;

ii) Knew or became aware that they were not justified in opening fire on Bloody Sunday;

iii) Knew that they had committed murder on that day;

iv) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of George Roberts and James Joseph Kelly.

19.21.7.9. INQ 635

i) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of George Irwin, James McNulty and John Rogers.

19.21.7.10. INQ 1694

i) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of Hugh O'Boyle and Robert Wallace.

19.21.7.11. INQ 1237

i) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of George McDermott and Charles Glenn.

19.21.7.12. Soldier 229

i) Knowingly gave false information to police in order to ground the arrests of Patrick McGinley, Denis McLaughlin and Joseph Lynn.

19.21.7.13. Finally, all of the above soldiers perverted the course of justice, individually and collectively, in relation to the events of Bloody Sunday by concealing the criminal behaviour of their colleagues in Anti-Tank Platoon and ensuring that they would evade prosecution for their crimes. Those who gave untruthful evidence on oath or affirmation also committed perjury.

20. SECTOR 5

20.1 General overview and summary of submissions

20.1.1 Two people were killed and two people were wounded in the area behind block 2 of Rossville Flats on Bloody Sunday. These shootings were the last on the day following the shooting of Hugh Gilmore on the eastern side of Rossville Street. Patrick Campbell was wounded first in this sector. He was assisted by Danny McGowan. Danny McGowan was then shot and wounded. Paddy Doherty was shot dead followed by Barney McGuigan, who had gone out to assist him. Given the location of these shootings, the only realistic candidates for these killings and woundings are members of the Anti-Tank Platoon who had arrived at the entrance of Glenfada Park North. Soldier F of the Anti-Tank Platoon has admitted in oral evidence killing Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan. The number of killings and woundings exceeds the number of shots admitted by a single solider in this area. It is clear that the soldiers have failed to account, even now, for those woundings.

20.1.2 It is submitted the evidence supports the following conclusions:

i. All of the deceased and injured in Sector 5 were shot by soldiers.
ii. All of the deceased and injured in Sector 5 were unarmed when shot.
iii. As well as the murder of Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan the weight of the evidence suggests that Soldier F shot and wounded Patrick Campbell and Danny McGowan.
iv. They were shot deliberately and not accidentally and without any justification.
v. None of the deceased or injured had handled a gun or a bomb at any time on Bloody Sunday
vi. None of the deceased or injured had acted in support of any person handling or using a gun or bomb at any time on Bloody Sunday.

vii. None of the deceased or injured was doing anything at the time they were shot, which would have led the soldiers responsible for shooting them to believe that they posed a threat of any kind.

viii. None of the deceased or injured was in the vicinity of civilian gunmen or bombers when shot. Nothing was taking place in the vicinity of the deceased or injured at the time they were shot, which would have led the soldiers to believe that their lives or the lives of their colleagues were at risk.

ix. Only one solider acknowledges firing two shots into this area at a man with a pistol behind block 2 of Rossville Flats. There was therefore no gun battle and no exchange of fire.

x. There was no man with a pistol behind block 2 of Rossville Flats fired at by Soldier F.

xi. Soldier F opened fire without justification.

xii. It is an incontrovertible fact that due to the number of deceased and wounded, soldiers fired more shots into this area than they accounted for. This proposition is also supported by the civilian evidence.

xiii. There are no "missing casualties" in this sector. All of the persons killed and wounded have been accounted for.

20.2 Overview of civilian evidence Sector 5

Sequence of events.

20.2.1 In Sector 5, two people were shot and killed, Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan and two people were shot and wounded, Patrick Campbell and Daniel McGowan. The order of these shootings, as suggested by the civilian evidence, is that Patrick Campbell was the first to be shot, followed by Danny McGowan, then Patrick Doherty and lastly, Barney McGuigan.

20.2.2 Geraldine McBride was with Hugh Gilmore when he died. AM45.4 paragraph 21. She was still positioned at the gable end of block 1 of Rossville Flats, huddled by a telephone box with ten to twelve others, Day 146/30/3 to Day 146/30/16 and AM45.5 paragraph 22. One of this group of people was Barney McGuigan. At AM45.5 paragraph 25 she recalled how he stepped away from the group whilst waving a white handkerchief. Day 146/33/10 to Day 146/33/23. He moved out slowly and had travelled ten to twelve feet when the witness heard shots similar to the shots she had heard when Hugh Gilmore was shot. She remembered hearing two distinct shots, but it was the second of the two that she recalls hitting Barney McGuigan on the head. AM45.5 paragraph 26. Geraldine McBride was aware of shooting from the Glenfada Park area and across Rossville Street. Day 146/24/3 to Day 146/24/15 and AM45.6 paragraph 28.

20.2.3 Donna Harkin was located in a flat on the first floor of block 2 of Rossville Flats. AH13.5 paragraphs 26 to 28. She positioned herself at the kitchen window of the flat, which overlooked Joseph Place, to the south of block 2 of Rossville Flats. From there she saw a man lying on the ground, who she believed had been shot. AH13.5 paragraph 33. She then saw a group of five men crawling towards Joseph Place from the alleyway between block 2 and 3 of Rossville Flats. AH13.6 paragraph 34. The witness believed that the ongoing shooting was coming from the Glenfada Park area, Day 171/123/8 to Day 171/124/5, AH13.6 paragraph 37, and it was shortly after that she saw Paddy Doherty shot as he was lying on the ground. AH13.6 paragraph 38. She then could see Patrick Walsh trying to make his way out to help Patrick Doherty, this took some five minutes, as there was continuous shooting going on at this time. Day 171/127/4 to Day 171/127/9. Once Patrick Walsh had reached Patrick Doherty he turned him over, it was then obvious to Donna Harkin that Patrick Doherty was dead. AH13.7 paragraphs 41 to 42.

20.2.4 Patrick Walsh recalled in his statement to this Inquiry, at AW5.2 paragraph 12 that he was running for shelter from the gunfire and heard what he described as a thud. He thought that it was the sound of a person falling or fainting. He saw a man lying on the ground. The witness could not recall exactly where the person was, but he remembered crawling out to help. Once Patrick Walsh had reached the man on the ground, he searched him for a form of identification. The witness believed that the man was already dead by the time he reached him. AW5.3 paragraph 14. The witness also searched the man for a weapon, as he thought he had been shot due to being armed. He did not have a weapon of any kind. While the witness was with the man, he could hear the "whoosh" of bullets as they passed over his head. AW5.3 paragraph 15. Patrick Walsh also recalled seeing the body of Barney McGuigan. AW5.3 paragraph 18.

20.2.5 Edmund Melaugh described at AM398.4 paragraphs 18 to 20 taking shelter behind the gable end of block 1 and still hearing the sound of gunfire after seeing people he thought had been shot at the Rubble Barricade. He thought there was still shooting coming from further north up Rossville Street. He could see soldiers advancing into Glenfada Park North Courtyard. He thought maybe four or five. They started to shoot across Glenfada Park South. Then one dropped to his knees near the centre of Glenfada Park North and started shooting towards the hexagonal flowerbed and the south gable end of block 1.[1] AM398.11 paragraph 20. He said at Day 170/116/15 to Day 170/116/24 that he did not see him fire but that was where he was aiming the gun. At AM398.4 paragraph 21 to 24 he described running along the back of block 2 to Joseph Place. He went into the alleyway and saw people hiding all along the alleyway. At AM398.4 paragraph 25 he heard someone behind him call out "I'm shot". He saw two people at the entrance to the alleyway who were both wounded. He thought the shots would have come from the soldiers in Glenfada Park North. One was in his thirties and one was in his fifties. One was wounded in the ankle and the other around the hip. Day 170/120/13 to Day 170/121/1. At the time he assumed they had been shot by the soldiers shooting towards Joseph Place from Glenfada Park North. Another man helped drag the two wounded men about half way down the alleyway before other people took them. He then went on to describe events surrounding the shooting of Patrick Doherty. He confirmed his recollection that he saw Patrick Doherty crawling after the two people were shot. Day 170/120/7 to Day 170/120/9.

20.2.6 Edward Dillon said in his statement to this Inquiry at AD45.1 paragraph 5 that he heard shooting begin almost as soon as he had witnessed the Army vehicles travelling along Rossville Street towards Free Derry Corner. On hearing these shots the witness ran to take shelter and moved along the rear of block 2 of Rossville Flats, towards Joseph Place. He stood at the rear of Joseph Place close to the adjoining wall of Fahan Street East. AD45.2 paragraph 6. A few seconds later a man arrived in the same place, who told the witness that he had been shot. The man was holding his right leg and had a bad wound below the knee. AD45.2 paragraph 7. This man was unknown to the witness, but he has since learned that the man was Daniel McGowan. AD45.2 paragraph 8. As Edward Dillon went out to assist Danny McGowan, he saw another man who was lying on the ground facing towards Joseph Place. The man shouted to the witness that he would assist him to carry Danny McGowan. As he shouted this, he was shot. AD45.2 paragraph 9. The witness did not know the man at the time, but learned years later that it was Patrick Doherty.

20.2.7 The witness wanted to go out and help Patrick Doherty but did not as the shooting was too intense. He described assisting Danny McGowan after he had been shot. He helped Danny McGowan along the alleyway behind Joseph Place to the south eastern end of the alleyway just facing St.Columb's Wells and into a car. AD45.3 paragraph 10 to 11. Day 174/75/7 to Day 174/76/8. Edward Dillon then returned to block 2 of Rossville Flats, where he saw the body of Barney McGuigan lying on the ground, covered with a blanket or a jacket. There was a small crowd of people standing around at this point and the witness remained there and discussed what had happened with the group. AD45.3 paragraph 13.

20.2.8 John Hutton, at AH105.5 paragraph 7, described crawling into a house at Joseph Place, from where he watched events. From the living room window he could see in a northwesterly direction, across to Glenfada Park and the Rubble Barricade. His attention was caught by a soldier looking around the corner of Glenfada Park North, who stuck his head around the corner and then moved back out of sight. AH105.5 paragraph 8. Immediately after this, the soldier moved out from the corner and adopted a firing position, firing a shot towards the gap between block 2 of Rossville Flats and the northern end of Joseph Place. AH105.5 paragraph 9. The witness then saw the same soldier shoot Barney McGuigan from the same position at Glenfada Park North. AH105.6 paragraphs 10 to 11. A second soldier then joined the first one. Day 185/52/21 to Day 185/53/7.

20.2.9 John Davies was positioned at end of Block 1, beside the alley between block 1 and block 2 of Rossville Flats. He heard a "crack" sound whilst in that position. AD8.2 paragraph 12. He was beside Barney McGuigan when he was shot. AD8.3 paragraphs 14 to 17. He did not see any other bodies on the ground. AD8.4 paragraph 20

20.2.10 James Quinn was at the gable at the southern end of the eastern block of Glenfada Park North when three soldiers arrived and told those there to put their hands on their heads. He decided to make a run for it and ran towards the houses in Joseph Place. AQ10.6 paragraph 32. As he did so three or four shots rang out. They seemed to come from behind him. He assumed the shots had been fired at him. Day 179/67/11 to Day 179/68/12.

20.2.11 Joseph Doherty said that he saw two soldiers at the corner of Glenfada Park North (when he gave evidence to the BSI he changed this to Glenfada Park South but agreed that this might be mistaken). One soldier moved out of sight, the first stayed at the opening. The first soldier dropped to his knee, took aim and fired one shot at Bernard Mc Guigan who fell to the ground. He fired two other shots. The second soldier had retreated at the time of the firing but returned and called the first soldier back. The soldiers went back in the direction they had come from. Day 138/149/1 to Day 138.

20.2.12 Thomas Harrigan saw a man fall, possibly injured, whilst running towards the gap between blocks 1 and 2 of Rossville Flats. AH39.4 paragraph 20. He also saw two men fall around the area of the telephone box at the rear of block 1 of Rossville Flats. AB39.4 paragraphs 23 to 26.

20.2.13 Patrick Boyle made a statement in 1972. He said:

> 'I was round the corner at the phone box when the shooting began.... Across the street there were 40 or 50 people with their hands above their head. Before this another man who had been shot was dragged around the corner. A soldier with the crowd of 40 or 50 turned round and fired across the street. The chap beside me, Mr Mc Guigan, fell dead.'

20.2.14 Brian Joseph McCool in his 1972 statement described the moving of Hugh Gilmore's body around the corner of Block 1. At that time the army opened fire from the direction of Glenfada Park at an acute angle. and saw Barney McGuigan being shot. AM133.4 paragraphs 21 to 25.

20.2.15 Patrick McCrudden saw the body of Paddy Doherty, AM153.4 paragraphs 22 to 26, and also saw the body of Barney McGuigan. AM153.5 paragraph 30. He did not see any civilian carrying weapons or bombs. AM153.5 paragraph 32. He remembered hearing perhaps five , eight or ten shots fired in quick sucession at Patrick Walsh as he crawled out to Patrick Doherty. He though the gunfire was coming from the general area of Glenfada Park. Day 204/39/17 to Day 204/41/18.

20.2.16 Sean McDaid witnessed the body of Hugh Gilmore. AM174.2 paragraph 11. He then saw soldiers running across balconies of Glenfada Park North. All of them were carrying guns, but the witness did not see any shooting. AM174.3 paragraph 13. He was beside Barney McGuigan when he was shot. The witness did not hear the actual shot due to the ongoing commotion around him, but believed that the shot was fired from the direction of Glenfada Park. AM174.3 paragraphs 15 to 17. The witness heard further intense shooting from Rossville Street towards Free Derry Corner and from Glenfada Park across Rossville Street. AM174.4 paragraph 18. He saw a bullet hit the wall of block 2 of Rossville Flats while two men were running across the gap between blocks 1 and 2 of Rossville Flats. AM174.4 paragraph 19.

20.2.17 Thomas Bernard McDaid witnessed the events from 11 Joseph Place. He was a cousin of Barney McGuigan, who was in the house shortly before he was shot. AM176.1 paragraphs 1 to 2. He heard a commotion outside the house and then a "crackling" sound, but was unsure of direction of the crackling noise. AM176.1 paragraph 3. He looked out of a window towards block 2 of Rossville Flats and saw a large crowd of people gathered, some of which were lying on ground. He saw Barney McGuigan take steps forward then fall over. He could still hear the crackling noise, which at this time witness had realised was gunfire. AM176.1 paragraph 4. He then saw three soldiers moving down Rossville Street, they were not moving very quickly. One of the soldiers saw the witness looking out of window and raised his rifle towards him. AM176.2 paragraph 5.

20.2.18 Jean Marie McGeehan was positioned in 36 Garvan Place, in block 2 of Rossville Flats. AM228.1 paragraph 1. From there she saw three men moving across the wall from block 2 towards Joseph Place. AM228.3 paragraph 15 to AM228.4 paragraph 21. None of the three men were carrying anything. AM228.4 paragraph 24. She also witnessed a photographer exit the gap between blocks 2 and 3 of Rossville Flats, holding up his camera and a white hanky. He was facing towards Rossville Street. AM228.4 paragraph 22. She did not hear any nail bombs or shots fired from Rossville Flats. AM228.5 paragraph 26.

20.2.19 Danny McGowan saw Hugh Gilmore fall whilst walking towards the gap between block 1 and 2 of Rossville Flats. AM255.1 paragraph 6. The witness then saw Patrick Campbell and went to help him. AM255.2 paragraphs 10 to 12. The witness was then shot in the leg whilst helping Patrick Campbell. AM255.2 paragraph 13. He was unsure of direction of the shot that hit him. AM255.3 paragraph 14. He was then taken to a car by two men, who tried to take him to Altnagelvin Hospital. The route was blocked by soldiers, so the car was turned round and the witness was taken home. AM255.3 paragraph 16. He was then taken to hospital by ambulance. AM255.3 paragraph 17.

20.2.20 Paul James McLaughlin was a member of the Order of Malta. He heard a loud bang while crossing Rubble Barricade on Rossville Street. He believes he was shot at. AM350.4 paragraph 22. He did not see any soldiers at Glenfada Park North or the Rubble Barricade at this point. AM350.4 paragraph 23. He then tended to Hugh Gilmore. AM350.4 paragraphs 25 to 27. He saw shots hitting a concrete plinth and believed that these shots were fired from Glenfada Park North. AM350.5 paragraph 30. The witness saw Paddy Doherty, AM350.5 paragraph 31, and witnessed Barney McGuigan shot. AM350.5 paragraph32 to AM350.6 paragraph 38. He also tended to Alana Burke. AM350.7 paragraph 40. The witness saw no civilian with a gun and did not hear any nail bombs exploding. AM350.7 paragraph 44.

20.2.21 Peter McLaughlin saw Paddy Doherty pulling himself along the ground, then shot. He placed shots as being fired from the direction of Rossville Street. AM352.3 paragraphs 18 to 21. A number of other witnesses saw firing into this area before Patrick Doherty was shot.[2] 20.2.23 John Martin Campbell saw Patrick Walsh behind block 2 of Rossville Flats. AC14.4 paragraphs 18 to 19 and also saw the bodies of Hugh Gilmore and Barney McGuigan. AC14.4 paragraph 22.

20.2.24 John Anthony Dunleavey made his way to the gap between blocks 2 and 3 of Rossville Flats and pushed his way through crowds. AD167.3 paragraphs 16 to 17. He had heard six or seven shots fired in Rossville Street. AD167.4 paragraph 18. The witness saw Paddy Doherty being carried to an ambulance. AD167.4 paragraph 19. He also saw the body of Barney McGuigan on ground AD167.4 paragraph 20 and saw the body of Hugh Gilmore. AD167.4 paragraph 21.

20.2.25 John Gerard O'Connor heard live shots fired while he was positioned at Joseph Place. AO11.7 paragraph 10. He heard further shooting while taking shelter, but did not think that shooting was coming from City Walls. AO11.7 paragraph 12. He did not see any civilian with a weapon or hear any nail bombs. AO11.8 paragraph 15.

Conclusion

The civilian evidence indicates clearly the fear and terror of civilians as they sought shelter behind the gable end of block 1 of the Rossville Flats and also in the gaps between blocks 2 and 3 of the flats and the Joseph Place alleyway. There is a body of evidence which indicates considerably more army firing in the area than the two shots fired by Soldier F into the gap behind block 2 of the Rossville Flats. There is also consistent civilian evidence as to the lack of hostile activity in the area by civilians.

[2] Charles McLaughlin, AM322.4 paragraph 24 and Day 90/114/12 to Day 90/115/15. Joseph Nicholas AN17.20 and Day 78/34/16 to Day 78/34/24. Derrick Tucker AT15.4 paragraphs 27 to 28 and Day 99/19/5 to Day 99/20/19.

20.4 Patrick Campbell

20.4.1 Personal Details and Background.

20.4.1.1 Patrick Campbell was aged 53 on Bloody Sunday. He was a married man with nine children from the Creggan area of Derry. He worked as a docker for Pinkerton Ship Merchants. He had no criminal record or any political affiliations. When his son John was told on the day that his father had been shot he thought at first it was a mistake. When he got home the house was in utter chaos. They had heard people say that Patrick Campbell had been shot but no-one knew for certain. The family later learned he had been taken to Altnagelvin. After the events Patrick Campbell did not talk much about the events of Bloody Sunday. He told them he had been shot somewhere around Joseph Place. He told his family that the soldier who shot him had it on his conscience and that he had shot an innocent man. Patrick Campbell weighed 16 stone when he was shot and could do a good hard day's work. After he was shot he lost a lot of weight. His son John thought he was never the same man again and he seemed to go downhill day by day. At AC14.5 paragraph 29 John Campbell summarised the view of the family and the uncontested truth concerning the actions of his father on the day:

"I know for a fact that my father was a completely innocent man who would never have hurt a fly.."

Timing of the shooting.

20.4.1.2 Patrick Campbell was shot at about the time that the paratroopers were in Glenfada Park and he saw them in Glenfada Park. Bernard McMonagle took him from St. Columb's Wells at about 4.15pm to 4.20pm. They were stopped and taken to the Regimental Aid Post at Foyle Bridge. The journey had taken no more than ten minutes. From the Regimental Aid post he was driven by or with Captain 138 by army ambulance to Altnagelvin Hospital where he was admitted at 4.45pm. Temporary Document 20.3. Two soldiers and Joe Friel were also in the vehicle.

20.4.2 Civilian Evidence on the shooting of Patrick Campbell.

20.4.2.1 The balance of the evidence suggests that Patrick Campbell was shot somewhere south of block 2 of the Rossville Flats. He was then helped to the alleyway behind Joseph Place. There is some evidence he was taken to a house in Joseph Place. There is clear evidence he was taken to St. Columb's Wells and from there he was taken in a car, which was stopped at the Regimental First Aid Post at Craigavon Bridge.

20.4.2.2 Patrick Campbell, who has since died, was shot at the south of the Rossville flats. He did not give evidence to Lord Widgery, probably because of his condition after the shooting. He gave a statement to the police on Monday 7th February at Altnagelvin at 12 noon.

20.4.2.3 In the statement at ED27.7 he described having a meal at home at about 1.30pm on 30 January 1972. After this he went to the big field near Saint Mary's church to where the civil rights march was starting from. When the crowd moved off he took up a position with his mates near the end of the march. They walked down Southway, along the Lone Moor Road, down Creggan Street into William Street. The crowd stopped in William Street and he was near Stevenson's bakery. He went down towards Little James Street. The gas was quite strong near Little James Street, so he went up Rossville Street out of the way of it. He stood for some time beyond the small barricade, which was outside the Rossville Flats looking down towards William Street.

20.4.2.4 The Army tanks then came into Rossville Street and the soldiers jumped out. At this he turned and ran towards the gable end of the Rossville Flats. This would appear to be south of block 1. He stood there for a few minutes and then ran across the waste ground towards Free Derry Corner. He then felt like a thud in his lower back and fell on to his knees. He put his hand to his hip and saw there was blood on it. He then put his hand up and called that he was shot. Some men then came and took him into a house near Free Derry Corner, and he was kept waiting here for a car to take him to hospital.

20.4.2.5 After some time a car took him to along Foyle Road under the bridge, where an Army medic took him out of the car and put him on a stretcher and dressed his wound. According to the descriptions of other witnesses this must have been the regimental first aid post of the Royal Anglians at Craigavon Bridge. They then put the witness into an ambulance and brought him up to the hospital. He was not a member of any organisation and only went to the civil rights march because everyone else was going. He was not carrying any object prior to being shot.

Interview with Sunday Times.

20.4.2.6 Notes of an interview with Patrick Campbell by the Sunday Times, dated 1st March 1972 are at AC19.1. He said he had been on the march from the Creggan and got as far as the Rossville/William corner when he got a bad whiff of gas. He moved along Rossville Street and crossed the barricade outside the flats and stood there. As he looked back down Rossville Street he saw the Saracens coming in. He saw soldiers jumping out and when the shooting began he made a dive for cover behind a small gable near the telephone box. From there he could see soldiers milling about in Glenfada Park. He then made a dash for Joseph Place and was shot in the back (the wound is at the base of the spine). Originally the interview note read: "Medical evidence needed." Then, in manuscript, there has been added:

> "Michael McClusker ran at same time. Recalls a man running with him, falling, and saw blood on his coat at the back."

The notes continued that after that Patrick Campbell remembered virtually nothing. Notes originally referred to a house in "St. Columb's Wells" but the words "St. Joseph Place" were inserted. He was then taken in a private car and on the way to Altnagelvin, just before the bridge at Barrack Street, the car was stopped by the Army and he was put into an Army vehicle. Joe Friel was there at the time. The notes then referred to whether it was the same car as Joe Friel and the driver being Mr. McMonagle. It was noted that he had been visited by Special Branch. His wife had his clothing, complete with the bullet hole in his trousers.

20.4.2.7 AC19.3 is the map that is attached to The Sunday Times notes of the interview of Patrick Campbell. The map shows where he initially stood in Rossville Street, where he dived for cover to the south of block 1 and an indication where he was when he was shot. The only direct account of the wounding of Patrick Campbell, appears in the statement of Patrick Campbell himself.[3] Contemporary Police Report.

20.4.2.8 A police report at ED27.3, from a Detective Inspector reads as follows:

"On Monday, 7th February at midday I interviewed the above named [Patrick Campbell] in the presence of Mr Bennett, consultant surgeon. Campbell was one of the persons more seriously wounded as a result of the troubles on 30th January and as a result could not be interviewed until the 7th inst. Campbell elected to make and sign a written statement which involves him in the civil rights march, which relates his action during the period in question. It will be noted from the medical report that he has sustained serious injuries and is likely to be in hospital for some time. He appears to be a jovial type notwithstanding his injuries and he was most co-operative."

20.4.2.9 Danny McGowan at AM255.2 paragraphs 8 to 12 of his statement to this Inquiry described the scene around the body of Hugh Gilmore at the gable end of block 1 of Rossville Flats. Danny Magowan can be seen in the photograph AM255.6 near the telephone box. When this photograph was taken he described the shooting continuing and people scattering in various directions to take cover. Some ran to Free Derry Corner. He, along with others, remained where they were, pressed up against the south gable of block 1. It was then that he saw Patrick Campbell, whom he knew, walking like a man who had a few bottles in him. When he first saw him, Patrick Campbell was in the area to the south of block 2 of the Rossville Flats, by the shops, which were on its ground floor. This area was marked C on the map at AM255.9. Patrick Campbell was leaning against the wall of the shops as if to prevent himself from falling, and was staggering in a southeasterly direction towards Joseph Place. In the witness' view he had emerged from the gap between blocks 1 and 2 of the Rossville flats. He went over to Patrick Campbell and helped him to the alleyway to the east of Joseph Place, the entrance to which was marked D on the map at AM255.9. The witness only realised he had been hit when he saw him and he said 'I am shot, I am shot'. He could not see where he had been hit as he was wearing a heavy coat. His impression was that he had been shot in the market (Rossville Flats car park) before emerging through the gap between blocks 1 and 2 of the Rossville Flats.

20.4.2.10 The alleyway to which he helped Patrick Campbell was formed by the gap between the wall on the southern side of the houses in Joseph Place and a retaining wall for the steep banking which lead up to the city walls. It was packed with men, women and children taking cover from the shooting.

20.4.2.11 It was so packed that it was difficult for Patrick Campbell and the witness to fit in. He realised that he could not take Patrick Campbell much further (as he weighed some 15 stone) so he left him in the care of some people in the alleyway. He then decided to make his way up another set of steps which led from the entrance of the alleyway to Fahan Street East and which are shown on AM255.9. At AM255.2 paragraph 13 Danny McGowan then described how he was shot.

20.4.2.12 At AM189.5 paragraph 20, William McDermott described how half a dozen shots were fired while he was at Joseph Place, looking out of one of the windows. Women and children were also taking shelter in there and were panicking. He went down the stairs to the Rossville Street entrance of the alleyway between the two blocks of Joseph Place. He wanted to see what else was happening. He saw Patrick Campbell in the alleyway behind Joseph Place being 'oxtored' or carried by two other men, south along the alleyway. His legs were bent and he seemed to be dragging his toes along the ground. He was moaning, but the witness did not think he was badly hurt. He was wearing a gabardine dark beige raincoat. He did not speak to him.

20.4.2.12 He thought he was taken to the back entrance of someone's house in Joseph Place. At AM189.5 paragraph 22 he said that as he was peeping out of the alleyway, he heard a bullet pass close to his head which hit the wall overhead. He heard a thud above his head. The shot seemed to be fired from the area of Glenfada Park, although he did not see any soldiers there. Whoever fired the shot must have seen the witness before he saw him. He thought that the shot was aimed at. It was too close for comfort so he took cover again. The shooting then died down.

20.4.2.13 It is possible in the light of that evidence that Patrick Campbell was taken first to a house in Joseph Place and then in St Columb's Wells.

20.4.2.14 Edmund Melaugh gave evidence to this Inquiry at Day 170. In his statement to the Inquiry at AM398.4 paragraphs 18 to 20 he described taking shelter behind the gable end of block 1 and still hearing the sound of gun-fire after seeing people he thought had been shot at the Rubble Barricade. He thought there was still shooting coming from further north up Rossville Street. He could see soldiers advancing into Glenfada Park North Courtyard. He thought maybe four or five. They started to shoot across Glenfada Park South. Then one dropped to his knee near the centre of Glenfada Park North and started shooting towards the hexagonal flowerbed and the south gable end of block 1.[4] He said at Day 170/116/15 to Day 170/116/24 that he did not see him fire but that was where he was aiming the gun. At AM398.4 paragraphs 21 to 24 he described running along the back of block 2 to Joseph Place. He went into the alleyway and saw people hiding all along the alleyway. At AM398.4 paragraph 25 he heard someone behind him call out "I'm shot". He saw two people at the entrance to the alleyway who were both wounded. He thought the shots would have come from the soldiers in Glenfada Park North. One was in his thirties and one was in his fifties. One was wounded in the ankle and the other around the hip. Day 170/120/13 to Day 170/121/1. At the time he assumed they had been shot by the soldiers shooting from across towards

[4] He marked the position on AM398.25, which he confirmed as closer to the entrance. Day 170/115/14 to Day 170/115/20.

Joseph Place from Glenfada Park North. Another man helped drag the two wounded men about half way down the alleyway before other people took them. He then went on to describe events surrounding the shooting of Patrick Doherty. He confirmed his recollection that he saw Patrick Doherty crawling after the two people were shot. Day 170/120/7 to Day 170/120/9.

20.4.2.15 Patrick Walsh gave an account in 1972 to the Sunday Times which appears at AW5.36. After he had assisted Patrick McDaid into the house in Joseph Place he came out again. The first thing he saw was Patrick Campbell staggering towards the entrance of the alleyway, groaning and clutching his back. He knew Patrick Campbell from work and Patrick Campbell shouted to him "Paddy, I'm hit, I'm hurt bad." Patrick Campbell fell forward into the mouth of the alleyway and was taken into one of the houses. He then gave a description of Danny McGowan being picked up by two men in the alleyway getting one arm each and dragging him along on his back. He seemed to be hit in the leg where Walsh could see blood. He then gave an account of seeing Patrick Doherty who was still alive at that point. At this Inquiry Patrick Walsh indicated that the events in this account had faded from his mind but at Day 171/37/11 to Day 171/37/15 he confirmed that the detailed account he gave of this incident would have been his recollection of events at the time he spoke to the Sunday Times.

20.4.2.16 At AT17.5 paragraph 32 Martin Tucker described two men running close together along the front of block 2 of the Rossville Flats by the shops. He thought they were running to the alleyway behind Joseph Place. They were shot at the point marked J on AT17.16. He thought both were shot in the leg. It was almost like watching a movie. He thought both got into the alleyway behind Joseph Place or into a house. He thought a couple of people helped them. They were in their thirties maybe not old but not teenagers. He did not remember what they were wearing. He did not see where the shots came but thought it was from the direction of Rossville Street and Glenfada Park South. At Day 098/119/1 to Day 098/119/3 the witness accepted that though both went down one may have been shot. At Day 098/117/9 to Day 098/1122/1, Mr Arthur Harvey QC examined the witness on this issue. It is clear that the witness, who even though he has wrongly described the age of Patrick Campbell, saw the movements of Patrick Campbell and Danny McGowan.

Conclusion.

20.4.2.17 There is no civilian evidence which contradicts the fact that Patrick Campbell was shot from behind in the area of the rear of block 2 of Rossville Flats. He was unarmed and not engaged in any illegal activity. He was shot at a time and at a location where the civilian evidence indicated extensive Army fire.

20.4.3 Injuries sustained

20.4.3.1 Patrick Campbell was struck by a single bullet which entered his left buttock and caused serious intra-abdominal trauma before coming to rest either under the abdominal wall or in the abdomen. There was no exit wound. (E10.11)

20.4.3.2 As appears from a letter from a Senior Registrar to his GP dated 28th March 1972, (D1013) Mr Campbell underwent a laparotomy on 31st January 1972. He was found to have a perforation of the sigmoid colon and the bladder was perforated in two places with rupture of the ureter, which was transplanted in the bladder with colostomy.

20.4.3.3 The colostomy was closed on 6th March and he was discharged on 18th March, six weeks after his admission. However, as appears from a letter from the same Registrar to his GP dated 18th April 1972, Mr Campbell was readmitted on 30th March 1972 with a history of abdominal pain, dyuria and occasional vomiting. He was treated for a urinary infection and detained for ten days before being discharged again on 10th April 1972.

He continued to attend as an out-patient until he was finally discharged on 21st November 1972. The bullet was never removed.

20.4.3.4 Dr Shepherd and Mr O'Callaghan note that the entry wound was described in the operation note as measuring one inch by half an inch. (E10.11) They also note that according to a letter dated 7th February 1972 from Mr Bennett identified on x-ray was not recovered at the first operation. The x-ray reports were illegible and no x-rays were made available to them. There was nothing to indicate that the bullet (if it was present in the abdomen) had ever been removed. There was no record of a submission to DIFS relating to Mr Campbell. No comment could be made concerning the nature of the projectile.

20.4.4 Removal to Hospital.

20.4.4.1 Patrick Campbell's son, John, who was aged 22 at the time of Bloody Sunday, described how his father had told the family about his journey to hospital. Mrs. Doherty, a neighbour of theirs, had put Patrick Campbell into a car to take him to hospital. There were others in the car but he did not know whom. The car was stopped at a checkpoint and his father was put in a Saracen and taken to Altnagelvin Hospital. A soldier held his gun to his father's head all the way to the hospital. His father thought they were taking him to finish him off. AC14.5 paragraph 27.

20.4.4.2 Bernard McMonagle was the man who drove to the first aid post at Craigavon Bridge. At ED27.5 he described going up to his mothers house at [redacted] It was about 4.15 pm. He parked the car at the top of St. Columb's Walk and saw a crowd down on the Lecky Road. He walked down to St. Columb's Wells to see what was happening. He heard some of the crowd talking about people being shot. Several fellows approached him and two of them asked if he had his car with him; they obviously knew he had a car. The fellows told him that a man had been shot and asked him to bring him to bring the man to the hospital. He went and got the car and made his way up Hollywell Street and eventually got to Foyle Road. Mrs Doherty came in the back of the car with the injured man. He had passed a military road check earlier at Ferguson's Lane at about 4.10 pm when he was coming from work. The witness went towards the checkpoint and got out and approached the officer in charge. He told him what had happened. He then came to the car and saw the wounded man. He then brought him along to this centre.

20.4.4.3 At AM366.1 paragraph 2 of his most recent statement he indicated that he used to do some freelance photography and after finishing work at 4.00pm he headed from Dupont to the Bogside taking a camera with him. It was his intention to take some photographs. He drove to the Bogside. The route which he took to the Bogside is marked on the attached map A at AM366.5 which shows him crossing the Craigavon Bridge and getting in the end to a house on the west side of St. Columb's Wells.

20.4.4.4 At AM366.1 paragraph 4, he said he arrived at the approximate point which is marked X on map A. This was at around 4.20 pm. He was surprised when he reached St. Columb's Wells to see hundreds of people running from the north of St. Columb's Wells towards him as he approached in his car from the south. He had driven about halfway along St. Columbs Wells from the south when he saw the crowd. The road that runs through St. Columb's Wells is no more than 300 yards long.

20.4.4.5 At AM366.2 paragraphs 7 to 9 he said he drove slowly through the crowd. As he reached point X on map A, a person walked in front of the car with a hand raised. There may have been another person trying to flag him down as well, but he was not sure. He could not remember anything at all about that person. He wound his window down. He saw a man being carried towards the car by some other people. The man's face was pointing towards me and his legs were dangling. He was being carried from the eastern side of the road, which ran through St. Columb's Wells, to the west side of the road on which he had stopped the car.

20.4.4.6 He had a vague memory of a coat or jacket wrapped loosely around the man trailing along the ground as he was being carried, although it may have been that someone placed the coat or jacket on him after he had been helped into the car. The rear door on the right-hand side of the car, namely the side nearest to the east side of the road, was opened. One of the people who had carried the man to the car said to him that there had been a spot of bother and a few people had been shot. The witness was asked to take the injured man to hospital. He was wary about taking the injured man to hospital, but was reassured when he saw Kathleen Doherty amongst the people helping the man on to the back seat of the car. He knew Kathleen Doherty's husband who worked with him as a fitter at Dupont.

20.4.4.7 At AM366.2 paragraphs 10 to 13 he described how the injured man was placed on the back seat of the car face down. He could remember seeing blood pouring out from the front of the man's body. However, for some reason at the time he thought that the man had been shot in the bottom of his back. He could not say on which side of the back he had been shot. He did not know the identity of the injured man at the time. After the man had been placed into the car, Kathleen Doherty got into the back with him. She sat with the head of the injured man facing down on her knee. As far as he was aware the man was not carrying a weapon of any description and he did not think that Kathleen Doherty would have had anything to do with him if he had been armed. Another person may have got into the front passenger seat next to him, but he had no memory of this now. He turned the car around, as he intended to take the injured man to Altnagelvin Hospital. He had virtually reached the Craigavon Bridge when he came upon an Army barracks where the car was stopped.

20.4.4.8 His journey from St Columb's Wells to Craigavon Bridge probably took no more than ten minutes. During the course of the journey Kathleen Doherty told him that the injured man was her neighbour from the Creggan and that his name was Mr Campbell. No Christian name was ever mentioned to him. He only became aware a few weeks ago that the injured man's first name was Patrick. There was no mention at any time of the circumstances in which the injured man had been shot and he did not find out subsequently as they have never met since that day.

20.4.4.9 At AM363.3 paragraphs 17 to 18 he stated that when he reached the Army barracks on the Foyle Road close to the Craigavon Bridge he was asked by an Army officer where he was going. There was an armed soldier standing near the officer. He could not recall whether there were any more armed soldiers in the yard. He was directed by the officer into the yard of the barracks and instructed by him to get out of the car once he had driven into the yard. He got out of his car. He could not recall seeing the injured man's face as he did so. There were soldiers around the car almost immediately. Medical personnel had also arrived quickly on the scene. They said that they would look after the injured man. He did not see the injured man at all after that. At AM366.3 paragraph 19 the witness described being taken into a room at the Army barracks and interviewed. After he was released he witnessed an incident where apparently RUC officers were "having fisty-cuffs" with army personnel over the events of the day. He did not know whether he was interviewed by the Army or by the RUC and whether a statement was prepared.

20.4.4.10 It seems likely that Patrick Campbell was attended to by Soldier 138, who on the day was the medical officer with the 1st Battalion of the first Royal Anglian Regiment and was based at the post by the Craigavon Bridge. At Day 383/21/7 to Day 383/23/17 Soldier 138 described the man in P747 as looking very familiar. He recalled the man he treated was middle-aged, overweight and balding. The man was in a state of shock and sweating heavily having clearly lost a lot of blood. He was seriously ill and had been shot in the tummy. Counsel to the Inquiry pointed out that although Patrick Campbell was shot in the buttock the bullet had lodged in the abdominal wall or inside the abdomen so he might well have had acute pain in his tummy. The witness accepted that his recollection was entirely consistent with the evidence the Inquiry had about both Patrick Campbell and Joe Friel who Soldier 138 also saw.[5] 20.4.4.11 Joe Friel described at AF34.4 paragraph 25 being at the first aid post. He was put on a stretcher and then put into a Saracen. After receiving some treatment Patrick Campbell was then brought into the Saracen and put on the other side. He was wearing a cloth cap and a gabardine "Columbo" style coat. He did not know how long he had been in the Saracen before Patrick Campbell arrived but it was maybe just a matter of minutes. Patrick Campbell was chalk white and he thought he was dying. He had the impression of steam coming off his body. Patrick Campbell asked the witness was he ok and the witness asked Patrick Campbell the same. They held hands and cried. Two soldiers got into the back of the Saracen and the doors were shot. They seemed to be tending more to Patrick Campbell. At AF34.4 paragraph 26 he described being taken to hospital. He thought that he was taken in simultaneously with Patrick Campbell.

20.4.4.12 At AM252.2 William McGoldrick also provided evidence of the picking up of Patrick Campbell from St Columb's Wells. He stood at the point marked E on the map at AM252.5, which is just at the mouth of St Columb's Wells, about four houses down on the eastern side if travelling from Fahan Street. He stated at AM252.2 paragraph 3 that he stood there and there were perhaps about 100 people taking cover by the side of the houses in that area. He stood there for perhaps ten to fifteen minutes but he could not be accurate about the time. He remembered that as he stood there some people to his right, closer to the junction with Fahan Street, were shouting to the people who were crossing Fahan Street from Joseph Place to St Columb's Wells that they should hurry and come and take cover because the Army was shooting from the city walls. He could hear shooting but did not know which direction it was coming from. He did not see or hear anything which confirmed to him that the Army was shooting from the city walls. He did not look up at the walls at any time. At

[5] Patrick Campbell was brought to the location at Craigavon Bridge between 16.40 and 16.45 and AM252.4 paragraph 4 he stated that after a time, he saw some people, about four, carrying a man. He did not know in which direction they had come from. They were shouting "Does anybody know anything about first aid?" Up until a few months before then, he had been in St John's Ambulance and he followed the men into a house.

20.4.4.13 He could not remember precisely which house it was, but it was possibly the one which he marked on the map as point F on AM252.5, which was about six houses down on the left hand side i.e. the west side of St Columb's Wells travelling south from Fahan Street, or one near there. The man was placed on a couch. He remembered that he was a big tall man, heavily built and bald. He could not remember if he was wearing glasses. He thought he was wearing a dark coloured suit. The witness pulled his shirt up and saw that there was a hole near his left kidney on the left-hand side of his back, about two and a half inches in from his side. It was a black hole with a blue ring around it. He could see that it was a bullet hole. It was not bleeding but he could tell that he could not do anything for the man, as he needed to be taken to a hospital as soon as possible. The witness asked whether anybody in the house had a towel or pad he could use. Someone passed him a towel and he pressed it against the wound. He said that someone had to get him to hospital. There were about twelve people in the house but he did not know any of the people there. He remembered that a man who was in the house got a car and drove the injured man to hospital. He later learned that the driver's name was Barry McMonagle.

20.4.4.14 A couple of the women and men from the house went with him. The witness did not go. He remembered that someone called the injured man Paddy when he was in the house. He remembered that the man said that he had been shot although he did not say where he had been standing when he was shot. Nobody in the house seemed to know where he had been when he had been shot. He did not know which hospital they took him to. They may have gone to Altnagelvin but he remembered that somebody in the house said that it might be difficult to get there because the soldiers might stop them. They may have gone to Letterkenny. It would have been one of the two.

20.4.4.15 In AM252.2 paragraph 5 the witness said that a few days later, he remembered reading the local journal which gave a list of the dead and injured. A friend of the witness remarked that the person that he had helped in the house must have been Patrick Campbell.

20.4.4.16 The passenger who accompanied Patrick Campbell to the Regimental Aid Post was Kathleen Doherty. Her statement to the police is at ED27.6, where she said that on 30th January 1972, she left her home to go down to the Lecky Road to see the parade passing. About 4.15 pm she was standing on the Lecky Road with a group of people. Everybody started to shout that the soldiers were shooting. She ran up to McKeown's Lane into St Columb's Wells. She could hear gunfire coming from Rossville Street. When she got into St Columb's Wells she heard someone shout that there was a man shot. A man shouted that it was Patrick Campbell from 4 Carrickreagh Gardens. A postman who was standing beside her said that as she knew him would she go in the car with him to hospital. The witness got into the car along with Patrick Campbell and the driver, who she knew to be Barney McMonagle. They stopped with the Army in Ferguson's Lane and told them what had happened. They brought them to the Army compound at Foyle Road.

20.4.4.17 At AC16.3 paragraph 19 Noel Campbell stated that he reached St Columb's Wells. He said he saw a man lying in the middle of the road at point H on the attached map at AC16.5, which is at the mouth of the Wells itself. At AC16.3 paragraph 19, the witness said that there was quite a large crowd of people standing around him. He looked over their shoulders. The man was lying on his back. Somebody rolled him over on to his chest as he watched. His head was pointing south. He was wearing a white shirt which was bloodstained. He thought he had been wounded in his lower back or shoulder. He did not see the wounds. Someone in the crowd said his name was Campbell. Someone else said that he was a docker. Other people were calling out for a doctor or an ambulance 20.4.4.18 Michael McKinney at AM309.3 paragraph 21 described taking cover at 38 St Columbs Wells and saw a car pull up along the street. Behind the car were two men carrying another man who was crouched over holding his stomach. The man looked as though he had been shot in the stomach. The man was in his fifties and had thin hair. He thought it was Patrick Campbell whom he met after Bloody Sunday. Mr. Campbell had been a customer in their butcher's shop.

20.4.4.19 John Leppard at Day 177/153/15 to Day 177/154/12 confirmed helping take a man out of a house in St Columb's Wells. He was a heavily built middle-aged man with a bald head. He believed at the time the man was dead but he was not limp or floppy and they had no difficulty getting him into the car. This incident appears clearly to refer to Patrick Campbell.[6]

20.4.4.20 Martin McShane at AM384.3 paragraph 16 described seeing a middle aged man he later learned to be called Campbell lying on the ground. He could see a bullet hole in his right hip, almost at his buttock. Mr. Campbell was groaning with pain. There was a group of around a dozen people there some of whom were applying pressure to the wound to try to control the blood loss. The position marked by the witness on AM384.4 at point "F" was near the entrance to St. Columb's Wells.

20.5 Danny McGowan

20.5.1 Personal Details and Background.

[6] The witness Anthony Harkin described a man of between 40 and 45 carried by the arms and legs as if he was in a chair. He thought the man was hit in the back or hip and was alive. He confirmed at Day 177/42/1 to Day 177/42/9 that P747, which is of Patrick Campbell, looked like the old man he saw in St. Columb's Wells.

20.5.1.1 Danny McGowan was thirty-seven years old on the 30th January 1972. He lived at [redacted] with his eight children and his wife Teresa who was expecting their ninth child at the time of Bloody Sunday. A tenth child was also born after Bloody Sunday.

20.5.1.2 Mr McGowan was a hardworking man, dedicated to his family who was forced to go to England in search of work throughout the 1950's and 1960's.

20.5.1.3 Danny McGowan returned to Derry and was employed n Dupont firstly in construction and then in production. Day 43/93/22 to Day 493/94/5.

20.5.1.4 Mr McGowan did not give evidence to Lord Widgery as he was not released from hospital until 20th March 1972. No evidence was presented to the tribunal in relation to the circumstances in which Mr McGowan was shot, in fact, the only reference to Mr McGowan in Lord Widgery's report was in Appendix A, "List of Deceased and Wounded." The experience of having been shot and the tragedy of Bloody Sunday had a great impact on Danny's life. Sadly, Mr McGowan died after a long illness on the 28th January 2004, two days before the thirty-second anniversary of Bloody Sunday and without having witnessed the outcome of this Inquiry.

20.5.2 Injuries Sustained

20.5.2.1 Mr McGowan was shot between the knee and ankle on the inside of the right leg. His shin was shattered. The entry wound was halfway down the medial (inner side) of the right calf and the exit wound over the lateral (outer) side of the leg. E10.0011, D0847 and ED 29.3 The track of the wound is, therefore, more likely to be from left to right, which is consistent with Mr McGowan having been shot by a soldier located at the entrance to Glenfada Park North.

20.5.3 Civilian Evidence on the shooting of Danny McGowan

20.5.3.1 Mr McGowan gave an account of the circumstances of his unjustified wounding, in his statement of the 28th February 1972 at AM 255.10. In this account he makes it clear that he was at the telephone box at the end of Block One of the Rossville Flats, where he saw a young man lying on the ground. This young man, was we know, Hugh Gilmore to whom Mr McGowan, as can be clearly seen in P763, provided assistance. Mr McGowan in this statement refers to noticing a young girl, undoubtedly Geraldine Richmond, who was in hysterics. Significantly in this statement he refers to seeing two soldiers in firing positions at Glenfada Park:

"I also noticed two soldiers on their knees in firing positions at Glenfada Park. Then I noticed a man whom I now know to be Patrick Campbell staggering in a drunken fashion about 20 yards from me just above the butcher's shop at Joseph Place. He shouted to me "I'm shot, I'm shot". I ran over and caught him by the arm and helped him along towards the rear of the houses on Joseph's Place. Just as I pushed him around the corner of the rear of the houses my right leg folded underneath me and I realised that I was shot."

20.5.3.2 This statement provides the most accurate description of the material events which led up to the unjustified shooting of Mr McGowan. It is the most accurate account because it was made at the period of time closest to the events. From this account it would seem that the two soldiers who must be members of Anti-Tank Platoon had assumed firing positions at the corner of Glenfada Park North.

20.5.3.3 He goes on, in this statement, to describe how he was helped to a car in St Columb's Wells which took him home and taken, subsequently, to Altnagelvin hospital. In his Eversheds statement at AM255.3 paragraph 16 Mr McGowan describes how someone drove the car towards Altnagelvin, but on seeing soldiers in Bishop Street, drove him to his home in [redacted] instead.

20.5.3.4 John Radcliffe, a neighbour and friend, went into Mr McGowan's house, Day 220/ 70/10 , where he met Teresa McGowan and Mrs Kitty Duffy, his sister-in-law who also lived in the same street. He saw Danny McGowan lying, conscious, on the couch with a wound to his right leg, just above the calf muscle. There didn't seem to be much blood coming from the wound but he could see that the bullet had passed straight through Danny's lower leg. Mr Radcliffe, telling Danny that he needed to go to hospital, went outside and stopped a Knights of Malta ambulance on Southway. As they were unable to take an additional casualty they called for an ambulance which arrived sometime later. Danny did not tell Mr Radcliffe how he became injured, other than telling him the army had shot him". AR1.4 paragraph 14.

20.5.3.5 This version of events is supported by the statements of ambulance men John Rutherford and Ronald Moore in Ambulance 4, ED 29.5, who, arriving in Glenfada after having received a call at 17.14, were told to go to [redacted] From there they collected a man, called Danny McGowan, with a broken leg who said he received the injury when playing football. According to Mr McGowan at AM 255.3 paragraph 17, his brother and a neighbour Walter Duffy, who has never made a statement, accompanied him to the hospital. The army stopped the ambulance on the Abercorn Road where they were all searched until they were permitted to continues after Mr McGowan's brother, who was ex-army, intervened.

20.5.3.6 Mr McGowan was admitted to ward six in Altnagelvin Hospital at 17.45. D0845. His wound was cleaned by Dr Fenton and a pin inserted in his leg. The wound was sutured on 7th February 1972 and on 20th March 1972 Mr McGowan was discharged. He was to continue to receive treatment for the wound he sustained that day, on and off, right up until 10th September 1980.

20.5.3.7 In his interview with the police at the hospital, at ED29.4, Mr McGowan says that he was injured next to Free Derry corner at his brother-in-law's, Joseph McColgan, [redacted] He said his brother in law and other 'fellas' he knows were with him at the time. In his Eversheds, statement he says he was not on the march but was just visiting his brother in law. AM255.1 paragraph 3.

20.5.3.8 The police comment, in their report, on the fact that whilst Mr McGowan said, in this interview, that he was injured at Free Derry Corner, he was picked up, one and a half miles away, at [redacted]. Mr McGowan had told the ambulance driver, Mr Moore, that he had received his injuries as the result of playing football. Superintendent Michael J Finn believed that Moore must have mistaken someone else for Mr McGowan. However, Mr McGowan explains at AM255.3 paragraph 19 that he told the authorities that his injuries were sustained while playing football because he did not want to get arrested and because he was mistrustful of the authorities. This was an honest and understandable reaction from an innocent man in a climate where men were being regularly interned without trial.

20.5.3.9 In a supplementary statement to the Inquiry, at AM 255.16, Mr McGowan was asked to answer questions in relation to information contained in a document entitled "B.S. Summary of Irish Eye Witness Stories," AM255.14. In particular he was asked whether he ran up Chamberlain street and whether he saw Father Daly's Gunman / OIRA 4. In his supplementary statement Mr McGowan reiterates the position that he has taken over the years, that he was not on the march and did not make his way down Chamberlain Street, but rather made his way from Free Derry Corner towards Blocks 1 & 2 of the Rossville flats.

20.5.3.10 Mr McGowan admitted he did see OIRA 4 through the gap between Blocks One and Two of the Rossville Flats and that, contrary to what is stated at AM255.14, he did not see OIRA 4 fire a few shots around the gable end, only that he was holding a gun.

20.5.3.11 The above inconsistencies have been identified by Katherine Shepherd in her letter of the 18th April 2002 as the basis for allegations that Mr McGowan:

(a) Withheld information from this Tribunal.

(b) Came from the car park of the Rossville Flats (perhaps having been on the march and/or in the vicinity of Barrier 14.

(c) Attempted, through his supplementary statement, to bend his previous incomplete and inaccurate account to Eversheds.

(d) Is not consistent with his pre-Eversheds accounts in assuming that he was shot from the Walls.

20.5.3.12 Unless the above 'allegations' are coupled with the suggestion that Mr McGowan was shot justifiably, i.e. that he was armed at the time that he was shot, and that these inconsistencies are an attempt to conceal that fact, they should be viewed, in our submission, a simple mixture of inconsistent recollections and concern for ones liberty.

20.5.3.13 We would remind the Tribunal that Danny McGowan enjoyed the reputation of being a devoted family man and was not connected with any paramilitary organisation.

20.5.3.14 The central thrust of the suggestions in the Katherine Shepherd letter is that Mr McGowan is incorrect when he suggested that he was shot from the City Walls. It is accepted, as the evidence suggests, that the more likely explanation is that he was shot by a soldier located at Glenfada Park. Incidentally, the inconsistencies referred to in the Katherine Shepherd letter are in no way comparable to the glaring inaccuracies and inconsistencies that characterise the soldiers' evidence on the central issues.

20.5.3.15 It is important that, in assessing Mr McGowan's evidence, the Tribunal consider the effect that Bloody Sunday had on Mr McGowan and his response to these traumatic events as evidenced by the medical proofs which have been obtained as well as the evidence of Mr McGowan himself at AM 255.4 paragraph 19. Ultimately the conclusions which the Inquiry make in relation to how Mr McGowan arrived at the position indicated in P763 are of secondary importance to the conclusions that the Inquiry must make in relation to the circumstances surrounding his unjustified shooting. The soldiers failed to offer any explanation for the shooting of Danny McGowan in 1972 and they have failed to offer any explanation in 2003 because, we submit, there was none.

20.5.4 Civilian Evidence

20.5.4.1 There are three significant witnesses for the tribunal to consider in relation to Mr McGowan, They are Edmund Melaugh, AM398, Eddie Dillon AD 45 and Donna Harkin AH 13.

20.5.4.2 Edmund Melaugh was a witness who did his best to give an accurate account of the events surrounding the shooting of Mr McGowan, Mr Campbell and Mr Doherty. His NICRA statement at AM398.19 says as follows:

"I heard more shooting and saw two men fall at the end of the lane. The other man and myself went back to help these men. One was wounded somewhere round the hip. This man I helped away as far as some other men at the entry. I then went back to help the other man who could not drag the other wounded man who was shot in the lower part of the leg".

The first man would in our submission appear to be Patrick Campbell while the second man is Danny McGowan.

20.5.4.3 His Eversheds statement at AM398.4 Para 25 provides a little more detail:

There were two wounded at the entrance to the Joseph Place alleyway at point K grid reference K19 AM398.18 AM 398.5 Paragraph 26 .One was in his fifties the other in his thirties. I remember one was shot in the ankle. They were very close together and they were just at the end of the alleyway. Day 170/122/01. In his statement to the Inquest, AM 398.22, Mr Melaugh states:

"This other man and I were in a lane behind the small flats in Rossville Street and I saw two men being shot at the end of the lane. One was shot in the ankle and the other about the hip. I went over to help them. Neither of them was armed," and, on the Keville Tape, AM 398.23: "We were in a little lane behind – the small flats in Rossville Street and I saw these two men getting shot at the end. One was shot in the ankle and the other was shot up in the arm." "They were stationary and we were able to reach out and drag them in. We did not have to move out onto open ground." Day 170/122/7 to Day 170/122/ 22.

20.5.4.4 Edward Dillon is also an important eye witness for Mr McGowan. He saw Mr McGowan immediately after he was shot and then assisted him: "I was coming up to Free Derry Corner towards the meeting. My back was to Rossville Street. At the High Flats the soldiers started firing. I went to the steps which leads to a passageway into Faughan Street. A man came behind me and cried out he had been shot. I went back to see how badly he was shot had been shot. I went back to see how badly he was shot. He was shot in the right leg below the knee. The leg appeared to be broken to me and was bleeding badly." AD 45.6

20.5.4.5 The NICRA version should be compared with the Eversheds statement at AD 45.1 Paragraphs 6 to 7. Here Mr Dillon made his way to the Joseph Place alleyway and, within a few seconds of reaching it, Mr McGowan arrived. Mr Dillon accepted, when questioned by Arthur Harvey QC on Day 174/72/11 to Day 174/73/4, that his memory had become confused and he had compressed a number of incidents.

20.5.4.6 He accepted when further questioned on Day 174/73/5 to Day 174/75/11 that his statement at AD 45.6 indicated that Dillon was on the steps leading to a passageway onto Fahan Street and Mr McGowan had come from behind him and cried out that he had been shot. This statement confirms Mr McGowan's present belief that he was shot while on the very first step which lead from the alleyway to Fahan Street East shown on Mr McGowan's map at AM 255.9 grid references K19 position E. Indeed it was pointed out by Lord Saville on Day 174/74/25 to Day 174/75/6. This location is a very short distance from the bottom of the Fahan Street steps and the beginning of the Joseph Place alleyway. In addition at Day 174/75/7 to Day 174/76/8 Mr Dillon accepted that it was possible that Mr McGowan was taken the full length of the Joseph Place alleyway and placed in a car in St Columbs Wells.

20.5.4.7 It is obvious that Mr Dillon did assist Danny McGowan from the Joseph Place alleyway to a car in St Columb's Wells when one considers the following:

(a) The injury which Mr Dillon witnessed is consistent with Mr McGowan - shot in the right leg below the knee, breaking the knee and causing it to bleed badly. AD45.6.

(b) The age is consistent with Mr McGowan.

(c) The location is consistent with Mr McGowan.

(d) The reference at AD45.6 to a 'young lad' helping him with Mr McGowan is is consistent with Edmund Melaugh. AM398

(e) He was subsequently told the man he helped was Mr McGowan

20.5.4.8 Donna Harkin nee Friel

Donna Harkin was a 16 year old student who saw, from the front window of her flat in 19 Garvan Place, Mr McGowan being shot. Her recollection, on Day 171/104 to Day 171/133, was not challenged by those who represent the soldiers. It is important to note that in her undated NICRA statement at AH13.12 she makes it clear that, when she stuck her head out of the window, she noticed a group of men crouched at the edge of the Joseph Place flats at the end of the bakery trying to make their way to the back of Joseph Place flats. As the group ran forward an elderly man was shot in the leg and fell. The shot came from the Glenfada direction. Two of the men, in our submission, Edward Dillon and Edmund Melaugh crawled back to get him and two ran on. Donna Harkin then continues in this statement to describe the horrific murder of Paddy Doherty.

20.5.4.9 Donna Harkin's Eversheds statement at AH 13.6 paragraphs 33 to 35 and her attached map at AH 13.24 provides valuable clarification of a number of matters. Firstly, she is able to identify with a degree of precision where she believes that Mr McGowan fell as being point 22 on AH 13.24 with his head facing towards the Joseph Place alleyway. In addition she believes that the 'elderly man' to whom she referred was aged 30 to 40, her parents' age. Mr McGowan was 37 on Bloody Sunday. She believed that Paddy Doherty was behind Mr McGowan helping him to safety by pushing his feet.

20.5.5 Conclusion

20.5.5.1 There is no civilian evidence that contradicts the fact that Danny McGowan was shot in the area of the Joseph place alleyway. Three witnesses provide an accurate and honest account of the position and activity of Danny McGowan when he was shot and are consistent with his statement of the 28th February 1972, at AM 255.10. He was unarmed and not engaged in any illegal activity.

(i) Danny McGowan was shot after Hugh Gilmore.

(ii) Danny McGowan assisted Hugh Gilmore at the telephone box where he can be seen in Robert White's photograph P763

(iii) Danny McGowan was shot after Patrick Campbell.

(iv) Danny McGowan was shot before Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan.

(v) Danny. McGowan was shot in the area near to the steps which lead to a passageway into Fahan Street East. This is an area near to the entrance of the alleyway which runs behind the maisonettes at Joseph Place.

(vi) Soldier F was the only soldier who admits to having fired into the area in which Danny McGowan was shot. The evidence supports the suggestion that Soldier F shot Danny McGowan.

(vii) Danny McGowan was carried to a car in Columb's Wells which brought him to his house in [redacted]

(viii) Danny McGowan was, eventually, brought by ambulance to Altnagelvin Hospital.

(ix) Danny McGowan was unarmed when shot.

(x) Danny McGowan had not handled a gun or nail bomb or had acted in support of any person handling or using a gun or bomb on Bloody Sunday.

(xi) Danny McGowan did not pose a threat to the soldier who shot him.

(xii) This soldier could not have believed that Danny McGowan could have posed a threat at the time he shot him.

(xiii) No other person near Danny McGowan posed a threat to the soldier who shot him.

(xiv) Danny McGowan was not in the vicinity of civilian gunmen or bombers when shot.

(xv) There were no missing casualties in the Joseph Place alleyway. On the contrary Danny McGowan is an injured person for whom the soldiers have failed to account

(xvi) Danny McGowan was not shot in crossfire or in the course of a 'gun-battle' with civilian gunman.

(xvii) Danny McGowan was shot deliberately and without justification.

20.6 Military evidence Sector 5

20.6.1 Soldier F

20.6.1.1 There is video and photographic evidence[7] before the Inquiry, which suggests that a substantial number of anti-tank Platoon soldiers entered Glenfada Park beyond those who admit to having done so. However we know for certain that Soldier F did and that he eventually admitted firing two shots from the corner of Glenfada Park North behind Block 2 of the Rossville Flats.

[7] V48/11.35 - 11.41 and EP2.8.

20.6.1.2 As has been seen in our submissions on Sector 3 and Sector 4 Soldier F admitted for the first time firing two shots behind Block 2 of the Rossville Flats in his statement to Lieutenant Colonel Overbury on 19 February 1972.

20.6.1.3 In that statement he described firing his two rounds at an alleged nail bomber in Glenfada Park. Immediately after this he ran along the "eastern" wall of Glenfada Park to the corner. As he did so he heard pistol shots coming from the area of the wall at the far end of the Rossville Flats. He shouted "there's a gunman" and he dropped to one knee and took an aim position. He saw a man near the wall facing his direction who turned as if to run. He saw he had an object in his hand. This man was the only person in the area from which gunfire had come. The object in his hand was large and black like an automatic pistol. He fired two rounds at the man and he fell to the ground. B135.

20.6.1.4 He then saw 20 people, 19 men and 1 woman standing near him huddled together at the end of the flats at Glenfada Park. He arrested these people with others including Soldier G who came up. B135.

20.6.1.5 His statements to the RMP and subsequently were utterly dishonest and designed to disguise the amount and the location of his firing on the day. He had already made four statements to the RMP[8] before he admitted to firing any shots behind block 2 of the Rossville Flats. This is utterly inexplicable except on the basis that up to that point Soldier F had concealed his shooting in anticipation of not having to account for it. At a very early stage the army must have been in possession of the information that two persons had been shot dead behind the flats and others wounded in that area. It would not have taken long by a process of elimination and a serious investigation that the soldiers likely to have fired in that area included Solder F. The first RMP statements of Soldiers134, 227, 040 and [8] He had also made a statement to the RUC on issues arising out of arrests on 15 February 1972 at AN28.10.

025 were all made by 3 February 1972 presenting clear information of a Paratrooper firing in the area of the rear of the Rossville Flats. It appears that in spite of making four RMP statements between 30 January and 19 February 1972 Soldier F had still not been made to commit his actions to paper until 19 February 1972. [Sentence withdrawn at the request of Madden & Finucane on the grounds of error.] If Mr Elias is correct about the date error on the trajectory document the RMP had the information concerning Soldier F's firing and did not act upon it. Lt.Colonel Overbury took the statement on 19 February 1972.

20.6.1.6 In his Treasury Solicitor statement he described asking G to cover him as he heard pistol shots in the direction of the Rossville Flats. He approached the southeast corner of Glenfada Park. He got down on one knee. He observed a man with a pistol at the far end of Rossville Flats. He thought the man was wearing darkish clothes. The man had a black object which looked like a pistol in his hand. He then shouted to Soldier G " there's a gunman down here" and took two aimed shots and the man fell to the ground. The man was in a half crouching position moving to the right as he shot him. B138.

20.6.1.7 Soldier F attempted to put forward a number of explanations as to why it had taken him to 19 February to mention both his shot at the Barricade and the shooting behind block 2 of the flats. When asked why he had not mentioned his shooting of the man behind the barricade or the man with the pistol behind the Rossville Flats one of his answers was:

All I can say was there is errors in the judgement of making the statements and they got confused." Day 375/138/25 to Day 375/139/6.

20.6.1.8 It was pointed out that in his first RMP statement he was not confused about the number of bullets he fired. He replied:

"Not at that particular time." Day 375/139/10.

He continued to give further evasive and untruthful answers which are examined in our submission on Soldier F in Sector 3. It is submitted that Counsel to the Inquiry summarised the general truth about Soldier F's failure to mention the shooting at the barricade and behind block 2 of the flats with the following question at Day 375/166/19 to Day 375/166/24:

> Q "Is the position that by this stage it was becoming apparent in the course of the Investigation that the accounts given by the Anti-Tank Platoon did not fit with the number of victims?"
>
> A " Not to my knowledge."

20.6.2 The evidence of INQ 1826

20.6.2.1 INQ 1826 was in the Ferret scout car on Rossville Street and described having heard a burst of shots coming from a position south of him. He marked this position and the direction of the shots on C1826.14. At Day 341/137/10 to Day 341/141/4 the witness described hearing five to eight single shots. He could not see a person but just puffs of smoke. The shots were to his front right and diagonally. From the angle he was viewing it looked like an alleyway. They were high velocity shots and were all fired at the same time. He could not say if they all came from the same area. He confirmed that the direction of fire was across Rossville Street and in the direction of Joseph Place and behind Rossville Flats. Day 341/145/1 to Day 341/145/10. At the time he assumed it was a civilian firing because he did not realise that soldiers were as far south as they actually were. The line of fire could not have been directed at soldiers. If the shots had been fired in his direction he would have seen the person firing the weapon. C1826.5 paragraph 30 and Day 341/145/11 to Day 341/145/21. It is submitted that the only factual and logical conclusion that can be drawn from the evidence of INQ 1826 is that he witnessed a member of Anti-Tank Platoon firing across from the direction of Glenfada Park North to the back of block 2 of the Rossville Flats and that those were the shots fired by Soldier F.

20.6.3 Soldier G

20.6.3.1 It is particularly notable that Soldier G did not mention Soldier F shooting from the southeast corner of Glenfada Park until his Treasury Solicitor statement. In that statement he described being recalled by their Platoon Commander and hearing F shout: "There's a gunman or something like that." He saw Soldier F down on one knee at the south east corner of Glenfada Park aiming in an easterly direction. He saw him fire one or two shots in a direction out of his sight. B187 paragraph 8.

20.6.3.2 It would be a remarkable coincidence, if it were a coincidence, that both Soldier F and Soldier G, who were paired on the day, independently forgot to mention Soldier F's discharge of two shots eastwards from the south east corner of Glenfada Park. It is an obvious inference that Soldier G only offered this information once he knew Soldier F had by then admitted it. He also provided corroboration by including the information that he heard Soldier F say, "There's a gunman or something like that." There is a further possibility that he was told not to mention it up to that point. Soldier G had of course been engaged, as can be seen in our submissions on Sector 4, in his own particular activities at Abbey Park.

20.6.3.3 The question as to why it was not until his Treasury Solicitor's statement that Soldier G mentioned Soldier F's activity at the corner of Glenfada Park North can only have a limited number of answers. It is possible that he had witnessed Soldier F's unjustified firing there and chose not to reveal it until asked to provide a justification for it. It is also possible that he did not witness Soldier F's activities in this location at all but fabricated a corroborative account when asked to do so. Either of the above possibilities made Soldier G an utterly dishonest and unreliable witness to Soldier F's activities at the end of Glenfada Park North.

20.6.4 Soldier H

20.6.4.1 As we know Soldier H claimed to have fired 19 shots at a silhouette in a frosted window in Glenfada Park North. At Day 377/85/17 to Day 377/86/6 it was put to Soldier H by Counsel to the Inquiry that the account of these shots was untrue because he fired a large number of shots he would not be able to justify and that he had to come up with an account to explain them. He rejected this suggestion.

20.6.4.2 At Day 377/98/3 to Day 377/102/1 Soldier H was examined on the possibility that some of his shots were fired towards the rear of block 2. He said he did not fire in that direction.[9]

20.6.4.3 According to the notes of his Sunday Times interview Patrick Campbell described looking back down Rossville Street and seeing the Saracens coming in. He saw soldiers jumping out and when the shooting began he made a dive for cover behind a small gable near the telephone box. From there he could see soldiers milling about in Glenfada Park. He then made a dash for Joseph Place and was shot in the back (the wound is at the base of the spine) It is important to note that in a contemporaneous account Patrick Campbell was able to note soldiers in Glenfada Park just prior to his shooting.

[9] He also rejected a suggestion from the evidence of Soldier 027 that he may have fired in the area of Joseph Place. Day 377/106/14 to Day 377/106/24.

20.6.4.4 Soldier J of Anti-Tank Platoon was also in Glenfada Park. He denied seeing Barney McGuigan, Patrick Doherty, Danny McGowan or Patrick Campbell being shot and denied seeing Soldier F fire from the corner of Glenfada Park or seeing any soldier in that position. Day 370/65/23 to Day 370/68/6.

20.6.4.5 David Longstaff had no recollection of Soldier F's shots from the south east corner of the gable end of Glenfada Park North although he had moved into Glenfada Park North. It was suggested to him that according to the evidence of Soldier 227 there were three paratroopers coming to the corner of Glenfada Park North. It was suggested to him he must have seen Soldier F on one knee shoot Barney McGuigan. He had no recollection of that at all. Day 374/185/12 to Day 374/185/18.

20.6.4.6 Soldier E also arrived at the gable end of Glenfada Park North where he claimed to have been involved in a number of arrests.

20.6.4.7 It is abundantly clear that given the location and activity of Soldier F and the movements of his colleagues, a number of them, apart from Soldier G, must at least have witnessed his activities. None of them have admitted to doing so. It is clear that at least some of the evidence from soldiers on the City Walls indicates the presence of more than one soldier at the point of firing. The evidence of these soldiers is examined in further detail below.

20.6.4.8 There is also civilian evidence of further shooting into the area than the shots admitted by Soldier F. This shooting could only have come from members of Anti –Tank Platoon. A number of civilian witnesses who were located in the area reported seeing soldiers positioned in Glenfada Park aiming and firing across the rear of block 2 of the Rossville Flats towards the Fahan Street steps some of which was later than even the shooting of Barney McGuigan.

20.6.4.8 Denis Bradley gave evidence of a soldier firing from the entrance to Glenfada Park North car park at the east. He feared for the people on the pram ramp leading down from Glenfada Park South onto the street. The soldier was firing above head height in a haphazard manner. He was firing in a generally southerly direction. He fired about six to eight shots in total. His general body direction was not towards the back of block 2 of the Rossville Flats H1.13 paragraphs 32 to 33. Mr. Bradley confronted him. Day 140/137/11 to Day 140/142/24.

20.6.4.9 John Porter is now deceased. He was looking out of the window of 8 Abbey Park. He said that he saw two separate sets of paratroopers firing towards Joseph Place. The first group fired three shots towards block two. The second group fired seven shots towards the south of block two. Both incidents occurred after Evelyn Lafferty was shot at in Abbey Park.

20.6.4.10 The witness described seeing two paratroopers appear at the corner of Glenfada Park North. The first fired two shots in the direction of Joseph Place and the second fired one shot in the same direction. Then the two paratroopers moved off the group of arrestees. His evidence about the second set of paratroopers was of one paratrooper firing four shots from the hip in a fanning movement and a second paratrooper firing two shots from chest height. A third paratrooper then fired one shot from his shoulder. WT8 50A to 51G.

20.6.4.11 Hugh Barbour described three or four soldiers coming out of the gap between Glenfada Park North and Glenfada Park South after Barney McGuigan was shot. They came onto Rossville Street, took up kneeling positions and put their rifles to their shoulders. He marked their position at point L on AB10.1. He decided to make a run for it to Joseph Place and heard intense shooting coming in his direction. He saw a couple of shots strike the steps leading to Fahan Street. AB10.5 paragraph 29 and Day 88/75/19 to Day 88/78/2.

20.6.4.12 Simon Winchester was unable to remember his 1972 account when he gave evidence to this Inquiry. In 1972 he said that he saw a soldier in front of the Glenfada Park flats firing four, five or six shots towards Joseph Place.M83.18 paragraph 21.

Soldiers on the Walls.

20.6.5 Soldier 227

20.6.5.1 Soldier 227 was located on the City Walls as an Observer in Charlie OP. At Day 371/150/4 to Day 371/152/17 he indicated that he stood by the contents of his 1972 statements describing three paratroopers emerging from behind the rear of the flats in Glenfada Park. Whilst the other two were making arrests the other Para was kneeling next to a lamp-post which was positioned between him and the eastern block of Glenfada Park. His rifle was aiming parallel with Block 2 of the Rossville Flats. Once he saw him fire the witness saw somebody lying near the telephone box.[10] The witness identified the man shot from the relevant photographs of the body of Barney McGuigan at the Widgery Inquiry. Day 371/201/3 to Day 371/204/6.

20.6.5.2 In his first RMP statement, apparently made in the early hours of 1 February 1972 and which is in hand-written form at B2186.1, B2186.2 and B2186.3, he had described seeing three soldiers appear from the rear of the flats in Glenfada Park and one of them knelt on the corner facing the Rossville Flats. The other two soldiers were making arrests. At this point he heard two or three pistol shots being fired from the area of the Rossville Flats. The soldier in Glenfada Park then fired two rounds towards Rossville Flats and he saw a man fall at the corner of block 1 of the flats. He then described his attention being attracted by the man lying on the ground in front of Joseph Place who had been shot in the lower part of the body and while doing so heard a number of SLR shots and other high velocity shots but he did not know from what area they came.

[10] Also in Charlie OP was Soldier 025. His RMP statement at B1536 indicated a soldier had taken up a position facing them and a small crowd after coming round the corner of Glenfada Park. At Day 361/50/7 to Day 361/51/23 he said that this soldier went towards a body on the barricade in Rossville Street.

20.6.5.3 In his second RMP statement, dated 2 February 1972, he again described the three soldiers. One of them kneeling at the corner of the building facing towards the Rossville Flats and the other two making arrests. At this time he heard two or three pistol shots being fired from the area of Rossville Flats. The shots were fired in rapid succession. The soldier kneeling then fired two aimed shots towards the Rossville Flats. He saw him do this and he also saw a man at the corner of block 1 of the Rossville Flats fall to the ground. B2185.

20.6.5.4 The witness told Lord Widgery that he heard three to four pistol shots. He did confirm that he did not notice any shots coming from the position that Soldier F had placed himself in before Barney McGuigan was shot. WT16. 40E , WT16.49D

20.6.5.5 In his Eversheds statement at B2204.008 paragraph 41 he described his present recollection as the pistol shots being fired prior to the paratroopers appearing from Glenfada Park North. He was reluctant to confirm that hearing the pistol shots and seeing the paratrooper kneeling and firing two aimed shots were actually connected although his RMP statement gives this impression.

20.6.5.6 On Day 371/167/19 to Day 371/175/17 the witness, in response to Counsel for some of the soldiers, marked the position where the pistol shots came from. He had of course never seen the firer. B2204.036. This directly contradicted the witness's testimony to Lord Widgery when he said that not only did he not see anyone down where Soldier F had fired as it was out of his view but he did not notice any shots coming from that position before Soldier F's firing had occurred. The marking on this map is in complete contradiction of the evidence of the witness from his first RMP statement through to his evidence to Lord Widgery.[11]

20.6.5.7 He had also described at B2204.006 paragraphs 28 to 29 his attention being drawn to a man that seemed to be dragging himself along by his arms on the eastern side of Joseph Place. He was going from the witness' left to his right towards the Rossville Flats. He could see no obvious wound or reason why he should be dragging himself along rather than walking or crawling. He could not see any weapons on him although he would not necessarily have been able to see a handgun. The witness described him progressing towards the northern end of Joseph Place. This direction of movement would not in any case have taken the man to the northern end of Joseph Place but towards the Rossville Flats. At Day 371/155/6 to Day 371/159/3 it was suggested to him that the person he saw could have been Danny McGowan or Patrick Campbell. He could not make that connection because the man was crawling from his left to his right before he was taken away in the direction he had come by two men. He further stated in evidence that he made no connection with the soldier firing and this man. It is clear that the witness is describing a person who was simply crawling along Joseph Place or is in error regarding the direction of movement of Patrick Campbell and Danny McGowan.

20.6.5.8 The witness missed up to 103 SLR shots which were fired in the Bog-side by the army that afternoon although he did apparently hear Thompson sub-machine gunfire, sounds of an explosion like a nail bomb, three SLR shots, then pistol shots followed by two SLR shots. Day 371/175/19 to Day 371/200/12. His observations on this issue clearly do not represent an accurate picture of events. For further submissions on the evidence of this witness see submissions on Observation Posts Sector 3.

20.6.6 Soldier 040

[11] See also WT16. 43E to WT1644B.

20.6.6.1 This witness was located in Magazine Street accompanied by Soldier 134. He made a first statement to the RMP on 2 February 1972, which is at B1652. He described seeing 3 members of the Parachute Regiment arresting a number of people at the end wall of Glenfada Park Flats. He saw two other Parachute Regiment members take up position on the corner where the arrests had taken place. One of them adopted a kneeling position and fired a shot along the rear of block 2 Rossville Flats. He saw a man waving his arm leap in the air and land on his back. A priest came out and tended to the man.

20.6.6.2 At almost the same time he saw the man shot he saw a further two men fall to the ground in front of the Rossville Flats but about fifty yards further along towards Rossville Street. One of the men got up but fell again and was helped to a position under the veranda at the front of block 2 of Rossville Flats. At the time he thought that the two men had been struck by rubber bullets because one of them got to his feet. He did see three bodies being taken away and a further four casualties removed from somewhere in front of Joseph Place which was outside his field of vision.

20.6.6.3 His second statement was taken on 16 February 1972 by Lt.Colonel Overbury at Lisburn. It appears at B1656. In this statement he indicated he wished to correct some points having studied photographs of the scene he observed on 30 January 1972. The kneeling soldier was now said to be pointing his rifle at a man facing him with his arms above his shoulders and his fists clenched. The man fell by the trees between the end of Joseph Place and the end of Rossville Flats nearest to the observer. Soldier 040 then described two men running from the crowd as fast as they could. One was in a crouching position and held his right arm under his left armpit. The other man had his arm around the first man's shoulder. They ran extremely fast into the ground floor flat, second from the right of the Joseph Place flats.

20.6.6.4 Just after the first man had been shot he saw another man lying on the ground in the area between blocks 1 and 2. He could still the paratrooper who had fired but could not say if he had fired again. Almost immediately he saw another man fall a few yards to the left. He started to get up but fell again. He did not know from which direction he was shot but he was facing up Rossville Street towards William Street.

20.6.6.5 In his first RMP statement at B1652 he had said: "Sometime later I think I heard the sound of automatic fire but I am not certain on this point." About ten minutes after that he saw a crowd of people who were standing in Rossville Street suddenly scatter and about 20 of them, who didn't appear to know where to run, stood near the end wall of Colmcille Court (he later corrected this to Glenfada Park North in his second RMP statement.).

20.6.6.6 In his second RMP statement at B1656 he stated that it was just after 20 people had been arrested and taken away that he heard what he thought was automatic fire coming from the area of Glenfada Park. Assuming he was talking about the same twenty people he had described in his first RMP statement who he now classified as arrestees he significantly altered the timing of the firing. He also now placed the source of the firing in the area of Glenfada Park whereas previously he had not placed the source of the firing.

20.6.6.7 In his Treasury Solicitor statement at B1659 he said he "heard automatic fire from the direction of Glenfada Park." He was by then saying not only that he heard it but also from what direction it came.

20.6.6.8 In his Eversheds statement at B1661.005 paragraph 28 and B1661.006 at paragraph 38 he stated that he could no longer recall automatic fire. He thought that it was more likely he was referring to single shots fired by an automatic weapon rather than machine gun fire. He stated: " I do not remember hearing machine gun fire. I therefore believe that the reference to automatic fire is single shots fired from an automatic weapon. He corrected the location of the soldier mentioned in his Treasury Solicitor statement from the southwest corner of Glenfada Park North to the southeast corner. The following issues arise:

(i) In his first statement in 1972 the witness explicitly said he was not certain he heard the sound of automatic fire.

(ii) It is therefore difficult to see how in his second RMP statement to Lt. Colonel Overbury he was able to state independently that he heard what he thought was automatic fire and place the area it was coming from as Glenfada Park when he had not mentioned a source area in his first RMP statement.

(iii) By the time of his Treasury Solicitor statement he had become even firmer stating he heard it and gave the direction it came from. This cannot be credible.

(iv) His Eversheds statement again cannot constitute credible evidence on this issue. He never mentioned single rounds from an automatic weapon in 1972 and it is clear he is trying to rationalise the fact that he is now sure he did not hear machine gun fire.

(v) The Inquiry should find that the first recollection of this witness is nearer the correct one namely that he thought he heard automatic fire but could not be certain. It is submitted the evidence of the witness suffers by the fact that the further he is removed from the incident in his statements in 1972 the more assertive he becomes in his description. It may be that the witness was prompted or encouraged in this growing assertiveness but it is not credible evidence.

20.6.6.9 It is notable that the witness described two men run from the crowd in a crouching position to the first house in Joseph Place for the first time in his second RMP statement taken on 16 February 1972. One of them had his right arm under his left armpit as if he was hurt or holding something. The other man had his arm round his shoulder. A very similar account of this incident appeared in the second statement of Soldier 134 considered below, who was in the derelict building at Magazine Street Upper with Soldier 040 and who was also interviewed by Lt. Colonel Overbury on 16 February 1972 for the purposes of his second statement. The Inquiry is aware that Patrick McDaid was helped into a house in this area by Patrick Walsh and Michael Bradley was also assisted to a house in this area.

20.6.6.10 The witness does not report seeing any civilian gunmen or hearing any low velocity gunfire in Sector 5. B1652 to B1654.

20.6.7 Soldier 134

20.6.7.1 Soldier 134 gave his first RMP statement on 3 February 1972 at B1822. The witness described a male civilian "trotting" across Glenfada Park towards the Flats with a Paratrooper behind him. The Paratrooper then knelt down behind a lamppost and fired one round from his SLR at the man who then fell to the ground. At Day 363/38/25 the witness confirmed he believed the Paratrooper was on his own. About two or three minutes later he heard about five or six more shots from SLR's, which came from "Lecky Street/William Street" area. In his evidence to this Inquiry the witness explained he thought that Lecky Street was the William Street area. After these shots were fired he saw three civilians fall to the floor in the same area as the previous shooting. He presumed these three people had been shot. Most of the people dispersed leaving only about two hundred people in cover around the flats. He then saw two civilian ambulances arrive and the bodies were put inside. He again heard another SLR round being fired from the area of William Street and the people around the ambulance immediately took cover. B1822 to B1824.

20.6.7.2 The witness next made a statement on 16 February 1972 to Lt. Colonel Overbury. In this statement his description of the incident is modified. He saw the paratrooper kneeling in the aim position pointing his rifle in his direction. As the witness heard the sound of his rifle firing a single shot he saw a man sprawled on the ground between the two trees between Rossville Flats and Joseph Place. He did not see the man fall but he appeared to be the same man he saw "trotting" across Rossville Street. The witness also said he had made this statement after a conversation with Soldier 040 who had described the man as turning back towards the soldier with his hands raised. He concluded that he could not have seen the man at the moment he fell because he had not seen the man facing the soldier. He accepted at Day 363/48/15 to Day 363/48/19 that the man he saw "trotting" and the man shot might have been a different man but his conversation with Soldier 040 was clearly based on him believing it was the same man.

20.6.7.3 He saw a priest and a crowd gather. Then he described seeing two men running together one with his arm around the other. One was holding his hand under his jacket. They ran into one of the Joseph Place Flats. This description is very close to the description which appeared in the second RMP statement of.Soldier 040 examined above. According to the evidence of Soldier 134 he did discuss matters with Soldier 040 in advance. Again as with Soldier 040 this incident is described by the witness for the first time at Lisburn on 16 February to Lt. Colonel Overbury. Around this time he also saw two men, not three as he said earlier at the corner of blocks 1 and 2 of the Rossville Flats. He saw one fall and as he looked to see where the shot came from he saw another man near him on the ground. He did not see where the shots came from. B1826 to B1827. The position of the two men he saw who fell is marked at C and D on B1831.014.

20.6.7.4 The second statement to Lt Colonel Overbury contains important changes. In his first RMP statement he saw a man being shot running away from the Paratrooper. That has been altered by the time of the second statement to not seeing the man fall. The witness was asked was it because of the difficulty his first account would have created for the army at the time was that why he was invited to change his account or was that the reason his evidence was suppressed. He denied these suggestions. Day 363/88/20 to Day 363/88/24.

20.6.7.5 The first statement described a man being shot then a gap and three other men being shot. The second statement and subsequent statement to the Treasury Solicitor indicated that he had meant to describe three people instead of four as having been shot. When asked was it in fact really the suggestion of the Treasury Solicitor staff that he alter his evidence to suggest that he had mistaken three people for four he replied " I cannot honestly say sir." Day 363/93/6 to Day 363/93/9.

20.6.7.6 The change in the accounts of this witness is remarkable considering he was deployed as an observer of relevant events from the City Walls. The change in sighting of the first man falling having been shot from behind is not a credible explanation even in the light of a conversation with 040. The change in number of persons seen is inexplicable since that was not an issue discussed with Soldier 040. The fact is that what emerged by the process of statement taking was an account very much more favourable to the army than his first statement.

20.6.7.7 This witness claimed in his 1972 RMP statement to have heard Thompson sub-machine gunfire in the Stevenson's Bakery/William Street swimming pool area on Bloody Sunday about fifteen minutes before the gathering of the crowd at Free Derry Corner. In his Treasury Solicitor statement he had changed it to at a time when the marchers had arrived at Free Derry corner. At Day/363/29/22 to Day 363/29/23 he said the location was only an assumption. In his Eversheds statement at B1831.005 paragraph 33 he claimed to have heard it whilst the crowd were at Free Derry corner. When asked why there was a difference he replied that he had no idea but that was what he believed at the time of the statement. Day 363/26/10 to Day 363/28/9. Neither could he explain the difference between his RMP and Treasury Solicitor statement[12].

20.6.7.8 There is thus a body of evidence confirming the presence of one or more soldiers at the corner of Glenfada Park North and one firing behind block 2 of the Flats. The evidence also supports the proposition that a number of other members of what must have been Anti-Tank Platoon were in the vicinity of Soldier F when he was firing. The civilian evidence indicates a greater volume of firing in the direction of the rear of block 2 of the flats

[12] Acknowledged in examination by Arthur Harvey QC that not only did the distance make considerable distortion of sound possible but that he could be mistaken it was low velocity shots. Day 363/75/10 to Day 363/75/13 and Day 363/75/7 to Day 363/75/12.

than any military witness. Indeed that must be so since there were four casualties in this location but only two admitted shots from one soldier. On that simple but irrefutable proposition it must follow that the civilian evidence must be more accurate than the military evidence.

20.6.8 Soldier 030

20.6.8.1 This witness was located on the platform. His observations in relation to the blocks of Rossville Flats are dealt with in our submissions on Observation Posts in Sector 2. As described in his first RMP statement made on 2 February 1972 following the observations at the Rossville Flats, he saw a body lying by the telephone box. He heard a burst of what in his opinion was Thompson sub machine gun fire. He claimed Soldier 001 then directed his attention to a 5ft wooden fence on the left-hand corner of Glenfada Park. He described a soldier engaging the gunman, the gunman disappearing and automatic fire from that position ceasing. The soldier in Glenfada Park turned and aimed his SLR in the direction of the platform. He then heard a number of single low velocity shots from below him. This was followed by one shot from the soldier in Glenfada Park. He then glanced down and saw a body below him. He described four bodies after the shooting stopped. B1590.

20.6.8.2 He made his second RMP statement on 16 February 1972 to Lt Colonel Overbury. In this statement the number of pistol shots below him have become a volley. He then saw the paratrooper fire one shot in his direction from which the shots had come. When he looked over the wall he saw a man lying on the ground. This statement was clearly crafted to make a closer connection between the low velocity shots, the paratrooper and the man lying on the ground. B1597.

20.6.8.3 In his Treasury Solicitor statement he described the soldier in Glenfada Park then turned and aimed his SLR in his direction. Immediately after this he heard single low velocity shots from below him but he could not see who was firing since his view was obstructed by the city wall. However he looked down and could see a body lying below him opposite the gaps between blocks 2 and 3 of the Rossville Flats. B1612.019 paragraph 5.

20.6.8.4 At the Widgery Inquiry, as he had done in his Treasury Solicitor's statement, he described these events as occurring after seeing the body of Barney McGuigan. He was also clearly adding details to his evidence at Widgery, which were patently untrue. See his evidence to this Inquiry at Day 366/142/2 to Day 366/147/6.

20.6.8.5 The witnesses Eversheds statement was in complete contradiction of his earlier accounts. The witness therein claimed not to have seen a soldier aim his rifle in his direction but a civilian gunman. The gunman was dressed in combat gear and had long straight black hair. The gunman fired not from Glenfada Park but south of Joseph Place and fired at the city wall south of Charley OP. B1612.003 paragraph 14 to B1612.005 paragraph 30.

20.6.8.6 The witness' accounts of events are inherently unreliable and stem from an attempt to justify shooting by a soldier into the area which he was observing. None of the amount of dramatic activity he witnessed was reported by him to his Sergeant 001 who was close by. None of these events were recorded in any report or log available. No military or police witness on the walls corroborates his account of events.

20.6.9 Conclusion

20.6.9.1 Given the volume of firing claimed by Soldier S into the gap between blocks 1 and 2 of Rossville Flats, the Inquiry will be alive to the possibility of Patrick Campbell having been wounded as a result of one of those shots. However, it is submitted that Soldier F, on the clear weight of the evidence, wounded Patrick Campbell on Bloody Sunday. Further, he wounded Danny McGowan. Although these acts were not admitted by Soldier F, the above conclusions are suggested by the evidence given by the military witnesses before the enquiry. He then murdered Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan.

20.6.9.2 The only soldier who acknowledged firing into Sector 5 was Soldier F. It is submitted that contrary to Soldier F's evidence, he fired more than the two shots he claimed into this area. Soldier F lied about seeing a man with a pistol. This was a fiction to cover his unjustified shooting in Sector 5. It is further submitted that Soldier F's evidence of the number of shots he fired in this area and indeed his overall total of 13 is unworthy of belief. Having lied consistently in 1972 about where he fired and how many shots he fired in particular areas the Inquiry should place no weight of any kind on his evidence of the location and number of shots he discharged.

20.6.10 Observation Posts Sector 5

20.6.10.1 Soldier F was the only soldier who admitted firing into Sector 5 on Bloody Sunday. He claimed to fire at a man with an object in his hand, which was large and black like an automatic pistol. He fired two rounds at this man, who then fell to the ground.

20.6.10.2 The sight lines from a number of Observation Points on the City Walls would have given a clear view into the area behind block 2 of Rossville Flats and would have given an excellent view of any activity by civilian gunmen or indeed any activity by soldiers. The evidence of soldiers relevant to this sector has been considered in detail in our review of Military Evidence in Sector 5. It is clear from the evidence that soldiers on the Platforms Charley Op[13] and Magazine Street Upper had excellent views into Sector 5.

[13] EP1.1 shows Charley Op. P233.2 is taken from the City Walls, along the southern side of block 2 of Rossville Flats.

20.6.10.3 None of the soldiers at any of these locations, who made statements, reported gunfire from civilians in their direction. None of the soldiers reported a sighting of a civilian gunman or indeed a bomber on the area behind block 2 of Rossville Flats[14]. The regimental logs of 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment and The Royal Anglian Regiment do not contain any such reports. The 8th Brigade log does not contain any such report.

20.6.10.4 The soldiers who did report seeing a Paratrooper fire into this area, namely Soldier 030, Soldier 040, Soldier 134 and Soldier 227, gave limited accounts of a single soldier firing one or two shots. This cannot be correct, given:

i) The civilian evidence regarding the quantity of firing in this area.
ii) The evidence of INQ 1826.
iii) The number of known casualties in this sector.

20.6.10.5 The limited evidence from soldiers on the City Walls of low velocity or pistol fire is not credibly connected with any event in Sector 5.

20.7 Civilian gunmen and bombers

20.7.1 The evidence of Nigel Wade, at M79.4 paragraph 15, is that in front of Free Derry Corner, he heard more shooting and with about a thousand others he went flat on the ground. It was impossible to tell where the shooting was coming from but it sounded to him that the closest shots were from nearby buildings, which he thought were called "Joseph Flats". At Day 109/140/23 to Day 109/141/3, he was asked did he have any recollection now of having a perception that these shots came from Joseph Place flats. He answered that he did have that sense, but would not put it any stronger than that:

[14] It is notable that the evidence of police officers in and around the walls confirms this position.

"Since you mention it, it could have been an echo effect, I do not know. But I did have that sense. But I could not be more definite."

At Day 109/222/1 to Day 109/222/25, he acknowledged that this had been a personal impression, for which he lacked any evidence. In his article at L34[15], he stated that they were pinned to the ground and there was firing from the Para's and "snipers in the R.F." This witness' perceptions, which he even acknowledges could have been an echo effect, do not constitute reliable evidence to establish shooting from the Joseph Place flats, or indeed any location.

20.7.2 The Sunday Times, at S37, described an Official firing two .32 pistol shots from the lane behind Joseph Place up at the Observation Post near Walker monument. It was hopelessly out of range and it was also risky since he was in full view of the City Walls and the lane was crowded with panicking people. At Day 414/63/25 to Day 414/64/25, Reg Tester denied any knowledge of this incident, although Peter Jacobson had indicated that Tester would have confirmed the incident took place. In any event, a purported account of an incident of pistol shots at this location and at an undetermined time could not be relied upon as credible evidence of such an event actually occurring. In addition there is no military evidence which ties a sighting or records a reaction to this alleged incident. Even if the report is authentic, it did not and could not impact on the actions of soldiers on the day.

Role and responsibility of civilian gunmen and bombers

20.7.3 It is clear that alleged civilian gunmen or bombers played no role whatsoever in the killing and wounding in Sector 5. Soldier F's pistol man behind block 2 of Rossville Flats was a creature of invention designed exclusively to conceal the fact that he had no lawful or valid reason to fire shots behind block 2 of Rossville Flats.

20.8 Missing Casualties Sector 5

20.8.1 This section is prepared and presented as a response to the Lawton and Aiken team documents at OS7.34 and OS8.42.

20.8.2 PIRA 25

At AG17.7 paragraph 15 to 16 in his original statement to the Inquiry, the witness indicated he saw Patrick Doherty shot crawling towards the alleyway which ran along the eastern side of Joseph Place by three soldiers at the entrance to Glenfada Park North. Another man who went out to Patrick Doherty's aid was shot at. The witness gave oral evidence at Day 424/122/24 to Day 424/124/10. He indicated that the second man who was also shot at but who he did not think was injured may have been Patrick Walsh. He later found this out by seeing a photograph of him. He had described in his statement at AG17.7 paragraph 16 a further man who he was later told was Alexander Nash going out to their aid. The witness was told later it was Alexander Nash although he did not know it at the time. This man was shot in the hip or buttock. At Day 424/124/21 to Day 424/125/10 the witness was asked did he see someone shot in the hip or buttock. He replied no. He explained that people were saying it was Alex Nash and he had been shot in the hip. He had not known that at the time and he had seen no-one else shot in the area apart from Mr. Doherty. He confirmed to Counsel to the Inquiry that the position was he heard some time after the events of the afternoon that Alex Nash had been shot and for some reason he believed he was the man who had come to assist Mr. Doherty. The witness further confirmed at Day 424/139/4 to Day 424/139/6 that he could not remember seeing the third man shot. It is clear from the examination of this witness that he presents no credible evidence of a "missing casualty."

20.8.3 Joseph McKinney

At AG17.1 paragraph 23 this witness gave a detailed description of seeing the body of Patrick Doherty including position, clothing, age and later knew it was Patrick Doherty. He described a second body but could not visualise him as clearly as Paddy Doherty. At the date of his statement he did not know how the second body was lying or his approximate age. He recalled " thinking both men were dead" although he didn't see any wounds on either man. The witness gave evidence and was examined at Day 076/138/16 to Day 076/146/6. It is submitted that the scene described by the witness was as in the P714-717 showing Paddy Walsh beside the body of Patrick Doherty rendering assistance.

20.8.4 Martin Tucker

At AT17.5 paragraph 32 he described two men running close together along the front of Block 2 of the Rossville Flats by the shops. He thought they were running to the alleyway behind Joseph Place. They were shot at the point marked J on AT17.16. He thought both were shot in the leg. It was almost like watching a movie. He thought both got into the alleyway behind Joseph Place or into a house. He thought a couple of people helped them. They were in their thirties maybe not old but not teenagers. He did not remember what they were wearing. He did not see where the shots came but thought it was from the direction of Rossville Street and Glenfada Park South. At Day 098/119/1 to Day 098/119/3 the witness accepted that though both went down one may have been shot. At Day 098/117/9 to Day 098/1122/1 the witness was examined on this issue by Mr Arthur Harvey QC. It is submitted that the description the witness gave was that of Patrick Campbell being assisted by Danny McGowan.

20.8.5 Joseph Nicholas

At AN17.5 paragraph 21 to 22 the witness described the shooting of Patrick Doherty whom he assumed had been shot by two soldiers at Joseph Place. Patrick Doherty had been crawling towards the alleyway behind Joseph Place. There was a group of people at the entrance of the alleyway to which he had been heading. They had already got across the open space and were urging him on before he was hit. One of the group came out to try to rescue Patrick Doherty after he had been shot and the witness believed the rescuer was then shot in the leg and was dragged back into the group in the alleyway. A second person then came out and again appeared to be shot around the legs and dragged back. Finally a man he now knew to be Paddy Walsh crawled out to Patrick Doherty. At Day 78/45/13 to Day 78/45/20 the witness confirmed he did not see the persons afterwards to confirm they had been hit. At Day 78/45/8 to Day 78/46/12 on examination by Counsel it was suggested that Danny McGowan had come out of the alleyway and assisted a person into the alleyway who was Patrick Campbell. It was put to him that given the passage of time his sequence of events was a little askew and whether persons were hit as opposed to taking protective actions to save them from being hit he could not now say. He replied it was possible. Further at Day 78/49/19 to Day 78/50/6 an extract from his 1972 interview with the Sunday Times journalists at AN17.20 was put to him. " Nicholas watched Walsh crawl out twice. And also saw the rescue of McGowan after he was shot helping Campbell. Nicholas thinks Walsh beckoned for help." It was suggested that those two and Patrick Doherty added up to the three men he saw shot which the witness accepted.

20.8.6 Derrick Tucker Junior

20.8.6.1 At AT15.20 this witness, who was 12 at the time, made a statement in which he described a number of youths running behind the maisonettes through a small alleyway. He described these youths as being fired on by troops in the observation posts on the Derry Walls. As the last three youths entered the alleyway the first two crawled with shots in the legs but crawled on in. The last one was crawling in and a shot rang out and he fell. He lay still but there was no sign of a wound. After describing attempts to assist this person the men carried him down to an ambulance. He was dead. He then described men being carted into the ambulance soldiers fired even though the white handkerchief was being waved by Father Mulvey.

20.8.6.2 At Day 99/26/17 to Day 99/27/20 the relevant contents of this statement were put to the witness. He was asked did he have any recollection now of two people apparently shot in the legs. His answer was "I honestly cannot say." He replied yes when it was suggested to him that the third man must have been Patrick Doherty. He confirmed one of the men attempting to assist must have been Patrick Walsh. At Day 99/33/24 to Day 99/36/15 the witness was further examined and confirmed that some people would have thrown themselves to the ground without being shot. Others would have stood up in bewilderment and others would have carried on. He assumed but he did not see the two persons shot in the leg. The witness agreed that a description put to him of an incident from Danny McGowan was consistent with what he saw. That description was of Danny McGowan helping Patrick Campbell across the open ground and being shot just as he was getting into the alleyway and then pushing Patrick Campbell into the alleyway and dragging himself eventually in. The witness also confirmed at the time his assumption was that the persons were being shot at from behind i.e. Rossville Street as opposed to the City Walls. He further confirmed the men were not carrying weapons and they were not doing anything to give rise to soldiers shooting at them.

20.8.7 Patrick McGlinchey

At AM247.3 paragraph 13 the witness, who was 15 years old at the time of Bloody Sunday, described some men running up the entrance way of one of the first three houses in the north block of Joseph Place marked at AM247.10. They had their backs to him and he didn't know where they came from. As one of the men was seven or eight yards from the front door he called out "I'm hit" and "seemed to reach around his back". The witness believed he had been shot in the back. He had black or brown hair and was wearing a jumper rather than a coat and "trousers of some sort." In examination at Day 388/79/5 to Day 388/79/25, the witness claimed his impression was that the man shouted out when he actually realised he had been hit. No one was supporting him or assisting him. It is submitted this evidence amounts to an "impression" of a 15 year old boy. Whilst no doubt honestly held someone shouting " I am hit" and seeming to reach round his back is hardly sufficient to lead to a finding of an additional casualty on Bloody Sunday. His statement the man "seemed" to reach around his back. The witness saw nothing of the aftermath and what he did see was a fleeting moment of a running man with others. It is noted that there is no other evidence before the Inquiry concerning a casualty occurring in this location. It is also instructive to note that if the man was running up one of these driveways there is no claimed army firing or targets in this location. Therefore no known soldier fired in this location. If a gunman or person engaged in such activity had been shot the soldiers would no doubt have claimed it. The Inquiry will also be aware that a number of known casualties were taken into houses in this location, including Patrick McDaid, who had sustained a wound to his back. The Inquiry should treat this evidence with the utmost caution.

20.8.8 Joseph Moore

At AM413.5 paragraph 24 the witness, who was in the group at the telephone box at Block 1 of the Rossville Flats saw Barney McGuigan shot. He then described a lad in his teens or early twenties crawling along the kerb "doggie fashion" along an alleyway by a garden wall in front of the Joseph Place maisonettes. As he crawled he gave a cry of pain and rolled over onto his side. He did not know what happened to him after that. In examination at Day 89/141/17 to Day 89/160/21 the witness accepted that the person he saw could have been Paddy Doherty. His 1972 statement had indicated that the man was crawling away from his position. It is submitted that the balance of the evidence is such that the witness was describing the crawling figure of Patrick Doherty.

20.8.9 David McIntyre

At AM284 paragraphs 1 to 2 the witness was ten years old on Bloody Sunday. He gave evidence on this issue at Day 171/144/1 to Day 171/154/5. He described seeing a male aged about 17 shot in the face or the eye in the area of the steps between Joseph Place East and Fahan Street East. The witness corrected this to "the upper body" at Day 171/139/18. It was a single shot. Another man went to try to help him. This man was about 17 or 20 years old. Another single shot sounded and the man fell down. Both points are marked at D and E on AM284.3. At Day 171 the witness declined to take the oath or affirm. In examination at Day 171/148/21 to Day 171/148/22 the witness was asked could the man have been a significantly older man. He replied that the first man could have been an older man. The witness said he was looking "for a matter of seconds". As regards the second man's age it was put to the witness that he had said the man was perhaps between 17 and 20. He replied:" No, from a distance that is what he looked but I know he was not." At the time of his statement he did not know who the people were but he was told it was someone called Mr. Doherty and the other man was called McGowan. He insisted that it was Mr. Doherty he saw shot and that both men had been shot from the City Walls. Given the tenor and content of the evidence of this witness it would be difficult either to rely on him as identifying the persons he believes he saw at all.

20.8.10 Missing Casualties St. Columb's Wells

20.8.10.1 The Aiken team document, at OS8.42, refers to a number of casualties or bodies said to have been removed by car from St. Columb's Wells.

20.8.10.2 Nigel Wade, in his Treasury Solicitor statement at M79.4, described seeing three or four others come out of St Columb's Wells waving white handkerchiefs. There were more shots and they and the bystanders flattened out again. After some minutes, four wounded men were brought across the road by the flats, at a low run, and put into private cars. They were not fired upon as they moved this time. At M79.22 paragraph 18, the witness described standing at point E, marked on M79.25, which is in St Columb's Wells. As he was standing at that point he remembered seeing three or four people, who had apparently been shot and were bleeding, being loaded into cars and driven off. It can be noted that although Mr. Wade had mentioned the matter in his Treasury Solicitor's statement he was not asked about this at the Widgery Tribunal when he gave his evidence. Clearly the issue of so-called missing or unknown civilian casualties was not then exercising the minds of the soldiers representatives.

20.8.10.3 It is notable that his account at M79.22, signed on the 2nd June 1999, states that the people had "apparently been shot and were bleeding". This description did not appear anywhere in his Treasury Solicitor's statement in 1972, which merely used the term "wounded". The witness was asked about this matter at Day 109 at this Inquiry. At Day 109/139/7 to Day 109/139/23, the witness described cars being commandeered or backed up and a great crowd in the street. There was a great fuss about getting cars through to the top of the street near the Joseph Place area:

> "A number of bleeding people, I had no idea whether they were, you know, lightly or heavily wounded or even dead, were brought out and put into cars and the cars made their way down the crowded street toward, I assume, the hospital". He was not able to see the nature of their injuries but he said he could see a lot of blood.

20.8.10.4 It should be noted that the witness, when asked about this matter at Day 109/142/16 to Day 109/142/19, stated:

"...Once again I find time shrinks one's memory..."

20.8.10.5 Of course, what appears to have happened to some extent is that his memory has expanded the incident into one where he sees a lot of blood. This cannot be reconciled with the fact that he currently has no idea if these individuals were lightly or heavily wounded or even dead. The witness therefore cannot have seen wounds on the people described as "wounded" in 1972. This may be a snapshot recollection of a known casualty being assisted into a car by those who had come to his aid. However there is nothing in his recollection which would allow a conclusion that he saw additional wounded casualties on the day.

20.8.10.6 Simon Winchester in his Treasury Solicitor's statement at M83.20 spoke of seeing 2 casualties lying in the gap between Joseph Place and Rossville Flats. He then walked down to Free Derry Corner and met Mr Wade once again and with him saw "seven casualties being put into cars in Leckey Road and driven off to hospital". This issue was not pursued with the witness at the Widgery Tribunal by Counsel for the army.

20.8.10.7 It is notable that Mr. Wade described the incident as occurring in St. Columb's Wells between the cross and point E, on his map at M79.25. Mr Wade had also placed it in St. Columb's Wells in his 1972 Treasury Solicitor statement. It is indicative of the difficulties for witnesses in giving evidence of such a scene that even in their 1972 Treasury Solicitor statements they have pinpointed two clearly distinct locations even whilst in each other's company.

20.8.10.8 The evidence of Mr Wade was put to the witness at Day 116/87/13 to Day 116/88/10. Mr. Wade's evidence was that what he saw were three or four persons being put into cars in the vicinity. When asked if he was certain that he saw seven casualties as opposed to a number of persons being put into cars, Mr Winchester replied that it was certainly more than four. He was asked regarding his use of the word "casualties" was he able to discern that the people had visible injury or did they appear to be people who distressed as well as persons who had injuries. His answer was as follows:

> "I cannot say that I saw blood on all of them, so it is conceivable that some just could have been distressed and were getting out of the area, yes".

20.8.10.9 Both the above witnesses are clearly relating an incident in the St Columb's Wells/Joseph Place area where it is known that two casualties were removed by car to hospital. In the light of the events that they had both just witnessed, Mr Wade and Mr Winchester have clearly formed a mistaken impression. This is a fact amply demonstrated by the changing estimates of numbers given by both witnesses even though they apparently witnessed the same incident in each other's company, 20.8.10.10 At AO75.2, John Barry had recorded the following:

> "Only one anecdote of interest. He says that he arrived in St Columb's Wells having walked slowly and deliberately down the road from Butcher's Gate behind the flats (which rather knock the firing from the walls theory on the head). And got to the Wells as they were in the process of collecting bodies.... Say a bloke called Tony Harken was directing this transportation of bodies across the alleyway and screaming at everyone else to get back for fear of getting shot. K says he saw 5 or 6 people being carried across that road of whom at least 2 dead".

20.8.10.11 This is a story reported to Mr. Barry. In itself it is clearly incorrect in the detail of what occurred at either Joseph place or St. Columb's Wells. There may be a number of explanations for this. The story in itself may be a complete fiction. It may be a description of events occurring somewhere other than that particular location. It may be an incorrect description of the scenes witnessed with regard to what were described as "bodies". However John Barry himself in the note described it as an "anecdote". It is submitted that the Inquiry ought not to be invited to rely on an "anecdote" to establish the truth on this issue.

20.8.10.12 Mr Barry was asked about this matter at Day 193/169/5 to Day 193/169/5. His evidence was that he could not help because he could not remember. He did offer the following comment:

> "...if it were something different as opposed to the collecting of the bodies that everyone knew were lying around, as it were, if indeed something different, I would have made much more of it than this, I would have made some note to inquire who the bodies were and so on." Day193/168/25 to Day 193/169/5.

20.8.10.13 Quite clearly, at the time, John Barry saw nothing in this story which required or even suggested further investigation. It is clear also he never found anything to make him return to the story. This is perhaps yet another indication that the fiction of Missing Casualties had yet to find any credible supporters in the aftermath of Bloody Sunday.

20.8.10.13 Anthony Harkin gave a statement to Eversheds at AH11.6 paragraph 32. There, he described having arrived in St Columb's Wells and could hear shouting coming from the area of Joseph Place. People were shouting and there were wounded and injured and they were asking for help. There was a large number of other people already in St Columb's Wells with his brother when he arrived but none of them made any move to go and help the wounded. After a while he decided to go and help. He carried a hankie and he retraced his steps North until he was standing in the middle of the open ground between Joseph Place and St Columb's Well. As he stood there the people who had been hiding at the back of Joseph Place dragged or helped about 3 or 4 wounded people over the open space and into St Columb's Well. At AH11.6 paragraph 33, he continued that he did not remember very much about the wounded or exactly how many there were, although he did remember in particular an old man of between 40 and 45 who was carried by the arms and legs as if he was in a chair:

"I think he had been hit in the back or the hip though he still looked alive."

20.8.10.15 He also remembered a woman being one of the wounded and he took it for granted that one of the others was the body which he had seen lying prone between the Rossville Flats and Joseph Place. Once all the wounded were over the road he followed them back to St Columb's Well and watched as they were put into cars and driven away. He did not remember anything about the cars or the people carrying the wounded.

20.8.10.16 It is notable that in his 1972 statement at AH11.19 he had said the following:

> "I helped lead a crowd of panicking people along the Wells. A priest pulled up in a Red Cross car. He was looking for injured people.... We waited for ten minutes and then went away to safety. I helped to put about seven of the injured into cars."

He mentioned only injured people not wounded as he had done to Eversheds. There were seven in his 1972 account but in his Eversheds statement he only then remembered three or four.

20.8.10.17 When the witness gave evidence on Day 177/39/1 to 177/42/9 he was asked which number was more accurate. He answered:

" Well, I could say five or six, I am just, I just could not be sure."

The witness also indicated that he found out that the name of one of the injured people was Alex Nash. He then went on to say that he there was a house in St. Columb's Wells that somebody was taken into. This was not additional to the people brought into St. Columb's Wells. When shown P747 the witness confirmed it looked like the man he saw being carried. It was Patrick Campbell.

20.8.10.18 It seems that the witness saw the movement of Patrick Campbell and those giving him assistance to St. Columb's Wells. His reference to seeing Alex Nash would appear to indicate that he has accumulated various pieces of knowledge about the day after initially mistaking the number of people in actually saw wounded in the area of St. Columb's Wells.

20.8.10.19 Noel Doherty, at AD91.7 paragraph 36, also described reaching St Columb's Well. He stood there for about two or three minutes. While he was standing there he saw people being carried across Fahan Street from Joseph Place and some of them seemed to be injured. He saw two or three people being put into cars which drove off in the direction of the hospital. He could not recall what colour cars they were nor what make they were. He recalled particularly one man who seemed to have been injured in the hip. He would say he was about 40 – 50 years old, he was placed on his stomach in the car and driven away. Given the description of the injury Mr Doherty is in all likelihood describing Patrick Campbell. It is wholly understandable given the passage of time that precise locations and numbers of people who were actually being assisted as opposed to giving assistance may be inaccurate.

20.8.10.20 Thomas Ralph Dawe described at AD5.5 paragraph 29 seeing the back door of a car open with two bodies in it. One was in the well of the car and the other one was in the back seat propped up on the left-hand side of the seat. Another person was put on the right hand side of the back of the car. The witness gave evidence to the Inquiry at Day 94. He accepted that his statement in 1972 had not mentioned this issue. The Inquiry is referred in particular to the examination of the witness by Mr Finnegan QC at Day 094/152/19 to Day 094/173/14. The witness accepted it as a possibility that he had amalgamated the sighting of the car driven by Mr Bernard McGonagle taking Patrick Campbell to the Regimental Aid Post and the car which was driven by Mr. Raymond Rogan containing the body of Gerard Donaghey.

20.8.10.21 Mr Colm O'Domhnaill, who was in the same location as Mr. Dawe, had described, at AO19.4 paragraph 23, a car, which was a Cortina, possibly a Mark II. The witness described what was obviously the body of Gerard Donaghey and he had also said that the car did not go fast and he was able to look in. At Day 094/169/18 it was put to Mr. Dawe that this was the car that apparently did not stop. He was asked "Is that close to what you are remembering?" Answer "It is similar". It is clear that what the witness saw was the car containing the wounded Patrick Campbell in the St. Columb's Well's area and the car driven from the Well's area containing the body of Gerard Donaghey. Mr Glasgow asked the witness a further question about this matter at Day 094/177/2 to Day 094/177/9: "Is it still your recollection that the car you saw had a body which you believed to be dead lying in the well of that car in front of the passenger seat?" Answer, "There were 2 people in the back of the car, one was lying across the well and one was in a certain position at the far side of the car sort of sitting angle". The answer again reflects perhaps the difficulty that the witness had in placing events from 1972 in the context of his current recollection.

20.8.10.22 Ciaran Gill, whose statement appears at M105.9 paragraphs 39 to 44 described making his way towards St. Columb's Wells and was near Fahan Street. He observed a teenager with a leg/thigh wound being carried by several men into the street, one of those carrying the wounded man shouting loudly: "Has anyone got a car to take him to hospital?" Eventually a car was found and he was driven away. The witness gave evidence on this issue at Day 203/142/1 to Day 203/146/2. The witness saw him in a position at "the entrance to the street" which would be the "Free Derry Corner or Rossville Flats end." The teenager seemed to be "late teens, early 20's". The witness confirmed that he did not actually see the wound but somebody was shouting "be careful about his leg, he has been wounded." Day 203/143/9 to Day 203/143/13. Although the witness described a teenager the injury described and the location and circumstances of this incident suggest it may be a report of the movement of Danny McGowan.

20.8.10.23 The witness then described in his statement at M105.9 paragraph 41 "another wounded young man was brought into the street by two or three men moving as fast as they could with cries of help us " The witness stated that he had walked across the street and supported this young man as he was manoeuvred into a car. The man was wearing blue jeans, a dark sweater, and in his late teens. He was unconscious but saw no visible signs of injury on him at all. The witness did not recognise any of the men carrying him. It was his "assumption" that the young man had been wounded by gunfire. In his Eversheds statement the witness described three people being put into cars but referred to "five" in his article in 1972. At M105.9 paragraph 44 the witness acknowledged that some of those being placed in cars might not have been wounded by gunfire. When asked to put his "assumption" aside the only one he saw with visible injuries was:

"The first one, where I saw blood" Day 203/146/2.

20.8.10.24 However just a short time before in the course of his testimony the witness had said the following:

" When you say a leg/thigh wound, did you actually see blood on him?

A No, somebody was shouting "be careful about his leg, he has been wounded. I have not said that in the statement, but that is what they were saying." Day 203/143/9 to Day 203/143/13.

20.8.10.25 That the witness gave such a completely contradictory answers in the course of a short period of oral testimony must suggest significant doubt about the reliability of his testimony on this issue. It would appear on his first answer he did not personally see a deceased or wounded person in the course of these events.

20.9 Conclusions

20.9.1 The deceased and wounded were all shot whilst they were unarmed and were not engaged in any unlawful activity on Bloody Sunday. They were shot when they presented no threat of any kind to soldiers. They were the only persons shot in Sector 5. The soldiers have only admitted a total of 2 shots being fired into this area. This in itself renders the military evidence in this sector wholly unreliable and wholly untruthful. This can only be because the military activity in this area was unjustified and unlawful.

20.10.1 Role and responsibility of individual soldiers

20.10.1.1 Soldier F wounded Patrick Campbell and Danny McGowan. Shortly afterwards he murdered Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan. In all probability, following these shootings, other members of the Anti-Tank Platoon fired shots in the direction of the rear of block 2 of the Rossville Flats and Joseph Place.

20.10.1.2 Some of the soldiers on the walls gave a partial description of these events. Their accounts were at the very least defective in that they failed to provide a full account of the murder of two men and the wounding of two others in an a confined area. Given the sight lines and visual aids available it is remarkable that not one soldier gave a full account of these shootings.

21. ARRESTS

21. 1 Introduction and Summary of Submissions

21.1.1 According to the Soldiers' case, the sole purpose of the Paratroopers' incursion into the Bogside on Bloody Sunday was to arrest those engaged in rioting at Barriers 12 and 14. If General Ford is to be believed, the intention was to arrest 300 – 400 rioters. However, the operation was launched at a time when the rioting had largely subsided and the 56 arrests that were made by 1 Para were patently bogus. In our submission, the evidence concerning the arrests establishes the following:

21.1.2 None of those arrested was lawfully arrested and the vast majority had not even been present at Barriers 12 and 14, let alone involved in rioting there or anywhere else. No more than 6 people were even arrested by being "snatched" in open ground. Most of the arrestees were marchers and bystanders doing nothing more than sheltering either at the gable end at Glenfada Park North (25) or in 33 Chamberlain St. (20) when they were arrested.

21.1.3 There was never any plan or genuine intention to carry out a major arrest operation in which 300 - 400 rioters would be detained and prosecuted, as Ford suggested. The Army had clearly given no consideration to the logistics of arresting even 50 since they only had two lorries available for transporting prisoners to Fort George and one of these had to do two runs. It is also clear from the evidence of Sergeant Graham and Constable Black in particular that the RUC was not informed of such a plan and was not prepared for the 50 or so who arrived at Fort George.

21.1.4 Masquerading as an arrest operation, the Army's action amounted to a general assault on the civil rights march and an attack on the Bogside. Devised by General Ford and implemented by 1 Para, the operation had a number of related and overlapping objectives: to demonstrate a new "get tough" policy in Derry; to appease Unionists by satisfying their demands for more repressive measures against the "Derry Young Hooligans" as well as civil rights marchers and Nationalists generally both in Derry and in Northern Ireland as a whole; and in the process to show 8th Brigade how public disorder and civil protest should be dealt with in future. It was for this reason that the operation was launched even though the rioting at the barriers had subsided, the rioters had largely dispersed and there was no effective separation between rioters and the general mass of civilians in the area. By the time the Paratroopers went in, there was little prospect of apprehending any of those who had been engaged in rioting at the barriers, let alone 300-400, and if that had been the true objective the Paratroopers would not have been deployed at all.

21.1.5 Quite apart from the shooting of innocent civilians, the general conduct of the Paratroopers in the Bogside and at Fort George is an indication that they had in effect a licence to use gross and excessive force against civilians in the area. As was anticipated and intended by General Ford, once the Paratroopers were let loose into the Bogside they meted out gratuitous violence to the civilians they encountered, including journalists, first-aiders and middle-aged bystanders. As they debussed, soldiers fired baton rounds indiscriminately into the fleeing crowd. They then chased and clubbed civilians with batons and rifles, sometimes showing little interest in carrying out arrests at all, as demonstrated in the sequence of Coleman Doyle's photographs at EP24.1, EP24.2, EP24.3 and EP24.4 showing a soldier striking a civilian with his rifle and then leaving him motionless on the ground before moving on, apparently in search of another target. Their conduct towards those civilians they did arrest ranged from verbal abuse to various forms of inhuman and degrading treatment and torture. INQ179, a Major in the Coldstream Guards on duty at Fort George when the arrestees were brought there, described the treatment of the arrestees by the paratroopers as "most appalling" (C179.3 paragraph 15) and "very brutal" (C179.3 paragraph 21). He was so appalled by what he saw the paratroopers do to the civilians that he told his commanding officer, INQ598, and then wrote a lengthy report detailing specific instances of brutality that he had witnessed. (C179.3 paragraph 17) This report has not been disclosed by the MOD.

21.1.6. The paratroopers systematically lied about the identification of marchers as rioters as well as the location of and reasons for the "arrests", to the extent that they made formal statements of (fabricated) evidence for the purpose of supporting criminal charges against the marchers - charges that, if proven, would have led to mandatory 6-month prison sentences. Soldier F, for example, made a statement alleging that he had seen Father O'Keefe rioting. He also identified Patrick M Norris as a rioter when we know that he was going about his lawful business as a taxi driver[1], picking up a fare in the Bogside after the shooting was over, when he was arrested. The soldiers' readiness to invent evidence for this purpose also undermines their credibility generally and their evidence concerning their roles in the shootings. Incidentally, not one of the soldiers suggested that any of the persons arrested had been firing a weapon or throwing nail or petrol bombs.

21.1.7. The Royal Military Police colluded and participated in this systematic fabrication of evidence concerning the arrests.

21.1.8 RUC officers also participated in the processing of prisoners at Fort George. Apart from being in a position to witnesses the brutality of soldiers towards their prisoners, it was they who charged the prisoners on the basis of statements they must have realised or believed were false. As one of the

[1] AN28.1 paragraph 1; Day 150/119/20 to Day 150/120/6

Police officers in question readily conceded, if he had tried to arrest a Paratrooper or even report to the outside world that paratroopers had assaulted the prisoners, he would have been ostracised within the RUC. He agreed that the Paratroopers were above the law in the sense that they were able to carry out assaults with impunity. (Day 211/155/24 to Day 211/156/2) This and other evidence indicates that the RUC as a body cannot be trusted to tell the truth about what they witnessed on Bloody Sunday. The reality is that they were a sectarian force whose members had not only been engaged themselves in direct conflict with Bogsiders (for example, during the Battle of the Bogside) but had a track record of closing ranks and suppressing evidence (for example, in the "conspiracy of silence" that the Chief Constable of the day said blocked the internal investigation into the attack on Samuel Devenney[2]).

21.1.9 The civilian evidence of the events concerning arrests is to be preferred in every material respect.

21.2. Documentation

21.2.1 The Army's plans for arrests were stated in the Operational Order No.2/72 (Op Forecast) as follows

(i) Under the heading "Concept of Operations" and the sub-heading "Dispersal of the Marches" it was stated:

(1) Initially we intend to deal with illegal marches in as low a key as possible and for as long as possible. Generally speaking the front men will be moderate and non-violent – the second rank will be those to start any violence that may erupt. The security forces are to take no action against the marches until either:

(a) an attempt is made to breach the blocking points

[2] E6.0025 to E6.0026 (Report of Professor Arthur)

(b) violence against the security forces, in the form of stone, bottle and nail bombing, takes place.

(2) Illegal marches are to be halted and dispersed on ground of our own choosing. If possible, ring leaders are to be arrested on the spot. Where it is impracticable to make such arrests, photographs of ring leaders and participants are to be taken, for identification and arrest at a later stage." (G95.567)

(ii) In the same section, under the sub-heading "Hooliganism", it is stated:

"..... . an arrest force is to be held centrally behind the check points and launched in a scoop-up operation to arrest as many hooligans and rioters as possible".(G95 568)

(iii) In section 9 ("Tasks"), 1 Para is characterised as the Brigade arrest force with the task of conducting a scoop-up operation of as many hooligans and rioters as possible. The operation was only to be launched, either in whole or in part, on the orders of the Brigade Command and was expected to be conducted on foot. (G95.570)

(iv) In the same section under the heading "Arrest Procedures" it was specified that "if arrests subsequently become necessary the following form of words should be used when the arrest is made: "I arrest you for having committed acts prejudicial to the peace" (G95.573)

(v) In paragraph 3(a) of the Notes to Col Wilford's orders (under "Execution") at G94.562, the General Outline is specified as follows:

".. .. If the march takes place and confrontation becomes hostile the Battn will deploy fwd to break up the rioters and make the max number of arrests.. At this stage I cannot give a detailed technical plan. I will give the coy deployment in our FUP and then give my concept of how I think the battle could go."

(vi) Also in Col Wilford's Notes is the following provision for the arrest procedure:

".....The arrest team of RMP with RSM and Paddy Wagon and escort will move Fwd to a loc in Great James Street. Normal arrest procedure, will then take prisoners and documentation to Fort George or to Craigavon Bur (sit) (G94.563).

21.2.2. The suggestion that the army intended to deal with the march in "as low a key as possible and for as long as possible" suggests that the arrest operation would only be launched if necessary to prevent either a breach of the blocking points or serious violence against the security forces. However, it is clear from the Order as a whole that some form of violent disorder was regarded as inevitable and that 1 Para would be deployed into the Bogside whatever the scale of violence or objective need for their deployment. There is no indication in the documentation that any special plans were made to cater for an unusually large number of arrestees. The head of the Royal Military Police in Northern Ireland (INQ1383, the Assistant Provost Marshall) made no specific arrangements for the march. (Day 304/78/11 to Day 304/78/13) Although INQ 1383 initially claimed that he was aware that it had been proposed that up to 300 to 400 people might be arrested (Day 304/77/21 to Day 304/77/23) he eventually conceded that he had "no idea .. .. that there would be 300 or 400, there could be any number" (Day/304174/9 to Day 304/194/17). According to Col. Steele, the Brigade Major who drafted the Op Order, he and the Brigadier had already agreed at some stage before the Order Group Conference that the proposed figure of 300 – 400 was "ridiculous" (Day 266/87/11 to Day 266/87/21). General MacLellan said that General Ford had initially suggested 300 – 400 but he himself "speculating on far less" (Day 262/9/10 to Day 262/9/15).

21.2.3 The Soldiers' counsel have produced a document entitled "Transportation of Detainees to Fort George" at OS7.55-57, discussed further below.

21.2.4 The Inquiry produced an Arrests Bundle consisting of:

(i) the Army Schedule of Arrests (ARR1.1 to ARR1.10);

(ii) a list of 44 names of arrested persons who appeared at Londonderry Petty Sessions on 3rd February 1972 (ARR2: there are 24 people on the

"A" list, i.e. those released on police bail, and 20 on the "B" list, those released without recognisance) (ARR2.1 to ARR2.10)

(iii) a letter from the police to the DPP about prosecution of the arrestees (ARR3.1 to ARR3.4);

(iv) an internal memo to the DPP about the prosecutions (ARR4.1 to ARR4.10); and

(v) 53 individual files (ARR5.1 to ARR57.4) containing, in relation to each arrested person, a photograph of the arrestee with his "arresting officer", a Royal Military Police pro forma statement form in which the soldier explains the circumstances of the "arrest" and a police arrest report form.

21.2.5 The Army schedule contains the personal details of 51 arrestees and purports to show the location and time of each arrest, reasons for the arrest and the identity of the arresting soldier. The names of John Barry Liddy and Myles O'Hagan appear as numbers 52 and 53 respectively but no other details are given in relation to these two individuals.

21.2.6 The Petty Sessions list (ARR2) contains the personal details of 44 arrested persons, the names of the arresting soldiers and the names of the Police Officers who processed each prisoner.

21.2.7 Exhibited to the statement of Inspector Gardner is a list of the RUC personnel involved at Fort George (JG1.11). At JG1.3 paragraph 20 of Inspector Gardner's statement, he says that he interviewed the arresting soldiers at Palace Barracks and that a contemporaneous note would have been taken of the interviews which would have been typed into statements. Neither the notes nor the statements are available.

21.2.8 Christopher Clarke's opening statement concerning arrests is transcribed at Days 40 and 41. Our case concerning the arrests is set out in Arthur Harvey's opening statement at Day 46.

21.2.9 Some photographs showing arrested persons at or near Rossville St are contained at Tab 12 in Bundle P5 (P503.1 to P503.47) and at Tab 5 in Bundle P8 (P1069-1083).

21.2.10 On the basis of the above documentation and the civilian evidence, we have prepared a number of tables for ease of reference, as follows: Appendix 1 shows the names of all those arrested on Bloody Sunday, both recorded and unrecorded, grouped by the location of their arrest, with details also of the soldiers who arrested them and the stated reasons. There were 63 arrests in total but only 53 were recorded and of these only 46 were made by 1 Para at the material time. The tables show the 46 recorded arrests and a further 10 unrecorded arrests by 1 Para. The other 7 recorded arrests were made in the Long Tower area by the Royal Anglian Regiment either before or after the main "scoop-up" operation.

Appendix 2 shows the recorded arrests arranged by reference to the arresting soldiers grouped by platoon, with details of the location of arrest (alleged and actual) and reference numbers of relevant photographs or video footage.

Appendix 3 is a summary of the evidence of some of the soldiers who refer to mistreatment of prisoners at Ft George.

21.3. Overview

21.3.1 According to the Army Schedule (ARR.1), 53 people were arrested by the Army.

21.3.2 There are 63 names listed in Appendix 1 as persons arrested but this list includes Winifred O'Brien, Denis Bradley and 8 others who are not on the Army list because they were released at an early stage or, in at least one case, escaped. The full list of those arrestees who are not recorded as such is as follows:

Denis Bradley (Arrested at Glenfada Park North, released at Little James St) H1.14 paragraph 33 to H1.15 paragraph 36

Patrick O' Donnell (Arrested at Glenfada Park North, wounded, released at Lt James St) AO35.3 paragraph 21

Winifred O Brien (Arrested at Glenfada Park North, released at Ft George: AO.4) AO4.3 to AO4.4

Leo Deehan (Arrested 33 Chamberlain St, escaped in ambulance: AD 178.2)

"Mr Campbell"(Arrested33 Chamberlain St, per Thomas Meehan AM393.1)

William Leo Carlin (Arrested at 33 Chamberlain St: AC40.2 paragraph 14 to AC40.4 paragraph 26 and see P501)

Kevin Leonard (Arrested at 33 Chamberlain St: AL 7.3)

Thomas Meehan (Arrested at 33 Chamberlain St: AM 393.2)

John Morrison (Arrested at 33 Chamberlain St, per Thomas Meehan AM 393.2)

Patrick O Hagan (per Joe McColgan: AM 123.13 paragraph 14)

21.3.3 From the total of 53 recorded arrests, the following 7 persons should be deducted as not relevant since they were not arrested in the Rossville St area at the material time:

Eugene O'Donnell (arrested by Soldier 150, Royal Anglian Regiment. at Barrack St in the car taking Joe Friel to hospital)

CIV 1 (arrested by Soldier 150 at Barrack St in the car taking Joe Friel to hospital)

Hugh Young (arrested by Soldier 150 at Barrack St in the car taking Gerry Donaghey to hospital)

Raymond Rogan (arrested by Soldier 150 at Barrack St in the car taking Gerry Donaghey to hospital)
Martin Gallagher (arrested in Longtower St by Soldier 104, a Royal Anglian)
James Gallagher (arrested in Barrack St at 1 p.m. by INQ 2142, probably Royal Anglian)
Daniel Esler (arrested in Henrietta St for being in possession of a rubber bullet and Militant)

21.3.4 This leaves 46 people recorded as arrested by paratroopers in or around the Rossville St area at the material time. In his opening statement, Christopher Clarke said there were 45 people arrested by 1 Para and taken to Fort George. We are not sure which arrestee was not included in his total but it may have been Barry Liddy, who was "arrested" by Soldier E, or he may simply have been wrong about the number. Of his 45, he said that:
13 were arrested by C Company in 33 Chamberlain Street,
7 were arrested by the Mortar Platoon at the Rossville Street wasteground, 22 by the Anti-Tank Platoon, mostly from Glenfada Park North, and 3 by the Composite Platoon, i.e. Soldier 229 (Joseph Lynn at Rossville Street and Patrick McGinley and Denis McLaughlin at Glenfada Park North).

21.3.5. The Army lists cannot be relied upon for accurate information about the number or location of the arrests. As appears from Appendix 1, 1 Para arrested 56 people in total, as follows:
20 at 33 Chamberlain Street,
6 on Rossville Street,
25 at Glenfada Park North, and 4 at William Street.

21.3.6 It is common case that those arrested at 33 Chamberlain Street were inside the house when soldiers entered and arrested them as a group. Those arrested at Glenfada Park North were sheltering behind the gable wall when Soldier F and others arrived and arrested them also as a group. In other words, the vast bulk of those arrested were rounded up in two groups when they were taking shelter from the soldiers and were clearly not engaged in any riotous behaviour.

21.3.7. Lt. 026 of C Company says in his Eversheds statement that he went into 33 Chamberlain Street and saw no fewer than 30 occupants. He radioed back to his Company Commander (Major 221a). He was ordered to detain the occupants and take them back up Chamberlain Street. B1545.003 paragraph 26. This officer does not suggest that any of them were identified rioters but other members of C Company later identified them as such at Fort George. The group arrested at the gable end of Glenfada Park North included 2 priests (Fr. O'Keefe and Fr Bradley - Fr Bradley was released in William Street), a woman (Winifred O'Brien, who was released without charge from Fort George), a boy (Myles O'Hagan, who was also released from Fort George without charge) and one of the wounded (Patrick O'Donnell, who was released with Father Bradley). Barry Liddy was also released without charge after being seriously beaten.

21.3.8 As appears from the Soldiers' document, "Transportation of Detainees to Fort George", prisoners were transported to Fort George in three trips. The first group (including persons arrested at Glenfada Park North) were taken by the 1 Para Regimental Police (Provost Sergeant and Provost Detachment, as opposed to the Royal Military Police) from the wire fence by the GPO Sorting Office in Little James Street to the Provost Sergeant's lorry which was parked in Sackville Street and from there to Fort George. This detachment of regimental police then returned to collect a second group from Little James Street. According to INQ1335, a Lance Corporal in the 1Para Regimental Police, there were only half a dozen Regimental Police to each Battalion. They were not trained as Police like the RMP but were soldiers with special police duties. C1335.1 paragraph 2. None of the 1 Para Regimental Police admits to seeing any ill-treatment of any prisoner.

21.3.9. Although it is no more than a technical point in the context of what happened on Bloody Sunday, it should noted in passing that, put at its lowest, the method by which civilians were rounded up, transported to Fort George and then herded into pens there whilst awaiting identification was even in breach of their own procedures and instructions, according to the head of the RMP in Northern Ireland, INQ1383 Assistant Provost Marshall (Day 304/170/23 to Day 304/173/11). The "arresting" soldiers from 1 Para did not accompany either of these two groups to Fort George. The third group consisted of those arrested at 33 Chamberlain Street and they were taken in a "C" Company lorry by the C Company soldiers who arrested them.

21.3.10. Because they were accompanied by their "arresting" soldiers, the third group was processed first. The first two groups were processed when the "arresting soldiers" from Support Company arrived later in the evening. The Soldiers' document suggests that these "arresting soldiers" got to Fort George about 9.00pm. This corresponds with Father O'Keefe's evidence but, according to Constable O'Neill's notebook, one of the first group (William John Doherty) was processed by him at 7.45 pm and another (Christopher James Doherty) was processed at 8.30 pm. (JO2.6 paragraph 26) We have not yet seen Constable O'Neill's notebook but he refers to its contents in his statement.

21.3.11. It appears from the Civilian evidence that the first two groups of prisoners were made to run the gauntlet by soldiers. If these were the soldiers who had accompanied the prisoners in the lorry, they would appear to have been 1 Para's own regimental police. The third group of prisoners does not appear to have been required to run the gauntlet in the same way. On arrival in the hangar at Fort George, the prisoners appear to have been herded into holding pens surrounded by barbed wire. Many of the civilians allege that they were subjected to various acts of brutality including being beaten with batons, punched, kicked, required to hold the barbed wire, made to stand spread-eagled against the wall and forced to stand close to heaters (later in the evening).

21.3.12. Support for at least some of the allegations of rough treatment can be found in the statements of INQ1224 and INQ 18. Constable Black (Day 211/173/17) also confirms the presence of barking dogs and the intimidating atmosphere. The evidence of soldiers who refer to ill-treatment of prisoners at Ft George is summarised in Appendix 3.

21.3.13. The exact processing procedure followed by the police and army in Fort George is not entirely clear. There is even disagreement in the evidence about the physical layout of the hangar and the location of various processing rooms. However, the procedure seems to have been as follows. On arrival, the police took names and particulars of the prisoners in the pens, the "arresting" soldiers (at some stage) picked out prisoners from the holding pens, made them stand against a wall until they were ready to be photographed, statement forms were filled in by the Royal Military Police (as opposed to the Parachute Regimental Police) after the photographs were taken, prisoners were presented to Sergeant Graham and a number of constables then filled out arrest report forms, following which prisoners were charged and released either on police bail or otherwise.

21.3.14. According to the Soldiers' document "Transportation of Detainees to Fort George", Fort George was manned by the Coldstream Guards and the processing of prisoners was carried out by 6 soldiers from the Royal Military Police.

21.3.15. Log entries indicate that between 5.04 pm and 7.02 pm three attempts were made from Fort George to secure the attendance of the 1 Para arresting personnel. When they arrived, they appear (from the Civilian evidence) to have picked out prisoners at random and claimed to have witnessed them engaging in various forms of riotous behaviour, mainly throwing stones. The Civilian evidence of random identification is confirmed in his own case by David Longstaff (INQ 23) (C23.7 paragraph 41) and Sergeant Graham (Day 188/60/7 to Day 188/60/11) was prepared to accept that this may have happened in a number of cases.

21.3.21. All the prisoners from Fort George appear to have been released late in the evening or in the early hours of the following morning. As appears above, 44 of the 46 recorded prisoners were prosecuted. Myles O'Hagan and Barry Liddy were never charged. All the charges were eventually dropped.

21.4. Civilian Evidence

21.4.1 As appears from Appendix 1, twenty civilians were arrested at the Nelis' home at 33 Chamberlain Street. These arrests were all carried out by members of 8 Platoon of C Company, who had come through Barrier 14. The householders and many of those arrested at 33 Chamberlain Street made statements to the Police about the conduct of the soldiers who entered the premises and arrested them. These are summarised in the Police Report at AN9.21 to AN9.18. By way of example, James McDermott, a 52 year old retired man, stated: "a wee Scots soldier came into the house and used dirty language about all and every F.. ... Irish pig of an Irishman was under arrest". AN9.18 He remonstrated with this soldier, who immediately attacked him with his baton, striking him several times about his shoulders. Similar accounts are given by other civilians arrested in the house.

21.4.2. Twenty-five civilians were arrested at the southern gable end of the east block of Glenfada Park North. Among them were Terence O'Keefe and Denis Bradley, both then Catholic priests. Father O'Keefe was also a lecturer in Philosophy and Dean of the School of Humanities at the New University of Ulster. On 20th February 1972 he wrote a letter of complaint to the GOC, General Tuzo, reproduced at H21.27 to H21.29. His contemporaneous account reflects the experience of this group of arrestees:

> "I was then placed against the wall of a maisonette, being struck several times in the process. I saw many people being savagely beaten by your troops for no apparent reason. I was then taken in a line of civilians to the foot of Rossville Street. We were forced to run with hands on head, while soldiers ran beside us, striking us with rifles and screaming the most foul abuse. (At this stage let me say that your soldiers seemed quite beside themselves and in a highly elevated mood). After being placed in line against a wire fence – again with threats, beatings and abuse – I was batoned into an Army lorry in William Street. There were 29 people in the lorry (28 males and 1 female). One soldier came to the foot of the lorry, loaded a baton round and said: "I want you fuckers in half that space". We were forced to kneel facing the front of the lorry, crushed against one another. Those at the back of the lorry (where I found myself) were struck repeatedly in the back and on the head. .. .. When we arrived at the Army Centre in the Strand Road, I, along with the others, was kicked from the lorry and forced to run between two lines of Paratroopers wielding batons, hoses and rifles. Each soldier struck a blow at me as I ran to the door, and most of these blows connected. We were then forced to stand for several hours in a search position against the walls. Anyone who shifted position was threatened and at times beaten. After members of the R.U.C. had taken names and particulars of the prisoners, we were forced alternately to hold barbed wire, hold our hands behind our heads or to stand in search positions against the wall, over long periods of time. [During the period after 9.00 pm when soldiers from the Parachute Regiment arrived] I witnessed conduct that was both sickeningly brutal and a disgrace to any uniform. Assaults were committed in a sadistic manner on a number of people, particularly youths aged from about 15 to 19 years. These assaults continued over a period of 1 to 1½ hours. These consisted of:

(1) Deliberate and systematic provocation of the prisoners by the paratroopers by verbal means and by physical assault, such as stamping on feet, kicking shins, kneeing on the thigh or in groin, severe hair-pulling, striking with fists in the body, stomach and groin etc. Such actions occurred continuously over this period.

(2) More serious examples of physical assault place. One youth (aged about 21 or 17 years) was struck in the groin and lower abdomen twice with such severity that he collapsed. On being kicked and hauled to his feet, he was unable to stand upright and fell backwards, striking his head on the concrete floor. He was kicked to his feet again and had to be placed against the wall in order to keep him upright.

(3) There were also cases of deliberate torture. Two youths were forced to hold their heads back in an unnaturally strained position, in order to bring their faces as close as possible to the electric heaters, which were on stands about 6'6" above floor level. They were forced to keep in this position for about three-quarters of an hour and were struck if they shifted position. The smaller youth was forced to stand on the taller youth's feet during this time, in order to raise his face nearer the heater. When one youth was asked if he wanted a drink, he replied that he did and was told to open his mouth. The paratrooper then spat into his mouth."

21.4.3 Included among the seven civilians arrested in or around Rossville Street was Joseph Lynn, who was arrested by Soldier 229. In his statement (AL39.1), Mr Lynn describes Soldier 229 as a sadist who repeatedly kicked and punched him in Fort George. "Throughout the beating, the RUC and the other paras were standing in the same room and were watching. The RUC took no part in the beatings but that was the point, they didn't even try to stop it. They did nothing" (AL 39.6 paragraph 28) Indeed the RUC "seemed highly amused by the whole thing" (AL 39.7 paragraph 32).

21.4.4. General Tuzo promised to investigate Fr O'Keefe's complaint but no investigation was carried out. As for the complaints to the police, the Chief Inspector in charge of the investigation felt that "it would be in the best public interest at this stage not to bring prosecutions against the members of the military concerned, therefore I would recommend no further action". (AN9.19)

21.5. The Police at Fort George

21.5.1 The Police team consisted of Inspector Gardner, Sergeants Grey and Graham and 9 constables. Eversheds took statements from Gardner, Graham, Grey, Hutchinson, Black and O'Neill. We are unsure of the position concerning the remaining constables. The prisoners processed by the three constables who gave oral testimony are set out below together with the "arresting" soldier in each case:

Constable Black:

Civilian No	Civilian Name	Soldier	Ref
A1	Otto Schlindwein	007	ARR.54
A2	James McDermott	007	ARR.38
A6	Eamon McAteer	112	ARR.30
A7	Joseph McColgan	E	ARR.35
A17	John Gormley	J	ARR.23
B7	William Duddy	007	ARR.17
B17	Anthony Coll	J & INQ301	ARR.10

Constable Hutchinson:

Civilian No	Civilian Name	Soldier	Ref
A14	George Roberts (ARR58)	INQ23	ARR.51
A 20	James Kelly (ARR 26)	INQ 23	ARR.26
A24	William Dillon	037	ARR.13

Constable O'Neill:

Civilian No	Civilian Name	Soldier	Ref
A21	Patrick Joseph Norris	G	ARR.45
B18	Christopher Doherty	G & INQ301	ARR.14
B19	William Doherty	O & T	ARR.21

The other constables processed the remaining prisoners as follows:

Constable	Processed	Remarks
Bohill	5
Eade	6
Christie	6	Inc F (twice) & G
Curran	4 inc O'Keefe	Inc F
Calvert	5
Simpson	5	Inc INQ12 4 times

21.5.2 None of the Police Officers admitted witnessing any ill-treatment. Constable Hutchinson does not even recall seeing or hearing dogs even though Constable Black said it was bedlam with the noise of barking dogs echoing round the building.

21.5.3 Sergeant Graham was one of the Police Officers in charge of the processing of prisoners at Fort George. He gave his evidence on 11th February 2002 (Day 188). Like Constable Black, he was taken aback by the numbers of prisoners that arrived. He agreed that he was not prepared for the 50-60 prisoners that arrived and he would have been hopelessly ill-prepared for 300 – 400. (Day 188/46/1 to Day 188/46/9) He claimed that the police were running the compound at Fort George, they were responsible for what was going on there and they were allowed to walk around inside the hangar.(Day 188/48/5 to Day 188/48/21) From the offices used by the police, he was able to hear what was going on in the holding areas and he also saw some prisoners arriving (Day 188/51/8 to Day 188/52/24) He accepted that a number of prisoners were picked out at random by soldiers (Day 188/60/7 to Day 188/60/11) and that, in particular, the soldier (F) who claimed to have identified Father O'Keeffe as a rioter was telling lies (Day 188/59/9 to Day 188/59/13). He agreed "with the benefit of hindsight" that the procedure of filling in statements to the effect that Paratroopers had arrested the prisoners and brought them directly to Fort George and then personally handed them over to the police appeared to constitute a systematic deceit (Day 188/64/5 to Day 188/64/8) but he claimed not to have been aware of that at the time (Day 188/65/1 to Day 188/65/6). He did not admit to seeing any ill-treatment of prisoners. When pressed to admit that he did witness brutality on the part of Paratroopers, he replied: "I am not denying that. I cannot recall it. Thirty years is a long time unfortunately". (Day 188/75/5 to Day 188/75/6)

21.5.4 Constable Hutchinson (Day 211) claimed in his Eversheds statement (JH14.3 paragraph 12) that he could not recall anything in particular happening at Fort George to suggest that prisoners were treated badly by the military, even though he said at JH14.2 paragraph 10 of his statement that he saw prisoners "leaning forwards holding on to barred wire" and he accepted that they would not have been in that position voluntarily (Day 211/104/20 to Day 211/104/23).

21.5.5 Constable O'Neill said in his statement to Eversheds (JO2.4 paragraph 19) that the Paras were very angry and the place (Fort George) was "very unpleasant". They exhibited their anger "the very opposite to the way you should be dealing with matters in my view" (Day 211/149/22 to Day 211/150/6). He saw an incident where a small ginger-haired man was struck in the groin with the butt of a rifle by a young paratrooper. (Day 211/150/15 to Day 211/150/18) This was done in full view of quite a number of police officers and soldiers. (Day 211/151/12 to Day 211/152/1). He did not see any "high-ranking commissioned officer ventilating any instructions at all" and did not see any NCO's making any attempt to restrain the soldiers who were exhibiting their anger (Day 211/152/8 to Day 211/152/17). When asked why he did not arrest the paratrooper responsible for the unprovoked assault on the ginger-haired man, he said: "Well, the realities would have been that it would have been very impractical for me to proceed with an arrest against an Army man who had brought in a prisoner from the Bogside following a march". (Day 211/154/11 to Day 211/154/14). The questioning continued as follows (Day 211/155/14 to Day 211/156/2):

"Q. If you had tried to arrest this Paratrooper or indeed report to the outside world that this had happened, you of course would have been ostracised, would you not, within the RUC?

A. You could possibly say that, yes.

Q. Of course, the upshot of that was that the Paratroopers were effectively above the law on this day, were they not?

A. They were running the show in – on that particular day, yes.

Q Not just running the show in a proper legitimate sense, but they were obviously above the law in the sense that they could commit acts of assault with impunity?

A. Well, yes."

When it was put to him that what he witnessed was soldiers committing acts of brutality without being restrained in any way by NCO's or other senior officers he replied: "I did not see anyone being restrained".

21.5.6. Constable O'Neill was the only police officer who gave his evidence with any degree of candour. More typical of the standard of evidence of former police officers was that of Constable Black who said he saw no evidence of misconduct by paratroopers, heard no evidence of misconduct by paratroopers and never even heard tell of any misconduct by paratroopers. The first he heard of any such suggestion was at the Inquiry. (Day 211/182/4 to Day 211/182/9)

21.6. Soldiers' evidence

21.6.1. The table at Appendix 2 provides a breakdown (by platoon) showing the arresting soldiers, the pig they were in (where known), the civilians they arrested, the alleged location and time of the alleged riotous behaviour, the location suggested by the arrestee and (where available) the reference numbers of the best photographs or video clips of the civilians before and at or near the point and/or time of arrest.

21.6.2 As appears from this table, the 53 arrests recorded by the Army were claimed by 23 soldiers, viz Soldiers O, E, F, G, J, U, 150, 007, 104, 37, 229, 33 and 112 and INQ's 1918, 2143, 2000, 2142, 23, 635, 2194, 627, 12 and 1237. Four of these soldiers were Royal Anglians (104, 150, 2143 and 2142). 21 of the 53 arrests were claimed by 5 soldiers. INQ 12 claimed 6, INQ 2000 claimed 4, Soldier 150 claimed 4 (Barrack St), Soldier F claimed 4 and Soldier E claimed 3. Incidentally, this pattern must have been detected by the processing police officers. INQ12 claimed to have arrested 4 of the 5 prisoners processed by Constable Simpson. Soldier 007 claimed to have arrested 3 of the 7 prisoners processed by Constable Black. INQ 23 claimed 2 of the 3 processed by Hutchinson. Soldier G claimed 2 of the 3 processed by Constable O'Neill.

21.6.3 Lance Corporal 003 was a member of 7 Platoon, C Company. As such he was one of the very first soldiers through Barrier 14. He gave evidence on Day 309. With regard to the question whether it was necessary for the Paratroopers to go in at all, Soldier 003 accepted that at the time the Paras went through Barrier 14 the crowd had moved back up the street to the junction of William Street and Rossville Street. (Day 309/107/2 to Day 309/211/13) In answer to the specific question whether at the time of the Paratroopers' deployment there was any pressure on the barrier, in the sense of crowds rioting there, he replied "No, the crowd had moved back" (Day 211/110/9). He agreed that there was no prospect of Paratroopers catching anyone because they had moved so far away from the barrier (Day 211/110/14 to Day 211/110/17).

21.6.4. All the arrests in Chamberlain Street were made by members of 8 Platoon, C Company: 6 by Private INQ 12, 4 by Sergeant INQ 2000 and 3 by Corporal 007.

21.6.5. The commander of 8 Platoon was 2nd Lieutenant 026. He claims to have sent an NCO to check the occupants of 33 Chamberlain Street and discovered that no fewer than 30 people were gathered at the location. He radioed back to the Company Commander (Major 221A) and was ordered to detain the people and take them back up Chamberlain Street. (B1545.003 paragraph 26) He did not suggest that the occupants of the house had done anything to justify their arrest or that they resisted arrest. In his oral testimony to this Tribunal, he initially tried to suggest that the people withdrawing along Chamberlain Street were throwing stones at soldiers (Day 315/127/17 to Day 315/127/21). He had to resile from this when it was pointed out to him that he had said in his 1972 statement that "nothing was thrown at us" (Day 315/128/2 to Day 315/128/5).

21.6.6 The Platoon Sergeant, INQ 2000, claimed in his Eversheds statement to have "absolutely no recollection of the events of 30th January 1972" (C2000.1 paragraph 1). Although he confirmed that the signatures in the RMP statements relating to William McCloskey, Charles McCarron, James Patrick Ferguson and OIRA 8 were his, he had no recollection of making any arrests that day or signing or completing any of the documents (C2000.1 paragraph 5). In his 1972 RMP statement (C2000.2) he makes no reference to being ordered into 33 Chamberlain Street but claims that a woman came out of the house and asked if they could call an ambulance for a person who had been shot. He then detailed Corporal 007 and Private INQ 12 to enter the house and they reported that it was full of people. Those people, he said, were the ones they had chased up Chamberlain Street after having seen them throwing stones at Security Forces in William Street. He claimed to recognise them and had them taken to Fort George so that they could be "screened and positive identifications made". On arrival at Fort George, he positively identified OIRA 8, Charles McCarron and William McCloskey as people he had seen throwing stones. He signed statements to this effect. OIRA 8 and William McCloskey were in the house because they had carried Michael Bridge there from Rossville Flats courtyard.

21.6.7. INQ 12 arrested more civilians than anyone else. Notwithstanding this, when first interviewed by Eversheds, he had pretended not to remember having any role in arresting civilians (OS.1.819 paragraph 18). Once the arrest documentation was produced, he said that he now "vaguely" recalled the patrol being approached by a woman who asked them to call an ambulance as there was an injured person in her house. He remembered that he and the Platoon Corporal (007) were detailed by the Platoon Sergeant (INQ 2000) to enter the house and when he did so he saw approximately 20 – 30 people, some of whom he recognised as having been involved in the Civil Rights demonstration and rioting. (C12.4 paragraphs 18 to 19) He also remembered going to Fort George, although this had also been left out in his draft statement. Apart from accepting that he swore at civilians in the house, he denied the allegations made by Mr Nelis and the other civilians in their statements to the RUC.

21.6.8 INQ 12 gave oral evidence on Day 351. Ad the beginning of this evidence he said that although he claimed in paragraph 1 of his Eversheds statement that he had not been out of Belfast before going to Derry on 30th January 1972, he had in fact been at Magilligan the previous weekend. He had been "caught on television" kicking a civilian on the ground and was subjected to a disciplinary inquiry. His recollection of his excuse differed from that of Col Wilford given at the Widgery Inquiry. (Day 351/5/11 to Day 351/6/19). He claimed to remember petrol bombs being thrown at Barrier 14 despite being shown the evidence of Major INQ 2079, the OC of A Company of 2 Royal Green Jackets, the company manning the barrier, to the effect that "no bombs of any description were thrown." (Day 351/6/19) 21.6.9 INQ 12 claimed that when he went into number 33 Chamberlain he recognised some of the occupants as having been involved in the Civil Rights demonstration and rioting. He recognised them by their clothing and their "general description" (Day 351/29/15 to Day 351/29/21). When asked whether he believed he was entitled to go into a private house and just order everybody to get out of the house, irrespective of whether they had been breaking the law or not, he replied: "We were in an area that was (sic) an illegal riot going on and there was 22 people in a house that was – well everybody was jammed in like sardines, sir" (Day 351/30/12 to Day 351/30/14). Among the six occupants he later identified at Fort George as rioters were Joseph Hutchman and Maurice McColgan, who had also helped carry Michael Bridge there.

21.6.10. Another of those he identified at Fort George as a stone-thrower was George Nelis. During oral testimony, he could not explain why he had made this statement in circumstances where, on 10th March 1972, he made a statement to the police (C12.9) in which he said that he could not identify Mr Nelis as one who had been throwing stones. (Day 351/36/20 to Day 351/36/25). In a statement to the RMP on 19th May 1972, he had recounted how he positively identified George Nelis, among others, as persons he had seen throwing stones, without saying that this was untrue (C12.11) but in a further statement on 17th November 1972 he reverted to the position that he could not "say positively that Mr Nelis was throwing stones." (C12.14). INQ12 could not explain these discrepancies.

21.6.11 When it was pointed out to him that he did not say in any one of the six statements he made about the six persons he purported to identify that he had seen the individuals in question engaged in a riot or as part of a riotous crowd in William Street or anywhere else, he explained that this was because "they were not arrested as such, they were arrested to be screened." (Day 351/42/24 to Day 351/42/25)

21.6.12. Allegations of brutality and ill-treatment on the part of INQ 12 were made by a large number of civilians including George Nelis (AN 9.4), Joseph Hutchman (AH91.7), Maurice McColgan (AM124.5), Matthew Campbell, a 50 year old docker (AC140.1), William Carlin (AC40.4), James McDermott a 52 year old retired person (AM184.2), the late Thomas Meehan, then a 44 year old cable joiner (AM393.2), Mrs Bridget Nelis, the householder at 33 Chamberlain Street (AM26.1), George O'Neill, a 43 year old docker (AO77.1) and Otto Schlindwein, a 44 year old pharmacist (AS2.3), among others. He denied all the allegations even though he fitted the description given by each complainant. One of the allegations made by Mr Nelis was that INQ 12 had told him he had been wounded in Belfast and had then got his revenge by killing four Irishmen and he was going to kill Mr Nelis that day. INQ 12 agreed that he had been wounded in Belfast and could not explain how Mr Nelis could have known this unless he had heard INQ 12 say it. (Day 351/48/1 to Day 351/48/6)

21.6.13. INQ12's evidence was demonstrably false. He lied even about peripheral matters. For example, he claimed in C12.2 paragraph 8 of his Eversheds statement that there were thousands of people about 8 feet from Barrier 14 as he looked at it. He said he was positive about this but in his 1972 RMP statement (C12.9) he had said that there were approximately 60 people about 25-30 yards away from the barrier. He claimed in C12.2 paragraph 11 of his Eversheds statement that only two men from his platoon carried rifles but the best photograph of his platoon (P253) shows most, if not all, of the soldiers pictured carrying rifles at the junction of Chamberlain Street before they entered Chamberlain Street. To explain this, INQ 12 had to suggest that this picture was taken after all the shooting had stopped. (Day 351/85/9 to Day 351/85/10) In support of this, he suggested that his platoon had not stopped at this junction after they crossed the barrier but had gone directly into Chamberlain Street even though the video footage shows otherwise. (Day 351/86/9 to Day 351/86/23) He even suggested that the photograph had been taken after he had come back from Fort George (Day 351/88/3 to Day 351/88/8). He also claimed in paragraph 12 of his Eversheds statement (C12.3 paragraph 12) that he came under fire as he went in but he made no reference to coming under fire in any of the three statements made in 1972, either to the police or to the RMP.

21.6.14 When pressed about the circumstances in which he had failed to mention his involvement in arrests at 33 Chamberlain Street, he first of all said that it was just a question of forgetting about having anything to do with the prisoners (Day 351/104/14 to Day 351/104/18) and then he said that there were about 5 previous draft Eversheds statements in which he did say that he went to the end of Chamberlain Street and arrested some prisoners (Day 351/106/5 to Day 351/107/5).

21.6.15 With regard to the circumstances in which he arrived at 33 Chamberlain Street, INQ12 had said in his police statement on 10th March 1972 (C12.9) that he and other members of his snatch squad followed George Nelis along William Street and up Chamberlain Street and saw him run into the house where he (INQ 12) then found 2 injured people and 22 other male persons. However in his statement to the RMP on 19th May 1972 (C12.10) he said that the soldiers gave chase to a group of rioters who ran into Chamberlain Street and on their arrival in Chamberlain Street the group had disappeared. "The patrol continued along Chamberlain Street in an effort to locate the rioters but without success", he had said. It was only as a result of being approached by a woman from 33 Chamberlain Street that they went into the house. When asked which of these diametrically opposed statements was true, he replied "both of them really." (Day 351/110/9).

21.6.16 As for the conduct of the civilians in 33 Chamberlain Street, INQ 12 justified his own coarse language in the house by alleging that the civilians in the house had been aggressive and abusive to him. However one of his companions, Corporal 579, said that the civilians in the house were "quiet and they did not give me any trouble .. .. everyone was calm and not threatening" (C579.4, paragraph 19).

21.6.17 Soldier 007 went into 33 Chamberlain Street with INQ 12 and arrested 3 civilians: William Duddy, James McDermott and Otto Schlindwein, who was there administering medical assistance. He conceded that although he signed arrest forms at Fort George stating that they had been engaged in riotous behaviour, he had not in fact seen them throwing stones but had only seen them in the crowd. Presence in the crowd was enough, he said, to warrant arrest. (Day 310/41/9 to Day 310/44/7). He agreed that the soldiers would have manhandled the prisoners but he did not recall any physical abuse. He was one of the soldiers in the lorry taking prisoners from Chamberlain Street to Fort George. Among the events that occurred in the lorry, according to William McCloskey (AM120.4 paragraph 25) was an incident when one of the prisoners was shot by a paratrooper in the face from very close range with a rubber bullet. He denied that anything like that happened. (Day 310/48/14 to Day 310/48/21)

21.6.18 Soldier 007 agreed that by the time he went to the barrier the crowd had already dispersed some distance away from them (Day 310/64/12 to Day

310/64/17). At Fort George, Soldier 007 signed three statements alleging that each of his three arrestees had thrown stones when this was not true. As was pointed out by the Chairman, he knew this to be untrue in 1972 because on 19th May 1972 he made a statement to the RMP saying that he did not see any of these three people actually throw any stones. (B1384.10 and Day 310/73/18 to Day 310/74/12).

21.6.19 As appears from Appendix 2, the arrests in Glenfada Park were carried out mainly by members of the Anti-tank Platoon. Of the nine members of the Anti-tank Platoon involved in these arrests, three are now deceased: Soldier E (who claimed 4 arrests), Soldier G (who claimed 3) and INQ 2194 (who also claimed 3). It is not seriously disputed by the Soldiers' counsel that the civilians arrested at Glenfada Park North were simply rounded up as a group and eventually transported to Fort George.

21.6.20 Soldier 229 was a member of the Composite Platoon and "arrested" two civilians who had been at the gable wall of Glenfada Park North (Patrick McGinley and Denis McLaughlin) and also Joseph Lynn, whom he and soldier L apprehended at a derelict building in Rossville Street. With regard to Joseph Lynn, Soldier 229 made a statement to the RMP on 15th February 1972 (B2211.014) in which he had said he chased Joseph Lynn but made no suggestion that he had seen him do anything wrong. When he was asked about this during his oral testimony to this Inquiry, he accepted that it was possible that he had just debussed and gone after anyone he could catch in the area (Day 341/33/8 to Day 341/33/10). With regard to Denis McLaughlin and Patrick McGinley, he accepted that although he had signed formal statements to the effect that he had seen both throwing stones, he had not and simply arrested them because they were "part of a group" (Day 341/53/21 to Day 341/54/10, Day 341/57/8 to Day 341/57/11, Day 341/100/11 to Day 341/100/17). Solider 112, who was in the waste ground as a member of Mortar Platoon, claimed to have arrested Eamon McAteer in Rossville Street (ARR30.2; ARR30.3) even though Eamon McAteer is clearly seen in the photographs at Glenfada Park North (P638).

21.6.21. The civilians arrested in Glenfada Park North were not escorted to Fort George by their "arresting" soldiers. The soldiers from Support Company who purported to carry out arrests arrived at Fort George some time later. INQ 23 claimed two arrests, those of James Kelly and George Roberts. In his Eversheds statement (C23.7 at paragraph 41) he described the process of identification at Fort George as follows:

> "I remember the military police pointing at one or two people and asking me if I remembered them. The gist of what they said was "You remember them don't you". Frankly, they all looked the same to me and I probably said no, I did not remember them. There were hundreds of them. However, I probably agreed in the end that I had arrested some of them and probably signed something although I do not know remember the details".

21.6.22 This, we suggest, gives a true flavour of the way in which the civilians detained in Glenfada Park North were identified and then charged as rioters.

21.6.23 Only 6 civilians were arrested in open ground in Rossville Street. The details are set out in Appendix 1. It is apparent from the civilian evidence that each of those arrested was simply arrested because they were running away across the waste ground. Again, the "arresting" soldiers have made little effort to justify these arrests.

21.6.24. Nearly all the soldiers and police officers who were present in Fort George deny witnessing any ill-treatment of prisoners. Some, such as INQ18 (C18.6 paragraph 40) are prepared to concede that prisoners were treated "roughly" but only one, INQ1224, has given a candid account of what he witnessed at Fort George. This soldier was a guardsman in the 1st Battalion of the Coldstream Guards. In his Eversheds' statement he describes how, on arrival at Fort George, the prisoners were made to run the gauntlet of paratroopers who were striking them with batons and were threatening them with Alsatian dogs which were at the full extent of their leashes and "going bananas." (C1224.1 paragraph 8) Inside Fort George, Paras were hitting prisoners with batons on the arms, legs and head. What shocked INQ1224 about the running of the gauntlet and what stuck in his mind about the conduct of the Paratroopers was not just the brutality exhibited by them but the fact that it was systematic. It seemed to be the style and attitude of the Paras as a unit, he agreed, to engage in this sort of brutality towards civilian prisoners and it was plain in the hangar for all to see. (Day 304/220/24 to Day 304/221/13) The fact that no police officer and no other soldier admits to having seen such systematic brutality by the Paras as a unit at Fort George speaks volumes for the reliability of their testimony on this issue.

21.7 Conclusion

21.7.1 The evidence concerning the circumstances in which civilians were arrested and subsequently detained is in many ways the least contentious of the evidence received by the Inquiry. In our submission, the Tribunal should have little difficulty determining that the submissions summarised at the beginning of this section are well-founded.

GLENFADA PARK

The following persons were officially recorded as having been arrested. All were arrested in and around the Glenfada Park area. See note below re Eamon McAteer.

No.	NAME	ARRESTING SOLDIER	REASON ON RMP STATEMENT FOR ARREST
1	Bradley, Eugene	Soldier F	"throwing stones at my patrol"
2	Coll, Anthony	Soldier J	"throwing stones"
3	Devine, John Noel	Soldier G	"throwing stones at my patrol"
4	Doherty, Christopher	Soldier G	"throwing stones at my patrol"
5	Gormley, John	Soldier J	"throwing stones at my patrol"
6	Irwin, George	INQ 635	"throwing stones at my patrol"
7	Kelly, James	INQ 23	"throwing stones at Security Forces"
8	Liddy, James	Soldier E	"throwing stones at Security Forces"
9	Liddy, John Barry	Soldier E	No RMP statement present
10	McAteer, Eamon	Soldier 112	"throwing stones"
11	McAteer, Fergus	Soldier E	"shouting abuse and throwing stones"
12	McDermott, George	INQ 1237	"throwing stones at my patrol"
13	PIRA 1	Soldier 033	"throwing stones at the Security Forces"
14	McGinley, Patrick	Soldier 229	"throwing stones at the Security Forces"
15	McLaughlin, Denis	Soldier 229	"throwing stones at the Security Forces"
16	McNulty, James	INQ 635	"throwing stones at the Security Forces"
17	Norris, Patrick J	Soldier G	"throwing stones at my patrol"
18	O'Boyle, Hugh	INQ 1694	"throwing stones"
19	O'Hagan, Miles	INQ 1694	No RMP Statement present
20	O'Keefe, Terence	Soldier F	"throwing stones at my patrol"
21	Roberts, George	INQ 23	"throwing stones at the Security Forces"
22	Wallace Robert	INQ 1694	"throwing stones"

Soldier 112 claims to have arrested Eamon McAteer in Rossville St but we know from photographic and video evidence that he was arrested in Glenfada Park North. Soldier 112 was a member of Mortar Platoon and was nowhere near the Glenfada Park area. Soldier 229 was a member of Composite Platoon. E and F also purported to carry out arrests in William St. E, G and INQ 1694 are now deceased.

In addition, we know that the following persons were arrested at or around the southern gable of Glenfada Park North:

No	Name	Nature of Evidence
1	Bradley, Denis	Photographic, Video, Various Statements. Released on William Street.
2	O'Brien, Winifred	Photographic, Video, Statements. Released at Fort George
3	O'Donnell, Patrick	Video, Various Statements. Released with Bradley

ROSSVILLE STREET

The following persons were officially recorded as having been arrested in the Rossville Street area, but see notes below re John Rogers and Eamon McAteer.

No.	Name	Arresting Soldier	Reason on RMP statement of arresting soldier
1	Canning, Charles	Soldier U	"Throwing stones and bottles"
2	Clarke, Duncan	INQ 1918	"Throwing stones at Security Forces"
3	Dillon, William J	Soldier 037	"kicked a soldier"
4	Doherty, James C	INQ 627	"Throwing stones"
5	Doherty, William	Soldier O	"Prisoner assaulted Sergeant O with a bottle"
6	Lynn, Joseph	Soldier 229	"throwing stones at Security Forces"
	Rogers, John	INQ 635	"seen throwing stones at the Security Forces in Rossville Street"
	McAteer, Eamon	Soldier 112	"throwing stones"

As noted above, Soldier 112 claims to have arrested Eamon McAteer in Rossville St but he was arrested in Glenfada Park North and should not therefore be counted in this list. It should also be noted that John Rogers was arrested from a taxi in William Street with Patrick M Norris.(ARR4.7)

OTHER LOCATIONS

The persons listed below were recorded as being arrested in other locations:

No	Name	Arresting Soldier	Location	Reason on RMP Statement of Arresting Soldier
1	Glenn, Charles	INQ 1237	William Street	"throwing stones at my patrol"
2	McCallion, Michael	Soldier F	William Street (Taxi)	"throwing stones at my patrol"
3	McColgan, Joseph	Soldier E	William Street	"throwing stones at Security Forces"
4	Norris, Patrick Martin	Unknown	William Street (Taxi)	No RMP Statement.
5	Rogers, John	INQ635	William Street (Taxi)	"seen throwing stones at the Security Forces in Rossville Street"

It should be borne in mind that Patrick Martin Norris gave oral evidence to the Tribunal on Day 150, 1 October 2001. There is no mention of his arresting soldier in the documents, but we do know from the Londonderry Sentinel of 9 February 1972 that he was charged with Riotous Behaviour.

In his oral evidence he stated that there were three persons in the back of his taxi who were arrested, none of whom he knew. As appears from the police report John Rogers (ARR4.7) and Michael McCallion (ARR4.9) were the other two passengers.

The Londonderry Sentinel of 9 February 72 lists all those (24) who appeared at Derry Petty Sessions on that day on charges of Riotous Behaviour, with the exception of a 16 year old juvenile (who is likely to have been Patrick McGinley).

The above tables show the 46 recorded arrests and a further 10 unrecorded arrests by 1 Parachute Battalion on Bloody Sunday. The other 7 recorded arrests were made in the Long Tower area by the Royal Anglian Regiment either before or after the main "scoop-up" operation, as follows:

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE OF SOLDIERS WHO REFER TO THE MISTREATMENT OF PRISONERS AT FORT GEORGE

TAB	REF	COMMENTS
1	INQ 0018	Does not remember making RMP statement attributed to him. Arrived late to Fort George, between 5 and 6pm. Saw prisoners manhandled off lorries and batoned. Mentions having seen dogs with their handlers who were frightening the prisoners. Saw prisoners with bloody noses and other injuries. Heard explosions and HV fire from outside, not sure whether it was an exchange or not. Later saw SAS officer who had been among the prisoners talking to another officer. Can't remember whether he took statements from soldiers but explains what would have been the process if he had. Heard rumours that the Royal Anglians had shot more/had more kills than the paras. Although he saw some arrestees with injuries, he also says some of the prisoners were very aggressive and abusive and were trying to get out of the pen. Although he says he only saw rough treatment of prisoners when they were being pushed off the lorry he goes on to say; "Having said that, I knew things were happening there. People were hit with batons and there are not two ways about it, they were treated roughly".
2	INQ 0179	Was on duty in Operations Room Fort George from 8pm 29/1/72. Paras treated arrestees appallingly, brutal. Informed his CO of what he saw and submitted a report of it to him the next day. Hasn't seen it since but has also written his own personal account in his diary which is attached. Paras shouldn't have been used, set situation back 30 yrs. "Horrifying, appalling slaughter of Irish men, paras a ghastly regiment, legalised murder, military propaganda afterwards, hate Stormont govt and that corrupt little man Faulkner". NB His CO (INQ 598) makes no mention of ever seeing brutality at Fort George or of having any reports made to him by any of his officers but Eversheds did not put INQ 179's account to him.
3	INQ 0522	Working in the officer's mess in Fort George. Saw brutality by paras towards prisoners being detained at Fort George. Saw soldiers with dogs and large batons. Some of the civilians were having a proper go at the army, jumping and kicking and generally putting up resistance, and the paras were hitting back. However, in the tussle the civilians were coming off worse as they were not carrying batons"
4	INQ 0838	He was a mechanical technician. Saw prisoners come in and saw the two lines of paras beat some prisoners as they got off the lorry. Recalls that Coldstream Guards CO wasn't happy with the way the prisoners were treated. He did not see what happened to the prisoners inside the building.
5	INQ 1224	On duty at Fort George guarding prisoners. Mentions prisoners running the para gauntlet upon disembarking lorries. Also says Alsatian dogs were "going bananas". Witnessed brutality by paras. Mentions a prisoner with a broken arm. Talks of the argument in front of the men between the Colonel of the Coldstream Guards and a para officer about the treatment of the prisoners. NB Relevant paragraphs 7, 8, 9, 10, 12 and 14.

22. Civilian Gunmen and Gunfire

Introduction

22.1 The allegations of the presence of civilian gunmen, gunfire or bombers contained in the Lawton Team's Civilian Gunmen Table, dated 31st May 2002 and attached to Counsel's Report Number 3, have been deliberated upon in so much as they relate to each sector i.e. the main events and shootings on Bloody Sunday. However, those areas outside the sectors in which our clients were killed or wounded have not been considered to be directly relevant to the main events of Bloody Sunday. Whilst they have been included in the Lawton document, it is with the caveat, which indeed, it should be noted, relates to the document in its entirety, that accuracy or completeness is not guaranteed and that there is "no implication as to the weight which the Tribunal may attach to any of the evidence cited." We, therefore, await receipt of the author's submissions in relation to what the Tribunal should consider assists it in relation to its task of finding the truth about Bloody Sunday.

22.2 "Derry Noise"

22.2.1 In addition to the caveat attached to the Lawton Team's document, the Tribunal should be aware that there are other reasons for treating the evidence of those witnesses who make reference to low velocity or automatic fire with caution. The army admits to having fired, at least, 108 7.62 rounds, 324 baton rounds, 15CS grenades and 65CS canisters, many of which were fired in rapid succession during a short period of time. Day 288/93/10 to Day 288/93/12. The Tribunal must attach considerable weight to the evidence of Colonel R L Jackson, who, as Commanding Officer of the Royal Green Jackets in Derry since 1970, Day 285/3/13, is best placed to proffer the following opinion:

A. Can I say that I had spoken with Colonel Ferguson previously, when he arrived, because I handed over the city to him on 21st December, and it was either on 21st December or before that that I mentioned the business of the Derry noise? . . . It was very difficult in Derry because of typography and geography to isolate shooting points, or points of explosions, unless you either saw the flash or the smoke. And Derry had this unfortunate echo principle between the castle walls and the Bogside and the Creggan and so on. So he was aware that there was a problem, I am sure. Day 287/7/23 to Day 287/8/12 (computer version)

22.2.2 Similarly, Soldier 128, a Captain in the Royal Green Jackets describes how:

> "It was always very difficult to identify from where shots were being fired in the Bogside because of the layout of the area and the Rossville Flats which would distort sounds." B1802.004 paragraph 20

INQ 831, a Lance Sergeant and Section Commander in the Coldstream Guards, describes how difficult it was, with everything that was going on, to tell from how far away or from what area the single, spaced, high velocity, shots he could hear were fired from because, "Noise used to bounce off the buildings around us which gave a false impression of where the shooting was coming from." C831.2 paragraphs 13 to 14.[1]

22.3 Blade Slap

22.3.1 The evidence of Mr David Capper is important in relation to automatic fire. He succinctly explains the mistaken belief that there had been automatic fire on Bloody Sunday as follows:

Q. If we could look at your statement under cross-examination by Mr Gibbens at the Widgery Tribunal, M9.14 -- could we go to the bottom of the previous page, M9.13. You were asked the question: "Question: You did not hear the sound ofautomatic fire?
Answer: No, not at all.

Question: Some of your BBC colleagues did?

Answer: What I did hear about four minutes before the Saracens came in was the sound of a helicopter going overhead. This is also on the tape-recording. Under certain conditions of the rotors, I do not know whether it is when they are opposed, there is a noise not unlike machine-gun fire. This is on the tape-recording, you can hear something like a machine-gun."

Is that still your recollection today?

A. Oh, yes, Mmm. Day 073/101/11 to Day 073/102/3

22.3.2 Mr Capper's evidence is supported by that of Mr Chartres, at WT3.72C in the following exchange:

Q. I think you are aware that some witnesses have said that they heard automatic fire in the Bogside on this particular afternoon. In your experience is it any rate possible to mix up that noise, namely, the noise of automatic fire, with any other noise?

A. Yes, I think it is. It is very easy to confuse with is with a noise which is made by a helicopter when a certain manoeuvre is being carried out. I first experienced this phenomenon soon after the Army entered the arena and in fact thought I was hearing machine-gun fire. I have frequently noticed that, particularly I think the Army Sioux helicopter. I am informed when the pilot alters the pitch of the blades it emits a noise which is very similar to a burst of machine-gun fire in the distance. In fact on this occasion I did say to a colleague when he heard this noise, "I wish these helicopters wouldn't make that sort of noise".

22.3.3 Mr Edmonds, an RUC Constable based in Belfast but present in Derry on 30th January 1972, not only accepts that he had heard it said by police and soldiers, that a particular type of army helicopter, when it is making a certain manoeuvre, makes a noise like automatic gunfire and can be

[1] INQ 564, a Coldstream Guard on the Walls, concurred with that view, Day 318/124/23 to Day 318/124/25, as did INQ 171 at C171.2 paragraph 8

mistaken for such, but states that he had directly experienced this noise. Day 208/41/7 to Day 208/42/1

22.3.4 Finally, an expert report has acknowledged that helicopters engaged in this type of activity can produce sharply impulsive sounds, a regular series of beats or thumps commonly known as "blade slap". "Blade slap" most frequently occurs during transient manoeuvres and is often associated with steep turns, shallow descents and with the "flare" approaching a hover. E9.0019

22.3.5 The report prepared for the Inquiry by ISVR Consultancy Services reached the following conclusion on this issue:

> "Our opinion is that, under conditions where a helicopter or submachine gun is clearly audible above any background noise, their sounds would be sufficiently distinctive that the likelihood of confusion would be small. However, taking into account that the repetition rate of blade slap is similar to the rate of firing of some submachine guns, it might be possible under some conditions for an observer on the ground to mistake a brief period of helicopter blade slap for the firing of a submachine gun at a moderate distance." E9.0020

22.4 Examples of Civilian and Military Evidence

22.4.1 The civilian evidence referred to in the Lawton Team's document as evidence of automatic fire should be considered with a significant degree of caution,[2] if, indeed, not disregarded, in this respect, altogether for the following reasons:

---

[2] Shaun Austin – AA5.3 paragraph 16, Dermot Carlin – AC32.3 paragraphs 17 to 18 and Day 60/56/21 to Day 60/57/11, Father Carolan – H3.12 and H3.3 paragraph 10, William Doherty – AD180.4 paragraph 16, Ciaran Donnelly – M22.2, Daniel Dunn – AD172.8 and AD172.2 paragraph 10, Hugh Foy - Day 146/101/1 to Day/146/106/1 and AF29.4 paragraphs 19 to 20 and AF29.9. Father Mulvey – H15.2 to H15.3, Robert Hammond - M37.1 paragraph 2 , Danny McGowan - AM255.10 to AM255.11, Sally Moran – AM423.2, Gerald Seymour – M72.2, M72.5 and M72.6, Peter Wilkinson – M82.4 and M82.2, David Phillips – Day 139/10/1 to 139/23/2 and Day 139/137/1 to Day 139/150/1 (This evidence should be considered with caution as, in light of his close contacts with the army, his neutrality is questionable. He was unable to provide a plausible explanation as to why the purported machinegun fire did not appear on his tape).

i) There is no evidence of automatic fire on any of the available audio material or television footage

ii) Civilians cannot be considered experts in this regard

iii) Senior military figures have acknowledged the confusing effect of the "Derry Sound"

iv) Many of these civilians were involved in what was to be one of the most traumatic experiences of their lives

v) Many of these civilians were, being fired upon themselves, effectively fleeing for their lives

vi) Single shots fired in quick succession from an SLR could be mistaken for automatic fire, a fact acknowledged by INQ 1045, C1045.2 paragraph 9

vii) The rapid firing of gas canisters, gas grenades and rubber bullets could be confused for automatic fire

viii) The noise of helicopter blades could have been mistaken for automatic fire

22.4.2 Whilst the above factors contribute to the confusion amongst the civilian and military evidence in relation to having heard automatic fire and or low velocity fire, two further potential reasons must be considered in relation to the military witnesses. One is that a significant number of soldiers have maliciously, in the knowledge that there was no such fire, invented incidents of civilian fire in an attempt to provide some form of justification for what the Paras did that day. Another is that, out of loyalty for the army and in the genuine belief that there must have such fire, despite the fact that they did not hear it, soldiers have invented incidents of civilian fire as explained by Soldier 160 at B1956.5 paragraph 31:

> "The thought that the Paras must have been shot at developed like osmosis. The virtues of loyalty and honouring the Code were drilled into us in training and we did not question whether the Paras had been fired upon – that's where the loyalty comes in, we all simply assumed that they had been fired at. We knew that the Yellow Card did not permit us to fire at anybody unless we positively identified a gunman. To us, it had to be the case that if the Paras fired they had been fired upon."

22.4.3 In light of the above, the following soldiers have been selected as an example of those military witnesses whose evidence in relation to automatic or low velocity fire should be treated with the utmost caution:

22.4.4 INQ 2016 was positioned on Bishops Street Without and has not previously made a statement about the events of Bloody Sunday. He did not give oral evidence either and therefore his account has not been tested.

He states:

> "Later on between 3.45 to 4.15 pm things began to happen. It may have been 15 minutes either side. I also definitely heard the sound of a couple of nail bombs exploding (I cannot recall hearing many of them), I have no doubt about it I heard more than one during my time in Northern Ireland" C2016.4 paragraph 14

It is submitted that this witness may be mistaken when he claims to have heard nail bombs exploding. There are a number of possibilities

i) He may have heard the sound of the discharge of baton rounds and/or;
ii) He may be confusing events that took place on another day with the events of Bloody Sunday.

22.4.5 Whatever the reason for the written evidence given by this soldier we submit that he did not hear nail bombs exploding on Bloody Sunday because none did explode. In addition we have not had the opportunity of testing his recollection and therefore submit that the Tribunal cannot place any reliance on the evidence he gives about this.

22.4.6 INQ 1298 was positioned at Barrier 24 has not previously made a statement about the events of Bloody Sunday. He gave oral evidence on Day 301.

In his written evidence to this Tribunal INQ 1298 stated that he remembers > "being somewhere in the area of the City Walls close to the Apprentice Boys Hall (Masonic Lodge) and seeing a number of soldiers posted as lookouts over the Bogside.... I believe that whilst I was in this area I also looked down into the Bogside and saw civilians with weapons moving about in the area. I no longer recall exactly what I saw, it is more of a feeling I have been left with. This was earlier in the day" C1298.3 paragraph 15

22.4.7 He also says

> "The other thing I remember which occurred before I took up my position at Barrier 24, was two shots being fired from the vicinity of the Creggan Cemetery...These shots would have been at about 11.15am and were probably aimed at an Engineers Unit. I could identify it as enemy fire." C1298.3 paragraph 16

22.4.8 INQ 1298's statement also records that he heard shots at some time during the afternoon. He describes them thus

> "...My memory of hearing the shooting is pristine. The first shots were from a light automatic weapon which I identified as some form of carbine. These weapons have a very distinctive sound which I would describe as "tic-a-tac-tac, tic-a-tac-tac". I could not say how many shots were fired. I could not say exactly where the shots were fired from, but it was from the general direction of the Bogside which was northwest of my position. I know they were fired away from my position because I heard the "thump" of the weapon but not the "crack" of the bullet travelling through the air. Because of this, and the fact that the weapon sounded like an automatic carbine, I assumed that this was terrorist fire and not army fire." C1298.4 paragraph 21

22.4.9 INQ 1298 then says that "Within two seconds I heard the first SLRs start firing" C1298.4 paragraph 22. When INQ 1298 gave evidence he confirmed that he was on duty at Barrier 24 at the junction of Foyle Road and Ferguson Street on Bloody Sunday Day 301/156/20 to Day 301/157/2. Barrier 24 can be seen on Q10 as one of the furthest barriers from Rossville Street and the area where the deceased and wounded were shot.

22.4.10 INQ 1298 indicated that he had been with INQ 1030 on Bloody Sunday Day 301/158/19 to Day 301/159/9. He also said that he was clear that he had heard two short bursts of automatic fire with two to three bursts in each Day 301/162/7 to Day 301/162/10. He had not reported hearing this Day 301/164/20 to Day 301/164/22.

22.4.11 When INQ 1298 was questioned by Mr Harvey QC inaccuracies in terms of his timing of some of the incidents were pointed out to him. Day 301/165/4 to Day 301/167/11. It is submitted that given that (i) INQ 1298 did not make any statement in 1972 (ii) he was located some distance away from the Bogside at Barrier 24 and (iii) his memory of events and their timings is somewhat muddled, he is mistaken when he says he heard automatic fire from the Bogside.[3]

[3] Similarly, the Inquiry should treat with caution the evidence of INQ 1957, C1957.2 paragraph 8, Soldier 164, an administrative soldier with limited experience of gunfire, at Day 349/50/13 to Day 349/53/11, INQ 93 at C93.3 paragraphs 10 to 14 and Soldier 153 at B1926. The evidence of INQ 1259, who also claims to have heard a burst of Thompson submachinegun, pistol shots and the explosion of petrol and nail bombs should be discounted outright. C1259.2 paragraphs 11 to 16

22.4.12 Further there is no report of "civilians with weapons moving about in the area" of the Bogside and given the vagueness of his memory it is submitted that this evidence cannot be relied on. Finally, there is no report in the logs of any shots being fired at any Army position at 11.15 in the morning so INQ 1298 is, at the very least, mistaken about the timings of those shots and therefore for this reason, and the reasons outlined above his evidence in this regard cannot be relied on either.

22.4.13 INQ 0960 was tasked with escorting the commanding officer Lt Col 1512 has not previously made a statement about the events of Bloody Sunday. He did not give oral evidence either and therefore his account has not been tested.

22.4.14 He claims to have heard civilian gunfire

i) At about midday when he was at "Tactical HQ" at Craigavon Bridge. It was difficult to say where they were coming from but it sounded like the Creggan/Bogside area C960.2 paragraph 8 and;

ii) While he was at the Masonic Hall car park (perhaps between 1 and 2 pm) where he heard shooting going on which was nothing but low velocity. Also at this position he claims to have heard a couple of explosions C960.2 paragraph 10.

22.4.15 That this witness' evidence is confused is clear. He later gives an account of seeing a body half on half of the back seat of a red vehicle at the "Tac HQ" location C960.3 paragraphs 14 to 16. However, when the witness was shown photographs of Mr Rogan's car and Gerard Donaghey's body he said that it was not the car he saw and he could not be sure if that was the body he saw C960.4 paragraph 17. In our submission his evidence that he heard low velocity gunfire and explosions is wrong and cannot be relied upon.

22.4.16 INQ 767, who was on standby and located in a Pig in the car park of the Masonic Hall, has not previously made a statement about the events of Bloody Sunday. He did not give oral evidence either and therefore his account has not been tested.

22.4.17 He states "At some stage I heard shots. I cannot remember precisely when but it was certainly a good number of hours after we had gone on duty, perhaps in the late afternoon. I heard both automatic fire and single shots. I cannot remember whether I heard both together or one before the other and I cannot say what types of weapons were being fired. I cannot remember how long the shooting lasted for, nor whether it was sporadic or all came at the same time. I formed no impression as to where the shooting was coming from, whether it was in front of me, behind me, to my left or to my right. I expect I assumed, however, that it came from wherever the marchers were. I cannot remember how many single shots I heard, nor whether they appeared to me to be from high velocity or low velocity weapons. I don't remember if I formed any impression as to who was firing; I do not expect I would have been able to tell from my position in the Pig." C767.2 paragraph 11

22.4.18 It is submitted that INQ 767's memory of events is so vague that his evidence cannot be relied upon. In addition, he is not clear that it was non-army fire that he heard. In any event it may be that the "Derry sound" distorted what he heard or that INQ 767 has mistaken the large number of army shots the Tribunal knows was fired simultaneously on the day for automatic gunfire.

22.4.19 INQ 2025 was positioned on the City Walls from where, having seen the Paras deploy down Rossville Street, he heard SLR fire. C2025.5 paragraph 16. The firing seemed to be constant; someone said the Paratroopers had opened fire. At that stage he claims that he could hear SLRs and some small arms. "Everything was going very fast. Up on the walls there was a sense of panic as if something was going wrong. I knew the Paras were firing their SLRs as I could hear them." It is not clear from the evidence of this soldier, wheat he meant by small arms fire. It may be a mistaken reference to rubber bullets being fired. It would have been difficult in any case, given the amount of SLR firing he describes, to have made the distinction between that fire and small arms fire. This witness was not called to give oral evidence. His reference to some small arms fire has not, therefore, been tested.[4]

22.4.20 INQ 707 was a soldier in the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment positioned on the City Walls. He places himself in and about his vehicle at Bishops Street Within, which means that he would in effect have been located under the Walls with no view of the Bogside and with an extremely limited ability to hear what was going on. C707.1 paragraph 5, C707.2 paragraph 8

22.4.21 He claims to have heard gunfire, some automatic and some single shots, but was unable to identify the type of weapon, nor how many shots were fired. C707.2 paragraph 10 He also claims to have heard explosions. C707.2 paragraph 11

22.4.22 He expressly states that he does not recall anything coming over the radio at this time. C707.2 paragraph 12. His evidence about hearing automatic fire and explosions should be regarded as inherently unreliable given his location.

22.4.23 INQ 947 was a soldier in the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment positioned on the City Walls. He places himself to the right of the Platform on the City Walls at the position marked A on his attached map. C947.4. However this witness was located at or near his Pig and was on standby, although other soldiers were manning the post and using periscope-like equipment to observe the Bogside. C947.1 paragraph 4

22.4.24 Sometime after seeing a crowd at FDC he claims to have heard people shouting, baton rounds being discharged and 4-5 low velocity shots fired

[4] The evidence of INQ 1883, C1883.2 paragraphs 16 to 17 and INQ 254, C254.2 paragraph 12 in from the eastern part of William Street. C947.2 paragraph 8 He also claims to have heard nail bombs exploding as well as hearing radio transmissions reporting what was going on. C947.2 paragraph 9. Sometime after hearing calls for assistance to the effect that the Barriers were going to be overrun he heard high velocity firing, maybe 2 – 5 rounds. C947.2 paragraph 10. The witness is unreliable in relation to civilian gunfire for the following reasons:

i) His location could have placed him in a poor position to distinguish the sounds heard. See Col. Jackson, Soldier 128, Soldier 139

ii) He failed to hear 103 live rounds fired from SLRs. He either deliberately omitted that fact making him a particle witness whose evidence cannot be relied upon. Alternatively he heard those rounds and mistakenly believed that they were low velocity rounds as described by him.

iii) His suggestion about what he heard over the radio is undermined by the radio logs.

iv) There are no reports over the radio of incidents of civilian shooting as described by him.

23. Missing Casualties

23.1 "Missing Casualties"

23.1.1 "I accept that none of the soldiers whom we represent has ever said that he was able to recognise as having been a person at whom he fired any of the individuals who have been publicly identified and named, and accordingly, we are not instructed to contend, and we will not contend, unless of course some new evidence that you produce alters the position, that those individuals who have been identified were armed with lethal weapons. It follows, as has rightly been accepted for a long time, that innocent people were killed on Bloody Sunday."

Day 51/21/14 to Day 51/21/25

23.1.2 Despite this assertion, the Lawton and Aitken teams, representing the majority of the soldiers, do maintain, at OS7.2/6, Day 51/22/17 to Day 51/26/22 and OS7.34 and OS8.42 respectively, that gunmen and bombers, who have never been publicly identified, were killed and injured on Bloody Sunday. These people have been labelled 'missing casualties.'

23.1.3 The soldiers have had to resort to this implausible fiction because the alternative was to persist with the case made in 1972 that soldiers were justified in wounding and killing people. Soldiers would thus have their credibility tested against the civilian testimony, the testimony of photographers, journalists and priests and the objective photographic and video footage of the events of the day. The fiction of 'Missing Casualties' enables the soldiers to persist in maintaining that their use of force was justified while not having to challenge the evidence which demonstrates that those killed and injured were innocent. We submit, for the reasons outlined below, that the Tribunal should reject this submission for what it is, a stratagem designed to avoid testing the credibility of soldiers against the credibility of those unjustifiably shot.

23.2 Diverting Responsibility

23.2.1 The document entitled, 'Claimed Hits at Ground Level,' (appended to Counsel Report No. 1), identifies only 23 people to have been, potentially been, hit by army fire in the Bogside, (given that L and M claim to have fired at the same two men crawling from the barrier). Since 25 people were wounded or killed by gunfire on Bloody Sunday in the Bogside, (excluding Alana Burke, who was knocked down by Sergeant O's Humber pig and Patrick McDaid, who was hit by a doctored rubber bullet), the list is already two short. This certainly does not allow for the numerous 'missing casualties' allegedly killed or wounded on Bloody Sunday and necessitates that the soldiers who fired live rounds on Bloody Sunday confess to firing a substantially greater number of shots than they have, until now, admitted. As argued by counsel for the families on a number of occasions, the only 'proof' of the 'missing casualties' theory is the soldiers' word that they fired at identified gunmen and bombers. The Paras have been exposed as unreliable and untruthful witnesses.

23.2.2 The concept of 'missing casualties' was not advanced in 1972. Indeed, whilst for the purposes of the current Inquiry the concept of ''missing casualties'' is being used to 'prove' that the IRA and/or civilian gunmen were active on Bloody Sunday, on the evening of 30th January 1972, precisely the opposite case was being made. The following extract from the SitRep transmitted at 23:59 pm on Bloody Sunday demonstrates the point:

> "As for the 13 civilians killed, there is an obvious discrepancy between the 5+ claimed hit by 1 PARA and the total number dead. A possible explanation lies in the nature of the indiscriminate fire from the gunmen, coupled with ricochets, possibly from both sides." G99.600

23.2.3 This suggestion was short-lived and was not advanced to explain the deaths and injuries suffered by the Bloody Sunday victims. In any event, the ballistic evidence demonstrated that all those killed were killed by soldiers. The army preferred, instead, to tarnish the reputations of those innocent civilians by labelling them gunmen and bombers. Now that such a pretence is no longer sustainable, soldiers have opted for the 'missing casualty' theory in an attempt to divert responsibility for their actions onto the IRA, rather than onto the deceased and wounded. In 1972 it was suggested that additional casualties were caused by the IRA or by soldiers having killed more than one person with the same shot. Now it appears to be suggested that soldiers shot at least twice as many people as those known to have been killed and injured. The desperate readiness with which some soldiers have adopted this fiction serves only to highlight the reality that innocent people were killed on Bloody Sunday without justification.

23.2.4 A number of soldiers who did not fire shots on Bloody Sunday refer to the concept of 'missing casualties' in their statements illustrating, even now, the preparedness of soldiers to close ranks in support of each other and of the army. For example:

i) Captain Conder believes that he was told a few days after Bloody Sunday, by a member of the RUC, that the bodies of several men killed on Bloody Sunday had been secretly buried in Buncrana, CC1.6 paragraph 33

ii) INQ 1924 has stated his belief that that more people were shot on Bloody Sunday than were actually recorded and were secretly buried C1914 paragraph 4

iii) INQ 1800 infers that he was sent to Altnagelvin in plain clothes to ensure that no bodies were spirited over the border C1800.2 paragraph 12

iv) INQ 2023 describes conversations with other soldiers during which it was inferred that IRA men were spirited away C2023.2 paragraph 11

v) INQ 486 said that, having discussed the matter with men in his platoon, he ascertained that about ten gunmen were hit and taken over the border. C486.4 paragraph 19

vi) INQ 1021 believes that he heard an intelligence report that the IRA were going to try to remove bodies from the morgue in Altnagelvin C1021.3 paragraph 21

vii) INQ 2033 gave evidence that he heard a report over the radio from Brigade that a vehicle containing a number of bodies had attempted to cross the border and that the message had been purposely edited from the Porter tape. C2033.2 paragraph 9

23.2.5 Only two soldiers purport to have had direct experience of a 'missing casualty'. INQ 2002 says that, having been chased by a helicopter, a car turned back from the border making its way to the city. When the car arrived at the city gate, INQ 2002 stopped it, aimed his gun at the driver and ordered him to proceed to the checkpoint at a walking pace with the window open. The body of a man, who had clearly not died that day, was then found in the back of the car. Conveniently, INQ 2002 is unable to recall the date of this incident". C2002.7 paragraph 70 This witness was not called to give evidence but, considering that he alleges that the men on the lorry wore masks, C2002.3 paragraph 15 and that Barney McGuigan was on their wanted list, C2002.6 paragraph 38, His evidence is so ridiculous that it requires no further submission from us.

23.2.6 The tendency to adopt similar, farfetched notions is exemplified by the suggestion from soldiers of the 22nd Light Air Defence Regiment, at W48, in relation to the body of Jackie Duddy:

> "1 child's body brought out and dumped on street. People accused 14 & 15 of shooting child. Not accurate, may connect with yesterday."

23.2.7 INQ 1766 states that, two days after Bloody Sunday, he was ordered, with a section of men, to dig up seven or eight fresh, unmarked graves in Craigavon Cemetery. The graves contained the bodies of men, all with gunshot wounds! This fact was never recorded by the army and no other member of INQ 1766's section of men has ever come forward with a similar tale. It is clearly fantastical and unbelieveable and no weight can be given to INQ 1766's testimony. When this evidence was put to Bishop Daly he pointed out that the Cemetery in Derry is called the City Cemetery, Day 75/53/20 to Day 75/54/8, and, when asked if he had ever heard of such a thing in the thirty years since Bloody Sunday, stated:

> "No, I have not. I think, if one looks at the distress there are over the disappeared in Belfast for example, that has gone on over 30 years, where a few people have disappeared, one can get the sense of annoyance in families. The part of our culture is to have a grave to go to and to give respects to those who are dead and, um, I think it is unthinkable, it is a figment of the imagination that the type of thing described by this witness could have taken place. I do not think it is credible." Day 75/54/10 to Day 75/55/13

23.2.8 The reality is that the concept of bodies being spirited away by the IRA was part of army folklore, 'believed' and/or adopted as a means of justifying what otherwise, were unjustified killings. According to Tony Geraghty, the issue was part of "regimental mythology." Day 210/87/8 Soldier 021 claims that he later heard, from talking to a member of the RUC, a Captain and a Military Intelligence Officer, that perhaps five people had been taken across the border to hospital with gunshot wounds. B1509.005 paragraph 36.

23.2.9 INQ 2225, in his evidence to this Inquiry, denied this stating, during oral evidence, that he never heard the suggestion that bodies had been taken over the border. Day 384/123/17 to Day 384/124/21 . He was "always somewhat sceptical about the idea that large numbers of bodies were taken across the border. Troops tended to assume that when they fired their weapons and saw targets move that they had hit them. When no evidence emerged of a body, they assumed that they had hit the person and that the body had been spirited across the border," C2225 paragraph 42.

23.2.10 Furthermore, there is no suggestion in any Special Branch document that there were any dead people spirited over the border and Martin Ingram states that he saw no official documentation suggesting that dead bodies had been secretly buried across the border in the Republic."KI2.4 paragraph 8.

23.3 Thirty-two year conspiracy of silence

23.3.1 It is implausible to contend that the IRA and its sympathisers managed, in the midst of what was a life-threatening and traumatic situation, to spirit away all of the soldiers' 'real' targets on Bloody Sunday, bringing to hospital only those killed by ricochet / mistake. For this to have occurred necessitated a conspiracy involving the randomly selected witnesses to the shooting, the civilians, photographers, journalists and priests, unknown to each other prior to this incident. The conspiracy involving this disparate group was set in motion within minutes of the deaths of these "missing casualties" and has gone uncovered for 32 years. The fact is , however, that nobody could simply disappear from as close-knit a community as the Bogside / Creggan without people knowing about it. Also, as a number of priests and journalists have testified, it would be completely contrary to Catholic ideology to bury people in unconsecrated graves.

Father Denis Bradley states that the idea of bodies being spirited away is not possible for cultural, religious and factual reasons. "In 1972, one young man could not have left the Long Tower parish without me being aware of it within days if it had been in any way under a cloud or shadow." Day 140/172/6 to Day 140/172/21. As he also points out, for this to have occurred everyone who knew the deceased, family, friends and acquaintances as well as the priests of the City would have had to maintain a lie. Day 140/174/13 to Day 140/174/16. Bishop Daly also found the suggestion incredible, Day 075/53/13:

Q. Bishop, that came with the assertion that there are 34 unidentified or untraced or unknown civilian casualties which may include individuals engaged in what was described by Mr Glasgow as "terrorist activity". Bishop, the inference behind that -- is that there were in effect secret and private burials that may have taken place of people killed by the army that day. The first question: were you aware of any such event taking place?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever been subsequently made aware of any such event taking place?

A. No.

Q. Is the suggestion that it even might have happened a credible one, and I ask you to speak with the experience of 31 years of service to this community?

A. I think it is offensive nonsense. Day 075/52/10 to Day 075/53/1

23.3.2 When the concept was put to Eamonn McCann during oral testimony, he dismissed it as "wholly fanciful, patently ridiculous." Day 87/75/25. The idea that the people of Derry, including family members, conspired to allow the names of those innocent people who were killed and wounded on Bloody Sunday to remain stained is not considered plausible by Professor O'Keefe:

Q. If I can take you to the point I want you to comment on shortly: if there were untraced casualties, that view must be sustained by persons colluding in hiding and families agreeing to hide or disguise or perpetuate a lie. In your experience, do you think that a likely scenario?

A. No, I think that is what I would find inconceivable, for example in an area like Derry with a very close Catholic community that a number of young men might in fact disappear and never be buried or heard of again.

Q. And that that untruth in consequence could be protected, participated and promulgated for 10, 20 and 30 years thereafter?

A. I would find that very difficult to conceive of.

Day 127/167/11 to Day 127/168/2

23.4 Contrary to Republican Ideology

23.4.1 It is also entirely contrary to Republican ideology to have secret burials, allowing those killed to go unacknowledged or to omit them from the roll of honour.

23.4.2 It should also be noted that the practice of burying IRA members with military trappings is acknowledged in a Special Branch Assessment, dated 16th December 1971 to 4th January 1972, which describes how, on 30th December 1971, an IRA officer named Jack McCabe, who was killed in an explosion in a workshop in Dublin, was buried with full honours near Shercock, Co. Cavan." G47A.298.6.

23.4.3 Professor O'Keefe found it "inconceivable" that there would be 'missing casualties', Day 127/158/1, because:

> "In Republican ideology the dead are honoured. The paramilitary trappings with which civilians were buried caused many problems with the church. In the 1980s Father Daly led the way in insisting that no burial was to be carried out with any paramilitary trappings or with the Tricolour flag. The IRA would get around this by leading the coffin to the church in a tricolour flag and then taking the flag off the coffin just before it got into the church. The only people the IRA buried without a church service to my knowledge were informers. The Republican dead were always acknowledged. The IRA would also issue a statement claiming that the dead person had been on "active service". . . Accordingly, in 1972, I do not believe that the IRA buried anyone without a church funeral. I also do not think the IRA would have wanted this" H21.100 paragraphs 98 to 99

23.5 'Disappeared' as punishment for disobeying orders

23.5.1 The soldiers' representatives, in an attempt to bolster their 'missing casualty' claims, have pointed to the 'disappeared' as a parallel to their scenario of people being spirited away and buried. To counter the indication that only those considered to be informers were shot by the IRA, they have endeavoured to suggest that a similar fate was meted out to those members of the IRA who disobeyed orders. To this end, Mr Glasgow put the case of Patrick Duffy to Father Bradley during oral evidence. Day 140/243/8 to Day 140/243/12.

23.5.2 The example was unworkable for two reasons. The first was pointed out by Father Bradley himself, i.e., that, along with the rest of the 'disappeared,' Mr Duffy's identity and disappearance were known to the populace of Derry and to the church at that time. Day 140/243/12 to Day 40/243/15. (In fact, far from attempting to hide his death, the IRA put a notice in a local paper announcing that they had killed him, OS8.45). Secondly, although Father Bradley was not to know, Mr Glasgow's representation of Mr Duffy as someone suspected of having disobeyed the IRA in 1971 was incorrect and misleading. It is clearly recorded, in Lost Lives, that Mr Duffy was executed for being an alleged informer in 1973.[1]

23.5.3 Mr Glasgow QC also referred to Mr Duffy when questioning Mr Eamon McCann. Mr McCann's memory of the case was also that Mr Duffy was killed by IRA who regarded him as a traitor. Mr McCann knows nothing, however, of such a demise for those who defied an IRA order, for example, by firing on British troops and causing the deaths of innocent bystanders. Day 087/136/19 to Day 087/138/9. We can find no record of a case in which the motive given by the IRA for "disappearing" someone was disobeying orders. To suggest that the disappearance of casualties on Bloody Sunday was merely a continuation of this trend is tenuous to the extreme. Moreover, according to Professor Terence O'Keefe, the only people to be buried by the IRA without a church service were informers. H21.100 paragraph 98.

23.6 Treatment of Bloody Sunday casualties in hospitals in the Republic

23.6.1 There is some evidence to support the suggestion that people were, on occasion, taken over the border to obtain treatment in an attempt to avoid arbitrary detention. The fact remains, however, that, other than Hugh Hegarty who attended Letterkenny hospital on 1st February 1972 and was discharged on the 2nd February 1972, there is no evidence that any other person sustaining any kind of injury as a result of Bloody Sunday attended Letterkenny hospital. Indeed, INQ 2225, a Military Intelligence Officer, states that he had not heard the proposal that one or more people had been taken over the border for medical treatment until recently, when the suggestion was put to him by his legal team. Day 384/123/17 to Day 384/124/21.

23.6.2 The Aitken Team, in support of their 'missing casualties' theory quote, at OS8.42, an Irish Times report on 31st January 1972 that "one man was taken to Letterkenny Hospital in Co. Donegal suffering from a leg wound. It is believed he will be released today". It is suggested that this report receives corroboration from the evidence of Patrick Clarke at AC154.4 paragraph 29.

23.6.3 Mr Clarke's memory is that he was contacted on the Tuesday or Wednesday by Commandant McGonigle, of the Garda Síochana, who told him that he had sent an ambulance to the border which had picked up one man and taken him to Letterkenny Hospital. Day 204/73/1 to Day 204/73/5. The Irish Government, however, have informed the Inquiry that, whilst ambulances did go to the border, they returned to base empty because nothing happened. Mr Clarke's evidence in relation to this matter is, therefore, rendered suspect. Day 204/74/21 to Day 204/75/2, . The Derry Journal, on 1st February 1972, said that one Derry man was detained in Letterkenny Hospital with injuries received during Sunday's disturbances." L130.2..

23.6.4 The Derry Journal article of the 1st February 1972, L130.2, also states that a spokesman for Letterkenny Hospital said that a very small number of people from Derry had been treated on Sunday but that no one treated by them had died. The name of the "spokesman" is not quoted and neither is the number of people treated or the supposed injuries sustained. It is important to emphasise that the article commences with "the rumours were widespread."

23.6.5 Joseph Hanley, the sole surgeon for Co Donegal at the time of Bloody Sunday (and therefore permanently on call), based at Letterkenny Hospital, has told the Inquiry that he has no recollection of any patients admitted on Bloody Sunday or immediately afterwards with gunshot wounds or of being informed by his Registrar or any other member of staff that any such patient had been admitted to the hospital. AH100 paragraphs 9. It is Dr Hanley's evidence that the practice of injured people from Derry being taken to hospital in Donegal virtually ceased following the death of Séamus Cusack, who bled to death on his way to Letterkenny Hospital on 8th July 1971. AH100 paragraph 11. Rosemary Doyle, of the Knights of Malta, confirms that they were informed that a casualty had to be taken to the most expedient hospital which, in Derry, would have been Altnagelvin. Day 101/35/15

23.6.6 In February 1972, the Sunday Times Insight Team examined the possibility of additional casualties being taken to Letterkenny following a suggestion made by the Army to this effect. Philip Jacobson of the Insight Team spoke with a contact at the hospital who told him that no casualties had been admitted as a result of Bloody Sunday Day 191/107/1 to Day 191/107/25. Mr Jacobson believed his contact on this matter, given that they had been frank in 1971 in discussing the admission of Séamus Cusack to the same hospital.

23.6.7 Geraldine McIntyre, Consumer Services Officer at Letterkenny General Hospital, conducted research into the theatre register of 30th January to 2nd February 1972 and has told the Tribunal that there is no evidence of any surgical procedures performed relating to gunshot injuries. She was able to locate the case file relating to Hugh Hegarty, D1108 to D1111, which confirms that "he was suffering from multiple injuries caused by a gas canister... Mr Hegarty was admitted straight into the main surgical ward and was discharged the following day" AM475.6.

23.7 Additional casualties

23.7.1 In addition to the 'official' fourteen dead and thirteen wounded on Bloody Sunday, the Inquiry has established that a number of other people were 'wounded' in some way on the day. These were:

Name	Nature of Injury	Location at which injury was sustained?	Where taken?	Medical treatment?	Mentioned by?
Pius McCarron	Hit on head by falling masonry loosened by a ricochet	Alleyway between Blocks 1 & 2	House in Joseph Place (where Alana Burke was)	?	Eamon Baker (Day 96) James Deeney (Day 75) Patrick Kelly (Day 75) Joseph Doherty (Day 138) Patrick Clarke (AC64.6)
Hugh Hegarty	Hit in the face by a gas canister	Barrier 14 / junction of William St & Rossville Seamus Treacy	Flat on 2nd floor of Block 1	Dr McCabe Letterkenny Hospital (subsequently)	Hugh Hegarty Day 98 Patrick Moore (Day 98)
Patrick Brolly	Grazed on his head by a bullet	Flat on 2nd floor of Block 2	Ambulance in Rossville Street	Altnagelvin	Patrick Brolly (AB90) Celine Brolly (Day 91)
Rosemary Doyle	Hit in face by rubber bullet	Rossville St	N/A	Checked by nurse Robert Cadman	Rosemary Doyle (Day 101) Mary Gallagher (Day 70)
Mary Smith (now Breslin)	Facial injuries and eye injury	?	?	Altnagelvin
Mickey Doherty	Shot in the leg; bullet graze to face	Derelict house on the corner of Joyce St and Cooke St	Vinny Coyle's house in [redacted]	Dr MacDermott Pauline Ferry Attracta Bradley Hugh Deenan	See section below re: Red Mickey

23.7.2 Official documentation exists relating to the treatment of those shaded in grey in the above table. All of those, save Hugh Hegarty and Red Mickey, feature in the letter written to the Widgery Inquiry by E.T. Watson, the Patients' Services Officer at Altnagelvin on Bloody Sunday, along with all fourteen of the 'official' wounded, D1093-1094, and Geraldine Richmond who was admitted for shock. In other words, other than Red Mickey, those with even relatively minor injuries were taken to hospital and the records of their treatment survive.

23.8 'Red' Mickey Doherty

23.8.1 According to the Inquiry's letter dated 11th March 2004, Mr Mickey Doherty was unable to assist the Inquiry for medical reasons and later died. It appears that Mr Doherty, a member of the "Official" IRA admitted in an interview to Mary Holland during the week after Bloody Sunday that:

> " he was posted in an empty house on the corner of Cooke Street and Joyce Street with orders to cover Bishop Street. He was wounded by a soldier returning fire from a house opposite after he himself had fired at a soldier in the street beneath. He thinks his bullet grazed the soldier's flak jacket, but did not injure him... He was hit in the thigh by one bullet and another ricocheted off a wall to graze the flesh of his eye." M42

23.8.2 The incident is also recorded, at 16.35, on the 'Porter Tape,' at W2 serial 135, and on the Royal Anglian log at 16.41 as follows:

> 54 Alpha (Call Sign of Royal Anglians, located on the Walls): ..."Hello, Zero this is 54 Alpha. Reference report from call Sign 90 Alpha on shooting. Our call sign Quebec 23 has had one low velocity shot fired at them from Charlotte street. Hit one of our soldiers in the flak jacket. Ah, we don't believe he is a casualty. One round was returned. No hit. Subsequent to that our call sign Quebec 21 had one round fired at it and two shots were returned. No casualties on either side. Over. W137 serial 196

Although she cannot now recall the detail, Day 200/69/18 to Day 200/69/23 , Ms Holland clarifies at L182 that, "the marksman I quoted says he fired his shot at 5pm - after the confrontation with the Army had taken place and more than a mile away from where it occurred."

23.8.3 Soldier AA, who was positioned in Barrack Street, states that, about 30 minutes after the arrival of the cars holding Joe Friel and Gerard Donaghey, which he puts at 4.05pm, B908.006 paragraphs 11 to 13, he saw a dark haired man standing at the corner of Joyce Street and Windmill Terrace armed with either a rifle or an M1 Carbine. He states that he and the man fired simultaneously and that the gunman's bullet went past his ear hitting Soldier 042 in the flak jacket. Day 378/168/3 to Day 378/172/17. Whilst he goes on to assert in his statement at B908.008 paragraphs 27 to 28, that he then fired at a second gunman, he accepts, at Day 378/183/17 to Day 378/184/2, that it could have been the same person, i.e. the first gunman. Soldier AA fired a total of eight rounds at the gunman, one of which was from the hip, Day 378/187/21 to Day 378/187/23, at a time when he could not clearly see his target. Day 378/191/4 to Day 378/191/17. Soldier AA has a clear memory of being informed by his Sergeant Major about two weeks after Bloody Sunday that "he had received confirmation from Special Branch that [Soldier AA] had made contact with an IRA gunman and had shot him through the kneecap and in the jaw." Day 378/194/2 to Day 378/194/10,

23.8.4 In his 1972 statements, B909 to B916, Soldier AB states that, at approximately 16.15, a gunman appeared on at the junction of St Columb's Walk and Joyce Street and fired one round at Soldier AA. He states that he returned one round as did Soldier AA. The round fired by the gunman bounced off the wall and hit Soldier 042's flak jacket. Soldier AB now states that he can remember only two incidents that day, namely that he heard up to ten rounds from a Sterling Submachine Gun and Soldier 042 falling to the ground. B918.002 paragraphs 12 to 14. He cannot remember Soldier AA returning fire nor can he remember firing himself. Soldier AB did not, in 1972, make reference to the fact that Soldier AA had fired eight rounds at the gunman and that one of those rounds was fired from the hip. It could be suggested that he has feigned memory loss to this Inquiry in an attempt to maintain this suppression of evidence. However, we have been unable to test this as he was not called to give evidence. The time at which Soldier AB places this incident is clearly wrong as shown by the logs referred to above; his recollection of machinegun fire is clearly incorrect as he mentions only one round in his contemporaneous statement and it is probable that had Soldier 042 been fired at with a machinegun he would have been killed.

Soldier 042 (hard copy version throughout) states that two shots, then a third and then a fourth were fired at his location from buildings on the wasteground at Charlotte Place, the last of which hit the left hand side of his flak jacket. He did not at any stage see the gunman but it is his memory that Soldier AA fired between the third and fourth shot. Day 379/97/1 to Day 379/99/18. He does not recall hearing any Thompson Submachine gun fire, Day 379/97/12 to Day 397/97/17 contrary to Soldier AA's assertion, Day 378/189/13 to Day 378/189/25.

23.8.5 This sequence of events is acknowledged by the Official IRA who, along with witnesses from the Provisional IRA, state that this gunman was the only known member of either wing of the IRA to be injured on Bloody Sunday. Corroboration can also be found in the evidence of Vincent Browne, at M8.3, Father Dolan, at H7.2 paragraph 13, Antony Fry, M27.3 paragraph 12, Kieran Gill, M105.11 to M105.12 paragraphs 48 to 51, Simon Winchester, Day 116/68/24 to Day 116/69/18 ,Nigel Wade at 143/8 to day 109/148/3, Mr Eugene O'Donnell, Day 155/199/23 to Day 155/201/14, Mr Hugh Leo Young, Day 388/43/1 to Day 388/45/7, and in a note by the Sunday Times which refers to Red Mickey as "Mary Holland's lad"AD89.1. Red Mickey Doherty was treated for the injuries he had sustained to his leg and eye by Jim Deehan, Attracta Simms, both from the Knights of Malta, and Dr McDermott, in Vinny Coyle's house at [redacted], Day 182/72/1 to Day 182/75/25, Day 142/1/7 to Day

142/3/22 and Day 176/186/12 to Day 176/194/5 respectively. Ms Pauline Ferry was also in the house, Day 154/202/1 to Day 154/205/25.

23.8.6 Although Mr Doherty was never on what is considered to be the official list of wounded in relation to Bloody Sunday, with such an overwhelming wealth of information about his whereabouts that day, the shots he fired, those returned at him, the injuries sustained by him and their treatment, it is obvious that he cannot be considered to be a 'missing casualty' in the sense outlined by the Lawton Team. The evidence in relation to Red Mickey Doherty also serves to illustrate how inconceivable is the suggestion that it would be possible to conceal from civilians, journalists, priests, soldiers, Knights of Malta, doctors and even Special Branch, the fact that another person in addition to those on the "official" casualty list was injured on Bloody Sunday

23.9 Table of 'missing casualties'

23.9.1 In advance of their opening statement, the Lawton Team provided a map and table of evidence of so-called 'missing casualties.'Mr Glasgow QC said in his opening statement:

> "It is not of course suggested that every one who is marked on that map and who was referred to by my learned friend Mr Clarke in his opening as having been untraced or with some similar description, was a gunman or was necessarily present in the position in which a witness or witnesses have described in their statements. Some witnesses obviously may well have been genuinely mistaken." Day 51/25/22 to Day 51/26/8

23.9.2 It is our submission that the witnesses referred to at OS7.35 are, for all kinds of reasons, mistaken about what they saw.. The 'Missing Casualties' identified in the document by the Lawton Team are examined by Sector and in the table below:

No. on Map	Name of Witness	Reference in Statement	Summary of Response
1	Kevin Barrett	AB26.5 to AB26.5 paragraphs 27 to 30	If the person described was indeed wounded it was in all likelihood Joe Friel or Michael Quinn. However, this witness provides insufficient detail to allow the Tribunal to consider the person he describes as a 'missing casualty'. For further detail see Section 19.
2	Paul Coyle	AC105.3 paragraph 15	This is a reference to Joe Friel who matches the description and was shot in the chest in the alleyway between Glenfada Park north and Abbey Park. For further details see Section 19
3	Paul Coyle	AC105.3 paragraph 15	This is a reference to Michael Quinn who was shot in the face at area referred to. For further details see Section 19
4	PIRA 25	AG17.3 paragraphs 14 to 16	During oral evidence this witness explained that the second man he believed was shot was actually Patrick Walsh who was not in fact injured. He stated that he did not see a third casualty who had been shot in the hip/ buttock but had heard people say that Alex Nash had sustined such an injury. For further detail see Section 20
5	John Gormley	AB46.3 to AG46.4 paragraphs 12 to 14	This witness makes no reference to this incident in his 1972 statement. Indeed, he does not refer to being in Glenfada Park South in his 1972 statement and is obviously mistaken in this regard. For further details see Section 19
6	Alan Harkens	AH8.4 paragraphs 12 to 14	Duplicated in Aitken Team's document. Alan Harkens is the only witness to suggest that there were two bodies in the stairwell of Block 1 and is clearly mistaken in this regard. In all likelihood his memory is of Hugh Gilmore and Kevin McElhinney. For further detail see Section 18
7	Patrick Kelly	AK21.7 paragraph 20	Duplicated in Aitken Team's document. The witness's concession that he did not see a wound, merely presuming the person in question was injured, coupled with the lack of corroboration of this evidence, clearly suggests that the man seen by Mr Kelly may not have been shot at all. For further details see Section 19
8	Michael Love	AL21.3 paragraphs 14 to 16	Mr Love, without the assistance of a 1972 statement, is obviously confused, not only in relation to this matter, but others including timings and locations. His evidence in relation to this matter cannot, therefore, be relied upon. Either the description is that of Gerard Donaghey, who should have been in his line of sight, or the boy to whom he refers was not shot at all. For further details see Section 19

9	Michael Love	AL21.3 paragraphs 14 to 16	Mr Love, without the assistance of a 1972 statement, is obviously confused, not only in relation to this matter, but others including timings and locations. His evidence in relation to this matter cannot, therefore, be relied upon. Either the description is that of Gerry McKinney who should have been in his line of sight, or the man to whom he refers was not shot at all. For further details see Section 19
10	Pearse McCaul	AM93.3 paragraph 13	This witness accepted the likelihood that, rather than carrying two people from the Rubble Barricade, he helped carry Michael Kelly on two occasions rather than two separate bodies on two occasions. For further detail see Section 18
11	Derek McFeeley	AM217.3 paragraphs 11 to 13	Mr McFeeley conceded in evidence that the man to whom he referred could have been William McKinney. For further details see Section 19
12	Patrick McGlinchey	AM247.3 paragraph 13	The memory of a man shouting out and holding his back as seen by a fifteen year old is insufficient to suggest a missing casualy particularly as there is no corroborative evidence. For further detail see Section 20
13	Thomas McGlinchey	AM250.2 paragraphs 10 to 11	This witness conceded that one of the men he saw could have been Gerry McKinney. It is, therefore, probable that Mr McGlinchey is referring to the body of Gerry McKinney. For further details see Section 19
14	Thomas McGlinchey	AM250.2 paragraphs 10 to 11	This witness conceded that one of the men he saw could have been Gerry McKinney. It is, therefore, probable that Mr McGlinchey is referring to the body of Gerard Donaghey. For further details see Section 19
15	David McIntyre	AM284.1 to AM284.2 paragraphs 7 to 9	This witness was 10 on Bloody Sunday and was looking for only a matter of seconds. It is impossible, therefore, to rely upon his evidence. For further detail see Section 20
16	David McIntyre	AM284.1 to AM284.2 paragraphs 7 to 9	This witness was 10 on Bloody Sunday and was looking for only a matter of seconds. It is impossible, therefore, to rely upon his evidence. For further detail see Section 20
17	John McIntyre	AM286.3 paragraph 16	An unchallenged reference to Jackie Duddy. For further detail see Section 17
18	John McIntyre	AM286.4 paragraph 23	The witness accepted that the body he saw was probably that of Michael Kelly. For further detail see Section 18
19	Joseph McKinney	AM304.5 to AM304.6 paragraphs 23	This was a description of Paddy Walsh adminstering aid to Patrick Doherty. For further detail see Section 20

20	Denis McLaughlin	AM326.6 to AM326.7 paragraph 23	This witness, who was hysterical and traumatised at the time concedes that, while he can only now remember one person fall, three men may have fallen as he said in his statement in 1972. For further details see Section 19
21	Joseph Moore	AM413.5 paragraph 24	This witness accepted that the person he saw could have been Paddy Doherty. For further detail see Section 20
22	Joseph Nicholas	AN17.5 paragraph 22	A description of Paddy Walsh rendering aid to Patrick Doherty and Danny McGowan helping Patrick Campbell. For further detail see Section 20
23	Joseph Nicholas	AN17.5 paragraph 22	A description of Paddy Walsh rendering aid to Patrick Doherty and Danny McGowan helping Patrick Campbell. For further detail see Section 20
24	Sean O'Neil	AO65.12 paragraph 57	This evidence is untested. This body was not a "missing casualty," rather may have been one of the three men who fell along the southern side of Glenfada Park. For further details see Section 19
25	Sean O'Neil	AO65.12 paragraph 57	This evidence is untested. This body was not a "missing casualty," rather may have been one of the three men who fell along the southern side of Glenfada Park. For further details see Section 19
26	John Porter	AP11.5D	Deceased. Given the injury that the man had sustained to his face and the location in which he was seen by Mr Porter it is submitted that this is not a "missing casualty" but rather that the person the witness saw may have been Michael Quinn. For further details see Section 19
27	John Quigg	AQ1.2 paragraphs 8 to 9	Giving evidence, Mr Quigg acknowledged that a lot of events have faded in his mind, that at the time he was not familiar with the Glenfada Park area. Indeed, his 1972 statement records that he was in the "Glenfada Park area." It is submitted that the bodies this witness saw were of Gerry McKinney and Gerard Donaghey. For further details see Section 19
28	John Quigg	AQ1.2 paragraphs 8 to 9	Giving evidence Mr Quigg acknowledged that a lot of events have faded in his mind, that at the time he was not familiar with the Glenfada Park area, indeed, his 1972 statement records that he was in the "Glenfada Park area." It is submitted that the bodies this witness saw were Gerry McKinney and Gerard Donaghey. For further details see Section 19

29	Michael Quinn	AQ11.1 to AQ11.11	Duplicated in Aitken Team's document. Mr Quinn's account of when this witness was shot varies. His description is not corroborated by any witness, military or civilian. We submit that Mr Quinn is mistaken when he says he saw a man shot in the leg. Alternatively this boy is not a "missing casualty" in the sense that is intended by the Lawton team because he was not a threat to soldiers (or anyone else) when he was injured. For further details see Section 19
30	Derrick Tucker Jnr	AT15.16	A description of Patrick Walsh, Patrick Doherty and Danny McGowan helping Patrick Campbell. For further detail see Section 20
31	Derrick Tucker Jnr	AT15.16	A description of Patrick Walsh, Patrick Doherty and Danny McGowan helping Patrick Campbell. For further detail see Section 20
32	Martin Tucker	AT17.5 paragraph 32	A description of Patrick Campbell being assisted by Danny McGowan. For further detail see Section 20
33	Martin Tucker	AT17.5 paragraph 32	A description of Patrick Campbell being assisted by Danny McGowan. For further detail see Section 20
34	Robert Wallace	AW3.2 paragraph 8	Duplicated in Aitken Team's document. There is no evidence whatsoever to suggest that the man described was wounded even if the witness's recollection were to be considered in any way reliable and the incident is not mentioned by him in 1972. This cannot be relied upon. For further detail see Section 18

23.10 Aitken Document

Those supposed 'Missing Casualties' identified by the Aitken Team, at OS8.42, that supplement the Lawton Team document are dealt with according to Sector and in the summary below:

No. on Map	Name of Witness	Reference	Summary of Response
1	Hugh Duffy	AD156 and Day 150	Considering that Mr Duffy did not mention this in his 1972 statement, that he accepted it could be a reference to Joe Mahon and that he did not actually see any injury this cannot be relied upon as evidence of a 'missing casualty'. For further detail see Section 19.

2	Derry Journal, Irish Times & Mr Patrick Clarke	L69.2, L130.2 and AC154.4 paragraph 29	This material does not amount to evidence of a 'missing casualty'. See Section 23, i.e. this section, under the title "Treatment of Bloody Sunday casualties in hospitals in the Republic" above.
3	Jim Norris	AN20 and Day 147	The account that this witness gave in 1972 is more reliable than his current memory and is a clear description of Kevin McElhinney. For further detail see Section 18
4	Nigel Wade	M79.22 paragraph 18 and 109/139/7 to Day 109/139/23	This witness confirms that time shrinks one's memory. He is inconsistent in relation to whether or not he saw wounds and there is nothing in his account that can be relied upon as evidence of 'missing casualties.' For further detail see section 20.
	Simon Winchester	Day 116/87/13 to Day 116/88/10	Mr Winchester's account does not correspond with Mr Wade's, who accompanied him, in terms of location or number of 'casualties.' He accepts that some of these people may have merely been distressed rather than wounded. As such this is not reliable evidence of a 'missing casualty.' For further detail see section 20.
	John Barry	AO75.2 and Day 193/168/25 to Day 193/169/5	This evidence is based upon a story related to Mr Barry that he describes himself as an anecdote which did not merit further investigation. As such it can not be considered as the basis for identifying 'missing casualties.' For further detail see section 20.
	Anthony Harkin	AH11.6 paragraph 32	This witness confirmed that the man he saw being carried by the arms and legs looked like Patrick Campbell. It seems that the witness has been confused by the number of people tending to Mr Campbell and by pieces of information he has gained over the years. For further detail see section 20.

	Noel Doherty	AD91.7 paragraph 36	Given the description of the timing, location and description of the injury, with understandable inaccuracies considering the time passed, Mr Doherty is, in all likelihood, describing Patrick Campbell. For further detail see section 20.
	Thomas Ralph Dawe	AD5.5 paragraph 29 and Day 094/152/19 to Day 094/173/14	Mr Dawe did not mention this incident in his 1972 statement.He now accepts that it is possible that he has amalgamated the sighting of the car driven by Mr Bernard McGonagle taking Patrick Campbell to the Regimental Aid Post and the car which was driven by Mr. Raymond Rogan containing the body of Gerard Donaghey. For further detail see section 20.
	Kieran Gill	M105.9 paragraphs 39 to 44	This witness did not actually see a leg wound but states that people were saying to be careful of the young man's leg. Although he describes someone in their late teens, early 20s, this is, considering the timing and location, a reference to Danny McGowan. For further detail see section 20.
5	Soldier AD		See immediately below
6	George Roberts	Day 151/97/16 to Day 151/97/24	It is probable that this witness saw John Young, Michael McDaid or William Nash being shot but, due to the distress and resultant confusion has erred in describing their shooting. For further detail see Section 18
	Photographs	E 14.12 and E14.16	There is no photographic evidence of what could be termed a 'missing casualty'. For further detail see Section 18
	Forensic evidence	Day 229/6 to Day 229/7	This does not amount to evidence of a 'missing casualty'. For further detail see Section 18

23.11 Injured Gunman by Bogside Inn/ Meenan Square

23.11.1 Soldier AD, who was positioned in a house in 21 Long Tower Street, fired two rounds at what he claimed was a civilian armed with a rifle in the vicinity of the Bogside Inn at around 16.45. B943.001. Soldiers 004 and 022 also place the time at which Soldier AD fired his shots at 16.45, B1369.004 and B1510 respectively. Soldier AD accepts that serial 511 on W137 is probably a record of the shots he fired. Day 382/99/18 to Day 382/100/23. It is important to note that, contrary to Soldier AD's claim stated at B943.003, this serial records no hit as a result of his shots. Very soon after this incident, Soldier AD states that he saw a grey Ford Escort reverse into Meenan Square. Having been shown the Royal Anglian Log, W106.7 serial 93, Soldier AD accepted that he could have confused Doctor McCabe's car for the grey Escort. Day 382/101/13 to Day 382/102/5. Importantly, and in support of Soldier AD's evidence in relation to the time at which he fired his shots, the Royal Anglian Log records Dr McCabe's grey station wagon travelling down the Lecky Road at 16.59.

23.11.2 Soldier AD, in his RMP statement at B933, claims that one round was fired by the gunman and that two rounds were returned. This is not what is recorded at serial 396 W130: "We have just had four shots at our call sign Quebec 21 on the Walls." Furthermore, Soldier AD was not on the Walls, he fired his two rounds from a house in Long Tower Street. It is, therefore, clear that W130 and the subsequent references contained in OS8.42 at W131 W132 W133 do not relate to the shots fired by Soldier AD and that there was no 'missing casualty' in the area of the Bogside Inn.

23.12 Conclusions

i) There are no 'missing casualties' in the sense outlined by the Lawton and Aitken Teams or at all

ii) 'Red Mickey' Doherty is not a 'missing casualty' given that it was known, even shortly after Bloody Sunday, that he had fired shots at soldiers and was injured by return fire. The Tribunal has a large body of evidence about his actions.

24. Military and Police Intelligence after the March

24.1 Introduction and Summary of Submissions

24.1.1 As appears from the INTSUMs and other intelligence documentation generated in or around January 1972, the Army and RUC Special Branch were in receipt of a steady flow of information about the structure of both the Provisional IRA and the Official IRA, their respective structures and personnel, their weaponry, their activities and their plans: see, for example, the 8th Brigade INTSUM 102 of 2 February 1972 G108.653, the HQNI INTSUM 5/72 of 3rd February 1972 G110.673 and the Special Branch assessment for the period ended 3rd February 1972 G112.697. The Tribunal has also been led to believe that Observers B and C provided reliable intelligence to James and Julian during this period. However, intelligence suggesting that either IRA faction, or indeed maverick civilian gunmen, played any significant role in the events of Bloody Sunday is conspicuous by its absence.

24.1.2 Much of the intelligence documentation is redacted but, as far as we can tell, there is literally nothing in the INTSUM's and Special Branch assessments in the weeks following Bloody Sunday suggesting that any information had been obtained from informants or other sources to the effect that IRA or other civilian gunmen or bombers had engaged in any material activities during the period of ten minutes or so between the paratroopers' entry into the Bogside and the shooting of the last casualty on Bloody Sunday.

24.1.3 Apart from the Observer B material, dealt with above (12.5.6), the only intelligence claimed to have been received to the effect that the IRA had any involvement in the material events of Bloody Sunday is that attributed to "Witness X" and "Infliction". The material concerning Witness X has been heavily redacted to the extent that only the year (1972) is specified but if this is the material to which Col. Tugwell referred it would appear to have been generated following interviews in or about the summer of 1972 (B133.70 paragraph 48). It was not until April 1984 that Infliction made his allegation about Martin McGuinness. That was not information provided to either the police or the Army but to the Secret Intelligence Service in the Hague.

24.1.4 Apart from the various features of these accounts that mark them as worthless, it should be noted that neither these nor any other accounts implicating civilian gunmen or bombers emerged in the weeks immediately following Bloody Sunday. The evidence of INQ2225, a military intelligence officer at HQNI, is typical of the recollections of those directly involved in intelligence-gathering at the time. Before the Widgery Inquiry took place, he said, there was a lot of pressure on the RUC to find information that would have supported the Army case that the paratroopers were fired on as they deployed in Rossville Street, but "none was yielded". (Day 384/161/9 to Day 384/161/14).

24.2 "Infliction"

24.2.1 According to Officer A, a member of the Security Service, he handled an agent code-named "Infliction", who told him during a debriefing in April 1984 that "Martin McGuinness had admitted to Infliction that he had personally fired the shot (from a Thompson machine gun on single shot) from the Rossville Flats in the Bogside that had precipitated the Bloody Sunday episode" (KA2.2 paragraph 8 and KA2.6). It is submitted that even if the documentation is genuine, which is not conceded, the information from Infliction was patently false. First and foremost, the information allegedly supplied by Infliction should be regarded as false because it is completely at odds not only with the civilian evidence but also with the soldiers' evidence. Not one soldier claims that the events of Bloody Sunday were precipitated by a Thompson sub-machine gun on single shot. Apart from the fact that it is difficult to understand why a Thompson should be fired on single shot, those soldiers who refer to Thompson machine-gun firing refer to this as bursts of automatic fire.

24.2.2 Secondly, although Officer A regarded Infliction as a reliable agent (KA2.1 paragraph 5), there is compelling evidence that he was quite the opposite. Officer A himself concedes that "some recipients of [Infliction's] information viewed Infliction's reporting with scepticism". (KA2.1 paragraph 5) This is an understatement. According to David Shayler, a former member of the Security Service who also worked in T Branch, Infliction was regarded within the Service as "a bullshitter" (KS2.1 at paragraph 3, and KS2.2 at paragraph 7 and Day 327/78/21 to Day 327/79/2) According to Annie Machon, another former member of the Security Service who worked in T Branch, her predecessor thought everyone in T Branch knew that Infliction was a "bullshitter" (KM12.1 paragraph 7) and he was "notorious for being unreliable". (Day 327/92/12 to Day 327/92/22)

24.2.3 Officer E, who was David Shayler's line manager, said that he had a "general recollection that [Infliction's] reporting was considered by others to be of mixed reliability". (KE1.2 paragraph 4) but when he was asked about this during his oral testimony he claimed to be unable to remember anything that could assist the Tribunal in understanding how he gained this impression. (Day 328/25/18 to Day 328/26/8). Officer F claimed not to recall ever discussing an agent called Infliction with David Shayler or hearing anyone else discuss him. (KF1.1 paragraphs 3 and 6) Officer F was a friend of Shayler and he regarded him as an honest and straight-forward individual. (Day 328/43/10 to Day 328/43/13) Officer G was another Security Service Officer who sat opposite David Shayler. He also claimed not to recall ever referring to Infliction as a "bullshitter" or hearing David Shayler ever discussing Infliction's reliability with anybody else. (KG1.2 paragraph 6) Officer N was Annie Machon's predecessor but he did not recall describing him as a "bullshitter" or indeed, he said, having any view of Infliction's reliability or hearing any other officers referring to him in these terms. (KN1.1 paragraph 1) David Shayler believed that any serving officer would be "inclined to plead memory failure or tell outright lies to investigators as they know that telling the truth might embarrass or expose their bosses". (KS2.4 paragraph 16) It is respectfully submitted that Officers E, F, G and N were pleading memory failure for such reasons.

24.2.4. Even Officer A had to concede that Infliction had lied on occasions, that he had engaged in "bullshitting" in "a few instances" and that others in the Security Service had suspected him to be a fabricator. (KA.2.21 paragraph 5 and Day 327 7/24 to Day 327/8/9).

24.2.5 Moreover, according to the debriefing notes, Infliction believed it unlikely that Martin McGuinness had made his admission about firing the first shot to anyone apart from himself (Infliction) (KB3.3 to KB3.4 and Day 327/35/9 to Day 327/38/19). The inference that Officer B certainly drew was that either Martin McGuinness had told no one apart from Infliction or that he had told very few people indeed. (Day 327/38/20 to Day 327/39/2) If this were true, the disclosure of these debriefing notes would therefore have revealed Infliction's identity since Martin McGuinness would obviously know that Infliction was the only person (or one of the very few persons) to whom he had made this "confession". Since the Security Service have been at pains to protect Infliction's identity, the inescapable conclusion is that they knew perfectly well that Martin McGuinness had not made any such confession to Infliction, so that the release of debriefing notes suggesting that he had would not compromise Infliction's identity at all.

24.2.6 Nor is there any other evidence of any kind to support Infliction's account. The Security Service recognised this themselves when they commented at the time that there was "no collateral" for the report (KA2.14). Peter Pringle, an independent journalist who has conducted extensive research into Bloody Sunday, also testified that he found no evidence whatsoever to support Infliction's report. (Day 190/146/21 to Day 190/147/3) Nor, apparently, have the RUC heard such a report if any reliance is to be placed on the indirect evidence of a "reliable" "senior Police officer" whose understanding has been transmitted via the journalist Liam Clarke to Martin Ingram. (KI2.41 paragraph 9)

24.2.7 Martin Ingram is a former member of the Force Research Unit who had the highest level of security access to Intelligence material in that unit. (KI2.2 paragraph 4) He gave evidence that he saw Intelligence documents to the effect that Martin McGuinness was under surveillance on the day, there were records of his activities before and after the march and there were none that suggested that he had a machine gun or that he fired a shot. (KI2.41 paragraph 7, KI2.4 at paragraph 8 and Day 329/78/12 to Day 329/78/25)

24.2.8 Finally, in this regard, Martin McGuinness has specifically denied Infliction's claims (KM3.6) and explained his movements at the material time. (KM3.4) There is no evidence inconsistent with his account. Whereas he has given oral testimony and been subjected to cross-examination on this issue (Day 390 to Day 391), Infliction did not even make a statement and did not give oral or any evidence of this claim. On this basis alone, it would be wrong to place any weight on this report.

24.3 Witness X

24.3.1 The primary document concerning Witness X (AX1.1 to AX1.2) consists of what we understand to be a police officer's note of an interview with a suspect in custody in 1972. It is heavily redacted but it appears that the suspect claimed to have joined the Provisional IRA just after Mr Cusack was shot. Witness X is recorded as saying that he was in action on Bloody Sunday at Rossville Street. He is recorded as saying that he was on a joint operation, that he was firing a carbine from Glenfada and that he used two full magazines.

24.3.2 Witness X has made a statement (AX1.3). Apart from pointing out that the date of birth on the police note is not his, he denies ever having been in the IRA or handling weapons. Even if the document were an accurate record of what Witness X told police, it immediately gives rise to a number of questions concerning the reliability of the recorded claims. First, the suggestion (which is made by no one apart from Witness X) that the Provisional IRA and Official IRA were engaged in a joint operation is difficult to reconcile with all the other evidence about the relationship between these two organisations. Secondly, although Witness X suggests that two identified Provisional IRA members and three identified Official IRA members were in Rossville Street, he did not apparently indicate what, if anything, they were doing or even whether he was with them. Thirdly, the claims are devoid of detail about such fundamental matters as when he fired, where exactly he fired from, the direction he fired, whether he believed he hit anyone and (since we know that he could not have hit any soldier) how he could have failed to hit anyone if he had discharged two full magazines.

24.3.3 Even taking Witness X's recorded claim at its height, there was no suggestion that he fired at soldiers "as the army came down Rossville Street" (as INQ 2225 believed: C2225.10 paragraph 58) or at any time before the last civilian casualty was shot. The related documentation confirms this. In the redacted extract from paragraph 16 of an undated 1972 headquarters INTSUM, the army noted that the information provided by Witness X "does not amount to an admission that the IRA fired first" (G134C.906.12). In what appears to have been a subsequent letter from the Col. GS Intelligence at HQ Northern Ireland to a military intelligence liaison officer at RUC Head Quarters, the Army indicated that it would like Witness X to be asked a number of questions, including whether he was in Rossville Flats, whether he opened up as the soldiers got out of their armed vehicles, whether his firing was at the start of the shooting, how many other gunmen were firing at the time, who such other gunmen were and whether nail bombs were thrown. (G134B.906.9). It can reasonably be inferred that Witness X had not provided the answers to any of these questions in his initial interview. On foot of this request, a Detective Chief Inspector and Detective Sergeant in the RUC Special Branch did re-interview Witness X but he apparently refused to talk any more about Bloody Sunday and no further information was forthcoming. (G134B.906.8)

24.3.4 On the last day of the hearing, the Tribunal announced that Witness X was too ill to attend to give evidence. We have, therefore, been denied the opportunity to subject him to questioning.

24.3.5 On the basis of the material available, it is our submission that

(i) the claims allegedly made by Witness X are false; and

(ii) even taking them at their height, they do not constitute a claim that civilian gunmen fired on soldiers at any time before the last civilian casualty was shot, so that they are largely irrelevant.

25 LEGAL FRAMEWORK AGAINST WHICH RESPONSIBILITIES MUST BE JUDGED

25.1. Introduction

25.1.1. For the reasons set out in section 9 soldiers on active service in Northern Ireland have been able to exercise deadly force with virtual impunity, particularly during the "militarist" phase of 1969-1974.

25.1.2. The apparent absence of a criminal sanction against the use of lethal force by the Army in Northern Ireland has been the subject of sustained and determined criticism by a variety of organisations at home and abroad[1]. Statistical evidence confirms the lack of accountability of members of the military and security forces.[2]

25.1.3. It is the purpose of this section, however, to outline the legal framework within which the culpability of members of the military involved in Bloody Sunday must be assessed, bearing in mind also the general legal and constitutional considerations which applied in 1972 and which have received a detailed analysis in section eight above.

25.1.4. This section will outline the relevant domestic law on the use of force as well as relevant European and International Standards.

25.1.5. It is our submission that:

i) The use of lethal force by soldiers on Bloody Sunday was in contravention of domestic criminal law in that the individual soldiers who fired shots were (and remain) guilty of murder and/or attempted murder and/or wounding with intent.

[2] See "Shooting with impunity" in section nine for a more detailed account.

ii) The use of lethal force by soldiers was also a breach of Article 2 of the European Convention on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (ECHR) in that it was not 'absolutely necessary' within the meaning of Article 2.

iii) The use of lethal force by soldiers was a breach of International Treaty obligations and in particular: The Universal Declaration of Human Rights ('Universal Declaration')[3]; the International Covenant on Civil Political Rights (ICCPR)[4] and the United Nations Principles on the Effective Prevention and Investigation of Extra-legal, Arbitrary and Summary Executions (UN Principles)[5].

iv) The operation was not planned and controlled in a manner designed to minimise to the greatest extent possible the risk of the use of lethal force. The responsibility for planning and controlling the operation lay with 8th Brigade, General Ford and his immediate superiors. The essential elements of Operation Forecast and those which contributed directly to the use of lethal force were sanctioned by both the Stormont and Westminster Governments.

v) In breach of the UN Principles[6], the operation was not planned and controlled in a manner that prevented extra-legal, arbitrary and summary executions. Nor did the respective Governments plan the operation as to prohibit orders from superior officers authorizing or inciting other persons to carry out such extra-legal, arbitrary or summary executions.

vi) The arrest operation and detention of suspects was in breach of Article 3 (ECHR) in that the arrestees were subjected to torture or to inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

vii) The arrest operation and detention of suspects was in breach of International treaty obligations and in particular: the Universal Declaration; the ICCPR, the UN Convention Against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman and Degrading Treatment or Punishment ('Convention Against Torture')[7], and the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from being subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (Declaration against Torture).[8]

25.2. Relevant Domestic Law

25.2.1. The exercise of force in Northern Ireland by members of the Security Forces at the time of Bloody Sunday was governed by section 3 of the Criminal Law (Northern Ireland) Act 1967.

25.2.2. Section 3 provides

(1) "A person may use such force as is reasonable in the circumstances in the prevention of crime, or in effecting or assisting in the lawful arrest of offenders or of persons unlawfully at large.

(2) Subsections (1) shall replace the rules of the common law as to the matters dealt with by that subsection"

25.2.3. In Re Farrell[9] the House of Lords held that:

" section 3 (1) of the Criminal Law Act (Northern Ireland) 1967 meant that the question to be determined when such a defence was put forward in, inter alia, a criminal action was whether the accused had used such force as had been reasonable in the circumstances in which he had been placed in the prevention of crime or in bringing about the lawful arrest of an offender or suspected offender."

25.2.4. This provision came into existence following the recommendations of the Seventh Report of the Criminal Law Revision Committee (CLRC).

25.2.5. Before the concept of 'reasonableness' was imported into the statutory structure as a result of the CLRC Report, the law required 'apparent necessity' before an officer of justice might use deadly force.[10] The move to this broader definition was intended to relax the restrictions on the use of force in that 'reasonableness' as a broad and malleable concept facilitated a broad interpretation in the light of the emergency situation.[11]

25.2.6. When analysing the reasonableness concept, academic writers have partitioned it into two primary subcomponents:[12] first, a proportionality requirement, and second, a necessity element.

25.2.7. Proportionality implies an equality of response to the threat posed between individuals in that the reaction to a threat should not be excessive, but measured to respond to the danger posed. The question is whether, on an objective assessment, the harm that might result from the use of lethal force, i.e. death, is less than the harm that may follow from allowing an individual to escape arrest or continue to carry out an unlawful act. 'Necessity' can be interpreted as meaning that the least violent measures must be used to avert the threat encountered. Glanville Williams argues that the averting theory has two sub-components: the immediacy principle and the non-excessive force principle.[13] The immediacy principle requires that the threat must be actual and at hand whereas non-excessive force implies that minimal rather than maximal force should be exercised.

25.2.8. However generously the requirement of reasonableness is construed, the individual soldiers on Bloody Sunday had no reasonable grounds to believe that the use of lethal force was necessary in the prevention of a crime or to effect an arrest. Section 3 of the 1967 Act does not, therefore, provide them with a defence to criminal charges arising from their use of such force 25.2.9. Moreover, it is an elementary principle of criminal law that anyone who aids, abets, counsels or procures an offence is liable to be tried, indicted and punished as a principal offender: s. 8, Accessories and Abettors Act 1861 and see generally Archbold 2004 at paragraph 18.2 et seq. Where two or more persons embark on a joint enterprise, each is liable for the acts done in pursuance of that joint enterprise: see generally Archbold, Criminal Pleading, Evidence and Practice 2004 at paragraph 18.5 et seq.

25.3. The Right To Life

25.3.1. Article 2 of the European Convention provides:

> 1. Everyone's right to life shall be protected by law. No one shall be deprived of his life intentionally save in the execution of a sentence of a court following his conviction of a crime for which this penalty is provided by law.
> 2. Deprivation of life shall not be regarded as inflicted in contravention of this article when it results from the use of force which is no more than absolutely necessary:
> a in defence of any person from unlawful violence;
> b in order to effect a lawful arrest or to prevent the escape of a person lawfully detained;
> c in action lawfully taken for the purpose of quelling a riot or insurrection.

25.3.2. Article 2 imposes a positive obligation on the government to protect the right to life. This positive obligation requires domestic legislation to regulate the permissible use of lethal force; the intentional lethal use of firearms should be compatible with the ECHR and should occur only when strictly unavoidable in order to protect life.

25.3.3. The European Court has held that Article 2 of the Convention does not define situations where it is permissible intentionally to kill an individual, but rather defines situations where it is permissible to use force that may result in deprivation of life as the unintended outcome of the use of force.[14]

25.3.4. Moreover, where death results from the State's use of lethal force, a violation of Article 2 will be established unless the state, and it is the state which bears the onus, shows that one of the exceptions set out in Article 2(2) is met. Any claim of justification under these exceptions must be strictly construed (as is made clear by the "absolutely necessary" test) due to the fact that Article 2 "ranks as one of the most fundamental provisions in the Convention."[15]

25.3.5. The Court has stated that a test of the "necessity" of the use of lethal force includes an assessment as to whether interference with the Convention right was proportionate to the legitimate aims pursued; and that in establishing whether the use of force was "strictly proportionate" regard must be had "to the nature of the aim pursued, the dangers to life and limb inherent in the situation, and the degree of the risk that the force employed might result in loss of life".[16]

[14] Kathleen Stewart v. U.K. [1984] 7 EHRR 453; Application No. 10044/82. D.R. 39/162).
[15] Jordan v. UK. Application No. 24746/94
[16] Kathleen Stewart v U.K (as above)

25.3.6. It is our submission that the actions of those soldiers who fired lethal shots did so in breach of Article 2 of the Convention, in that their actions were not "absolutely necessary" within the meaning of Article 2.

25.3.7. This submission is strengthened by the decision of the European Court in Gulec v. Turkey.[17] In this case the Court held that the use of lethal force to disperse demonstrators by state officials in reaction to what they did not deny was a very violent demonstration was not absolutely necessary within the meaning of Article 2. Given that it is our submission that all of those targeted by the use of lethal force on Bloody Sunday were innocent unarmed civilians, the use of lethal force was neither strictly necessary nor proportionate to the NICRA demonstration and ensuing violence.

25.3.8. The European Court in the case of Ergi v Turkey[18] considered that, in keeping with the importance of the provision of Article 2 in a democratic society, the Court must, in making its assessment, subject deprivations of life to the most careful scrutiny, particularly where deliberate lethal force is used, taking into consideration not only the actions of the agents of the state who actually administer the force but also all the surrounding circumstances, including such matters as the planning and control of the actions under examination. Furthermore, under Article 2 of the Convention, read in conjunction with Article 1, the state may be required to take certain measures in order to "secure" an effective enjoyment of the right to life.

25.3.9. The concept of planning and control of the use of lethal force was also approached by the Court in the case of McKerr v United Kingdom:[19]

[17] Application No. 21593/93
[18] Application No. 23818/94 (28th July 1998 unreported)
[19] Application No. 28883/95/[1996] 21 EHRR 97.

". in determining whether the force used was compatible with Art.2, the Court must carefully scrutinise not only whether the force used by the soldiers was strictly proportionate to the aim of protecting persons against unlawful violence but also whether the anti-terrorist operation was planned and controlled by the authorities so as to minimise, to the greatest extent possible, recourse to lethal force".

25.3.10. Therefore in considering the compatibility of national law and practice with the European Convention and specifically Article 2, the Court has provided that national law must strictly control and limit the circumstances in which a person may be deprived of life by agents of the state. The state must also give appropriate training, instructions and briefing to agents who may use force, and exercise strict control over any operations that may involve use of lethal force.

25.3.11. It is our submission that such strict control, instructions and planning were absent in the period leading up to Bloody Sunday.

Other International Standards

25.3.12. The foundation of the international human rights legal system, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, provides in Article 3 that Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of person.

25.3.13. The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights elaborates upon the provision for the Right to Life within the Universal Declaration and states in Article 6

Every human being has the inherent right to life. This right shall be protected by law. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his life.

25.3.14. The UN Principles again elaborate upon the Right to Life provided for in the Universal Declaration:

> Governments shall prohibit by law all extra-legal, arbitrary and summary executions and shall ensure that any such executions are recognized as offences under their criminal laws, and are punishable by appropriate penalties which take into account the seriousness of such offences. Exceptional circumstances including a state of war or threat of war, internal political instability or any other public emergency may not be invoked as a justification of such executions. Such executions shall not be carried out under any circumstances including, but not limited to, situations of internal armed conflict, excessive or illegal use of force by a public official or other person acting in an official capacity or by a person acting at the instigation, or with the consent or acquiescence of such person, and situations in which deaths occur in custody. This prohibition shall prevail over decrees issued by governmental authority.

25.3.15. Echoing the European Court's emphasis on the importance of proper military control, instruction and planning, Article 2 of the UN Principles provides:

> 2. In order to prevent extra-legal, arbitrary and summary executions, Governments shall ensure strict control, including a clear chain of command over all officials responsible for apprehension, arrest, detention, custody and imprisonment, as well as those officials authorized by law to use force and firearms.....

3. Governments shall prohibit orders from superior officers or public authorities authorizing or inciting other persons to carry out any such extralegal, arbitrary or summary executions. All persons shall have the right and the duty to defy such orders. Training of law enforcement officials shall emphasize the above provisions.

25.4. The Right To Be Free From Torture, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment.

25.4.1. Article 3 of the European Convention on Human Rights provides:

> No one shall be subjected to torture or to inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

25.4.2. The prohibition on torture and other forms of inhuman and degrading treatment is absolute and generally enforced by the Court with rigour. There are no exceptions and it cannot be derogated.[20]

25.4.3. The ECHR organs have adopted what can best be described as a 'vertical' approach to Article 3, which is seen as comprising three separate elements, each representing a progression of seriousness, in which one moves progressively from forms of ill-treatment which are 'degrading' to those which are 'inhuman' and then to 'torture'. The distinctions between them are based on the severity of suffering involved, with 'torture' at the apex.

[20] European Convention on Human Rights, Article 15; See also Report of the Committee of Privy Councillors Appointed to Consider Authorised Procedures for Interrogation of Persons Suspected of Terrorism.

25.4.4. What is also clear is that mistreatment must attain a minimum level of severity in order to fall within the cope of Article 3. The assessment of this minimum is relative and depends on such factors as duration of the treatment, effects, age, sex and state of health of the injured party.[21]

25.4.5. Moreover, treatment causing mental suffering is sufficient to fall within Article 3, provided a sufficient degree of intensity is reached.[22] Provided it is sufficiently real and immediate, a mere threat of inhuman or degrading treatment may itself violate Article 3.[23]

25.4.6. Owing to their particular vulnerability to assault and violation of their rights, the Court has adopted a necessarily low threshold for the minimum in the case of individuals who have been assaulted by a member of the security forces whether during an arrest or in detention.[24] The Court has repeatedly held that where a person is taken into custody in good health, found to be injured at the time of release, and alleges ill treatment, it is incumbent on the state to provide a plausible explanation as to the cause of his injuries to avoid liability under Article 3.[25] Furthermore, the court has declared that states are:

> strictly liable for the conduct of their subordinates; they are under a duty to impose their will on subordinates and cannot shelter behind their inability to ensure that it is respected.[26]

[25] Tomsai v France Application No. 12850/87; [1992] 15 EHRR 1.

25.4.7. The term 'strict liability' used in that liability will attach unless it can be clearly shown that all reasonable measures have been taken to prevent such acts occurring, and to investigate and punish where appropriate.[27]

25.4.8. In this context, the European Court has observed that: "the increasingly high standard being required in the area of the protection of human rights and fundamental liberties correspondingly and inevitably requires greater firmness in assessing breaches of the fundamental values of democratic societies."[28]

25.4.9. It is our submission that the arrest, detention and abuse of individuals by soldiers on Bloody Sunday constituted a breach of Article 3. The severity of the assaults sustained by detainees reached the minimum standard required. Moreover it is clear that all reasonable measures were not taken to prevent such assaults occurring and that reasonable measures were not taken to investigate and punish those responsible.

25.4.10. The prohibition contained in Article 3 is closely modelled on the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Article 5 of which provides:

> No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

25.4.11. Similarly, Article 7 of the ICCPR provides:

---

[27] Derived from Human Rights Law and Practice; Lord Lester of Herne Hill& David Pannick; Butterworths 1999.

[28] Selmouni v France [GC] Judgement, 28 July 1999; Application No. 25803/94; 29 EHRR 403, para 101.

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. In particular, no one shall be subjected without his free consent to medical or scientific experimentation.

25.4.12. More detailed measures adopted by the International community, including the United Kingdom, to combat torture and inhuman treatment are contained in the United Nations Declaration Against Torture which provides as follows:

Article 2

Any act of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment is an offence to human dignity and shall be condemned as a denial of the purposes of the Charter of the United Nations and as a violation of the human rights and fundamental freedoms proclaimed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Article 3

No State may permit or tolerate torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. Exceptional circumstances such as a state of war or a threat of war, internal political instability or any other public emergency may not be invoked as a justification of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 4

Each State shall, in accordance with the provisions of this Declaration, take effective measures to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment from being practised within its jurisdiction.

Article 5

The training of law enforcement personnel and of other public officials who may be responsible for persons deprived of their liberty shall ensure that full account is taken of the prohibition against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. This prohibition shall also, where appropriate, be included in such general rules or instructions as are issued in regard to the duties and functions of anyone who may be involved in the custody or treatment of such persons.

Article 6

Each State shall keep under systematic review interrogation methods and practices as well as arrangements for the custody and treatment of persons deprived of their liberty in its territory, with a view to preventing any cases of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

25.4.13. The UN Convention Against Torture again expands upon the right not to be subjected to torture and offers a distinct definition as follows:

Article I

1. For the purposes of this Convention, the term "torture" means any act by which severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, is intentionally inflicted on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or a confession, punishing him for an act he or a third person has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating or coercing him or a third person, or for any reason based on discrimination of any kind, when such pain or suffering is inflicted by or at the instigation of or with the consent or acquiescence of a public official or other person acting in an official capacity. It does not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to lawful sanctions.

2. This article is without prejudice to any international instrument or national legislation which does or may contain provisions of wider application.

25.4.14. The Convention further provides:

Article 2

Each State Party shall take effective legislative, administrative, judicial or other measures to prevent acts of torture in any territory under its jurisdiction.

No exceptional circumstances whatsoever, whether a state of war or a threat of war, internal political instability or any other public emergency, may be invoked as a justification of torture.

An order from a superior officer or a public authority may not be invoked as a justification of torture.

25.4.15. Thus according to the Convention, for an act to 'qualify' as torture it must (a) cause severe physical or mental suffering (b) be inflicted for a purpose and (c) be inflicted by, or with the acquiescence of, an official (that is to say, it can be attributed to the state).

25.4.16. Within the Convention Against Torture a separate definition is offered to those actions, which would constitute inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment as:

Article 16

1. Each State Party shall undertake to prevent in any territory under its jurisdiction other acts of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment which do not amount to torture as defined in article 1, when such acts are committed by or at the instigation of or with the consent or acquiescence of a public official or other person acting in an official capacity. In particular, the obligations contained in articles 10, 11, 12 and 13 shall apply with the substitution for references to torture of references to other forms of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

2. The provisions of this Convention are without prejudice to the provisions of any other international instrument or national law which prohibits cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment or which relates to extradition or expulsion.

25.4.17. It is our submission that the actions of the Army leading up to and on Bloody Sunday did not comply with these international standards[29].

25.5. Conclusion

25.5.1. The use by the Army of lethal force on the streets of Derry on Bloody Sunday to control a civilian population entailed taking the lives of 13 people and the wounding of others who were unarmed and who provided no threat to the security forces or anyone else.

25.5.2. The use of such force in the circumstances that prevailed amounted to murder and/or attempted murder and/or wounding with intent in breach of U.K. domestic law. Criminal liability for the offences committed rests not only with the individual soldiers who pulled the triggers but also with the other soldiers who acted in concert with them in their joint enterprise and with those in authority who pulled their strings.

25.5.3. Nor was such force an 'absolute necessity' within the meaning of Article 2 of the European Convention so that the use of lethal force was a flagrant violation of the European Convention, as well as of relevant international obligations.

25.5.4. The arrest operation was not conducted so as to "minimise, to the greatest extent possible, recourse to lethal force". McCann v. United Kingdom (1966) 21 EHRR 97

25.5.5. The arrest, detention and ill-treatment of marchers also amounted to inhuman and degrading treatment contrary to Article 3 of the European Convention. The planning and execution of the entire military operation on Bloody Sunday involved wholesale violations of Articles 2 and 3 of the Convention, for which the United Kingdom Government must bear responsibility.

[29] The position of the rights protected by the European Convention in domestic law after the Human Rights Act 1998 has been clarified by the recent decision of the House of Lords in In Re McKerr [2004] UKHL 12

26 Allegations against Soldiers in 1 Para

Introduction

This Section contains allegations against the Shooters in 1 Para. It also contains allegations against Lieutenant 119 and Colour Sergeant 002 on the basis of their roles arising out of their command of soldiers engaged in particular shootings. This Section is in addition to the Sections on the Role and Responsibility of Individual Soldiers contained within the Conclusions in each Sector.

26.1 Corporal A

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Corporal A fired at least 2 shots unlawfully, recklessly and without justification. He did not believe that either Damien Donaghy, John Johnston or any other person in proximity to them posed any threat to life. The circumstances in which he claims to have fired do not match any of the circumstances in which victims in the laundry waste ground in William Street were shot. However, his shots may have hit Damien Donaghy, John Johnston or both, in which case his conduct amounted to attempted murder or, at least, causing grievous bodily harm with intent, contrary to Section 18 of the Offences Against the Persons Act 1861.

(ii) Corporal A was, and remains, in collusion with Private B and invented an account of a nail bomber in order to justify the live rounds he fired and those fired by Private B

(iii) In view of the lies told by Corporal A in his subsequent statements, and on oath, in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.2 Private B

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private B cocked his rifle in breach of the Yellow Card before there was any justification for doing so.

(ii) His action in cocking his rifle in breach of the Yellow Card demonstrated a willingness to use lethal force on the slightest pretext.

(iii) Private B fired at least 3 shots unlawfully, recklessly and without justification. He did not believe that either Damien Donaghy, John Johnston or any other person in proximity to them posed any threat to life. The circumstances in which he claims to have fired do not match any of the circumstances in which victims in the laundry waste ground in William Street were shot. However, his shots may have hit Damien Donaghy, John Johnston or both, in which case his conduct amounted to attempted murder or, at least, causing grievous bodily harm with intent, contrary to Section 18 of the Offences Against the Persons Act 1861.

(iv) Private B was, and remains, in collusion with Corporal A and invented an account of a nail bomber in order to justify the live rounds he fired and those fired by Corporal A.

(v) In view of the lies told by Private B in his subsequent statements, and on oath, in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.3 Private C

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private C claimed to fire 2 rounds at a man with a rifle at the south-west corner of Block 1 and 3 rounds at a pistol man firing from a window on the third storey of Block 1 Rossville Flats. He fired those shots unlawfully, recklessly and without justification.

(ii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.4 Lance Corporal D

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Lance Corporal D claimed to fire 2 rounds at a pistol man firing from a window on the third storey of Block 1 Rossville Flats. He fired those shots unlawfully, recklessly and without justification.

(ii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice

26.5 Corporal E

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Corporal E claimed to have fired 1 shot from the Kells Walk Wall in the direction of the southwest corner of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. He is a suspect for shooting Hugh Gilmore. There was no justification for the firing of these rounds and Corporal E's conduct amounted to murder.

(ii) Acting in concert as he was with other members of his Platoon and members of Mortar Platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(iii) He fired 2 shots towards the southeast corner of Glenfada Park North. He is a suspect for shooting Patrick O'Donnell. There was no justification for this shot. Corporal E's conduct in doing so amounted to attempted murder and causing grievously bodily harm with intent, contrary to Section 18 of the Offences Against The Person Act 1861.

(iv) In view of the fact that he not only engaged in a joint enterprise with other members of his platoon but was in charge of the brick that entered Glenfada Park, he is also criminally liable for the murders of Gerard McKinney, Gerard Donaghey, William McKinney and James Wray and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie.

(v) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.6 Lance Corporal F

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Lance Corporal fired 1 shot from the Kells Walk Wall over the Rubble Barricade, hitting and killing Michael Kelly. There was no justification for the firing of this round and Lance Corporal F's conduct amounted to murder.

(ii) Acting in concert as he was with other members of his Platoon and members of Mortar Platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(iii) Contrary to his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry Lance Corporal F fired more than 1 shot from the Kells Walk Wall over the Rubble Barricade, he is a suspect for hitting and killing one of those killed behind the Rubble Barricade. Again this shooting was in concert with other members of his Platoon and members of Mortar Platoon in a joint enterprise and his is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(iv) Lance Corporal F also claimed to have fired two shots at a target in Glenfada Park and killed that person. Those shots probably killed Willie McKinney and, having passed through him, injured Joseph Mahon. He fired without justification and therefore murdered Willie McKinney. His conduct in respect of Joseph Mahon amounted to attempted murder and causing grievously bodily harm with intent, contrary to Section 18 of the Offences Against The Person Act 1861.

(v) Since Lance Corporal F was acting in concert with the other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise and also as a junior NCO with a leadership role, he is in any event criminally liable on this basis for the murders of Gerard McKinney, Gerard Donaghey, Willie McKinney and James Wray and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie.

(vi) Lance Corporal F also fired a number of rounds at the window of 12 Garvan Place, Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. Those rounds were fired without justification. Lance Corporal F's firing of those shots, fired as they were at the window of an occupied flat amounted to attempted murder.

(vii) Lance Corporal F fired without justification in Sector 5, behind block 2 of Rossville Flats. He wounded Patrick Campbell and Danny McGowan. He is criminally liable for the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of both. He murdered Patrick Doherty and Barney McGuigan.

(viii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.7 Private G

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private G fired at least 2 shots while on Rossville Street. There was no justification for the firing of these rounds. Acting in concert as he was with other members of his Platoon and members of Mortar Platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(ii) Contrary to his evidence to the Widgery Inquiry Private G fired shots from the Kells Walk Wall over the Rubble Barricade, he is a suspect for hitting and killing one of those killed behind the Rubble Barricade. Again this shooting was in concert with other members of his Platoon and members of Mortar Platoon in a joint enterprise and his is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(iii) Private G claimed to have fired three shots at one target in Glenfada Park. He claimed that after he had fired his shots two people fell. Those shots may have injured Joseph Friel. If so his conduct in respect of Joseph Friel amounted to attempted murder and causing grievously bodily harm with intent, contrary to Section 18 of the Offences Against The Person Act 1861.

(iv) Private G's weapon was conclusively linked to the bullet recovered from Gerard Donaghey. The evidence is clear that the same soldier shot both Gerard Donaghey and Gerard McKinney. Private G therefore murdered Gerard McKinney and Gerard Donaghey.

(v) Since he was acting in concert with the other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise he is in any event criminally liable on this basis for the murders of Gerard McKinney, Gerard Donaghey, Willie McKinney and James Wray and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie.

(vi) Private G also fired at least one round at the window of 12 Garvan Place, Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. That shot was fired without justification. Private G's firing of that shot, fired as it was at the window of an occupied flat amounted to attempted murder.

(vii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.8 Private H

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private H fired 22 rounds on Bloody Sunday and claims to have fired all of these rounds in Glenfada Park. It is not accepted that all of the rounds fired by Private H were fired in Glenfada Park North and it is alleged that some of those rounds were fired over the Rubble Barricade. There was no justification for the firing of these rounds.

(ii) Acting in concert as he was with other members of his Platoon and members of Mortar Platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(iii) On the basis of the shots Private H claimed to have fired at targets in the outdoors in Glenfada Park he is a suspect for the murder of Willie McKinney and the wounding of Joseph Mahon and Joseph Friel. If so he murdered Willie McKinney and his conduct in respect of Joseph Mahon and Joseph Friel amounted to attempted murder and causing grievously bodily harm with intent, contrary to Section 18 of the Offences Against The Person Act 1861.

(iv) Since he was acting in concert with the other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise he is in any event criminally liable on this basis for the murders of Gerard McKinney, Gerard Donaghey, Willie McKinney and James Wray and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie.

(v) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.9 Lance Corporal J

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Lance Corporal J fired 2 shot from the Kells Walk Wall. The first shot was fired over the Rubble Barricade and the location at which Lance Corporal J has placed his first target is the location at which Michael McDaid, John Young and William Nash were killed, shortly after the killing of Michael Kelly. That shot was fired without justification. Lance Corporal J claims not to have hit anyone with that shot. Lance Corporal J is a suspect for the shooting of Michael McDaid, John Young or William Nash and his conduct amounted to murder. In any event his conduct amounted to attempted murder.

(ii) Lance Corporal J's second shot from the Kells Walk Wall was fired in the direction of the south-west corner of Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. That shot was fired without justification. Lance Corporal J claims that he did not hit his target. If that shot hit Hugh Gilmore, Lance Corporal J's conduct amounted to murder. In any event his conduct amounted to attempted murder.

(iii) Acting in concert as he was with other members of his Platoon and members of Mortar Platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(iv) In view of the lies told by Lance Corporal J subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.10 Sergeant K

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Sergeant K fired 1 shot by his own admission and expressed confidence that he hit his target. He claimed to have fired at a man with a rifle who was crawling (behind another man) from the Barricade towards the entrance to Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. He is a suspect for shooting Kevin McElhinney. He fired without justification and therefore murdered Kevin McElhinney.

(ii) Since he was acting in concert with Private L and M in a joint enterprise and also as an NCO with a leadership role, he is in any event criminally liable on this basis for the murder of Kevin McElhinney.

(iii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.11 Private L

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private L cocked his rifle in breach of the Yellow Card. He fired at least 1 round into the rafters of a derelict building in order to terrify a prisoner when there was no justification for doing so. This was a further breach of the Yellow Card.

(ii) Private L claimed to have fired 2 rounds at a man with a rifle who was crawling (in front of another man) from the Barricade towards the entrance to Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. He believed that he may have shot both men. He fired without justification.

(iii) He is a suspect for murdering Kevin McElhinney.

(iv) Since he was acting in concert with Sergeant K and Private M in a joint enterprise he is in any event criminally liable on this basis for the murder of Kevin McElhinney.

(v) He also claimed to fire 2 rounds at a man with a rifle in a burnt out factory on the west side of the junction of Kells Walk and Abbey

Street. The circumstances in which he fired his shots do not match the circumstances in which any of the victims were hit. He fired without justification.

(vi) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.12 Private M

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private M claimed to fire 1 round at the first of two men crawling from the Barricade towards the entrance to Block 1 of the Rossville Flats. He then fired a 2nd round at the second of the two men. He believed that he hit both men. These shots were fired without justification.

(ii) He is a suspect for murdering Kevin McElhinney.

(iii) Since he was acting in concert with Soldiers L and K in a joint enterprise he is in any event criminally liable on this basis for the murder of Kevin McElhinney.

(iv) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice..

26.13 Lieutenant N

It is alleged as follows:

(i) In breach of the Yellow Card, Lieutenant N fired 3 shots at or above the heads of civilians in Eden Place. Apart from being reckless firing that endangered the lives of civilians, these were probably the first shots fired after the paratroopers debussed and probably triggered at least some of the shooting which followed.

(ii) Lt N fired 1 shot towards the Rossville Flats courtyard. He is a suspect for wounding Michael Bridge although it is also possible that he hit Peggy Deery. There was no justification for this shot. Lieutenant N's conduct in doing so amounted to attempted murder and causing grievously bodily with intent, contrary to Section 18 of the Offences Against The Person Act 1861.

(iii) The additional effect of his conduct was to encourage his subordinates to continue firing at civilians. In view of the fact that he not only engaged in a joint enterprise with other members of his platoon but was in charge of that platoon, he is also criminally liable for the murder of Jackie Duddy and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Peggy Deery, Michael Bridge, Michael Bradley and Patsy McDaid.

(iv) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.14 Sergeant O

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Sergeant O fired at least 8 shots at civilians without justification. The circumstances in which he claims to have fired do not match any of the circumstances in which victims in the courtyard were shot. However, at the very least, he is criminally liable for the attempted murder, alternatively causing grievous bodily harm, of civilians in the courtyard.

(ii) Moreover, as in the case of Lieutenant N, he was not only engaged in a joint enterprise with members of his platoon but also occupied a command role and is therefore criminally liable for the murder of Jackie Duddy and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Peggy Deery, Michael Bridge, Michael Bradley and Patsy McDaid.

(iii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.15 Corporal P

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Corporal P cocked his rifle in breach of the Yellow Card, probably before debussing, but certainly before there was any justification for doing so.

(ii) Corporal P fired 2 shots from the hip at the crowd at the Rubble Barricade. These shots did not cause any casualties. Nonetheless those rounds were fired without justification, in circumstances where they endangered life and Corporal P's actions amounted to attempted murder.

(iii) The additional effect of his conduct was to encourage the soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon to fire live rounds at civilians. In view of the fact that he engaged in joint enterprise with soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon he is criminally liable for the deaths of Michael McDaid, John Young and William Nash.

(iv) Acting in concert as he was with other members of Anti-Tank Platoon and Private U in a joint enterprise, he is also criminally liable for the murders of Hugh Gilmore and Michael Kelly.

(v) Corporal P fired at least 4 more rounds at the crowd at the Rubble barricade. These shots probably hit one or more of Michael McDaid, John Young or William Nash. There was no justification for the firing of those rounds. Corporal P's conduct in doing so amounted to murder. Even in the event that the shots fired by Corporal P did not hit and kill Michael McDaid, John Young or William Nash acting as he was in concert with the members of Anti-Tank Platoon in a joint enterprise, he also is in any event criminally liable for their murder.

(vi) Corporal P fired a further 3 to 5 shots over the Rubble Barricade in circumstances which were in breach of the Yellow Card and which were unjustified.

(vii) In view of the lies told by Corporal P subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.16 Private Q

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private Q fired at least one shot by his own admission, and claimed that he hit his target. The circumstances in which he claims to have fired do not match the circumstances in which any of the victims were hit. He fired without justification. However, he is a suspect for murdering Jackie Duddy.

(ii) Acting as he was in concert with the other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise, he also is in any event criminally liable for the murder of Jackie Duddy and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Peggy Deery, Michael Bridge, Michael Bradley and Patsy McDaid.

(iii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.17 Private R

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private R fired four shots by his own account, one at a civilian in the Rossville Flats courtyard close to Block 1 and three at a civilian between Blocks 2 and 3. He believes he hit his first target on the right shoulder but is not sure whether he hit his second target. The circumstances in which he fired his shots do not match the circumstances in which any of the victims were hit. He fired without justification. Based on the site of the wound he claimed to have inflicted, his first target may have been Jackie Duddy. If so, he is guilty of the murder of Jackie Duddy. Since he acted in concert with the other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise, he is in any event criminally liable for the murder of Jackie Duddy and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Peggy Deery, Michael Bridge, Michael Bradley and Patsy McDaid.

(ii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.18 Private S

It is alleged as follows:.

(i) By his own account Private S fired 12 shots at a target or targets at the same location between Blocks 1 and 2. He believed that he hit his target on at least 2 occasions. The circumstances in which he fired his shots do not match the circumstances in which any of the victims were hit. He fired without justification.

(ii) Bearing in mind the number of shots fired by him and the fact that he fired a number of them from the hip as he advanced towards the courtyard, he is a suspect for the shooting of any one or more of the victims in the courtyard.

(iii) Since he acted in concert with the other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Jackie Duddy and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Peggy Deery, Michael Bridge, Michael Bradley and Patsy McDaid.

(iv) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.19 Private T

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private T claims to have fired 2 shots at an acid bomber on the balcony of Block 1 but does not know whether he struck his target. The circumstances in which he fired his shots do not match the circumstances in which any of the victims were hit. He fired without justification.

(ii) Since he acted in concert with the other members of his Platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Jackie Duddy and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Peggy Deery, Michael Bridge, Michael Bradley and Patsy McDaid.

(iii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.20 Private U

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Private U claims to have fired 1 shot at a pistol man south west of the southern end of Block 1. The man fell backwards and a man behind him fell clutching his head. He is the main suspect for the shooting of Hugh Gilmore. He fired without justification and therefore murdered Hugh Gilmore.

(ii) Acting in concert as he was with other members of his Platoon and members of Anti-tank Platoon in a joint enterprise, he is criminally liable for the murder of Hugh Gilmore, John Young, Michael McDaid, Michael Kelly and William Nash.

(iii) In view of the lies told by Private U subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice

26.21 Lance Corporal V

It is alleged that:

(i) Lance Corporal V claims to have fired 1 shot at a petrol bomber at a petrol bomber in the car park and hit his target in the stomach. He is the main suspect for the shooting of Jackie Duddy. He fired without justification and therefore murdered Jackie Duddy.

(ii) Since he was acting in concert with the other members of his platoon in a joint enterprise and also as a junior NCO with a leadership role, he is in any event criminally liable on this basis for the murder of Jackie Duddy and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Peggy Deery, Michael Bridge, Michael Bradley and Patsy McDaid.

(iii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

26.22 Colour Sergeant 002

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Colour Sergeant 002 was the Senior NCO in charge of Call Sign 71 Alpha. He was at the Kells Walk Wall along with the other members of the Composite Platoon and as such was able to see that Kevin McElhinney was unarmed. He ordered Soldiers L and M to open fire when there was no justification for doing so. In view of his role as the NCO in charge of this half-platoon he is criminally liable for the murder of Kevin McElhinney. In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perverting the course of justice.

26.23 Lieutenant 119

It is alleged as follows:

(i) Lieutenant 119 was the officer-in-charge of Anti-Tank Platoon and briefed his Platoon in a manner designed to encourage the use of lethal force in circumstances which were unjustified. On his own admission he was also one of the first soldiers from Anti-Tank Platoon to reach the Kells Walk Wall and as such was in a position to: see that the crowd behind the Rubble Barricade was unarmed;

and, order his soldiers to stop firing. In view of his role as officer-in-charge of his platoon he is criminally liable for the murder of Michael Kelly, John Young, Michael McDaid, William Nash and Hugh Gilmore.

(ii) Lieutenant 119 did not order his men to advance into Glenfada Park and failed to stop them from entering Glenfada Park and Abbey Park. On his own admission he was present in Glenfada Park when F opened fire and therefore should have been in a position to also see G, E and H firing into a fleeing crowd at unarmed civilians. He did not order his soldiers to stop firing. In these circumstances and in view of his role as officer-in-charge of his platoon he is criminally liable for the murder of Gerard McKinney, Gerard Donaghey, Willie McKinney and James Wray and the attempted murder and grievous bodily harm of Patrick O'Donnell, Joseph Mahon, Joseph Friel, Michael Quinn and Danny Gillespie.

(iii) In view of the lies he told subsequently in statements and on oath in order to conceal his own and other soldiers' crimes, he is also guilty of perjury and perverting the course of justice.

27 ALLEGATIONS AGAINST SENIOR MILITARY OFFICERS

27.1 It is alleged that

a) The senior officers violated their obligation to protect the right to life of the marchers and others and failed to take all feasible measures to vindicate the right to life and to minimise to the maximum possible extent the risk to innocent lives.

b) By their acts and omissions in the planning, organisation, approval and conduct of the military operation on Bloody Sunday the senior officers violated domestic and international law standards protecting the right to life including Article 2 of the European Convention.

2. The legal context in which the acts and omissions of the senior officers fall to be judged has been set out in Section 25.

General Carver

3. General Carver was aware of the number of deaths that had been caused by the military in controversial circumstances in Northern Ireland and failed to take any or adequate steps to ensure there were no others.

4. General Carver knew of and approved the unlawful usurpation by the army of the role of the police.

5. General Carver approved the plans for Operation Forecast and the use of 1 Para in spite of the specific warning communicated to him via Lieutenant Colonel Ramsbotham.

6. General Carver knew within hours of Bloody Sunday that unarmed civilians had been deliberately shot by 1Para. He appraised Sir Edward Heath, Lord Carrington and the members of GEN47 on the morning of 31st January 1972 that "only shooting into crowds was directed at hooligans" (as opposed to gunmen).

General Tuzo

7. General Tuzo was behind the Internal Instructions which illegally supplanted the role of the police with the military and illegally took control of all security operations.

8. General Tuzo illegally entered into an agreement with the Chief Constable to remove soldiers from the criminal justice system and the normal functioning of the criminal law.

9. General Tuzo was aware of the number of deaths that had been caused by the military in controversial circumstances in Northern Ireland and failed to take any or adequate steps to ensure there were no others.

10. General Tuzo was aware of Major General Ford's memo entitled "The Situation in Londonderry as at 7th January 1972" (G48.299 to G48.301). There is no evidence that he dissented from its contents, and in fact he brought them to attention of the JSC.

11. General Tuzo approved the plan for Operation Forecast.

12. General Tuzo was aware of all the decisions being made about the arrest operation and the thinking which underlay it.

13. General Tuzo was the source of Major General Ford's hostility to and dismissal of Chief Superintendent Lagan.

General Ford

14. General Ford wanted to break the "no-go" areas and to teach 8 Brigade and the Bogsiders a lesson.

15. General Ford regarded the use of lethal force as legitimate as a method of law enforcement above and beyond circumstances where there was a threat to life

16. Operation Forecast was not planned so as to minimise to the greatest extent possible the risk to civilian life.

17. General Ford made the decision to stop the march in circumstances where he knew that decision carried with it an increased risk of violence. This decision ought to have been made by the local police.

18. General Ford made the decision that the army would police the march in circumstances where he knew:
    a) The army were inadequately trained in a policing role.
    b) He knew that the army were more likely to have recourse to maximal force, including lethal force.
    c) That the army had killed 37 nationalists since internment in controversial circumstances
    d) Significantly 10 of the 14 people killed on Internment night by the army, in disputed circumstances, were killed by members of the Parachute Regiment

19. General Ford made the decision to use 1 Para.

20. General Ford lied about the reason for using 1 Para. 1 Para were used because of their reputation as tough and because he would exert more control over the operation if it was mounted by 1 Para than if it was mounted by local security forces.

21. General Ford wanted to launch a major arrest operation in Derry whether necessary or appropriate in the circumstances on the ground on the Day.

22. General Ford failed to impose restrictions on the use of lethal force (in fact he was of the view that a restrictive use of the Yellow Card was in operation and considered that more extensive use of force than was in fact the practice was justified).

23. General Ford failed to take any steps in the Operational Order G95.572 Paragraph 4 to consider a disciplined withdrawal in the client that any Soldier formed a belief that there was a threat that justified the response the use of lethal force.

General MacLellan

24. The plan for the arrest operation

    a) did not contain sufficient information as to the circumstances in which an arrest operation could be legitimately launched
    b) did not provide for "separation"

25. The "scoop-up" operation planned was unlawful

26. Separation was developed subsequent to the march to justify the launch of the arrest operation.

27. General MacLellan abdicated control of arrest op to 1 Para.

28. General MacLellan failed to exercise command & control.

29. General MacLellan failed to adequately brief 1 Para on the special characteristics of Derry, the specifics of the march and the locality of the arrest operation.

30. General MacLellan failed to acquaint himself with their plan.

31. General MacLellan failed to respond to Jackson & Welsh re use of 1 Para.

32. General MacLellan failed to address issues raised by Ferguson at Co-Ordinary Conference re use of lethal force and liaison.

33. General MacLellan committed perjury in relation to the importance attached to separation and the order to go in.

34. General MacLellan failed to establish and maintain proper communication with 1 Para.

35. General MacLellan failed to obtain accurate information from 1 Para.

36. General MacLellan launched the arrest operation when he should not have.

General Steele

37. The plan for the arrest operation

    a) did not contain sufficient information as to the circumstances in which an arrest operation could be legitimately launched
    b) did not provide for "separation"

38. The "scoop-up" operation planned was unlawful

39. Separation was developed subsequent to the march to justify the launch of the arrest operation.

40. General Steele committed perjury in relation to separation, the order to go in and the order to withdraw.

Colonel Wilford and Colonel Loden

41. The personal responsibility of Colonel Wilford and Colonel Loden is direct and significant. Their determination to achieve the launch of an arrest operation was at the expense of:

    a) Proper planning;

    b) The provision of current and accurate information to Brigade;

    c) The provision of current and accurate information of the Gin Palace. ;

    d) The exercise of command and control;

    e) The specific orders issued by Brigade;

    f) A controlled arrest operation;

    g) Exercising any measure of restraint upon the soldiers on the ground;

    h) Having any regard to the risk of life of innocent civilians.

42. This comprehensive disregard for their general and specific responsibilities was the immediate cause of the tragedy of the day.

43. Both committed perjury in relation to the order to go in and the events subsequent to the entry of 1 Para into the Bogside.

44. Both assisted the soldiers in their cover up of their criminal responsibility, and in so doing perverted the course of justice.

28 Allegations against the Governments

28.1 It is alleged as follows:

(i) That in the planning, control, organisation, approval and conduct of the military operation on Bloody Sunday, the British Government, by acts or omissions of its servants or agents, violated domestic and international law standards protecting the right to life, including Article 2 of the European Convention.

(ii) That the respective governments violated their obligation to protect the right to life of the marchers and others and failed to take all feasible measures to vindicate the right to life and to minimise to the greatest possible extent the risk to innocent lives.

(iii) No adequate weight or consideration was attached to the right to life of the citizens of Derry and the prevailing culture, politically and militarily, was one which endorsed the perception that the citizens of Derry were hostile to the State and consequently were not to be regarded in the same light as the State would normally regard its own citizens. Rather they were to be treated if not as enemies of the State certainly as persons with no reciprocity of interests with the State.

(iv) Both governments allowed the view to be disseminated without censure that "NICRA was being taken over by the IRA and hooligans" thus, in effect, dangerously conflating these three diverse elements into a common enemy. The failure or refusal to recognise and reinforce the vital distinctions between these disparate groups was dangerous and culpable.

(v) The British Government allowed the Stormont Government, which "shamelessly discriminated" against Catholics, to exercise disproportionate influence over security matters and succumbed to self-serving pressures from the Stormont Government in relation to the use of its armed forces. In the weeks leading up to Bloody Sunday, in the face of mounting pressure from Unionists, who regarded the failure to enforce the ban against Catholic marches as a "final surrender to the IRA", the GOC was, without censure or disapproval, representing NICRA as "the active ally of the IRA".

(vi) Both governments tolerated, if not encouraged, in Northern Ireland, the use of unlawful violence including lethal force. For example,

(a) Prior to Bloody Sunday there were many instances where lethal force had been used by the army in highly controversial circumstances. Uniquely in this part of the UK, as a matter of practice and policy, allegations of the use of unlawful force against military personnel were not properly investigated because the police duty to investigate was unlawfully delegated to the Royal Military Police for the purpose of rendering military personnel who had been guilty of wrongdoing unlikely to be made amenable to the law. Since the underlying objectives of a proper police investigation are to underpin the right to life it is apparent that the State operated and applied a policy which was incompatible with the respect for the right to life itself;

(b) Prior to Bloody Sunday the British Government and the Stormont Government countenanced and implemented measures which violated fundamental rights and freedoms including the non-derogable rights contained in Article 3 of the European Convention (prohibition of torture, inhuman and degrading treatment).

(c) Prior to and in connection with Bloody Sunday the contemplation and implementation of measures involving the use of unlawful lethal force such as;

i. "shooting of unarmed civilians";

ii. Option 3, as it became known, which, it was acknowledged would "necessarily involve numerous civilian casualties";

iii. Shooting of "selected ringleaders" of what was characterised as the DYH (Derry Young Hooligans);

iv. "a shooting-war";

v. Without censure (31 January 1972) reporting "only shooting into crowds was directed against hooligans";

vi. Without censure (4 February 1972) regarding Bloody Sunday as "an outstandingly successful military operation".

(vii) The military operation on Bloody Sunday was a political decision approved by the Stormont Government and the British Government.

(viii) Both governments foresaw, as a possible outcome, that the military operation might endanger the lives of innocent civilians. This was a risk that, in respect of the lives of the marchers and the citizens of Derry, they were prepared to run.

(ix) If they did not foresee such a risk they ought to have foreseen it and such a failure is culpable.

(x) They permitted an "arrest" operation which should never have been contemplated.

(xi) Alternatively any such operation should have been put on a highly contingent basis subject to stringent conditions and under constant review at the highest level before launching

(xii) Both governments approved the following:

(a) The decision to prevent the march reaching the Guildhall;

(b) The decision to have a major military operation involving British armed forces;

(c) The decision that this would or might involve a significant "arrest" operation;

(d) The decision that the Parachute Regiment would be involved;

(e) The decision to allow a major military operation to proceed in which they foresaw, as a possible outcome, that the lives of innocent civilians might be endangered;

(f) The decision to run the risk that the lives of innocent civilians might be endangered.

(xiii) Both governments neglected to take steps to ensure that the operation was conducted in a manner designed to minimise to the greatest extent possible the risk to the lives of innocent civilians.

(xiv) In the aftermath of Bloody Sunday the British Government were party to a massive cover-up involving, inter alia, the smearing of innocent victims and the shameless promotion of a false case on behalf of the army. They misled both Houses of Parliament and the public.
