

THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES

Cambridge University Library received the entire collection of Roger Law, co-creator of the TV satire series Spitting Image. The collection includes original scripts, drawings, recordings and puppet moulds of famous figures.

Image credit: Syndics of Cambridge University Library

Hackney Archives digitised and made available 150,000 photographs by R.A. Gibson Photographic Studio, recording the changing demographics of post-war Hackney. The project has helped the archives build relationships with historically under-represented parts of the community.

Image credit: Hackney Archives, ref C4608-11

The Churchill Archives Centre opened up access to the papers of IVF pioneer Professor Sir Robert Edwards, after 18 months of cataloguing and conservation funded by the Wellcome Trust.

Bristol Archives have also catalogued the archive donated by Louise Brown, the world's first IVF baby. Her mother Lesley Brown collected the material, which was used in Louise's autobiography about their extraordinary situation.

Image credit: Bristol Archives/Bristol Post, ref 45827/Ph/11

Manchester Histories led Peterloo 2019, a programme of over 180 events with community groups and archive services to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the Peterloo Massacre.

Image credit: Manchester Central Library

Kresen Kernow, Cornwall's brand new archive centre built on the site of the former Redruth Brewery, opened to the public. The building features state-of-the-art storage, public spaces, digitisation and preservation suites.

Image credit: Phil Boorham

Hull History Centre built upon its free monthly LEGO activity, History Makers, by hosting Warren Elsmore's Brick History exhibition. The exhibition highlighted historic moments through LEGO and attracted over 35,000 visitors.

Image credit: Warren Elsmore

The Sainsbury Archive put almost 100,000 items online for the first time in their 150th anniversary year.

Image credit: The Sainsbury Archive, Museum of London Docklands

St. Helens Archive Service and GSK Heritage Archives worked together to digitise their collections documenting the town's famous Beecham company, including extensive advertisements, site photographs and product examples.

Image credit: GSK and St. Helens Local History and Archives Library

Surrey Heritage supported the Everyday Muslim project to open up the archives of Britain's first purpose-built mosque, the Shah Jahan Mosque in Woking. They provided specialist advice, English translations of Urdu correspondence, and recorded oral history interviews.

Image credit: Surrey History Centre, ref PC/160/ALB1/89

The Unlocking Our Sound Heritage project, led by the British Library, established a UK network of 10 centres of audio archiving excellence. The project digitally preserved over 100,000 rare and at risk recordings in 2019.

Image credit: British Library

Boots Archive continued to work with Dementia Friends on reminiscence sessions, in partnership with medical professionals and academics. Alongside this, dementia-friendly guidance and training is being rolled out across Boots stores.

Image credit: Boots Archive

The International Bomber Command Centre Digital Archive ran an international project to gather oral histories and memorabilia of civilians and military personnel on both sides of the Second World War.

Image credit: IBCC Digital Archive

The National Theatre Archive produced an online trailer, 'Inspiration is Free', to showcase the archive service and the creative potential of its collections.

Image credit: National Theatre Archive

The Borthwick Institute launched The Northern Way project with The National Archives to make the registers of the Archbishops of York more accessible and their story of a nun who faked her own death went viral.

Image credit: Borthwick Institute for Archives, University of York

The Mountain Heritage Trust and Durham University worked with artists Stephen and Margaret Livingstone to recreate historic Himalayan mountain climbs using 1970s Action Man figures.

Image credit: Mountain Heritage Trust

Suffolk Archives produced Home Front resources and an interactive classroom museum for Clifford Road Primary School, showing how the war affected the local area via themes such as air raids, evacuation and rationing.

Image credit: Suffolk Archives and Clifford Road Primary School

London Metropolitan Archives received 100 in-depth interviews from the AIDS Since the '80s project. Preserving the history of people affected by AIDS, including those in the LGBTQ+ community, it constitutes the largest filmed archive of HIV-related testimony in the UK.

King's College London and the National Archives of Madagascar launched the Archives Africa online catalogue, part of a larger project to link the archives of every country in Africa.

More than 150 archive services have now achieved Archive Service Accreditation.

A YEAR IN ARCHIVES