Attached to the file cover, in readiness for your meeting with [redacted] this afternoon, are photostats of the three chapters that we have seen. No photostat of the covering envelope is attached. The package can be handed to Easton as it stands.

The first chapter, in point of time, deals with PEACH's assignment to Spain on behalf of the Times during the Civil War. The second covers his experiences in France as war correspondent for the Times during the 1939 to 1940 period. The third is about Guy BURGESS in Washington from 1950 to 1951. I can see nothing to which objection could possibly be taken on any grounds in either of the first two chapters.

I have read serials 559a and 560a. I think this is disturbing, in that it seems very likely that the "Daily Express" will publish their story showing PEACH's association with BURGESS, and might even lead the "Express" to try and acquire the press rights of PEACH's own story.

I understood from the D.D.G. today that [redacted] had suggested that he might use this information when he sees PEACH tomorrow as overt evidence of the fact that PEACH was in any event going to get adverse publicity. I told D.D.G. that in my view it would be unwise for [redacted] to do this, because PEACH might well take the line that if he once had adverse publicity, further adverse publicity could not harm him. It might also put into his head the idea of selling the press rights to the "Express".

NOTE.

I rang Patrick Dean this morning to ask him the name of the Daily Mirror man referred to at 582a. He later rang me back to say that he had learnt from News Department that it was Michael KING. Dean understood that he was the son of the man who pulled the purse-strings in the Daily Mirror. It appeared from his visit to News Department that it was not he himself who had obtained the information about PHILBY, but that he was raising the point on behalf of someone else on the Daily Mirror staff.

I then rang S.B. and, in the absence of Commander Burt, told Chief Superintendent Jones of the facts recorded at 582a and in paragraph 1 of this note. I said that I did not ask S.B. to do anything about this, but was reporting it in case they should come across the story and have any means of discouraging publication. I emphasised to Jones that the case was a delicate one. He knew that, having been informed by Burt of the action taken at 451a and 580a. Jones added that he knew of Michael KING. He thought he was a distant connexion of the ROTHERMERES. Since he was not a rank and file reporter with a name to make, it was less improbable that the story would be dropped.

NOTE.

Patrick Dean rang up today to say that the head of the F.O. News Department had had a visit from the News Correspondent of the "Daily Mirror". The latter had said he had heard a story that a man called PHILBY was recently very heavily screened by the F.O. and was likely to be put under arrest. The F.O. had replied that there was no-one called PHILBY in their department, and that they had no knowledge of any forthcoming arrest. The "Daily Mirror" man, whom Dean did not name, was, he said, a sensible fellow, and said that he had no intention of publishing a story on this at this stage. It was obvious, however, that the "Daily Mirror" could not be persuaded not to publish if they thought they had a story. Dean added that he had told the foregoing.

NOTE.

D.G. told me yesterday that Commander Burt had spoken to him about the arrangements recorded at 451a in Volume 9 of this file. Burt wondered whether it was necessary for these arrangements to be maintained. D.G. asked me to get in touch with Burt on the matter.

I rang Burt today and discovered, as was to be expected, that what was in his mind was that so long as the messages to his representatives at the ports were in being, there was always a slight risk of leakage. I said that, in those circumstances, we should be glad if he would discontinue the arrangement. I thanked him for his assistance and said it was possible that new circumstances might arise in future which might prompt me to ask him to do the same again. Burt said that he would gladly do so if necessary.

I put your points to Mrs. Grist and Miss Robertson and to the regular monitors. They reacted very strongly.

These facilities are monitored 24 hours a day every day. They have the highest priority. Since the move to the new house - and at the old one for that matter - as soon as any sound is heard an operator prepares to record it. Mostly there is the noise of numerous children. There has also been the noise of decorators, putting up new curtains and pelmets, a great deal of Christmas shopping and social discussions. Parts of these have been recorded and read back. They are of no intelligence interest at all.

The value of the facility is fully understood in A.2.A and we shall continue to get the highest priority.

MARIE MILNE was with AILEEN. BOTH had been drinking and AILEEN especially sounded as though she had had too much. They were discussing GUY (BURGESS), and KIM. AILEEN, presumably talking about the days when they were in America, said that "they sent a man out guaranteed by the F.O." It was nothing to do with KIM. MARIE asked her what did she think the F.O. could have said about him. AILEEN whispered and was inaudible. She talked about putting up a fight. MARIE fully agreed that he (KIM) should have put up a fight. She believed that everyone should fight about everything, but she doubted in this case whether it would have helped, though there was nothing to lose had the thing fallen through. AILEEN repeated that he (KIM) should have put up a fight and should have gone to the House. MARIE agreed with her and said she believed this was the reason why he failed to get into anything (a job) and remarked, "a lot of people like KIM get pushed aside". MARIE, however, said that she thought she was right in believing that KIM had been white-washed completely and added an indistinct remark about him having in his house a friend he did not suspect. They argued about it. MARIE found GUY a ghastly person in every respect. She asked AILEEN, "what did he try to tell you the last night?". AILEEN made an inaudible remark followed by "I don't think he was clever enough".

MARIE replied-"You don't have to be clever. Many people have gone over who weren't clever. Many people have held high positions wasn't clever." She said that the F.O. knew a great deal more about GUY than they would ever say, but suggested leaving it to them. AILEEN replied that she would leave it entirely to them.

MARIE went on that there was nothing they knew which the public didn't know already because it had all been spread in the newspapers so often, that GUY could come back tomorrow. AILEEN seemed to think that if he did come back tomorrow they would probably drop the whole case. Several inaudible passages followed, then MARIE said that there was no one on GUY's side and in answer to a remark by AILEEN said that no man would have given up his life of freedom for nothing. MARIE then spoke of the time when GUY was 19, and his being a communist then and she mentioned Spain. They referred to the Daily Express reports which AILEEN thought to be nothing but lies. MARIE said that GUY was intelligent enough to know that he was a 'dirty rat' and he therefore had to have a justification to himself that communism! They talked on, much of it was not clearly audible.

MARIE said that she had not got half GUY's brains nor intelligence, but she had enough to know exactly what she would be doing if she did what he had done, because she would have time to think, even in the train down to the boat before she got across. She would have tried to give herself up and take the news and.... in gaol. AILEEN agreed that it was not at all like GUY's behaviour. MARIE replied-" It looked like a fugitive deary, he would never have gone behind the Iron Curtain if it had been to suffer". Both hoped that he was now suffering. MARIE hoped so more than AILEEN, she said, but AILEEN contradicted her adding-"He b---- up my marriage, he b---- up my life".

They went on to talk about KIM and the fact that people like him and like his manner and his charm. AILEEN said that it was just not possible to dislike him. They talked of his association with CONNIE.

Incoming call to KIM from PATEY (COLLINS), who asked if he had had a letter from her and was not he cited. He said he was, tremendously. She said they were in London and wondered if he would have an early drink with them tonight. KIM hedged but eventually agreed to go along about 5.30 - he could not stay long.

Incoming call to KIM from HONEY, who asked if he had had a nice week-end. KIM said it had been quite nice. He told him that he was off shortly for an interview with the Reader's Digest, who had been advertising for a senior book editor. KIM thought this might be awfully interesting. HONEY agreed and said it was international and rolling in moneys. He was very pleased and said it would be marvellous if it came off. KIM asked how the exhibition was going. HONEY said slowly; he had sold 7 pictures but the public was small and no press at all. KIM asked if HONEY had read LIONEL HALE in the News Chronicle. KIM knew LIONEL HALE but had not realised that he was an old friend of HONEY's. The letter said he had known him in S.C.I. and they had spent a month in hospital together.

HONEY reminded KIM that they were lunching together tomorrow at the St. James's. KIM would probably ring before then with the result of the interview.

Incoming call from CONNIE to wish KIM all the best. She would be thinking about him. He would see her in the Sherry Bar at lunch-time.

Outgoing call from KIM to DORA to tell her that the job was no good. It meant a year's training in the States, in the technique of condensing novels and then returning to England to spend the rest of his days cutting up bad novels. DORA asked about the salary. KIM thought it was very good but the job was absolutely awful. He thought it unlikely that he would be allowed into the States anyway. "Because they are awfully angry over the whole business, you see and it would only mean endless trouble in the papers and everything else, I think." DORA was sorry but thought he was right. KIM said he was thinking it over anyway.

DORA told him that [redacted] had 'phoned last night. She asked if KIM knew him. KIM said, yes.

D. Well, he's out of a job too. And he said he was in the same trouble as you were. And I said: 'Over the same business?' He said: 'No.' He had fallen out with the Australians.

K. I see. He's an awful chap actually but I could give him a call perhaps.

D. Well, I should leave it KIM.

K. What is his number?

DORA went away to get her glasses and returned to say it was PAD 4302. She then said she had heard this morning from ABDULLAH and they had lost the case. KIM said that was bad news although it was inevitable. KIM then asked if this man was DORA thought it was KIM agreed that that was correct.

Incoming call from CONNIE to ask KIM what he was doing. He said he had just called up his Mother to tell her all about the interview. Incoming call from (Brigadier NICHOLSON) to KIM, who recognised his voice and called him NICK. KIM said it was wonderful to hear him and said "wasn't the information I received this morning extraordinary." (Apparently that NICHOLSON lived locally.) He asked when he was coming along to see "us." NICK said they were going away today but would be coming back on Saturday after lunch. KIM told him to come any time on Saturday. NICK said they were going out in the evening but he would ring during the afternoon to see what could be arranged. He asked how KIM was. The latter said very well and the family also were in the best of spirits. He repeated that it was wonderful news and would look forward to seeing NICK over the week-end.

Incoming call to Mrs. PEACH from PRICE ??? (A builder and decorator who had apparently been recommended to her.) She asked for an estimate for any necessary painting of outside paintwork - to be done in the Spring. Also of the hall, staircase and landing - she was doing the rooms herself.

Incoming call to KIM from HONEY who was still on the water wagon. KIM said he was too. They discussed HONEY's health HONEY then said that he had met De SALIS by chance in the street and had mentioned to him the possibility of a guide book. De SALIS had said that it was very badly needed.....HONEY had told him that KIM was writing something now that there were one or two chapters on Spain. De SALIS had asked if there would be any possibility of his seeing the chapter on Seville. KIM was not keen on the idea but said perhaps a bit later. HONEY thought it better that De SALIS had read something of KIM'S before putting him into touch with the Barcelona firm - he could then write with so much more enthusiasm. KIM thought that once the book was in the process of publication, sometime early next year, he could not see any objection from DEUTSCH's viewpoint. HONEY said on the contrary because it was envisaged that the guide book by published by a Spanish, an English and an American publisher. HONEY thought that he, KIM, De SALIS and DEUTSCH should all meet. DEUTSCH could then handle the business side from the outset and get into touch with the Spanish publishers. HONEY added that this should be done before he returned to Spain in less than a month's time. This also might stimulate DEUTSCH a little in connection with KIM's present book - he would feel that it was not going to be a dead end. KIM thanked him very much - it was an excellent idea. HONEY said if KIM approved that much, he could have a word with NICK (BENTLEY) and tell him about it. KIM would prefer to have a bit more of the first/book book done. HONEY repeated that they should have the meeting before he went away and then KIN could go back without him afterwards. KIM said "we" must think it over. HONEY agreed, as long as "we" did not lose sight of it - it might be interesting and was obviously needed.....

Yesterday I received a message from Mr. Saffery's office that Mrs. PHILBY's application for a telephone had been received and dealt with and that a telephone with the number CROWBOROUGH 3405 would be installed next week. There will be one main instrument, and two extensions have been asked for. The builders are in the house at the moment and the Post Office engineers are unable to get proper access.

rang me and asked for my comment on the point made by de la Mare as to whether the Foreign Office had any legal power under the Official Secrets Acts to tell PEACH to submit the text.

I told (for onward transmission to) that under the Official Secrets Acts there is no power legally to compel a Crown servant to submit, the position being that it is an offence to publish without permission, and the Crown servant had a right therefore to apply for permission. The Crown, on such application being made, should either -

- (1) refuse permission;
- (2) grant permission absolutely, or
- (3) grant permission subject to terms, namely subject to certain alterations specified being made in the text.

THE BOOK

Incoming call from CONNIE to PEACH.

She spoke to him about a plastic hood she intended to get for the car and had heard that one could get them in Kilburn High Road. They would go there together. ~~CONNIE~~ PEACH had heard from DEUTSCH giving an interesting criticism, in view of all which was said. It stated that the whole thing lacked vitality, though it had not been put into any definite words, but it gave that feeling.

CONNIE asked him about his own feelings on the matter, and PEACH said that he quite agreed about the lack of vitality, and CONNIE then said that she too agreed, though he rarely lacked the vitality when criticising other people's work.

Incoming call to ALLEN from KIM, who asked about her sinus and the children. ALLEN asked what was the news about the book - he had not told her what had happened about the chapters. He said he had only had a note from DEWILEY saying that he liked them and was consulting the other directors. He would let him have comments in due course. He repeated that that was all he had heard. KIM said he was at Ovingdon Gardens now and thought he would be until Thursday.
